1134/ Jonathan S. Landay, "UN General Says Ending Sieges is Top Priority", United Press International, 22 September 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, September 1992.

1135/ John Fullerton, "Shelling Puts Resumed Bosnian Air Relief At Risk", Reuters, 22 September 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, September 1992.

1136/ Jonathan S. Landay, "French Soldiers Wounded In Sarajevo", United Press International, 23 September 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, September 1992.

1137/ Id.

1138/ Jonathan S. Landay, "UN General Says Ending Sieges is Top Priority", United Press International, 22 September 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, September 1992.

Notes (continued)

1139/ John Fullerton, "Shelling Puts Resumed Bosnian Air Relief At Risk", Reuters, 22 September 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, September 1992.

1140/ Associated Press, "Muslim Reports Killing of 200 by Serbs in Bosnia", New York Times, 23 September 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, September 1992.

1141/ John Fullerton, "Shelling Puts Resumed Bosnian Air Relief At Risk", Reuters, 22 September 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, September 1992.

1142/ Id.

1143/ John Fullerton, "Shelling Kills Nine In Bosnian Hospital", Reuters, 23 September 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, September 1992.

1144/ Natela Sjeklocha, United Press International, 23 September 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, September 1992.

1145/ Jonathan S. Landay, "French Soldiers Wounded In Sarajevo", United Press International, 23 September 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, September 1992.

1146/ Id.

1147/ "Eleven Killed In Attack On Hospital, Two French Troops Hurt", Agence France Presse, 23 September 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, September 1992.

1148/ Jonathan S. Landay, "French Soldiers Wounded In Sarajevo", United Press International, 23 September 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, September 1992.

1149/ "Eleven Killed In Attack On Hospital, Two French Troops Hurt", Agence France Presse, 23 September 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, September 1992.

1150/ John Fullerton, "Sarajevo Waits For Word On UN Aid Lifeline", Reuters, 24 September 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, September 1992.

1151/ Carnegie Endowment, Breakdown in the Balkans, A Chronicle of Events, January 1989 to May 1993.

1152/ "Eleven Killed In Attack On Hospital, Two French Troops Hurt", Agence France Presse, 23 September 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, September 1992.

1153/ Jonathan S. Landay, "Seven UN Soldiers Wounded In Blast", United Press International, 24 September 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, September 1992.

1154/ Id.

1155/ Id.

1156/ Id.

1157/ Id.

Notes (continued)

1158/ Jonathan S. Landay, "Fighting Flares In Bosnia Amid International Peace Efforts", United Press International, 25 September 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, September 1992.

1159/ Id.

1160/ Id.

1161/ Id.

1162/ "Banja Luka Situation Even More Severe Than Expected: Vance", Agence France Presse, 25 September 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, September 1992.

1163/ See IHRLI, Chronology of the Negotiations for Peace in the Former Yugoslavia.

1164/ "Banja Luka Situation Even More Severe Than Expected: Vance", Agence France Presse, 25 September 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, September 1992.

1165/ Incid. No. 86, United States Submission

1166/ Jonathan S. Landay, "Peace Envoys Cite 'Shattering' Image of 'Ethnic Cleansing'", United Press International, 26 September 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, September 1992.

1167/ Id.

1168/ "Serbs, Bosnians Clash In Sarajevo Suburbs", Reuters, 26 September 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, September 1992.

1169/ Id.

1170/ Id.

1171/ Id.

1172/ Stephen Nisbet, "Peace Envoys To Urge End To Refugee Attacks", Reuters, 27 September 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, September 1992.

1173/ John Burns, "Sarajevo Siege Deepens, Defying Efforts at Peace", New York Times, 27 September 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, September 1992.

1174/ Incid. No. 24071, Source: Home News, Tanjug News Agency.

1175/ Blaine Harden, "Sarajevo's Fortunes This Winter Hinges on Serbs' Mood", Washington Post, 27 September 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, September 1992.

1176/ Paul Basken, "UN Reports Progress With Serbian Leader", United Press International, 27 September 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, September 1992.

1177/ BiH Ministry of Public Health Bulletin, 27 September 1992, IHRLI Doc. No. 26871.

Notes (continued)

1178/ John Fullerton, "Heavy Attacks On Bosnian Towns Reported", Reuters, 27 September 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, September 1992.

1179/ Paul Basken, "UN Reports Progress With Serbian Leader", United Press International, 27 September 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, September 1992.

1180/ Id.

1181/ Id.

1182/ "Sarajevo Radio Warns Of New Serb Offensive", Reuters, 28 September 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, September 1992.

1183/ Paul Basken, "Mourners Attacked In Sarajevo, Five Killed", United Press International, 28 September 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, September 1992.

1184/ "Sarajevo Radio Warns Of New Serb Offensive", Reuters, 28 September 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, September 1992.

1185/ Stephen Nisbet, "War Rages On As Yugoslavs, Croats Agree To Talk", Reuters, 28 September 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, September 1992; Paul Basken, "Mourners Attacked In Sarajevo, Five Killed", United Press International, 28 September 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, September 1992.

1186/ Paul Basken, "Mourners Attacked In Sarajevo, Five Killed", United Press International, 28 September 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, September 1992.

1187/ John Burns, "For the Sarajevans, Many New Graves", New York Times, 28 September 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, September 1992.

1188/ See IHRLI, Chronology of the Negotiations for Peace in the Former Yugoslavia.

1189/ "Cosic Talks With Vance, Owen End", Belgrade Tanjug Domestic Service in Serbo-Croatian, 28 September 1992, 1833 GMT, FBIS #LD2809212992.

1190/ "Sarajevo Radio Warns Of New Serb Offensive", Reuters, 28 September 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, September 1992.

1191/ "Sporadic Shelling As Bosnians Warn Of New Serb Attack", Agence France Presse, 29 September 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, September 1992.

1192/ Id.

1193/ Paul Basken, "Rocket Fire Targets Sarajevo Business District", Reuters, 29 September 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, September 1992.

1194/ "Sporadic Shelling As Bosnians Warn Of New Serb Attack", Agence France Presse, 29 September 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, September 1992.

1195/ Id.

1196/ John Fullerton, "Flights Likely To Resume Despite Sarajevo Mayhem", Reuters, 29 September 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, September

Notes (continued)

1992.

1197/ Paul Basken, "Rocket Fire Targets Sarajevo Business District", United Press International, 29 September 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, September 1992.

1198/ "Sporadic Shelling As Bosnians Warn Of New Serb Attack", Agence France Presse, 29 September 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, September 1992.

1199/ Id.

1200/ John Fullerton, "Flights Likely To Resume Despite Sarajevo Mayhem", Reuters, 29 September 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, September 1992.

1201/ "Radical Party Questions Competency of Panic, Cosic", Belgrade Tanjug in English, 29 September 1992, 2253 GMT, FBIS #LD3009053892.

1202/ Paul Basken, "Rocket Fire Targets Sarajevo Business District", United Press International, 29 September 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, September 1992.

1203/ Id.

1204/ Id.

1205/ "UNHCR Warns 400,000 May Die, Airlift Seems Set To Resume", Agence France Presse", 29 September 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, September 1992.

1206/ See IHRLI, Chronology of the Negotiations for Peace in the Former Yugoslavia.

1207/ "Izetbegovic Agrees to Demilitarization Talks", Belgrade Tanjug in English, 29 September 1993, 1623 GMT, FBIS #LD2909172392.

1208/ "UNHCR Warns 400,000 May Die, Airlift Seems Set To Resume", Agence France Presse", 29 September 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, September 1992.

1209/ Paul Basken, "Serbs Carry Out 'Ethnic Cleansing' Operation In Bosnian Capital", United Press International, 30 September 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, September 1992.

1210/ Id.

1211/ Id.

1212/ Id.

1213/ Id.

1214/ Id.

1215/ See IHRLI, Chronology of the Negotiations for Peace in the Former Yugoslavia.

1216/ "Tudjman, Cosic Agree on Prevlaka Demilitarization", Zagreb Radio Croatia Network in Serbo-Croatian, 30 September 1992, 2100 GMT, FBIS

Notes (continued)

#LD3009213692.

1217/ Paul Basken, "Serbian Forces Hammer Bosnian Towns with Artillery, Mortar Fire", United Press International, 2 October 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, October 1992.

1218/ Id.

1219/ "UPI News at a Glance", United Press International, 1 October 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, October 1992; John Burns, "500 Muslims Driven by Serbs Through a Gauntlet of Terror", New York Times, 2 October 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, October 1992.

1220/ John Burns, "500 Muslims Driven by Serbs Through a Gauntlet of Terror", New York Times, 2 October 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, October 1992.

1221/ Stephen Nisbet, "Bosnia's Agony Goes on Despite Diplomacy", Reuters, 1 October 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, October 1992.

1222/ Carol Giacomo, "US Says Sarajevo Relief Flights to Start Saturday", Reuters, 1 October 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, October 1992.

1223/ Michael Gordon, "Bush Backs Ban on Combat Flights in Bosnia Airspace", New York Times, 1 October 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, October 1992.

1224/ Paul Basken, "Serbian Forces Hammer Bosnian Towns with Artillery, Mortar Fire", United Press International, 2 October 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, October 1992.

1225/ Id.

1226/ Id.

1227/ Kurt Schork, "Moslems, Serbs Fight Machine Gun Battle in Sarajevo", Reuters, 2 October 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, October 1992.

1228/ John Burns, "150 Muslims Say Serbs Raped Them in Bosnia", New York Times, 3 October 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, October 1992.

1229/ Paul Basken, "US Aid Flights Reach Sarajevo", United Press International, 3 October 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, October 1992.

1230/ Kurt Schork, "Sarajevo Airport Suburb Shelled", Reuters, 3 October 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, October 1992.

1231/ Paul Basken, "US Aid Flights Reach Sarajevo", United Press International, 3 October 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, October 1992.

1232/ Id.

1233/ "Warring Factions Agree to Release Prisoners", Agence France Presse in English, 3 October 1992, 1808 GMT, FBIS #AU0310191592.

1234/ Paul Basken, "Rain Calms Sarajevo as More Flights Arrive", United Press International, 4 October 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, October 1992.

Notes (continued)

1235/ "Shelling Hits Suburb Near Sarajevo Airport", Reuters, 4 October 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, October 1992.

1236/ Paul Basken, "Rain Calms Sarajevo as More Flights Arrive", United Press International, 4 October 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, October 1992.

1237/ "Shelling Hits Suburb Near Sarajevo Airport", Reuters, 4 October 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, October 1992.

1238/ Paul Basken, "Rain Calms Sarajevo as More Flights Arrive", United Press International, 4 October 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, October 1992.

1239/ Id.

1240/ Paul Basken, "Serbian Guns Resume Heavy Shelling of Sarajevo", United Press International, 5 October 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, October 1992.

1241/ Paul Basken, "Bombardment of Sarajevo Intensifies", United Press International, 5 October 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, October 1992.

1242/ Kurt Schork, "Serb Incendiary Shells Set Off Raging Fires In Sarajevo", Reuters, 5 October 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, October 1992.

1243/ Paul Basken, "Serbian Guns Resume Heavy Shelling of Sarajevo", United Press International, 5 October 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, October 1992.

1244/ Paul Basken, "Bombardment of Sarajevo Intensifies", United Press International, 5 October 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, October 1992.

1245/ Id.

1246/ Id.

1247/ Id.

1248/ Id.

1249/ Id.

1250/ Id.

1251/ "Karadžić Threatens Geneva Pullout on No-Fly Zone", Belgrade Tanjug Domestic Service in Serbo-Croatian, 5 October 1992, 1554 GMT, FBIS #LD051014792.

1252/ Carnegie Endowment, Breakdown in the Balkans, A Chronicle of Events, January 1989 to May 1993.

1253/ Laura Pitter, "Serbian Forces Seize Key City of Bosanski Brod", United Press International, 6 October 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, October 1992.

1254/ Kurt Schork, "Sarajevo Residents Given Respite After Battering", Reuters, 6 October 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, October 1992.

Notes (continued)

1255/ Id.

1256/ UN Doc. S/RES/780 (6 October 1992).

1257/ See IHRLI, Chronology of the Negotiations for Peace in the Former Yugoslavia.

1258/ Id.

1259/ Mary Battiata, "Bosnian Serbs Take Key City from Muslims", Washington Post, 8 October 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, October 1992.

1260/ John Burns, "Serbs Loose Inferno on a Sarajevo Neighborhood", New York Times, 8 October 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, October 1992.

1261/ Paul Basken, "Serbs take Bosanski Brod", United Press International, 7 October 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, October 1992.

1262/ Id.

1263/ Kurt Schork, "Fighting Rages in Bosnia, Sarajevo", Reuters, 7 October 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, October 1992.

1264/ See IHRLI, Chronology of the Negotiations for Peace in the Former Yugoslavia.

1265/ "Bosnian Minister Questions Relevance of Talks", Bern Swiss International in English, 7 October 1992, 1700 GMT, FBIS #LD081021492.

1266/ Evelyn Leopold, "Security Council Considers No-Fly Zone for Bosnia", Reuters, 7 October 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, October 1992.

1267/ Paul Basken, "Fighting Reported in Six Cities of Bosnia-Herzegovina", United Press International, 8 October 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, October 1992.

1268/ Id.

1269/ Id.

1270/ Kurt Schork, "Bosnian Serbs Consolidate Hold on Key Town", Reuters, 8 October 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, October 1992.

1271/ Paul Basken, "Fighting Reported in Six Cities of Bosnia-Herzegovina", United Press International, 8 October 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, October 1992.

1272/ Chuck Sudetic, "UN Aides Assert Serbs Booby-Trapped a Dam", New York Times, 9 October 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, October 1992.

1273/ Paul Basken, "Security Council Bans Military Flights over Bosnia-Herzegovina", United Press International, 9 October 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, October 1992.

1274/ Chuck Sudetic, "UN Aides Assert Serbs Booby-Trapped a Dam", New York Times, 9 October 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, October 1992.

Notes (continued)

1275/ Paul Basken, "Serbian and Croatian Forces Reportedly Strike a Secret Deal", United Press international, 9 October 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, October 1992.

1276/ Anthony Lewis, "Abroad at Home: Death at Bush's Door", New York Times, October 9, 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, October 1992.

1277/ Paul Basken, "Security Council Bans Military Flights over Bosnia-Herzegovina", United Press International, 9 October 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, October 1992.

1278/ Paul Basken, "Sarajevo Radio Says Serbs Violate Military Flight Ban", United Press International, 11 October 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, October 1992.

1279/ Helsinki Watch Report, April 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 9712.

1280/ Paul Basken, "Sarajevo Radio says Serbs Violate Military Flight Ban", October 10, 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, October 1992.

1281/ Helsinki Watch Report, April 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 9712.

1282/ Paul Basken, "Sarajevo Radio Says Serbs Violate Military Flight Ban", October 10, 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, October 1992.

1283/ Id.

1284/ See IHRLI, Chronology of the Negotiations for Peace in the Former Yugoslavia.

1285/ John Burns, "Sarajevo is a City Exhausted by Grief", New York Times, 12 October 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, October 1992.

1286/ Paul Basken, "UN Commander Optimistic After Meeting Serbs", United Press International, 12 October 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, October 1992.

1287/ See IHRLI, Chronology of the Negotiations for Peace in the Former Yugoslavia.

1288/ Paul Basken, "UN Tries to Keep Artillery Score in Sarajevo", United Press International, 13 October 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, October 1992.

1289/ Kurt Schork, "Serbs Force Open Lifeline in North Bosnia", Reuters, 12 October 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, October 1992.

1290/ Paul Holmes, "Bosnian Serbs Say Key Supply Route Reopened", Reuters, 12 October 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, October 1992.

1291/ Paul Basken, "Sarajevo Talks Hit Immediate Snag", United Press International, 13 October 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, October 1992.

1292/ See IHRLI, Chronology of the Negotiations for Peace in the Former Yugoslavia.

1293/ Carnegie Endowment, Breakdown in the Balkans, A Chronicle of

Notes (continued)

Events, January 1989 to May 1993.

1294/ Paul Basken, "Sarajevo's Gas, Jajce's Electricity Restored", United Press International, 14 October 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, October 1992.

1295/ Kurt Schork, "Mortars Smash Newly-Repaired Sarajevo Power Lines", Reuters, 13 October 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, October 1992.

1296/ Paul Holmes, "UN Plane Fired on Coming into Sarajevo", Reuters, 13 October 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, October 1992.

1297/ Kurt Schork, "Mortars Smash Newly-Repaired Sarajevo Power Lines", Reuters, 13 October 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, October 1992.

1298/ Paul Basken, "Sarajevo Talks Hit Immediate Snag", United Press International, 13 October 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, October 1992.

1299/ Carnegie Endowment, Breakdown in the Balkans, A Chronicle of Events, January 1989 to May 1993.

1300/ Paul Basken, "Bosnian Government Forces Barricade Sarajevo Airport Road", United Press International, 15 October 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, October 1992.

1301/ Paul Basken, "Sarajevo's Gas, Jajce's Electricity Restored", United Press International, 14 October 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, October 1992.

1302/ See IHRLI, Chronology of the Negotiations for Peace in the Former Yugoslavia.

1303/ Paul Basken, "UN Peacekeepers Fail to Resume Aid Deliveries to Sarajevo", United Press International, 16 October 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, October 1992.

1304/ Paul Basken, "Bosnian Government Forces Barricade Sarajevo Airport Road", United Press International, 15 October 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, 1992.

1305/ Paul Basken, "Bosnians Agree to Remove Sarajevo Blockade", United Press International, 17 October 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, October 1992.

1306/ Paul Basken, "UN Peacekeepers Fail to Resume Aid Deliveries to Sarajevo", United Press International, October 16, 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, October 1992.

1307/ "Karadžić Calls for Access to Serbian Prisoners", Belgrade Tanjug Domestic Service in Serbo-Croatian, 16 October 1992, 2118 GMT, FBIS #LD1610223592.

1308/ Paul Basken, "UN Peacekeepers Fail to Resume Aid Deliveries to Sarajevo", United Press International, 16 October 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, October 1992.

1309/ See IHRLI, Chronology of the Negotiations for Peace in the Former

Notes (continued)

Yugoslavia.

1310/ Carnegie Endowment, Breakdown in the Balkans, A Chronicle of Events, January 1989 to May 1993.

1311/ Id.

1312/ Id.

1313/ Paul Basken, "Artillery Attacks Resume in Sarajevo", United Press International, 18 October 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, October 1992.

1314/ Paul Basken, "Bosnians Agree to Remove Sarajevo Blockade", United Press International, 17 October 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, October 1992.

1315/ Id.

1316/ See IHRLI, Chronology of the Negotiations for Peace in the Former Yugoslavia.

1317/ Helsinki Watch Report, April 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 9713 (citing John F. Burns, "Serbs' Heavy New Artillery Attack Deprives Sarajevo of Its Flour Mill", New York Times, 19 October 1992).

1318/ Id.

1319/ Kurt Schork, "Scores of Casualties in Shelling of Sarajevo", Reuters, 18 October 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, October 1992.

1320/ See Materials submitted by the Government of BiH, IHRLI Doc. No. 027274-78.

1321/ Id.

1322/ Carnegie Endowment, Breakdown in the Balkans, A Chronicle of Events, January 1989 to May 1993.

1323/ Id.

1324/ IHRLI, Chronology of the Negotiations for Peace in the Former Yugoslavia.

1325/ Paul Basken, "Fighting Continues as Yugoslav Leaders End Talks", United Press International, 20 October 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, October 1992.

1326/ Paul Basken, "Serbian Forces Harass UN Military Chief Near Airport", United Press International, 19 October 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, October 1992.

1327/ Id.

1328/ Id.

1329/ IHRLI, Chronology of the Negotiations for Peace in the Former Yugoslavia.

Notes (continued)

1330/ "Cotic-Izetbegovic Talks Conclude With Declaration", Zagreb Radio Croatia Network in Serbo-Croatian, 19 October 1992, 2100 GMT, FBIS #LD1910223592.

1331/ "Serbs Announce All Aircraft Placed In Hangars", Belgrade Tanjug Domestic Service in Serbo-Croatian, 19 October 1992, 2141 GMT, FBIS #LD1910215592.

1332/ Paul Basken, "Serbs Briefly Detain Sarajevo's UN Commander", United Press International, 19 October 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, October 1992.

1333/ Paul Basken, "Aid Flights Suspended amid Bosnian-Croat Clashes", United Press International, 21 October 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, October 1992.

1334/ Carnegie Endowment, Breakdown in the Balkans, A Chronicle of Events, January 1989 to May 1993.

1335/ Paul Basken, "Fighting Intensifies Among Bosnia-Hercegovina Ethnic Groups", United Press International, 22 October 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, October 1992.

1336/ Paul Basken, "Aid Flights Suspended Amid Bosnian-Croat Clashes", United Press International, 21 October 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, October 1992.

1337/ Id.

1338/ Id.

1339/ IHRLI, Chronology of the Negotiations for Peace in the Former Yugoslavia.

1340/ "Bosnian Muslims Agree to Army Talks with Serbs", Zagreb Radio Croatia Network in Serbo-Croatian, 20 October 1992, 1100 GMT, FBIS #LD2110113592.

1341/ Paul Basken, "Fighting Intensifies among Bosnia-Hercegovina Ethnic Groups", United Press International, 22 October 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, October 1992.

1342/ Id.

1343/ Id.

1344/ Carnegie Endowment, Breakdown in the Balkans, A Chronicle of Events, January 1989 to May 1993.

1345/ Paul Basken, "Gradacac Hit: UN Feted and Fired Upon", United Press International, 25 October 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, October 1992.

1346/ Paul Basken, "Ethnic Military Commanders Meet for First Time in Sarajevo", United Press International, 23 October 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, October 1992.

1347/ Kurt Schork, "Rival Military Officers Meet in Sarajevo for the

Notes (continued)

First Time", Reuters, 23 October 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, October 1992.

1348/ John Burns, "In 'Signal of Hope,' Sarajevo Utilities Are Restored", New York Times, 23 October 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, October 1992.

1349/ IHRLI, Chronology of the Negotiations for Peace in the Former Yugoslavia.

1350/ Paul Basken, "Gradacac Hit: UN Feted and Fired Upon", United Press International, 24 October 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, October 1992.

1351/ Id.

1352/ "Renewed Gunfire Rocks Sarajevo Suburbs", Reuters, 24 October 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, October 1992.

1353/ Carnegie Endowment, Breakdown in the Balkans, A Chronicle of Events, January 1989 to May 1993.

1354/ Paul Basken, "Bosnian Military Eyes Sarajevo Demilitarization", United Press International, 26 October 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, October 1992.

1355/ Paul Basken, "Bosnian Political Scene Heats Up as Muslim Slav-Croat Truce Holds", United Press International, 25 October 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, October 1992.

1356/ "Snow on Mountain a Foretaste for Sarajevo", Reuters, 25 October 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, October 1992.

1357/ Paul Basken, "Bosnian Political Scene Heats Up as Muslim Slav-Croat Truce Holds", United Press International, 25 October 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, October 1992.

1358/ Carnegie Endowment, Breakdown in the Balkans, A Chronicle of Events, January 1989 to May 1993.

1359/ Paul Basken, "Heavy Fighting Rocks Bosnian North", United Press International, 27 October 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, October 1992.

1360/ Paul Basken, "Bosnian Military Eyes Sarajevo Demilitarization", United Press International, 26 October 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, October 1992.

1361/ Id.

1362/ Kurt Schork, "Rival Bosnian Gunmen Fight on as Commanders Meet", Reuters, 26 October 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, October 1992.

1363/ Laura Pitter, "UN Aid Flights Often Targeted by Anti-Aircraft Weapons", United Press International, 26 October 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, October 1992.

1364/ IHRLI, Chronology of the Negotiations for Peace in the Former Yugoslavia.

Notes (continued)

1365/ Carnegie Endowment, Breakdown in the Balkans, A Chronicle of Events, January 1989 to May 1993.

1366/ Paul Basken, "Heavy Fighting Rocks Bosnian North as Crucial Geneva Session Begins", United Press International, 27 October 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, October 1992.

1367/ Id.

1368/ Paul Basken, "Serbian Gunners Shell Sarajevo after Rejecting UN Initiative", United Press International, 28 October 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, October 1992.

1369/ Paul Basken, "Fighting Persists in Bosnia as Peace Mediators Begin Balkans Tour", United Press International, 28 October 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, October 1992.

1370/ Id.

1371/ IHRLI, Chronology of the Negotiations for Peace in the Former Yugoslavia.

1372/ "Vance, Owen Present New Constitutional Plan", Belgrade Tanjug in English, 28 October 1992, 2247 GMT, FBIS #LD2810213292.

1373/ Paul Basken, "Serbian Gunners Shell Sarajevo after Rejecting UN Initiative", United Press International, 29 October 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, October 1992.

1374/ Id.

1375/ Carnegie Endowment, Breakdown in the Balkans, A Chronicle of Events, January 1989 to May 1993.

1376/ Kevin Sullivan, "UN Blasts Serbian Attacks: Refugees Said Under Fire", United Press International, 1 November 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, November 1992.

1377/ Kurt Schork, "Sarajevo Suffers Worst Fighting in Weeks: at Least 14 Killed", Reuters, 31 October 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, October 1992.

1378/ Kevin Sullivan, "UN Blasts Serbian Attacks: Refugees Said Under Fire", United Press International, 1 November 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, November 1992.

1379/ UNPROFOR HQ BH Command, Kiseljak, Mil. Info. Summary, No. 1 (from 250001 October to 012359 November 92), IHRLI Doc. No. 25698.

1380/ Kevin Sullivan, "Serbian Forces Launch Fresh Shelling of Sarajevo", United Press International, 31 October 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, October 1992.

1381/ Kurt Schork, "Sarajevo Suffers Worst Fighting in Weeks: at Least 14 Killed", Reuters, 31 October 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, October 1992.

Notes (continued)

1382/ Kevin Sullivan, "U.N. Blasts Serbian Attacks: Refugees Said Under Fire", United Press International, 1 November 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, November 1992.

1383/ Branislav Bozic, "Karadzic Proposes Five Ethnically-Based Cantons", Belgrade Radio Beograd Network in Serbo-Croatian, 31 October 1992, 1400 GMT, FBIS #AU3110152892.

1384/ Kevin Sullivan, "U.N. Blasts Serbian Attacks: Refugees Said Under Fire", United Press International, 1 November 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, November 1992.

1385/ Paul Lewis, "In War's Brutal Din, a `Week of Tranquillity'", New York Times, 1 November 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, November 1992.

1386/ Kevin Sullivan, "U.N. Blasts Serbian Attacks: Refugees Said Under Fire", United Press International, 1 November 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, November 1992.

1387/ Kurt Schork, "Intense Fighting Breaks Out in Central Sarajevo", Reuters, 1 November 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, November 1992.

1388/ Id.

1389/ Paul Lewis, "In War's Brutal Din, a `Week of Tranquillity'", New York Times, 1 November 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, November 1992.

1390/ Kevin Sullivan, "Sarajevo Hospitals Missing Walls, Floors, but Struggle On", United Press International, 1 November 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, November 1992.

1391/ Carnegie Endowment, Breakdown in the Balkans, A Chronicle of Events, January 1989 to May 1993.

1392/ Kevin Sullivan, United Press International, 2 November 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, November 1992.

1393/ Paul Lewis, "Yugoslav Lawmakers Set Back Moderate Premier", New York Times, 3 November 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, November 1992.

1394/ John Burns, "35,000 Join the Depressing Roll of Bosnia Refugees", New York Times, 3 November 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, November 1992.

1395/ Carnegie Endowment, Breakdown in the Balkans, A Chronicle of Events, January 1989 to May 1993.

1396/ Kevin Sullivan, "Journalist Wounded in Sarajevo Fighting", United Press International, 4 November 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, November 1992.

1397/ Id.

1398/ Id.

1399/ Andrew Gumbel, "Yugoslavia's Panic Fights for His Political Life", Reuters, 3 November 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, November 1992.

Notes (continued)

1400/ Carnegie Endowment, Breakdown in the Balkans, A Chronicle of Events, January 1989 to May 1993.

1401/ Id.

1402/ Blaine Harden, "Grim Winter Seen in War Zones: U.N. Aide Says Famine Threatens Chaotic Bosnia and Croatia", Washington Post, 5 November 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, November 1992.

1403/ Kurt Sullivan, "Humanitarian Aid Convoy Turned Back", United Press International, 6 November 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, November 1992.

1404/ Andrew Gumbel, "Panic Survives Vote, Peace Talks Back on Track", Reuters, 4 November 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, November 1992.

1405/ "Vance, Owen Pessimistic After Pristina Visit", Tirana ATA in English, 4 November 1992, 1303 GMT, FBIS #AU0411152992.

1406/ Kevin Sullivan, "U.N. Official Warns of `Famine' in Sarajevo", United Press International, 5 November 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, November 1992.

1407/ UNPROFOR Press Release, 6 November 1992, IHRLI Doc. No. 21700.

1408/ Blaine Harden, "Grim Winter Seen in War Zones: U.N. Aide Says Famine Threatens Chaotic Bosnia and Croatia", Washington Post, 5 November 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, November 1992.

1409/ IHRLI, Chronology of the Negotiations for Peace in the Former Yugoslavia.

1410/ Kurt Sullivan, "Humanitarian Aid Convoy Turned Back", United Press International, 6 November 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, November 1992.

1411/ Id.

1412/ Id.

1413/ Id.

1414/ IHRLI, Chronology of the Negotiations for Peace in the Former Yugoslavia.

1415/ Carnegie Endowment, Breakdown in the Balkans, A Chronicle of Events, January 1989 to May 1993.

1416/ Kurt Sullivan, "British U.N. Troops Return Fire after Coming under Attack", United Press International, 7 November 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, November 1992.

1417/ Id.

1418/ Id.

1419/ Id.

1420/ Kevin Sullivan, "U.N. Troop Commander Meets with Bosnian Leader",

Notes (continued)

United Press International, 8 November 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, November 1992.

1421/ Id.

1422/ UNPROFOR HQ BH Command, Kiseljak, Mil Info Summary, No. 3, (From 082359A November 1992 to 152359A November 1992).

1423/ Kevin Sullivan, "U.N Troop Commander Meets with Bosnian Leader". United Press International, 8 November 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo source File, November 1992.

1424/ Kurt Schork, "Serbs Threaten Zagreb, British Seek New Aid Route", Reuters, 8 November 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, November 1992.

1425/ Kevin Sullivan, "Continuing Serbian Offensive Coincides With New Peace Plan", United Press International, 9 November 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, November 1992.

1426/ BiH Ministry of Public Health, 15 November 1992, IHRLI Doc. No. 26884.

1427/ BiH Ministry of Public Health Bulletin, 9 November 1992, IHRLI Doc. No. 26882.

1428/ Kevin Sullivan, "Continuing Serbian Offensive Coincides with New Peace Plan", United Press International, 9 November 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, November 1992.

1429/ Id.

1430/ Id.

1431/ Dusan Djordjevic, "Karadzic Presents Seven-Point Peace Plan", Belgrade Radio Beograd Network in Serbo-Croatian, 9 November 1992, 1400 GMT, FBIS #AU0911151992.

1432/ Kurt Schork, "Thousands Due To Leave Sarajevo in Red Cross Evacuation", Reuters, 10 November 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, November 1992.

1433/ BiH Ministry of Public Health Bulletin, 15 November 1992, IHRLI Doc. No. 26884.

1434/ Kevin Sullivan, "6,000 People Began Evacuation of Sarajevo", United Press International, 10 November 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, November 1992.

1435/ John F. Burns, "Sarajevans' Evacuation Ends in Sorrow", New York Times, 11 November 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, November 1992.

1436/ Kevin Sullivan, "New Cease-Fire Signed in Bosnia-Herzegovina", United Press International, 10 November 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, November 1992.

1437/ IHRLI, Chronology of the Negotiations for Peace in the Former Yugoslavia.

Notes (continued)

1438/ Kevin Sullivan, "Mostar Fighting Threatens New Bosnian Cease-Fire", United Press International, 11 November 1992, Sarajevo Source File, November 1992.

1439/ Id.

1440/ Id.

1441/ Kurt Schork, "Cease-Fire In Effect in Bosnia", Reuters, 8 November 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, November 1992.

1442/ John F. Burns, "Sarajevo Evacuation Effort Fails after Airport Attack", New York Times, 11 November 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, November 1992.

1443/ IHRLI, Chronology of the Negotiations for Peace in the Former Yugoslavia.

1444/ BiH Ministry of Public Health Bulletin, 15 November 1992, IHRLI Doc. No. 26884.

1445/ Kurt Schork, "Bosnian Rivals Largely Observe Truce In Sarajevo", Reuters, 12 November 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, November 1992.

1446/ Id.

1447/ Id.

1448/ BiH Ministry of Public Health Bulletin, 15 November 1992, IHRLI Doc. No. 26884.

1449/ Blaine Harden "Yugoslav President Warns Croats to Halt Drive", Washington Post, November 13, 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, November 1992; John F. Burns, "Nervously, Gratefully, Sarajevo Takes a Stroll", New York Times, 14 November 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, November 1992.

1450/ Hugh Pain, "Bosnian Cease-Fire Appears Broken", Reuters, 13 November 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, November 1992.

1451/ "Karadzic Says Croatia Violating Cease-Fire", Belgrade Tanjug Domestic Service in Serbo-Croatian, 13 November 1992, 1308 GMT, FBIS #LD1311145292.

1452/ Carnegie Endowment, Breakdown in the Balkans, A Chronicle of Events, January 1989 to May 1993.

1453/ BiH Ministry of Public Health Bulletin, 15 November 1992, IHRLI Doc. No. 26884.

1454/ UNPROFOR HQ BH Command, Kiseljak, Mil. Info. Summary, No. 3, (From 082359A November 1992 to 152359A November 1992), IHRLI Doc. No. 25688.

1455/ Kevin Sullivan, "Bosnian Fighting Rages Despite Cease-Fire Pact", United Press International, 14 November 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, November 1992.

1456/ John F. Burns, "Jews Evacuate 200, Muslims Included, In Bosnia",

Notes (continued)

New York Times, 15 November 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, November 1992.

1457/ IHRLI, Chronology of the Negotiations for Peace in the Former Yugoslavia.

1458/ UNPROFOR HQ BH Command Kiseljak, Mil. Infor. Summary, No. 4, (231200A November 1992), IHRLI Doc. No. 25685.

1459/ BiH Ministry of Public Health Bulletin, 15 November 1992, IHRLI Doc. No. 26884.

1460/ Id.

1461/ Hugh Pain, "U.N. Commander Plays Down Cease-Fire Violations in Bosnia", Reuters, 15 November 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, November 1992.

1462/ Hugh Pain, "Bosnia Cease-Fire Under Renewed Threat As Fighting Reported", Reuters, 15 November 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, November 1992.

1463/ Kevin Sullivan, "Hundreds more Evacuate Sarajevo", United Press International, 15 November 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, November 1992.

1464/ UNPROFOR HQ BH Command Kiseljak, Mil. Infor. Summary, No. 4, (231200A November 1992), IHRLI Doc. No. 25685.

1465/ Id.

1466/ Kevin Sullivan, "U.N. Chief Hopeful of Cease-Fire", United Press International, 16 November 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, November 1992.

1467/ Id.

1468/ Id.

1469/ Id.

1470/ UNPROFOR HQ BH Command Kiseljak, Mil. Infor. Summary, No. 4, (231200A November 92), IHRLI Doc. No. 25685.

1471/ Kevin Sullivan, "U.N Chief Hopeful of Cease-Fire", United Press International, 15 November 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, November 1992.

1472/ Frank J. Prial, "U.N. Tightens Curbs on Belgrade By Authorizing a Naval Blockade", New York Times, 17 November 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, November 1992.

1473/ UNPROFOR HQ BH Command Kiseljak, Mil. Infor. Summary, No. 4, (231200A November 92), IHRLI Doc. No. 25685.

1474/ Kevin Sullivan, "Foul Weather Deepens Hardship in War-torn Bosnia", United Press International, 17 November 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, November 1992.

1475/ Id.

1476/ Id.

Notes (continued)

1477/ Helsinki Watch Report, April 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 9713.

1478/ Hugh Pain, "Heavy Fighting Reported on Three Fronts in Bosnia", Reuters, 18 November 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, November 1992.

1479/ UNPROFOR HQ BH Command Kiseljak, Mil. Infor. Summary, No. 4, (231200A November 92), IHRLI Doc. No. 25685.

1480/ Kevin Sullivan, "Negotiators will Continue Serb-Croat Talks Despite Agreement Lack", United Press International, 18 November 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, November 1992.

1481/ Id.

1482/ UNPROFOR HQ BH Command Kiseljak, Mil. Infor. Summary, No. 4, (231200A November 1992), IHRLI Doc. No. 25685.

1483/ Hugh Pain, "Mediators Vance and Owen Expected in Croatia", Reuters, 19 November 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, November 1992.

1484/ UNPROFOR HQ BH Command Kiseljak, Mil. Infor. Summary, No. 4, (231200A November 92), IHRLI Doc. No. 25685.

1485/ Id.

1486/ Hugh Pain, "Mediators Vance and Owen Expected in Croatia", Reuters, 19 November 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, November 1992.

1487/ Kevin Sullivan, U.N. Officials Acknowledge Bosnian Cease-Fire Not Holding", United Press International, 19 November 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, November 1992.

1488/ Id.

1489/ Id.

1490/ Carnegie Endowment, Breakdown in the Balkans, A Chronicle of Events, January 1989 to May 1993.

1491/ Hugh Pain, "Sniper Fire Rakes Sarajevo After Shelling", Reuters, 20 November 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, November 1992; Hugh Pain, "Serb Attack Key Bosnian Refugee Town", Reuters, 20 November 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, November 1992.

1492/ UNPROFOR HQ BH Command Kiseljak, Mil. Infor. Summary, No. 4, (231200A November 92), IHRLI Doc. No. 25685.

1493/ Kevin Sullivan, "New Fighting as U.N. Says No Progress in Cease-Fire Talks", United Press International, 20 November 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, November 1992.

1494/ Id.

1495/ Hugh Pain, "Frontline Pensioners Caught Up in Sarajevo War", Reuters, 20 November 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, November 1992.

1496/ Kevin Sullivan, "Bosnian Leader Worried About Missile Movement",

Notes (continued)

United Press International, 21 November 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, November 1992.

1497/ Id.

1498/ UNPROFOR HQ BH Command Kiseljak, Mil. Infor. Summary, No. 4, (231200A November 1992), IHRLI Doc. No. 25685.

1499/ Kevin Sullivan, "Bosnian Leader Worried About Missile Movement", United Press International, 21 November 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, November 1992.

1500/ Id.

1501/ Hugh Pain, "Fighting in Sarajevo After Worst Day in City Since Cease-Fire", Reuters, 23 November 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, November 1992.

1502/ Kevin Sullivan, "Naval Blockade of Adriatic Begins", United Press International, 22 November 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, November 1992.

1503/ Hugh Pain, "Typhoid Reported in Bosnian Refugee Towns", Reuters, 22 November 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, November 1992.

1504/ Kevin Sullivan, "Naval Blockade of Adriatic Begins", United Press International, 22 November 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, November 1992.

1505/ Carnegie Endowment, Breakdown in the Balkans, A Chronicle of Events, January 1989 to May 1993.

1506/ Kevin Sullivan, "Sarajevo's Flower Power Blooms Amid War", United Press International, 22 November 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, November 1992.

1507/ Kevin Sullivan, "U.N. Vows to Deliver Humanitarian Aid to Bosnian Towns", United Press International, 23 November 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, November 1992.

1508/ Blaine Harden, "Winter is Here and Hope is Lost: Battered Sarajevans Limp on Amid Siege", Washington Post, 23 November 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, November 1992.

1509/ Kevin Sullivan, "U.N. Vows to Deliver Humanitarian Aid to Bosnian Towns", United Press International, 23 November 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, November 1992.

1510/ Id.

1511/ Hugh Pain, "Fighting in Sarajevo After Worst Day in City Since Cease-Fire", Reuters, 23 November 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, November 1992.

1512/ Kevin Sullivan, "U.N. Vows to Deliver Humanitarian Aid to Bosnian Towns", United Press International, 23 November 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, November 1992.

1513/ Blaine Harden, "Winter is Here and Hope is Lost: Battered

Notes (continued)

Sarajevans Limp on Amid Siege", Washington Post, 23 November 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, November 1992.

1514/ John F. Burns, "Bosnia's Second City Stays Viable Despite Attacks", New York Times, 23 November 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, November 1992.

1515/ Kevin Sullivan, "U.N. Aid Operation Under Way as Serbian Leadership Meets", United Press International, 24 November 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, November 1992.

1516/ Hugh Pain, "Fighting in Bosnia as U.N. Prepares to Help Stranded Towns", Reuters, 24 November 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, November 1992.

1517/ Kevin Sullivan, "U.N. Aid Operation Under Way as Serbian Leadership Meets", United Press International, 24 November 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, November 1992.

1518/ Id.

1519/ Kevin Sullivan, "U.N. Relief Efforts Suffer Day of Setbacks in Bosnia-Herzegovina", United Press International, 25 November 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, November 1992.

1520/ Hugh Pain, "Bosnian Serbs Block U.N. Convoy for Moslem Town", Reuters, 25 November 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, November 1992.

1521/ Kevin Sullivan, "U.N. Relief Efforts Suffer Day of Setbacks in Bosnia-Herzegovina", United Press International, 25 November 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, November 1992.

1522/ Id.

1523/ Blaine Harden, "Two U.N. Relief Convoys Fail to Reach Isolated Muslim Towns", Washington Post, 26 November 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, November 1992.

1524/ Kevin Sullivan, "U.N. Relief Efforts Suffer Day of Setbacks in Bosnia-Herzegovina", United Press International, 25 November 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, November 1992.

1525/ Kevin Sullivan, "Relief Convoy Reaches Goražde", United Press International, 26 November 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, November 1992.

1526/ Donald Forbes, "U.N. Aid Efforts Must Wait After Blockade, Mines", Reuters, 26 November 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, November 1992.

1527/ Kevin Sullivan, "Relief Convoy Reaches Goražde", United Press International, 26 November 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, November 1992.

1528/ "Dardzic Seeks Territorial Division", Belgrade Tanjug Domestic Service in Serbo-Croatian, 26 November 1992, 2103 GMT, FBIS #LD2611221992.

1529/ Donald Forbes, "U.N. Aid Trucks Reach Stranded Town of Goražde", Reuters, 26 November 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, November 1992.

1530/ "U.N. Officials Believe Resolution of Convoy Stand-Off in Sight",

Notes (continued)

United Press International, 27 November 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, November 1992.

1531/ IHRLI, Chronology of the Negotiations for Peace in the Former Yugoslavia.

1532/ Kevin Sullivan, "U.N. Officials Believe Resolution of Convoy Stand-Off in Sight", United Press International, 27 November 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, November 1992.

1533/ Id.

1534/ Hugh Pain, "Bosnian Serbs Sign Truce with Croats", Reuters, 28 November 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, November 1992.

1535/ Kevin Sullivan, "U.N. Officials Believe Resolution of Convoy Stand-Off in Sight", United Press International, 27 November 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, November 1992.

1536/ "Milosevic Meets With Elie Wiesel", Belgrade Tanjug in English, 28 November 1992, 0106 GMT, FBIS #LD2811040592.

1537/ IHRLI, Chronology of the Negotiations for Peace in the Former Yugoslavia.

1538/ Jonathan S. Landay, "U.N. Convoy Reaches Srebrenica", United Press International, 28 November 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, November 1992.

1539/ Id.

1540/ Id.

1541/ Id.

1542/ IHRLI, Chronology of the Negotiations for Peace in the Former Yugoslavia.

1543/ "Minister Warns Against Easing Arms Embargo", Belgrade Tanjug Domestic Service in Serbo-Croatian, 28 November 1992, 1607 GMT, FBIS #LD2811182792.

1544/ Kevin Sullivan, "Elie Wiesel Visits Sarajevo Ahead of Midnight Cease-Fire", United Press International, 29 November 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, November 1992.

1545/ Id.

1546/ UNPROFOR HQ BH Command, Kiseljak, Mil. Info. Weekly Summary No. 5 (23-29 November 1992), 30 November 1992, IHRLI Doc. No. 25676.

1547/ Kevin Sullivan, "Two Spanish Soldiers Wounded by Land Mine in Bosnia-Herzegovina", United Press International, 30 November 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, November 1992.

1548/ BiH Ministry of Public Health Bulletin, 30 November 1992, IHRLI Doc. No. 26889.

Notes (continued)

1549/ BiH Ministry of Public Health Bulletin, 7 December 1992, IHRLI Doc. No. 26890.

1550/ Kevin Sullivan, "Two Spanish Soldiers Wounded by Land Mine in Bosnia-Herzegovina", United Press International, 30 November 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, November 1992; Hugh Pain, "Croats, Bosnian Serbs Pay Scant Attention to Truce", Reuters, 30 November 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, November 1992.

1551/ Hugh Pain, "Fighting in Northern Bosnia as Truce Begins", Reuters, 30 November 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, November 1992.

1552/ Kevin Sullivan, "Two Spanish Soldiers Wounded by Land Mine in Bosnia-Herzegovina", United Press International, 30 November 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, November 1992.

1553/ UNPROFOR Sector Sarajevo Operational Report, November 1992, 30 November 1992, IHRLI Doc. No. 25348.

1554/ IHRLI, Chronology of the Negotiations for Peace in the Former Yugoslavia.

1555/ Kevin Sullivan, "Danish U.N. Soldier Kidnapped Near Sarajevo", United Press International, 2 December 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1992.

1556/ Kevin Sullivan, "U.S. Cargo Plane Fired On: Sarajevo Airport Closed", United Press International, 1 December 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1992.

1557/ Id.

1558/ Id.

1559/ Id.

1560/ Id.

1561/ Hugh Pain, "Fighting Rages in Bosnia as Panic Bids for Presidency", Reuters, 1 December 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1992.

1562/ Kevin Sullivan, "U.S. Cargo Plane Fired On: Sarajevo Airport Closed", United Press International, 1 December 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1992.

1563/ Carnegie Endowment, Breakdown in the Balkans, A Chronicle of Events, January 1989 to May 1993.

1564/ BiH Ministry of Public Health Bulletin, 7 December 1992, IHRLI Doc. No. 26890.

1565/ Hugh Pain, "Serb Artillery Pound Sarajevo Center", Reuters, 2 December 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1992.

1566/ Kevin Sullivan, "Danish U.N. Soldier Kidnapped Near Sarajevo", United Press International, 2 December 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File,

Notes (continued)

December 1992.

1567/ Kurt Schork, "Guns Hammer Bosnia Amid Calls for Military Action", Reuters, 2 December 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1992.

1568/ Kevin Sullivan, "Danish U.N. Soldier Kidnapped Near Sarajevo", United Press International, 2 December 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1992.

1569/ Id.; Kevin Sullivan, "U.N. Transport Plane Hit Over Sarajevo", United Press International, 3 December 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1992.

1570/ Carnegie Endowment, Breakdown in the Balkans, A Chronicle of Events, January 1989 to May 1993.

1571/ Kevin Sullivan, "Serbian Forces Pound Sarajevo for Second Straight Day", United Press International, 4 December 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1992.

1572/ Kurt Schork, "U.N. Halts All Flights After Commander's Plane Hit", Reuters, 3 December 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1992.

1573/ Id.

1574/ BiH Ministry of Public Health Bulletin, 7 December 1992, IHRLI Doc. No. 26890.

1575/ Kurt Schork, "Battle Rages in Sarajevo Suburbs", Reuters, 3 December 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1992.

1576/ Kevin Sullivan, "U.N. Transport Plane Hit Over Sarajevo", United Press International, 3 December 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1992.

1577/ Kurt Schork, "Battle Rages in Sarajevo Suburbs", Reuters, 3 December 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1992.

1578/ Kurt Schork, "U.N. Halts All Flights After Commander's Plane Hit", Reuters, 3 December 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1992.

1579/ Id.

1580/ Kevin Sullivan, "U.N. Transport Plane Hit Over Sarajevo", United Press International, 3 December 1992; Chuck Sudetic, "Premier's Effort to Oust Serbian Leader is Blocked", New York Times, 4 December 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1992.

1581/ Kurt Schork, "Battle Rages in Sarajevo Suburbs", Reuters, 3 December 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1992.

1582/ Kevin Sullivan, "Serbian Forces Pound Sarajevo for Second Straight Day", United Press International, 4 December 1992; Kevin Sullivan, "Serbians Take Over Western Sarajevo Suburb of Oteš", United Press International, 5 December 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1992.

1583/ Kevin Sullivan, "Serbians Take Over Western Sarajevo Suburb of

Notes (continued)

Oteš", United Press International, 5 December 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1992.

1584/ BiH Ministry of Public Health Bulletin, 7 December 1992, IHRLI Doc. No. 26890.

1585/ UNPROFOR HQ BH Command, Kisseljask, Weekly Info. Summary, 6 December 1992, IHRLI Doc. No. 25671.

1586/ Kevin Sullivan, "Serbians Take Over Western Sarajevo Suburb of Oteš", United Press International, 5 December 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1992.

1587/ Kevin Sullivan, "Serbian Forces Pound Sarajevo for Second Straight Day", United Press International, 1 December 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1992.

1588/ Kurt Schork, "Serbs Continue Pounding Sarajevo Suburb", Reuters, 5 December 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1992.

1589/ John Parry, "U.N. Humanitarian Aid Efforts Hampered By Fighting in Bosnia", United Press International, 4 December 1992; Kevin Sullivan, "Serbian Forces Pound Sarajevo for Second Straight Day", United Press International, 4 December 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1992.

1590/ Kevin Sullivan, "Serbians Take Over Western Sarajevo Suburb of Oteš", United Press International, 5 December 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1992.

1591/ BiH Ministry of Public Health Bulletin, 7 December 1992, IHRLI Doc. No. 26890.

1592/ "U.N. General: Bosnia Mission a Failure: Chief Peace Keeper in Sarajevo Urges Forceful Foreign Intervention", Washington Post, 6 December 1992; Kevin Sullivan, "Serbians Take Over Western Sarajevo Suburb of Oteš", United Press International, 5 December 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1992.

1593/ Kurt Schork, "Serbs Said to Have Taken Sarajevo Suburb", Reuters, 6 December 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1992.

1594/ Kurt Schork, "Sarajevo Suburb Reported to Have Fallen", Reuters, 5 December 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1992.

1595/ Kevin Sullivan, "Serbians Take Over Western Sarajevo Suburb of Oteš", United Press International, 5 December 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1992.

1596/ Chuck Sudetic, "Serbs Shell Sarajevo After a Lull and Step Up Attack on a Suburb", New York Times, 6 December 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1992.

1597/ Kurt Schork, "Serbs Continue Pounding Sarajevo Suburb", Reuters, 5 December 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1992.

1598/ "U.N. General: Bosnia Mission a Failure: Chief Peace Keeper in Sarajevo Urges Forceful Foreign Intervention", Washington Post, 6 December

Notes (continued)

1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1992.

1599/ Kurt Schork, "Sarajevo Suburb Reported to Have Fallen", Reuters, 5 December 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1992.

1600/ Kevin Sullivan, "Serbians Take Over Western Sarajevo Suburb of Oteš", United Press International, 5 December 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1992.

1601/ Kurt Schork, "Sarajevo Suburb Reported to Have Fallen", Reuters, 5 December 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1992.

1602/ Kevin Sullivan, "Serbian Artillery Shells Sarajevo, U.N. Relief Operation Halted", United Press International, 6 December 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1992.

1603/ Kevin Sullivan, "Bosnians Press Counter-Attack After Loss of Suburb", United Press International, 7 December 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1992.

1604/ Kurt Schork, "Fighting Reported Around Serb Stronghold in Sarajevo", Reuters, 7 December 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1992.

1605/ Helsinki Watch Report, April 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 9713.

1606/ Kevin Sullivan, "Serbian Artillery Shells Sarajevo, U.N. Relief Operation Halted", United Press International, 6 December 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1992.

1607/ Kevin Sullivan, "Bosnians Press Counter-Attack After Loss of Suburb", United Press International, 7 December 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1992.

1608/ Kurt Schork, "Fighting Reported Around Serb Stronghold in Sarajevo", Reuters, 7 December 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1992.

1609/ Kevin Sullivan, "Serbian Artillery Shells Sarajevo, U.N. Relief Operation Halted", United Press International, 6 December 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1992.

1610/ Id.

1611/ Id.

1612/ Id.

1613/ Kevin Sullivan, "Bosnians Press Counter-Attack After Loss of Suburb", United Press International, 7 December 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, 1992.

1614/ BiH Ministry of Public Health Bulletin, 7 December 1992, IHRLI Doc. No. 26890.

1615/ Helsinki Watch Report, April 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 9713.

Notes (continued)

1616/ Kevin Sullivan, "Bosnians Press Counter-Attack After Loss of Suburb", United Press International, 7 December 1992; Kurt Schork, "Fighting in Sarajevo Eases Hours Before Geneva Talks", Reuters, 8 December 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1992.

1617/ BiH Ministry of Public Health Bulletin, 7 December 1992, IHRLI Doc. No. 26890.

1618/ Kurt Schork, "Fighting Reported Around Serb Stronghold in Sarajevo", Reuters, 7 December 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1992.

1619/ Id.

1620/ "Turkish Troop Proposal Criticized", Belgrade Tanjug Domestic Service in Serbo-Croatian, 7 December 1992, 1855 GMT, FBIS #LD0712203592.

1621/ Kevin Sullivan, "Heavy Fighting Persists Around Sarajevo", United Press International, 8 December 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1992.

1622/ Id.

1623/ Id.

1624/ Kurt Schork, "Serb Evacuation Offer Follows Sarajevo Fighting", Reuters, 8 December 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1992.

1625/ "Karadzic Urges 'More Even Approach' by Clinton", Belgrade Tanjug Domestic Service in Serbo-Croatian, 8 December 1992, 1624 GMT, FBIS #LD0812175592.

1626/ IHRLI, Chronology of the Negotiations for Peace in the Former Yugoslavia.

1627/ Kevin Sullivan, "U.N. General in Bosnia Says Commanders Want Stronger Action", United Press International, 10 December 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1992.

1628/ Kevin Sullivan, "Serbian Artillery Fire Rocks Central Sarajevo", United Press International, 9 December 1992.

1629/ Mary Battiata, "Allies Seek More Bosnian Airlift Security: Relief Road Reopened, but Suspension of Aid Flights Continues", Washington Post, 10 December 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1992.

1630/ Kevin Sullivan, "Serbian Artillery Fire Rocks Central Sarajevo", United Press International, 9 December 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1992.

1631/ Id.

1632/ Id.

1633/ Id.

1634/ Id.

Notes (continued)

1635/ Carnegie Endowment, Breakdown in the Balkans, A Chronicle of Events, January 1989 to May 1993.

1636/ Kevin Sullivan, "Serbian Artillery Fire Rocks Central Sarajevo", United Press International, December 9, 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1992.

1637/ Kevin Sullivan, "Fog, Snow Stop Aid Flights But Peace Activists Get Through", United Press International, 11 December 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1992.

1638/ Meriel Beattie, "Isolated Serbia Starts Countdown for Election Duel", Reuters, 11 December 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1992.

1639/ John F. Burns, "Serbs Free Road to Bosnia Airport", New York Times, 10 December 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1992.

1640/ Meriel Beattie, "Isolated Serbia Starts Countdown for Election Duel", Reuters, 11 December 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1992.

1641/ Kevin Sullivan, "Fog, Snow Stop Aid Flights but Peace Activists Get Through", United Press International, 11 December 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1992.

1642/ Id.

1643/ Id.

1644/ Blaine Harden, "U.N. Commander in Bosnia Opposes Intervention", Washington Post, 13 December 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1992.

1645/ Kevin Sullivan, "Fog, Snow Stop Aid Flights but Peace Activists Get Through", United Press International, 11 December 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1992.

1646/ Carnegie Endowment, Breakdown in the Balkans, A Chronicle of Events, January 1989 to May 1993.

1647/ Kurt Schork, "U.N. to Press Again for Cease-Fire in Bosnia", Reuters, 12 December 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1992.

1648/ Kevin Sullivan, "Small-Arms Fire Continuing in Sarajevo", United Press International, 12 December 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1992.

1649/ Kurt Schork, "U.N. to Press Again for Cease-Fire in Bosnia", Reuters, 12 December 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1992.

1650/ Kevin Sullivan, "Small-Arms Fire Continuing in Sarajevo", United Press International, 12 December 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1992.

1651/ Kurt Schork, "U.N. to Press Again for Cease-Fire in Bosnia", Reuters, 12 December 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1992.

1652/ Kurt Schork, "Fighting Intensifies Ahead of New Cease-Fire Talks", Reuters, 13 December 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1992.

Notes (continued)

1653/ Kurt Schork, "Bosnian Fighters Agree to New Ceasefire", Reuters, 13 December 1992; Kevin Sullivan, "Serbs Agree to Lift up the Siege of Sarajevo", United Press International, 13 December 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1992.

1654/ Kurt Schork, "Fighting Intensifies Ahead of New Cease-Fire Talks", Reuters, 13 December 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1992.

1655/ BiH Ministry of Public Health Bulletin, 21 December 1992, IHRLI Doc. No. 26895.

1656/ UNPROFOR HQ BH Command, Kiseljak, Weekly Info. Summary, 14 December 1992, No. 7, IHRLI Doc. No. 25665.

1657/ Kevin Sullivan, "Talks Break Down as Fighting Continues Despite Cease-Fire Pledge", United Press International, 14 December 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1992.

1658/ Id.

1659/ Kurt Schork, "Serb Leader Says Bosnia War May Be Over Soon: Others Doubtful", Reuters, 14 December 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1992.

1660/ Kevin Sullivan, "Talks Break Down as Fighting Continues Despite Cease-Fire Pledge", United Press International, 14 December 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1992.

1661/ Kevin Sullivan, "British Opposition Leader Calls for Intervention Amid Worsening Conditions", United Press International, 15 December 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1992.

1662/ Kevin Sullivan, "Talks Break Down as Fighting Continues Despite Cease-Fire Pledge", United Press International, 14 December 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1992.

1663/ "Karadzic Briefs Press on Ending Conflict", Belgrade Tanjug Domestic Service in Serbo-Croatian, 14 December 1992, 1709 GMT, FBIS #LD1412232192.

1664/ Carnegie Endowment, Breakdown in the Balkans, A Chronicle of Events, January 1989 to May 1993.

1665/ BiH Ministry of Public Health Bulletin, 7 December 1992, IHRLI Doc. No. 26890.

1666/ Id.

1667/ Zeljko Ruzicic, "Muslims, Croats Suspicious of Sarajevo Talks", Zagreb Radio Croatia Network in Serbo-Croatian, 15 December 1992, 1600 GMT, FBIS #LD1512185692.

1668/ Kevin Sullivan, "British Opposition Leader Calls for Intervention Amid Worsening Conditions", United Press International, 15 December 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1992.

1669/ Carnegie Endowment, Breakdown in the Balkans, A Chronicle of

Notes (continued)

Events, January 1989 to May 1992.

1670/ Kevin Sullivan, "Abysmal Conditions in Freezing, Resource-Short Sarajevo Hospitals", United Press International, 16 December 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1992.

1671/ BiH Ministry of Public Health Bulletin, 21 December 1992, IHRLI Doc. No. 26895.

1672/ Donald Forbes, "Fights Flare in Bosnia While West Debates Role", Reuters, 16 December 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1992.

1673/ Kevin Sullivan, "Sarajevo Safe Corridor Plan Looks Doomed", United Press International, 16 December 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1992.

1674/ Kevin Sullivan, "Abysmal Conditions in Freezing, Resource-Short Sarajevo Hospitals", United Press International, 16 December 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1992.

1675/ Id.

1676/ Id.

1677/ Carnegie Endowment, Breakdown in the Balkans, A Chronicle of Events, January 1989 to May 1993.

1678/ BiH Ministry of Public Health Bulletin, 21 December 1992, IHRLI Doc. No. 26895.

1679/ Chuck Sudetic, "As Talks Open in Geneva, Strife Worsens in Bosnia", New York Times, 17 December 1992; Kevin Sullivan, "Refugees Flee Fighting in Eastern Bosnia-Herzegovina", United Press International, 17 December 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1992.

1680/ Id.

1681/ "Serbs, Moslems in Big Battle, Dashing Cease-Fire Hopes"; Kevin Sullivan, "Refugees Flee Fighting in Eastern Bosnia-Herzegovina", United Press International, 17 December 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1992.

1682/ IHRLI, Chronology of the Negotiations for Peace in the Former Yugoslavia.

1683/ Carnegie Endowment, Breakdown in the Balkans, A Chronicle of Events, January 1989 to May 1993.

1684/ BiH Ministry of Public Health Bulletin, 21 December 1992, IHRLI Doc. No. 26895.

1685/ Kevin Sullivan, "Bosnians to Return to Negotiating Table", United Press International, 18 December 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo, December 1992.

1686/ Id.

Notes (continued)

1687/ IHRLI, Chronology of the Negotiations for Peace in the Former Yugoslavia.

1688/ Carnegie Endowment, Breakdown in the Balkans, A Chronicle of Events, January 1989 to May 1993.

1689/ Kevin Sullivan, "Bosnians to Return to Negotiating Table", United Press International, 18 December 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1992.

1690/ Carnegie Endowment, Breakdown in the Balkans, A Chronicle of Events, January 1989 to May 1993.

1691/ BiH Ministry of Public Health Bulletin, 21 December 1992, IHRLI Doc. No. 26895.

1692/ Kevin Sullivan, "EC Chief Tells Serbian Leader Sarajevo Shelling 'A Disgrace'", United Press International, 19 December 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1992.

1693/ Id.

1694/ Id.

1695/ Kevin Sullivan, "Peace Mediator Reports Progress on Sarajevo Humanitarian Issues", United Press International, 21 December 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1992.

1696/ BiH Ministry of Public Health Bulletin, 21 December 1992, IHRLI Doc. No. 26895.

1697/ Kevin Sullivan, "Owen Pursues Pre-Christmas Agreements", United Press International, 20 December 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1992.

1698/ Id.

1699/ Id.

1700/ Id.

1701/ Carnegie Endowment, Breakdown in the Balkans, A Chronicle of Events, January 1989 to May 1993.

1702/ Id.

1703/ Id.

1704/ Kevin Sullivan, "Peace Mediator Reports Progress on Sarajevo Humanitarian Issues", United Press International, 21 December 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1992.

1705/ Donald Forbes, "Socialists Claim Milosevic Ahead in Serbia", Reuters, 21 December 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1992.

1706/ Kevin Sullivan, "Peace Mediator Reports Progress on Sarajevo Humanitarian Issues", United Press International, 21 December 1992, IHRLI

Notes (continued)

Sarajevo Source File, December 1992.

1707/ Id.

1708/ Id.

1709/ Kevin Sullivan, "U.N. Officials Again Seek Sarajevo Talks", United Press International, 23 December 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1992.

1710/ Jovan Kovavic, "Panic Asks World to Spare Yugoslavia", Reuters, 22 December 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1992.

1711/ Kevin Sullivan, "British Leader in Balkans to Visit Troops", United Press International, 22 December 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1992.

1712/ Id.

1713/ Kevin Sullivan, "U.N. Officials Again Seek Sarajevo Talks", United Press International, 23 December 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1992.

1714/ Id.

1715/ Id.

1716/ Id.; Kevin Sullivan, "Fighting Escalates on Christmas Eve in Sarajevo", United Press International, 24 December 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1992.

1717/ Kevin Sullivan, "Fighting Escalates on Christmas Eve in Sarajevo", United Press International, 24 December 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1992.

1718/ Kevin Sullivan, "U.N. Officials Again Seek Sarajevo Talks", United Press International, 23 December 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1992.

1719/ John F. Burns, "Christmas in Sarajevo: Prayers and Anguish", New York Times, 25 December 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1992.

1720/ Kevin Sullivan, "Fighting Escalates on Christmas Eve in Sarajevo", United Press International, 24 December 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1992.

1721/ Id.

1722/ Id.

1723/ Jovan Kovacic, "Milosevic Win Paves Way to Incorporate Serb-Held Areas Ally", Reuters, 24 December 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1992.

1724/ Peter Maas, "Drowning Out War With Hymns: Defiant Sarajevo Keeps Religious Harmony Alive", Washington Post, 25 December 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1992.

Notes (continued)

1725/ Maggie Fox, "Belgrade Prepares for War, Commission Annuls Votes", Reuters, 25 December 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1992.

1726/ Helsinki Watch Report, April 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 9713.

1727/ Kevin Sullivan, "U.N. General Says He Was Target of Mortar Attacks", United Press International, 25 December 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1992.

1728/ Id.; Kurt Schork, "U.N. General Casts Doubt On Intervention in Bosnia", Reuters, 25 December 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1992; Peter Mass, "U.N. Chief in Bosnia Wakens to Holiday Barrage: Relief Force Commanders Decry Western Efforts to Bring Peace to Shattered Republic", Washington Post, December 26, 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1992; John F. Burns, "A French General Sees Bosnian Plot", New York Times, December 26, 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1992.

1729/ Kevin Sullivan, "Christmas in Sarajevo Was Never So Cheerless", United Press International, 25 December 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1992.

1730/ Kevin Sullivan, "Freezing Weather Threatens Lives in Sarajevo", United Press International, 27 December 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1992, 1731/ Kevin Sullivan, "British Soldier Wounded in Attack on Aid Convoy in Bosnia-Herzegovina", United Press International, 26 December 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1992; Kurt Schork, "Moslems Accuse Serbs of Defying 'No Fly' Zone", Reuters, 26 December 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1992.

1732/ "Muslim Plan for Sarajevo Aid Corridor Rejected", Belgrade Tanjug Domestic Service in Serb-Croatian, 26 December 1992, 1935 GMT, FBIS #LD212203192.

1733/ Kevin Sullivan, "Freezing Weather Threatens Lives In Sarajevo", United Press International, 27 December 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1992.

1734/ Id.

1735/ Peter Maass, "U.N. Keepers of the Siege: Relief Troops Bar Escape From Sarajevo", Washington Post, 30 December 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1992.

1736/ Helsinki Watch Report, April 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 9714.

1737/ Kevin Sullivan, "Freezing Weather Threatens Lives in Sarajevo", United Press International, 27 December 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1992.

1738/ Id.

1739/ IHRLI, Chronology of the Negotiations for Peace in the Former Yugoslavia.

1740/ Carnegie Endowment, Breakdown in the Balkans, A Chronicle of

Notes (continued)

Events, January 1989 to May 1993.

1741/ UNPROFOR HQ BH Command, Kiseljak, Weekly Mil. Info. Summary, No. 9, 28 December 1992, IHRLI Doc. No. 25652.

1742/ BiH Ministry of Public Health Bulletin, 4 January 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 26898.

1743/ Kevin Sullivan, "U.N.: Elderly Have Begun Dying From Cold, Lack of Food in Sarajevo", United Press International, 28 December 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1992.

1744/ Id.

1745/ Peter Maass, "New Enemy Attacks Sarajevo--Winter: Besieged Bosnian Capital is Stripped for Scraps of Firewood", Washington Post, 29 December 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1992.

1746/ Carnegie Endowment, Breakdown in the Balkans, A Chronicle of Events, January 1989 to May 1993.

1747/ IHRLI, Chronology of the Negotiations for Peace in the Former Yugoslavia.

1748/ Kevin Sullivan, "Fighting Flares in Bosnia as Peace Talks Bring No Progress", United Press International, 29 December 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1992.

1749/ BiH Ministry of Public Health Bulletin, 4 January 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 26898.

1750/ Kevin Sullivan, "Fighting, Bad-Weather, Non-Cooperation Hampering Relief Efforts", United Press International, 30 December 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1992.

1751/ Kevin Sullivan, "Fighting Flares in Bosnia as Peace Talks Bring No Progress", United Press International, 29 December 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1992.

1752/ Kevin Sullivan, "Fighting, Bad-Weather, Non-Cooperation Hampering Relief Efforts", United Press International, 30 December 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1992.

1753/ Kurt Schork, "Bosnia Fighting Worsens As Peace Talks Intensify", Reuters, 29 December 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1992.

1754/ IHRLI, Chronology of the Negotiations for Peace in the Former Yugoslavia.

1755/ BiH Ministry of Public Health Bulletin, 4 January 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 26898.

1756/ "Coldest Day of War in Sarajevo", Reuters, 30 December 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1992.

1757/ John F. Burns, "As Death From Cold Rise in Sarajevo, U.N. Commander Appeals for Truce", New York Times, 30 December 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo

Notes (continued)

Source File, December 1992.

1758/ "Coldest Day of War in Sarajevo", Reuters, 30 December 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1992.

1759/ Id.

1760/ John F. Burns, "As Death From Cold Rise in Sarajevo, U.N. Commander Appeals for Truce", New York Times, 30 December 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1992.

1761/ "Coldest Day of War in Sarajevo", Reuters, 30 December 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1992.

1762/ IHRLI, Chronology of the Negotiations for Peace in the Former Yugoslavia.

1763/ Carnegie Endowment, Breakdown in the Balkans, A Chronicle of Events, January 1989 to May 1992.

1764/ Id.

1765/ BiH Ministry of Public Health Bulletin, 4 January 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 26898.

1766/ John F. Burns, "Sarajevans Jeer As U.N. Leader Urges Restraint", New York Times, 1 January 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1993.

1767/ John F. Burns, "War's Pendulum: A Special report: Bosnia 1992: New Puzzles in the Jigsaw of Violence", New York Times, 31 December 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1992.

1768/ "Boutros-Ghali, Vance Leave Split for Sarajevo", Zagreb Radio Croatia Network in Serbo-Croatian, 31 December 1992, 1100 GMT, FBIS #LD3112114192.

1769/ Kevin Sullivan, [no title], United Press International, 31 December 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1992.

1770/ Risto Djogo, "Boutros-Ghali Gets Mixed Reception in Sarajevo", Belgrade Radio Beograd in Serbo-Croatian, 31 December 1992, 1800 GMT, FBIS #AU3112194992.

1771/ "Izetbegovic Delivers New Year's Message", Sarajevo Radio BiH Network in Serbo-Croatian, 31 December 1992, 2300 GMT, FBIS #LD0101000393.

1772/ UNPROFOR Sector Sarajevo Operational Report, December 1992, 31 December 1992, IHRLI Doc. No. 25350.

1773/ "Intense Fighting Erupts in Sarajevo", Agence France Presse, 1 January 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1993.

1774/ BiH Ministry of Public Health Bulletin, 4 January 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 026898.

1775/ "Intense Fighting Erupts in Sarajevo", Agence France Presse, 1 January 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1993.

Notes (continued)

1776/ "Jeers U.N. Chief", New York Times, 1 January 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1993.

1777/ Kevin Sullivan, "Cold Bites Bosnian Capital as Leaders Talk In Geneva", United Press International, 3 January 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1993.

1778/ BiH Ministry of Public Health Bulletin, 4 January 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 026898.

1779/ Kurt Schork, "Scattered Fighting in Bosnia as Geneva Talks Open", Reuters, 2 January 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1993.

1780/ "Heavy Fighting in Bosnia Before Geneva Conference", Reuters, 2 January 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1993.

1781/ Carnegie Endowment, Breakdown in the Balkans, A Chronicle of Events, January 1989 to May 1993.

1782/ Phillippe Naughton, "Bosnia Foes Start First Face-to-Face Peace Talks", Reuters, 2 January 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1993.

1783/ David Binder, "Balkan Factions Begin New Talks", New York Times, 3 January 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1993.

1784/ Carnegie Endowment, Breakdown in the Balkans, A Chronicle of Events, January 1989 to May 1993.

1785/ Kevin Sullivan, "Cold Bites Bosnian Capital as Leaders Talk in Geneva", United Press International, 3 January 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1993.

1786/ Id.

1787/ Id.

1788/ "Three Sides Hold Talks at Geneva Conference", Zagreb HTV Television in Serbo-Croatian, 3 January 1993, 1830 GMT, FBIS #LD0301203093.

1789/ Carnegie Endowment, Breakdown in the Balkans, A Chronicle of Events, January 1989 to May 1993.

1790/ BiH Ministry of Public Health Bulletin, 11 January 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 026900.

1791/ UNPROFOR, Sarajevo Background Brief, IHRLI Doc. No. 16015.

1792/ "Geneva Talks Suspended: To Resume 10 January", Zagreb HTV Television in Serbo-Croatian, 4 January 1993, 1830 GMT, FBIS #LD0401193693.

1793/ BiH Ministry of Public Health Bulletin, 11 January 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 026900.

1794/ IHRLI, Chronology of the Negotiations for Peace in the Former Yugoslavia.

1795/ BiH Ministry of Public Health Bulletin, 11 January 1993, IHRLI

Notes (continued)

Doc. No. 026900.

1796/ "Fighting Breaks Out in Sarajevo", Reuters, 6 January 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1993.

1797/ Kurt Schork, "New Fighting in Sarajevo Undermines Peace Hopes", Reuters, 6 January 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1993.

1798/ Carnegie Endowment, Breakdown in the Balkans, A Chronicle of Events, January 1989 to May 1993.

1799/ Id.

1800/ BiH Ministry of Public Health Bulletin, 11 January 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 026900.

1801/ Helsinki Watch Report, April 1993 (citing John F. Burns, "Battle to Save Bosnians from the Cold", New York Times, 8 December 1992).

1802/ BiH Ministry of Public Health Bulletin, 11 January 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 026900.

1803/ Incid. No. 243, Source: New York Times; Incid. No. 25876, Source: U.S. Submission; UNPROFOR HQ BH Command, Kiseljak, Weekly INFOSUM No. 11, 11 January 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 25636.

1804/ Carnegie Endowment, Breakdown in the Balkans, A Chronicle of Events, January 1989 to May 1993.

1805/ Id.

1806/ Kevin Sullivan, "Fighting Flares as Peace Talks Resume", United Press International, 10 January 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1993.

1807/ BiH Ministry of Public Health Bulletin, 11 January 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 026900.

1808/ Kevin Sullivan, "Fighting Flares as Peace Talks Resume", United Press International, 10 January 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1993.

1809/ Id.

1810/ "President Calls for Redefinition of UN Mandate", Paris Agence France Presse in English, 9 January 1993, 1742 GMT, FBIS #AU0901175193.

1811/ "Deputy Prime Minister Fatally Shot by Serb Troops", Belgrade Tanjug Domestic Service in Serbo-Croatian, 9 January 1993, 2035 GMT, FBIS #LD090121023.

1812/ BiH Ministry of Public Health Bulletin, 11 January 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 026900.

1813/ Kevin Sullivan, "Fighting Flares As Peace Talks Resume", United Press International, 10 January 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1993.

Notes (continued)

- 1814/ "Lull in Sarajevo Fighting Ahead of Peace Talks".
- 1815/ UNPROFOR HQ BH Command, Kiseljak, Info Summary, No. 12, 17 January 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 25625.
- 1816/ UNPROFOR HQ BH Command, Kiseljak, Weekly INFOSUM No. 11, 11 January 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 25636.
- 1817/ BiH Ministry of Public Health Bulletin, 18 January 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 026902.
- 1818/ Kurt Schork, "Bosnians Lose Confidence in U.N. Commander", Reuters, 11 January 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1993.
- 1819/ UNPROFOR HQ BH Command, Kiseljak, Weekly INFOSUM No. 11, 11 January 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 25636.
- 1820/ "Bosnian Serbs Reject Peace Plan: Talks in Danger", Paris Agence France Presse in English, 11 January 1993, 1641 GMT, FBIS #LD1001182593.
- 1821/ Carnegie Endowment, Breakdown in the Balkans, A Chronicle of Events, January 1989 to May 1993.
- 1822/ BiH Ministry of Public Health Bulletin, 18 January 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 026902.
- 1823/ Kurt Schork, "Bosnia Fighting Rages, Geneva Awaits Serb Decision", Reuters, 12 January 1993, Reuters, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1993.
- 1824/ "Fighting in Sarajevo is Unchecked by Geneva Talks", Reuters, 12 January 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1993.
- 1825/ "Bosnian Serbs Reject Peace Plan: Talks in Danger", Belgrade Tanjug in English, 11 January 1993, 1743 GMT, FBIS #LD1101181393.
- 1826/ "Karadzic Changes Course, Agrees to the Peace Plan", Belgrade Beograd Network in Serbo-Croatian, 12 January 1993, 1800 GMT, FBIS #AU1201184093.
- 1827/ Carnegie Endowment, Breakdown in the Balkans, A Chronicle of Events, January 1989 to May 1993.
- 1828/ Paul Iredale, "No Letup in Fighting as Bosnian Serbs Return Home", Reuters, 13 January 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1993.
- 1829/ BiH Ministry of Public Health Bulletin, 18 January 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 026902.
- 1830/ "Peace Plan Agreement Has Little Effect in Sarajevo", Reuters, 13 January 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1993.
- 1831/ Paul Iredale, "No Letup in Fighting as Bosnian Serbs Return Home", Reuters, 13 January 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1993.
- 1832/ Kevin Sullivan, "Two Dead in Renewed Fighting in Bosnia-Herzegovina", United Press International, 14 January 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1993.

Notes (continued)

1833/ BiH Ministry of Public Health Bulletin, 18 January 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 026902.

1834/ "Heavy Barrage Shakes Sarajevo", Reuters, 14 January 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1993.

1835/ Id.

1836/ Kevin Sullivan, "Two Dead in Renewed Fighting in Bosnia-Herzegovina", United Press International, 14 January 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1993.

1837/ Carnegie Endowment, Breakdown in the Balkans, A Chronicle of Events, January 1989 to May 1993.

1838/ Kurt Schork, "Shell Kills Eight in Sarajevo Water Queue", Reuters, 15 January 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1993.

1839/ BiH Ministry of Public Health Bulletin, 18 January 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 026902.

1840/ Kevin Sullivan, "Serb Shelling Kills at Least Eight in Sarajevo", United Press International, 15 January 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1993.

1841/ Kurt Schork, "Shell Kills Eight in Sarajevo Water Queue", Reuters, 15 January 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1993.

1842/ Id.

1843/ Kevin Sullivan, "Downed Tree Blocks U.N. Convoy", United Press International, 16 January 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1993.

1844/ Kevin Sullivan, "U.N. Relief Convoy Reaches Desperate Town", United Press International, 17 January 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1993.

1845/ BiH Ministry of Public Health Bulletin, 18 January 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 026902.

1846/ Kevin Sullivan, "Downed Tree Blocks U.N. Convoy", United Press International, 16 January 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1993.

1847/ UNPROFOR HQ BH Command, Kiseljak, Weekly INFOSUM No. 13, 25 January 1993.

1848/ Kevin Sullivan, "Downed Tree Blocks U.N. Convoy", United Press International, 16 January 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1993.

1849/ Kevin Sullivan, "U.N. Convoy Reaches Desperate Town", United Press International, 17 January 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1993.

1850/ Kevin Sullivan, "Downed Tree Blocks U.N. Convoy", United Press International, 16 January 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1993.

1851/ UNPROFOR HQ BH Command, Kiseljak, Weekly INFOSUM No. 12, 17 January 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 25625.

Notes (continued)

1852/ BiH Ministry of Public Health Bulletin, 18 January 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 026902.

1853/ Id., IHRLI Doc. No. 26903.

1854/ "Sarajevo Reported Relatively Quiet Overnight", Reuters, 17 January 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1993.

1855/ Id.

1856/ Kevin Sullivan, "U.N. Relief Convoy Reaches Desperate Town", United Press International, 17 January 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1993.

1857/ Peter Gregson, "Fierce Fighting Clouds Bosnia Peace Horizon", Reuters, 18 January 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1993.

1858/ BiH Ministry of Public Health Bulletin, 25 January 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 026904.

1859/ Peter Gregson, "Fierce Fighting Clouds Bosnia Peace Horizon", Reuters, 18 January 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1993.

1860/ Kevin Sullivan, "Vance, Owen to Visit Warring Capitals", United Press International, 19 January 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1993.

1861/ "Sarajevo Reported Relatively Quiet Overnight", Reuters, 17 January 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1993.

1862/ UNPROFOR HQ BH Command, Kiseljak, Weekly INFOSUM No. 13, 25 January 1993.

1863/ BiH Ministry of Public Health Bulletin, 25 January 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 026904.

1864/ Kevin Sullivan, "Vance, Owen to Visit Warring Capitals", United Press International, 19 January 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1993.

1865/ Id.

1866/ Kurt Schork, "Bosnia War Rattles Borders of Serbia and Croatia", Reuters, 19 January 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1993.

1867/ Carnegie Endowment, Breakdown in the Balkans, A Chronicle of Events, January 1989 to May 1993.

1868/ BiH Ministry of Public Health Bulletin, 25 January 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 026904.

1869/ "Serb Assembly Endorses Geneva Peace Plan", Belgrade Tanjug Domestic Service in Serbo-Croatian, 20 January 1993, 1316 GMT, FBIS #LD2001134593.

1870/ Carnegie Endowment, Breakdown in the Balkans, A Chronicle of Events, January 1989 to May 1993.

Notes (continued)

1871/ Mark Heinrich, "Upsurge in Fighting Clouds Geneva Peace Prospects", Reuters, 22 January 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1993.

1872/ BiH Ministry of Public Health Bulletin, 25 January 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 026904.

1873/ "Bosnians Claim Advance in Fighting", Reuters, 21 January 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1993.

1874/ Hugh Pain, "Moslems Claim Advances in Bosnian Battles", 21 January 1993, Reuters, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1993.

1875/ Hugh Pain, "Bosnian Battles Cloud Geneva Peace Prospects", Reuters, 22 January 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1993.

1876/ BiH Ministry of Public Health Bulletin, 25 January 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 026904.

1877/ Mark Heinrich, "Upsurge in Fighting Clouds Geneva Peace Prospects", Reuters, 22 January 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1993.

1878/ Carnegie Endowment, Breakdown in the Balkans, A Chronicle of Events, January 1989 to May 1993.

1879/ BiH Ministry of Public Health Bulletin, 25 January 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 026904.

1880/ "Bosnian Gloom Before Geneva Talks Restart", Reuters, 23 January 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1993.

1881/ IHRLI, Chronology of the Negotiations for Peace in the Former Yugoslavia.

1882/ Kevin Sullivan, "Muslim Slavs and Croats Sign Truce", Reuters, 24 January 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1993.

1883/ BiH Ministry of Public Health Bulletin, 25 January 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 026904.

1884/ "Bosnian Radio Pessimistic About Geneva Talks", Reuters, 24 January 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1993.

1885/ Carnegie Endowment, Breakdown in the Balkans, A Chronicle of Events, January 1989 to May 1993.

1886/ "Serbian Artillery Blasts Sarajevo", United Press International, 27 January 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1993.

1887/ UNPROFOR HQ BH Command, Kiseljak, Weekly INFOSUM No.13, 25 January 1993.

1888/ BiH Ministry of Public Health Bulletin, 1 February 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 026906.

1889/ "Slav-Croat Clashes Persist Despite Latest Cease-Fire", United

Notes (continued)

Press International, 25 January 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1993.

1890/ "Sporadic Shelling Reported Overnight in Sarajevo", Reuters, 25 January 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1993.

1891/ Maud Beelman, "Sarajevo, Where Death Comes From a Sunny Sky", The Press Association Newsfile, 25 January 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1993.

1892/ "Izetbegovic Threatens Withdrawal From Talks", Paris Agence France Presse in English, 25 January 1993, 1553 GMT, FBIS #AU2501161093.

1893/ Carnegie Endowment, Breakdown in the Balkans, A Chronicle of Events, January 1989 to May 1993.

1894/ BiH Ministry of Public Health Bulletin, 1 February 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 026906.

1895/ "Quiet Night in Croatian Zone Near Captured Airport", Reuters, 26 January 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1993.

1896/ Carnegie Endowment, Breakdown in the Balkans, A Chronicle of Events, January 1989 to May 1993.

1897/ Phillippe Naughton, "Bosnian Government Threatens Walk-Out, Signs Truce", Reuters, 27 January 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1993.

1898/ Phillippe Naughton, "Mediators May Ask U.N. to Impose Bosnia Peace Plan", Reuters, 28 January 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1993.

1899/ UNPROFOR HQ BH Command, Kiseljak, Weekly INFOSUM, 1 February 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 25607.

1900/ "Serbian Artillery Blasts Sarajevo", United Press International, 27 January 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1993.

1901/ BiH Ministry of Public Health Bulletin, 1 February 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 026906.

1902/ "Serbian Artillery Blasts Sarajevo", United Press International, 27 January 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1993; "Heavy Bombardment Brings More Deaths in Sarajevo", Reuters, 27 January 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1993.

1903/ "Heavy Bombardment Brings More Deaths in Sarajevo", Reuters, 27 January 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1993.

1904/ Phillippe Naughton, "Bosnian Government Threatens Walkout, Signs Truce", Reuters, 27 January 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1993.

1905/ BiH Ministry of Public Health Bulletin, 1 February 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 026906.

1906/ Id.

1907/ Mark Heinrich, "Croatia Rushes to Avert Dam Disaster, Army Stands

Notes (continued)

Back", Reuters, 29 January 1993, Reuters, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1993.

1908/ "The Dead March on in Serried Ranks at Sarajevo", Agence France Presse, 29 January 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source file, January 1993.

1909/ Carnegie Endowment, Breakdown in the Balkans, A Chronology of Events, January 1989 to May 1993.

1910/ Helsinki Watch Report, April 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 9714.

1911/ BiH Ministry of Public Health Bulletin, 1 February 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 026906.

1912/ Jovan Kovacic, "Fighting Rages in Bosnia, Croatia Tense", Reuters, 30 January 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1993.

1913/ John F. Burns, "One Bloody Day in Sarajevo, Relief at Halt in Talks", New York Times, 31 January 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1993.

1914/ Incid. No. 26232, Source: New York Times.

1915/ Jovan Kovacic, "Fighting Rages in Bosnia, Croatia Tense", Reuters, 30 January 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1993.

1916/ IHRLI, Chronology of the Negotiations for Peace in the Former Yugoslavia.

1917/ "Croatia Says Serb Rebels Reinforcing in North Krajina", Reuters, 1 February 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February , February 1993.

1918/ Id.

1919/ BiH Ministry of Public Health Bulletin, 1 February 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 026906.

1920/ Id., IHRLI Doc. No. 026907.

1921/ John F. Burns, "One Bloody Day in Sarajevo, Relief at Halt in Talks", New York Times, 31 January 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1993.

1922/ Jovan Kovacic, "Izetbegovic Demands Guarantees on Serb Artillery", Reuters, 31 January 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1993.

1923/ UNPROFOR Sector Sarajevo Operational Report, January 1993, 1 February 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 25356.

1924/ Peter Gregson, "Bosnian Moslem Leader Refuses To Attend U.N. Talks", Reuters, 1 February 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1993.

1925/ UNPROFOR HQ BH Command, Kiseljak, Weekly INFOSUM No.14, 1 February 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 25610.

1926/ BiH Ministry of Public Health Bulletin, 8 February 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 026908.

Notes (continued)

1927/ Meriel Beattie, "Yugoslav Rivals Clash in Croatia, Bosnia", Reuters, 1 February 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1993.

1928/ Id.

1929/ UNPROFOR HQ BH Command, Kiseljak, Weekly INFOSUM No. 14, 1 February 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 25610.

1930/ Carnegie Endowment, Breakdown in the Balkans, A Chronology of Events, January 1989 to May 1993.

1931/ Id.

1932/ BiH Ministry of Public Health Bulletin, 8 February 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 026908.

1933/ "Croatian and Bosnian War Zones Reported Quiet", IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1993.

1934/ "Yugoslav Foreign Minister Warns of Possible Army Action", Reuters, 2 February 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1993.

1935/ Id.

1936/ Carnegie Endowment, Breakdown in the Balkans, A Chronology of Events, January 1989 to May 1993.

1937/ Id.

1938/ Id.

1939/ Id.

1940/ Mark Heinrich, "Port Lifts War Alert, Suggesting Croat Gains", Reuters, 3 February 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1993.

1941/ Id.

1942/ Id.

1943/ "Silajdzic to Attend Security Council Session", Sarajevo Radio BiH Network in Serbo-Croatian, 3 February 1993, 0900 GMT, FBIS #AU0302122593.

1944/ Carnegie Endowment, Breakdown in the Balkans, A Chronology of Events, January 1989 to May 1993.

1945/ "Sniper Kills Another Airport Crosser", IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1993.

1946/ BiH Ministry of Public Health Bulletin, 8 February 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 026908.

1947/ "Sniper Kills Another Airport Crosser", IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1993.

1948/ BiH Ministry of Public Health Bulletin, 8 February 1993, IHRLI

Notes (continued)

Doc. No. 026908.

1949/ "Sniper Kills Another Airport Crosser", IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1993.

1950/ Carnegie Endowment, Breakdown in the Balkans, A Chronology of Events, January 1989 to May 1993.

1951/ Id.

1952/ Id.

1953/ Id.

1954/ BiH Ministry of Public Health Bulletin, 8 February 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 026908.

1955/ "Troops Evacuate Children", Agence France Presse, 6 February 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1993.

1956/ Mark Heinrich, "War Rages in Bosnia: U.S. Reluctant to Back Peace Plan", Reuters, 5 February 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1993.

1957/ Mark Heinrich, "Bosnian Rivals Fight on Despite Peace Talks", Reuters, 6 February 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1993.

1958/ Id.

1959/ Carnegie Endowment, Breakdown in the Balkans, A Chronology of Events, January 1989 to May 1993.

1960/ "Troops Evacuate Children", Agence France Presse, 6 February 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1993.

1961/ Id.

1962/ BiH Ministry of Public Health Bulletin, 8 February 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 026908.

1963/ Peter Gregson, "Bosnia Peace Talks Push On, Croatia Conflict Hopes Hit", Reuters, 6 February 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1993.

1964/ UNPROFOR HQ BH Command, Kiseljak, Weekly INFOSUM No. 15, 8 February 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 25605.

1965/ Chuck Sudetic, "Serbs Expel 4,000 from Bosnian Town", New York Times, 7 February 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1993.

1966/ Carnegie Endowment, Breakdown in the Balkans, A Chronology of Events, January 1989 to May 1993.

1967/ "Two Women, Child Killed in Mortar Attack in Sarajevo", Reuters, 7 February 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1993.

1968/ BiH Ministry of Public Health Bulletin, 8 February 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 026908.

Notes (continued)

- 1969/ Id., IHRLI Doc. No. 026909.
- 1970/ "Two Women, Child Killed in Mortar Attack in Sarajevo", Reuters, 7 February 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1993.
- 1971/ Carnegie Endowment, Breakdown in the Balkans, A Chronology of Events, January 1989 to May 1993.
- 1972/ UNPROFOR HQ BH Command, Kiseljak, Weekly INFOSUM, 8 February 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 25605.
- 1973/ "International Relief Flights to Embattled Sarajevo Resume", Reuters, 8 February 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1993.
- 1974/ Samir Koric, "Olympic Spirit Absent But Not Forgotten in Sarajevo", Reuters, 8 February 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1993.
- 1975/ Jovan Kovacic, "Fighting in Earnest in Bosnia as Peace Efforts Falter", Reuters, 8 February 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1993.
- 1976/ "International Relief Flights to Embattled Sarajevo Resume", Reuters, 8 February 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1993.
- 1977/ Samir Koric, "Olympic Spirit Absent But Not Forgotten in Sarajevo", Reuters, 8 February 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1993.
- 1978/ "Fighting in Eastern Bosnia, Sarajevo Shelled", Reuters, 9 February 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1993.
- 1979/ Jim Hoagland, "At State, Mister Damage Control", Washington Post, 9 February 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1993.
- 1980/ "Fighting in Eastern Bosnia, Sarajevo Shelled", Reuters, 9 February 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1993.
- 1981/ Paul Lewis, "U.N. Chief Backing Vance Owen Plan", New York Times, 10 February 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1993.
- 1982/ Jovan Kovacic, "Fighting in Bosnia as Mediators Await U.S. Response", Reuters, 9 February 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1993.
- 1983/ Carnegie Endowment, Breakdown in the Balkans, A Chronology of Events, January 1989 to May 1993.
- 1984/ Peter Gregson, "Isolated Clashes on War Fronts, U.S. Set to Send Troops", Reuters, 10 February 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1993.
- 1985/ Id.
- 1986/ Id.
- 1987/ Id.
- 1988/ Id.

Notes (continued)

1989/ IHRLI, Chronology of the Negotiations for Peace in the Former Yugoslavia.

1990/ Peter Gregson, "Isolated Clashes on War Fronts, U.S. Set to Send Troops", Reuters, 10 February 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1993.

1991/ Carnegie Endowment, Breakdown in the Balkans, A Chronology of Events, January 1989 to May 1993.

1992/ Stephen Weeks, "Four French Soldiers, Two Photographers Hit in Sarajevo", Reuters, 11 February 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1993.

1993/ Id.

1994/ Id.

1995/ Julia Preston, "U.S. Options in Balkan Morass: Diplomats Hard-Pressed to Recoup What Serbs Seized in Bosnia", Washington Post, 12 February 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1993.

1996/ Id.

1997/ Stephen Weeks, "Four French Soldiers, Two Photographers Hit in Sarajevo", Reuters, 11 February 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1993.

1998/ Stephen Weeks, "Four French Soldiers Hurt in Mortar Attack", Reuters, 11 February 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo source File, February 1993.

1999/ Julia Preston, "U.S. Options in Balkan Morass: Diplomats Hard-Pressed to Recoup What Serbs Seized in Bosnia", Washington Post, 12 February 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1993.

2000/ Id.

2001/ IHRLI, Chronology of the Negotiations for Peace in the Former Yugoslavia.

2002/ Id.

2003/ "Serb Delegation Returning From Peace Talks", Belgrade Tanjug Domestic Service in Serbo-Croatian, 11 February 1993, 2113 GMT, FBIS #LD1102224093.

2004/ Carnegie Endowment, Breakdown in the Balkans, A Chronology of Events, January 1989 to May 1993.

2005/ John F. Burns, "Bigger U.S. Peace Role Leaves Bosnians Split", New York Times, 12 February 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1993.

2006/ Id.

2007/ Id.

2008/ "News Summary", New York Times, 12 February 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1993.

Notes (continued)

2009/ "UN to Fly Aid to Sarajevo from Italy", Reuters, 12 February 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1993.

2010/ Carnegie Endowment, Breakdown in the Balkans, A Chronology of Events, January 1989 to May 1993.

2011/ John F. Burns, "Bosnians Tell U.N. They'll Refuse Relief Aid Shipments to Sarajevo", New York Times, 13 February 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1993.

2012/ Kurt Schork, "Sarajevo Airport Closed Due to Relief Aid Boycott", Reuters, 13 February 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1993; "Bosnia to Bar U.N. Aid", New York Times, 13 February 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1993.

2013/ UNPROFOR Sector Sarajevo Operational Report, February 1993, 1 March 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 25363.

2014/ "Morillon Accuses Bosnians of Deliberate Attack on Legionnaires", Agence France Presse, 13 February 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1993.

2015/ Kurt Schork, "Sarajevo Airport Closed Due to Relief Aid Boycott", Reuters, 13 February 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1993; "Bosnia to Bar U.N. Aid", News Summary, New York Times, 13 February 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1993.

2016/ Carnegie Endowment, Breakdown in the Balkans, A Chronology of Events, January 1989 to May 1993.

2017/ BiH Ministry of Public Health Bulletin, 15 February 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 026910.

2018/ Kurt Schork, "Serbs Halt Relief Convoy, U.N. Seeks Truce", Reuters, 14 February 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1993.

2019/ John F. Burns, "Relief Director in Bosnia Calls for Tougher Action", New York Times, 15 February 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1993.

2020/ John F. Burns, "U.N. Halts Flights To Bosnia Capital In Dispute Over Aid", New York Times, 14 February 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1993.

2021/ UNPROFOR HQ BH Command, Kiseljak, Weekly INFOSUM No. 16, 15 February 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 25597.

2022/ UNPROFOR HQ BH Command, Kiseljak, Weekly INFOSUM No.17, 21 February 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 25589.

2023/ Kurt Schork, "Sarajevo Shelled, Artillery Duels in Croatia", Reuters, 16 February 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1993.

2024/ BiH Ministry of Public Health Bulletin, 22 February 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 026912.

Notes (continued)

2025/ Kurt Schork, "Sarajevo Suburbs Come Under Heavy Attack", Reuters, 15 February 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1993.

2026/ Id.

2027/ Kurt Schork, "Sarajevo Shelled, Artillery Duels in Croatia", Reuters, 16 February 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1993.

2028/ UNPROFOR HQ BH Command, Kiseljak, Weekly INFOSUM No.17, 21 February 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 25589.

2029/ BiH Ministry of Public Health Bulletin, 22 February 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 026912.

2030/ Kurt Schork, "Sarajevo Shelled, Artillery Duels in Croatia", Reuters, 16 February 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1993.

2031/ Id.

2032/ Peter Maas, "Bosnian Factions Using Food as a Weapon", Washington Post, 17 February 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1993; John F. Burns, "U.N. Aid Convoy in Bosnia Blocked by Serbs", New York Times, 17 February 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1993.

2033/ "Karadzic Wants Peace Talks Moved Back to Geneva", Belgrade Radio Beograd Network in Serbo-Croatian, 16 February 1993, 1100 GMT, FBIS #AU1602114293.

2034/ BiH Ministry of Public Health Bulletin, 22 February 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 026912.

2035/ Kurt Schork, "Bosnians Dig in For Battle of Sarajevo Suburbs", The Press Association Limited, 17 February 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1993.

2036/ "Shells Hit Sarajevo Hospital and Bakery", Reuters, 17 February 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1993; "U.N. Suspends Relief as Bosnia's Agony Worsens", The Press Association Limited, 17 February 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1993.

2037/ UNPROFOR HQ BH Command, Kiseljak, Weekly INFOSUM No. 17, 21 February 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 25588.

2038/ "Shells Hit Sarajevo Hospital and Bakery", Reuters, 17 February 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1993.

2039/ David B. Ottaway, "U.N. Halts Most Bosnian Relief", Washington Post, 18 February 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1993.

2040/ "U.N. Suspends Relief As Bosnia's Agony Worsens", The Press Association Limited, 17 February 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1993.

2041/ Carnegie Endowment, Breakdown in the Balkans, A Chronology of Events, January 1989 to May 1993.

2042/ BiH Ministry of Public Health Bulletin, 22 February 1993, IHRLI

Notes (continued)

Doc. No. 026912.

2043/ "Serbs Threaten Sarajevo Break-In", Agence France Presse, 18 February 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1993.

2044/ Id.

2045/ UNPROFOR HQ BH Command, Kiseljak, Weekly INFOSUM No.17, 21 February 1993, IHRLI Doc. No.25589.

2046/ "Convoy Heading for Zepa Awaits Road-Clearing Equipment", Agence France Presse, 19 February 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1993.

2047/ "Karadzic, Delegation Not Going to Talks", Belgrade Tanjug Domestic Service in Serbo-Croatian, 18 February 1993, 1356 GMT, FBIS #LD1802151993.

2048/ Carnegie Endowment, Breakdown in the Balkans, A Chronology of Events, January 1989 to May 1993.

2049/ Kurt Schork, "U.N. Relief Convoy In Eastern Bosnia Runs Into Trouble", Reuters, 20 February 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1993.

2050/ BiH Ministry of Public Health Bulletin, 22 February 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 026912.

2051/ Kurt Schork, "Bosnians Hint at End to U.N. Aid Boycott", Reuters, 19 February 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1993.

2052/ UNPROFOR HQ BH Command, Kiseljak, Weekly INFOSUM No. 17, 21 February 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 25588.

2053/ Kurt Schork, "Sarajevo Soup Kitchens to Close After Aid Cut-Off", Reuters, 19 February 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1993.

2054/ Kurt Schork, "Bosnians Hint at End to U.N. Aid Boycott", Reuters, 19 February 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1993.

2055/ BiH Ministry of Public Health Bulletin, 22 February 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 026912.

2056/ John F. Burns, "Awash in Pain, Sarajevo Is Sinking Into Despair", New York Times 21 February 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1993.

2057/ Kurt Schork, "U.N. Relief Convoy In Eastern Bosnia Runs Into Trouble", Reuters, 20 February 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1993.

2058/ John F. Burns, "Awash in Pain, Sarajevo Is Sinking Into Despair", New York Times, 21 February 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1993.

2059/ UNPROFOR HQ BH Command, Kiseljak, Weekly INFOSUM No. 17, 21 February 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 25588.

2060/ Id.

Notes (continued)

2061/ John F. Burns, "Awash in Pain, Sarajevo Is Sinking Into Despair", New York Times, 21 February 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1993.

2062/ UNPROFOR HQ BH Command, Kiseljak, Weekly INFOSUM, No. 17, IHRLI Doc. No. 25588.

2063/ BiH Ministry of Public Health Bulletin, 22 February 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 026912.

2064/ Id., IHRLI Doc. No. 026913.

2065/ Kurt Schork, "U.N. Aid Convoy Reaches Besieged Moslems", Reuters, 21 February 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1993.

2066/ Peter Maas, "Bosnia Acts To End Aid Boycott: Cease Fire Declared To Assist Shipments", Washington Post 21 February 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1993.

2067/ Peter Maas, "U.N. Officials Dispute U.S. Airdrop Proposal: Peril to Aircrews Over Bosnia Is Cited", IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1993.

2068/ Kurt Schork, "U.N. Aid Convoy Reaches Besieged Moslems", Reuters, 21 February 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1993.

2069/ BiH Ministry of Public Health Bulletin, 1 March 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 026914.

2070/ "Serbs May Attend New York Talks Without Karadzic", Belgrade Tanjug in English, 22 February 1993, 1238 GMT, FBIS #LD2202134393.

2071/ Carnegie Endowment, Breakdown in the Balkans, A Chronology of Events, January 1989 to May 1993.

2072/ Id.

2073/ John F. Burns, "Serbian Commander in Bosnia Says U.S. Airlift will Intensify War", New York Times, 24 February 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1993.

2074/ BiH Ministry of Public Health Bulletin, 1 March 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 026914.

2075/ John F. Burns, "Serbian Commander in Bosnia Says U.S. Airlift will Intensify War", New York Times, 24 February 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1993.

2076/ Id.

2077/ Carnegie Endowment, Breakdown in the Balkans, A Chronology of Events, January 1989 to May 1993.

2078/ BiH Ministry of Public Health Bulletin, 1 March 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 026914.

2079/ "Rebel Serbs Capture Key Sarajevo Suburb", Reuters, 24 February 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1993.

Notes (continued)

2080/ Peter Maas, "Sudden Death at Suppertime: Napping 2-Year-Old Killed As Serb Shellings Continue", Washington Post, 25 February 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1993.

2081/ "Rebel Serbs Capture Key Sarajevo Suburb", Reuters, 24 February 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1993.

2082/ "Karadzic to Head Delegation at New York Talks", Belgrade Tanjug in English, 24 February 1993, 2323 GMT, FBIS #LD2402233493.

2083/ Florence Hartmann, "Karadzic to Attend Talks, Opposes U.S. Drops", Paris Le Monde in French, 26 February 1993, at 3, FBIS #PM2602145693.

2084/ Carnegie Endowment, Breakdown in the Balkans, A Chronology of Events, January 1989 to May 1993.

2085/ Id.

2086/ "Thirteen Hurt as Shelling Breaks Sarajevo Lull", Reuters, 26 February 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1993.

2087/ BiH Ministry of Public Health Bulletin, 1 March 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 026914.

2088/ IHRLI, Chronology of the Negotiations for Peace in the Former Yugoslavia.

2089/ Carnegie Endowment, Breakdown in the Balkans, A Chronology of Events, January 1989 to May 1993.

2090/ See Materials submitted by the Government of BiH, IHRLI Doc. No. 027251.

2091/ BiH Ministry of Public Health Bulletin, 1 March 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 026914.

2092/ "Thirteen Hurt as Shelling Breaks Sarajevo Lull", Reuters, 26 February 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1993.

2093/ Id.

2094/ Mujo Delibegovic, "Akmadzic: Izetbegovic Not Represent Government", Sarajevo Radio BiH Network in Serbo-Croatian, 26 February 1993, 1800 GMT, FBIS #AU2602210493.

2095/ BiH Ministry of Public Health Bulletin, 1 March 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 026914.

2096/ "Shell Kills One, Wounds Three in Sarajevo", Reuters, 27 February 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1993.

2097/ Carnegie Endowment, Breakdown in the Balkans, A Chronology of Events, January 1989 to May 1993.

2098/ Id.

2099/ See Materials submitted by the Government of BiH, IHRLI Doc. No.

Notes (continued)

027271-73.

2100/ BiH Ministry of Public Health Bulletin, 1 March 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 026914.

2101/ Id., IHRLI Doc. No. 026915.

2102/ Kurt Schork, "Bosnia's Besieged Moslems Await Aid From the Skies", Reuters, 28 February 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1993.

2103/ UNPROFOR Sector Sarajevo Operational Report, February 1993, 1 March 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 25363.

2104/ UNPROFOR HQ BH Command, Kiseljak, Weekly INFOSUM No.18, 1 March 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 25580.

2105/ BiH Ministry of Public Health Bulletin, 8 March 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 026916.

2106/ "Sarajevo Shelled as U.S Drops Aid in East Bosnia", The Reuters Library Report, 1 March 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, March 1993.

2107/ UNPROFOR HQ BH Command "Sarajevo PICINFSUM as at 7/3/93".

2108/ "Aid Dropped Onto Moslem Enclave Fell Into Serb Hands: Bosnian", Agence France Presse, 1 March 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, March 1993

2109/ IHRLI, Chronology of the Negotiations for Peace in the Former Yugoslavia.

2110/ Helsinki Watch Report, April 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 9586 (citing Peter Maas, "Noon Visiting Hours Prove Deadly as Serbs Target Sarajevo Hospital", Washington Post, 10 March 1993).

2111/ BiH Ministry of Public Health Bulletin, 8 March 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 026916.

2112/ UNPROFOR HQ BH Command, "Sarajevo PICINFSUM as at 7/3/93".

2113/ Helsinki Watch Report, April 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 9586 (citing Peter Maas, "Noon Visiting Hours Prove Deadly as Serbs Target Sarajevo Hospital", Washington Post, 10 March 1993)

2114/ Kurt Schork, "Serbs Loot and Kill After U.S. Supplies Dropped, Radio Says", Reuters, 2 March 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, March 1993.

2115/ Id.

2116/ Carnegie Endowment, Breakdown in the Balkans, A Chronology of Events, January 1989 to May 1993.

2117/ Evelyn Leopold, "New Serb Offensive Casts Shadow Over Bosnia Talks", Reuters, 2 March 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, March 1993.

2118/ IHRLI, Chronology of the Negotiations for Peace in the Former Yugoslavia.

Notes (continued)

2119/ "Izetbegovic Not to Participate in New York Talks", Sarajevo Radio BiH Network in Serbo-Croatian, 2 March 1993, 0900 GMT, FBIS #AU0203104393.

2120/ BiH Ministry of Public Health Bulletin, 8 March 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 026916.

2121/ "Up To 20,000 Flee Moslem Enclave Sarajevo Radio", Reuters, 3 March 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, March 1993.

2122/ UNPROFOR HQ BH Command, "Sarajevo PICINFSUM as at 3/7/93".

2123/ "U.N. Expects More Serb Ethnic Cleansing As Evacuation Blocked", Agence France Presse, 3 March 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, March 1993.

2124/ IHRLI, Chronology of the Negotiations for Peace in the Former Yugoslavia.

2125/ Laura Pitter, "Serbs Press Bosnian Offensive", United Press International, March 4 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, March 1993.

2126/ Incid. No. 40636, Source: U.S. Submission.

2127/ UNPROFOR HQ BH Command "Sarajevo PICINFSUM as at 3/7/93".

2128/ Incid. No. 40636, Source: U.S. Submission.

2129/ BiH Ministry of Public Health Bulletin, 8 March 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 026916.

2130/ Laura Pitter, "Serbs Press Bosnian Offensive", United Press International, 4 March 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, March 1993.

2131/ Kurt Schork, "Moslem Radio Says Serbs Still Attacking Cerska", Reuters, 4 March 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, March 1993.

2132/ Id.

2133/ IHRLI, Chronology of the Negotiations for Peace in the Former Yugoslavia.

2134/ BiH Ministry of Public Health Bulletin, 8 March 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 026916.

2135/ Douglas Hamilton, "UN Aid Effort for East Bosnia Hit by Serb Ban", Reuters, 6 March 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, March 1993.

2136/ Laura Pitter, "International Team Arrives in Besieged City", United Press International, 6 March 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, March 1993.

2137/ Laura Pitter, "Bosnia-Herzegovina: UN Team to Cerska to Investigate", United Press International, 5 March 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, March 1993.

2138/ Carnegie Endowment, Breakdown in the Balkans, A Chronology of Events, January 1989 to May 1993.

Notes (continued)

2139/ BiH Ministry of Public Health Bulletin, 8 March 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 026916.

2140/ UNPROFOR HQ BH Command, "Sarajevo PICINFSUM" as at 3/7/93".

2141/ Carnegie Endowment, Breakdown in the Balkans, A Chronology of Events, January 1989 to May 1993.

2142/ Id.

2143/ "Karadzic Rejects Maps, Declares Round of Talks Over", Belgrade Tanjug Domestic Service in Serbo-Croatian, 6 March 1993, 2315 GMT, FBIS #LD0703015393.

2144/ UNPROFOR HQ BH Command, Kiseljak, Weekly INFOSUM, No. 19, 7 March 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 25573.

2145/ BiH Ministry of Public Health Bulletin, 8 March 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 026916.

2146/ Carnegie Endowment, Breakdown in the Balkans, A Chronology of Events, January 1989 to May 1993.

2147/ BiH Ministry of Public Health Bulletin, 15 March 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 026918.

2148/ Carnegie Endowment, Breakdown in the Balkans, A Chronology of Events, January 1989 to May 1993.

2149/ "Scheduled Meeting Between Morillon And Warring Parties Is Off", Agence France Presse, 8 March 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, March 1993.

2150/ Carnegie Endowment, Breakdown in the Balkans, A Chronology of Events, January 1989 to May 1993.

2151/ Id.

2152/ BiH Ministry of Public Health Bulletin, 15 March 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 026918.

2153/ Kurt Schork, "Bosnian Serbs Block Aid Convoy, Let Another Pass", Reuters, 9 March 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, March 1993.

2154/ "U.N. Ambulances Blocked At Bosnian Border Amid Counterattack", Agence France Presse, 9 March 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, March 1993.

2155/ "U.N. Ambulances Fail To Get Through As Fighting Intensifies", Agence France Presse, 9 March 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, March 1993.

2156/ "Aid Convoy Blocked, But Airdrops Getting Through", Reuters, 10 March 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, March 1993.

2157/ Carnegie Endowment, Breakdown in the Balkans, A Chronology of Events, January 1989 to May 1993.

2158/ "Aid Convoy Blocked, But Airdrops Getting Through", Reuters, 10 March 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, March 1993.

Notes (continued)

2159/ Peter Maass, "In Sarajevo, Terror in the Crosshairs: Daily Sniper Fire Seems Routine--Until a Victim Screams", Washington Post, 11 March 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, March 1993.

2160/ "U.N. Commander Heads For Eastern Bosnian Enclaves", Agence France Presse, 10 March 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, March 1993.

2161/ BiH Ministry of Public Health Bulletin, 15 March 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 026918.

2162/ "Aid Convoy Blocked, But Airdrops Getting Through", Reuters, 10 March 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, March 1993.

2163/ Peter Maass, "In Sarajevo, Terror in the Crosshairs: Daily Sniper Fire Seems Routine--Until a Victim Screams", Washington Post, 11 March 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, March 1993.

2164/ Kurt Schork, "U.N. Convoy To Bosnia Blocked, Airdrops Succeed", Reuters, 10 March 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, March 1993.

2165/ Carnegie Endowment, Breakdown in the Balkans, A Chronology of Events, January 1989 to May 1993.

2166/ BiH Ministry of Public Health Bulletin, 15 March 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 026918.

2167/ Kurt Schork, "Angry Muslims In Bosnia Take British Troops Hostage", Reuters, 11 March 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, March 1993.

2168/ "Milosevic Pleads 'Limited' Influence Over Bosnian Serbs", Agence France Presse, 12 March 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, March 1993.

2169/ BiH Ministry of Public Health Bulletin, 15 March 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 026918.

2170/ Kurt Schork "Shells Hit Women and Children Near British Troops", Reuters, 12 March 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, March 1993.

2171/ Laura Pitter, "Serbs Block Sarajevo Airport Road", United Press International, 13 March 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, March 1993.

2172/ BiH Ministry of Public Health Bulletin, 15 March 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 026918.

2173/ Incid. No. 40710, Source: U.S. Submission; John F. Burns, "Bosnia War Crime Trial Hears Serb's Confession", New York Times, 14 March 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, March 1993.

2174/ "Morillon Remaining In Srebrenica, Radio Reports Air Attacks", Agence France Presse, 13 March 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, March 1993.

2175/ UNPROFOR HQ BH Command, Kiseljak, Weekly INFOSUM No. 20, 15 March 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 25569.

2176/ BiH Ministry of Public Health Bulletin, 15 March 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 026918.

Notes (continued)

2177/ "Morillon Calls On Serbs To Trust UN", Agence France Presse, 14 March 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, March 1993.

2178/ UNPROFOR HQ BH Command, Kiseljak, Weekly INFOSUM No. 20, 15 March 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 25568.

2179/ Peter Maas, "Confrontation at Sarajevo: A Trip to the Airport Turns Nasty", Washington Post, 22 March 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, March 1993.

2180/ BiH Ministry of Public Health Bulletin, 22 March 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 026921.

2181/ Peter Maas, "Confrontation at Sarajevo: A Trip to the Airport Turns Nasty", Washington Post, 22 March 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, March 1993.

2182/ "Morillon Holds Meeting With Leader Of Bosnian Serb Forces", 15 March 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, March 1993.

2183/ Incid. No. 40670, Source: U.S. Submission

2184/ "Sarajevo Hospital Hit by Mortar, Sniper Fire", Reuters, 16 March 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, March 1993.

2185/ BiH Ministry of Public Health Bulletin, 22 March 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 026921.

2186/ Incid. No. 40670, Source: U.S. Submission

2187/ "Sarajevo Hospital Hit by Mortar, Sniper Fire", Reuters, 16 March 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, March 1993.

2188/ "Bosnian Croats Dispute Izetbegovic Talks Mandate", Agence France Presse, 16 March 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, March 1993.

2189/ "Violent Combat Reported Near Sarajevo Airport", Agence France Presse, 17 March 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, March 1993.

2190/ "U.N. Convoy To Srebrenica Blocked Just After Setting Off", Agence France Presse, 19 March 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, March 1993.

2191/ "Fighting Rages In Sarajevo As Air Attacks Again Breach No-Fly Zone", Agence France Presse, 17 March 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, March 1993.

2192/ BiH Ministry of Public Health Bulletin, 22 March 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 026921.

2193/ "Violent Combat Reported Near Sarajevo Airport", Agence France Presse, 17 March 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, March 1993.

2194/ "Fighting Rages In Sarajevo As Air Attacks Again Breach No-Fly Zone", Agence France Presse, 17 March 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, March 1993.

Notes (continued)

2195/ Id.

2196/ Carnegie Endowment, Breakdown in the Balkans, A Chronology of Events, January 1989 to May 1993.

2197/ Gordana Kukic, "Muslims Walk Out As U.N. Tries To Stop Serb Attacks", 18 March 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, March 1993.

2198/ BiH Ministry of Public Health Bulletin, 22 March 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 026921.

2199/ Kurt Schork, "Witnesses Testify in Sarajevo War Crimes Trial", Reuters, 18 March 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, March 1993.

2200/ Helsinki Watch Report, April 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 9714.

2201/ "Bosnian Capital Sarajevo Shelled for a Second Day", Reuters, 18 March 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, March 1993.

2202/ Mladen Bosnjak, "Ganic Claims Attacks Aim to Hinder Talks", Sarajevo Radio BiH Network in Serbo-Croatian, 18 March 1993, 1800 GMT, FBIS #AU1803212193.

2203/ Carnegie Endowment, Breakdown in the Balkans, A Chronology of Events, January 1989 to May 1993.

2204/ Gordana Kukic, "Muslims Walk Out As U.N. Tries To Stop Serb Attacks", Reuters, 18 March 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, March 1993.

2205/ Carnegie Endowment, Breakdown in the Balkans, A Chronology of Events, January 1989 to May 1993.

2206/ "Thirteen Dead, 98 Wounded In Sarajevo Fighting: Hospitals", Agence France Presse, 19 March 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, March 1993.

2207/ BiH Ministry of Public Health Bulletin, 22 March 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 026921.

2208/ Incid. No. 40572, Source: U.S. Submission

2209/ Gordana Kukic "Bosnians Quit Peace Talks After Serb Offensive", Reuters, 19 March 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, March 1993.

2210/ Carnegie Endowment, Breakdown in the Balkans, A Chronology of Events, January 1989 to May 1993.

2211/ Id.

2212/ "U.N. Convoy Arrives In Tuzla", Agence France Presse, 20 March 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, March 1993.

2213/ BiH Ministry of Public Health Bulletin, 22 March 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 026921.

2214/ "Sarajevo Suburb Hit By Heavy Assault", Reuters, 20 March 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, March 1993.

Notes (continued)

2215/ "Battle Raging For Control Of Key Sarajevo Suburb", Agence France Presse", 20 March 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, March 1993.

2216/ Kurt Schork, "U.N. Fears Typhus Outbreak In Sarajevo", Reuters, 20 March 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, March 1993.

2217/ Gordana Kucic, "U.N. Convoy Leaves Besieged Srebrenica With Wounded", 20 March 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, March 1993.

2218/ Helsinki Watch Report, April 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 9715; John F. Burns, "Serbs Intensify Sarajevo Attack: U.N. Fears a Final All-Out Push", New York Times, 23 March 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, March 1993.

2219/ "Heavy Casualties In Fighting Around Sarajevo", Reuters, 21 March 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, March 1993.

2220/ BiH Ministry of Public Health Bulletin, 22 March 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 026921.

2221/ "Sarajevo Under Heavy Artillery Attack", Reuters, 21 March 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, March 1993.

2222/ "Heavy Casualties In Fighting Around Sarajevo", Reuters, 21 March 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, March 1993.

2223/ "Serbs In Most Violent Offensive Since Start of War", Agence France Presse, 21 March 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, March 1993.

2224/ "Heavy Shelling Of Sarajevo, U.N. Copters Arrive At Tuzla", Agence France Presse, 21 March 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, March 1993.

2225/ "Heavy Casualties In Fighting Around Sarajevo", Reuters, 21 March 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, March 1993.

2226/ "Serbs In Most Violent Offensive Since Start Of War", Agence France Presse, 21 March 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, March 1993.

2227/ "Heavy Casualties In Fighting Around Sarajevo", Reuters, 21 March 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, March 1993.

2228/ "Serbs In Most Violent Offensive Since Start of War", Agence France Presse, 21 March 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, March 1993.

2229/ "Heavy Shelling Of Sarajevo, U.N. Copters Arrive At Tuzla", Agence France Presse, 21 March 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, March 1993.

2230/ UNPROFOR HQ BH Command, Kiseljak, Weekly INFOSUM, No. 21, 22 March 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 25561.

2231/ "Bosnian Serbs Offer Air Link To Muslim Siege Town", Reuters, 22 March 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, March 1993.

2232/ Id.

2233/ BiH Ministry of Public Health Bulletin, 29 March 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 026922.

Notes (continued)

2234/ "Pounding Of Sarajevo, East Bosnia, Continues", Agence France Presse, 22 March 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, March 1993.

2235/ Kurt Schork, "Bosnian Serbs Offer Air Link To Muslim Siege Town", Reuters, 22 March 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, March 1993.

2236/ Id.

2237/ Id.; "Pounding Of Sarajevo, East Bosnia, Continues", Agence France Presse, 22 March 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, March 1993.

2238/ Kurt Schork, "Bosnian Serbs Offer Air Link To Muslim Siege Town", Reuters, 22 March 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, March 1993.

2239/ BiH Ministry of Public Health Bulletin, 29 March 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 026922.

2240/ Anthony Goodman, "Future Of Bosnian Talks In Disarray", Reuters, 23 March 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, March 1993.

2241/ IHRLI, Chronology of the Negotiations for Peace in the Former Yugoslavia.

2242/ Carnegie Endowment, Breakdown in the Balkans, A Chronology of Events, January 1989 to May 1993.

2243/ Anthony Goodman, "Future Of Bosnian Talks In Disarray", Reuters, 23 March 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, March 1993.

2244/ BiH Ministry of Public Health Bulletin, 29 March 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 026922.

2245/ "Four Dead, 14 Injured in Sarajevo as Ramadan Ends", Agence France Presse, 24 March 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, March 1993.

2246/ Carnegie Endowment, Breakdown in the Balkans, A Chronology of Events, January 1989 to May 1993.

2247/ Kurt Schork, "Muslims Call For Halt To Fighting With Bosnian Croats", Reuters, 25 March 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, March 1993.

2248/ Carnegie Endowment, Breakdown in the Balkans, A Chronology of Events, January 1989 to May 1993.

2249/ Colin McIntyre, "U.N. Official Warns Serbs Threaten Bosnia Peace Plan", Reuters, 25 March 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, March 1993.

2250/ "Morillon Heads For Belgrade As Noose Tightens On Srebrenica", Agence France Presse, 25 March 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, March 1993.

2251/ BiH Ministry of Public Health Bulletin, 29 March 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 026922.

2252/ "Morillon Heads For Belgrade As Noose Tightens On Srebrenica", Agence France Presse, 25 March 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, March 1993.

2253/ "Milosevic Offers to Host Bosnian Cease-Fire Talks", Belgrade

Notes (continued)

Tanjug Domestic Service in Serbo-Croatian, 25 March 1993, 2049 GMT, FBIS #LD2503214993.

2254/ "Morillon Heads For Belgrade As Noose Tightens On Srebrenica", Agence France Presse, 25 March 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, March 1993.

2255/ Carnegie Endowment, Breakdown in the Balkans, A Chronology of Events, January 1989 to May 1993.

2256/ "Morillon Heads For Belgrade As Noose Tightens On Srebrenica", Agence France Presse, 25 March 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, March 1993.

2257/ BiH Ministry of Public Health Bulletin, 29 March 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 026922.

2258/ "Morillon Discusses Possible Cease-Fire with Mladic", Paris Agence France Presse in English, 26 March 1993, 1204 GMT, FBIS #AU2603124493.

2259/ Carnegie Endowment, Breakdown in the Balkans, A Chronology of Events, January 1989 to May 1993.

2260/ Id.

2261/ BiH Ministry of Public Health Bulletin, 29 March 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 026922.

2262/ Giles Elgood, "Bosnia's Warring Factions Said Ready For Truce", Reuters, 27 March 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, March 1993.

2263/ Id.

2264/ Carnegie Endowment, Breakdown in the Balkans, A Chronology of Events, January 1989 to May 1993.

2265/ Id.

2266/ BiH Ministry of Public Health Bulletin, 29 March 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 026922.

2267/ Id., IHRLI Doc. No. 026923.

2268/ David Ottaway, "U.N. Aid Convoy Reaches Town As Truce Takes Effect in Bosnia", Washington Post, 29 March 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, March 1993.

2269/ John F. Burns, "Food Convoy Arrives in Bosnian Town", New York Times, 29 March 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, March 1993; Colin McIntyre, "U.N. Convoy In Fresh Bid To Reach Trapped Bosnian Town", Reuters, 28 March 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, March 1993.

2270/ Colin McIntyre, "U.N. Convoy In Fresh Bid To Reach Trapped Bosnian Town", Reuters, 28 March 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, March 1993.

2271/ Id.

2272/ Carnegie Endowment, Breakdown in the Balkans, A Chronology of Events, January 1989 to May 1993.

Notes (continued)

2273/ UNPROFOR HQ BH Command, Kiseljak, Weekly INFOSUM No. 22, 29 March 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 25553.

2274/ John F. Burns, "Cease-Fire in Bosnia Holds for a 2d Day, and Sarajevo Basks", New York Times, 30 March 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, March 1993.

2275/ Id.

2276/ UNPROFOR HQ BH Command, Kiseljak, Weekly INFOSUM No. 22, 29 March 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 25553.

2277/ Carnegie Endowment, Breakdown in the Balkans, A Chronology of Events, January 1989 to May 1993.

2278/ Giles Elgood, "U.N. To Send More Aid To Besieged Bosnian Town", Reuters, 29 March 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, March 1993.

2279/ Id.

2280/ Carnegie Endowment, Breakdown in the Balkans, A Chronicle of Events, January 1989 to May 1993.

2281/ Id.

2282/ Id.

2283/ "Five Dead Shelling Breaches Ceasefire", Agence France Presse, 30 March 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, March 1993.

2284/ "Bosnia Convicts 2 Serbs In War Crimes Trial: U.N. Officer Seeks Amnesty to Promote Peace".

2285/ "Five Dead Shelling Breaches Ceasefire", Agence France Presse, 30 March 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, March 1993.

2286/ David B. Ottaway, "Bosnia Calm for Another Day: U.N. Works to Solidify Truce: Convoy Evacuates Muslims From Besieged, Hunger-Ridden Town", Washington Post, 30 March 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, March 1993.

2287/ "Ceasefire Holding But Fragile: U.N. Officials", Agence France Presse, 30 March 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, March 1993.

2288/ Carnegie Endowment, Breakdown in the Balkans, A Chronicle of Events, January 1989 to May 1993.

2289/ Id.

2290/ UNPROFOR Sector Sarajevo Operational Report, March 1993, 1 April 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 25369.

2291/ Id.

2292/ "Churkin, Russian Envoy Arrive in Pale", Belgrade Tanjug Domestic Service in Serbo-Croatian, 31 March 1993, 1159 GMT, FBIS #LD3103115293.

2293/ Carnegie Endowment, Breakdown in the Balkans, A Chronicle of

Notes (continued)

Events, January 1989 to May 1993.

2294/ Jamie Reilly "Bosnian Serbs Say U.N Simulated Helicopter Attack", Reuters, 2 April 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, April 1993.

2295/ UNPROFOR Sector Sarajevo Operational Report, April 1993, 1 May 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 25375.

2296/ Carnegie Endowment, Breakdown in the Balkans, A Chronicle of Events, January 1989 to May 1993.

2297/ Id.

2298/ Id.

2299/ UNPROFOR Sector Sarajevo Operational Report, April 1993, 1 May 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 25375.

2300/ Jamie Reilly, "Bosnian Serbs Say U.N Simulated Helicopter Attack", 2 April 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, April 1993.

2301/ IHRLI, Chronology of the Negotiations for Peace in the Former Yugoslavia.

2302/ UNPROFOR Sector Sarajevo Operational Report, April 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 25375.

2303/ "Ham Operator Reports Heavy Attacks Around Srebrenica", IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, April 1993.

2304/ "Ceasefire Holds", Agence France Presse, 3 April 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, April 1993.

2305/ Carnegie Endowment, Breakdown in the Balkans, A Chronicle of Events, January 1989 to May 1993.

2306/ David B. Ottaway, "Serbs Renew Attack On East Bosnian Town: U.S. Talks of 'Adjustments' to Peace Plan", Washington Post Foreign Service, 4 April 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, April 1993.

2307/ Carnegie Endowment, Breakdown in the Balkans, A Chronicle of Events, January 1989 to May 1993.

2308/ "Seven Reported Dead in Sarajevo Fighting", Reuters, 4 April 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, April 1993.

2309/ UNPROFOR Sector Sarajevo Operational Report, April 1993, 1 May 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 25375.

2310/ John F. Burns, "Bosnians in Besieged Sarajevo Look Back on Year of Horror", New York Times, 6 April 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, April 1993.

2311/ Id.

2312/ Id.

2313/ "Seven Reported Dead in Sarajevo Fighting", Reuters, 4 April 1993,

Notes (continued)

IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, April 1993.

2314/ John F. Burns, "Bosnians in Besieged Sarajevo Look Back on Year of Horror", New York Times, 6 April 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, April 1993.

2315/ Roger Cohen, "Serbs' Strategy: War Gets More Than Diplomacy", New York Times, 5 April 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, April 1993.

2316/ Carnegie Endowment, Breakdown in the Balkans, A Chronicle of Events, January 1989 to May 1993.

2317/ Id.

2318/ Id.

2319/ UNPROFOR Sector Sarajevo Operational Report, April 1993, 1 May 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 25375.

2320/ UNPROFOR HQ BH Command, Kiseljak, Weekly INFOSUM No. 23, 5 April 1993, IHRLI Doc. 25539.

2321/ Kurt Schork, "Seven Die in New Sarajevo Fighting", Reuters, 5 April 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, April 1993

2322/ Id.

2323/ IHRLI, Chronology of the Negotiations for Peace in the Former Yugoslavia.

2324/ "French Group Launches Appeal to Save Sarajevo Paper", Reuters, 5 April 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, April 1993.

2325/ Carnegie Endowment, Breakdown in the Balkans, A Chronicle of Events, January 1989 to May 1993.

2326/ UNPROFOR Sector Sarajevo Operational Report, April 1993, 1 May 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 25375.

2327/ John F. Burns, "Rival Military Chiefs Meet in Bosnia, But Only Bicker", New York Times, 7 April 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, April 1993.

2328/ John F. Burns, "Bosnians in Besieged Sarajevo Look Back on Year of Horror", New York Times, 6 April 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, April 1993.

2329/ John F. Burns, "Rival Military Chiefs Meet in Bosnia, But Only Bicker", New York Times, 7 April 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, April 1993.

2330/ Carnegie Endowment, Breakdown in the Balkans, A Chronicle of Events, January 1989 to May 1993.

2331/ "UNICEF Says Trauma Widespread Among Bosnian Children", Reuters, 6 April 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, April 1993.

2332/ UNPROFOR Sector Sarajevo Operational Report, April 1993, 1 May 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 25375.

2333/ "Intense Fighting Round Srebrenica: Radio", Agence France Presse,

Notes (continued)

7 April 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, April 1993.

2334/ "Fighting Flares Again in Srebrenica", Reuters, 7 April 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, April 1993.

2335/ "Intense Fighting Around Srebrenica: Radio", Agence France Presse, 7 April 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, April 1993.

2336/ Carnegie Endowment, Breakdown in the Balkans, A Chronicle of Events, January 1989 to May 1993.

2337/ UNPROFOR Sector Sarajevo Operational Report, April 1993, 1 May 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 25375.

2338/ "Snipers Active in Fog-Draped Sarajevo", Reuters, 8 April 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, April 1993.

2339/ John F. Burns, "Serbs Bar U.N. General From a Muslim Enclave", New York Times, 9 April 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, April 1993.

2340/ "Milosevic Meets With UNPROFOR Commander Wahlgren", Belgrade Tanjug Domestic Service in Serbo-Croatian, 8 April 1993, 1400 GMT, FBIS #LD0804160593.

2341/ Carnegie Endowment, Breakdown in the Balkans, A Chronicle of Events, January 1989 to May 1993.

2342/ "Shelling Aborts Biden Visit to Sarajevo", Agence France Presse, 8 April 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, April 1993.

2343/ Carnegie Endowment, Breakdown in the Balkans, A Chronicle of Events, January 1989 to May 1993.

2344/ Id.

2345/ UNPROFOR Sector Sarajevo Operational Report, April 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 25375.

2346/ "Srebrenica's Water Cut", Agence France Presse, 9 April 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, April 1993.

2347/ "Mladic Proposes Talks With Muslim Counterpart", Belgrade Tanjug Domestic Service in Serbo-Croatian, 9 April 1993, 1522 GMT, FBIS #LD0904190993.

2348/ Carnegie Endowment, Breakdown in the Balkans, A Chronicle of Events, January 1989 to May 1993.

2349/ Id.

2350/ UNPROFOR Sector Sarajevo Operational Report, April 1993, 1 May 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 25375.

2351/ Mark Heinrich "Ceasefire Due to Start in Besieged Srebrenica", 10 April 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, April 1993.

2352/ Id.

Notes (continued)

2353/ John F, Burns, "Moves by Serbs Raise Fears They Plan an All-Out Drive", New York Times, 11 April 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, April 1993.

2354/ Mark Heinrich, "Srebrenica Evacuation Blocked, Despite Cease-Fire", Reuters, 10 April 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, April 1993.

2355/ Carnegie Endowment, Breakdown in the Balkans, A Chronicle of Events, January 1989 to May 1993.

2356/ "Joan Baez in Sarajevo to Sing for Peace", 10 April 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, April 1993.

2357/ UNPROFOR Sector Sarajevo Operational Report, April 1993, 1 May 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 25375.

2358/ Carnegie Endowment, Breakdown in the Balkans, A Chronicle of Events, January 1989 to May 1993.

2359/ John F. Burns, "Besieged Bosnians Facing A New Peril As U.N. Aid Dries Up", New York Times, 12 April 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, April 1993.

2360/ Carnegie Endowment, Breakdown in the Balkans, A Chronicle of Events, January 1989 to May 1993.

2361/ Id.

2362/ UNPROFOR Sector Sarajevo Operational Report, April 1993, 1 May 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 25375.

2363/ John F, Burns, "2-Week Cease-Fire Broken In Bosnia As Serbs Attack", New York Times, 13 April 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, April 1993.

2364/ UNPROFOR HQ BH Command, Kiseljak, Weekly INFOSUM No. 24, 12 April 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 25532.

2365/ John F, Burns, "2-Week Cease-Fire Broken In Bosnia As Serbs Attack", New York Times, 13 April 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, April 1993.

2366/ BiH Ministry of Public Health Bulletin, 12 April 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 026926.

2367/ Id., IHRLI Doc. No. 026927.

2368/ John F, Burns, "2-Week Cease-Fire Broken In Bosnia As Serbs Attack", New York Times, 13 April 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, April 1993.

2369/ Id.

2370/ "Bartholomew on Visit to Sarajevo", Agence France Presse, 12 April 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, April 1993.

2371/ "Nato Warplanes Seal Off Bosnian Airspace: U.S., French and Dutch Fighter Pilots Report No Violations of Prohibited Zone", IHRLI Sarajevo Source

Notes (continued)

File, April 1993.

2372/ Mark Heinrich, "Bosnian Truce is Shattered Even as Nato Jets Prowl the Skies", 13 April 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, April 1993.

2373/ Carnegie Endowment, Breakdown in the Balkans, A Chronicle of Events, January 1989 to May 1993.

2374/ "Fighting in Bosnian Capital", Reuters, 13 April 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, April 1993.

2375/ UNPROFOR Sector Sarajevo Operational Report, April 1993, 1 May 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 25375.

2376/ Mark Heinrich "Bosnian Truce is Shattered Even As Nato Jets Prowl the Skies", Reuters, 13 April 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, April 1993.

2377/ "Fighting in Bosnian Capital", Reuters, 13 April 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, April 1993.

2378/ Mark Heinrich, "Bosnian Truce is Shattered Even As Nato Jets Prowl the Skies", Reuters, 13 April 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, April 1993.

2379/ Carnegie Endowment, Breakdown in the Balkans, A Chronicle of Events, January 1989 to May 1993.

2380/ Id.

2381/ Id.

2382/ Id.

2383/ Id.

2384/ UNPROFOR Sector Sarajevo Operational Report, April 1993, 1 May 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 25375.

2385/ "Srebrenica under Renewed Artillery Attack", Agence France Presse, 14 April 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, April 1993.

2386/ "Sarajevo Reports Attack on Srebrenica", Reuters, 14 April 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, April 1993.

2387/ "Aid Flights Resume as Food Runs Out in Bosnia", Agence France Presse, 14 April 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, April 1993.

2388/ "Aid Flights Resume into Sarajevo", Agence France Presse, 14 April 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, April 1993.

2389/ IHRLI, Chronology of the Negotiations for Peace in the Former Yugoslavia.

2390/ Carnegie Endowment, Breakdown in the Balkans, A Chronicle of Events, January 1989 to May 1993.

2391/ UNPROFOR Sector Sarajevo Operational Report, April 1993, 1 May 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 25375.

Notes (continued)

2392/ "Bosnian Ceasefire Close to Collapse", Reuters, 15 April 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, April 1993.

2393/ Id.

2394/ John F. Burns, "Bosnia Yielding Town To Serbs, U.N. Aides Say", New York Times, 16 April 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, April 1993.

2395/ UNPROFOR HQ BH Command, Kiseljak, Weekly INFOSUM No. 25, 19 April 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 25525.

2396/ "Srebrenica Totters as Croats Open New Front", Agence France Presse, 15 April 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, April 1993.

2397/ Carnegie Endowment, Breakdown in the Balkans, A Chronicle of Events, January 1989 to May 1993.

2398/ "Izetbegovic: Srebrenica's Fall Would Be `Catastrophe'", Sarajevo Radio BiH Network in Serbo-Croatian, 15 April 1993, 1300 GMT, FBIS #AU1504154293.

2399/ Carnegie Endowment, Breakdown in the Balkans, A Chronicle of Events, January 1989 to May 1993.

2400/ UNPROFOR Sector Sarajevo Operational Report, April 1993, 1 May 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 25375.

2401/ "Srebrenica Deteriorating `Minute from Minute'", Agence France Presse, 16 April 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, April 1993.

2402/ IHRLI, Chronology of the Negotiations for Peace in the Former Yugoslavia.

2403/ Id.

2404/ Carnegie Endowment, Breakdown in the Balkans, A Chronicle of Events, January 1989 to May 1993.

2405/ Id.

2406/ UNPROFOR Sector Sarajevo Operational Report, April 1993, 1 May 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 25375.

2407/ "Cease-Fire Accord Provides for Casualties", Paris Agence France Presse in English, 17 April 1993, 1933 GMT, FBIS #AU1704200093.

2408/ UNPROFOR Sector Sarajevo Operational Report, April 1993, 1 May 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 25375.

2409/ John F. Burns, "Struggle In The Balkans: U.N. Says Enclave Is `Saved': Bosnians Call It `Surrender'", New York Times, 19 April 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, April 1993.

2410/ "Mortar Attacks Kill Five, Wound 36 in Sarajevo", Reuters, 18 April 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, April 1993.

2411/ Carnegie Endowment, Breakdown in the Balkans, A Chronicle of

Notes (continued)

Events, January 1989 to May 1993.

2412/ Id.

2413/ "Russian Delegation Meets Bosnian, Serb Leaders", Agence France Presse, 18 April 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, April 1993.

2414/ UNPROFOR Sector Sarajevo Operational Report, April 1993, 1 May 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 25375.

2415/ UNPROFOR HQ BH Command, Kiseljak, Weekly INFOSUM No. 25, 19 April 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 25525.

2416/ "Radio Reports Sarajevo Quiet Amid Bosnian Fighting", Reuters, 19 April 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, April 1993.

2417/ Carnegie Endowment, Breakdown in the Balkans, A Chronicle of Events, January 1989 to May 1993.

2418/ Id.; "Russian Delegation Says U.N. Sanctions Move 'Misguided'", Belgrade Tanjug in English, 19 April 1993, 2008 GMT, FBIS #LD1904210393.

2419/ Carnegie Endowment, Breakdown in the Balkans, A Chronicle of Events, January 1989 to May 1993.

2420/ UNPROFOR Sector Sarajevo Operational Report, April 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 25375.

2421/ John F. Burns, "Vicious 'Ethnic Cleansing' Infects Croat-Muslim Villages in Bosnia", New York Times, 21 April 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, April 1993.

2422/ Carnegie Endowment, Breakdown in the Balkans, A Chronicle of Events, January 1989 to May 1993.

2423/ Id.

2424/ UNPROFOR Sector Sarajevo Operational Report, April 1993, 1 May 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 25375.

2425/ "Small Arms Fire Echoes Around Sarajevo", Reuters, 21 April 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, April 1993.

2426/ IHRLI, Chronology of the Negotiations for Peace in the Former Yugoslavia.

2427/ Carnegie Endowment, Breakdown in the Balkans, A Chronicle of Events, January 1989 to May 1993.

2428/ Id.

2429/ UNPROFOR Sector Sarajevo Operational Report, April 1993, 1 May 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 25375.

2430/ Carnegie Endowment, Breakdown in the Balkans, A Chronicle of Events, January 1989 to May 1993.

Notes (continued)

2431/ "Report on Tudjman, Clinton Meeting in Washington", Zagreb Radio Croatia Network in Serbo-Croatian, 22 April 1993, 1500 GMT, FBIS #LD2204175093.

2432/ UNPROFOR Sector Sarajevo Operational Report, April 1993, 1 May 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 25375.

2433/ "Fighting in Central Bosnia Continues", Agence France Presse, 23 April 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, April 1993.

2434/ Carnegie Endowment, Breakdown in the Balkans, A Chronicle of Events, January 1989 to May 1993.

2435/ Id.

2436/ Id.

2437/ UNPROFOR Sector Sarajevo Operational Report, April 1993, 1 May 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 25375.

2438/ Anthony Goodman "Bosnian President Says that U.N May need to Use Force", Reuters, 24 April 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, April 1993.

2439/ IHRLI, Chronology of the Negotiations for Peace in the Former Yugoslavia.

2440/ UNPROFOR Sector Sarajevo Operational Report, April 1993, 1 May 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 25375.

2441/ See Materials submitted by the Government of BiH, IHRLI Doc. No. 027259-60.

2442/ See Materials submitted by the Government of BiH, IHRLI Doc. No. 027261.

2443/ See Materials submitted by the Government of BiH, IHRLI Doc. No. 027264.

2444/ Carnegie Endowment, Breakdown in the Balkans, A Chronicle of Events, January 1989 to May 1993.

2445/ Id.

2446/ IHRLI, Chronology of the Negotiations for Peace in the Former Yugoslavia.

2447/ Carnegie Endowment, Breakdown in the Balkans, A Chronicle of Events, January 1989 to May 1993.

2448/ UNPROFOR Sector Sarajevo Operational Report, April 1993, 1 May 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 25375.

2449/ UNPROFOR HQ BH Command, Kiseljak, Weekly INFOSUM No. 26, 26 April 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 25520.

2450/ Id.

Notes (continued)

2451/ BiH Ministry of Public Health Bulletin, 3 May 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 026932.

2452/ BiH Ministry of Public Health Bulletin, 26 April 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 026930-31.

2453/ Carnegie Endowment, Breakdown in the Balkans, A Chronicle of Events, January 1989 to May 1993.

2454/ Id.

2455/ "Karadzic: Serbs Want to Continue Negotiating", Belgrade Tanjug Domestic Service in Serbo-Croatian, 26 April 1993, 1300 GMT, FBIS #LD2604154293; "Tudjman Receives U.N. Security Council Delegation", Zagreb HTV Television in Serbo-Croatian, 26 April 1993, 1730 GMT, FBIS #LD2604193994.

2456/ "China Against Sanctions, Military Force in Bosnia", Belgrade Tanjug in English, 26 April 1993, 1336 GMT, FBIS #LD2604142793.

2457/ Carnegie Endowment, Breakdown in the Balkans, A Chronicle of Events, January 1989 to May 1993.

2458/ UNPROFOR Sector Sarajevo Operational Report, April 1993, 1 May 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 25375.

2459/ Elaine Sciolino, "Christopher Explains Conditions For Use of U.S. Force in Bosnia", New York Times, 28 April 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, April 1993.

2460/ BiH Ministry of Public Health Bulletin, 3 May 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 026932.

2461/ Elaine Sciolino, "Christopher Explains Conditions For Use of U.S. Force in Bosnia", New York Times, 28 April 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, April 1993.

2462/ "Firemen Under Fire in Sarajevo", Agence France Presse, 27 April 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, April 1993.

2463/ Carnegie Endowment, Breakdown in the Balkans, A Chronicle of Events, January 1989 to May 1993.

2464/ Id.

2465/ UNPROFOR Sector Sarajevo Operational Report, April 1993, 1 May 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 25375.

2466/ BiH Ministry of Public Health Bulletin, 3 May 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 026932.

2467/ Carnegie Endowment, Breakdown in the Balkans, A Chronicle of Events, January 1989 to May 1993.

2468/ Id.

2469/ Id.

Notes (continued)

- 2470/ UNPROFOR Sector Sarajevo Operational Report, April 1993, 1 May 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 25375.
- 2471/ BiH Ministry of Public Health Bulletin, 3 May 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 026932.
- 2472/ "Intense Fighting in Central Bosnia, Shelling in East Town", Agence France Presse, 29 April 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, April 1993.
- 2473/ "Assembly Appeals to Bosnian Serbs to Reexamine Decision", Belgrade Tanjug Domestic Service in Serbo-Croatian, 29 April 1993, 1625 GMT, FBIS #LD2904180893.
- 2474/ Carnegie Endowment, Breakdown in the Balkans, A Chronicle of Events, January 1989 to May 1993.
- 2475/ "More Troops Needed for 'Safe' Areas, Official Says As Fighting Calms", Agence France Presse, 29 April 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, April 1993.
- 2476/ UNPROFOR Sector Sarajevo Operational Report, April 1993, 1 May 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 25375.
- 2477/ Mark Heinrich, "Serb Leader Ready to Trade Territory for Peace", Reuters, 1 May 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, April 1993.
- 2478/ BiH Ministry of Public Health Bulletin, 3 May 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 026932.
- 2479/ "Strategic Sarajevo Neighborhood Shelled: Radio", 30 April 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, April 1993.
- 2480/ Mark Heinrich, "Serb Leader Ready to Trade Territory for Peace", Reuters, 1 May 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, April 1993.
- 2481/ Mark Heinrich, "Bosnian Serb Leader Sees Chance for Peace in Bosnia", 30 April 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, April 1993.
- 2482/ UNPROFOR Sector Sarajevo Operational Report, 1 May 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 25377.
- 2483/ IHRLI, Chronology of the Negotiations for Peace in the Former Yugoslavia.
- 2484/ UNPROFOR Sector Sarajevo Operational Report, May 1993, 1 June 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 25411.
- 2485/ Mark Heinrich, "Fighting Surges in Bosnia Ahead of Peace Summit", Reuters, 1 May 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, May 1993.
- 2486/ BiH Ministry of Public Health Bulletin, 3 May 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 026932.
- 2487/ Mark Heinrich, "Fighting Surges in Bosnia Ahead of Peace Summit", Reuters, 1 May 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, May 1993.
- 2488/ Id.

Notes (continued)

2489/ "Shells Wreak Havoc in Sarajevo", Agence France Presse, 1 May 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, May 1993.

2490/ Id.

2491/ IHRLI, Chronology of the Negotiations for Peace in the Former Yugoslavia.

2492/ Robert Evans, "Last-Ditch Bosnian Peace Talks Open, Owen Hopeful", Reuters, 1 May 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, May 1993; Paul Lewis, "New Balkans Talks Open at a Resort Near Athens", New York Times, 2 May 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, May 1993.

2493/ Stephen Kinzer, "Yugoslav Town's Stately Bridges May Be Bombed", New York Times, 2 May 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, May 1993.

2494/ UNPROFOR Sector Sarajevo Operational Report, May 1993, 1 June 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 25411.

2495/ UNPROFOR HQ BH Command, Kiseljak, Weekly INFOSUM No. 27, 2 May 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 25512.

2496/ BiH Ministry of Public Health Bulletin, 3 May 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 026932.

2497/ "West Sees Obstacles on Road to Bosnian Peace", Reuters, 2 May 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, May 1993.

2498/ "Five Killed in Serb Shelling of Sarajevo", Agence France Presse, 2 May 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, May 1993.

2499/ Kurt Schork, "Serb Hard-Liners Warn on U.N. Plan For Bosnia", Reuters, 2 May 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, May 1993.

2500/ Stephen Kinzer, "Conflict in the Balkans: Belgrade Serbs Are Skeptical on Peace Move", New York Times, 3 May 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, May 1993.

2501/ Carnegie Endowment, Breakdown in the Balkans, A Chronicle of Events, January 1989 to May 1993.

2502/ Id.

2503/ UNPROFOR Sector Sarajevo Operational Report, May 1993, 1 June 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 25411.

2504/ "Serbs Bombard Sarajevo", Agence France Presse, 3 May 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, May 1993.

2505/ BiH Ministry of Public Health Bulletin, 10 May 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 026934.

2506/ "Plan Likely to Freeze Polarization of Groups, Sarajevans", Agence France Presse, 3 May 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, May 1993.

2507/ "Serbs Bombard Sarajevo", Agence France Presse, 3 May 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, May 1993.

Notes (continued)

2508/ Kurt Schork, "Hard-Liners, Fighting Dampen Peace Plan Optimism", Reuters, 3 May 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, May 1993.

2509/ Carnegie Endowment, Breakdown in the Balkans, A Chronicle of Events, January 1989 to May 1993.

2510/ UNPROFOR Sector Sarajevo Operational Report, May 1993, 1 June 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 25411.

2511/ "Serb Assault Reported on Eastern Town Ahead of Serb Meet", Agence France Presse, 4 May 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, May 1993; "Bosnian Serbs Deny Attacking Zepa, World Waits for Assembly Vote", Agence France Presse, 4 May 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, May 1993.

2512/ BiH Ministry of Public Health Bulletin, 10 May 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 026934.

2513/ "Serb Assault Reported on Eastern Town Ahead of Serb Meet", Agence France Presse, 4 May 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, May 1993; "Bosnian Serbs Deny Attacking Zepa, World Waits for Assembly Vote", Agence France Presse, 4 May 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, May 1993.

2514/ John Pomfret, "Bosnian Serbs Shell Isolated Muslim Town: U.N. Commander Shifts Policy, Says His Troops Will Use Force to Preserve Peace Plan", Washington Post, 5 May 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, May 1993.

2515/ R.W. Apple Jr., "Conflict in the Balkans: Prompt Military Reprisal Unlikely if Serbs Shun Pact, U.S. Aides Say", New York Times, 5 May 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, May 1993.

2516/ John Lancaster, "NATO Drafts Plan for GIs in Bosnia: Bulk of U.S. Force Based in Germany", Washington Post, 4 May 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, May 1993.

2517/ Irwin Arief, "U.S. Special Forces Already on Ground in Bosnia", Reuters, 4 May 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, May 1993.

2518/ UNPROFOR Sector Sarajevo Operational Report, May 1993, 1 June 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 25411.

2519/ "Canadian Minister Visits Sarajevo as Shells Crash In", Agence France Presse, 5 May 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, May 1993.

2520/ BiH Ministry of Public Health Bulletin, 10 May 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 026934.

2521/ "U.N. Observers Turned Back as Fighting Rages in Zepa", Agence France Presse, 5 May 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, May 1993.

2522/ "Sarajevo Shelled as Serb Parliamentarians Gather", Agence France Presse, 5 May 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, May 1993.

2523/ "Five Dead, 25 Injured in Sarajevo Fighting", Agence France Presse, 5 May 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, May 1993.

2524/ "Canadian Minister Visits Sarajevo as Shells Crash In", Agence France Presse, 5 May 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, May 1993.

Notes (continued)

2525/ "U.N. Observers Turned Back as Fighting Rages in Zepa", Agence France Presse, 5 May 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, May 1993.

2526/ Carnegie Endowment, Breakdown in the Balkans, A Chronicle of Events, January 1989 to May 1993.

2527/ "Canadian Minister Visits Sarajevo as Shells Crash In", Agence France Presse", 5 May 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, May 1993.

2528/ Michael R. Gordon, "Conflict in the Balkans: Military Planning; U.S. Sees Air Raids Curbing Guns but Not Ending War", New York Times, 7 May 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, May 1993.

2529/ Carnegie Endowment, Breakdown in the Balkans, A Chronicle of Events, January 1989 to May 1993.

2530/ UNPROFOR Sector Sarajevo Operational Report, May 1993, 1 June 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 25411.

2531/ David B. Ottaway, "Bosnia's Serbs to Put Peace Plan to Popular Vote: Delegates Rebuff Intense Pressure to Adopt Accord", Washington Post, 6 May 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, May 1993.

2532/ BiH Ministry of Public Health Bulletin, 10 May 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 026934.

2533/ "Air Strike Targets Could Limited Because of Civilian Factor", Agence France Presse, 6 May 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, May 1993.

2534/ Id.

2535/ David B. Ottaway, "Bosnia's Serbs to Put Peace Plan to Popular Vote: Delegates Rebuff Intense Pressure to Adopt Accord", Washington Post, 6 May 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, May 1993.

2536/ Id.

2537/ Stephen Kinzer, "Conflict in the Balkans: The Serbs: Belgrade Vows to Cut Bosnia Aid, Prompting Skepticism and Hope", New York Times, 7 May 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, May 1993.

2538/ "Sexual Coupling Up In Sarajevo--But Birth Rate Plummets: UNICEF", Agence France Presse, 6 May 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, May 1993.

2539/ J.T. Nguyen, "Security Council Declares Six Bosnian Towns 'Safe Areas'", 6 May 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, May 1993.

2540/ UNPROFOR Sector Sarajevo Operational Report, May 1993, 1 June 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 25411.

2541/ BiH Ministry of Public Health Bulletin, 10 May 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 026934.

2542/ John Pomfret, "Serbs Accept Truce, Says U.N. General: Observers to be Allowed in 2 Enclaves", Washington Post, 8 May 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, May 1993.

Notes (continued)

2543/ UNPROFOR Sector Sarajevo Operational Report, May 1993, 1 June 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 25411.

2544/ BiH Ministry of Public Health Bulletin, 10 May 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 026934.

2545/ "Sarajevo Airlift Stops Briefly After Shooting at Airport", Reuters, 8 May 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, May 1993.

2546/ Id.

2547/ John Pomfret, "Bosnians Approve Nationwide Truce: U.N. Gets Permission to Enter Muslim Town", Washington Post, 9 May 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, May 1993.

2548/ UNPROFOR Sector Sarajevo Operational Report, May 1993, 1 June 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 25411.

2549/ BiH Ministry of Public Health Bulletin, 10 May 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 026934-35.

2550/ Kurt Schork, "Bosnian Cease-Fire to Begin, Croat-Muslim Tensions Rise", Reuters, 9 May 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, May 1993.

2551/ Kurt Schork, "Croats and Muslims Battle as New Bosnia Truce Declared", Reuters, 9 May 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, May 1993.

2552/ Id.

2553/ Carnegie Endowment, Breakdown in the Balkans, A Chronicle of Events, January 1989 to May 1993.

2554/ Kurt Schork, "Croats and Muslims Battle as New Bosnia Truce Declared", Reuters, 9 May 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, May 1993.

2555/ "Battle Rages Between Croats and Muslims, Shattering Cease-Fire", IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, May 1993.

2556/ UNPROFOR HQ BH Command, Kiseljak, Weekly INFOSUM No. 28, 10 May 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 25503.

2557/ Materials submitted by the Government of BiH, IHRLI Doc. No. 027262.

2558/ "Battle Rages Between Croats and Muslims, Shattering Cease-Fire", IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, May 1993.

2559/ "Serb-Moslem Truce Reportedly Holding", Agence France Presse, 10 May 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, May 1993.

2560/ "Cease-Fire Declared Between Croats, Bosnian Government", United Press International, 10 May 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, May 1993.

2561/ Roger Cohen, "Europeans Reject U.S. Plan to Aid Bosnia and Halt Serbs", New York Times, 11 May 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, May 1993.

2562/ UNPROFOR Sector Sarajevo Operational Report, May 1993, 1 June

Notes (continued)

1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 25411.

2563/ Kurt Schork, "Bosnian Croats Deny 'Ethnic Cleansing' Charges", Reuters, 11 May 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, May 1993.

2564/ "Cease-Fire Holding Between Croats, Bosnian Government", 11 May 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, May 1993.

2565/ Kurt Schork, "Bosnian Croats Deny 'Ethnic Cleansing' Charges", Reuters, 11 May 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, May 1993.

2566/ "Cease-Fire Holding Between Croats, Bosnian Government", 11 May 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, May 1993.

2567/ Carnegie Endowment, Breakdown in the Balkans, A Chronicle of Events, January 1989 to May 1993.

2568/ Id.

2569/ "Overnight Fighting Reported Ahead of Mostar Cease-Fire", Reuters, 13 May 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, May 1993.

2570/ UNPROFOR Sector Sarajevo Operational Report, May 1993, 1 June 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 25411.

2571/ Carnegie Endowment, Breakdown in the Balkans, A Chronicle of Events, January 1989 to May 1993.

2572/ UNPROFOR Sector Sarajevo Operational Report, May 1993, 1 June 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 25411.

2573/ Kurt Schork, "Mostar Fighting Reported Ahead of Cease-Fire", Reuters, 13 May 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, May 1993.

2574/ "UNPROFOR Enters Mostar After Fierce Fighting", Agence France Presse, 13 May 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, May 1993.

2575/ John Pomfret, "Springtime Comes Even to Sarajevo: After 13-Month Siege, City Returns to Life", Washington Post, 15 May 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, May 1993.

2576/ Materials submitted by the Government of BiH, IHRLI Doc. No. 027005-09.

2577/ "Aid Pledged for Mostar as Tudjman Promises Visit", Agence France Presse, 14 May 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, May 1993.

2578/ John Pomfret, "Springtime Comes Even to Sarajevo: After 13-Month Siege, City Returns to Life", Washington Post, 15 May 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, May 1993.

2579/ Jovan Kovacic, "Serbian Deputies Meet on Bosnia's War", Reuters, 14 May 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, May 1993.

2580/ Stephen Kinzer, "Belgrade Meeting Backs Peace Plan", New York Times, 15 May 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, May 1993.

Notes (continued)

2581/ Jim Pomfret, "Springtime Comes Even to Sarajevo: After 13-Month Siege, City Returns to Life", Washington Post, 15 May 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, May 1993.

2582/ Carnegie Endowment, Breakdown in the Balkans, A Chronicle of Events, January 1989 to May 1993.

2583/ UNPROFOR Sector Sarajevo Operational Report, May 1993, 1 June 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 25411.

2584/ Materials submitted by the Government of BiH, IHRLI Doc. No. 027255-58.

2585/ "Muslims Claim They Destroyed Five Serb Tanks", Reuters, 15 May 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, May 1993.

2586/ David B. Ottaway, "Serbs Vote on Bosnian Peace Plan: Two-Day Referendum Begins Amid Signs of Broad Opposition", Washington Post, 16 May 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, May 1993.

2587/ UNPROFOR Sector Sarajevo Operational Report, May 1993, 1 June 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 25411.

2588/ John Pomfret, "Peace Plan Dead, Serb Leader Says: Karadzic Demands 3 States in Bosnia", Washington Post, 17 May 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, May 1993.

2589/ "Serb Shelling Reported in Croatia", Reuters, 17 May 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, May 1993.

2590/ UNPROFOR Sector Sarajevo Operational Report, May 1993, 1 June 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 25411.

2591/ UNPROFOR HQ BH Command, Kiseljak, Weekly INFOSUM No. 29, 17 May 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 25496.

2592/ BiH Ministry of Public Health Bulletin, 17 May 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 026936.

2593/ "Serb Shelling Reported in Croatia", Reuters, 17 May 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, May 1993.

2594/ Paul Holmes, "Bosnian Serbs Say U.N. Plan Dead, Own State a Reality", Reuters, 17 May 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, May 1993.

2595/ Carnegie Endowment, Breakdown in the Balkans, A Chronicle of Events, January 1989 to May 1993.

2596/ Id.

2597/ Id.

2598/ UNPROFOR Sector Sarajevo Operational Report, May 1993, 1 June 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 25411.

2599/ "Milosevic Meets with Kozyrev in Belgrade", Belgrade RTB Television Network in Serbo-Croatian, 18 May 1993, 1730 GMT, FBIS

Notes (continued)

#AU1805192493.

2600/ John Pomfret, "Bosnian Serb Demands Now Include Expelling Thousands of Muslims", Washington Post, 19 May 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, May 1993.

2601/ Id.

2602/ Materials submitted by the Government of BiH, IHRLI Doc. No. 026970-72.

2603/ Carnegie Endowment, Breakdown in the Balkans, A Chronicle of Events, January 1989 to May 1993.

2604/ Id.

2605/ UNPROFOR Sector Sarajevo Operational Report, May 1993, 1 June 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 25411.

2606/ UNPROFOR HQ BH Command, Kiseljak, Weekly INFOSUM No. 30, 24 May 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 25486.

2607/ Kurt Schork, "Serbs Retrieve Slain Sarajevo Lovers From No-Man's Land", Reuters, 25 May 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, May 1993.

2608/ John Pomfret, "Bosnian Serbs Eye New State: Assembly Declares Weekend Referendum a Resounding Success", Washington Post, 20 May 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, May 1993.

2609/ Carnegie Endowment, Breakdown in the Balkans, A Chronicle of Events, January 1989 to May 1993.

2610/ UNPROFOR Sector Sarajevo Operational Report, May 1993, 1 June 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 25411.

2611/ "Moslem Civilians Freed, as Mostar Reported Calmer", Agence France Presse, 20 May 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, May 1993.

2612/ Kurt Schork, "Bosnia Fighting Eases As Allies Mull Peace Moves", Reuters, 21 May 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, May 1993.

2613/ Dejan Anastasijevic, "Fighting Heats Up in Sarajevo", United Press International, 20 May 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, May 1993.

2614/ Id.

2615/ "War and Peace, By the Children of Sarajevo", Agence France Presse, 20 May 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, May 1993.

2616/ Carnegie Endowment, Breakdown in the Balkans, A Chronicle of Events, January 1989 to May 1993.

2617/ Id.

2618/ UNPROFOR Sector Sarajevo Operational Report, May 1993, 1 June 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 25411.

Notes (continued)

2619/ "Serbs Shell Northern Bosnian Towns", Agence France Presse, 21 May 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, May 1993.

2620/ "Three Said Killed in Sarajevo Shelling", Reuters, 22 May 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, May 1993.

2621/ Id.; Kurt Schork, "Yugoslavia Rejects Monitors, Sarajevo Shelling Picks Up", Reuters, 22 May 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, May 1993.

2622/ Kurt Schork, "Yugoslavia Rejects Monitors, Sarajevo Shelling Picks Up", Reuters, 22 May 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, May 1993.

2623/ Kurt Schork, "Life Returns to `Normal' in Ruins of Sarajevo", Reuters, 21 May 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, May 1993.

2624/ Carnegie Endowment, Breakdown in the Balkans, A Chronicle of Events, January 1989 to May 1993.

2625/ UNPROFOR Sector Sarajevo Operational Report, May 1993, 1 June 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 25411.

2626/ Kurt Schork, "Bosnia Government Says World Encourages Aggressor", Reuters, 22 May 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, May 1993.

2627/ Id.

2628/ Nesho Djuric, "Bosnian Deputy Prime Minister Wounded in Sarajevo Shelling", United Press International, 22 May 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, May 1992.

2629/ Kurt Schork, "Bosnia Government Says World Encourages Aggressor", Reuters, 22 May 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, May 1993.

2630/ "Sarajevo Relatively Quiet After Fierce Shelling", Reuters, 23 May 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, May 1993.

2631/ Daniel Williams, "U.S. Offers to Protect Forces in Bosnia Plan, Official Says", Washington Post, 22 May 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, May 1993.

2632/ UNPROFOR Sector Sarajevo Operational Report, May 1993, 1 June 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 25411.

2633/ BiH Ministry of Public Health Bulletin, 24 May 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 026938-39.

2634/ "Sarajevo Relatively Quiet after Fierce Shelling", Reuters, 23 May 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, May 1993.

2635/ John Pomfret, "Joint Plan On Balkans Denounced: Bosnian Muslims, U.S. Senators Decry Initiative", Washington Post, 24 May 1992, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, May 1993.

2636/ UNPROFOR Sector Sarajevo Operational Report, May 1993, 1 June 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 25411.

2637/ UNPROFOR HQ BH Command, Kiseljak, Weekly INFOSUM No. 30, 24 May

Notes (continued)

1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 25486.

2638/ BiH Ministry of Public Health Bulletin, 31 May 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 026940.

2639/ "Warring Bosnian Factions Fail to Agree on Sarajevo Safe Zone", Agence France Presse, 24 May 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, May 1993.

2640/ Carnegie Endowment, Breakdown in the Balkans, A Chronicle of Events, January 1989 to May 1993.

2641/ UNPROFOR Sector Sarajevo Operational Report, May 1993, 1 June 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 25411.

2642/ BiH Ministry of Public Health Bulletin, 31 May 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 026940.

2643/ "Five Killed in Maglac: UNPROFOR", Agence France Presse, 26 May 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, May 1993.

2644/ Carnegie Endowment, Breakdown in the Balkans, A Chronicle of Events, January 1989 to May 1993.

2645/ Kurt Schork, "Serbs Retrieve Slain Sarajevo Lovers From No-Man's Land", Reuters, 25 May 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, May 1993.

2646/ IHRLI, Chronology of the Negotiations for Peace in the Former Yugoslavia.

2647/ Carnegie Endowment, Breakdown in the Balkans, A Chronicle of Events, January 1989 to May 1993.

2648/ UNPROFOR HQ BH Command, Kiseljak, Weekly INFOSUM No. 31, 31 May 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 25471.

2649/ "Stoltenberg Visits Sarajevo, Faces Criticism", IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, May 1993.

2650/ BiH Ministry of Public Health Bulletin, 31 May 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 026940.

2651/ Chuck Sudetic, "Sarajevo Sets Conditions on Latest Peace Proposal", New York Times, 27 May 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, May 1993.

2652/ Carnegie Endowment, Breakdown in the Balkans, A Chronicle of Events, January 1989 to May 1993.

2653/ UNPROFOR HQ BH Command, Kiseljak, Weekly INFOSUM No. 31, 31 May 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 25471.

2654/ BiH Ministry of Public Health Bulletin, 31 May 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 026940.

2655/ "Fighting in Maglaj in Bosnia, Situation in Srebrenica Desperate", Reuters, 27 May 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, May 1993.

2656/ "Muslims and Serbs Fight Gunbattles in Sarajevo", Reuters, 27 May

Notes (continued)

1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, May 1993.

2657/ Kurt Schork, "Bosnia's Warring Parties Fight Fresh Duels", Reuters, 27 May 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, May 1993.

2658/ "Fighting in Maglaj in Bosnia, Situation in Srebrenica Desperate", Agence France Presse, 27 May 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, May 1993.

2659/ Paul Lewis, "U.N. Outlook Bleak for U.S.-Led Bosnia Plan", New York Times, 28 May 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, May 1993.

2660/ "Pace of Shelling Picks Up in Sarajevo: Peace Talks Postponed", Agence France Presse, 28 May 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, May 1993.

2661/ UNPROFOR HQ BH Command, Kiseljak, Weekly INFOSUM No. 31, 31 May 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 25471.

2662/ BiH Ministry of Public Health Bulletin, 31 May 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 026940.

2663/ "Pace of Shelling Picks Up in Sarajevo: Peace Talks Postponed", Agence France Presse, 28 May 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, May 1993.

2664/ Chuck Sudetic, "Bosnian Capital Under Siege As Fierce Fighting Continues", New York Times, 29 May 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, May 1993.

2665/ Id.

2666/ Carnegie Endowment, Breakdown in the Balkans, A Chronicle of Events, January 1989 to May 1993.

2667/ UNPROFOR HQ BH Command, Kiseljak, Weekly INFOSUM No. 31, 31 May 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 25471.

2668/ BiH Ministry of Public Health Bulletin, 31 May 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 026940.

2669/ "Heavy Attacks on Gorazde", Agence France Presse, 29 May 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, May 1993.

2670/ Kurt Schork, "Bosnian Serbs Press Offensive on Moslem-Held Gorazde", Reuters, 29 May 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, May 1993.

2671/ Kurt Schork, "Bosnian Serbs Boycott Sarajevo 'Safe Area' Talks", Reuters, 29 May 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, May 1993.

2672/ Chuck Sudetic, "Surge in Sarajevo Combat Kills 20 and Wounds 150", New York Times, 31 May 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, May 1993.

2673/ Id.

2674/ DeJan Anastasijevic, "Sarajevo Quiet, But Fighting Flares Elsewhere in Bosnia", United Press International, 31 May 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, May 1993.

2675/ Kurt Schork, "Flare-Up in Bosnia Fighting Kills 43, Wounds 200", Reuters, 31 May 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, May 1993.

Notes (continued)

2676/ UNPROFOR Sector Sarajevo Operational Report, May 1993, 1 June 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 25411.

2677/ Chuck Sudetic, "Surge in Sarajevo Combat Kills 20 and Wounds 150", New York Times, 31 May 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, May 1993.

2678/ "At Least 16 Dead in Shelling of Sarajevo", Agence France Presse, 30 May 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, May 1993.

2679/ "Sarajevo Calm Monday After Sunday's Shelling", Agence France Presse, 31 May 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, May 1993.

2680/ BiH Ministry of Public Health Bulletin, 31 May 1993, 1 June 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 026940.

2681/ Chuck Sudetic, "Surge in Sarajevo Combat Kills 20 and Wounds 150", New York Times, 31 May 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, May 1993.

2682/ Id.

2683/ Id.

2684/ Carnegie Endowment, Breakdown in the Balkans, A Chronicle of Events, January 1989 to May 1993.

2685/ UNPROFOR Sector Sarajevo Operational Report, May 1993, 1 June 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 25411.

2686/ UNPROFOR HQ BH Command, Kiseljak, Weekly INFOSUM No. 31, 31 May 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 25471.

2687/ UNPROFOR Sector Sarajevo Operational Report, May 1993, 1 June 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 25394.

2688/ Materials submitted by the Government of BiH, IHRLI Doc. No. 027318.

2689/ Materials submitted by the Government of BiH, IHRLI Doc. No. 027291-317.

2690/ BiH Ministry of Public Health Bulletin, 7 June 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 026942.

2691/ Kurt Schork, "Flare-Up in Bosnia Fighting Kills 43, Wounds 200", Reuters, 31 May 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, May 1993; "Karadzic Threatens To Take Besieged Bosnian Capital of Sarajevo", Agence France Presse, 31 May 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, May 1993.

2692/ Peter Humphrey, "Yugoslav President Ousted by Serb Nationalists", Reuters, 1 June 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, June 1993.

2693/ "Karadzic Threatens to Take Besieged Bosnian Capital of Sarajevo", Agence France Presse, 31 May 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, May 1993.

2694/ "Sarajevo Calm Monday After Sunday's Shelling", Agence France Presse, 31 May 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, May 1993.

Notes (continued)

2695/ Carnegie Endowment, Breakdown in the Balkans, A Chronicle of Events, January 1989 to May 1993.

2696/ Id.

2697/ BiH Ministry of Public Health Bulletin, 7 June 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 026942.

2698/ Chuck Sudetic, "Mortar Fire Kills 12 at Soccer Game in Bosnian Capital", New York Times, 2 June 1993, Sarajevo Source File, June 1993.

2699/ Peter Humphrey, "Yugoslav President Ousted by Serb Nationalists", Reuters, 1 June 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, June 1993.

2700/ BiH Ministry of Public Health Bulletin, 7 June 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 026942.

2701/ "Humanitarian Flights Suspended After French Legionnaires Shot", Agence France Presse, 2 June 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, June 1993.

2702/ IHRLI, Chronology of the Negotiations for Peace in the Former Yugoslavia.

2703/ Bernard Debusmann, "Milosevic Likened to Hitler: Serbs Attack Gorazde", Reuters, 2 June 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, June 1993.

2704/ "UNHCR to Continue to Aid Bosnia, Despite Killings: Spokeswoman", Agence France Presse, 2 June 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, June 1993.

2705/ BiH Ministry of Public Health Bulletin, 7 June 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 026942.

2706/ IHRLI, Chronology of the Negotiations for Peace in the Former Yugoslavia.

2707/ Kurt Schork, "Sarajevo Streets Ruled by Rogue Commander", 2 June 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, June 1993.

2708/ BiH Ministry of Public Health Bulletin, 7 June 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 026942.

2709/ IHRLI, Chronology of the Negotiations for Peace in the Former Yugoslavia.

2710/ J.T. Nguyen, "Security Council Votes on Using Air Power, Deploying Troops in Bosnia", United Press International, 4 June 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, June 1993.

2711/ BiH Ministry of Public Health Bulletin, 7 June 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 026942.

2712/ "Serbs Attack Gorazde, Moslems and Croats Fight in Travnik", Agence France Presse, 5 June 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, June 1993.

2713/ "Humanitarian Flights Resume Sunday", Agence France Presse, 6 June 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, June 1993.

Notes (continued)

2714/ BiH Ministry of Public Health Bulletin, 7 June 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 026942-43.

2715/ "Humanitarian Flights Resume Sunday", Agence France Presse, 6 June 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, June 1993.

2716/ "U.N. General Says Bosnians Holding Up Progress in Gorazde", Agence France Presse, 6 June 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, June 1993.

2717/ "Humanitarian Flights Resume Sunday", Agence France Presse, 6 June 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, June 1993; UNPROFOR Sector Sarajevo Operational Report, June 1993, 1 July 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 46801.

2718/ UNPROFOR HQ BH Command, Kiseljak, Weekly INFOSUM No. 31, 7 June 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 25463.

2719/ "Sporadic Sniper Fire in Sarajevo", Agence France Presse, 7 June 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, June 1993.

2720/ "Fire on Trebevic Hill Over Sarajevo", Agence France Presse, 7 June 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, June 1993.

2721/ Id.

2722/ "Sporadic Sniper Fire in Sarajevo", Agence France Presse, 7 June 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, June 1993.

2723/ "Fire on Trebevic Hill Over Sarajevo", Agence France Presse, 7 June 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, June 1993.

2724/ Id.

2725/ Id.

2726/ "Bosnian Government Agrees to Safe Haven, But Sets Conditions", Agence France Presse, 7 June 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, June 1993.

2727/ "One Thousand Bosnian Croats From Travnik Surrender to Serbs", Agence France Presse, 8 June 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, June 1993.

2728/ IHRLI, Chronology of the Negotiations for Peace in the Former Yugoslavia.

2729/ "Moslem Leader Calls Ceasefire After More Clashes Around Travnik", Agence France Presse, 9 June 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, June 1993.

2730/ Id.

2731/ IHRLI, Chronology of the Negotiations for Peace in the Former Yugoslavia.

2732/ John Fullerton, "Croats Attack Muslim Convoy as Bosnia War Rages On", Reuters, 10 June 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, June 1993.

2733/ Id.

2734/ "Attack on Convoy Was `Orchestrated Affair'", Agence France

Notes (continued)

Presse, 11 June 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, June 1993.

2735/ Id.

2736/ Id.

2737/ "Bosnia Army Continues Attack in Central Bosnia", Agence France Presse, 11 June 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, June 1993; "Croats Attack Muslim Convoy as Bosnia War Rages On", Reuters, 10 June 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, June 1993.

2738/ John Fullerton, "Croats Attack Muslim Convoy as Bosnia War Rages On", Reuters, 10 June 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, June 1993.

2739/ Id.

2740/ "Bosnian Army Continues Attack in Central Bosnia", Agence France Presse, 11 June 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, June 1993.

2741/ "Iranian Diplomat Killed in Bosnia", Agence France Presse, 11 June 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, June 1993.

2742/ "Bosnian Army Continues Attack in Central Bosnia", Agence France Presse, 11 June 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, June 1993.

2743/ "Iranian Diplomat Killed in Bosnia", Agence France Presse, 11 June 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, June 1993.

2744/ "Bosnia Steps Up Pressure Over Gorazde", Agence France Presse, 12 June 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, June 1993.

2745/ John Fullerton, "Shells Pound Sarajevo After U.N. Pull-Out Warning", Reuters, 12 June 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, June 1993.

2746/ Id.

2747/ "Shell Kills Eight in Sarajevo, U.N. Soldier Killed in Mostar", Agence France Presse, 12 June 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, June 1993.

2748/ "Serbian Shell Kills Eight Funeral Mourners", United Press International, 12 June 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, June 1993.

2749/ John Fullerton, "Shells Pound Sarajevo After U.N. Pull-Out Warning", Reuters, 12 June 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, June 1993.

2750/ "Serbian Artillery Kills Bosnian Civilians", United Press International, 13 June 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, June 1993.

2751/ "Sarajevo Airport Closed as Situation Deteriorates in Bosnia", Agence France Presse, 13 June 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, June 1993.

2752/ Giles Elgood, "Scores Die in Bosnia, Government Wants Croat Truce", Reuters, 13 June 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, June 1993.

2753/ "Serbian Artillery Kills Bosnian Civilians", United Press International, 13 June 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, June 1993.

Notes (continued)

2754/ "Serbs Trying to Penetrate Sarajevo: Bosnian Colonel", Agence France Presse, 13 June 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, June 1993.

2755/ Id.

2756/ "Serbian Artillery Kills Bosnian Civilians", United Press International, 13 June 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, June 1993.

2757/ "Serbs Trying to Penetrate Sarajevo: Bosnian Colonel", Agence France Presse, 13 June 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, June 1993.

2758/ "Sarajevo Airport Closed as Situation Deteriorates in Bosnia", Agence France Presse, 13 June 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, June 1993.

2759/ Giles Elgood, "Scores Die in Bosnia, Government Wants Croat Truce", Reuters, 13 June 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, June 1993.

2760/ Id.

2761/ BiH Ministry of Public Health Bulletin, 14 June 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 026944.

2762/ UNPROFOR HQ BH Command, Kiseljak, Weekly INFOSUM No. 33, 14 June 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 25454.

2763/ Giles Elgood, "Gorazde Muslims Slow Serb Advance", Reuters, 14 June 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, June 1993.

2764/ DeJan Anastasijevic, "Ambassador Warns Muslim 'Safe Area' Near Falling", United Press International, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, June 1993; "Giles Elgood, 'Serbs Blockade Sarajevo Airport'", Reuters, 14 June 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, June 1993.

2765/ "NATO Planes Flying Over Besieged Eastern Enclave of Gorazde", Agence France Presse, 14 June 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, June 1993.

2766/ "Fighting Rages Throughout Bosnia Prior to Crucial Peace Talks", Agence France Presse, 14 June 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, June 1993.

2767/ "Gorazde Battle Still Raging", Agence France Presse, 15 June 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, June 1993.

2768/ Id.

2769/ Giles Elgood, "Serbs Press Onslaught on Gorazde Prior to Army Talks", Reuters, 15 June 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, June 1993.

2770/ "Gorazde Battle Still Raging", Agence France Presse, 15 June 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, June 1993.

2771/ Nesho Djuric, "Bosnian Town Pleads Amid More Talks", United Press International, 15 June 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, June 1993.

2772/ Giles Elgood, "Bosnia's Warring Factions Agree on New Truce", Reuters, 15 June 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, June 1993.

2773/ "Bosnian Army Overruns Croats", Agence France Presse, 16 June

Notes (continued)

1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, June 1993.

2774/ "Shelling of Gorazde Continues--Sarajevo Radio", Reuters, 16 June 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, June 1993.

2775/ Giles Elgood "Bosnia Clashes Continue as Peace Efforts Gear Up", Reuters, 16 June 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, June 1993.

2776/ "Bosnian Army Overruns Croats", Agence France Presse, 16 June 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo File, June 1993.

2777/ Giles Elgood, "Bosnia Clashes Continue as Peace Efforts Gear Up", Reuters, 16 June 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, June 1993.

2778/ "15,000 Croat Refugees Flee on Foot from Muslim Attacks", Agence France Presse, 17 June 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, June 1993.

2779/ "U.N Observers Wave Magic Wand in Besieged Gorazde", Reuters, 18 June 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, June 1993.

2780/ "Owen Criticizes Bosnian President", Agence France Presse, 17 June 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, June 1993.

2781/ IHRLI, Chronology of the Negotiations for Peace in the Former Yugoslavia.

2782/ UNPROFOR HQ BH Command, Kiseljak, Weekly INFOSUM No. 34, 21 June 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 25445.

2783/ "Sporadic Fighting Marks the Latest Bosnia Cease-Fire", United Press International, 18 June 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, June 1993.

2784/ "People in Sarajevo Unhappy About Latest Geneva Plan", Agence France Presse, 18 June 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, June 1993.

2785/ IHRLI, Chronology of the Negotiations for Peace in the Former Yugoslavia.

2786/ Giles Elgood "Bosnian Rivals Fight On, Mocking Truce", Reuters, 19 June 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, June 1993.

2787/ "U.N Peacekeeper Wounded in Gorazde", United Press International, 19 June 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, June 1993.

2788/ "Moslems Threaten to Gas Serbs, Though the Ceasefire Largely Holds", Agence France Presse, 19 June 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, June 1993.

2789/ "Bosnia's Ceasefire Holding, but Aid to Gorazde Blocked", Agence France Presse, 19 June 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, June 1993.

2790/ Giles Elgood "Bosnian Rivals Fight On, Mocking Truce", Reuters, 19 June 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, June 1993.

2791/ "Mortar Wounds Five in Sarajevo", Agence France Presse, 20 June 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, June 1993.

Notes (continued)

2792/ UNPROFOR HQ BH Command, Kiseljak, Weekly INFOSUM No. 34, 21 June 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 25445.

2793/ BiH Ministry of Public Health Bulletin, 21 June 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 026946.

2794/ "17 Wounded as Sarajevans Venture Out into the Summer Sun", Agence France Presse, 21 June 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, June 1993.

2795/ BiH Ministry of Public Health Bulletin, 21 June 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 026946.

2796/ Giles Elgood "Serbs Block Food Convoy on Way to Gorazde", 21 June 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, June 1993.

2797/ IHRLI, Chronology of the Negotiations for Peace in the Former Yugoslavia.

2798/ Giles Elgood, "Talks on Partitioning Bosnia Set to Start", Reuters, 23 June 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, June 1993.

2799/ IHRLI, Chronology of the Negotiations for Peace in the Former Yugoslavia.

2800/ "Sarajevo Suburbs Shelled", Reuters, 24 June 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, June 1993.

2801/ IHRLI, Chronology of the Negotiations for Peace in the Former Yugoslavia.

2802/ Giles Elgood, "Bosnian Rivals Cleanse Territories as Leaders Talk", Reuters, 24 June 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, June 1993.

2803/ "Mortar Bomb Explodes at Sarajevo Airport", Reuters, 25 June 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, June 1993.

2804/ UNPROFOR HQ BH Command, Kiseljak, Weekly INFOSUM No. 35, 18 June 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 25426.

2805/ Id.

2806/ BiH Ministry of Public Health Bulletin, 28 June 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 026948-49.

2807/ IHRLI, Chronology of the Negotiations for Peace in the Former Yugoslavia.

2808/ UNPROFOR Sector Sarajevo Operational Report, June 1993, 1 July 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 46801.

2809/ Linnet Meyers, "In Hungry Sarajevo, Hunger Strike Begins", Chicago Tribune, 1 July 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, July 1993.

2810/ Id.

2811/ IHRLI, Chronology of the Negotiations for Peace in the Former Yugoslavia.

Notes (continued)

2812/ "Bosnian Muslims Advance On Croats Around Mostar", Reuters, 1 July 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, July 1993.

2813/ Nesho Djuric, "Serbs Shell Muslim City, Forcing U.N. Officials To Take Cover", United Press International, 1 July 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, July 1993.

2814/ "Fighting Rages In Central Bosnia", Reuters, 2 July 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, July 1993.

2815/ "Relief Task Hindered In Bosnia-Hercegovina, U.N. Agency Says", United Press International, 2 July 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, July 1993.

2816/ "War Losses And Famine Up Pressure On Bosnian Leaders To Bid For Peace", Agence France Presse, 2 July 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, July 1993.

2817/ UNPROFOR HQ BH Command, Kiseljak, Weekly INFOSUM No. 36, 5 July 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 25419.

2818/ Kurt Schork, "Clashes Erupt In Sarajevo And Central Bosnia", Reuters, 3 July 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, July 1993.

2819/ "Seven Killed As Sarajevo Comes Under Heavy Attack", Agence France Presse, 3 July 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, July 1993.

2820/ "Sarajevo Erupts With Dawn Mortar And Rocket Fire", Reuters, 3 July 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, July 1993; Kurt Schork, "Clashes Erupt In Sarajevo And Central Bosnia", Reuters, 3 July 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, July 1993.

2821/ "Seven Killed As Sarajevo Comes Under Heavy Attack", Agence France Presse, 3 July 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, July 1993.

2822/ Kurt Schork, "Clashes Erupt In Sarajevo And Central Bosnia", Reuters, 3 July 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, July 1993.

2823/ John F. Burns, "Renegades Help Bosnia By Helping Themselves", New York Times, 5 July 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, July 1993; "Maverick Bosnia Army Commanders In Standoff With Police", Reuters, 3 July 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, July 1993.

2824/ "Blockade Ends At U.N. Headquarters, Fighting Rages In Maglaj", Agence France Presse, 5 July 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, July 1993.

2825/ "Serb and Croat Forces Attack Maglaj", Agence France Presse, 4 July 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, July 1993.

2826/ "U.N. Headquarters Under Blockade, Maglaj Set To Fall", Agence France Presse, 4 July 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, July 1993.

2827/ John F. Burns, "In Summer, Sarajevo in Worst Shape Since Winter", New York Times, 8 July 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, July 1993.

2828/ Kurt Schork, "Heavy Casualties In Bosnian Fighting", Reuters, 4 July 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, July 1993.

Notes (continued)

2829/ John F. Burns, "In Summer, Sarajevo in Worst Shape Since Winter", New York Times, July 8, 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, July 1993.

2830/ Id.

2831/ UNPROFOR HQ BH Command, Kiseljak, Weekly INFOSUM No. 36, 5 July 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 25419.

2832/ "New U.N. Commanders Make It To Sarajevo Despite Fierce Fighting", Agence France Presse, 5 July 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, July 1993.

2833/ "Bosnians Agree To Lift Blockade Of U.N. Base", Agence France Presse, 5 July 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, July 1993.

2834/ Kurt Schork, "U.N. Generals To Mediate In Sarajevo Talks", Reuters, 6 July 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, July 1993.

2835/ BiH Ministry of Public Health Bulletin, 5 July 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 46907.

2836/ Kurt Schork, "Bosnian Croats Lift Blockade Of U.N. Headquarters", Reuters, 5 July 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, July 1993.

2837/ "New U.N. Commanders Make It To Sarajevo Despite Fierce Fighting", Agence France Presse, 5 July 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, July 1993.

2838/ UNPROFOR HQ BH Command, Kiseljak, Weekly INFOSUM No. 36, 5 July 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 25419.

2839/ "Sarajevo Suburb Shelled Before Cease-Fire Talks", Reuters, 6 July 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, July 1993.

2840/ Id.

2841/ "Sarajevo Suburb Shelled Before Cease-Fire Talks", Reuters, 6 July 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, July 1993.

2842/ "Serb, Croat Generals Refuse To Meet New U.N. Commander", Agence France Presse, 6 July 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, July 1993.

2843/ IHRLI, Chronology of the Negotiations for Peace in the Former Yugoslavia.

2844/ "Serb, Croat Generals Refuse To Meet New U.N. Commander", Agence France Presse, 6 July 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, July 1993.

2845/ Linnet Myers, "Abortion Soaring Amid Bosnia War", Chicago Tribune, 6 July 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, July 1993.

2846/ "War Crimes Probe Finds `Considerable Evidence'", Agence France Presse, 6 July 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, July 1993.

2847/ "Sarajevo Suburb Shelled Before Cease-Fire Talks", Reuters, 6 July 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, July 1993.

2848/ Kurt Schork, "U.N. Urges Muslims To Negotiate On Partition Plan", Reuters, 8 July 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, July 1993.

Notes (continued)

2849/ Kurt Schork, "Fighting Rages As Muslims Face Growing Pressure", Reuters, 7 July 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, July 1993.

2850/ Kurt Schork, "U.N. Urges Muslims To Negotiate On Partition Plan", Reuters, 8 July 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, July 1993.

2851/ Id.

2852/ Id.

2853/ IHRLI, Chronology of the Negotiations for Peace in the Former Yugoslavia.

2854/ "7,000 Moslem Refugees From Zepce Held By Croats, Radio Reports", Agence France Presse, 8 July 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, July 1993.

2855/ Kurt Schork, "Bosnian Presidency Prepares To Reject Partition", Reuters, 10 July 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, July 1993.

2856/ "Bosnian Serb, Croat Strongmen Snub U.N. Army Chiefs Again", Agence France Presse, 9 July 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source file, July 1993.

2857/ Id.

2858/ Id.

2859/ "Battles Rage In Bosnia-Hercegovina", United Press International, 9 July 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, July 1993.

2860/ Id.

2861/ ICFY, UNPROFOR Operational Update, 27 July 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 26584.

2862/ John F. Burns, "French Troops Arrive to Protect Bosnia: Serbs Shoot 1", New York Times, 11 July 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, July 1993.

2863/ ICFY, UNPROFOR Operational Update, 27 July 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 26584.

2864/ John F. Burns, "French Troops Arrive to Protect Bosnia: Serbs Shoot 1", New York Times, 11 July 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, July 1993.

2865/ Nesho Djuric, "Typhoid and Dysentery Find Sarajevo", United Press International, 10 July 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, July 1993.

2866/ John F. Burns, "French Troops Arrive to Protect Bosnia; Serbs Shoot 1", New York Times, 11 July 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, July 1993.

2867/ Nesho Djuric, "Typhoid and Dysentery Find Sarajevo", United Press International, 10 July 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, July 1993.

2868/ ICFY, UNPROFOR Operational Update, 27 July 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 26584.

2869/ IHRLI, Chronology of the Negotiations for Peace in the Former Yugoslavia.

Notes (continued)

2870/ "French Troops Arrive to Protect Bosnia: Serbs Shoot 1", New York Times, 11 July 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, July 1993.

2871/ Dejan Anastasijevic, United Press International, 11 July 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, July 1993.

2872/ ICFY, UNPROFOR Operational Update for 12 July 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 26624.

2873/ BiH Ministry of Public Health Bulletin, 12 July 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 46905.

2874/ "Sarajevans Hit at Water Tap: 12 Die", Chicago Tribune, 13 July 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, July 1993; "Twelve Dead, 15 Wounded In Mortar Attack", Agence France Presse, 12 July 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, July 1993; John F. Burns, "Sarajevo Attack Heightens Tension Over Peace Talks", New York Times, 13 July 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, July 1993.

2875/ Mark Heinrich, "Serb Mortar Bomb Kills 12 Wounds 15 In Sarajevo Queue", Reuters, 12 July 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, July 1993.

2876/ John F. Burns, "Sarajevo Attack Heightens Tension Over Peace Talks", New York Times, 13 July 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, July 1993.

2877/ "Sarajevans Hit at Water Tap: 12 Die", Chicago Tribune, 13 July 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, July 1993.

2878/ Id.; John F. Burns, "Sarajevo Attack Heightens Tension Over Peace Talks", New York Times, 13 July 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, July 1993.

2879/ John F. Burns, "Sarajevo Attack Heightens Tension Over Peace Talks", New York Times, 13 July 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, July 1993.

2880/ "Sarajevans Hit at Water Tap: 12 Die", Chicago Tribune, 13 July 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, July 1993.

2881/ ICFY, UNPROFOR Operational Update for 13 July 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 29627.

2882/ Id.

2883/ "Electricity, Water Could Be Restored In Sarajevo By Week's End", Agence France Presse, 13 July 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, July 1993.

2884/ Dejan Anastasijevic, "Serbian Women Block U.N. Aid Convoy", United Press International, 13 July 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, July 1993.

2885/ "Serbs Launch Offensive In Northern Bosnia And Shell Sarajevo", Agence France Presse, 15 July 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, July 1993; ICFY, UNPROFOR Operational Update for 14 July 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 29619.

2886/ "Serbs Launch Offensive In Northern Bosnia And Shell Sarajevo", Agence France Presse, 15 July 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, July 1993; ICFY, UNPROFOR Operational Update for 14 July 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 29619.

2887/ "Besieging Serbs Restore Water to Part of Sarajevo", Chicago Tribune, 15 July 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, July 1993.

Notes (continued)

- 2888/ Id.
- 2889/ ICFY, UNPROFOR Operational Update for 15 July 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 29604.
- 2890/ Aidan Hartley, "Rebel Serbs Shell Croatian Town, U.N. Warns Of New War", Reuters, 15 July 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, July 1993.
- 2891/ Id.
- 2892/ ICFY, UNPROFOR Operational Update for 15 July 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 29604.
- 2893/ Aidan Hartley, "Fierce Fighting In Bosnia, Shellfire In Croatia", Reuters, 15 July 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, July 1993.
- 2894/ "Sarajevo is Finally Allowed Fuel", Chicago Tribune, 16 July 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, July 1993; Dejan Anastasijevic, "Muslim And Croats Engage In Heavy Fighting", United Press International, 15 July 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, July 1992; John F. Burns, "Sarajevo Getting Supplies of Fuel", New York Times, 16 July 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, July 1993.
- 2895/ "Sarajevo Is Finally Allowed Fuel", Chicago Tribune, 16 July 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, July 1993.
- 2896/ "Bosnian Presidency Meets Ahead Of New Round Of Geneva Talks", Agence France Presse, 16 July 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, July 1993.
- 2897/ Stephen Weeks, "New Round Of Bosnian Peace Talks Announced", Reuters, 16 July 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, July 1993.
- 2898/ "Serbs, Croats Target Bosnians As Serb, Bosnian Army Chiefs Prepare To Meet", Agence France Presse, 16 July 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, July 1993.
- 2899/ "Serbs Launch Big Offensive On Sarajevo", Agence France Presse, 17 July 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, July 1993.
- 2900/ Nesho Djuric, "Shells Fly As Serbian, Croats Open Talks", United Press International, 17 July 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, July 1993.
- 2901/ Mark Heinrich, "Bosnia Presidency Agrees To Geneva Talks But Split On Terms", Reuters, 17 July 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, July 1993.
- 2902/ "Serbs, Croats Target Bosnians As Serb, Bosnian Army Chiefs Prepare To Meet", Agence France Presse, 16 July 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, July 1993.
- 2903/ Aidan Hartley, "Croatia Refuses To Budge Over Bridge", Reuters, 16 July 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, July 1993.
- 2904/ "Serb Forces Mount Attack Outside Sarajevo", Reuters, 18 July 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, July 1993.
- 2905/ "Serbs Continue Toward Mount Igman", Agence France Presse, 18 July 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, July 1993.

Notes (continued)

2906/ ICFY, UNPROFOR Operational Update for 18 July 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 29585.

2907/ Id.

2908/ Mark Heinrich, "U.N. Blasts Croat 'Inhumanity' For Choking Aid Convoys", Reuters, 18 July 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, July 1993.

2909/ "Serb Forces Mount Attack Outside Sarajevo", Reuters, 18 July 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, July 1993.

2910/ "Serbs Continue Toward Mount Igman", Agence France Presse, 18 July 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, July 1993.

2911/ UNCIVPOL Report for 18 July 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 29569.

2912/ "Fighting Rages Near Sarajevo, Army Chief Sacked", Reuters, 19 July 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, July 1993.

2913/ ICFY, UNPROFOR Operational Update for 18 July 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 29585.

2914/ Stephen Weeks, "Shelling Reported Near Disputed Croatian Bridge", Reuters, 18 July 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, July 1993.

2915/ ICFY, UNPROFOR Operational Update for 19 July 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 29566.

2916/ Id.

2917/ BiH Ministry of Public Health Bulletin, 19 July 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 46903.

2918/ "U.N. Forces Discover 500 Abandoned In Hospitals", 19 July 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, July 1993

2919/ Id.

2920/ ICFY, UNPROFOR Operational Update for 20 July 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 29540.

2921/ "Bosnian President Requests UN Help, Serbs Raise Stakes, Attack Sarajevo", Chicago Tribune, 21 July 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, July 1993.

2922/ UNCIVPOL Report for 19 July 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 29542.

2923/ "Bosnian President Requests UN Help, Serbs Raise Stakes, Attack Sarajevo", Chicago Tribune, 21 July 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, July 1993.

2924/ "New Shells Rain Down On Sarajevo", Chicago Tribune, 22 July 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, July 1993.

2925/ Id.

Notes (continued)

2926/ Terry Atlas, "U.S. Spurns Bosnian Plea For Military Aid, Huge Refugee Crisis Looms", Chicago Tribune, 22 July 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, July 1993.

2927/ Id.

2928/ Id.

2929/ Id.

2930/ John F. Burns, "Serbs' Attack On Sarajevo Keeps Bosnians From Talks", New York Times, 23 July 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, July 1993.

2931/ Associated Press, "Sarajevo Attack Leaves 4 Dead, Forces Delay in Geneva Talks", Chicago Tribune, 23 July 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, 23 July 1993.

2932/ John F. Burns, "Serbs' Attack On Sarajevo Keeps Bosnians From Talks", New York Times, 23 July 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, July 1993.

2933/ ICFY, UNPROFOR Operational Update for 22 July 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 29523.

2934/ Id.; "Shelling Hints Serbs Have Designs On West Sarajevo", Chicago Tribune, 24 July 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, July 1993.

2935/ ICFY, UNPROFOR Operational Update for 22 July 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 29523.

2936/ Associated Press, "Sarajevo Attack Leaves 4 Dead, Forces Delay in Geneva Talks", Chicago Tribune, 23 July 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, 23 July 1993.

2937/ Id.

2938/ Id.

2939/ Id.

2940/ "Shelling Hints Serbs Have Designs On West Sarajevo", Chicago Tribune, 24 July 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, July 1993.

2941/ ICFY, UNPROFOR Operational Update for 22 July 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 29523; "Shelling Hints Serbs Have Designs On West Sarajevo", Chicago Tribune, 24 July 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, July 1993.

2942/ "Shelling Hints Serbs Have Designs On West Sarajevo", Chicago Tribune, 24 July 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, July 1993.

2943/ "Serb Gunners Pouring Fire Into The Heart Of Sarajevo", Chicago Tribune, 25 July 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, July 1993.

2944/ ICFY, UNPROFOR Operational Update for 24 July 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 29519.

2945/ "Serb Gunners Pouring Fire Into The Heart Of Sarajevo", Chicago Tribune, 25 July 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, July 1993.

Notes (continued)

2946/ "Serbs Shatter Truce, Attack Outpost of UN", Chicago Tribune, 26 July 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, July 1993.

2947/ ICFY, UNPROFOR Operational Update for 24 July 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 29499.

2948/ "Serbs Shatter Truce, Attack Outpost Of U.N.", Chicago Tribune, 26 July 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, July 1993.

2949/ Id.

2950/ Id.

2951/ Id.

2952/ ICFY, UNPROFOR Operational Update for 26 July 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 29499.

2953/ "Bosnia Mediators Seek A Bigger Muslim Enclave", Chicago Tribune, 27 July 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, July 1993.

2954/ Id.

2955/ ICFY, UNPROFOR Operational Update for 27 July 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 29495.

2956/ Id.

2957/ Mitchell Locin and Thom Shanker, "U.S. Jets May Aid UN, Clinton Plans Air Cover Over Bosnia", Chicago Tribune, 29 July 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, July 1993.

2958/ Paul Holmes, "Heavy Artillery Pounds Sarajevo", Reuters, 27 July 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, July 1993.

2959/ "Serbs Push Into Edge Of Sarajevo", Chicago Tribune, 28 July 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, July 1993.

2960/ Id.

2961/ ICFY, UNPROFOR Operational Update for 27 July 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 29495.

2962/ "Shelling Near U.N. Sarajevo Base", Agence France Presse, 27 July 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, July 1993.

2963/ "French U.N. Troops Under Fire Again in Sarajevo", Reuters, 27 July 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, July 1993.

2964/ "Shelling Near U.N. Sarajevo Base", Agence France Presse, 27 July 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, July 1993.

2965/ ICFY, UNPROFOR Operational Update for 27 July 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 29495.

2966/ "Serbs Push Into Edge Of Sarajevo", Chicago Tribune, 28 July 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, July 1993.

Notes (continued)

2967/ "U.S. Would Consider Sending Warplanes to Bosnia", Agence France Presse, 28 July 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, July 1993.

2968/ Mitchell Locin and Thom Shanker, "U.S. Jets May Aid UN, Clinton Plans Air Cover Over Bosnia", Chicago Tribune, 29 July 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, July 1993.

2969/ Paul Holmes, "U.N. Tries to Confirm Key Serb Gains Near Sarajevo", Reuters, 29 July 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, July 1993.

2970/ Mitchell Locin and Thom Shanker, "U.S. Jets May Aid UN, Clinton Plans Air Cover Over Bosnia", Chicago Tribune, 29 July 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, July 1993.

2971/ Id.

2972/ Paul Holmes, "Bosnia Fighting Continues Despite Truce Accord", Reuters, 29 July 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, July 1993.

2973/ Paul Holmes, "Neither Peace Talks nor Western Threats Halt Fighting", Reuters, 29 July 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, July 1993.

2974/ UNPROFOR Sector Sarajevo, Sector Engineer Monthly Report, July 1993, 29 July 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 46793.

2975/ Paul Holmes, "Bosnia Fighting Continues Despite Truce Accord", Reuters, 29 July 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, July 1993.

2976/ Paul Holmes, "Neither Peace Talks Nor Western Threats Halt Fighting", Reuters, 29 July 1993, IHRLI Source File, July 1993.

2977/ Tribune Wires, "Muslims OK Divided Bosnia", Chicago Tribune, 31 July 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, July 1993.

2978/ "Allies Ready For Air Action in Yugoslavia", Reuters, 29 July 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, July 1993.

2979/ "U.N. to Fly Seven Sarajevo Wounded to Italy", Reuters, 29 July 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, July 1993.

2980/ "Bosnian Constitutional Agreement Reached, New Truce Signed", Agence France Presse, July 30, 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, July 1993.

2981/ Id.

2982/ Id.

2983/ Tribune Wires, "Muslims OK Divided Bosnia", Chicago Tribune, 31 July 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, July 1993.

2984/ Paul Holmes, "Bosnia Shelling Kills Eight, Wounds 47", Reuters, 30 July 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, July 1993.

2985/ Tribune Wires, "Muslims OK Divided Bosnia", Chicago Tribune, 31 July 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, July 1993.

2986/ Id.

Notes (continued)

2987/ Id.

2988/ Id.

2989/ "Security Council Urges Readiness for Bosnian Air Strikes", United Press International, 30 July 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, July 1993.

2990/ John F. Burns, "Bosnians Taking No Joy From The Peace Agreement In Geneva", New York Times, 1 August 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, August 1993.

2991/ Id.

2992/ "Bosnia Political, Military Leaders Split On Peace Pact", Chicago Tribune, 1 August 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, August 1993.

2993/ Id.

2994/ IHRLI, Chronology of the Negotiations for Peace in the Former Yugoslavia.

2995/ Mitchell Locin, "Clinton Prods Allies On Bosnia Air Shield", Chicago Tribune, 1 August 1993, IHRLI Source File, August 1993.

2996/ "At a Glance in Balkans Conflict", Reuters, 1 August 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, August 1993.

2997/ BiH Ministry of Public Health Bulletin, 2 August 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 46899.

2998/ "Bosnian President Delays Peace Talks", Agence France Presse, 2 August 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, August 1993.

2999/ "Bosnians Report Serb Assault on Sarajevo Mountain", Reuters, 2 August 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, August 1993.

3000/ "Serbs Report Capture of Strategic Mountain Peak", Reuters, 1 August 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, August 1993.

3001/ Nesho Djuric, "Serbian Offensive on Brcko Enters Twelfth Day", United Press International, 1 August 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, August 1993.

3002/ Id.

3003/ "Serbs Report Capture of Strategic Mountain Peak", Reuters, 1 August 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, August 1993.

3004/ IHRLI, Chronology of the Negotiations for Peace in the Former Yugoslavia.

3005/ "Serbs Report Capture of Strategic Mountain Peak", Reuters, 1 August 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, August 1993.

3006/ Paul Holmes, "Heavy Fighting in Bosnia, Flareup in Croatia", Reuters, 1 August 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, August 1993.

Notes (continued)

3007/ "At a Glance in Balkans Conflict", Reuters, 1 August 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, August 1993.

3008/ "U.S. to Present Sarajevo Strike Plan at NATO Meeting", Agence France Presse, 1 August 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, August 1993.

3009/ "Gore Sees Movement Toward Agreement on Bosnia", Reuters, 1 August 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, August 1993.

3010/ "At a Glance in Balkans Conflict", Reuters, 1 August 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, August 1993.

3011/ "Spanish Minister Calls for Air Strikes in Bosnia", Reuters, 1 August 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, August 1993.

3012/ "Clinton Believes Allies Can Reach Accord on Bosnia", United Press International, 2 August 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, August 1993.

3013/ Paul Holmes, "Muslim, Serb Offensives Threaten Peace Talks", Reuters, 2 August 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, August 1993.

3014/ "Clinton Believes Allies Can Reach Accord on Bosnia", United Press International, 2 August 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, August 1993.

3015/ Paul Holmes, "Muslim, Serb Offensives Threaten Peace Talks", Reuters, 2 August 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, August 1993.

3016/ Internal Document, Weekly Information on Former Yugoslavia 2-9 August 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 34559.

3017/ "Bosnian President Delays Peace Talks", Agence France Presse, 2 August 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, August 1993.

3018/ Bill Lamp, United Press International, 2 August 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, August 1993.

3019/ "NATO Officials Meet on U.S. Plan for Air Strikes Against Serbs", Agence France Presse, 2 August 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, August 1993.

3020/ Bill Lamp, United Press International, 2 August 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, August 1993.

3021/ "NATO Officials Meet on U.S. Plan for Air Strikes Against Serbs", Agence France Presse, 2 August 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, August 1993.

3022/ Bill Lamp, United Press International, 2 August 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, August 1993.

3023/ "UN Force Opposed to American Proposal to Strike Against Serbs", 2 August 1993, Agence France Presse, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, August 1993.

3024/ Dejan Anastasijevic, "Fighting in Bosnia Rages On", United Press International, 3 August 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, August 1993.

3025/ John F. Burns, "Dawn Brings a Ray of Hope to a Newly Silent Sarajevo", New York Times, 4 August 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, August 1993.

Notes (continued)

3026/ Dejan Anastasijevic, "Fighting in Bosnia Rages On", United Press International, 3 August 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, August 1993.

3027/ "Efforts Underway to Get Stalled Bosnian Peace Talks Resumed", United Press International, 3 August 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, August 1993.

3028/ "Efforts Under Way to Jump-Start Stalled Bosnian Peace Talks", United Press International, 3 August 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, August 1993.

3029/ "U.S. Welcomes Allies' Support for Proposed Airstrikes in Bosnia", Agence France Presse, 3 August 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, August 1993.

3030/ "Clinton Hails NATO for Backing Air Strikes", Reuters, 3 August 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, August 1993.

3031/ Paul Lewis, "Lord Owen Backs NATO's Threat of Air Strikes", New York Times, 4 August 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, August 1993.

3032/ John F. Burns, "Defying NATO, Serbs Close In on Key Outpost Defending Sarajevo", New York Times, 5 August 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, August 1993.

3033/ "Bosnian Serb Says Ready to Hand Key Heights to UN", Reuters, 4 August 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, August 1993.

3034/ Paul Holmes, "U.N. General Asks 'Do Serbs Want Sarajevo?'", Reuters, 5 August 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, August 1993.

3035/ Internal Document, Weekly Information on Former Yugoslavia, 2-9 August 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 34559.

3036/ "Ignoring NATO Threat to Bomb, Serbs Press Attack on Sarajevo", Chicago Tribune, 5 August 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, August 1993.

3037/ Id.

3038/ Michael R. Gordon, "State Department Aide on Bosnia Resigns on Partition Issue", New York Times, 5 August 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, August 1993.

3039/ "Bosnian Serbs Agree to Withdraw from Conquered Heights", Agence France Presse, 5 August 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, August 1993.

3040/ "U.N. Commander Visits Serb-held Mount Bjelasnica", Agence France Presse, 5 August 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, August 1993.

3041/ Paul Holmes, "Serbs Offer to Open Routes into Sarajevo", Reuters, 5 August 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, August 1993.

3042/ "Bosnian Peace Talks Suspended Until Monday", Agence France Presse, 5 August 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, August 1993.

3043/ "Serbs and Croats Trade Artillery Fire", Reuters, 5 August 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, August 1993.

Notes (continued)

3044/ Dejan Anastasijevic, "Serbs Agree to Withdraw From Mount Igman", United Press International, 5 August 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, August 1993.

3045/ "Bosnian Serbs Agree to Withdraw from Conquered Heights", Agence France Presse, 5 August 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, August 1993.

3046/ Dejan Anastasijevic, "Serbs Agree to Withdraw from Igman", United Press International, 5 August 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, August 1993.

3047/ "Bosnian Peace Talks Suspended Until Monday", Agence France Presse, 5 August 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, August 1993.

3048/ Id.

3049/ Internal Document, Weekly Information on Former Yugoslav, 2-9 August 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 34559.

3050/ Dejan Anastasijevic, "Serbs Agree to Withdraw From Mount Igman", United Press International, 5 August 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, August 1993.

3051/ IHRLI, Chronology of the Negotiations for Peace in the Former Yugoslavia.

3052/ "Ashdown Calls for 'Cordon Sanitaire' Around Sarajevo", Agence France Presse, 5 August 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, August 1993.

3053/ "Bosnian Serbs Agree to Withdraw from Conquered Heights", Agence France Presse, 5 August 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, August 1993.

3054/ Dejan Anastasijevic, "Fighting in Bosnia Continues", United Press International, 6 August 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, August 1993.

3055/ Internal Document, Weekly Information on Former Yugoslavia, 2-9 August 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 34559.

3056/ John F. Burns, "Serbs Secure Their Hold on a Strategic Mountain", New York Times, 8 August 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, August 1993.

3057/ Nesho Djuric, "Serbs Ignore NATO Threat, Maintain Shelling", United Press International, 7 August 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, August 1993.

3058/ John F. Burns, "Serbs Secure Their Hold on a Strategic Mountain", New York Times, 8 August 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, August 1993.

3059/ Nesho Djuric, "Serbs Ignore NATO Threat, Maintain Shelling", United Press International, 7 August 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, August 1993.

3060/ Paul Holmes, "Serbs Raise New Obstacle to Easing Sarajevo Siege", Reuters, 7 August 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, August 1993.

3061/ Internal Document, Weekly Information on Former Yugoslavia, 2-9 August 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 34559.

Notes (continued)

3062/ Paul Holmes, "Serbs Raise New Obstacle to Easing Sarajevo Siege", Reuters, 7 August 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, August 1993.

3063/ "U.S. to Consult with U.N. on Air Assaults", United Press International, 7 August 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, August 1993.

3064/ John F. Burns, "Serb in New Offer to U.N. to Quit Sarajevo Positions", New York Times, 9 August 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, August 1993.

3065/ Dejan Anastasijevic, "Serbs Attack Muslim Towns", United Press International, 8 August 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, August 1993.

3066/ Paul Holmes, "Life of Sarajevo Girl, Five, in U.N. Hands", Reuters, 8 August 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, August 1993.

3067/ John F. Burns, "Bosnia Girl's Life Hangs on Procedural Triangle", New York Times, 9 August 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, August 1993.

3068/ Paul Holmes, "Like Her Native City, Sarajevo Girl is Dying", Reuters, 9 August 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, August 1993.

3069/ John F. Burns, "Bosnia Girl's Life Hangs on Procedural Triangle", New York Times, 9 August 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, August 1993.

3070/ John F. Burns, "British Fly to Bosnian Girl's Rescue", New York Times, August 10, 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, August 1993.

3071/ John F. Burns, "Bosnia Girl's Life Hangs on Procedural Triangle", New York Times, 9 August 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, August 1993.

3072/ Internal Document, Weekly Information on Former Yugoslavia, 2-9 August 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 34559.

3073/ BiH Ministry of Public Health Bulletin, 9 August 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 46895.

3074/ Bill Lamp, United Press International, 9 August 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, August 1993. Nesho Djuric, "Serbs Plan Gradual Sarajevo Withdrawal Amid NATO Threats", United Press International, 9 August 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, August 1993.

3075/ "Serbs Reported To Be Back on Summit of Mt. Bjelasnica", Agence France Presse, 9 August 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, August 1993.

3076/ "Serbs Begin Withdrawing From Heights But U.N. Troops Blocked", Agence France Presse, 9 August 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, August 1993.

3077/ John F. Burns, "Serbs Make a Gesture at Sarajevo, Then Dig In Heels", New York Times, 10 August 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, August 1993.

3078/ "Serbs Reported To Be Back On Summit of Mount Bjelasnica", Agence France Presse, 9 August 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, August 1993.

3079/ John F. Burns, "Serbs Make a Gesture at Sarajevo, Then Dig In Heels", New York Times, 10 August 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, August

Notes (continued)

1993.

3080/ Nesho Djuric, "Serbs Plan Gradual Sarajevo Withdrawal Amid NATO Threats", United Press International, 9 August 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, August 1993.

3081/ John F. Burns, "Serbs Make a Gesture at Sarajevo, Then Dig In Heels", New York Times, 10 August 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, August 1993.

3082/ Id.

3083/ "First Signs of Serb Retreat From Heights as NATO Agrees Air Strikes", Agence France Presse, 9 August 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, August 1993.

3084/ John F. Burns, "Serbs Make a Gesture at Sarajevo, Then Dig In Heels", New York Times, 10 August 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, August 1993.

3085/ "Britain Evacuates Critically Wounded Bosnian Girl", United Press International, 9 August 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, August 1993; John F. Burns, "British Fly to Bosnian Girl's Rescue", New York Times, 10 August 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, August 1993.

3086/ "Serbs Reported To Be Back On Summit of Mount Bjelasnica", Agence France Presse, 9 August 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, August 1993.

3087/ "Karadzic Says Serbs Withdrawing From Heights Overlooking Sarajevo", Agence France Presse, 9 August 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, August 1993.

3088/ Bill Lamp, United Press International, 9 August 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, August 1993.

3089/ "NATO Prepares for Imminent Air Strikes in Bosnia", Agence France Presse, 9 August 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, August 1993.

3090/ Dejan Anastasijevic, "Serbs Slow to Leave Strategic Mountain Position", United Press International, 10 August 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, August 1993.

3091/ John F. Burns, "Serbs Said to Send More Troops and Arms to Sarajevo", New York Times, 11 August 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, August 1993.

3092/ Id.

3093/ Id.

3094/ Id.

3095/ David Alexander, "Wounded Bosnian Girl in Critical Condition After Surgery", United Press International, 10 August 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, August 1993.

3096/ Kurt Schork, "Irma's Rescue Raises Hopes of Sarajevo Boy",

Notes (continued)

Reuters, 10 August 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, August 1993.

3097/ Kurt Schork, "Other Sarajevo Cases Need Outside Mercy, U.N. Says", Reuters, 10 August 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, August 1993.

3098/ Dejan Anastasijevic, "Serbs Slow to Leave Strategic Mountain Position", United Press International, 10 August 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, August 1993.

3099/ John F. Burns, "Serbs Said to Send More Troops and Arms to Sarajevo", New York Times, 11 August 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, August 1993.

3100/ "Ireland Offers to Take Five Wounded Bosnian Children", United Press International, 19 August 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, August 1993.

3101/ John F. Burns, "Extent of Serbian Pullout Near Sarajevo Is Unclear", New York Times, 12 August 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, August 1993.

3102/ Id.

3103/ "Critically Injured to be Evacuated From Sarajevo", Agence France Presse, 12 August 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, August 1993; William E. Schmidt, "Sweden and Britain Plan to Take 41 From Bosnia", New York Times, 12 August 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, August 1993.

3104/ Mark Heinrich, "More Wounded to be Airlifted From Sarajevo", Reuters, 11 August 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, August 1993.

3105/ William E. Schmidt, "Sweden and Britain Plan to Take 41 From Bosnia", New York Times, 12 August 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, August 1993.

3106/ Douglas Jehl, "Serbs Must Withdraw Promptly or Face Air Strikes, U.S. Insists", New York Times, 11 August 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, August 1993.

3107/ United Press International, 11 August 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, August 1993.

3108/ Douglas Jehl, "Serbs Must Withdraw Promptly or Face Air Strikes, U.S. Insists", New York Times, 11 August 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, August 1993.

3109/ "Critically Injured to be Evacuated From Sarajevo", Agence France Presse, 12 August 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, August 1993.

3110/ Kurt Schork, "Serbs Say Igman Pullout Complete, U.N. Says Not Yet", Reuters, 12 August 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, August 1993.

3111/ Kurt Schork, "Bosnian Serbs Set Conditions for Further Withdrawal", Reuters, 12 August 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, August 1993.

3112/ Id.

3113/ John F. Burns, "Serbian Forces Fail to Meet U.N. Withdrawal

Notes (continued)

Deadline", New York Times, 13 August 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, August 1993.

3114/ Kurt Schork, "Serbs Say Igman Pullout Complete, U.N. Says Not Yet", Reuters, 12 August 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, August 1993.

3115/ Kurt Schork, "Bosnian Serbs Set Conditions for Further Withdrawal", Reuters, 12 August 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, August 1993.

3116/ Sid Balman, Jr., "Serbs `Bobbing and Weaving', But No Air Strikes Yet", United Press International, 12 August 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, August 1993.

3117/ "Bosnia Says Serbs Installed Rockets on Mt. Igman", Reuters, 12 August 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, August 1993.

3118/ Kurt Schork, "Serbs Say Igman Pullout Complete, U.N. Says Not Yet", Reuters, 12 August 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, August 1993.

3119/ John F. Burns, "Serbian Forces Fail to Meet U.N. Withdrawal Deadline", New York Times, 13 August 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, August 1993.

3120/ Sid Balman, Jr., "U.S. Signals Complete Withdrawal From Mountains Unnecessary", United Press International, 13 August 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, August 1993.

3121/ Mark Heinrich, "Muslims Reject Serb Claim That Sarajevo Siege Lifted", Reuters, August 16, 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, August 1993.

3122/ Giles Elgood, "Fighting in Mostar, Still No Aid for Trapped Muslims", Reuters, August 20, 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, August 1993.

3123/ "Belgian Hospital Offers 20 Beds for Sarajevo Children", Agence France Presse, 12 August 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, August 1993.

3124/ Sid Balman, Jr., "U.S. Signals Complete Withdrawal From Mountains Unnecessary", United Press International, 13 August 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, August 1993.

3125/ "Christopher Says Serbian Pull-Out From Heights Necessary, But Not Enough", Agence France Presse, 13 August 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, August 1993.

3126/ "U.S. Leaves Looming the Threat of Strike on Serbs", Agence France Presse, 14 August 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, August 1993.

3127/ Sid Balman, Jr., "U.S. Signals Complete Withdrawal From Mountains Unnecessary", United Press International, 13 August 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, August 1993.

3128/ Nesho Djuric, "U.N. Troops Replacing Serbs on Mountains Around Sarajevo", United Press International, 14 August 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, August 1993.

3129/ Peter S. Green, "U.N. Optimistic As Siege of Sarajevo Continues", United Press International, 16 August 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, August 1993.

Notes (continued)

1993.

3130/ Nesho Djuric, "U.N. Troops Replacing Serbs on Mountains Around Sarajevo", United Press International, 14 August 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, August 1993.

3131/ "War Goes On Behind Glare of Mercy Mission", Reuters, 14 August 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, August 1993.

3132/ Nesho Djuric, "U.N. Troops Replacing Serbs on Mountains Around Sarajevo", United Press International, 14 August 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, August 1993.

3133/ Mark Heinrich, "Muslims Reject Serb Claim That Sarajevo Siege Lifted", Reuters, 16 August 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, August 1993.

3134/ "Little Adis Avdic Doomed to Stay in Sarajevo", Agence France Presse, 14 August 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, August 1993.

3135/ Peter S. Green, "Children Leave Sarajevo as Serbs Withdraw From Strategic Heights", United Press International, 15 August 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, August 1993.

3136/ "Clinton Says Encouraged By Serb Withdrawal", Reuters, 14 August 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, August 1993.

3137/ Peter S. Green, "Children Leave Sarajevo as Serbs Withdraw From Strategic Heights", United Press International, 15 August 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, August 1993.

3138/ Kurt Schork, "39 Leave Sarajevo In First Major Medical Evacuation", Reuters, 15 August 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, August 1993.

3139/ Peter S. Green, "U.N. Optimistic as Siege of Sarajevo Continues", United Press International, 16 August 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, August 1993.

3140/ Id.

3141/ Peter S. Green, "Children Leave Sarajevo as Serbs Withdraw From Strategic Heights", United Press International, 15 August 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, August 1993.

3142/ "Total of 39 Wounded and Sick Bosnians Flown to Britain, Sweden", Agence France Presse, 15 August 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, August 1993.

3143/ "Evacuation of Seriously Ill Patients Underway in Sarajevo", Agence France Presse, 15 August 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, August 1993.

3144/ "Second Group of Wounded and Sick Bosnians Leave Sarajevo", Agence France Presse, 15 August 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, August 1993.

3145/ "British Air Force Plane Evacuates Wounded and Sick Bosnians", Agence France Presse, 15 August 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, August 1993.

3146/ "Wounded and Sick Bosnians Evacuated Amid Controversy Over Who To Take", Agence France Presse, 15 August 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File,

Notes (continued)

August 1993.

3147/ "Bosnian Serb Leader Says Sarajevo Not Under Siege", Reuters, 15 August 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, August 1993.

3148/ Peter S. Green, "Children Leave Sarajevo as Serbs Withdraw From Strategic Heights", United Press International, 15 August 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, August 1993.

3149/ BiH Ministry of Public Health Bulletin, 16 August 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 46,895.

3150/ Mark Heinrich, "Muslims Reject Serb Claim That Sarajevo Siege Lifted", Reuters, 16 August 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, August 1993.

3151/ Peter S. Green, "U.N. Optimistic As Siege of Sarajevo Continues", United Press International, 16 August 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, August 1993.

3152/ ICFY UNPROFOR Operational Update for 16 August 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 34507.

3153/ Internal Document, Weekly Information on Former Yugoslavia, 16-23 August 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 34561.

3154/ John F. Burns, "A Siege By Any Other Name Would Be As Painful", New York Times, 17 August 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, August 1993.

3155/ "U.N. Military Official Says Sarajevo Not Under Siege", United Press International, 16 August 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, August 1993.

3156/ John F. Burns, "A Siege By Any Other Name Would Be As Painful", New York Times, 17 August 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, August 1993.

3157/ Id.

3158/ Mark Heinrich, "Muslims Reject Serb Claim That Sarajevo Siege Lifted", Reuters, 16 August 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, August 1993.

3159/ Id.

3160/ "No Lack of Offers For Evacuations", Agence France Presse, 16 August 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, August 1993.

3161/ Internal Document, Weekly Information on Former Yugoslavia 16-23 August 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 34567.

3162/ United Press International, 17 August 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, August 1993.

3163/ Carol Giacomo, "U.S. Says Bosnian Serbs Still Under NATO Threat", Reuters, 16 August 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, August 1993.

3164/ "No Lack of Offers For Evacuations", Agence France Presse, 16 August 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, August 1993.

3165/ "Bosnian Delegation Lashes Out at Britain Over Beds Row", Agence

Notes (continued)

France Presse, 16 August 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, August 1993.

3166/ ICFY UNPROFOR Operational Update for 17 August 1993, IHRLI Doc No. 34510.

3167/ Richard Meares, "Izetbegovic Says No Progress at Bosnia Talks", Reuters, 17 August 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, August 1993; "33 Soldiers Die in Bosnia City As Croats Battle the Muslims", New York Times, 18 August 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, August 1993; Kurt Schork, "Mortar Attack Wounds 14 Sarajevans Despite Peace Talks", Reuters, 18 August 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, August 1993.

3168/ Internal Document, Weekly Information on Former Yugoslavia 16-23 August 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 34567.

3169/ Mark Heinrich, "`Waiting for Godot' Opens in City Waiting for Salvation", Reuters, 17 August 1993, IRHLI Sarajevo Source File, August 1993.

3170/ John F. Burns, "To Sarajevo, Writer Brings Good Will and `Godot'", New York Times, 19 August 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, August 1993.

3171/ Id.

3172/ United Press International, 17 August 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, August 1993.

3173/ Richard Meares, "Izetbegovic Says No Progress at Bosnia Talks", Reuters, 17 August 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, August 1993.

3174/ "33 Soldiers Die in Bosnia City As Croats Battle the Muslims", New York Times, 18 August 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, August 1993.

3175/ United Press International, 17 August 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, August 1993.

3176/ "U.N. Chief of Staff Assailed", New York Times, 18 August 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, August 1993.

3177/ "NATO Officials Meet on Bosnian Conflict", Agence France Presse, 17 August 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, August 1993.

3178/ "Balkan Update", New York Times, 18 August 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, August 1993.

3179/ "Serbs Remain on Igman in Defiance of Pledge", Agence France Presse, 19 August 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, August 1993.

3180/ "Croats, Muslims Take Lead In Bosnian Fighting", United Press International, 18 August 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, August 1993.

3181/ ICFY UNPROFOR Operational Update for 18 August 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 34543.

3182/ Id.

3183/ "Croats, Muslims Take Lead In Bosnian Fighting", United Press International, 18 August 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, August 1993.

Notes (continued)

3184/ Id.

3185/ Kurt Schork, "Mortar Attack Wounds 14 Sarajevans Despite Peace Talks", Reuters, 18 August 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, August 1993.

3186/ "U.S. Says U.N. Officers Misbehave in Sarajevo", United Press International, 18 August 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, August 1993.

3187/ Dejan Anastasijevic, "Fighting Rages on in Bosnia", United Press International, 19 August 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, August 1993.

3188/ "Serbs Remain on Igman in Defiance of Pledge", Agence France Presse, 19 August 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, August 1993.

3189/ Id.

3190/ ICFY UNPROFOR Operational Update for 19 August 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 34516.

3191/ Internal Document, Weekly Information on Former Yugoslavia, 16-23 August 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 34567.

3192/ "Serbs Remain on Igman in Defiance of Pledge", Agence France Presse, 19 August 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, August 1993.

3193/ Id.

3194/ "Irish to Donate to Sarajevo Hospitals", Reuters, 19 August 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, August 1993.

3195/ Peter S. Green, "Fighting Flares Throughout Bosnia; Mostar Muslims Still Isolated", United Press International, 20 August 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, August 1993.

3196/ Id.

3197/ "Evacuate Kids, Sarajevo Radio Pleads", Reuters, 20 August 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, August 1993.

3198/ Peter S. Green, "Fighting Flares Throughout Bosnia: Mostar Muslims Still Isolated", United Press International, 20 August 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, August 1993.

3199/ Internal Document, Weekly Information on Former Yugoslavia, 16-23 August 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 34567.

3200/ Peter S. Green, "Fighting Flares Throughout Bosnia: Mostar Muslims Still Isolated", United Press International, 20 August 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, August 1993.

3201/ John F. Burns, "British Army's Job in Bosnia: To Keep Risky Lifeline Open", New York Times, 23 August 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, August 1993.

3202/ "Sarajevo Quiet as Bosnian Leaders Debate Peace Map", Reuters, 21 August 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, August 1993.

Notes (continued)

3203/ ICFY UNPROFOR Operational Update for 21 August 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 34534.

3204/ Chuck Sudetic, "Bosnia Chief Won't Urge Parliament to Accept Accord", New York Times, 23 August 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, August 1993.

3205/ Internal Document, Weekly Information on Former Yugoslavia, 16-23 August 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 34567.

3206/ Chuck Sudetic, "Bosnia Chief Won't Urge Parliament to Accept Accord", New York Times, 23 August 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, August 1993.

3207/ ICFY UNPROFOR Operational Update for 22 August 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 34539.

3208/ Peter S. Green, "U.N. Says Muslims in Mostar Starving to Death", United Press International, 22 August 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, August 1993.

3209/ Chuck Sudetic, "Bosnia Chief Won't Urge Parliament to Accept Accord", New York Times, 23 August 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, August 1993.

3210/ "Aid Convoy Finds Mostar Muslims in `Tragic' Condition", Agence France Presse, 22 August 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, August 1993.

3211/ Peter S. Green, "U.N. Says Muslims in Mostar Starving to Death", United Press International, 22 August 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, August 1993.

3212/ Internal Document, Weekly Information on Former Yugoslavia, 16-24 August 1993, IHRLI Doc. Nos. 34562, 34567.

3213/ Giles Elgood, "In Sarajevo, Where There's Light There's Hope", Reuters, 22 August 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, August 1993.

3214/ Id.

3215/ BiH Ministry of Public Health Bulletin, 30 August 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 46891.

3216/ BiH Ministry of Public Health Bulletin, 23 August 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 46893.

3217/ Peter S. Green, "Croats Still Blocking U.N. Relief to East Mostar", United Press International, 23 August 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, August 1993.

3218/ Id.

3219/ ICFY UNPROFOR Operational Update for 23 August 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 34527.

3220/ Id.

Notes (continued)

3221/ UNHCR Weekly Information on Former Yugoslavia, 23-30 August 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 38253.

3222/ "Sarajevo to Host Peace Plan Debate on Friday", Agence France Presse, 23 August 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, August 1993.

3223/ Giles Elgood, "U.N. Negotiates to Break the Blockade on Mostar", Reuters, 23 August 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, August 1993.

3224/ Peter S. Green, "Croats Still Blocking U.N. Relief to East Mostar", United Press International, 23 August 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, August 1993.

3225/ ICFY UNPROFOR Operational Update for 23 August 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 34527.

3226/ "Sarajevo to Host Peace Plan Debate on Friday", Agence France Presse, 23 August 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, August 1993.

3227/ "Balkan Update", New York Times, 24 August 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, August 1993.

3228/ Id.

3229/ "Convoy Heading to Mostar as Fighting Eases in the City", Agence France Presse, 25 August 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, August 1993.

3230/ BiH Ministry of Public Health Bulletin, 30 August 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 46891.

3231/ ICFY UNPROFOR Operational Update for 24 August 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 34523.

3232/ Peter S. Green, "U.S. Planes Drop Food on Besieged Mostar", United Press International, 24 August 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, August 1993; Chuck Sudetic, "Bosnian Croats Again Deny a Food Delivery to Muslims", New York Times, 25 August 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, August 1993.

3233/ Chuck Sudetic, "Bosnian Croats Again Deny a Food Delivery to Muslims", New York Times, 25 August 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, August 1993.

3234/ UNHCR Weekly Information on Former Yugoslavia, 23-30 August 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 38253.

3235/ BiH Ministry of Public Health Bulletin, 30 August 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 46891.

3236/ ICFY UNPROFOR Operational Update for 25 August 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 34513; UNPROFOR Press Release, 25 August 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 34553.

3237/ UNHCR Weekly Information on Former Yugoslavia, 23-30 August 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 38253.

3238/ "Muslim Hopes Rise as Airdrops, U.N. Convoy Brings Aid", Agence France Presse, 26 August 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, August 1993.

Notes (continued)

3239/ Id.

3240/ "Relief Convoy for Mostar Abandoned, Airdrop Scheduled", Agence France Presse, 25 August 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, August 1993.

3241/ Steven A. Holmes, "State Department Balkan Aides Explain Why They Quit", New York Times, 26 August 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, August 1993.

3242/ BiH Ministry of Public Health Bulletin, 30 August 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 46891.

3243/ UNPROFOR Press Release, 26 August 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 34551.

3244/ "Serb Shelling Kills Two in Croatia", Reuters, 27 August 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, August 1993.

3245/ BiH Ministry of Public Health Bulletin, 30 August 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 46891.

3246/ Peter S. Green, "Fragmented Bosnian Parliament to Vote on Geneva Peace Plan", United Press International, 28 August 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, August 1993.

3247/ ICFY UNPROFOR Operational Update for 26 August 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 34520.

3248/ Peter S. Green, "Fragmented Bosnian Parliament to Vote on Geneva Peace Plan", United Press International, 28 August 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, August 1993.

3249/ Chuck Sudetic, "Bosnians Condemn U.N.'s Peace Plan", New York Times, 28 August 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, August 1993.

3250/ Peter S. Green, "Bosnian Parliament Convenes to Consider Geneva Plan", United Press International, 27 August 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, August 1993.

3251/ Dan De Luce, "Only Serbs Endorse Bosnia's Proposed Map", Reuters, 28 August 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, August 1993.

3252/ Chuck Sudetic, "Bosnians Condemn U.N.'s Peace Plan", New York Times, 28 August 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, August 1993.

3253/ Id.

3254/ "U.N. Chief Will Not Take Part in Peace Talks", United Press International, 27 August 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, August 1993.

3255/ BiH Ministry of Public Health Bulletin, 30 August 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 46891.

3256/ ICFY UNPROFOR Operational Update for 28 August 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 34499.

3257/ Id., IHRLI Doc. No. 34492.

Notes (continued)

3258/ "Bosnians Issue Demands for Talks", United Press International, 29 August 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, August 1993.

3259/ Dan De Luce, "Only Serbs Endorse Bosnia's Proposed Map", Reuters, 28 August 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, August 1993.

3260/ Id.

3261/ "Bosnians Issue Demands for Talks", United Press International, 29 August 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, August 1993.

3262/ ICFY UNPROFOR Operational Update for 28 August 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 34499.

3263/ UNHCR Weekly Information on Former Yugoslavia, 23-30 August 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 38253.

3264/ BiH Ministry of Public Health Bulletin, 30 August 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 46891.

3265/ ICFY UNPROFOR Operational Update for 29 August 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 34492.

3266/ Id.

3267/ BiH Ministry of Public Health Bulletin, 30 August 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 46891.

3268/ ICFY UNPROFOR Operational Update for 30 August 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 34531.

3269/ Peter S. Green, "Factions Skirmish in Bosnia on Eve of Geneva Peace Talks", United Press International, 30 August 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, August 1993.

3270/ UNHCR Weekly Information on Former Yugoslavia, 23-30 August 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 38253.

3271/ Peter S. Green, "Factions Skirmish in Bosnia on Eve of Geneva Peace Talks", United Press International, 30 August 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, August 1993.

3272/ ICFY, UNPROFOR Operational Update for 31 August 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 38597.

3273/ Id.

3274/ ICFY, UNPROFOR Operational Update for 1 September 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 38593.

3275/ Donna Smith, "Clinton Warns That NATO Option 'Alive' In Bosnia", Reuters, 2 September 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, September 1993.

3276/ Steven Pagani, "Sporadic Battles Continue In Bosnia As Talks Stall", Reuters, 2 September 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, September 1993.

3277/ Donna Smith, "Clinton Warns That NATO Option "Alive" In Bosnia",

Notes (continued)

Reuters, 2 September 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, September 1993.

3278/ "Fighting Follows Collapse Of Geneva Peace Talks", United Press International, 2 September 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, September 1993.

3279/ Donna Smith, "Clinton Warns That NATO Option 'Alive' In Bosnia", Reuters, 2 September 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, September 1993.

3280/ Steve Pagani, "U.N. Fears Peace Talks' Failure Could Re-Ignite War", Reuters, 3 September 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, September 1993.

3281/ Donna Smith, "Clinton Warns That NATO Option "Alive" In Bosnia", Reuters, 2 September 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, September 1993.

3282/ Steve Pagani, "U.N. Fears Peace Talks' Failure Could Re-Ignite War", Reuters, 3 September 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, September 1993.

3283/ Id.

3284/ "Wounded Slated For Evacuation As Skirmishes Continue", Agence France Presse, 3 September 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, September 1993.

3285/ Id.

3286/ ICFY, UNPROFOR Operational Update for 3 September 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 38566.

3287/ Kurt Schork, "U.N. Predicts Hard Winter If Bosnia War Drags On", Reuters, 3 September 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, September 1993.

3288/ Id.

3289/ "Two Sick Bosnian Children Evacuated To Rome", Reuters, 4 September 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, September 1993.

3290/ Steve Pagani, "U.N. Fears Peace Talks' Failure Could Re-Ignite War", Reuters, 3 September 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, September 1993.

3291/ "Two Sick Bosnian Children Evacuated To Rome", Reuters, 4 September 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, September 1993.

3292/ ICFY, UNPROFOR Operational Update for 4 September 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 38569.

3293/ "Two Sick Bosnian Children Evacuated To Rome", Reuters, 4 September 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, September 1993.

3294/ ICFY, UNPROFOR Operational Update for 4 September 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 38569.

3295/ "Fighting Gets Heavier In Mostar And Gornji Vakuf, U.N. Says", Agence France Presse, 4 September 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, September 1993.

3296/ Kurt Schork, "U.S. Still Favors Force If Sarajevo Noose Tightened", Reuters, 5 September 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, September 1993.

Notes (continued)

3297/ ICFY, UNPROFOR Operational Update for 5 September 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 38601.

3298/ Kurt Schork, "U.S. Still Favors Force If Sarajevo Noose Tightened", Reuters, 5 September 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, September 1993.

3299/ ICFY, UNPROFOR Operational Update for 5 September 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 38601.

3300/ Kurt Schork, "U.S. Still Favors Force If Sarajevo Noose Tightened", Reuters, 5 September 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, September 1993.

3301/ Kurt Schork, "Michigan-Bound Students Are Stranded In Sarajevo", Reuters, 5 September 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, September 1993.

3302/ "Division Of Bosnia Not Ideal But Better Than War: Christopher", Agence France Presse, 5 September 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, September 1993.

3303/ Kurt Schork, "Bosnian Serb Leader Threatens Independent State", Reuters, 6 September 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, September 1993; Kurt Schork, "Shells, Sniper Fire Ring In Sarajevo School Year", Reuters, 6 September 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, September 1993.

3304/ Kurt Schork, "Bosnian Serb Leader Threatens Independent State", Reuters, 6 September 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, September 1993.

3305/ Id.

3306/ Nesho Djuric, "Fighting Flares Amid Diplomatic Activity To End War In Bosnia", United Press International, 6 September 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, September 1993.

3307/ Kurt Schork, "U.N. Says Bosnian Combatants Running Prison Camps", Reuters, 8 September 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, September 1993.

3308/ "Serbs Accuse Moslems Of Attacking Them North Of Sarajevo", Agence France Presse, 7 September 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, September 1993.

3309/ "Bosnian And Serb Troops Taking Positions On Mount Igman", Agence France Presse, 8 September 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, September 1993.

3310/ Kurt Schork, "U.N. Says Bosnian Combatants Running Prison Camps", Reuters, 8 September 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, September 1993.

3311/ "UNPROFOR Chief Announces Plans To Improve Aid Supplies", Agence France Presse, 8 September 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, September 1993.

3312/ "Igman Calm After Renewed Troop Movements: UNPROFOR", Agence France Presse, 8 September 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, September 1993.

3313/ UNPROFOR Operational Update for 8 September 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 38576.

3314/ "UNPROFOR Chief Announces Plans To Improve Aid Supplies", Agence

Notes (continued)

France Presse, 8 September 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, September 1993.

3315/ Id.

3316/ "Igman Calm After Renewed Troop Movements: UNPROFOR", Agence France Presse, 8 September 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, September 1993.

3317/ "War Again Cuts Power to Sarajevo", Chicago Tribune, 10 September 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, September 1993.

3318/ ICFY Operational Update for 9 September 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 38590.

3319/ "Sarajevo Mostly Quiet But Northern Suburb Shelled", Agence France Presse, 9 September 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, September 1993; ICFY, UNPROFOR Operational Update for 9 September 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 38590.

3320/ "War Again Cuts Power to Sarajevo", Chicago Tribune, 10 September 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, September 1993.

3321/ "Fighting Flares Across Central, Southern Bosnia", Agence France Presse, 9 September 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, September 1993.

3322/ "Sarajevo Mostly Quiet But Northern Suburb Shelled", Agence France Presse, 9 September 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, September 1993.

3323/ "War Again Cuts Power to Sarajevo", Chicago Tribune, 10 September 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, September 1993.

3324/ Id.

3325/ Steve Pagani, "Serbs Halt Croat Offensive, Explosion Rocks Zagreb", Reuters, 11 September 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, September 1993.

3326/ ICFY, UNPROFOR Operational Update for 12 September 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 38587.

3327/ "Northern Sarajevo Shelled", Agence France Presse, 11 September 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, September 1993.

3328/ Id.

3329/ Steve Pagani, "Serbs Halt Croat Offensive, Explosion Rocks Zagreb", Reuters, 11 September 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, September 1993.

3330/ Id.

3331/ "U.S. Tells Bosnian Serbs To Be More Flexible", Reuters, 11 September 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, September 1993.

3332/ Steve Pagani, "Serbs Halt Croat Offensive, Explosion Rocks Zagreb", Reuters, 11 September 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, September 1993.

3333/ BiH Ministry of Public Health Bulletin, 13 September 1993, IHRLI

Notes (continued)

Doc. No. 46889.

3334/ ICFY, UNPROFOR Operational Update for 12 September 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 38572.

3335/ ICFY, UNPROFOR Operational Update for 14 September 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 38552.

3336/ "Evacuation of Wounded Moslems, Croats Continues", Agence France Presse, 14 September 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, September 1993.

3337/ ICFY, UNPROFOR Operational Update for 14 September 93, IHRLI Doc. No. 38552; "Sarajevo Old City Under Fire", Agence France Presse, 14 September 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, September 1993.

3338/ "Sarajevo Old City Under Fire", Agence France Presse, 14 September 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, September 1993.

3339/ Id.

3340/ Dan De Luce, "Ethnic Rivals In Bosnia, Croatia, Ignore Peace Efforts", Reuters, 14 September 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, September 1993.

3341/ Id.

3342/ "Fighting Continues In Mostar, Says Radio Sarajevo", Agence France Presse, 15 September 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, September 1993.

3343/ "Eastern Mostar Burning: Radio Sarajevo", Agence France Presse, 17 September 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, September 1993.

3344/ "Fighting Continues In Mostar, Vitez Despite Ceasefire", Agence France Presse, 18 September 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, September 1993.

3345/ "Mostar Fighting Flares As Croat-Moslem Truce Ratified", Agence France Presse, 17 September 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, September 1993.

3346/ "Fighting Continues In Mostar, Vitez Despite Ceasefire", Agence France Presse, 18 September 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, September 1993.

3347/ Mark Heinrich, "U.N. Would Need To Triple Strength In Bosnia General", Reuters, 17 September 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, September 1993.

3348/ Mark Heinrich, "New Truce Reached In Bosnia, Peace Pact Could Be Next", Reuters, 17 September 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, September 1993.

3349/ ICFY, UNPROFOR Operational Update for 17 September 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 38555.

3350/ "Fighting Continues In Mostar, Vitez Despite Ceasefire", Agence France Presse, 18 September 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, September 1993.

3351/ ICFY, UNPROFOR Operational Update for 18 September 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 38558.

Notes (continued)

3352/ "Bosnian Army Breach Croat Lines Near Vitez", Agence France Presse, 18 September 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, September 1993.

3353/ "Fighting Dying Down After Ceasefire: UNPROFOR", Agence France Presse, 18 September 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, September 1993.

3354/ "Fighting Continues After Ceasefire Amid Doubts Over Peace Accord", Agence France Presse, 18 September 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, September 1993.

3355/ Natela Cutter, "Government Troops, Croatian Forces Keep Fighting In Bosnia-Hercegovina", United Press International, 19 September 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, September 1993.

3356/ "Fighting Dying Down After Ceasefire: UNPROFOR", Agence France Presse, 18 September 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, September 1993.

3357/ "Fighting Continues In Mostar, Vitez Despite Ceasefire", Agence France Presse, 18 September 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, September 1993.

3358/ ICFY, UNPROFOR Operational Update for 19 September 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 38564.

3359/ Id.

3360/ Kurt Schork, "Fighting Jeopardizes Bosnian Mediation Efforts", Reuters, 20 September 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, September 1993.

3361/ Natela Cutter, "Government Troops, Croatian Forces Keep Fighting In Bosnia-Hercegovina", United Press International, 19 September 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, September 1993.

3362/ "Radio Reports Fighting In Mostar", Reuters, 20 September 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, September 1993.

3363/ Mark Heinrich, "Mediators Call Off Sarajevo Peace Talks", Reuters, 20 September 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, September 1993.

3364/ BiH Ministry of Public Health Bulletin, 20 September 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 46887.

3365/ "Heavy Fighting Reported Around Mostar, Vitez", Agence France Presse, 21 September 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, September 1993.

3366/ "Fighting Continues After Peace Signing Canceled", Agence France Presse, 21 September 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, September 1993.

3367/ Natela Cutter, "Bosnian Foreign Minister Says Compromise Has Been Reached", United Press International, 21 September 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, September 1993.

3368/ "Croats, Moslems Clash In Central And Southern Bosnia", Agence France Presse, 22 September 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, September 1993; ICFY, UNPROFOR Operational Update for 22 September 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 38528.

3369/ "Two Belgian U.N. Soldiers Wounded In Central Bosnia", Agence France Presse, 25 September 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, September 1993.

Notes (continued)

3370/ "Bosnian Serbs Get Access To Sea", United Press International, 22 September 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, September 1993.

3371/ Id.

3372/ "Croats, Moslems Clash In Central And Southern Bosnia", Agence France Presse, 22 September 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, September 1993.

3373/ Mark Heinrich, "Serbs Who Stayed In Sarajevo Worry About Their Future", Reuters, 22 September 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, September 1993.

3374/ "Three U.N. Soldiers Wounded In Bosnian Fighting", Agence France Presse, 24 September 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, September 1993.

3375/ ICFY, UNPROFOR Operational Update for 23 September 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 38535.

3376/ "Three U.N. Soldiers Wounded In Bosnian Fighting", Agence France Presse, 24 September 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, September 1993.

3377/ Id.

3378/ ICFY, UNPROFOR Operational Update for 24 September 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 38542.

3379/ "Fighting Continues In Mostar", Agence France Presse, 24 September 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, September 1993.

3380/ Giles Elgood, "Casualties Rise Among U.N. Peacekeepers In Bosnia", Reuters, 25 September 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, September 1993.

3381/ "Two Belgian U.N. Soldiers Wounded In Central Bosnia", Agence France Presse, 25 September 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, September 1993.

3382/ ICFY, UNPROFOR Operational Update for 25 September 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 38545.

3383/ "Two Belgian U.N. Soldiers Wounded In Central Bosnia", Agence France Presse, 25 September 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, September 1993.

3384/ Giles Elgood, "Croat Soldiers In Sarajevo Face Tense Situation" Reuters, 25 September 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, September 1993; John F. Burns, "Ethnic Rift Divides Sarajevo's Defenders", New York Times, 26 September 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, September 1993.

3385/ John F. Burns, "Ethnic Rift Divides Sarajevo's Defenders", New York Times, 26 September 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, September 1993.

3386/ Giles Elgood, "Casualties Rise Among U.N. Peacekeepers In Bosnia", Reuters, 25 September 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, September 1993.

3387/ Giles Elgood, "Croat Soldiers In Sarajevo Face Tense Situation" Reuters, 25 September 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, September 1993.

3388/ "Two Killed, 12 Wounded In Shelling Of Maglaj: Radio Sarajevo",

Notes (continued)

Agence France Presse, 26 September 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, September 1993.

3389/ ICFY, UNPROFOR Operational Update for 27 September 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 38539.

3390/ "Croats Fire On U.N. Troops: UNPROFOR", Agence France Presse, 26 September 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, September 1993.

3391/ BiH Ministry of Public Health Bulletin, 27 September 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 46885.

3392/ "Fighting Rages In Bosnia, Muslims To Debate Peace", Reuters, 27 September 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, September 1993.

3393/ ICFY, UNPROFOR Operational Update for 27 September 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 38525.

3394/ Giles Elgood, "Izetbegovic Tells Muslims To Decide Bosnia's Fate", Reuters, 27 September 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, September 1993.

3395/ Id.

3396/ ICFY, UNPROFOR Operational Update for 29 September 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 42662.

3397/ Natela Cutter, "Bosnian Parliament Withholds Decision", United Press International, 28 September 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, September 1993

3398/ "Two Killed, Six Hurt In Overnight Attempted Frontline Crossing", Agence France Presse, 29 September 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, September 1993.

3399/ "Bosnians Fight On Eve Of Muslim Parliament Vote", Reuters, 29 September 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, September 1993.

3400/ Natela Cutter, United Press International, 29 September 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, September 1993.

3401/ Giles Elgood, "Bosnian Parliament Prepares To Vote On Peace Plan", Reuters, 28 September 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, September 1993.

3402/ Giles Elgood, "Muslims To Voice Opinion On Bosnia Peace Plan", Reuters, 28 September 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, September 1993.

3403/ Natela Cutter, "Bosnian Parliament Withholds Decision", United Press International, 28 September 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, September 1993.

3404/ Giles Elgood, "Bosnian Parliament To Take Crucial Vote On Peace", Reuters, 29 September 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, September 1993.

3405/ Giles Elgood, "Bosnian Parliament Vote Casts Doubt On Settlement", Reuters, 29 September 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, September 1993.

3406/ "Two Killed, Six Hurt In Overnight Attempted Frontline Crossing",

Notes (continued)

Agence France Presse, 29 September 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, September 1993.

3407/ "Shells Hit Downtown Sarajevo As Parliament Rejects Peace Deal", Agence France Presse, 29 September 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, September 1993.

3408/ John F. Burns, "Sarajevo May Be Settling Into Stalemate", New York Times, 1 October 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, October, 1993.

3409/ "Bosnian Army Commander Calls On Citizens To Support War Effort", Agence France Presse, 29 September 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, September 1993.

3410/ "Bosnian Parliament Rejects Latest Geneva Peace Terms", Agence France Presse, 29 September 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, September 1993.

3411/ Id.

3412/ Giles Elgood, "Bosnian Parliament Vote Casts Doubt On Settlement", Reuters, 29 September 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, September 1993.

3413/ "Bosnian Army Commander Calls On Citizens To Support War Effort", Agence France Presse, 29 September 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, September 1993.

3414/ "Bosnian Lawmakers Reject Pact", Chicago Tribune, 30 September 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, September 1993.

3415/ "Serbs Shell Muslim Positions As Bosnia Peace Hopes Dim", Reuters, 30 September 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, September 1993.

3416/ ICFY, UNPROFOR Operational Update for 30 September 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 40757.

3417/ "Diplomacy, Ceasefire Calls As Bosnians Take Stock", Agence France Presse, 30 September 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, September 1993.

3418/ Natela Cutter, "Thousands Protest Against Izetbegovic In Breakaway Region", United Press International, 30 September 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, September 1993.

3419/ Id.

3420/ Id.

3421/ "Diplomacy, Ceasefire Calls As Bosnians Take Stock", Agence France Presse, 30 September 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, September 1993.

3422/ Id.

3423/ ICFY, UNPROFOR Operational Update for 30 September 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 40757.

3424/ "Diplomacy, Ceasefire Calls As Bosnians Take Stock", Agence France Presse, 30 September 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, September 1993.

Notes (continued)

3425/ Id.

3426/ Id.

3427/ UNPROFOR Operational Update for 1 October 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 40760.

3428/ "Fighting Surges in Bosnia, Three Soldiers Wounded", Agence France Presse, 2 October 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, October 1993.

3429/ "Sarajevo Comes Under Overnight Fire", Reuters, 1 October 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, October 1993.

3430/ UNPROFOR Operational Update for 1 October 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 40760.

3431/ "Fighting Surges in Bosnia, Three Soldiers Wounded", Agence France Presse, 2 October 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, October 1993.

3432/ Id.

3433/ Id.

3434/ "UN Foretells Winter Doom for Bosnians", Associated Press, 1 October 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, October 1993.

3435/ "Fighting Surges in Bosnia, Three Soldiers Wounded", Agence France Presse, 2 October 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, October 1993.

3436/ "UN Foretells Winter Doom for Bosnians", Associated Press, 1 October 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, October 1993.

3437/ "Developments at a Glance in the Balkans Conflict", Reuters, 1 October 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, October 1993.

3438/ UNPROFOR Operational Update for 2 October 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 40763.

3439/ Id.

3440/ UNPROFOR Operational Update for 3 October 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 40766.

3441/ Id.

3442/ "Italian Peace Campaigner Shot Dead in Sarajevo", Reuters, 3 October 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, October 1993.

3443/ "Pacifist Wounded Crossing Frontline Bridge", Agence France Presse, 3 October 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, October 1993.

3444/ John F. Burns, "Gangs in Sarajevo Worry Diplomats", New York Times, 4 October 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, October 1993; "In Besieged City, Trading With the Enemy is Big Business", Agence France Presse, 3 October 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, October 1993.

3445/ ICFY, UNPROFOR Operational Update for 4 October 1993, IHRLI Doc.

Notes (continued)

No. 40769.

3446/ Id.

3447/ John F. Burns, "U.N. Says a Second Siege Imperils 150,000", New York Times, 6 October 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, October 1993.

3448/ UNPROFOR Operational Update for 6 October 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 40772.

3449/ "Five Killed in Shelling of Sarajevo and Mostar", Agence France Presse, 6 October 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, October 1993.

3450/ Giles Elgood, "Fighting Erupts With Faded Bosnian Peace Hopes", Reuters, 6 October 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, October 1993.

3451/ UNPROFOR Operational Update for 6 October 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 40772.

3452/ Giles Elgood, "Dispute Between Moslems in Enclave Still Tense", Reuters, 7 October 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, October 1993.

3453/ "Five Killed in Shelling of Sarajevo and Mostar", Agence France Presse, 6 October 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, October 1993; "Shell Kills Mother and Daughter in Sarajevo Schoolyard", Agence France Presse, 6 October 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, October 1993.

3454/ "Muslim Factions Reject UN Truce Talks", The Press Association, 6 October 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, October 1993.

3455/ UNPROFOR Operational Update for 6 October 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 40772.

3456/ "Muslim Factions Reject UN Truce Talks", The Press Association, 6 October 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, October 1993.

3457/ "Five Killed in Shelling of Sarajevo and Mostar", Agence France Presse, 6 October 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, October 1993; "Shell Kills Mother and Daughter in Sarajevo Schoolyard", Agence France Presse, 6 October 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, October 1993.

3458/ Giles Elgood, "Fighting Erupts With Faded Bosnian Peace Hopes", Reuters, 6 October 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, October 1993.

3459/ Giles Elgood, "Dispute Between Moslems in Enclave Still Tense", Reuters, 7 October 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, October 1993.

3460/ UNPROFOR Operational Update for 7 October 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 40775.

3461/ "Failure of Peace Talks Sparks Renewed, Vicious Fighting in Bosnia", Reuters, 8 October 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, October 1993.

3462/ Id.

3463/ Giles Elgood, "Dispute Between Moslems in Enclave Still Tense", Reuters, 7 October 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, October 1993.

Notes (continued)

3464/ UNPROFOR Operational Update for 7 October 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 40775.

3465/ Id.

3466/ John Pomfret, "Missed Hit is Talk of Sarajevo: Many in City See Mobsters--Not Politicians--Controlling Future", Washington Post, 7 October 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, October 1993.

3467/ "Failure of Peace Talks Sparks Renewed, Vicious Fighting in Bosnia", Reuters, 8 October 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, October 1993.

3468/ "Sporadic Fighting Reported in Bosnia", Reuters, 8 October 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, October 1993.

3469/ Giles Elgood, "U.N. Says Bosnia Fighting Intensifies", Reuters, 8 October 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, October 1993.

3470/ John F. Burns, "Victorious Bosnian Serb Now Talks of Conciliation", New York Times, 10 October 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, October 1993.

3471/ "Sporadic Fighting Reported in Bosnia", Reuters, 8 October 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, October 1993.

3472/ Giles Elgood, "U.N. Says Bosnia Fighting Intensifies", Reuters, 8 October 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, October 1993.

3473/ UNPROFOR Operational Update for 9 October 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 40778.

3474/ Id.

3475/ Giles Elgood, "U.N. Aid Convoy In Bosnia Held Up By Serb Forces", Reuters, 10 October 1993, IHRLI Source File, October 1993.

3476/ UNPROFOR Operational Update for 10 October 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 40781.

3477/ "Sporadic Fighting in Bosnia, Radio Says", Reuters, 10 October 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, October 1993

3478/ UNPROFOR Operational Update for 10 October 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 40781.

3479/ Giles Elgood, "U.N. Aid Convoy In Bosnia Held Up By Serb Forces", Reuters, 10 October 1993, IHRLI Source File, October 1993.

3480/ "Medical Evacuations to Resume After Ex-Police Chief Airlifted", Agence France Presse, 10 October 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, October 1993.

3481/ "Sarajevo Comes Under Overnight Shelling", Reuters, 11 October 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, October 1993.

3482/ UNPROFOR Operational Update for 11 October 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 40784.

Notes (continued)

3483/ Giles Elgood, "U.N. Says Bosnian Fighters Deliberately Block Aid", Reuters, 11 October 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, October 1993.

3484/ UNPROFOR Operational Update for 12 October 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 40786.

3485/ "Mine, Serbs Halt UN Aid to Muslims", Chicago Tribune, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, October 1993.

3486/ One report stated that the soldier was wounded outside of the Oslobodjenje newspaper building. See "U.N. Says Sarajevo is Extremely Tense, Shelling Stepped Up", Agence France Presse, 13 October 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, October 1993.

3487/ "French U.N. Soldier Wounded Near Sarajevo", Agence France Presse, 12 October 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, October 1993.

3488/ Giles Elgood, "Serbs Attack Sarajevo Front Lines", 12 October 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, October 1993.

3489/ However, on the following day, UNPROFOR civilian officer Cedric Thornberry stated that the city was hit by 160 shells on Tuesday. See "War Likely in Breakaway Krajina as Troops Mobilise: U.N.", Agence France Presse, 13 October 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, October 1993.

3490/ UNPROFOR Operational Update for 12 October 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 40786.

3491/ "War Likely in Breakaway Krajina as Troops Mobilise: U.N.", Agence France Presse, 13 October 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, October 1993.

3492/ "Mine, Serbs Halt UN aid to Muslims", Chicago Tribune, 13 October 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, October 1993.

3493/ Giles Elgood, "U.N. Says Bosnia Aid Effort Won't Meet Winter Goals", Reuters, 12 October 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, October 1993.

3494/ "War Likely in Breakaway Krajina as Troops Mobilise: U.N.", Agence France Presse, 13 October 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, October 1993.

3495/ "Croats Say Muslim Offensive Renewed in Bosnia", Reuters, 13 October 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, October 1993.

3496/ UNPROFOR Operational Update for 13 October 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 40789.

3497/ Giles Elgood, "U.N. Warns of Tension on Croatian Fronts", Reuters, 13 October 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, October 1993.

3498/ "Croats Say Muslim Offensive Renewed in Bosnia", Reuters, 13 October 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, October 1993.

3499/ Id.

3500/ UNPROFOR Operational Update for 13 October 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 40789.

Notes (continued)

3501/ Giles Elgood, "U.N. Warns of Tension on Croatian Fronts", Reuters, 13 October 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, October 1993.

3502/ "Reuter World News Highlights," Reuters, 1400 GMT, 13 October 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, October 1993.

3503/ "UN Warns of War Moves in Croatia", The Press Association, 13 October 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, October 1993.

3504/ Giles Elgood, "Sarajevans Taste Normality and Say it Might Catch On", Reuters, 13 October 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, October 1993.

3505/ "Croats Say Muslim Offensive Renewed in Bosnia", Reuters, 13 October 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, October 1993.

3506/ Giles Elgood, "U.N. Reports Growing Crisis on Croatian Fronts", Reuters, 14 October 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, October 1993.

3507/ "War Likely in Breakaway Krajina Region as Troops Mobilise: U.N.", Agence France Presse, 13 October 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, October 1993.

3508/ Giles Elgood, "U.N. Cancels Bosnia Aid Convoy After Serb Delays", Reuters, 14 October 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, October 1993.

3509/ Nesho Djuric, "Fighting Flares in Bosnia: POW Exchange Delayed", United Press International, 14 October 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, October 1993.

3510/ "Serbs Shell Muslim Positions in Central Bosnia", Reuters, 14 October 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, October 1993.

3511/ "Serbs Pound Sarajevo With Artillery: U.N.", Agence France Presse, 14 October 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, October 1993.

3512/ Giles Elgood, "Serbs Shell Sarajevo, Aid Convoys Retreat", Reuters, 14 October 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, October 1993.

3513/ UNPROFOR Operational Update for 14 October 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 40792.

3514/ Nesho Djuric, "Negotiations Deadlocked, Fighting Continues in Bosnia-Herzegovina", United Press International, 16 October 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, October 1993.

3515/ "New Serb Demands Stop Sick and Wounded Leaving Sarajevo", Agence France Press, 14 October 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, October 1993.

3516/ Giles Elgood, "U.N. Cancels Bosnia Aid Convoy After Serb Delays", Reuters, 14 October 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, October 1993.

3517/ Giles Elgood, "Rebel Moslems Seize Bosnian Town", Reuters, 15 October 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, October 1993; Giles Elgood, "Fighting Surges Across Bosnia", Reuters, 15 October 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, October 1993.

3518/ Giles Elgood, "Rebel Moslems Seize Bosnian Town", Reuters, 15

Notes (continued)

October 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, October 1993; Giles Elgood, "Fighting Surges Across Bosnia", Reuters, 15 October 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, October 1993.

3519/ UNPROFOR Operational Update for 15 October 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 45136.

3520/ "Sarajevo Comes Under Artillery and Sniper Fire", Reuters, 16 October 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, October 1993.

3521/ "Eight Killed and About 15 Wounded in Worst Shelling Since July", Agence France Presse, 16 October 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, October 1993.

3522/ Giles Elgood, "Croats Use Exploding Trenches in New Bosnia Tactic", Reuters, 15 October 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, October 1993.

3523/ Giles Elgood, "Serbs Pound Sarajevo in Renewed Bosnian Fighting", Reuters, 17 October 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, October 1993.

3524/ UNPROFOR Operational Update for 16 October 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 45133.

3525/ Giles Elgood, "Serbs Pound Sarajevo as Bosnian Fighting Worsens", Reuters, 16 October 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, October 1993.

3526/ John F. Burns, "In Warning to Serbs, NATO Flies Low-Level Sorties Over Sarajevo", New York Times, 18 October 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, October 1993.

3527/ Giles Elgood, "Serbs Pound Sarajevo as Bosnian Fighting Worsens", Reuters, 16 October 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, October 1993.

3528/ John F. Burns, "In Warning to Serbs, NATO Flies Low-Level Sorties Over Sarajevo", New York Times, 18 October 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, October 1993.

3529/ Nesho Djuric, "Negotiations Deadlocked, Fighting Continues in Bosnia-Herzegovina", United Press International, 16 October 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, October 1993.

3530/ Giles Elgood, "Serbs Pound Sarajevo as Bosnian Fighting Worsens", Reuters, 16 October 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, October 1993.

3531/ "Eight Killed and About 15 Wounded in Worst Shelling Since July", Agence France Presse, 16 October 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, October 1993.

3532/ "Sarajevo Comes Under Artillery and Sniper Fire", Reuters, 14 October 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, October 1993.

3533/ "Reuter World News Highlights", Reuters, 1400 GMT, 16 October 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, October 1993.

3534/ Nesho Djuric, "Negotiations Deadlocked, Fighting Continues in Bosnia-Herzegovina", United Press International, 16 October 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, October 1993.

Notes (continued)

3535/ John F. Burns, "Serbs Resume the Shelling of Sarajevo, Inciting Panic", New York Times, 17 October 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, October 1993.

3536/ UNPROFOR Operational Update for 16 October 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 45133.

3537/ John F. Burns, "Serbs Resume the Shelling of Sarajevo, Inciting Panic", New York Times, 17 October 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, October 1993.

3538/ Nesho Djuric, "Negotiations Deadlocked, Fighting Continues in Bosnia-Hercegovina", United Press International, 16 October 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, October 1993.

3539/ UNPROFOR Operational Update for 17 October 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 45310.

3540/ Id.

3541/ John F. Burns, "In Warning to Serbs, NATO Flies Low-Level Sorties Over Sarajevo", New York Times, 18 October 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, October 1993.

3542/ Maggie Fox, "Bosnian Sides Warn of Surge in Fighting", Reuters, 17 October 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, October 1993.

3543/ "Sporadic Artillery Fire Reported in Sarajevo", Reuters, 17 October 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, October 1993.

3544/ "Serbs, Muslims Set Prisoner Exchange", Chicago Tribune, 18 October 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, October 1993; John F. Burns, "In Warning to Serbs, NATO Flies Low-Level Sorties Over Sarajevo", New York Times, 18 October 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, October 1993.

3545/ "Sporadic Shelling in Sarajevo", Agence France Presse, 17 October 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, October 1993.

3546/ John F. Burns, "In Warning to Serbs, NATO Flies Low-Level Sorties Over Sarajevo", New York Times, 18 October 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, October 1993.

3547/ Id.

3548/ Maggie Fox, "Bosnian Sides Warn of Surge in Fighting", Reuters, 17 October 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, October 1993.

3549/ The number of UNPROFOR soldiers detained in this incident has been reported both as eight and as nine.

3550/ "Serbs, Muslims Set Prisoner Exchange", Chicago Tribune, 18 October 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, October 1993.

3551/ "U.N. Says Moslems Kidnapped Observers in Sarajevo", Reuters, 17 October 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, October 1993.

3552/ John F. Burns, "Gangs in Sarajevo Spread Terror, Unchecked by

Notes (continued)

Cowed Leaders", New York Times, 22 October 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, October 1993.

3553/ UNPROFOR Operational Update for 18 October 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 45127.

3554/ Kurt Schork, "Moslem Convoy Runs Bosnian Croat Gauntlet", Reuters, 18 October 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, October 1993.

3555/ UNPROFOR Operational Update for 18 October 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 45127.

3556/ Mark Heinrich, "U.N. Complains of Concerted Effort to Hamper Bosnian Aid", Reuters, 18 October 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, October 1993.

3557/ John Chrysdale, "Peacekeepers Detained, U.N. Chief Warns Sarajevo Mission Threatened", United Press International, 18 October 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, October 1993.

3558/ Mark Heinrich, "U.N. Complains About Thefts, Disturbances in Bosnia", Reuters, 18 October 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, October 1993.

3559/ David Binder, "US Tells Serbs NATO May Respond to More Attacks on Sarajevo", New York Times, 19 October 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, October 1993.

3560/ UNPROFOR Operational Update for 19 October 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 45124.

3561/ Mark Heinrich, "Moslem-Serb Prisoner Swap Postponed at Last Minute", Reuters, 20 October 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, October 1993.

3562/ Nesho Djuric, "U.N. Peacekeepers Resume Helping Bosnian Authorities", United Press International, 20 October 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, October 1993.

3563/ UNPROFOR Operational Update for 19 October 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 45124.

3564/ Id.

3565/ Id.

3566/ "1,000 Prisoners Swapped, Sarajevo Evacuations Resumed", Agence France Presse, 19 October 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, October 1993.

3567/ Id.

3568/ Mark Heinrich, "Moslem-Serb Prisoner Swap Postponed at Last Minute", Reuters, 20 October 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, October 1993.

3569/ "Serbia's Ruling Party Says Air-Strike Threat Shows Bias", United Press International, 19 October 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, October 1993.

3570/ UNPROFOR Operational Update for 20 October 1993, IHRLI Doc. No.

Notes (continued)

45121.

3571/ "Main Bosnian Fronts Calm", Agence France Presse, 21 October 1993, October 1993.

3572/ UNPROFOR Operational Update for 20 October 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 45121.

3573/ "Main Bosnian Fronts Calm", Agence France Presse, 21 October 1993, October 1993.

3574/ UNPROFOR Operational Update for 20 October 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 45121.

3575/ "Main Bosnian Fronts Calm", Agence France Presse, 21 October 1993, October 1993.

3576/ UNPROFOR Operational Update for 21 October 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 45118.

3577/ Nesho Djuric, "U.N. Commander Urges Cease-Fire Negotiations as Fighting Eases", United Press International, 22 October 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, October 1993.

3578/ "Limited Fighting Reported Across Bosnia", Reuters, 21 October 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, October 1993.

3579/ "Shelling Further Cripples Sarajevo", United Press International, 21 October 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, October 1993.

3580/ UNPROFOR Operational Update for 21 October 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 45118.

3581/ Nesho Djuric, "U.N. Commander Urges Cease-Fire Negotiations as Fighting Eases", United Press International, 22 October 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, October 1993.

3582/ Mark Heinrich, "U.N. Blames Moslems for Blocking Sarajevo Repairs", Reuters, 22 October 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, October 1993.

3583/ Nesho Djuric, "U.N. Commander Urges Cease-Fire Negotiations As Fighting Eases", United Press International, 22 October 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, October 1993.

3584/ UNPROFOR Operational Update for 22 October 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 45115.

3585/ Id.

3586/ Mark Heinrich, "Rebel Muslim Signs Peace Deal With Bosnian Serbs", Reuters, 22 October 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, October 1993.

3587/ UNPROFOR Operational Update for 22 October 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 45115.

3588/ "Fighting Eases in Central Bosnia", Reuters, 22 October 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, October 1993.

Notes (continued)

3589/ Mark Heinrich, "Rebel Muslim Signs Peace Deal With Bosnian Serbs", Reuters, 22 October 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, October 1993.

3590/ "Bosnian General Accuses Separatists of "Treason" Over Peace Talks", Agence France Presse, 23 October 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, October 1993.

3591/ "At Least Five Die, 37 Wounded in Attack on Sarajevo: Hospitals", Agence France Presse, 23 October 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, October 1993.

3592/ "Bosnian Serbs May Hand Bihac Land to Rebel Moslems: Abdic", Agence France Presse, 23 October 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, October 1993.

3593/ "Bosnian General Accuses Separatists of 'Treason' Over Peace Talks", Agence France Presse, 23 October 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, October 1993.

3594/ "Bosnian Capital Calm After Saturday's Pounding", Reuters, 24 October 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, October 1993.

3595/ Id.

3596/ UNPROFOR Operational Update for 23 October 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 45112.

3597/ "Civilian Areas Targeted by Bosnian Serbs in Sarajevo Siege", United Press International, 23 October 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, October 1993.

3598/ Mark Heinrich, "Four Die in Sarajevo Shelling as Film Festival Opens", Reuters, 23 October 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, October 1993.

3599/ Id.

3600/ Id.

3601/ "Bosnian General Accuses Separatists of "Treason" Over Peace Talks", Agence France Presse, 23 October 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, October 1993.

3602/ UNPROFOR Operational Update for 24 October 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 45109.

3603/ Id.

3604/ "Bosnian Capital Calm After Saturday's Pounding", Reuters, 24 October 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, October 1993.

3605/ UNPROFOR Operational Update for 24 October 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 45109.

3606/ UNPROFOR Operational Update for 25 October 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 45105.

3607/ Id.

Notes (continued)

3608/ "Sniper Shoots Sarajevo Baby in Stroller", Reuters, 25 October 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, October 1993.

3609/ Id.

3610/ UNPROFOR Operational Update for 25 October 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 45105.

3611/ "Fierce Fighting Between Serbs, Moslems Northwest of Sarajevo", Agence France Presse, 25 October 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, October 1993.

3612/ Id.

3613/ "18 Killed in Drive on Army Gangs", Reuters, 28 October 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, October 1993; Mark Heinrich, "Bosnians Say 21 Killed in Crackdown on Crime Gangs", Reuters, 28 October 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, October 1993.

3614/ John F. Burns, "2 Gang Leaders in Sarajevo Face Crackdown in Bosnia", New York Times, 27 October 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, October 1993.

3615/ A subsequent report stated that doctors who saw the bodies said that two policemen had died of knife wounds, one after his abdomen had been cut open and filled with bleach. See John F. Burns, "Bosnian Forces Kill Reputed Gang Chief in Sarajevo Gunfight", New York Times, 28 October 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, October 1993.

3616/ "Twelve Killed in Action to Arrest Rebel Bosnian Militia Leader", Agence France Presse, 27 October 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, October 1993.

3617/ Mark Heinrich, "Bosnians Say 21 Killed in Crackdown on Crime Gangs", Reuters, 28 October 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, October 1993.

3618/ UNPROFOR Operational Update for 26 October 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 45102.

3619/ Davor Huic, "Maverick Moslem Leader Slams Bosnia's President", Reuters, 26 October 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, October 1993.

3620/ UNPROFOR Operational Update for 27 October 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 45099.

3621/ Joseph Chrysdale, "Serbia's Inflation Set at 1.9 Billion Percent", United Press International, 28 October 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, October 1993.

3622/ UNPROFOR Operational Update for 28 October 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 45096.

3623/ Mark Heinrich, "Serbs Shell Sarajevo After Bosnian Army Purge", Reuters, 28 October 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, October 1993.

3624/ UNPROFOR Operational Update for 28 October 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 45096.

Notes (continued)

3625/ "Serb Forces Launch Heavy Shelling Attack on Sarajevo", Reuters, 28 October 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, October 1993.

3626/ Id.

3627/ Mark Heinrich, "Serbs Shell Sarajevo After Bosnian Army Purge", Reuters, 28 October 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, October 1993.

3628/ John F. Burns, "New Horror for Sarajevo: Muslims Killing Muslims", New York Times, 31 October 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, October 1993.

3629/ Mark Heinrich, "Serbs Shell Sarajevo After Bosnian Army Purge", Reuters, 28 October 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, October 1993.

3630/ Nesho Djuric, "Serbian Forces Shell Sarajevo", United Press International, 28 October 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, October 1993.

3631/ Mark Heinrich, "Sarajevo Baby Shot By Sniper Recovering Well", Reuters, 28 October 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, October 1993.

3632/ "U.N. War Crimes Head Arrives to Probe Atrocities", Agence France Presse, 28 October 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, October 1993.

3633/ Mark Heinrich, "Villagers Seek Refuge From Croat and Moslem Soldiers", 29 October 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, October 1993.

3634/ "Mostar, Maglaj Shelled, Sarajevo Generally Quiet", Reuters, 28 October 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, October 1993.

3635/ Mark Heinrich, "Villagers Seek Refuge From Croat and Moslem Soldiers", 29 October 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, October 1993.

3636/ "'Immortal' French Journalist Shot in Sarajevo", Reuters, 29 October 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, October 1993.

3637/ "Serbs Pound Muslim Town", United Press International, 30 October 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, October 1993.

3638/ "Sarajevo Quiet As Bosnian Cabinet Prepares for Winter", Reuters, 30 October 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, October 1993.

3639/ "U.N. Commander Urges Help For Bosnia Muslims", 30 October 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, October 1993.

3640/ Mark Heinrich, "U.N. Squabbles Over Frightened Bosnian Refugees", Reuters, 30 October 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, October 1993.

3641/ UNPROFOR Operational Update for 31 October 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 47115.

3642/ Id.

3643/ Id.

3644/ Associated Press, "U.N. Suspends Relief Flights into Sarajevo", New York Times, 1 November 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, October 1993; Mark Heinrich, "Gunfire Forces Suspension of Aid Flights to Sarajevo",

Notes (continued)

Reuters, 31 October 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, October 1993.

3645/ Nicholas Doughty, "NATO Backs Off from Bosnia Airstrikes Despite Pledge", Reuters, 31 October 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, October 1993.

3646/ UNPROFOR Operational Update for 1 November 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 47118.

3647/ "U.N. Resumes Sarajevo Airlift After Shooting", Reuters, 1 November 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, November 1993.

3648/ "Sarajevo Airport Re-Opens in Bosnian Fighting Lull", United Press International, 1 November 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, November 1993.

3649/ "Rebel Muslim Troops Reported Surrendering-Radio", Reuters, 2 November 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, November 1993.

3650/ UNPROFOR Operational Update for 2 November 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 47121.

3651/ Mark Heinrich, "Three Senior Bosnian Army Commanders Dismissed", Reuters, 2 November 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, November 1993.

3652/ UNPROFOR Operational Update for 3 November 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 47126.

3653/ Id.

3654/ "U.N. Troops Fire Back After Sarajevo Attack", Agence France Presse, 4 November 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, November 1993.

3655/ Mark Heinrich, "Seven Gangster Suspects Held in Sarajevo Crime Crackdown", Reuters, 3 November 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, November 1993.

3656/ UNPROFOR Operational Update for 4 November 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 47130.

3657/ Id.

3658/ Hrvoje Hranjski, "U.N. Says Bosnian Town Razed and Deserted", 4 November 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, November 1993.

3659/ Nesho Djuric, "Bosnian Government Army Pledges Safety for Croats", United Press International, 4 November 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, November 1993.

3660/ "Sarajevo Hit By Overnight Shooting", Reuters, 5 November 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, November 1993.

3661/ Mark Heinrich, "Sarajevo Military Crackdown Traps Civilians", Reuters, 7 November 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, November 1993.

3662/ Associated Press, "Bosnian Army Disbands Allied Croatian Brigade", Chicago Tribune, 7 November 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, November 1993.

3663/ Mark Heinrich, "Sarajevo Military Crackdown Traps Civilians",

Notes (continued)

Reuters, 7 November 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, November 1993.

3664/ Joseph Chrysdale, "Military Postpones Sarajevo Evacuation", United Press International, 6 November 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, November 1993.

3665/ "U.N. Fails to Protect Muslim Enclave Silajdzic", Reuters, 7 November 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, November 1993.

3666/ Natela Cutter, "Curfew Delays Evacuation of Sarajevo Civilians for Second Day", United Press International, 7 November 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, November 1993.

3667/ UNPROFOR Operational Update for 8 November 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 47134.

3668/ Id.

3669/ Nesho Djuric, "Fighting Erupts During Civilian Evacuation From Sarajevo", United Press International, 8 November 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, November 1993.

3670/ UNPROFOR Operational Update for 8 November 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 47134.

3671/ Nesho Djuric, "Fighting Erupts During Civilian Evacuation From Sarajevo", United Press International, 8 November 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, November 1993.

3672/ Id.

3673/ Chuck Sudetic, "Serbs Abduct 2 Aides Riding With Sarajevo's Catholic Archbishop", New York Times, 9 November 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, November 1993.

3674/ These "aides" were also identified as "bodyguards" and "policemen" in several reports.

3675/ The Serbs had implicated the two men in the killing of nine Serbs during a JNA convoy from Sarajevo on 18 May 1992. See Natela Cutter, "Sarajevo Evacuation Delayed for a Second Time", United Press International, 10 November 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, November 1993.

3676/ Chuck Sudetic, "Serbs Abduct 2 Aides Riding With Sarajevo's Catholic Archbishop", New York Times, 9 November 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, November 1993.

3677/ Nesho Djuric, "Fighting Erupts During Civilian Evacuation From Sarajevo", United Press International, 8 November 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, November 1993.

3678/ Kurt Schork, "Moslems Target Croat Munitions Plant, New Peace Initiative Made", Reuters, 8 November 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, November 1993.

3679/ Id.

Notes (continued)

3680/ "Seven Killed, 35 Wounded in Mortar Attacks", Agence France Presse, 10 November 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, November 1993.

3681/ Id.

3682/ "Attacks on Sarajevo Kill Nine, Including Schoolchildren", Agence France Presse, 9 November 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, November 1993.

3683/ Nesho Djuric, "Serbian Shelling Kills Sarajevo Children, Civilians", United Press International, 9 November 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, November 1993.

3684/ "More Serbs Set to Leave Sarajevo as Schools Remain Shut", Agence France Presse, 10 November 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, November 1993.

3685/ "Seven Killed, 35 Wounded in Mortar Attacks", Agence France Presse, 10 November 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, November 1993.

3686/ "Attacks on Sarajevo Kill Nine, Including Schoolchildren", Agence France Presse, 9 November 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, November 1993.

3687/ Mark Heinrich, "Seven Die, Including Children, as Mortars Hit Sarajevo", Reuters, 9 November 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, November 1993.

3688/ "Attacks on Sarajevo Kill Nine, Including Schoolchildren", Agence France Presse, 9 November 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, November 1993.

3689/ See, "UNICEF Executive Director Horrified by Attack on School in Sarajevo", UNICEF Press Release, PR/93/26, 10 November 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, November 1993.

3690/ "Seven Dead, 40 Wounded in Sarajevo Mortar, Sniper Attacks", Agence France Presse, 9 November 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, November 1993.

3691/ Associated Press, "Nine Children Are Reported Dead as a School in Sarajevo is Shelled", New York Times, 10 November 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, November 1993.

3692/ "Seven Dead, 40 Wounded in Sarajevo Mortar, Sniper Attacks", Agence France Presse, 9 November 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, November 1993.

3693/ Nesho Djuric, "Serbian Shelling Kills Sarajevo Children, Civilians", United Press International, 9 November 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, November 1993.

3694/ Mark Heinrich, "Seven Die, Including Children, as Mortars Hit Sarajevo", Reuters, 9 November 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, November 1993.

3695/ "Attacks on Sarajevo Kill Nine, Including Schoolchildren", Agence France Presse, 9 November 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, November 1993.

Notes (continued)

3696/ See, "UNICEF Executive Director Horrified by Attack on School in Sarajevo", UNICEF Press Release, PR/93/26, 10 November 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, November 1993.

3697/ Mark Heinrich, "Seven Die, Including Children, as Mortars Hit Sarajevo", Reuters, 9 November 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, November 1993.

3698/ Mark Heinrich, "Sarajevo Evacuation is Blocked by Serb Abduction", Reuters, 10 November 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, November 1993.

3699/ "Attacks on Sarajevo Kill Nine, Including Schoolchildren", Agence France Presse, 9 November 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, November 1993.

3700/ Nesho Djuric, "Serbian Shelling Kills Sarajevo Children, Civilians", United Press International, 9 November 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, November 1993.

3701/ Mark Heinrich, "Croat Troops Demand Rights After Allied Force Dissolved", Reuters, 10 November 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, November 1993.

3702/ Mark Heinrich, "Sarajevo Evacuation is Blocked by Serb Abduction", Reuters, 10 November 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, November 1993.

3703/ Associated Press, "Sarajevo Shells Reported to Kill Nine at a School", New York Times, 10 November 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, November 1993.

3704/ "Sarajevo Shelling Kills Seven", Press Association Newsfile, 9 November 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, November 1993.

3705/ "Failed Policemen Release Sinks Bosnian Serb Convoy", Agence France Presse, 10 November 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, November 1993.

3706/ David Binder, "U.S. Says Balkans Civil War Puts 4.2 Million Lives at Risk", New York Times, 10 November 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, November 1993.

3707/ "Serbs Step Up Shelling of Bosnian Capital", United Press International, 10 November 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, November 1993.

3708/ Mark Heinrich, "Mortars Kill Children Again in Besieged Sarajevo", Reuters, 10 November 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, November 1993.

3709/ "Eleven Wounded in Sarajevo Shell Burst", Reuters, 10 November 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, November 1993.

3710/ "Failed Policemen Release Sinks Bosnian Serb Convoy", Agence France Presse, 10 November 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, November 1993.

3711/ "One Killed in Shelling in Sarajevo Wednesday", Agence France Presse, 10 November 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, November 1993.

3712/ "Serbs Step Up Shelling of Bosnian Capital", United Press International, 10 November 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, November 1993.

Notes (continued)

3713/ Mark Heinrich, "Mortars Kill Children Again in Besieged Sarajevo", Reuters, 10 November 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, November 1993.

3714/ "Eleven Wounded in Sarajevo Shell Burst", Reuters, 10 November 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, November 1993.

3715/ "Failed Policemen Release Sinks Bosnian Serb Convoy", Agence France Presse, 10 November 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, November 1993.

3716/ "One Killed in Shelling in Sarajevo Wednesday", Agence France Presse, 10 November 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, November 1993.

3717/ Mark Heinrich, "Bosnian Leaders Toughen Stands As More Children Die", Reuters, 11 November 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, November 1993.

3718/ Id.

3719/ Mark Heinrich, "Mortars Kill Children Again in Besieged Sarajevo", Reuters, 10 November 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, November 1993.

3720/ Nesho Djuric, "Fighting Flares Across Bosnia, Shells Kill and Wound Civilians in Sarajevo", United Press International, 10 November 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, November 1993.

3721/ David Binder, "U.S. Says Balkans Civil War Puts 4.2 Million Lives at Risk", New York Times, 10 November 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, November 1993.

3722/ "Lights Go Back on in Besieged Sarajevo", Reuters, 10 November 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, November 1993.

3723/ "Failed Policemen Release Sinks Bosnian Serb Convoy", Agence France Presse, 10 November 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, November 1993.

3724/ David Binder, "U.S. Says Balkans Civil War Puts 4.2 Million Lives at Risk", New York Times, 10 November 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, November 1993.

3725/ "Clinton Warns of Possible Air Raids on Sarajevo", Agence France Presse, 10 November 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, November 1993.

3726/ David Binder, "U.S. Says Balkans Civil War Puts 4.2 Million Lives at Risk", New York Times, 10 November 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, November 1993.

3727/ "Clinton Warns of Possible Air Raids on Sarajevo", Agence France Presse, 10 November 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, November 1993.

3728/ "Sarajevo Quiet After Two Days of Carnage", Reuters, 11 November 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, November 1993.

3729/ Maggie Fox, "U.N. at Point of Using Force in Bosnia-Commander", Reuters, 11 November 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, November 1993; "Serb Forces Destroy Three Villages, Torch a Fourth", Agence France Presse, 11 November 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, November 1993.

3730/ Natela Cutter, "Refugees Flee as Bosnian Serbs Scorch Villages",

Notes (continued)

United Press International, 11 November 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, November 1993.

3731/ "Sarajevo Quiet After Two Days of Carnage", Reuters, 11 November 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, November 1993.

3732/ Mark Heinrich, "U.N. Warns It May Use Force to Defend Itself", Reuters, 11 November 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, November 1993.

3733/ Id.

3734/ Reuters, "Civilian Evacuations From Sarajevo Resume", New York Times, 12 November 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, November 1993; Natela Cutter, "Refugees Flee as Bosnian Serbs Scorch Villages", United Press International, 11 November 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, November 1993.

3735/ Reuters, "Civilian Evacuations From Sarajevo Resume", New York Times, 12 November 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, November 1993.

3736/ "Shattered Sarajevo Has No Cause to Mark Armistice Day", The Press Association Limited, 11 November 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, November 1993.

3737/ "British Blue-Helmets Told of `Doomsday Scenario'", The Press Association, 12 November 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, November 1993.

3738/ Mark Heinrich, "Bosnian Leaders Press For Truce But Troops Fight On", Reuters, 13 November 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, November 1993.

3739/ "WEU Calls For Deterrent Flights Over Sarajevo", Reuters, 12 November 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, November 1993.

3740/ ICFY, UNPROFOR Operational Update for 13 November 1994, IHRLI Doc. No. 47158.

3741/ Id.

3742/ Mark Heinrich, "Unwanted Patients Marooned by Bosnian Fighting", Reuters, 13 November 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, November 1993.

3743/ Id.

3744/ "Churkin Arrives in Sarajevo Amid Diplomatic Flurry", Agence France Presse, 13 November 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, November 1993.

3745/ Mark Heinrich, "Unwanted Patients Wounded by Bosnian Fighting", Reuters, 13 November 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, November 1993.

3746/ Associated Press, "Talks Set to Prevent Starvation in Bosnia", Chicago Tribune, 17 November 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, November 1993.

3747/ Id.

3748/ "War-Crimes Court On Balkans Opens, Doubts Persist on Sufficiency of Documented Evidence", Associated Press, 18 November 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, November 1993.

Notes (continued)

3749/ "Bosnians Agree to Swap War for Aid", The Press Association, 18 November 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, November 1993.

3750/ Kurt Schork, "Sarajevo War Wounded Become Casualties of Cold, Hunger", Reuters, 18 November 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, November 1993.

3751/ Linnet Myers, "Doctors in Sarajevo Fear Becoming Agents of Death", Chicago Tribune, 19 November 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, November 1993.

3752/ "Bosnians Agree to Swap War for Aid", The Press Association, 18 November 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, November 1993.

3753/ Id.

3754/ Peter S. Green, "Snow, Fog Close Sarajevo Airport to Aid Flights", United Press International, 20 November 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, November 1993.

3755/ Id.

3756/ Tribune Wires, "UN Convoy Brings Aid to Sarajevo Hospital", Chicago Tribune, 20 November 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, November 1993.

3757/ Another report, however, stated that winter blankets and sleeping bags were delivered to the mental hospital at Pazaric. See "Aid Trucks Reach Isolated Mental Home", Agence France Presse, 19 November 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, November 1993.

3758/ Tribune Wires, "UN Convoy Brings Aid To Sarajevo Hospital", Chicago Tribune, 20 November 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, November 1993.

3759/ The aid convoys had been suspended three weeks ago after a Danish driver was killed.

3760/ Tribune Wires, "UN Convoy Brings Aid to Sarajevo Hospital", Chicago Tribune, 20 November 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, November 1993.

3761/ Tribune Wires, "Sarajevo Shivers With Lack of Fuel, Food", Chicago Tribune, 22 November 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, November 1993.

3762/ Peter S. Green, "Snow, Fog Close Sarajevo Airport to Aid Flights", United Press International, 20 November 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, November 1993.

3763/ Peter S. Green, "U.N. Moving Bosnian Aid Again", United Press International, 21 November 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, November 1993.

3764/ Id.

3765/ Tribune Wires, "Sarajevo Shivers With Lack of Fuel, Food", Chicago Tribune, 22 November 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, November 1993.

3766/ Id.

3767/ "U.N. Says Serb Mortar Shell Kills Three Children", United Press International, 23 November 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, November 1993.

Notes (continued)

3768/ "Shelling Kills Three Children Playing in Sarajevo Snow", Reuters, 22 November 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, November 1993.

3769/ Douglas Hamilton, "U.N. Ready to Move Bosnia Aid, Wary of Local Commanders", Reuters, 22 November 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, November 1993.

3770/ Id.

3771/ Id.

3772/ Id.

3773/ "Bosnian Wounded Flown Out, But Little Else Moves", The Press Association, 23 November 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, November 1993.

3774/ Associated Press, "1,200 Hope to Escape Sarajevo", Chicago Tribune, 26 November 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, November 1993.

3775/ "More Than 1,000 To Quit Sarajevo Friday", Agence France Presse, 25 November 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, November 1993.

3776/ Eugence Robinson, "EC Mediator Says U.S. 'Killed' Plan for Bosnia: Owen: Washington Feared 'Body-Bag Counts'", Washington Post, 27 November 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, November 1993.

3777/ "Bosnian Serbs Continue Blocking Aid Convoys", Agence France Presse, 27 November 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, November 1993.

3778/ Peter S. Green, "Warring Factions Use Aid as a Weapon", United Press International, 26 November 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, November 1993.

3779/ Id.

3780/ Associated Press, "Bosnia Foes Again Block Aid Convoys", Chicago Tribune, 27 November 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, November 1993.

3781/ Peter S. Green, "Warring Factions Use Aid as a Weapon", United Press International, 26 November 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, November 1993.

3782/ Associated Press, "Bosnia Foes Again Block Aid Convoys", Chicago Tribune, 27 November 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, November 1993.

3783/ "Evacuation from Sarajevo Postponed", Agence France Presse, 26 November 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, November 1993.

3784/ "Bosnian Leaders in Protest as Five Die in Shelling", Agence France Presse, 28 November 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source file, November 1993.

3785/ "Serbs, Croats Attack Maglaj", United Press International, 27 November 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, November 1993.

3786/ Reuters, "UN Relief Convoy Goes to Sarajevo, But Others Are Blocked", New York Times, 28 November 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, November 1993.

Notes (continued)

3787/ "Two Buses Run Again in Sarajevo", Reuters, 27 November 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, November 1993.

3788/ Samir Koric, "Fighting Rages On as Peace Talks Begin", Reuters, 29 November 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, November 1993.

3789/ "U.N. Staff Pessimistic After Renewed Attacks", Agence France Presse, 29 November 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, November 1993.

3790/ Sabina Cosic, "Five Die in Sarajevo on Eve of Peace Talks", Reuters, 28 November 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, November 1993.

3791/ "Sarajevo Bombarded on Eve of New Talks", Chicago Tribune, 29 November 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, November 1993.

3792/ "Bosnian Leaders in Protest as Five Die in Shelling", Agence France Presse, 28 November 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source file, November 1993.

3793/ Sabina Cosic, "Five Die in Sarajevo on Eve of Peace Talks", Reuters, 28 November 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, November 1993.

3794/ "Survivor Tells of Sarajevo Shelling Horror", The Press Association, 28 November 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, November 1993.

3795/ "Bosnian Serbs Attack on Several Fronts: Radio", Agence France Presse, 28 November 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, November 1993.

3796/ Samir Koric, "Bosnian Parties Pessimistic About Geneva Talks", Reuters, 29 November 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, November 1993.

3797/ Sabina Cosic, "Five Die in Sarajevo on Eve of Peace Talks", Reuters, 28 November 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, November 1993.

3798/ Id.

3799/ Id.

3800/ John Kifner, "Serbian Shelling Kills 5 in Sarajevo on the Eve of Peace Talks", New York Times, 29 November 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, November 1993.

3801/ Maggie Fox, "Peace Talks Offer No Let-up For Besieged Sarajevo", Reuters, 30 November 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, November 1993.

3802/ "One Person Killed in Moslem-Croat Fighting in Mostar", Reuters, 29 November 1993 IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, November 1993.

3803/ Roger Cohen, "Bosnian War Rivals Agree to New Direct Talks", New York Times, 30 November 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, November 1993.

3804/ Samir Koric, "Fighting Rages On as Peace Talks Begin", Reuters, 29 November 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, November 1993.

3805/ Maggie Fox, "Peace Talks Offer No Let-Up for Besieged Sarajevo", Reuters, 30 November 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, November 1993.

3806/ Samir Koric, "Fighting Rages On as Peace Talks Begin", Reuters, 29

Notes (continued)

November 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, November 1993.

3807/ ICFY, UNPROFOR Operational Update for 30 November 1994, IHRLI Doc. No. 55317.

3808/ Maggie Fox, "Rival Bosnian Leaders Bicker at Geneva Peace Talks", Reuters, 1 December 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1993.

3809/ Maggie Fox, "Peace Talks Extended, But Shelling Continues in Bosnia", Reuters, 1 December 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1993.

3810/ The Press Association Newsfile, 1 December 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1993.

3811/ "Three Killed as Hospital Comes Under Mortar Fire", Agence France Presse, 1 December 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1993.

3812/ The Press Association Newsfile, 1 December 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1993.

3813/ A press report on 2 December 1993, stated that UN officers were in no doubt where the shells were fired from. "It came from the north, from the direction of Serb positions", said Lieutenant Colonel Bill Aikman. See Jim Muir and Robert Fox, "Nurses Killed in Serb Mortar Attack", Daily Telegraph, 2 December 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1993. Another report stated that UNPROFOR spokesman Idesbald van Biesenbroeck confirmed the BiH army report that the shell had been fired from the Mrkovici zone in the south. See "Serbs Fired on Hospital: UNPROFOR", Agence France Presse, 2 December 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1993.

3814/ "Bosnian Officers Say Hospital Attack Aimed at Peace Talks", Agence France Presse, 1 December 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1993.

3815/ Maggie Fox, "Rival Bosnian Leaders Bicker at Geneva Peace Talks", Reuters, 1 December 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1993.

3816/ Id.

3817/ Roger Cohen, "Once Again, Drawing Maps Divides Balkan Negotiators", New York Times, 1 December 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1993.

3818/ Elaine Sciolino, "US Offers Relief to Bosnia Victims", New York Times, 1 December 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1993.

3819/ "Serbs Fired on Hospital: UNPROFOR", Agence France Presse, 2 December 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1993.

3820/ ICFY, UNPROFOR Operational Update for 1 December 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 55321.

3821/ Maggie Fox, "Peace Talks Extended, But Shelling Continues in Bosnia", Reuters, 1 December 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1993.

3822/ Maggie Fox, "Bosnia Peace Talks Continue, Aid Convoys Move in Bosnia", Reuters, 2 December 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1993.

Notes (continued)

3823/ "Serbs Fired on Hospital: UNPROFOR", Agence France Presse, 2 December 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1993.

3824/ ICFY, UNPROFOR Operational Update for 1 December 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 55321.

3825/ "Shelling to Close Sarajevo Schools", Reuters, 1 December 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1993.

3826/ "Bosnian Officers Say Hospital Attack Aimed at Peace Talks", Agence France Presse, 1 December 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1993.

3827/ Maggie Fox, "Peace Talks Extended, But Shelling Continues in Bosnia", Reuters, 1 December 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1993.

3828/ Id.

3829/ "Bosnian Serbs and Moslems Pore Over Maps, Looking For Roads to Peace", Agence France Presse, 1 December 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1993.

3830/ The Press Association Newsfile, 1 December 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1993.

3831/ Id.

3832/ Maggie Fox, "Shelling Goes on in Bosnia Despite Peace Talks", 2 December 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, 2 December 1993.

3833/ Paul Lewis, "US and Britain Bar Proposal to Give Serbian Winter Fuel", New York Times, 2 December 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1993.

3834/ ICFY, UNPROFOR Operational Update for 2 December 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 55324.

3835/ Id.

3836/ Maggie Fox, "Bosnia Peace Talks Continue, Aid Convoys Move in Bosnia", Reuters, 2 December 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1993.

3837/ Maggie Fox, "Most Sarajevans Angered by Plan to Split Up City", Reuters, 2 December 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1993.

3838/ Phillippe Naughten, "Bosnian Serbs and Moslems Negotiate on Sarajevo", Reuters, 2 December 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1993.

3839/ "Sarajevo Tense After Talks Break Down", Agence France Presse, 4 December 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1993.

3840/ ICFY, UNPROFOR Operational Update for 3 December 1994, IHRLI Doc. No. 55328.

3841/ "Frustrated Bosnian Leaders Return to Renewed Killings", Agence France Presse, 3 December 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1993.

Notes (continued)

3842/ Maggie Fox, "Two French UN Soldiers Wounded in Sarajevo", Reuters, 4 December 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1993.

3843/ "Two French Soldiers Wounded in Sarajevo", Reuters, 4 December 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1993.

3844/ Id.

3845/ "Sarajevo Tense After Talks Break Down", Agence France Presse, 4 December 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1993.

3846/ "Sporadic Shelling in Sarajevo After Peace Talks End", Reuter, 3 December 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1993.

3847/ "Two Die in Shelling Attack Near Bakery", Reuters, 3 December 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1993.

3848/ "Mortar Attack Kills Two in Sarajevo, Wounds French Legionnaire", Agence France Presse, 3 December 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1993.

3849/ The Princip bridge is where the Bosnian Serb Gavrilo Princip shot dead the Grand Duke Franz Ferdinand of Austria-Hungary in 1914.

3850/ "Two Die in Shelling Attack Near Bakery", Reuters, 3 December 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1993.

3851/ Maggie Fox, "Shelling Attacks Continue After Bosnia Peace Talks", Reuters, 3 December 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1993.

3852/ Id.

3853/ Maggie Fox, "Sarajevo Shelled After Peace Talks Adjourn", Reuters, 3 December 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1993.

3854/ "Frustrated Bosnian Leaders Return to Renewed Killings", Agence France Presse, 3 December 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1993.

3855/ Peter S. Green, "Shelling Kills 4 in Sarajevo", United Press International, 3 December 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1993.

3856/ "Frustrated Bosnian Leaders Return to Renewed Killings", Agence France Presse, 3 December 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1993.

3857/ Id.

3858/ Peter S. Green, "Shelling Kills 4 in Sarajevo", United Press International, 3 December 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1993.

3859/ ICFY, UNPROFOR Operational Update for 4 December 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 5531.

3860/ Maggie Fox, "Fog Brings Respite for Sarajevo", Reuters, 4 December 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1993.

3861/ Maggie Fox, "Bosnia's UN Peacekeepers in Firing Line", Reuters, 5 December 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1993.

Notes (continued)

3862/ "Two More UN Casualties in Bosnia-Herzegovina", United Press International, 4 December 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1993.

3863/ Maggie Fox, "Fog Brings Respite for Sarajevo", Reuters, 4 December 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1993.

3864/ "Fog Brings Lull in Serbian Shelling of Sarajevo", New York Times, 5 December 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1993.

3865/ Peter S. Green, "Mild Earthquake Shakes Sarajevo", United Press International, 5 December 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1993.

3866/ Maggie Fox, "Two French UN Soldiers Wounded in Sarajevo", Reuters, 4 December 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1993.

3867/ Maggie Fox, "Rebel Muslims Gain Ground Against Bosnian Army", Reuters, 6 December 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1993.

3868/ ICFY, UNPROFOR Operational Update for 5 December 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 55475.

3869/ Peter S. Green, "Bosnian Government Forces Under Attack From All Sides", United Press International, 5 December 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1993.

3870/ "Moslem Rebel Backed by Serbs: UNPROFOR", Agence France Presse, 5 December 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1993.

3871/ Peter S. Green, "Bosnian Government Forces Under Attack From All Sides", United Press International, 5 December 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1993.

3872/ Maggie Fox, "UN Accuses Serbs of Shelling Sarajevo Populated Areas", Reuters, 7 December 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1993.

3873/ Maggie Fox, "Bosnian Serb and Muslim Leaders Hold Peace Talks", Reuters, 7 December 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1993.

3874/ "Serbs Block Humanitarian Convoys", Agence France Presse, 7 December 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1993.

3875/ Reports described the market as a "makeshift black market", see "Four Killed by Shell in Sarajevo Market", Reuters, 6 December 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1993. The market was also referred to as the Ciglane market, see Peter S. Green, "Five Die as Shell Hits Sarajevo Market", United Press International, 6 December 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1993.

3876/ "Four Die in Sarajevo Shelling", The Press Association, 6 December 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1993; "Serb Gunners Kill Four, Wound 19 in Sarajevo", Reuters, 6 December 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1993.

3877/ "Four Die in Sarajevo Shelling", The Press Association, 6 December 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1993; "Serb Gunners Kill Four, Wound 19 in Sarajevo", Reuters, 6 December 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1993.

Notes (continued)

3878/ Peter S. Green, "Five Die as Shell Hits Sarajevo Market", United Press International, 6 December 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1993; "Sarajevo Shells Blast Sarajevo Market, Cemetery: 5 Dead", Associated Press, 7 December 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1993.

3879/ "Serb Shells Blast Sarajevo Market, Cemetery: 5 Dead", Associated Press, 7 December 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1993.

3880/ Id.

3881/ "Four Die in Sarajevo Shelling", The Press Association, 6 December 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1993.

3882/ "2,000 Bosnian Serb Shells, Toxic Gas Hit Teocak: Radio", Agence France Presse, 6 December 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1993.

3883/ Maggie Fox, "Bosnia Fighting Picks Up Ahead of Peace Talks", Reuters, 6 December 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1993.

3884/ "Tension Builds Throughout Bosnia: UNPROFOR", Agence France Presse, 8 December 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1993.

3885/ Id.

3886/ Maggie Fox, "'Cautious Optimism' After Bosnian Serb-Muslim Talks", Reuters, 8 December 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1993.

3887/ Id.

3888/ Id.

3889/ "Serbs Block Humanitarian Convlys", Agence France Presse, 7 December 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1993.

3890/ Maggie Fox, "Mediators Hope to Keep Bosnian Peace Talks Alive", Reuters, 9 December 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1993.

3891/ Peter S. Green, "Sarajevo Peace Talks Appear Stalled as Fighting Continues", United Press International, 8 December 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1993.

3892/ Maggie Fox, "Serbs, Moslems Hold More Peace Talks", Reuters, 8 December 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1993.

3893/ Id.

3894/ "Eight Killed, 16 Wounded in New Attacks on Sarajevo", Agence France Presse, 9 December 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1993.

3895/ Peter S. Green, "Eight Dead and 26 Wounded in Sarajevo Shellings", United Press International, 9 December 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1993.

3896/ Id.

3897/ Id.

Notes (continued)

3898/ "Eight Killed, 16 Wounded in New Attacks on Sarajevo", Agence France Presse, 9 December 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1993.

3899/ Id.

3900/ "Four Killed in Sarajevo Mortar Attack", Reuters, 9 December 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1993; Peter S. Green, "Eight Dead and 26 Wounded in Sarajevo Shellings", United Press International, 9 December 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1993; "Eight Killed, 16 Wounded in New Attacks on Sarajevo", Agence France Press, 9 December 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1993.

3901/ "Bosnian Peace Talks Called Off", The Press Association, 9 December 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1993.

3902/ Peter S. Green, "Eight Dead and 26 Wounded in Sarajevo Shellings", United Press International, 9 December 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1993.

3903/ Maggie Fox, "Mediators Postpone Bosnian Peace Talks", Reuters, 9 December 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1993.

3904/ Id.

3905/ Maggie Fox, "Bosnia Mediators Schedule New Talks As Fighting Flares", Reuters, 10 December 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1993.

3906/ "Serbs Pound Sarajevo in Renewed Artillery Assault", Agence France Presse, 11 December 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1993.

3907/ Maggie Fox, "Bosnia Mediators Schedule New Talks As Fighting Flares", Reuters, 10 December 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1993.

3908/ ICFY, UNPROFOR Operational Update for 10 December 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 55343.

3909/ Peter S. Green, "UN to Meet Serbs Over Blocked Aid Convoys", United Press International, 11 December 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1993.

3910/ Maggie Fox, "General Alert Sounded As Sarajevo is Shelled", Reuters, 11 December 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1993.

3911/ "Serbs Pound Sarajevo in Renewed Artillery Assault", Agence France Presse, 11 December 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1993.

3912/ "Sarajevo Airport Shelled", United Press International, 11 December 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1993.

3913/ John Kifner, "UN Aides Angry at the Serbs' Blocking of Relief", New York Times, 12 December 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1993.

3914/ Maggie Fox, "General Alert Sounded As Sarajevo is Shelled", Reuters, 11 December 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1993.

3915/ ICFY, UNPROFOR Operational Update for 12 December 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 55346.

Notes (continued)

3916/ Id.

3917/ Maggie Fox, "Purges Renew Morale in Bosnian Army", Reuters, 12 December 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1993.

3918/ ICFY, UNPROFOR Operational Update for 14 December 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 55349.

3919/ "Eight Killed in Shelling Attack on Sarajevo", Reuters, 14 December 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1993.

3920/ ICFY, UNPROFOR Operational Update for 14 December 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 55349.

3921/ Id.

3922/ "Serbs Attack Moslem 'Safe Areas' in Eastern Bosnia", Reuters, 14 December 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1993.

3923/ Maggie Fox, "Eight Killed, 10 Wounded in Attack on Sarajevo", Reuters, 14 December 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1993; "Four Dead Amid Escalation in Fighting", Agence France Presse, 14 December 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1993; Chuck Sudetic, "Intense Shelling and Firefights in Sarajevo Leave 11 Civilians Dead", New York Times, 15 December 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1993.

3924/ Peter S. Green, "Shelling Kills 10, Wounds 22 in Sarajevo", United Press International, 14 December 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1993.

3925/ Maggie Fox, "Eight Killed, 10 Wounded in Attack on Sarajevo", Reuters, 14 December 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1993.

3926/ Peter S. Green, "Shelling Kills 10, Wounds 22 in Sarajevo", United Press International, 14 December 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1993.

3927/ "Ten Dead Amid Escalation in Fighting", Agence France Presse, 14 December 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1993.

3928/ Id.; "Nine Dead Amid Escalation in Fighting", Agence France Presse, 14 December 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1993.

3929/ "Ten Dead Amid Escalation in Fighting", Agence France Presse, 14 December 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1993.

3930/ Id.

3931/ Chuck Sudetic, "Intense Shelling and Firefights in Sarajevo Leave 11 Civilians Dead", New York Times, December 15, 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1993.

3932/ Maggie Fox, "Eight Killed, 10 Wounded in Attack on Sarajevo", Reuters, 14 December 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1993; "Ten Dead Amid Escalation in Fighting", Agence France Presse, 14 December 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1993.

Notes (continued)

3933/ Peter S. Green, "UN Agrees to Serbian Police Escort for Aid Convoys", United Press International, 14 December 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1993.

3934/ "Juppe Calls for UN Air Strikes to Protect Bosnian Aid Convoys", Agence France Presse, 15 December 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1993.

3935/ "British UN Troop Move Blocked By Serbs", The Press Association, 15 December 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1993.

3936/ ICFY, UNPROFOR Operational Update for 15 December 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 55353.

3937/ "Fighting in Sarajevo Kills 11, Wounds 20", Reuters, 15 December 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1993.

3938/ "One Dead, 11 Hurt in Attacks on Sarajevo: Radio", Agence France Presse, 15 December 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1993.

3939/ "Fighting in Sarajevo Kills 11, Wounds 20", Reuters, 15 December 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1993.

3940/ "One Dead, 11 Hurt in Attacks on Sarajevo: Radio", Agence France Presse, 15 December 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1993.

3941/ Maggie Fox, "Serbs Back Rebel Moslems in Inter-Moslem Fighting", Reuters, 16 December 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1993.

3942/ "Shells Rain Down on Sarajevo: 31 Wounded", Agence France Presse, 16 December 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1993.

3943/ Peter S. Green, United Press International, 16 December 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1993.

3944/ Maggie Fox, "New Effort for Bosnian Settlement", Reuters, 17 December 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1993.

3945/ "Serbs Shell Moslem-Led Army in North Bosnia", Reuters, 17 December 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1993.

3946/ "Serbs Pound Center of Sarajevo", Reuters, 16 December 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1993.

3947/ "Heavy Fighting in Sarajevo", Agence France Presse, 16 December 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1993.

3948/ "Shells Rain Down on Sarajevo: 31 Wounded", Agence France Presse, 16 December 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1993.

3949/ "Fighting Flares in Sarajevo", Agence France Presse, 16 December 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1993; "Heavy Fighting in Sarajevo", Agence France Presse, 16 December 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1993.

3950/ Chuck Sudetic, "Bosnian Army Shells Serb-Held Areas of Sarajevo", New York Times, 17 December 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1993.

Notes (continued)

3951/ Maggie Fox, "Muslims, Croats Said to Agree to Christmas Truce", Reuters, 16 December 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1993.

3952/ "Shells Rain Down on Sarajevo: 31 Wounded", Agence France Presse, 16 December 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1993.

3953/ Maggie Fox, "Serbs Back Rebel Moslems in Inter-Moslem Fighting", Reuters, 16 December 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1993.

3954/ Maggie Fox, "British, Canadians Airlift Child Victims from Bosnia", Reuters, 18 December 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1993.

3955/ Id.

3956/ "Serbs Shell Moslem-Led Army in North Bosnia", Reuters, 17 December 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1993.

3957/ "Owen, Stoltenberg in Unscheduled Bosnian Talks", Agence France Presse, 17 December 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1993.

3958/ "Warring Bosnian Parties Agree to Truce Until End of Year", Agence France Presse, 17 December 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1993.

3959/ "Owen, Stoltenberg in Unscheduled Bosnian Talks", Agence France Presse, 17 December 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1993.

3960/ Peter S. Green, United Press International, 18 December 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1993.

3961/ Maggie Fox, "British, Canadians Airlift Child Victims from Bosnia", Reuters, 18 December 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1993.

3962/ Peter S. Green, "Bosnian Serbs Continuing Northward Bosnian Push", United Press International, 18 December 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1993.

3963/ Maggie Fox, "British, Canadians Airlift Child Victims from Bosnia", Reuters, 18 December 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1993.

3964/ Id.

3965/ Id.

3966/ UNPROFOR Press Briefing, Sarajevo, 20 December 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 60579.

3967/ Id.

3968/ Id.

3969/ "Ultranationalism Sets Tone for Serbia Voting, Tally Shows Gains for Opposition", Chicago Tribune, 20 December 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1993.

3970/ Kurt Schork, "Sarajevo Shelled as Bosnian Leaders Leave for Peace Talks", Reuters, 20 December 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1993.

Notes (continued)

3971/ Peter S. Green, "Serbs Shell Muslims and Block Aid Convoys as Geneva Peace Talks Open", United Press International, 21 December 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1993.

3972/ "Fighting Continues on Eve of Bosnian Peace Talks", The Press Association, 20 December 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1993.

3973/ An official UN source, IHRLI Doc. No. 58061; "Aid Flights to Resume After Suspension: UNHCR", Agence France Presse, 21 December 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1993.

3974/ "Heavy Arms Fighting in West Sarajevo", Agence France Presse, 21 December 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1993.

3975/ Kurt Schork, "Sarajevo Shelled as Bosnian Leaders Leave for Peace Talks", Reuters, 20 December 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1993.

3976/ "Moslems Attack Croats in Central Bosnia", Reuters, 22 December 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1993.

3977/ ICFY, UNPROFOR Operational Update for 21 December 1994, IHRLI Doc. No. 58064.

3978/ Peter S. Green, "Serbs Shell Muslims and Block Aid Convoys as Geneva Peace Talks Open", United Press International, 21 December 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1993.

3979/ Id.

3980/ "Heavy Arms Fighting in West Sarajevo", Agence France Presse, 21 December 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1993.

3981/ "Aid Flights to Resume After Suspension: UNHCR", Agence France Presse, 21 December 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1993.

3982/ Kurt Schork, "UN to Restore Lifeline to Besieged Bosnian Capital", Reuters, 21 December 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1993.

3983/ Kurt Schork, "Fighting Rages in Sarajevo and Central Bosnia", Reuters, 22 December 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1993.

3984/ ICFY, UNPROFOR Operational Update for 22 December 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 58076; Kurt Schork, "Heavy Fighting Just Before Bosnia Truce", Reuters, 23 December 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1993

3985/ ICFY, UNPROFOR Operational Update for 22 December 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 58076; Kurt Schork, "Heavy Fighting Just Before Bosnia Truce", Reuters, 23 December 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1993

3986/ "Moslems Attack Croats in Central Bosnia", Reuters, 22 December 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1993.

3987/ Kurt Schork, "Fighting Rages in Sarajevo and Central Bosnia", Reuters, 22 December 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1993.

3988/ John Kifner, "Majority Eludes Leader in Serbia", New York Times, 22 December 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1993.

Notes (continued)

3989/ Id.

3990/ Bill Lamp, "Bosnian Parties Agree to Cease-Fire: Talks Otherwise Stalled", United Press International, 22 December 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1993.

3991/ Id.

3992/ Id.

3993/ ICFY, UNPROFOR Operational Update for 23 December 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 58070; Kurt Schork, "Fighting Breaks Christmas Truce in Bosnia", Reuters, 24 December 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1993.

3994/ ICFY, UNPROFOR Operational Update for 23 December 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 58070.

3995/ "Two Killed, 39 Wounded in Sarajevo on First Day of Truce", Agence France Presse, 23 December 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1993.

3996/ "Firing in Sarajevo Despite Christmas Truce", Agence France Presse, 23 December 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1993.

3997/ "Moslems Advance Against Croats, Battle Serbs in Sarajevo", Reuters, 23 December 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1993.

3998/ Kurt Schork, "Bosnian Rivals Fight as Truce Deadline Approaches", Reuters, 23 December 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1993.

3999/ "Sarajevo, 23 December", Agence France Presse, 23 December 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1993.

4000/ Kurt Schork, "Bosnian Rivals Fight as Truce Deadline Approaches", Reuters, 23 December 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1993.

4001/ "Firing in Sarajevo Despite Christmas Truce", Agence France Presse, 23 December 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1993.

4002/ "Bosnian Slaughter Continues as Christmas Nears", United Press International, 23 December 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1993.

4003/ Kurt Schork, "Heavy Fighting Just Before Bosnia Truce", Reuters, 23 December 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1993.

4004/ "Two Killed, 39 Wounded in Sarajevo on First Day of Truce", Agence France Presse, 23 December 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1993.

4005/ Kurt Schork, "Bosnian Rivals Fight as Truce Deadline Approaches", Reuters, 23 December 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1993.

4006/ Graham Brown, "Owen Calls for Final Push for Peace by January", Agence France Presse, 23 December 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1993; "Tudjman Demands Moslem Ceasefire, Hints at Reprisals", Agence France Presse, 23 December 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1993.

4007/ "Juppe Indignant Over Renewed Bosnia Fighting", Reuters, 24 December 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1993.

Notes (continued)

4008/ Kurt Schork, "Bosnian President Scolds Europe on Lack of Will", Reuters, 24 December 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1993.

4009/ Kurt Schork, "Fighting Breaks Christmas Truce in Bosnia", Reuters, 24 December 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1993.

4010/ Kurt Schork, "Bosnia Rivals Make Mockery of Christmas Truce", Reuters, 24 December 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1993.

4011/ Id.

4012/ Kurt Schork, "Bosnian President Scolds Europe on Lack of Will", Reuters, 24 December 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1993.

4013/ Kurt Schork, "Fighting Breaks Christmas Truce in Bosnia", Reuters, 24 December 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1993.

4014/ "Juppe Indignant Over Renewed Bosnia Fighting", Reuters, 24 December 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1993.

4015/ Kurt Schork, "Bosnia Rivals Make Mockery of Christmas Truce", Reuters, 24 December 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1993.

4016/ Associated Press, "Land-Grab Battles Rage in Bosnia", Chicago Tribune, 27 December 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1993.

4017/ Id.

4018/ "Sarajevans Spend Another Christmas Under Fire From Serbians", Chicago Tribune Wires, 26 December 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1993.

4019/ Hrvoje Hranjski, "Heavy Fighting in Central Bosnia, Shells Fall Close to UN Command", United Press International, 26 December 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1993.

4020/ "Sarajevans Spend Another Christmas Under Fire From Serbians", Chicago Tribune Wires, 26 December 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1993.

4021/ Id.

4022/ "Kinkel Condemns Sarajevo Fighting", Reuters, 25 December 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1993.

4023/ Hrvoje Hranjski, "Heavy Fighting in Central Bosnia, Shells Fall Close to UN Command", United Press International, 26 December 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1993.

4024/ "Fierce Fighting Erupts in Sarajevo", Reuters, 26 December 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1993.

4025/ Kurt Schork, "Muslim-Led Forces Fight Serbs, Croats in Bosnia", Reuters, 26 December 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1993.

4026/ "Fierce Fighting Erupts in Sarajevo", Reuters, 26 December 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1993.

Notes (continued)

4027/ Hrvoje Hranjski, "Heavy Fighting in Central Bosnia, Shells Fall Close to UN Command", United Press International, 26 December 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1993.

4028/ Pierre Lhuillery, "Combat in Sarajevo Intensify Despite Truce", Agence France Presse, 26 December 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1993.

4029/ Kurt Schork, "Muslim-Led Forces Fight Serbs, Croats in Bosnia", Reuters, 26 December 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1993.

4030/ Id.

4031/ Hrvoje Hranjski, "Heavy Fighting in Central Bosnia, Shells Fall Close to UN Command", United Press International, 26 December 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1993.

4032/ Pierre Lhuillery, "Combat in Sarajevo Intensify Despite Truce", Agence France Presse, 26 December 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1993.

4033/ Kurt Schork, "Fighting Takes Heavy Toll in Sarajevo", Reuters, 27 December 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1993.

4034/ Kurt Schork, "Bosnia Fighting Makes Mockery of Christmas Truce", Reuters, 27 December 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1993.

4035/ "Sarajevo Quiet, Moslems Fail to Take Serb Area: UN", Agence France Presse, 27 December 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1993.

4036/ "Flouting UN Pleas, Serbs Bombard Sarajevo: 7 Die", Associated Press, 28 December 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1993.

4037/ ICFY, UNPROFOR Operational Update for 27 December 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 58078.

4038/ Kurt Schork, "Fighting Takes Heavy Toll in Sarajevo", Reuters, 27 December 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1993.

4039/ "Flouting UN Pleas, Serbs Bombard Sarajevo: 7 Die", Associated Press, 28 December 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1993.

4040/ Kurt Schork, "Fighting Takes Heavy Toll in Sarajevo", Reuters, 27 December 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1993; "UN Commander Calls for Cease-Fire Observance as Sarajevo Freezes", United Press International, 27 December 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1993.

4041/ "UN Commander Calls for Cease-Fire Observance as Sarajevo Freezes", United Press International, 27 December 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1993.

4042/ ICFY, UNPROFOR Operational Update for 28 December 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 58081; Kurt Schork, "Sarajevo Evacuees Take Hard Road To Freedom", Reuters, 29 December 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1993.

4043/ ICFY, UNPROFOR Operational Update for 28 December 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 58081.

Notes (continued)

4044/ Giles Tremlett, "Sarajevo Goes Fifth Day Without Electricity", United Press International, 29 December 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1993.

4045/ ICFY, UNPROFOR Operational Update for 28 December 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 58081; Kurt Schork, "Sarajevo Evacuees Take Hard Road To Freedom", Reuters, 29 December 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1993.

4046/ Kurt Schork, "Sarajevo Evacuees Take Hard Road To Freedom", Reuters, 29 December 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1993.

4047/ "After Months Delay, Refugees Flee Sarajevo", Associated Press, 29 December 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1993.

4048/ "Fighting Eases in Bosnia, But Sarajevo Freezes Without Power", United Press International, 30 December 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1993.

4049/ ICFY, UNPROFOR Operational Update for 29 December 1994, IHRLI Doc. No. 58084.

4050/ Giles Tremlett, "Sarajevo Goes Fifth Day Without Electricity", United Press International, 29 December 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1993.

4051/ Id.

4052/ Id.

4053/ Charles Miller, "RAF Celebrates 1,000 Sarajevo Mercy Flights", The Press Association, 29 December 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1993.

4054/ "UN Bosnia Commander Wants More Troops, Fewer Resolutions", New York Times, 31 December 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1993.

4055/ Kurt Schork, "Sarajevo Evacuees Limp Out of Bosnia", Reuters, 30 December 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1993.

4056/ Id.

4057/ "Bosnian Sniper Responsible for Seriously Wounding French Soldier", Agence France Presse, 31 December 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1993.

4058/ ICFY, UNPROFOR Operational Update, 30 December 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 58087; "Fighting Eases in Bosnia, But Sarajevo Freezes Without Power", United Press International, 30 December 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1993.

4059/ Kurt Schork, "Sarajevo Evacuees Limp Out of Bosnia", Reuters, 30 December 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1993.

4060/ Paul Harris, "Bosnia-Hercegovina: No Respite in Death's Cold Waiting Room", Inter Press Service, 30 December 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1993.

Notes (continued)

4061/ "`Peoples Convoy' Limp Into Croatia", The Press Association, 30 December 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1993.

4062/ Kurt Schork, "Sarajevo Evacuees Limp Out of Bosnia", Reuters, 30 December 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1993.

4063/ "For Sarajevans, Final Hours of '93 Filled With Mortars", Associated Press, 1 January 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1993.

4064/ "Three Killed in Sarajevo Bombardment", Agence France Presse, 31 December 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1993.

4065/ Giles Tremlett, "Four Killed in New Year's Eve Bombing of Downtown Sarajevo", United Press International, 31 December 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1993.

4066/ Kurt Schork, "Gunfire Ushers in the New Year for Sarajevo", Reuters, 31 December 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1993.

4067/ "Three Killed in Sarajevo Bombardment", Agence France Presse, 31 December 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, December 1993.

4068/ "For Sarajevans, Final Hours of '93 Filled With Mortars", Associated Press, 1 January 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1994.

4069/ "Three U.N. Sites Shelled in Sarajevo", Agence France Presse, 1 January 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1994.

4070/ "Bosnian Fighting Widespread", United Press International, 2 January 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1994.

4071/ Kurt Schork, "Shelling Sets Tone for 1994 in Besieged Sarajevo", Reuters, 2 January 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1994.

4072/ "Two Killed in New Year's Day Shelling", Agence France Presse, 1 January 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1994.

4073/ "Shelling Injures 10 in Sarajevo", Agence France Presse, 1 January 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1994.

4074/ Id.

4075/ "Three U.N. Sites Shelled in Sarajevo", Agence France Presse, 1 January 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1994.

4076/ Kurt Schork, "Shelling Sets Tone for 1994 in Besieged Sarajevo", Reuters, 2 January 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1994.

4077/ Id.

4078/ "Bosnian Fighting Widespread", United Press International, 2 January 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1994.

4079/ Kurt Schork, "Snipers Claim Another Sarajevo Victim", Reuters, 2 January 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1994.

4080/ "Bosnian Fighting Widespread", United Press International, 2

Notes (continued)

January 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1994.

4081/ "Six Killed, 34 Wounded as Shells Pound Sarajevo", Reuters, 3 January 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1994.

4082/ Id.

4083/ "Croatian-Moslem Talks, UN Ready For Military Intervention", Agence France Presse, 3 January 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1994.

4084/ Victoria Stegic, "More Die as Heavy Explosions Rock Sarajevo", Agence France Presse, 4 January 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1994.

4085/ Tribune Wires, "New Sarajevo Shelling Kills Kindergartner", Chicago Tribune, 4 January 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1994.

4086/ "15 Dead in Sarajevo Bombardment", The Press Association, 3 January 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1994; Samir Koric, "Sole Survivor of Sarajevo Family Cries for Revenge", Reuters, 4 January 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1994; Kurt Schork, "Nine Killed, 48 Wounded in Sarajevo Shelling", Reuters, 4 January 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1994; Chuck Sudetic, "One Shell: 6 Deaths, Many Tears", New York Times News Service, 5 January 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1994; Chuck Sudetic, "Sarajevo Family's Fate: Shell Kills 3 Generations", New York Times, 5 January 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1994.

4087/ "Six Killed, 34 Wounded as Shells Pound Sarajevo", Reuters, 3 January 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1994.

4088/ "15 Dead in Sarajevo Bombardment", The Press Association, 3 January 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1994; Samir Koric, "Sole Survivor of Sarajevo Family Cries for Revenge", Reuters, 4 January 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1994; Kurt Schork, "Nine Killed, 48 Wounded in Sarajevo Shelling", Reuters, 4 January 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1994; Chuck Sudetic, "One Shell: 6 Deaths, Many Tears", New York Times News Service, 5 January 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1994; Chuck Sudetic, "Sarajevo Family's Fate: Shell Kills 3 Generations", New York Times, 5 January 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1994.

4089/ "15 Dead in Sarajevo Bombardment", The Press Association, 3 January 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1994.

4090/ Kurt Schork, "Four Killed in Sarajevo on Eve of New Peace Attempt", Reuters, 3 January 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1994.

4091/ "Croatian-Moslem Talks, UN Ready For Military Intervention", Agence France Presse, 3 January 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1994.

4092/ Kurt Schork, "Four Killed in Sarajevo on Eve of New Peace Attempt", Reuters, 3 January 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1994.

4093/ Kurt Schork, "No Sign of Anything But More Fighting in Bosnia",

Notes (continued)

Reuters, 3 January 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1994.

4094/ "Missing Bosnian General Found ", Agence France Presse, 3 January 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1994.

4095/ Chuck Sudetic, "One Shell: 6 Deaths, Many Tears", New York Times News Service, 5 January 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1994.

4096/ "Eight Killed in Shelling--Bosnian Radio", Reuters, 4 January 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1994.

4097/ "Nine Killed in Sarajevo Before Vienna Peace Talks", Reuters, 4 January 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1994.

4098/ Giles Tremlett, "More Than 140,000 Dead in Bosnian War", United Press International, 4 January 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1994.

4099/ "One Killed, 10 Wounded in New Sarajevo Shelling", Reuters, 4 January 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1994.

4100/ Kurt Schork, "Sarajevo Shelled Ahead of Vienna Peace Talks", Reuters, 4 January 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1994.

4101/ Giles Tremlett, "Nine Civilians Die in Sarajevo", United Press International, 4 January 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1994.

4102/ Agence France Presse, 4 January 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1994.

4103/ Victoria Stegic, "More Die as Heavy Explosions Rock Sarajevo", Agence France Presse, 4 January 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1994.

4104/ Kurt Schork, "Nine Killed, 48 Wounded in Sarajevo Shelling", Reuters, 4 January 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1994.

4105/ "Nine Killed in Sarajevo Before Vienna Peace Talks", Reuters, 4 January 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1994.

4106/ Srecko Latal, "Briquemont to Leave Bosnia, Sarajevo Shelling Heavy", Reuters, 5 January 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1994.

4107/ Briquemont reportedly saw a direct connection between the shelling of the city and the peace process. "Each party wants to show it has the ability to go on fighting, that it is strong enough to withstand pressure from other factions", he said recently.

4108/ "Nine Killed in Sarajevo Before Vienna Peace Talks", Reuters, 4 January 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1994.

4109/ Srecko Latal, "Briquemont to Leave Bosnia, Sarajevo Shelling Heavy", Reuters, 5 January 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1994.

4110/ Tribune Wires, "1,353 Serbian Shells Fall On Sarajevo: 5-Day Death Toll Rises to 33", Chicago Tribune, 6 January 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1994.

Notes (continued)

4111/ Giles Tremlett, "Flights Into Sarajevo Suspended After Airport Shelled", United Press International, 5 January 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1994.

4112/ "Power-Starved Sarajevo Faces Prolonged Shortage", Agence France Presse, 5 January 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1994.

4113/ Kurt Schork, "Bosnians, Croats Talk Peace While Sarajevo Hit Again", Reuters, 5 January 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1994.

4114/ ICFY, UNPROFOR Operational Update for 5 January 1994, IHRLI Doc. No. 58918; Giles Tremlett, "Flights Into Sarajevo Suspended After Airport Shelled", United Press International, 5 January 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1994.

4115/ Giles Tremlett, "Flights Into Sarajevo Suspended After Airport Shelled", United Press International, 5 January 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1994.

4116/ "Sarajevo's Holiday Inn Takes Direct Hit", The Press Association, 5 January 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1994.

4117/ Giles Tremlett, "Flights Into Sarajevo Suspended After Airport Shelled", United Press International, 5 January 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1994.

4118/ "Fighting in Bosnian Capital", Reuters, 5 January 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1994.

4119/ "Urgent, Sarajevo", Agence France Presse, 5 January 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1994.

4120/ Kurt Schork, "Bosnians, Croats Talk Peace While Sarajevo Hit Again", Reuters, 5 January 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1994.

4121/ Kurt Schork, "Fighting in Bosnia Shadows Vienna Peace Talks", Reuters, 5 January 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1994.

4122/ "Power-Starved Sarajevo Faces Prolonged Shortage", Agence France Presse, 5 January 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1994.

4123/ Srečko Latal, "Briquemont to Leave Bosnia, Sarajevo Shelling Heavy", Reuters, 5 January 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1994.

4124/ Kurt Schork, "Bosnians, Croats Talk Peace While Sarajevo Hit Again", Reuters, 5 January 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1994.

4125/ Id.

4126/ Kurt Schork, "Five Killed As Moslems, Serbs Fight in Sarajevo", Reuters, 6 January 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1994.

4127/ "Power-Starved Sarajevo Faces Prolonged Shortage", Agence France Presse, 5 January 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1994.

4128/ Id.

Notes (continued)

4129/ Aida Cerkez, Associated Press, 6 January 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1994; "Sarajevo Shelling Begins Before Dawn", Reuters, 6 January 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1994; Kurt Schork, "17 Wounded As Muslims, Serbs Fight in Sarajevo", Reuters, 6 January 1994.

4130/ Aida Cerkez, Associated Press, 6 January 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1994.

4131/ Kurt Schork, "Five Killed As Moslems, Serbs Fight in Sarajevo", Reuters, 6 January 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1994.

4132/ "Power-Starved Sarajevo Faces Prolonged Shortage", Agence France Presse, 5 January 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1994.

4133/ Kurt Schork, "Five Killed As Moslems, Serbs Fight in Sarajevo", Reuters, 6 January 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1994.

4134/ "Power-Starved Sarajevo Faces Prolonged Shortage", Agence France Presse, 5 January 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1994.

4135/ "Sarajevans Bury Family as Shells Whistle Overhead", Reuters, 6 January 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1994.

4136/ Kurt Schork, "U.N. Finds Evidence of Starvation in Bosnia", Reuters, 6 January 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1994.

4137/ Chuck Sudetic, "Heavy Shelling and Firefights Rake Sarajevo", New York Times, 6 January 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1994.

4138/ "Seven Dead, 25 Wounded in Sarajevo Shelling", Agence France Presse, 7 January 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1994.

4139/ Id.

4140/ "Fighting Eases Around Grbavica Suburb", Agence France Presse, 4 January 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1994.

4141/ ICFY, UNPROFOR Operational Update for 7 January 1994, IHLRI Doc. No. 58921.

4142/ "Seven Dead, 25 Wounded in Sarajevo Shelling", Agence France Presse, 7 January 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1994.

4143/ "Six Die in Sarajevo Fighting, Airport Stays Closed", Reuters, 7 January 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1994.

4144/ "Seven Dead, 25 Wounded in Sarajevo Shelling", Agence France Presse, 7 January 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1994.

4145/ Id.

4146/ "Fighting Eases Around Grbavica Suburb", Agence France Presse, 4 January 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1994.

4147/ Kurt Schork, "Six Die in Sarajevo Fighting, Airport Stays Closed", Reuters, 7 January 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1994.

Notes (continued)

4148/ Tribune Wires, "Envoys Tell Serb President to Rein in Bosnian Gunners", Chicago Tribune, 8 January 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1994.

4149/ Reports noted that this statement mentioned Bosnian Serbs only once after Russia elicited a report from UN officials that BiH forces had helped to provoke the latest offensive by shelling several Serb-held areas of the city. But Undersecretary-General Chinmaya Gharekhan, told the Council that the recent Serb shelling of the city was disproportionate to any provocation, diplomats said. See Evelyn Leopold, "U.N. Council Condemns Serb Bombing of Sarajevo", Reuters, 7 January 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1994.

4150/ Evelyn Leopold, "U.S., Britain Ask Milosevic to Stop Sarajevo Bombs", Reuters, 7 January 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1994.

4151/ Steve Holland, "NATO Summit to Take Up Question of Bosnia", Reuters, 7 January 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source file, January 1994.

4152/ "Yugoslav Talks To Resume Amid Hints of UN Withdrawal", Agence France Presse, 7 January 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1994.

4153/ Id.

4154/ Giles Tremlett, "Airport Shelled as U.N. Representative Arrives in Sarajevo", United Press International, 9 January 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1994.

4155/ "Twelve Dead, 36 Wounded in Sarajevo Artillery Barrage", Agence France Presse, 8 January 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1994.

4156/ ICFY, UNPROFOR Operational Update for 8 January 1994, IHRLI Doc. No. 58924.

4157/ Id.

4158/ "U.N. Chief Denies Yugoslav Commander Power to Call Air Strikes", United Press International, 8 January 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1994.

4159/ Giles Tremlett, "U.N. Leader Denies Requesting Air Strikes", United Press International, 8 January 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1994.

4160/ "Bosnian Serbs Call Truce and Then Bombard Sarajevo", Chicago Tribune, 9 January 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1994.

4161/ Id.

4162/ "Two Dead, 10 Wounded in Sarajevo Shelling", Reuters, 8 January 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1994.

4163/ "Twelve Dead, 36 Wounded in Sarajevo Artillery Barrage", Agence France Presse, 8 January 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1994.

4164/ ICFY, UNPROFOR Operational Update for 8 January 1994, IHRLI Doc. No. 58924.

Notes (continued)

4165/ Chuck Sudetic, "U.N. Accuses Bosnia Army of Setting Off New Attacks", New York Times, 8 January 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1994.

4166/ Kurt Schork, "Water Dispute Causes Queues During Sarajevo Shelling", Reuters, 8 January 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1994.

4167/ Chuck Sudetic, "U.N. Accuses Bosnia Army of Setting Off New Attacks", New York Times, 8 January 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1994.

4168/ "Sarajevo Airport to Reopen on Sunday", Reuters, 8 January 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1994.

4169/ Giles Tremlett, "U.N. Chief Denies Yugoslav Commander Power to Call Air Strikes", United Press International, 8 January 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1994.

4170/ Giles Tremlett, "U.N. Leader Denies Requesting Air Strikes", United Press International, 8 January 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1994.

4171/ ICFY, UNPROFOR Operational Update for 9 January 1994, IHRLI Doc. No. 58928.

4172/ Aida Cerkez, Associated Press, 9 January 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1994.

4173/ Kurt Schork, "Moslems, Croats Fight As Leaders Start Talks", Reuters, 9 January 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1994.

4174/ Giles Tremlett, "Airport Shelled as U.N. Representative Arrives in Sarajevo", United Press International, 9 January 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1994.

4175/ Aida Cerkez, Associated Press, 9 January 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1994.

4176/ Kurt Schork, "Sarajevo Airport Closure Hits Bosnia Peace Talks", Reuters, 9 January 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1994.

4177/ "U.N. Special Envoy Arrives in Sarajevo", Agence France Presse, 9 January 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1994.

4178/ Kurt Schork, "Moslems, Croats Fight As Leaders Start Talks", Reuters, 9 January 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1994.

4179/ "Delayed Bosnian Peace Talks Open In Bonn", Reuters, 9 January 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1994.

4180/ "Any NATO Airstrikes in Bosnia Not Expected For At Least `Next Few Days'", United Press International, 9 January 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1994.

4181/ ICFY, UNPROFOR Operational Update for 10 January 1994, IHRLI Doc. No. 58930.

Notes (continued)

4182/ Id.

4183/ Reuters, "Shells Hit Sarajevo As Rivals Meet in Bonn", International Herald Tribune, 11 January 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1994.

4184/ ICFY, UNPROFOR Operational Update for 10 January 1994, IHRLI Doc. No. 58930.

4185/ Giles Tremlett, "U.N. Forces in Bosnia Developing Close Air Support Procedures", United Press International, 10 January 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1994.

4186/ Reuters, 10 January 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1994.

4187/ Chris Helgren, "Shells Hit Sarajevo As NATO Considers Air Strikes", Reuters, 10 January 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1994.

4188/ "NATO Summit Says Ready For Bosnia Air Strikes", Reuters, 10 January 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1994.

4189/ Sue Baker, "New Croat Proposals At Bosnian-Croat Talks", Reuters, 10 January 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1994.

4190/ "Serb Shelling Hammers Bosnian Capital", Washington Post, 11 January 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1994.

4191/ Chris Helgren, "Three Die in Sarajevo While U.N. Weighs NATO Strike Threat", Reuters, 12 January 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1994.

4192/ Agence France Presse, 11 January 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1994.

4193/ ICFY, UNPROFOR Operational Update for 11 January 1994, IHRLI Doc. No. 58933.

4194/ Samir Koric, "Nine Killed in Sarajevo Shelling", Reuters, 11 January 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1994.

4195/ Id.

4196/ Chirs Helgren, "Bosnian Rivals Ignore Airstrike Threats and Peace Talks", Reuters, 11 January 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1994.

4197/ Samir Koric, "Nine Killed in Sarajevo Shelling", Reuters, 11 January 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1994.

4198/ Giles Tremlett, "Red Cross Denounces Shelling of Sarajevo Office", United Press International, 12 January 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1994; "Boutros Ghali Has 'No Idea' On Yugo Air Strikes", Agence France Presse, 12 January 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1994.

4199/ Chuck Sudetic, "In Death, Sarajevo Woman Becomes A Symbol", New York Times, 13 January 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1994.

Notes (continued)

4200/ Hrvoje Hranjski, "U.N. Halts Aid Airlift Because of Shelling", United Press International, 11 January 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1994; ITAR-TASS, "Artillery Fire Exchanges Continue in Sarajevo", The Telegraph Agency of the Soviet Union, 11 January 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1994.

4201/ "Mortar Round Hits Sarajevo Runway, Airlift Halted", Reuters, 11 January 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1994.

4202/ Chuck Sudetic, "The NATO Summit: Serbs Pound Sarajevo Again and Bosnians Counterattack", New York Times, 12 January 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1994.

4203/ ICFY, UNPROFOR Operational Update for 11 January 1994, IHRLI Doc. No. 58933.

4204/ Victoria Stegic, "Sarajevo Hit By Heavy Shelling As Serbs Dismiss NATO Threat", Agence France Presse, 11 January 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1994.

4205/ Bill Lamp, "NATO Leaders End Summit That Transforms Alliance", United Press International, 11 January 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1994.

4206/ Samir Koric, "Sarajevo Shelling Continues Despite Air Strike Threat", Reuters, 13 January 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1994.

4207/ Giles Tremlett, "Shelling Continues in Sarajevo", United Press International, 12 January 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1994.

4208/ "Five Killed in Sarajevo", Agence France Presse, 12 January 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1994.

4209/ Giles Tremlett, "Shelling Continues in Sarajevo", United Press International, 12 January 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1994.

4210/ Hrvoje Hranjski, "North Bosnia Enclaves Warns of Impending Humanitarian Disaster", United Press International, 12 January 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1994.

4211/ Giles Tremlett, "Shelling Continues in Sarajevo", United Press International, 12 January 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1994.

4212/ Chris Helgren, "Three Die in Sarajevo While U.N. Weighs NATO Strike Threat", Reuters, 12 January 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1994.

4213/ Samir Koric, "Sarajevo Shelling Continues Despite Air Strike Threat", Reuters, 13 January 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1994.

4214/ ICFY, UNPROFOR Operational Update for 13 January 1994, IHRLI Doc. No. 58936.

4215/ Id.

4216/ Samir Koric, "Sarajevo Shelling Continues Despite Air Strike Threat", Reuters, 13 January 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1994.

Notes (continued)

4217/ Id.

4218/ Id.

4219/ Samir Koric, "Just Another Day in Sarajevo's State Hospital", Reuters, 13 January 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1994.

4220/ Samir Koric, "Sarajevo Shelling Continues Despite Air Strike Threat", Reuters, 13 January 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1994.

4221/ Mark Heinrich, "Angry Bosnian PM Threatens Boycott of Geneva Talks", Reuters, 14 January 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1994.

4222/ Mark Heinrich, "Four Wounded in Sarajevo After Bosnia Boycott Threat", Reuters, 15 January 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1994.

4223/ Mark Heinrich, "Angry Bosnian PM Threatens Boycott of Geneva Talks", Reuters, 14 January 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1994.

4224/ Id.

4225/ "Small Arms Fire in Sarajevo, Respite in Shelling", Reuters, 14 January 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1994.

4226/ Samir Koric, "Four Die in Latest Sarajevo Shelling", Reuters, 14 January 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1994.

4227/ Mark Heinrich, "Angry Bosnian PM Threatens Boycott of Geneva Talks", Reuters, 14 January 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1994.

4228/ ICFY, UNPROFOR Operational Update for 15 January 1994, IHRLI Doc. No. 58942.

4229/ Mark Heinrich, "Four Wounded In Sarajevo After Bosnia Boycott Threat", Reuters, 15 January 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1994.

4230/ "Sarajevo Quiet After Bosnian Premier's Threat", Reuters, 15 January 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1994.

4231/ ICFY, UNPROFOR Operational Update for 15 January 1994, IHRLI Doc. No. 58942.

4232/ Giles Tremlett, "Bosnian Prime Minister Holds Out Little Hope for Geneva Talks", United Press International, 15 January 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1994.

4233/ "Bosnian Leaders Prepare For Talks In Uncompromising Mood", Reuters, 16 January 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1994.

4234/ Mark Heinrich, "Bosnian Town Hit, Government Appeals To Moslem States", Reuters, 17 January 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1994.

4235/ "Bosnian Leaders Prepare For Talks In Uncompromising Mood", Reuters, 16 January 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1994.

4236/ Mark Heinrich, "Bosnian Rivals Step Up War Talk Ahead of Peace Talks", Reuters, 16 January 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1994.

Notes (continued)

4237/ Id.

4238/ "Bosnian Leaders Prepare For Talks In Uncompromising Mood", Reuters, 16 January 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1994.

4239/ Mark Heinrich, "Moslems Make Small Dent In Serb Siege Line", Reuters, 17 January 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1994.

4240/ Giles Tremlett, "Five Killed, 20 Wounded In Sarajevo On Eve Of Talks", United Press International, 17 January 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1994.

4241/ Id.

4242/ "Serbs Allow Replacement of UN Troops In Besieged Moslem Enclave", Agence France Presse, 18 January 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1994.

4243/ Mark Heinrich, "Moslems Make Small Dent In Serb Siege Line", Reuters, 17 January 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1994.

4244/ Victoria Stegic, "Serb Artillery Bombards Central Bosnian Town of Zenica", Agence France Presse, 17 January 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1994.

4245/ Mark Heinrich, "Moslems Make Small Dent in Serb Siege Line", Reuters, 17 January 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1994.

4246/ Victoria Stegic, "Serb Artillery Bombards Central Bosnian Town of Zenica", Agence France Presse, 17 January 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1994.

4247/ Mark Heinrich, "Hopes For Bosnia Peace Fade On Eve Of Geneva Talks", Reuters, 17 January 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1994.

4248/ Mark Heinrich, "Bosnian Town Hit, Muslim States Back Government", Reuters, 17 January 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1994.

4249/ ICFY, UNPROFOR Operational Update for 18 January 1994, IHRLI Doc. No. 59809.

4250/ "First Death-Free Day In Bosnian Capital This Year", Agence France Presse, 18 January 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1994.

4251/ Giles Tremlett, "Winter Weather Slows Fighting in Bosnia-Herzegovina", United Press International, 18 January 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1994.

4252/ Maud S. Beelman, Associated Press, 18 January 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1994.

4253/ Id.

4254/ Mark Heinrich, "Bosnian Peace Talks Resume Under Cloud of War", Reuters, 18 January 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1994.

4255/ "No Headway In Bosnia Peace Talks", The Press Association, 18

Notes (continued)

January 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1994.

4256/ Mark Heinrich, "Bosnian Peace Talks Resume Under Cloud of War", Reuters, 18 January 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1994.

4257/ Mark Heinrich, "Bosnian Moslems Reject `Rotten Compromise'", Reuters, 20 January 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1994.

4258/ Mark Heinrich, "Serbs, Croats Reach Accord But No Peace Deal For Bosnia", Reuters, 20 January 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1994.

4259/ Mark Heinrich, "Sarajevo Airlift Suspended, Zagreb and Belgrade Reach Accord", Reuters, 19 January 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1994.

4260/ Mark Heinrich, "Serbs, Croats Reach Accord But No Peace Deal For Bosnia", Reuters, 20 January 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1994.

4261/ Mark Heinrich, "Zagreb and Belgrade Mend Fences As Bosnia Talks Falter", Reuters, 19 January 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1994.

4262/ Id.

4263/ Mark Heinrich, "Clashes Flare Across Bosnia As Peace Talks Stall", Reuters, 19 January 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1994.

4264/ ICFY, UNPROFOR Operational Update for 20 January 1994, IHRLI Doc. No. 59812.

4265/ Id.

4266/ Id.

4267/ Mark Heinrich, "U.N. Says Aid Effort Choked By Bosnia Fighting", Reuters, 20 January 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1994.

4268/ Mark Heinrich, "Bosnian Moslems Reject `Rotten Compromise'", Reuters, 20 January 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1994.

4269/ John Pomfret, "U.N. Operation in Bosnia Unraveling As Crises Mount", Washington Post, 21 January 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1994.

4270/ "Bosnian Fighting Calms As Snow Sweeps Sarajevo", United Press International, 21 January 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1994.

4271/ Id.

4272/ Victoria Stegic, "Calm Returns To Sarajevo As Residents Gather To Pray For Peace", Agence France Presse, 23 January 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1994.

4273/ This is an exposed area of high-rise buildings that has come under heavy fire during the siege. A teacher and several children were killed there in November when mortar bombs hit near the entrance of a local school.

4274/ Joseph Chrysdale, "Shell Kills Six Children In Sarajevo", United

Notes (continued)

Press International, 22 January 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1994; "Six Children Die In Sarajevo As They Play in Snow", Reuters, 22 January 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1994; "Six Children Die In Sarajevo Shelling", The Press Association, 22 January 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1994; John Pomfret, "In Suffering Lands, Children Under Siege: In Sarajevo, Mortar Kills 6 Sledgers", Washington Post, 23 January 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1994.

4275/ "Six Children Die As Shell Shatters Sarajevo Calm", Agence France Presse, 22 January 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1994.

4276/ "Six Children Die In Sarajevo Shelling", The Press Association, 22 January 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1994.

4277/ Mark Heinrich, "Six Children Die in Sarajevo Bombing", Reuters, 22 January 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1994.

4278/ "Six Children Die As Shell Shatters Sarajevo Calm", Agence France Presse, 22 January 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1994.

4279/ ICFY, UNPROFOR Operational Update for 23 January 1994, IHRLI Doc. No. 59822; "Children Die In Second Shell Blast: Report", Agence France Presse, 23 January 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1994.

4280/ Mark Heinrich, "Bosnians Appeal For Air Strikes After Children Killed", Reuters, 23 January 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1994.

4281/ ICFY, UNPROFOR Operational Update for 23 January 1994, IHRLI Doc. No. 59822; "Children Die In Second Shell Blast: Report", Agence France Presse, 23 January 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1994.

4282/ Mark Heinrich, "Bosnian Serbs Deny Killing Six Children In Sarajevo", Reuters, 23 January 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1994.

4283/ "Children Die In Second Shell Blast: Report", Agence France Presse, 23 January 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1994.

4284/ Chuck Sudetic, "U.N. Seeks To Help Two Bosnian Boys", New York Times, 24 January 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1994.

4285/ Mark Heinrich, "Serb Arrests Threaten Sarajevo Medical Evacuation", Reuters, 23 January 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1994.

4286/ "Children Die In Second Shell Blast: Report", Agence France Presse, 23 January 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1994.

4287/ Mark Heinrich, "Bosnians Appeal For Air Strikes After Children Killed", Reuters, 23 January 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1994.

4288/ Joseph Chrysdale, "U.N. Investigates Bosnian Claims of Massacre, Aerial Bombing", United Press International, 25 January 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1994.

4289/ "Bosnian Croats Accused Of Massacre Of Moslem Villagers: Radio", Agence France Presse, 24 January 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1994.

Notes (continued)

4290/ "Sarajevo Fighting Erupts", Reuters, 24 January 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1994.

4291/ Joseph Chrysdale, "Bosnian Fighting Escalates in 3 Cities", United Press International, 24 January 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1994.

4292/ "Rose Takes Up The Challenge of Bosnia", Agence France Presse, 24 January 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1994; "British General Assumes Troubled UN Command", The Press Association, 24 January 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1994.

4293/ Joseph Chrysdale, "Bosnian Fighting Escalates in 3 Cities", United Press International, 24 January 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1994.

4294/ Mark Heinrich, "Artillery Barrage Shatters Lull in Sarajevo Fighting", Reuters, 24 January 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1994.

4295/ Id.

4296/ ICFY, UNPROFOR Operational Update for 25 January 1994, IHRLI Doc. No. 59829.

4297/ Joseph Chrysdale, "U.N. Investigates Bosnian Claims of Massacre, Aerial Bombing", United Press International, 25 January 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1994.

4298/ ICFY, UNPROFOR Operational Update for 25 January 1994, IHRLI Doc. No. 59829.

4299/ "Bosnian Croats Deny Village 'Massacre'", Agence France Presse, 25 January 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1994.

4300/ "Serbs Arrest Three For Shooting At Aid Planes", Reuters, 25 January 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1994.

4301/ Chuck Sudetic, "Faster Decisions Are Sought on Bosnia Air Strikes", New York Times, 25 January 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1994.

4302/ "Bosnia May Request Emergency UN Session Over Croat Army", Agence France Presse, 27 January 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1994.

4303/ ICFY, UNPROFOR Operational Update for 26 January 1994, IHRLI Doc. No. 59832.

4304/ Mark Heinrich, "Croats and Moslems Fight To Control Bosnia Zones", Reuters, 26 January 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1994.

4305/ "Warring Bosnian Factions Agree On Electricity In Capital", Agence France Presse, 27 January 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1994.

4306/ Maud S. Beelman, Associated Press, 26 January 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1994.

4307/ Mark Heinrich, "Police Injured In Bosnia Convoy Attacks", Reuters,

Notes (continued)

26 January 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1994.

4308/ Tribune Wires, "Starving Mob Raids UN Convoy For Food", Chicago Tribune, 27 January 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1994.

4309/ "Nordic States To Keep Troops In Bosnia", Reuters, 26 January 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1994.

4310/ Joseph Chrysdale, "U.N. Relief Driver Killed, Two Hurt In Bosnian Ambush", United Press International, 28 January 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1994.

4311/ Joseph Chrysdale, "U.N. Reports Second Violent Attack On Aid Convoy", United Press International, 27 January 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1994.

4312/ Id.

4313/ "61 Bosnian Soldiers Charged With Mutiny", Agence France Presse, 27 January 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1994.

4314/ Laura Pitter and Bob Mantiri, "Bosnia-Herzegovina: Chaos On The Home Front As NATO Remains Poised", Inter Press Service, 27 January 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1994.

4315/ Thomas W. Lippman and John M. Goshko, "Gap Remains in U.S.-France Dispute: Nations Appear No Closer To Agreement On Response In Bosnia", Washington Post, 28 January 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1994.

4316/ ICFY, UNPROFOR Operational Update for 28 January 1994, IHRLI Doc. No. 59837.

4317/ "French Soldier Wounded Near Sarajevo Airport", Agence France Presse, 28 January 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1994.

4318/ Joseph Chrysdale, "Snow Dampens Fighting in Bosnia-Herzegovina", United Press International, 29 January 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1994.

4319/ ICFY, UNPROFOR Operational Update for 28 January 1994, IHRLI Doc. No. 59837.

4320/ "Aid Operation Under Threat After Shooting", The Press Association, 28 January 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1994.

4321/ Lorraine Smith, "European Cities Stage Culture Day For Sarajevo", Reuters, 28 January 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1994.

4322/ Joseph Chrysdale, "Croatian Air Force Backs Bosnian Rebel Attack", United Press International, 30 January 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1994.

4323/ ICFY, UNPROFOR Operational Update for 29 January 1994, IHRLI Doc. No. 59840.

4324/ Joseph Chrysdale, "Croatian Air Force Backs Bosnian Rebel Attack", United Press International, 30 January 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File,

Notes (continued)

January 1994.

4325/ ICFY, UNPROFOR Operational Update for 29 January 1994, IHRLI Doc. No. 59840.

4326/ ICFY, UNPROFOR Operational Update for 30 January 1994, IHRLI Doc. No. 59843.

4327/ Id.

4328/ "Fierce Fighting in Central and Northern Bosnia", Agence France Presse, 30 January 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1994.

4329/ Victoria Stegic, "Bosnian General Warns U.N. Pull-Out Would Spark A Powderkeg", Agence France Press, 30 January 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1994.

4330/ ICFY, UNPROFOR Operational Update for 31 January 1994, IHRLI Doc. No. 60732.

4331/ Id.

4332/ Mark Heinrich, "Serbs Put Military Machine in High Gear", Reuters, 31 January 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1994.

4333/ Id.

4334/ ICFY, UNPROFOR Operational Update for 31 January 1994, IHRLI Doc. No. 60732.

4335/ "Three Aid Shooting Suspects Killed Tried To Flee: Police", Agence France Presse, 31 January 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1994.

4336/ Mark Heinrich, "Serbs Put Military Machine in High Gear", Reuters, 31 January 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, January 1994.

4337/ Id.

4338/ Id.

4339/ Joseph Chrysdale, "Bosnian U.N. Peacekeepers Targeted in Six Incidents", United Press International, 2 February 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1994.

4340/ Mark Heinrich, "Fears Grow Over Worsening of Bosnian War", Reuters, 1 February 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1994.

4341/ Joseph Chrysdale, "Bosnian U.N. Peacekeepers Targeted in Six Incidents", United Press International, 2 February 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1994.

4342/ Mark Heinrich, "Fears Grow Over Worsening of Bosnian War", Reuters, 1 February 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1994.

4343/ Joseph Chrysdale, "Bosnian U.N. Peacekeepers Targeted in Six Incidents", United Press International, 2 February 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1994.

Notes (continued)

4344/ Helene Despici-Popovic, "No Geneva Settlement Without `Just Peace', Says Bosnia President", Agence France Presse, 1 February 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1994.

4345/ Id.

4346/ Id.

4347/ Joseph Chrysdale, "U.N. Says 55 Percent of Sarajevo Children Sniper Targets", United Press International, 2 February 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1994.

4348/ "Mujahideen `Terrorists' Blamed For Briton's Murder", The Press Association, 1 February 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1994.

4349/ Mark Heinrich, "Fears Grow Over Worsening of Bosnian War", Reuters, 1 February 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1994.

4350/ ICFY, UNPROFOR Operational Update for 2 February 1994, IHRLI Doc. No. 60738.

4351/ UNHCR, Internal Document, Weekly Information on Former Yugoslavia, 31 January-7 February 1994, IHRLI Doc. No. 60541; Joseph Chrysdale, "Sarajevo Shelled After Prime Ministers Visit", United Press International, 3 February 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1994.

4352/ "Three Killed in Sarajevo, Five Children Wounded", Agence France Presse, 2 February 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1994.

4353/ Joseph Chrysdale, "Bosnian U.N. Peacekeepers Targeted in Six Incidents", United Press International, 2 February 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1994.

4354/ Joseph Chrysdale, "Sarajevo Shelled After Prime Ministers Visit", United Press International, 3 February 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1994.

4355/ "Three Killed in Sarajevo, Five Children Wounded", Agence France Presse, 2 February 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1994.

4356/ "10 Wounded In Sarajevo Evening Fighting", Reuters, 2 February 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1994.

4357/ Helene Despici-Popovic, "Bhutto, Ciller Demand Justice For Bosnian Moslems", Agence France Presse, 2 February 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1994.

4358/ ICFY, UNPROFOR Operational Update for 3 February 1994, IHRLI Doc. No. 60741.

4359/ Id.

4360/ Id.

4361/ "Izetbegovic Will `Probably Not' Attend Geneva Talks", Agence France Presse, 4 February 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1994.

Notes (continued)

4362/ ICFY, UNPROFOR Operational Update for 4 February 1994, IHRLI Doc. No. 60744.

4363/ Id.

4364/ "Shells Kill Eight In Food Distribution Line", Agence France Presse, 4 February 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1994; "U.N. Blames Serbs For Mortar Attack That Killed Nine", Reuters, 4 February 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1994.

4365/ "Shells Kill Eight In Food Distribution Line", Agence France Presse, 4 February 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1994; "U.N. Blames Serbs For Mortar Attack That Killed Nine", Reuters, 4 February 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1994.

4366/ Mark Heinrich, "Mortar Barrage Kills Nine in Sarajevo Food Line", Reuters, 4 February 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1994; Agence France Presse, 5 February 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1994.

4367/ "Bosnian Serb Gunners Kill Eight Civilians: UNPROFOR", Agence France Presse, 5 February 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1994.

4368/ Mark Heinrich, "Mortar Barrage Kills Nine in Sarajevo Food Line", Reuters, 4 February 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1994.

4369/ Mark Heinrich, "Moslem Protest Over Shelling In Sarajevo Food Queue", Reuters, 4 February 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1994.

4370/ ICFY, UNPROFOR Operational Update for 5 February 1994, IHRLI Doc. No. 60747.

4371/ John Kifner, "Mourners Fear Gunners Even at Burials", New York Times, 8 February 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1994.

4372/ Helene Despici-Popovic, "Sarajevo Market Massacre Kills At Least 61", Agence France Presse, 5 February 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1994; Mark Heinrich, "66 Die In Sarajevo Blast, Muslims Want Peace Talks", Reuters, 5 February 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1994.

4373/ Helene Despici-Popovic, "Sarajevo Market Massacre Kills At Least 61", Agence France Presse, 5 February 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1994.

4374/ Id.

4375/ Id.

4376/ Mark Heinrich, "66 Die In Sarajevo Blast, Muslims Want Peace", Reuters, 5 February 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1994.

4377/ "Bosnian Serbs Threaten Aid", The Press Association, 5 February 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1994.

4378/ Natela Cutter, "Bosnian Serb Demands U.N. Probe Of Sarajevo Shelling", United Press International, 5 February 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1994.

Notes (continued)

4379/ "World Reacts With Revulsion To Sarajevo Market Bloodbath", Reuters, 5 February 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1994.

4380/ Helene Despica-Popovic, "Sarajevo Market Massacre Kills At Least 61", Agence France Presse, 5 February 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1994.

4381/ Id.

4382/ "World Reacts With Revulsion To Sarajevo Market Bloodbath", Reuters, 5 February 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1994.

4383/ "UN Not Sure Who Fired Killer Shell", The Press Association, 5 February 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1994.

4384/ Helene Despica-Popovic, "Sarajevo Market Massacre Kills At Least 61", Agence France Presse, 5 February 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1994.

4385/ "France Urges Use Of Air Power To Lift Sarajevo Siege", Reuters, 5 February 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1994.

4386/ "World Reacts With Revulsion To Sarajevo Market Bloodbath", Reuters, 5 February 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1994.

4387/ Mark Heinrich, "66 Die In Sarajevo Blast, Muslims Want Peace", Reuters, 5 February 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1994.

4388/ ICFY, UNPROFOR Operational Update for 6 February 1994, IHRLI Doc. No. 60750.

4389/ "Sarajevo Death Toll Rises To 68", 6 February 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1994.

4390/ "Sarajevo Has Quiet Night After Attack On Market", Reuters, 6 February 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1994.

4391/ ICFY, UNPROFOR Operational Update for 6 February 1994, IHRLI Doc. No. 60750.

4392/ Mark Heinrich, "Sarajevo Atrocity Prompts Intervention Calls", Reuters, 6 February 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1994; Chuck Sudetic, "US Lifts 46 Wounded In Sarajevo Mortar Blast to Germany", New York Times, 7 February 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1994.

4393/ Helene Despica-Popovic, "Akashi and Cot Visit Site Of Massacre", Agence France Presse, 6 February 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1994.

4394/ U.N. Commander: No Evidence Of Who Fired Mortar", Reuters, 6 February 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1994.

4395/ John Kifner, "Sarajevans Mourn and Rage While Life and Death Go On", The New York Times, 7 February 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1994.

4396/ Joseph Chrysdale, "U.N. Officials Visit Sarajevo Massacre Site",

Notes (continued)

United Press International, 6 February 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1994.

4397/ Joseph Chrysdale, "Killer Sarajevo Shell Likely 'Lucky' Shot", United Press International, 6 February 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1994.

4398/ Helene Despici-Popovic, "Akashi and Cot Visit Site Of Massacre", Agence France Presse, 6 February 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1994.

4399/ "U.N. Commander: No Evidence Of Who Fired Mortar", Reuters, 6 February 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1994.

4400/ "UN Special Envoy says Peace Bid Fails In Sarajevo", Agence France Presse, 6 February 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1994.

4401/ "Ceasefire Conditional on Serb Withdrawal: Izetbegovic", Agence France Presse, 6 February 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1994.

4402/ "Bosnian Serb Leader Says Sarajevo Truce Drawn Up", Reuters, 6 February 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1994.

4403/ "Milosevic Condemns Sarajevo Attack", Agence France Presse, 6 February 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1994.

4404/ "Sarajevo Jews Evacuated To Adriatic Coast", Reuters, 6 February 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1994.

4405/ Agence France Presse, 6 February 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1994; Mitchell Locin, "US Counsels Caution After Sarajevo Raid", Chicago Tribune, 7 February 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1994.

4406/ "Owen Sees 'Glint of Optimism' For UN Control", Reuters, 6 February 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1994.

4407/ "Bosnian Embassy Says UN Responsible For Sarajevo Massacres", Agence France Presse, 6 February 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1994.

4408/ "British Minister Warns Against Retaliation", United Press International, 6 February 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1994.

4409/ "France Calls For Action Plan After Sarajevo Massacre", Agence France Presse, 6 February 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1994; Mitchell Locin, "US Counsels Caution After Sarajevo Raid", Chicago Tribune, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1994.

4410/ "British Minister Warns Against Retaliation", United Press International, 6 February 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1994.

4411/ "Clinton Wants U.N. To Name Sarajevo Colptis", The Press Association, 6 February 1993, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1994.

4412/ "Indignant Russia Demands Inquiry Into Sarajevo Massacre", Agence France Presse, 6 February 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1994; "Russian Ministry Urges Inquiry Into Sarajevo Blast", ITAR-TASS, 6 February

Notes (continued)

1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1994.

4413/ "Canada Outraged By Sarajevo Attack", Agence France Presse, 6 February 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1994.

4414/ "Key Players Greece and Turkey Diverge Over Sarajevo Massacre", Agence France Presse, 6 February 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1994.

4415/ Id.

4416/ "France Demands Ultimatum After Sarajevo Massacre", 6 February 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1994; Mitchell Locin, "US Counsels Caution After Sarajevo Raid", Chicago Tribune, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1994.

4417/ "Iran Condemns Sarajevo Market Massacre", Agence France Presse, 6 February 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1994.

4418/ "Romania Condemns Killing of Civilians in Sarajevo", Xinhua News Agency, 6 February 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1994.

4419/ "Pakistan Reiterates Demand for Lifting Arms Embargo", United Press International, 6 February 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1994.

4420/ ICFY, UNPROFOR Operational Update for 7 February 1994, IHRLI Doc. No. 60753; Joseph Chrysdale, "Bosnian Shelling Heaviest in Mostar", United Press International, 8 February 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1994.

4421/ Joseph Chrysdale, "Bosnian Shelling Heaviest in Mostar", United Press International, 8 February 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1994.

4422/ Id.

4423/ "Dawn Shooting Breaks Sarajevo Calm", Reuters, 7 February 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1994.

4424/ "More Sarajevo Bloodbath Victims Expected In Germany Monday", Agence France Presse, 7 February 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1994.

4425/ "Ten Wounded Evacuated From Sarajevo To Italy", Agence France Presse, 7 February 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1994.

4426/ John Kifner, "Mourners Fear Gunners Even at Burials", New York Times, 8 February 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1994.

4427/ Mark Heinrich, "Atrocity Site Lacked Evidence To Pin Blame U.N.", Reuters, 7 February 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1994.

4428/ "Indecision Over Air Strikes Plays Into Serb Hands: Izetbegovic", Agence France Presse, 7 February 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1994.

Notes (continued)

4429/ "Threat Of Air Strikes Could Bring Peace: Silajdzic", Agence France Presse, 8 February 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1994.

4430/ "Karadzic Threat", The Press Association, 7 February 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1994.

4431/ "Ukraine Replaces Peace-Keepers in Former Yugoslavia", TASS, 7 February 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1994.

4432/ "EC Calls For Lifting Of Sarajevo Siege By "All The Means Necessary", Agence France Presse, 7 February 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1994.

4433/ "Bosnia-Hercegovina: No Ultimatum For The Serbs", Inter Press Service, 7 February 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1994.

4434/ Peter Mackler, "EC Struggles Over Response To Bosnia Market Massacre", Agence France Presse, 7 February 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1994.

4435/ "Kozyrev Warns Bosnia Holds Seeds Of World War", The Press Association, 7 February 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1994.

4436/ "Serb Leaders Agree To Geneva Talks", Agence France Presse, 7 February 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1994.

4437/ "Bosnian Serbs Say Ready To Accept Demilitarized Sarajevo", Agence France Presse, 7 February 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1994.

4438/ "US Approves of Boutros-Ghali's Call For Air Strikes", Agence France Presse, 7 February 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1994.

4439/ "US Accuses Serbs Of Pattern Of Civilian Attacks", Reuters, 7 February 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1994.

4440/ "Clinton Advisers Meet On Bosnia", Agence France Presse, 7 February 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1994

4441/ Chris Moncrieff and Sian Clare, "Major Urges "More Muscular" Action Over Bosnia", The Press Association, 7 February 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1994.

4442/ "Moslem States Urge Military Action Against Serbs", Agence France Presse, 7 February 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1994.

4443/ Joseph Chrysdale, "Bosnian Factions Talk Cease-Fire On Eve Of Peace Talks", United Press International, 9 February 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1994.

4444/ "Reuter World News Highlights 1600 GMT Feb 8", Reuters, 9 February 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1994.

4445/ Joseph Chrysdale, "Bosnian Shelling Heaviest in Mostar", United Press International, 8 February 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1994.

4446/ Id.

Notes (continued)

4447/ "Karadzic Says Sarajevo Massacre Was A Fraud", Reuters, 8 February 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1994.

4448/ "Serbs Blame Massacre On Moslem Mines Planted In Market", Agence France Presse, 8 February 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1994.

4449/ Mark Heinrich, "Bosnian Serbs Give Mixed Response To West", 8 February 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1994.

4450/ "Bosnia Appeals For US Air Assault", Reuters, 8 February 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1994.

4451/ "NATO Pursues `Intense' Consultations On Airstrikes", Agence France Presse, 8 February 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1994.

4452/ "UN Rights Body Calls For Action In Bosnia", Reuters, 8 February 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1994.

4453/ "Japan Condemns Sarajevo Attack", Kyodo News Service, 8 February 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1994.

4454/ Joseph Chrysdale, "U.N. Peacekeepers Begin Sarajevo Cease-Fire Patrols", United Press International, 10 February 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1994.

4455/ Joseph Chrysdale, "New Sarajevo Cease-Fire Agreement Reached", United Press International, 9 February 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1994.

4456/ "Serbs and Moslems Agree Sarajevo Ceasefire", Agence France Presse, 9 February 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1994.

4457/ General Divjak was reportedly one of a small number of moderate Serbs serving in the BiH army.

4458/ Mark Heinrich, "Doubt Clouds Sarajevo Ceasefire Deal", Reuters, 9 February 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1994.

4459/ "NATO Gives Serbs Ultimatum", Agence France Presse, 9 February 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1994.

4460/ "Serbs and Moslems Agree Sarajevo Ceasefire", Agence France Presse, 9 February 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1994.

4461/ "Clinton Calls Bosnia Cease-Fire `Good Beginning'", Reuters, 9 February 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1994.

4462/ Anthony Broadle, "Canada Agrees To NATO Air Strikes Encouraged By US Role", Reuters, 9 February 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1994.

4463/ "NATO Chiefs Brief Italian Minister on Bosnia", Reuters, 8 February 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1994.

4464/ "Albanian Leader Urges Action Against Serbs", Reuters, 9 February 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1994.

4465/ Mark Heinrich, "Serb Troops Hand Over To Peacekeepers, Shells Hit

Notes (continued)

Sarajevo", Reuters, 10 February 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1994.

4466/ Mark Heinrich, "U.N. Peacekeepers Move Into Sarajevo Positions", Reuters, 10 February 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1994.

4467/ Mark Heinrich, "Serb Troops Hand Over To Peacekeepers, Shells Hit Sarajevo", Reuters, 10 February 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1994.

4468/ ICFY, UNPROFOR Operational Update for 10 February 1994, IHLRI Doc. No. 61480.

4469/ Helene Despic-Popovic, "U.N. Peacekeepers Prepare To Implement Ceasefire Accord In Bosnia", Agence France Presse, 10 February 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1994.

4470/ Mark Heinrich, "Serb Troops Hand Over To Peacekeepers, Shells Hit Sarajevo", Reuters, 10 February 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1994.

4471/ "Bosnian Serbs Will Lift Sarajevo Siege: Izetbegovic, Churkin", Agence France Presse, 10 February 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1994.

4472/ Mark Heinrich, "U.N. Peacekeepers Move Into Sarajevo Positions", Reuters, 10 February 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1994.

4473/ Joseph Chrysdale, "U.N. Peacekeepers Begin Sarajevo Cease-Fire Patrols", United Press International, 10 February 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1994.

4474/ "US Targeting Artillery Around Sarajevo", Agence France Presse, 10 February 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1994.

4475/ "Karadzic Says Bosnian Serbs Won't Go On With Conference", Agence France Presse, 10 February 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1994.

4476/ "Bosnian Prime Minister Says Peace Might Work This Time", Agence France Presse, 10 February 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1994.

4477/ Farhan Haq, "Bosnia: Russia Seeks Open U.N. Meeting As Air Strikes Loom", Inter Press Service, 10 February 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1994.

4478/ "NATO Air Strike Ultimatum Is 'Unpardonable': Papandreou", Agence France Presse, 10 February 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1994.

4479/ UNPROFOR noted that these weapons did not seem to be able to be fired.

4480/ ICFY, UNPROFOR Operational Update for 11 February 1994, IHLRI Doc. No. 60759.

4481/ Kurt Schork, "Ceasefire Makes Sarajevo Safe After Massacre", Reuters, 12 February 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1994.

Notes (continued)

4482/ Kurt Schork, "Muslims, Serbs Start Handing Over Big Guns To U.N.", Reuters, February 11, 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1994.

4483/ Helene Despica-Popovic, "More Arms Handovers Expected As Truce Holds", Agence France Presse, 12 February 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1994.

4484/ Kurt Schork, "U.N. Says Renegades Try Sabotage Sarajevo Ceasefire", Reuters, 11 February 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1994.

4485/ Kurt Schork, "Ceasefire Makes Sarajevo Safe After Massacre", Reuters, 12 February 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1994.

4486/ See U.N. Background Paper, Sarajevo Market Explosion of 5 February 1994, A Background Summary of UNPROFOR's Investigative Report, 16 February 1994, IHRLI Doc. No. 63707. See also, this Chronology (16 February 1994), for results of the U.N. investigation on the market shelling.

4487/ Kurt Schork, "Serbs, Moslems Hand Over Guns In First Peace Moves", Reuters, 12 February 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1994.

4488/ ICFY, UNPROFOR Operational Update for 12 February 1994, IHLRI Doc. No. 60762.

4489/ Kurt Schork, "Serb Demands Halt Big Guns Surrender in Sarajevo", Reuters, 12 February 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1994.

4490/ Id.

4491/ Id.

4492/ "Bosnian Serb Leader Says Moslem Infantry Must Be Controlled", Agence France Presse, 12 February 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1994.

4493/ Michael Adler, "Moslems Are Ready to Make Deal Under US Aegis", Agence France Presse, 13 February 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1994.

4494/ Jovan Kovacic, "Bosnia Peace Talks Suspended As US, Russia Step In", Reuters, 12 February 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1994.

4495/ Id.

4496/ Helene Despica-Popovic, "New Serb Demands Block Arms Surrender At Sarajevo", Agence France Presse, 13 February 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1994.

4497/ ICFY, UNPROFOR Operational Update for 13 February 1994, IHLRI Doc. No. 60765.

4498/ Helene Despica-Popovic, "New Serb Demands Block Arms Surrender At Sarajevo", Agence France Presse, 13 February 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1994.

4499/ According to press estimates, there were 15,000 Serb soldiers around Sarajevo and some 300 pieces of artillery. The BiH army had only 150 heavy weapons and 13,000 armed men, but could mobilize 45,000 soldiers.

Notes (continued)

4500/ Helene Despic-Popovic, "New Serb Demands Block Arms Surrender At Sarajevo", Agence France Presse, 13 February 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1994.

4501/ "NATO Airstrikes Within Minutes If Serbs Fire: Perry", Agence France Presse, 13 February 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1994.

4502/ UNPROFOR Operational Update for 14 February 1994, IHRLI Doc. No. 60768; Helen Despic-Popovic, "Serbs Block Convoy As Peacekeepers Slam Moslem Truce Violation", Agence France Presse, 14 February 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1994.

4503/ UNPROFOR Operational Update for 14 February 1994, IHRLI Doc. No. 60768; Helen Despic-Popovic, "Serbs Block Convoy As Peacekeepers Slam Moslem Truce Violation", Agence France Presse, 14 February 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1994.

4504/ Helen Despic-Popovic, "Serbs Block Convoy As Peacekeepers Slam Moslem Truce Violation", Agence France Presse, 14 February 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1994.

4505/ Id.

4506/ Id.

4507/ Id.

4508/ "Bosnian Moslem and Serb Military Leaders To Meet At Airport", Agence France Presse, 15 February 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1994.

4509/ Agence France Presse, 16 February 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1994.

4510/ "Key Meeting Between Top Bosnian Commanders Canceled", Agence France Presse, 15 February 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1994.

4511/ Helene Despic-Popovic, "U.N. Commander Requests More Troops As Truce Marred", Agence France Presse, 16 February 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1994.

4512/ Agence France Presse, 16 February 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1994.

4513/ "Croatian President Warns Of World War Danger", United Press International, 15 February 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1994.

4514/ "Malaysian Soldiers Called Vulnerable in Bosnia", Reuters, 15 February 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1994.

4515/ "Peacemaker General Sees Sarajevo As Model For All Bosnia", The Press Association, 15 February 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1994.

Notes (continued)

4516/ Agence France Presse, 16 February 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1994.

4517/ Evelyn Leopold, "Yugoslavia Warns Against Air Strikes Near Sarajevo", Reuters, 15 February 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1994.

4518/ "Heavy Weapons Positioned To Fire On Sarajevo Will Be Bombed: US", Agence France Presse, 15 February 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1994.

4519/ Helene Despic-Popovic, "U.N. Commander Requests More Troops As Truce Marred", Agence France Presse, 16 February 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1994.

4520/ "Civilian Shot Dead In Sarajevo", The Press Association, 16 February 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1994.

4521/ "Bosnians Hand Over More Weapons", Agence France Presse, 16 February 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1994.

4522/ See U.N. Background Paper, Sarajevo Market Explosion of 5 February 1994, A Background Summary of UNPROFOR's Investigative Report, 16 February 1994, IHRLI Doc. No. 63707; John Fullerton, "U.N. Unable To Pin Blame In Sarajevo Market Massacre", Reuters, 16 February 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1994; William E. Schmidt, "U.N. Can't Discover Who Fired Mortar", New York Times, 17 February 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1994.

4523/ See U.N. Background Paper, Sarajevo Market Explosion of 5 February 1994, A Background Summary of UNPROFOR's Investigative Report, 16 February 1994, IHRLI Doc. No. 63707; John Fullerton, "U.N. Says Either Side Could Have Fired Mortar Bomb", Reuters, 16 February 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1994.

4524/ "Bosnian Serbs Unhappy With U.N. Massacre Finding", Agence France Presse, 16 February 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1994.

4525/ "US Asked To Provide Troops To Bosnia", Agence France Presse, 16 February 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1994; John Kifner, "Serbs Are Told to Obey Deadline", New York Times, 17 February 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1994.

4526/ John Kifner, "Serbs Are Told to Obey Deadline", New York Times, 17 February 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1994.

4527/ Kurt Schork, "Sarajevo 'Dirty Tricks' Scenario Worries U.N. Commander", Reuters, 16 February 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1994.

4528/ Joseph Chrysdale, "More Troops, Equipment Bolster Sarajevo Cease-Fire", United Press International, 16 February 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1994.

4529/ Helene Despic-Popovic, "U.N. Commander Requests More Troops As Truce Marred", Agence France Presse, 16 February 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1994.

Notes (continued)

4530/ Evelyn Leopold, "U.N. Asks Countries For More Troops In Sarajevo", Reuters, 16 February 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1994.

4531/ Hrvoje Hranjski, "US Envoy Urges Warring Factions To Agree To Peace", United Press International, 16 February 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1994.

4532/ "NATO Sticks To Ultimatum Deadline", 16 February 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1994.

4533/ "NATO Will Not Extend Sunday Deadline", The Press Association, 16 February 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1994; John Kifner, "Serbs Are Told to Obey Deadline", New York Times, 17 February 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1994.

4534/ Nicholas Doughty, "NATO Ends Doubts Over Ultimatum To Bosnian Serbs", Reuters, 16 February 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1994.

4535/ "US Cool To Request For Peacekeepers in Bosnia", Reuters, 16 February 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1994.

4536/ "Russia: NATO Ultimatum `Illegitimate'", United Press International, 16 February 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1994.

4537/ Kurt Schork, "U.N. Insists On firm Control Of Heavy Weapons", Reuters, 16 February 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1994.

4538/ Graham Brown, "No Fudging On Sarajevo Ultimatum, Says NATO", Agence France Presse, 20 February 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1994.

4539/ John Fullerton, "Serbs Withdraw Big Guns `For Future Battles'", Reuters, 18 February 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1994.

4540/ "Serb Pullout is Brokered by Russians", Chicago Tribune, 18 February 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1994.

4541/ John Fullerton, "Serbs Withdraw Big Guns `For Future Battles'", Reuters, 18 February 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1994.

4542/ Victoria Stegic, "Bosnian Serb Leader Vows To Take Foreigners Hostage", Agence France Presse, 17 February 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1994.

4543/ "Bosnia-Hercegovina: Russian Offer Muddies Picture", Inter Press Service, 17 February 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1994.

4544/ Id.

4545/ Sian Clare, "Hurd Hails Russian Initiative", The Press Association, 17 February 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1994.

4546/ "Clinton Hopes Air Strikes Will Not Be Necessary", Agence France Presse, 17 February 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1994.

4547/ Hrvoje Hranjski, "U.N., NATO Chiefs Say Sarajevo Deadline Will Be Met", United Press International, 19 February 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source

Notes (continued)

File, February 1994.

4548/ Id.

4549/ John Fullerton, "Serbs Withdraw Big Guns `For Future Battles'", Reuters, 18 February 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1994.

4550/ Hrvoje Hranjski, "U.N., NATO Chiefs Say Sarajevo Deadline Will Be Met", United Press International, 19 February 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1994.

4551/ Id.

4552/ After the first order to attack, all of the air strike decisions would rest with three military commanders: US General Jeremy Boorda, in charge of NATO's Southern Europe command; and UNPROFOR commanders, General Jean Cot and Lieutenant General Michael Rose.

4553/ Hrvoje Hranjski, "U.N., NATO Chiefs Say Sarajevo Deadline Will Be Met", United Press International, 19 February 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1994.

4554/ Id.

4555/ "UNPROFOR Denies It Blamed Bosnians For Massacre", Agence France Presse, 18 February 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1994.

4556/ Michel Moutot, "Bosnian Serbs Welcome Arrival Of Russian Troops", Agence France Presse, 20 February 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1994.

4557/ Graham Brown, "No Fudging On Sarajevo Ultimatum, Says NATO", Agence France Presse, 20 February 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1994.

4558/ Michel Moutot, "Bosnian Serbs Welcome Arrival Of Russian Troops", Agence France Presse, 20 February 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1994.

4559/ Id.

4560/ Graham Brown, "No Fudging On Sarajevo Ultimatum, Says NATO", Agence France Presse, 20 February 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1994.

4561/ Michel Moutot, "Bosnian Serbs Welcome Arrival Of Russian Troops", Agence France Presse, 20 February 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1994.

4562/ Id.

4563/ Graham Brown, "No Fudging On Sarajevo Ultimatum, Says NATO", Agence France Presse, 20 February 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1994.

4564/ Id.

Notes (continued)

4565/ Id.

4566/ Peter S. Green, "Airstrikes Appear Off: Rose Sees `Peaceful End': Serbs Celebrate", United Press International, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1994.

4567/ "NATO's Woerner Says No Bosnia Air Strikes For Now", Reuters, 20 February 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1994.

4568/ Peter S. Green, "Airstrikes Appear Off: Rose Sees `Peaceful End': Serbs Celebrate", United Press International, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1994.

4569/ "NATO's Woerner Says No Bosnia Air Strikes For Now", Reuters, 20 February 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1994.

4570/ Evelyn Leopold, "U.N. Says Serbs Cleared Arms From At Least 45 Sites", Reuters, 20 February 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1994.

4571/ "Bosnian Leader Calls On NATO To Attack Serb Guns", Reuters, 20 February 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1994.

4572/ Peter S. Green, "Airstrikes Appear Off: Rose Sees `Peaceful End': Serbs Celebrate", United Press International, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1994.

4573/ Kurt Schork, "U.N. Envoy Says Serbs Will Not Meet U.N. Deadline", Reuters, 20 February 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1994.

4574/ Peter S. Green, "Airstrikes Appear Off: Rose Sees `Peaceful End': Serbs Celebrate", United Press International, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1994.

4575/ Id.

4576/ Sebastian Smith, "Karadzic Predicts Serb Compliance With U.N. Deadline", Agence France Presse, 20 February 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1994.

4577/ "Serb Leader Says Serb Leaders Beating Deadline", Reuters, 20 February 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1994.

4578/ Peter S. Green, "Airstrikes Appear Off: Rose Sees `Peaceful End': Serbs Celebrate", United Press International, 20 February 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1994.

4579/ Kurt Schork, "U.N. Envoy Says Serbs Will Not Meet U.N. Deadline", Reuters, 20 February 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1994.

4580/ Sebastian Smith, "Karadzic Predicts Serb Compliance With U.N. Deadline", Agence France Presse, 20 February 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1994.

4581/ Peter S. Green, "Airstrikes Appear Off: Rose Sees `Peaceful End': Serbs Celebrate", United Press International, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1994.

Notes (continued)

4582/ Evelyn Leopold, "U.N. Says Serbs Cleared Arms From At Least 45 Sites", Reuters, 20 February 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1994.

4583/ Sebastian Smith, "Karadzic Predicts Serb Compliance With U.N. Deadline", Agence France Presse, 20 February 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1994.

4584/ Id.

4585/ Peter S. Green, "Airstrikes Appear Off: Rose Sees `Peaceful End': Serbs Celebrate", United Press International, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1994.

4586/ "Deadline Success Prompts Calls For NATO Aid For Enclaves", Agence France Presse, 22 February 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1994.

4587/ According to an UNPROFOR report, a total of 296 heavy BSA weapons were either turned in or were being monitored. A total of forty-six BiH weapons were accounted for. See UNPROFOR list of weapons collected in the Sarajevo area, IHRLI Doc. No. 63775.

4588/ "Deadline Success Prompts Calls For NATO Aid For Enclaves", Agence France Presse, 22 February 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1994.

4589/ Sean Maguire, "Russians Move Gingerly Into Serb Sarajevo Suburb", Reuters, 21 February 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1994.

4590/ Natela Cutter, "Bosnian Serbs Say Danger Of NATO Air Strikes Is Over", United Press International, 21 February 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1994.

4591/ "Deadline Success Prompts Calls For NATO Aid For Enclaves", Agence France Presse, 22 February 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1994.

4592/ "U.N. Chief Calls Sarajevo Operation A `Great Success'", Reuters, 21 February 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1994.

4593/ Oliver Wates, "Kremlin Declares Bosnia Role A Diplomatic Triumph", Reuters, 21 February 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File February 1994.

4594/ "Defense Minister Wants Western Troops As Buffer Around Moslems", Agence France Presse, 21 February 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1994.

4595/ "Perry Warns NATO Will Still Enforce Compliance With Sarajevo Arms", United Press International, 21 February 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1994.

4596/ Geoffrey Varley, "France Calls For U.N. Rule In Sarajevo", Agence France Presse, 21 February 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1994.

4597/ "Some Guns Still Uncontrolled Near Sarajevo", The Press Association, 22 February 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1994.

4598/ "Guns Silent As U.N. Collects More Weapons", 22 February 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1994.

Notes (continued)

4599/ Michael Adler, "Bosnian General To Call For Withdrawal Of Croatian Troops For Bosnia", Agence France Presse, 23 February 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1994.

4600/ "Some Guns Still Uncontrolled Near Sarajevo", The Press Association, 22 February 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1994.

4601/ "Guns Silent As U.N. Collects More Weapons", 22 February 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1994.

4602/ Michael Adler, "Bosnian General To Call For Withdrawal Of Croatian Troops For Bosnia", Agence France Presse, 23 February 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1994.

4603/ "France Offers Plan For U.N. Control Of Sarajevo", Agence France Presse, 23 February 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1994.

4604/ "Bosnia-Hercegovina: West, Russia Hope To Build On Sarajevo Success", Inter Press Service, 22 February 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1994.

4605/ "Bosnian Mission Is Not Over Yet Warns Perry", Agence France Presse, 22 February 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1994.

4606/ "Gunfire Heard In Sarajevo", Agence France Presse, 23 February 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1994.

4607/ Michael Adler, "Serbs Stall Heavy Weapons Handover As Small-Arms Fire Increases", Agence France Presse, 24 February 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1994.

4608/ Id.

4609/ "Gunfire Heard In Sarajevo", Agence France Presse, 23 February 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1994.

4610/ Michael Adler, "Serbs Stall Heavy Weapons Handover As Small-Arms Fire Increases", Agence France Presse, 24 February 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1994.

4611/ Id.

4612/ Id.

4613/ Id.

4614/ Id.

4615/ Peter S. Green, "Serbs, Bosnian Government Agree To Ease Isolation Of Sarajevo", United Press International, 24 February 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1994.

4616/ "Serbs Breaching NATO Ceasefire Demands: Izetbegovic", Agence France Presse, 24 February 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1994.

4617/ Peter S. Green, "Serbs, Bosnian Government Agree To Ease Isolation Of Sarajevo", United Press International, 24 February 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo

Notes (continued)

Source File, February 1994.

4618/ Peter S. Green, "U.N. Reports Violations Of Croat-Muslim Cease-Fire", United Press International, 25 February 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1994.

4619/ Id.

4620/ Michael Adler, "Ceasefire Violations But Sarajevo Remains Calm", Agence France Presse, 27 February 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1994.

4621/ Id.

4622/ Id.

4623/ "U.N. Security Council Nears Accord On Lifting Siege of Sarajevo", Agence France Presse, 27 February 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1994.

4624/ "Military Attack Croat-Moslem Talks, Ceasefire Still Holding", Agence France Presse, 26 February 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1994.

4625/ "Serbs Shell Tuzla Airport", Agence France Presse, 28 February 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1994.

4626/ Kurt Schork, "Bosnia Serbs Sneak Tanks Out of Weapons-Free Zone--U.N.", Reuters, 28 February 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1994.

4627/ "U.N. Envoy Akashi To Visit Mostar", Agence France Presse, 27 February 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1994.

4628/ Id.

4629/ "Explosion In Sarajevo", Agence France Presse, 27 February 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1994.

4630/ "U.N. Envoy Akashi To Visit Mostar", Agence France Presse, 27 February 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1994.

4631/ Heavy machine guns were not included in the arms ban.

4632/ "Serbs Shell Tuzla Airport", Agence France Presse, 28 February 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1994.

4633/ Kurt Schork, "Bosnia Serbs Sneak Tanks Out of Weapons-Free Zone--U.N.", Reuters, 28 February 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1994.

4634/ Michael Adler, "Ceasefire Violations But Sarajevo Remains Calm", Agence France Presse, 27 February 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1994.

4635/ "Maglaj In Increasingly Desperate Situation--Ham Radio", Agence France Presse, 26 February 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1994.

4636/ "Explosion In Sarajevo", Agence France Presse, 27 February 1994,

Notes (continued)

IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1994.

4637/ Kurt Schork, "Bosnia Serbs Sneak Tanks Out of Weapons-Free Zone-- U.N.", Reuters, 28 February 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1994.

4638/ "Explosion In Sarajevo", Agence France Presse, 27 February 1994,
IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1994.

4639/ Sean Maguire, "Bosnian Serb General Threatens Force In Sarajevo", Reuters, 28 February 1994, IHRLI Sarajevo Source File, February 1994.

4640/ Id.

Security Council

Distr.
GENERAL

S/1994/674/Add.2 (Vol.III)
27 May 1994

ORIGINAL: ENGLISH

FINAL REPORT OF THE UNITED NATIONS COMMISSION OF EXPERTS
ESTABLISHED PURSUANT TO
SECURITY COUNCIL RESOLUTION 780 (1992)

ANNEX VI, PART 2
STUDY OF THE BATTLE AND SIEGE OF SARAJEVO

Under the Direction of:

M. Cherif Bassiouni
Chairman and Rapporteur on the Gathering
and Analysis of the Facts, Commission of Experts
Established Pursuant to Security Council Resolution 780 (1992)

Principal Legal Analyst:

William B. Schiller, Director of Research

Contributors:

Ralph Peter Spies, Research Fellow
Daniel J. Bronson, Staff Analyst

and

The Staff of the International Human Rights Law Institute, DePaul University

Appendix 6

PHOTOGRAPHS PICTURING TARGETS SHELLED IN SARAJEVO

I. CITY CENTER

Shelling of the City Center appears in the Chronology of the battle and siege of Sarajevo on the following dates:

(1992): 05.04.; 22.04.; 18.05.; 07.06.; 09.06.; 22.06.; 26.06.; 30.06.; 04.07.; 07.07.; 08.07.; 10.07.; 21.07.; 26.07.; 29.07.; 04.08.;
13.08.; 17.08.; 21.09.; 24.09.; 29.09.; 04.10.; 05.10.; 29.10.; 01.11.; 10.11.; 13.11.; 16.11.; 23.11.; 26.11.; 04.12.; 18.12.; 20.12.; 21.12.; 23.12.; 25.12.; 30.12.

(1993) 12.01.; 14.01.; 15.01.; 17.01.; 24.01.; 05.02.; 01.03.; 20.04.; 06.05.; 28.05.; 24.07.; 22.07.; 25.07.; 20.08.; 16.09.; 29.09.;
07.10.; 10.10.; 14.10.; 17.10.; 28.10.; 29.10.; 06.11.; 10.11.;
22.11.; 27.11.; 29.11.; 04.12.; 11.12.; 14.12.; 15.12.

(1994) 03.01.; 04.01.; 08.01.; 10.01.; 24.01.; 26.01.; 10.02.

UNIS Company

UNIS Company

UNIS Company

UNIS Company

UNIS Company

UNIS Company

UPI Company

Ergoinvest Company

Socijalno Building

Sibica Building

ZGP Hotel

ZGP Hotel

Sarajka Department Store

II. OSLOBODJENJE

Shelling of Oslobodjenje appears in the Chronology of the battle and siege of Sarajevo on the following dates:

(1992) 18.05.; 10.06.; 20.06.; 08.07.; 22.08.; 24.08.

Oslobodjenje

Oslobodjenje

Oslobodjenje

Oslobodjenje

Oslobodjenje

Oslobodjenje

Oslobodjenje

Oslobodjenje

Pero Kosoric Square

Grbavica Shopping Settlement

Buildings on Obala Vojvode Stepe

Bridge between Park Cara Dujaica and Obala Vojvode Stepe

Building on Kalja Romislava and Damijila Ozme

Eiffel Bridge (behind destroyed "Gras" Trams)

Town Hall

Novo Sarajevo

Train Station in Novo Sarajevo

Offices on Kidrica Boulevard

Bank on Maršal Tito Street

Bank on Maršal Tito Street

Majinska Skola Mechanic High School on Maršal Tito Street

Building on Maršal Tito Street

III. HOLIDAY INN

Shelling of the Holiday Inn appears in the Chronology of the battle and siege of Sarajevo on the following dates:

(1992) 09.06.; 04.07.; 06.07.; 07.07.; 10.07.; 28.07.; 05.08.; 21.08.;
24.08.; 30.08.; 12.09.; 14.09.; 19.09.; 05.10.; 05.12.;

(1993) 09.02.; 26.02.; 27.02.; 06.05.; 28.05.; 30.05.; 21.07.; 15.10.

(1994) 05.01.; 09.01.; 14.01.

Holiday Inn

IV. PARLIAMENT

Shelling of the Parliament appears in the Chronology of the battle and siege of Sarajevo on the following dates:

(1992): 07.04.; 06.07.; 31.07.; 23.08.; 14.09.; 19.09.; 20.11.; 02.12.
(1993): 11.01.; 14.01.; 25.01.; 09.02.; 30.05.; 21.07.
(1994): 10.02.

Parliament

Parliament

Parliament

Building on Marijin Dvor

V. HOSPITALS AND RED CROSS

Red Cross Building

Military Hospital

Military Hospital

Military Hospital

Military Hospital

Students Polyclinic

Students Polyclinic

Traumatology Clinic, UMC

Traumatology Clinic, UMC

Internal Diseases Polyclinic, UMC

Internal Diseases Polyclinic, UMC

VI. MOSQUES AND CHURCHES

Mosque in Sokolje

The Tabački Mesdžid, built in 1591, is a well-known monument of the Osman Empire in the Baščaršija (the old town area of Sarajevo) which was hit by at least nine incendiary bombs and burned down.

Tabački Mesdžid

White Mosque in Vratnik

Carina Mosque in Vratnik

Mosque in Sirokaca

The Gazi Husrev Bey Mosque, built in 1531, represents one of the major achievements of Islamic architecture in BiH. In addition, there is the Muslim religious secondary school, the Gazi Husrev Bey's School, one of the most beautiful monuments of old Sarajevo. It was founded and constructed in 1537. The Gazi Husrev Bey's library was established in 1537 and represents the greatest treasury of oriental scripts in the former Yugoslavia. Its possessions include a number of old, important and unique manuscripts in Arabic, including some works from Islamic sciences still unknown in the field of Islamic studies.

Gazi Husrev Bey Mosque

Gazi Husrev Bey Mosque

Gazi Husrev Bey Mosque

Gazi Husrev Bey Mosque

Gazi Husrev Bey Mosque

Gazi Husrev Bey Mosque

Mosque in Ugorsko

Catholic Church in Ravno

Catholic Church in Ravno (interior)

Catholic Church in Marijin Dvor

Catholic Church in Dolac Malta

Catholic Church on Maršal Tito Street

Orthodox Chapel in the Koševo Cemetery

Orthodox Chapel in the Koševo Cemetery

St. Vincent Church

The Old Orthodox Church, built before 1539, is situated in Baštaršija. A great number of icons from the church museum, founded in 1889, were reportedly transferred to Serbia at the beginning of the war in 1992.

Ali Pasha Mosque, built in 1560, is considered a masterpiece of oriental architecture.

The Magrabija Mosque, built in 1538, was totally destroyed.

VII. HISTORIC MONUMENTS

The National and University Library of the Republic of BiH, situated in the building of the City Hall, used to be a center containing an enormous library with holdings amounting to about 2,500,000 volumes. In this context, it is important to focus on the department named Bosniaci, containing the total literary inheritance (old books and manuscripts) dating as far back as the sixteenth century.

The City Hall is a structure designed in Moorish style by the Czech architect Aleksander Vitok and built between April 1892 and 1896. The National and University Library holdings were stored in this building, which repeatedly was bombarded from April 1992 until at least late August 1992, when it burned down. With the exception of 50% to 60% of the library stock that had been transferred to other sites in the city, everything had been destroyed.

City Hall and National and University Library

City Hall and National and University Library

City Hall and National and University Library

City Hall and National and University Library

City Hall and National and University Library

city Hall and National and University Library

City Hall and National and University Library

City Hall and National and University Library (interior)

City Hall and National and University Library (interior)

City Hall and National and University Library

The Museum of the XIV Winter Olympic Games. During the night of 25 April 1992, the museum, located in a famous building dating from 1903, was shelled with three incendiary bombs and burned down shortly afterwards.

Museum of the XIV Winter Olympic Games

Museum of the XIV Winter Olympic Games

Museum of the XIV Winter Olympic Games

Museum of the XIV Winter Olympic Games

Museum of the XIV Winter Olympic Games

Gate in Vratsnik

Fine Arts Academy

Franji Racki Square

VIII. BAŠČARŠIJA AND OLD TOWN

Shelling of the Old Town and Bašćaršija appears in the Chronology of the battle and siege of Sarajevo on the following dates:

{1992): 06.04.; 08.04.; 23.04.; 29.04.; 01.05.; 02.05.; 02.05.; 03.05.; 24.05.; 29.05.; 07.06.; 12.06.; 19.06.; 04.07.; 06.07.; 14.07.;
17.07.; 18.07.; 20.07.; 29.07.; 30.07.; 12.08.; 13.08.; 21.08.;
22.08.; 08.09.; 14.09.; 16.09.; 17.09.; 18.09.; 29.09.; 04.10.; 05.10.; 13.10.; 23.10.; 24.10.; 25.10.; 29.10.; 31.10.; 03.11.; 04.11.; 09.11.; 17.11.; 22.11.; 24.11.; 25.11.; 05.12.; 06.12.;
14.12.; 19.12.; 29.12.; 30.12.

{1993): 13.01.; 14.01.; 17.01.; 22.01.; 24.01.; 25.01.; 26.01.; 29.01.; 11.02.; 16.02.; 23.02.; 28.02.; 01.03.; 21.03.; 01.05.; 06.05.;
29.05.; 31.05.; 10.06.; 19.06.; 12.07.; 24.08.; 24.08.; 14.09.;
19.09.; 30.09.; 16.10.; 19.10.; 23.10.

{1994): 04.01.; 24.01.; 05.02.

Bašćaršija is a commercial, trade and catering center of oriental expression, just as its name says (Persian cazaa, a bazaar on the crossing of four roads). It is the historical nucleus of the city, 14 acres large and five hundred years old, a cultural monument.

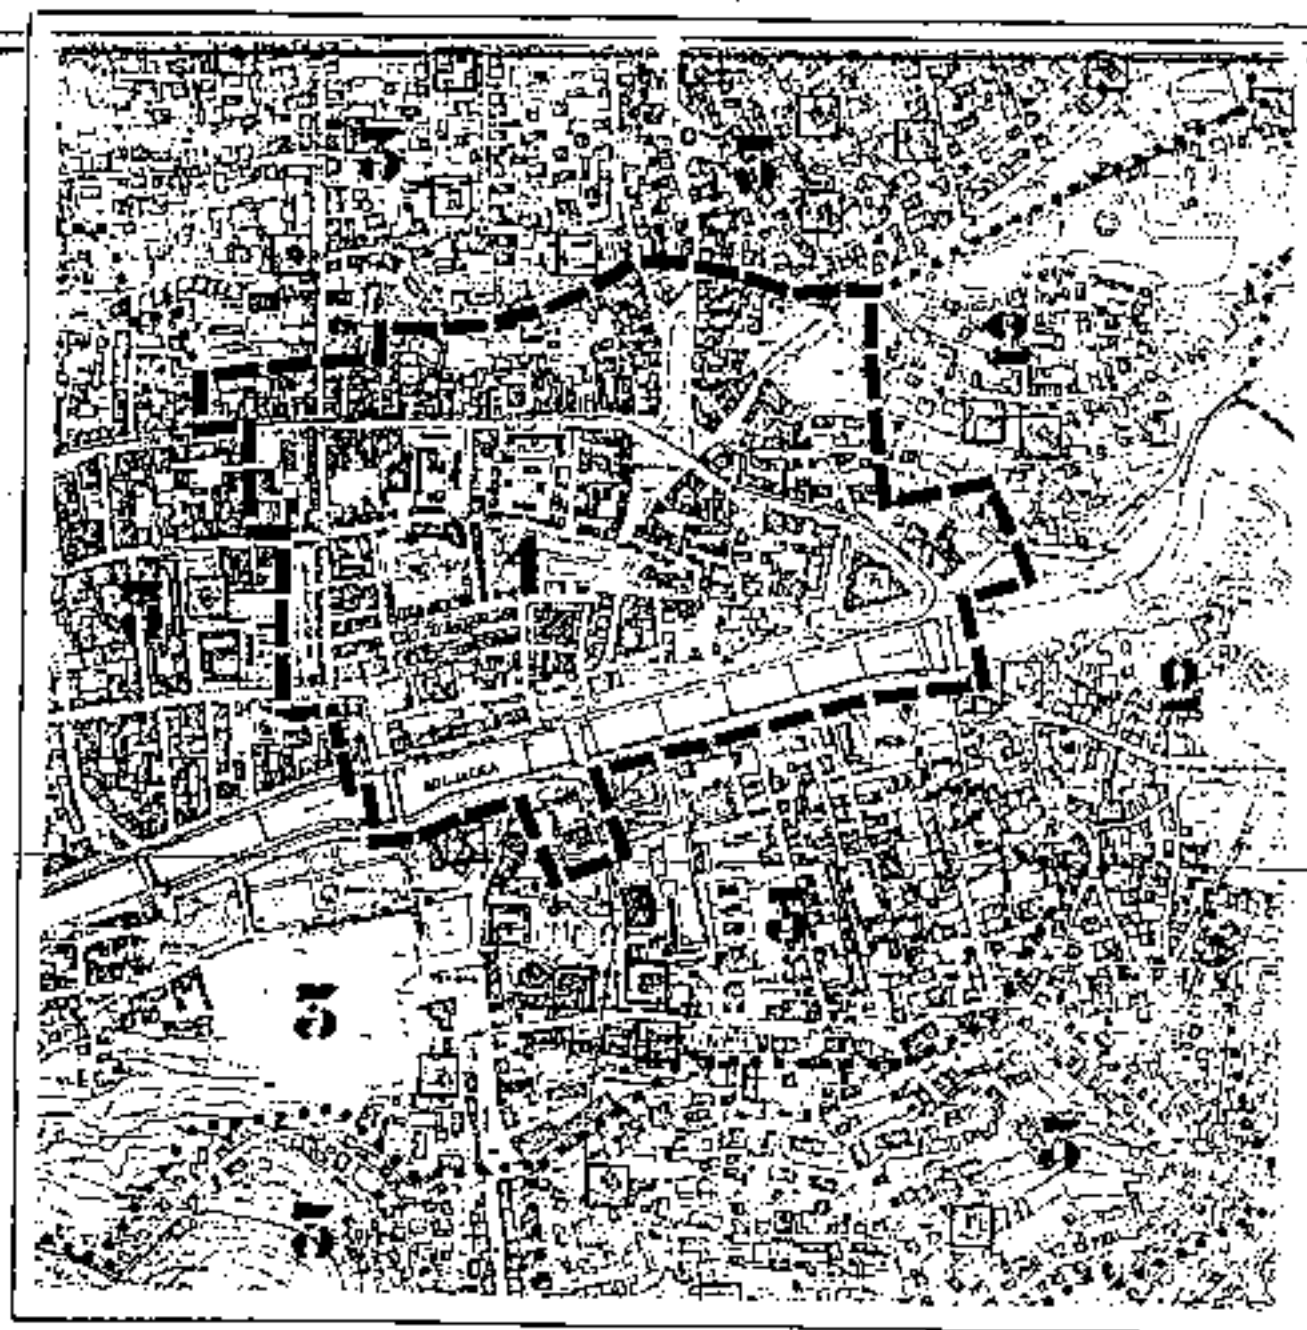

The network of streets in the Old Sarajevo Čaršija (the commercial quarter of the town) is one of the specific features of the complex. In an urban sense, it remained almost unchanged for more than 450 years, with all characteristics of modern town planning: the streets leading out of the town (Kovaci, Samardžije, and Šagrđžije) main streets (Bašćaršija, Šaraci Abadžiluk, Titova, and Gazi Husrev Begova) and traffic (other streets). In order to meet the requirements of a large and modern Čaršija, new streets were added, respecting the existing ones. The outline of traffic roads was made and implemented according to the plan. The shops were lined towards streets, while various monumental buildings were left in the background.

In 1895, Bašćaršija was proposed for inclusion into the UNESCO list of the universal heritage. As far as is known, the proposal has been put on the preliminary list.

POLOŽAJ STARE SARAJEVSKE
ČARŠIJE U ISTORIJSKOM
PODKUĆJU GRADA

LOCATION OF THE OLD
ČARŠIJA OF SARAJEVO IN THE HISTORICAL PART OF THE TOWN.

1. NOMINIRANO DOBRO -
STARA BASRA
2. ZAŠTIĆENE ARHITEKTONSKO
URBANE SPOMENIČKE CJELINE
3. EVIDENTIRANE ARHITEKTONSKO
URBANE SPOMENIČKE CJELINE

026753

1. NOMINATED MONUMENTAL COM-
PLEX OF THE OLD BASRA
2. PROTECTED ARCHITECTURAL AND URBAN MONUMENTAL
COMPLEXES.
3. REGISTERED ARCHITECTURAL AND URBAN MONUMENTAL
COMPLEXES.

STARA SARAJEVSKA ČARŠIJA
SA MANSURANIN OBELETTIM
MONUMENTALNE ARHITEKTURE

THE OLD ČARŠIJA OF SARAJEVO WITH MARKED BUILDINGS OF MONUMENTAL ARCHITECTURE

026754

Islamic Theological Faculty

Vase Miškina Street "Breadline Incident"

Vase Miškina Street "Breadline Incident"

Vase Miškina Street "Breadline Incident"

Market Place Massacre on 5 February 1994

Market Place Massacre on 5 February 1994

IX. SCHOOLS

Veselin Maslesa Primary School

Gymnasium

Franjo Kluz Primary School

Student Dormitory in Medžarići

Textil School

Institute for History

University Building

Student Dormitory in Bjelava

Student Dormitory

X. THE OLYMPIC CENTER

The Olympic Center "Skenderija", situated on the left bank of the river Miljacka, was a commercial, cultural, and sports center. The whole structure of 70,000 meters, and the useable space amounts to 50,000 meters. The 19,200 square meter roof has been totally destroyed. Four fires demolished the whole Youth Center Dancing Hall from the roof to the foundation. Between May 1992 and February 1993, the center reportedly was bombarded continuously (about 300 bombs). The damage is estimated at 65% to 70%, amounting to $8,360,000 US.

The Olympic Complex "Zetra" is located on Djute Djakovic Street No. 66.
Through May 1993, the complex was reportedly shelled 150 times

Zetra

Zebra

Setra

Majmila Olympic Hall

Wojmilo Olympic Hall

XI. RESIDENTIAL AREAS

Private House in Sokolje

Sokolje Settlement

Naselje Sokolje

Naselje Sokolje

Pofalići Settlement

Mojmilo Settlement.

Vojničko Polje Area

Ciglane Settlement

Daniyel (Zoo) Street

Private House in Vratnik

Breka Settlement

Naselje Buča Potok

Naselje Velešiči

Medžarići-Dobrinja Road

XII. HRASNO AREA

Shelling of the Hrasno Area appears in the Chronology of the Battle and siege of Sarajevo on the following dates:

(1992): 25.07.; 28.07.; 29.08.; 14.09.; 17.09.; 20.09.; 21.09.; 23.09.;
26.09.; 05.10.; 07.10.; 18.10.; 25.10.; 03.11.; 20.11.; 24.11.

(1993): 01.01.; 06.01.; 13.01.; 14.01.; 22.01.; 23.01.; 26.01.; 27.01.; 02.02.; 05.02.; 28.10.; 06.12.

Hrasno

Hrasno

Hlasno

Kraano

XFII. PUBLIC FACILITIES

Railway Station

Railway bridge in Pofalzet

Railway Bridge in Pofalići

The "JP Gras" Public Transportation Firm was founded in 1885. Since then, the firm worked continuously until the was broke out in April 1992. Since early April 1992, the Public transportation capacity has reportedly been destroyed. The damage done to the transportation infrastructure ranges from 20% to 100%. The damage caused to the transportation network is estimated at 30% to 60%.

JP Gas

JP Gras

XIV. PRIVATE INDUSTRY

Alcoa Factory

Dairy Factory

Tabacco Factory

XV. PUBLIC BUILDINGS

Old Tobacco Factory

The Main Post Office Building, designed by the architect Josip Vankas and built in the style of the Secession, was opened in 1918.

Main Post Office

Main Post Office

Main Post Office (interior)

Post Office in Dolac Malta

Zemaljski Museum

Elektronika

Elektricitet

Television Tower on Rum Hill

XVI. NEW CEMETERIES

Cemetery of Šeheti kovači

Catholic Cemetery

Stadium Cemetery

New Cemetery at Zetia

New Cemetery at Zetra

Gradskog Chapel, Bare Cemetery

Law Cemetery

Lav Cemetery

Lav Cemetery

Appendix 7

UNPROFOR HQ BH COMMAND SARAJEVO PICINPSUM, CONTAINING BATTLE
DETAILED MAPS OF THE SARAJEVO AREA FOR THE FOLLOWING DATES:

20/6/93; 9/5/93; 25/4/93; 18/4/93; 11/4/93; 28/3/93; 21/3/93; 20/3/93; 14/3/93;
7/3/93; 28/2/93; 21/2/93; 14/2/93; 7/2/93; 24/1/93; 17/1/93; 10/1/93; 3/1/93;
27/12/92; 20/12/92; 12/12/92.

SCALE 1:25,000

UNRESTRICTED

Sheet 50-10

5/1394/574/Amvoka VI
Page 1258

SARAJEVO PICINJSUM

AS AT 20/06/83

THIS MAP IS A SUMMARY OF THE INFORMATION CONTAINED IN THE ORIGINAL SOURCE AND IS NOT A SUBSTITUTE THEREFOR. IT IS NOT TO BE USED FOR ANY PURPOSE OTHER THAN THAT FOR WHICH IT WAS DESIGNED. THE USER OF THIS MAP SHALL BE RESPONSIBLE FOR OBTAINING THE NECESSARY PERMISSIONS FROM THE APPROPRIATE AUTHORITIES FOR ANY REPRODUCTION OR DISTRIBUTION OF THIS MAP.

OPERATIONAL LEGEND

USE OF COMMUNICATIONS

UNRESTRICTED

5

1000000

1000000

UNRESTRICTED

AS AT 20/06/83

5/1394/574/Amvoka VI

Page 1258

UNRESTRICTED

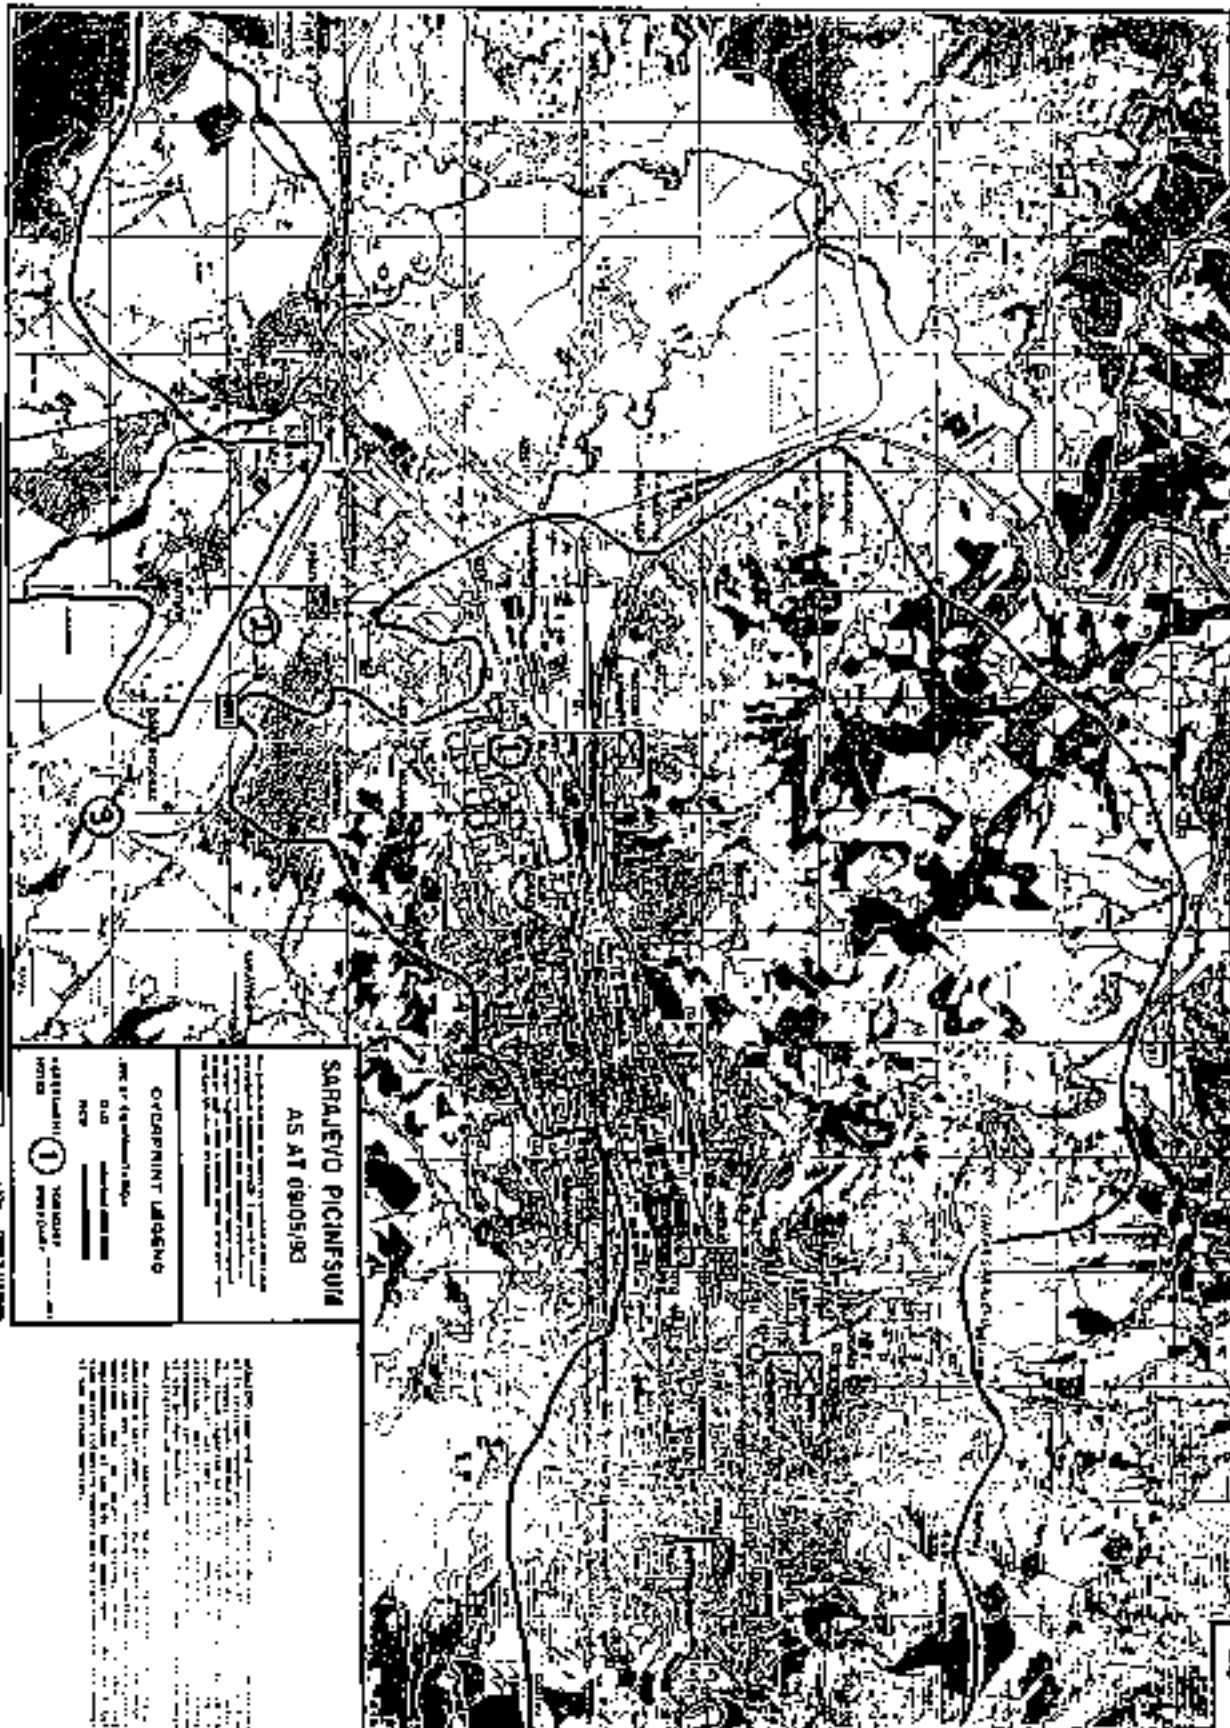

UNRESTRICTED

UNRESTRICTED

UNRESTRICTED

SCALE 1:25,000

8.0

5/1994/87/2000a 71
DSWP 1283

SARAJEVO PICINFSOMA AS AT 09/05/93

This map is based on the 1:25,000 scale map of Sarajevo, Bosnia and Herzegovina, published in 1983. It is a derivative work of the original map and is not to be used for navigation or other purposes for which it was not designed.

OVERPRINT LEGEND

LINE OF 400 METERS

OLD

NEW

UNDEVELOPED

DEVELOPED

UNDEVELOPED

DEVELOPED

UNDEVELOPED

DEVELOPED

This map is not to be used for navigation or other purposes for which it was not designed.

SCALE 1:25,000

UNCLASSIFIED

EXCLUDED FROM AUTOMATIC DOWNGRADING AND DECLASSIFICATION

THIS MAP IS A DERIVATIVE WORK OF THE ORIGINAL MAP OF SARAJEVO, BOSNIA AND HERZEGOVINA, PUBLISHED IN 1983. IT IS NOT TO BE USED FOR NAVIGATION OR OTHER PURPOSES FOR WHICH IT WAS NOT DESIGNED.

Scale 1:25,000

SARAJEVO PLOINSUM AS AT 25/04/53

This map is based on the 1:25,000 scale map of Sarajevo, Bosnia and Herzegovina, published by the Military Geographical Institute, Belgrade, in 1953. It shows the city and its surroundings as they were in April 1953.

OVERPRINT RECORD

Scale of overprint: 1:25,000
Scale of original: 1:25,000
Scale of reproduction: 1:25,000

Notes:
1. The map is based on the 1:25,000 scale map of Sarajevo, Bosnia and Herzegovina, published by the Military Geographical Institute, Belgrade, in 1953. It shows the city and its surroundings as they were in April 1953.
2. The map is based on the 1:25,000 scale map of Sarajevo, Bosnia and Herzegovina, published by the Military Geographical Institute, Belgrade, in 1953. It shows the city and its surroundings as they were in April 1953.
3. The map is based on the 1:25,000 scale map of Sarajevo, Bosnia and Herzegovina, published by the Military Geographical Institute, Belgrade, in 1953. It shows the city and its surroundings as they were in April 1953.

This map is based on the 1:25,000 scale map of Sarajevo, Bosnia and Herzegovina, published by the Military Geographical Institute, Belgrade, in 1953. It shows the city and its surroundings as they were in April 1953.

This map is based on the 1:25,000 scale map of Sarajevo, Bosnia and Herzegovina, published by the Military Geographical Institute, Belgrade, in 1953. It shows the city and its surroundings as they were in April 1953.

This map is a reproduction of the original map as shown on page 1 of the report. It is not a final product and should not be used for any purpose other than that for which it was prepared. The map is based on the best available information and is subject to change without notice. The map is not a substitute for a field visit and should not be used to make any decisions. The map is a reproduction of the original map as shown on page 1 of the report. It is not a final product and should not be used for any purpose other than that for which it was prepared. The map is based on the best available information and is subject to change without notice. The map is not a substitute for a field visit and should not be used to make any decisions.

SARAJEVO PININFISIUM
 AS AT 1/10/53

OVERPRINT BOARD

1:50,000
 1:50,000
 1:50,000

This map is a reproduction of the original map as shown on page 1 of the report. It is not a final product and should not be used for any purpose other than that for which it was prepared.

This map is a reproduction of the original map as shown on page 1 of the report. It is not a final product and should not be used for any purpose other than that for which it was prepared.

SCALE 1:50,000

SARAJEVO PICINFSUM
AS AT 28/03/83

CHANGES SINCE THE PREVIOUS EDITION
 1. THE CITY OF SARAJEVO HAS BEEN RECLASSIFIED AS A CITY.
 2. THE CITY OF SARAJEVO HAS BEEN RECLASSIFIED AS A CITY.
 3. THE CITY OF SARAJEVO HAS BEEN RECLASSIFIED AS A CITY.
 4. THE CITY OF SARAJEVO HAS BEEN RECLASSIFIED AS A CITY.
 5. THE CITY OF SARAJEVO HAS BEEN RECLASSIFIED AS A CITY.

CHANGES SINCE THE PREVIOUS EDITION
 1. THE CITY OF SARAJEVO HAS BEEN RECLASSIFIED AS A CITY.
 2. THE CITY OF SARAJEVO HAS BEEN RECLASSIFIED AS A CITY.
 3. THE CITY OF SARAJEVO HAS BEEN RECLASSIFIED AS A CITY.
 4. THE CITY OF SARAJEVO HAS BEEN RECLASSIFIED AS A CITY.
 5. THE CITY OF SARAJEVO HAS BEEN RECLASSIFIED AS A CITY.

1. THE CITY OF SARAJEVO HAS BEEN RECLASSIFIED AS A CITY.
 2. THE CITY OF SARAJEVO HAS BEEN RECLASSIFIED AS A CITY.
 3. THE CITY OF SARAJEVO HAS BEEN RECLASSIFIED AS A CITY.
 4. THE CITY OF SARAJEVO HAS BEEN RECLASSIFIED AS A CITY.
 5. THE CITY OF SARAJEVO HAS BEEN RECLASSIFIED AS A CITY.

SCALE 1:250,000

511334/614 INDIAN VI
FOUR 1264

SARAJEVO PICINJSKA
AS AT 21/03/93

OVERPRINT LEGEND

Ed by Cambridge Maps

DATE OF OVERPRINT

SCALE

PROJECTION

VERTICAL DATUM

HORIZONTAL DATUM

THIS MAP IS A REPRODUCTION OF THE ORIGINAL MAP AND IS NOT TO BE USED FOR ANY OTHER PURPOSE THAN THAT FOR WHICH IT WAS DESIGNED.

SCALE AND DATE OF OVERPRINT

1	1:250,000	UTM	WGS 84	1980
2	1:250,000	UTM	WGS 84	1980
3	1:250,000	UTM	WGS 84	1980
4	1:250,000	UTM	WGS 84	1980
5	1:250,000	UTM	WGS 84	1980
6	1:250,000	UTM	WGS 84	1980
7	1:250,000	UTM	WGS 84	1980
8	1:250,000	UTM	WGS 84	1980
9	1:250,000	UTM	WGS 84	1980
10	1:250,000	UTM	WGS 84	1980
11	1:250,000	UTM	WGS 84	1980
12	1:250,000	UTM	WGS 84	1980
13	1:250,000	UTM	WGS 84	1980
14	1:250,000	UTM	WGS 84	1980
15	1:250,000	UTM	WGS 84	1980
16	1:250,000	UTM	WGS 84	1980
17	1:250,000	UTM	WGS 84	1980
18	1:250,000	UTM	WGS 84	1980
19	1:250,000	UTM	WGS 84	1980
20	1:250,000	UTM	WGS 84	1980
21	1:250,000	UTM	WGS 84	1980
22	1:250,000	UTM	WGS 84	1980
23	1:250,000	UTM	WGS 84	1980
24	1:250,000	UTM	WGS 84	1980
25	1:250,000	UTM	WGS 84	1980
26	1:250,000	UTM	WGS 84	1980
27	1:250,000	UTM	WGS 84	1980
28	1:250,000	UTM	WGS 84	1980
29	1:250,000	UTM	WGS 84	1980
30	1:250,000	UTM	WGS 84	1980
31	1:250,000	UTM	WGS 84	1980
32	1:250,000	UTM	WGS 84	1980
33	1:250,000	UTM	WGS 84	1980
34	1:250,000	UTM	WGS 84	1980
35	1:250,000	UTM	WGS 84	1980
36	1:250,000	UTM	WGS 84	1980
37	1:250,000	UTM	WGS 84	1980
38	1:250,000	UTM	WGS 84	1980
39	1:250,000	UTM	WGS 84	1980
40	1:250,000	UTM	WGS 84	1980
41	1:250,000	UTM	WGS 84	1980
42	1:250,000	UTM	WGS 84	1980
43	1:250,000	UTM	WGS 84	1980
44	1:250,000	UTM	WGS 84	1980
45	1:250,000	UTM	WGS 84	1980
46	1:250,000	UTM	WGS 84	1980
47	1:250,000	UTM	WGS 84	1980
48	1:250,000	UTM	WGS 84	1980
49	1:250,000	UTM	WGS 84	1980
50	1:250,000	UTM	WGS 84	1980

SCALE 1:25,000

UN RESTRICTED

5/138/874/4000-3
Page 1/85

SARAJEVO BRIEF
AS AT 20/04/89

STREETS	—
ROADS	—
RAILWAYS	—
POSSIBLE ROUTES	—
POSSIBLE ACTIVITIES	○
POSSIBLE BARRIERS	—
POSSIBLE OBSTACLES	—
POSSIBLE SHELTERS	—

UN RESTRICTED

Page 1 of 85

5/138/874/4000-3

SCALE 1:25,000

SARAJEVO PICINISUM
AS AT 14/03/83

SYMBOL LEGEND

UNCLASSIFIED
DATE OF COMPLETION: 1983
BY: [illegible]
CLASSIFICATION: UNCLASSIFIED
EXPIRES: 1 JANUARY 1985

THE INFORMATION ON THIS MAP IS UNCLASSIFIED EXCEPT WHERE SHOWN OTHERWISE

CLASSIFIED BY: [illegible]
DATE: [illegible]

UNCLASSIFIED
DATE OF COMPLETION: 1983
BY: [illegible]
CLASSIFICATION: UNCLASSIFIED
EXPIRES: 1 JANUARY 1985

SCALE 1:25,000

The map is a technical drawing and does not contain any text.

Scale 1:25,000
Sarajevo, Bosnia and Herzegovina

SARAJEVO PLOINSUM
AS AT 07/03/93

DATE OF REVISION: 07/03/93

BY: [Signature]

FOR: [Signature]

APPROVED BY: [Signature]

DATE: 07/03/93

BY: [Signature]

FOR: [Signature]

APPROVED BY: [Signature]

DATE: 07/03/93

1. This map is a technical drawing and does not contain any text.

SARAJEVO PICINFSUM
AS AT 28/02/93

1:50,000
Scale of Contour Interval:
10m
Contour Interval:
5m
Vertical Exaggeration:
10x

CHANGES LEGEND

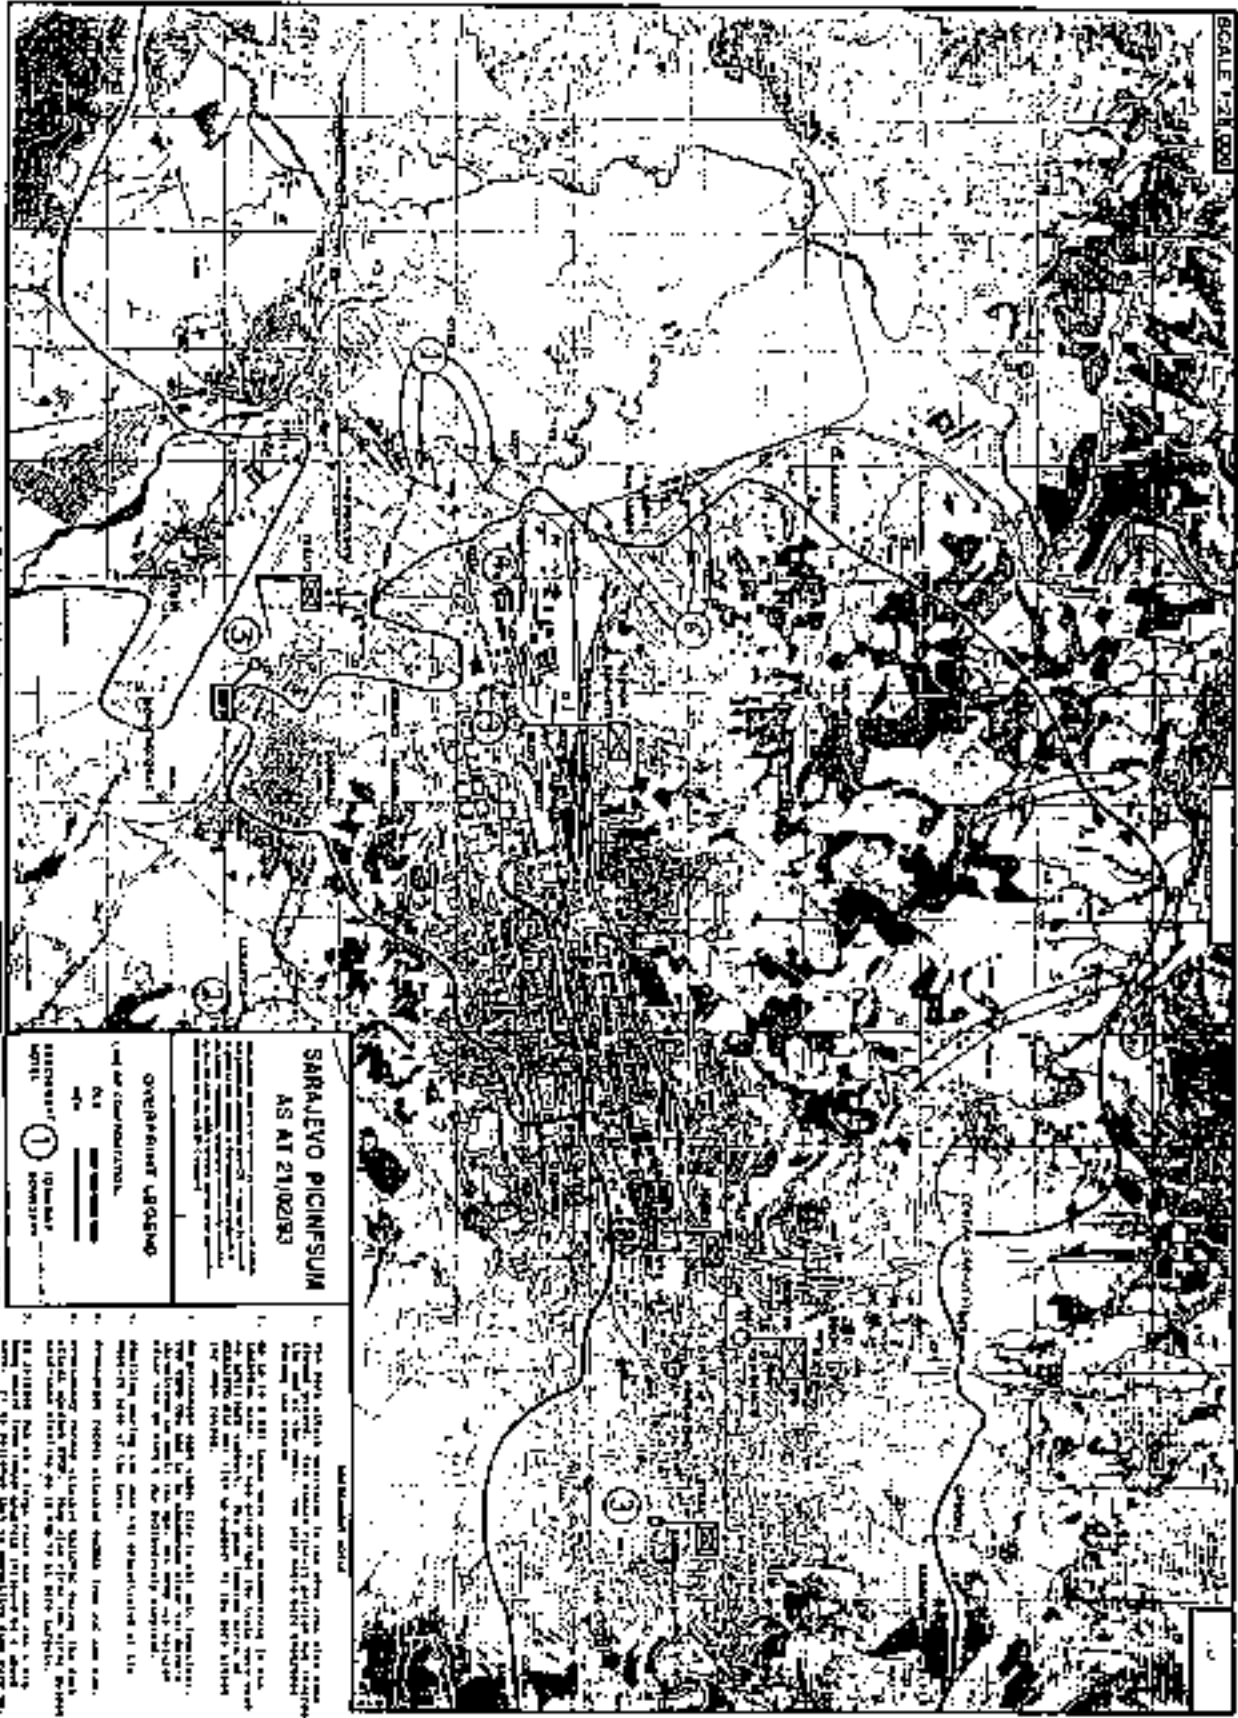

- 1. New Contour Interval
- 2. New Contour Interval
- 3. New Contour Interval
- 4. New Contour Interval
- 5. New Contour Interval
- 6. New Contour Interval
- 7. New Contour Interval
- 8. New Contour Interval
- 9. New Contour Interval
- 10. New Contour Interval

UN RESTRICTED

0-488 0000 000000

1:50,000
Scale of Contour Interval:
10m
Contour Interval:
5m
Vertical Exaggeration:
10x

1. New Contour Interval
2. New Contour Interval
3. New Contour Interval
4. New Contour Interval
5. New Contour Interval
6. New Contour Interval
7. New Contour Interval
8. New Contour Interval
9. New Contour Interval
10. New Contour Interval

THIS MAP IS THE PROPERTY OF THE UNITED STATES GOVERNMENT AND IS LOANED TO YOU. IT AND ITS CONTENTS ARE NOT TO BE REPRODUCED OR TRANSMITTED IN ANY FORM OR BY ANY MEANS, ELECTRONIC OR MECHANICAL, INCLUDING PHOTOCOPYING, RECORDING, OR BY ANY INFORMATION STORAGE AND RETRIEVAL SYSTEM.

DATE OF EDITION: 03/1983
 DATE OF PUBLICATION: 03/1983
 (1) 100% (2) 90% (3) 80% (4) 70%

SARALEVO PICINFSUM
AS AT 27102/93

OVERPRINTED LEGEND

Legend
 (1) 100% (2) 90% (3) 80% (4) 70%

1. The first eight numbers in the code are the same as in the first edition of this map.
2. The last four numbers in the code are the same as in the first edition of this map.
3. The last four numbers in the code are the same as in the first edition of this map.
4. The last four numbers in the code are the same as in the first edition of this map.
5. The last four numbers in the code are the same as in the first edition of this map.
6. The last four numbers in the code are the same as in the first edition of this map.
7. The last four numbers in the code are the same as in the first edition of this map.
8. The last four numbers in the code are the same as in the first edition of this map.

SCALE 1:25,000

SARAJEVO PICINFISUM
AS AT 14/02/83

OVERPRINT LEGEND

Unit of object height in feet

100' ———

50' ———

25' ———

①

②

③

④

⑤

⑥

⑦

⑧

⑨

⑩

⑪

⑫

⑬

⑭

⑮

⑯

⑰

⑱

⑲

⑳

㉑

㉒

㉓

㉔

㉕

㉖

㉗

㉘

㉙

㉚

㉛

㉜

㉝

㉞

㉟

㊱

㊲

㊳

㊴

㊵

㊶

㊷

㊸

㊹

㊺

㊻

㊼

㊽

㊾

㊿

5/1984/234/Annex V7
Sheet 1370

Change in height in feet is indicated by contour lines

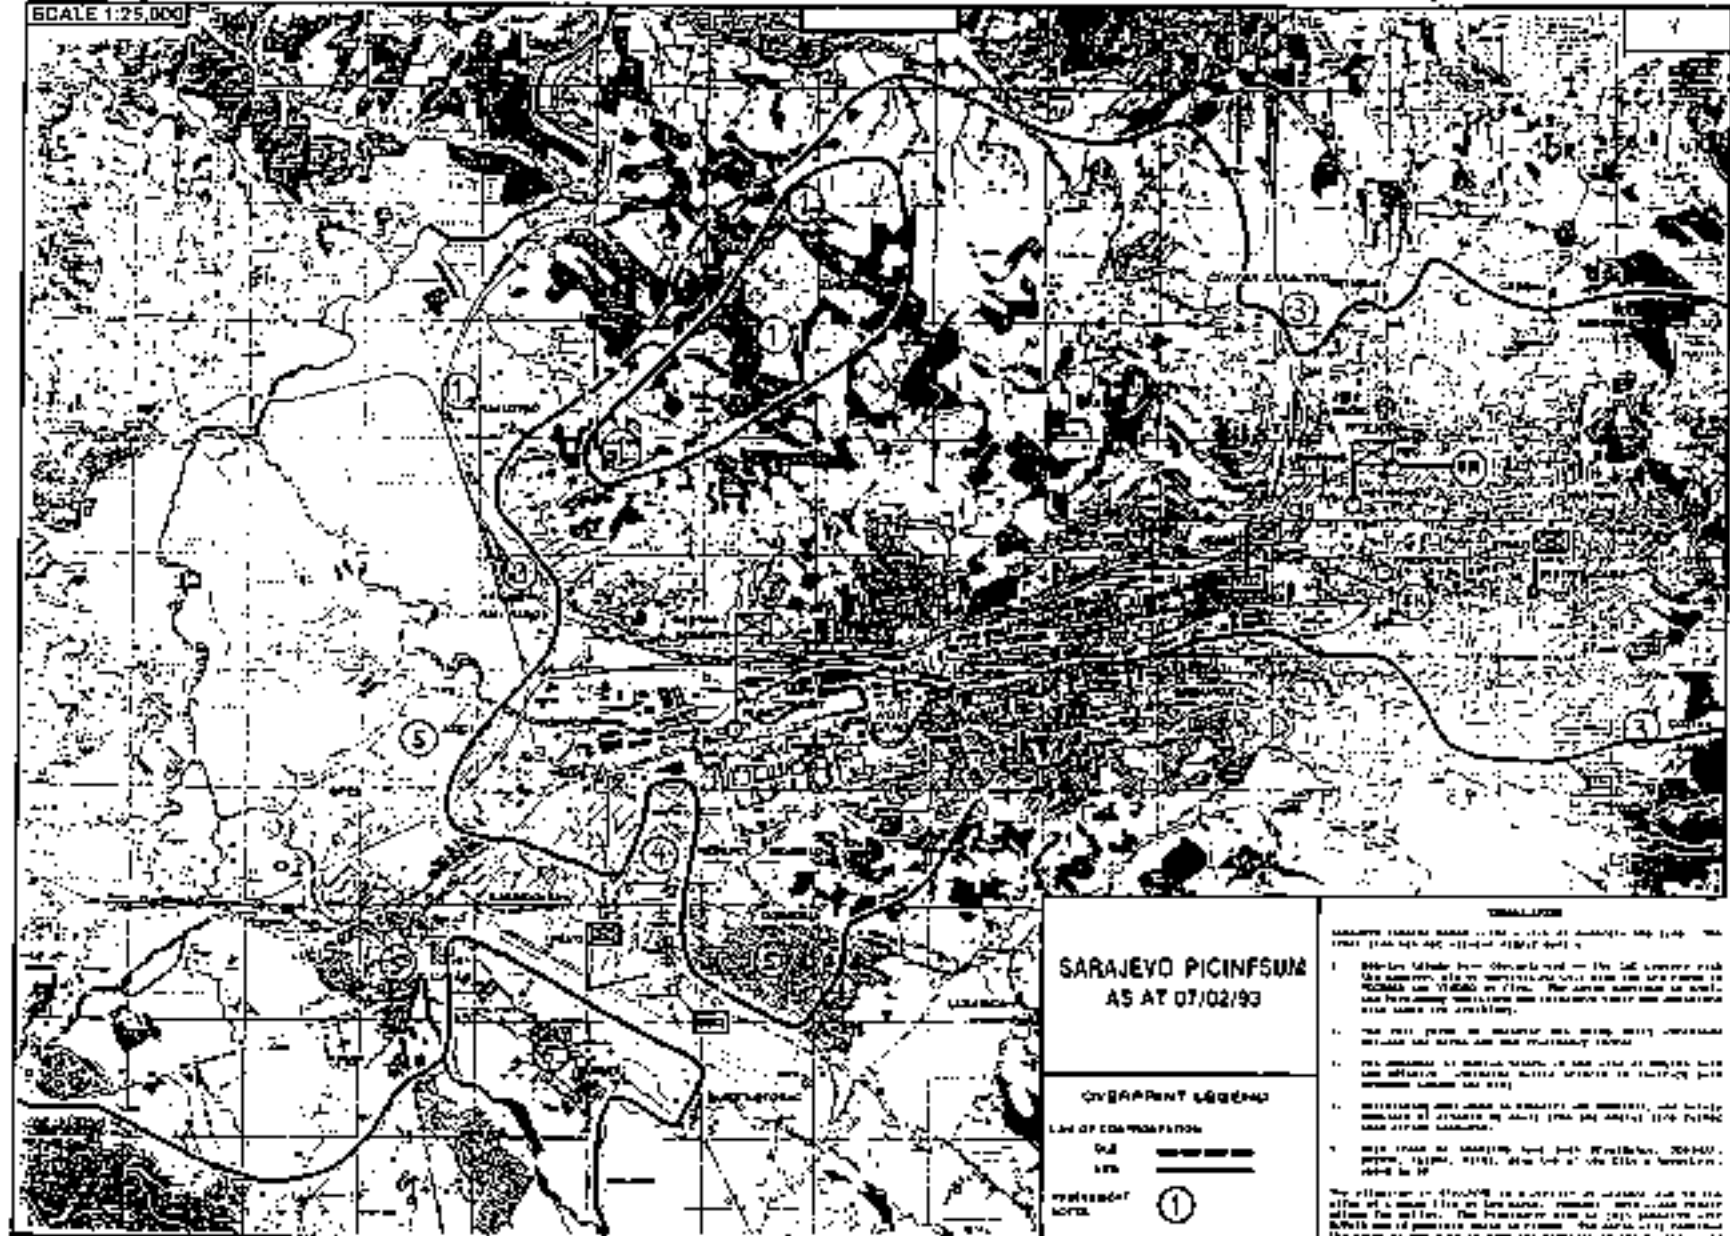

Change in height in feet is indicated by contour lines

Change in height in feet is indicated by contour lines

Change in height in feet is indicated by contour lines

Change in height in feet is indicated by contour lines

SCALE 1:25,000

SARAJEVO PICINFUMA
AS AT 07/02/93

CONTRAST LEGEND

LINE OF CONTRASTION

ONE	THICK DASHED LINE
TWO	THIN DASHED LINE

PRESENCE OF

ONE	CIRCLE WITH NUMBER 1
-----	----------------------

EXPLANATION

1. The area circled with the number 1 on the map shows the area of the city of Sarajevo which was under the control of the Bosnian Serb forces as at 07/02/93. The area outside the circle shows the area of the city which was under the control of the Bosnian Muslim and Croat forces as at 07/02/93.

2. The area circled with the number 2 on the map shows the area of the city of Sarajevo which was under the control of the Bosnian Muslim and Croat forces as at 07/02/93.

3. The area circled with the number 3 on the map shows the area of the city of Sarajevo which was under the control of the Bosnian Muslim and Croat forces as at 07/02/93.

4. The area circled with the number 4 on the map shows the area of the city of Sarajevo which was under the control of the Bosnian Muslim and Croat forces as at 07/02/93.

5. The area circled with the number 5 on the map shows the area of the city of Sarajevo which was under the control of the Bosnian Muslim and Croat forces as at 07/02/93.

The area circled with the number 1 on the map shows the area of the city of Sarajevo which was under the control of the Bosnian Serb forces as at 07/02/93.

BASE MAP DATA
The base map data is derived from the 1:25,000 scale map of Sarajevo, Bosnia and Herzegovina, published by the Ministry of Defense of the Federal Republic of Yugoslavia.

Scale 1:25,000
Projection: UTM
Datum: WGS 84

SCALE 1:25,000

The map is a reproduction of a map published by the State of Bosnia and Herzegovina.

DATE: 2007-11-20
BY: [illegible]

SARAJEVO PICINFSUM
AS AT 24/01/83

OVERPRINT LEGEND
USED CONVENTIONS:
M 4
S 1
SARAJEVO
M 1

1

This map is a reproduction of a map published by the State of Bosnia and Herzegovina. It is a topographic map of Sarajevo, Bosnia and Herzegovina, at a scale of 1:25,000. The map shows the city's layout, including the Sava River and the Bosna River. It features a grid system, contour lines, and various symbols for buildings, roads, and terrain. Several areas are circled and numbered 1 through 5. The map is oriented with North at the top.

The map is not to be used for navigation purposes.

Scale: 1:50,000
Projection: UTM
Datum: WGS 84

Legend

OVERPRINT LEGEND

LINE OF CONTOUR (NEW)

LINE OF CONTOUR (OLD)

ROAD (NEW)

ROAD (OLD)

RAILROAD (NEW)

RAILROAD (OLD)

WATER (NEW)

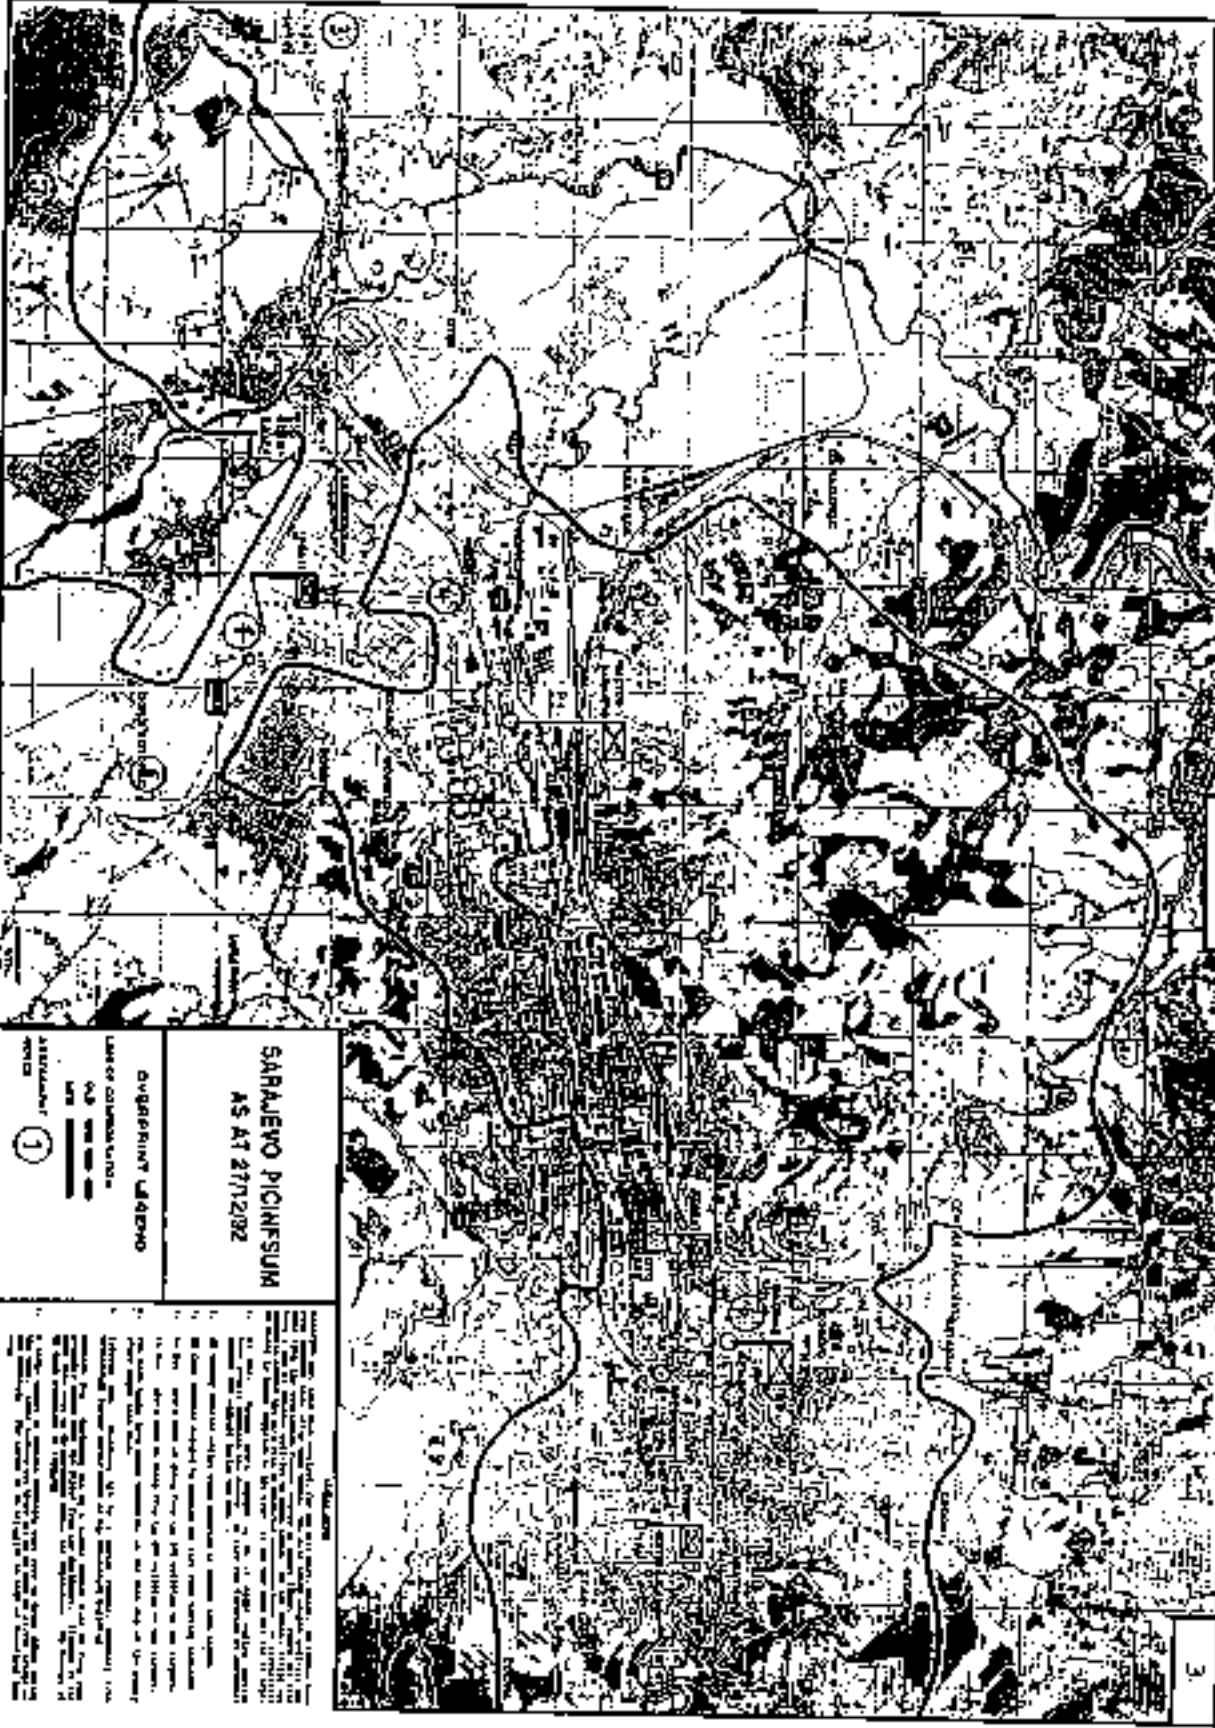

WATER (OLD)

...

200 100 50

1:50,000

...

SARAJEVO PICINFSUM
AS AT 27/12/92

DIGITIZED BY JAGMO

DATE OF COMPLETION
DATE
AS AT 27/12/92

THE DATA ON THIS MAP IS UNCLASSIFIED AND IS AVAILABLE TO THE PUBLIC.

DATE OF COMPLETION
DATE
AS AT 27/12/92

1. This map is a derivative of the original map of Sarajevo, Bosnia and Herzegovina, which was published by the Federal Bureau of Investigation (FBI) in 1988. The original map was classified as "Secret" and was only available to authorized personnel. This map is unclassified and is available to the public.

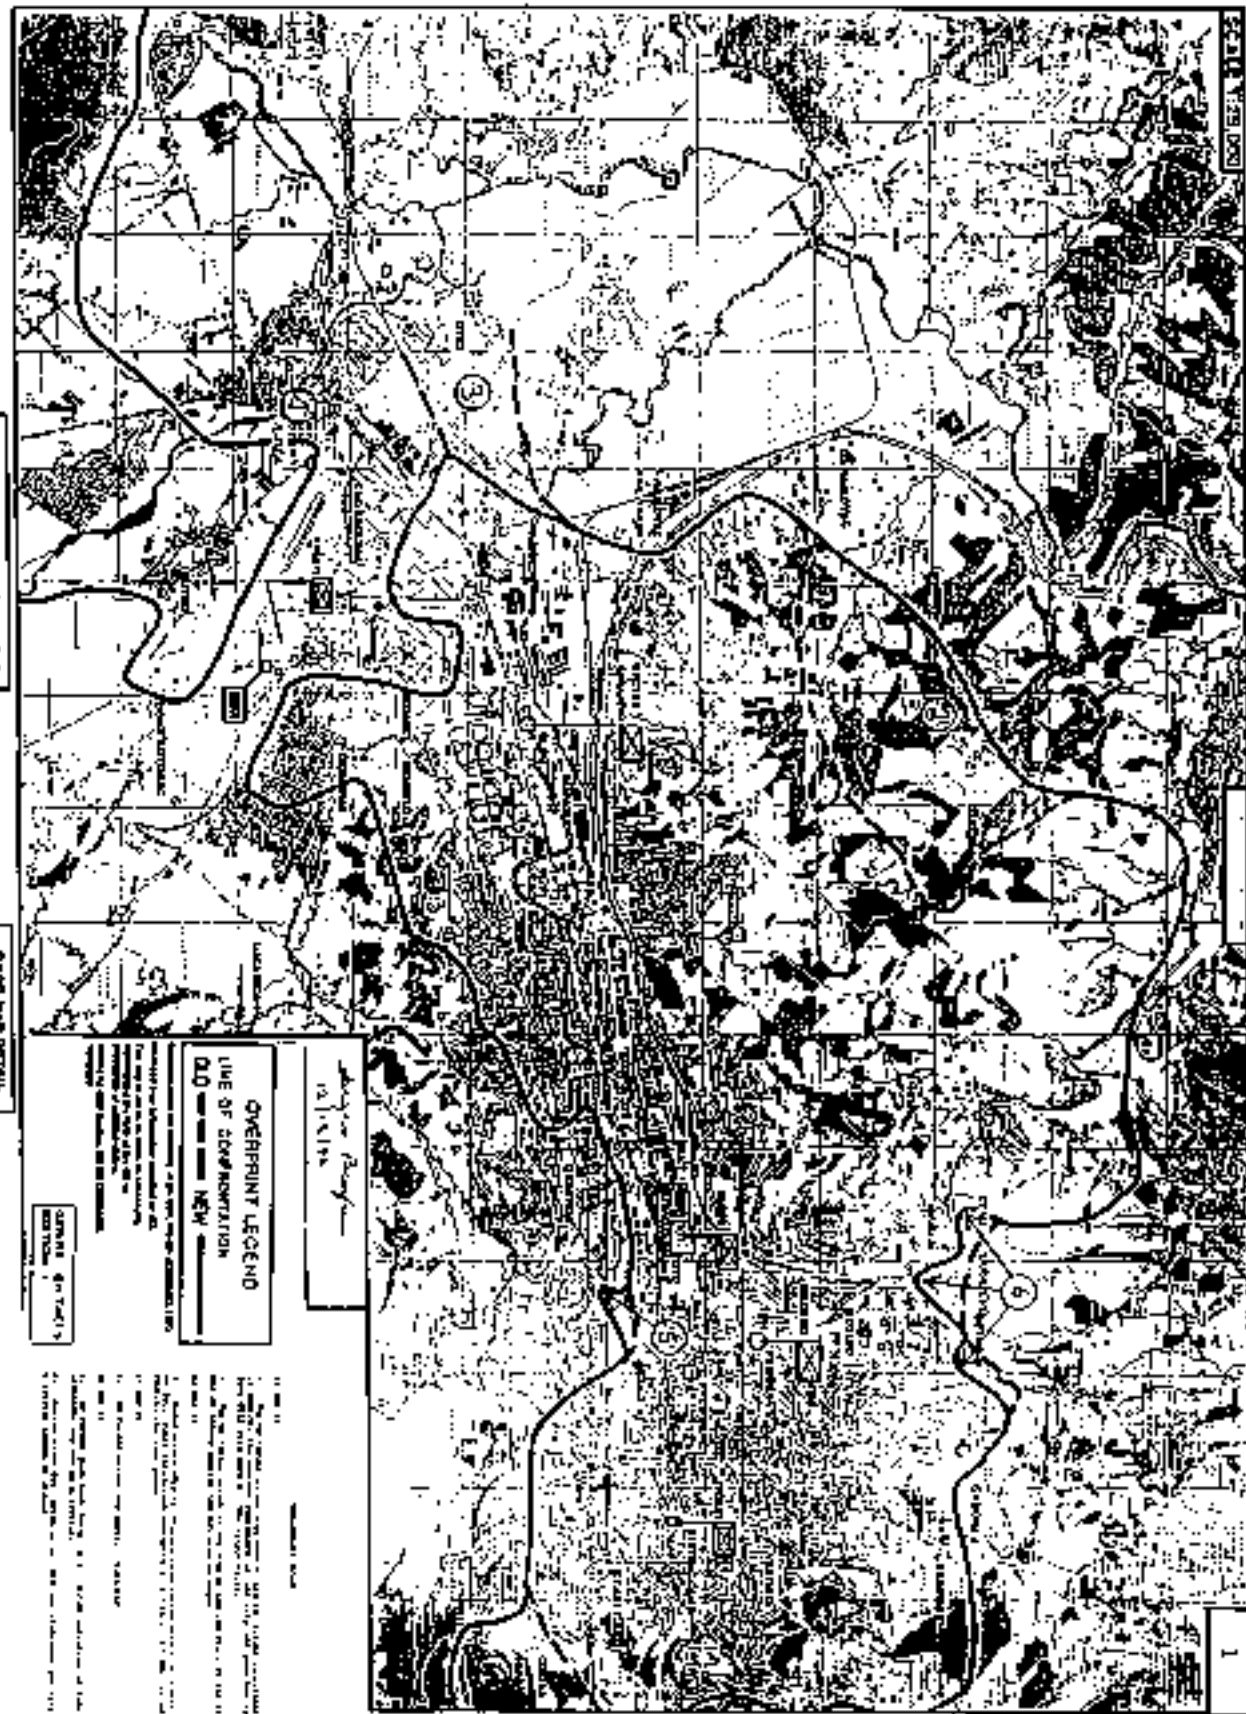

2. The data on this map is derived from the original map and is accurate as of the date of completion of this map, 27/12/92. The data is not guaranteed to be accurate for any other date.

3. This map is a derivative of the original map and is not to be used for any purpose other than that for which it was intended. The use of this map for any other purpose is prohibited.

4. The data on this map is derived from the original map and is accurate as of the date of completion of this map, 27/12/92. The data is not guaranteed to be accurate for any other date.

5. This map is a derivative of the original map and is not to be used for any purpose other than that for which it was intended. The use of this map for any other purpose is prohibited.

5/13/91/574/Amvora II
 Copy 1310

Amvora Region

OVERPRINT LEGEND
 LINE OF DEMONSTRATION
 OLD
 NEW

Scale 1:50,000
 1:50,000
 1:50,000

Map of Amvora II, showing the location of the Amvora Region and the Amvora Region.

Amvora Region
 Amvora Region

Appendix B

THE STRUCTURE AND LOCATION OF THE FORCES INVOLVED
IN AND SIEGE OF SARAJEVO (ORDER OF BATTLE)

The Structure and Location of the Forces Involved in the Battle and Siege of Sarajevo (Order of Battle)¹

1. The Besieging Forces

1. The Sarajevo Romanija Corps is the force of the Bosnian Serbian Army (BSA) which has surrounded the city since the beginning of the siege. According to sources reviewed, the Sarajevo Romanija Corps forces around the city included the following units:²

A. 1st Corps Sarajevo Romanija³

Headquarters: Lukavica BP 8955, AOR: Eastern BiH North Sarajevo/Ignan (Podromania not included)

Commander: Major General Stanislav Galic (current from at least 20 July 1993)

Major General Tomislav Sipic (from at least 14 February 1993 to at least 23 May 1993)

Chief of Operations: Colonel Lel Cedo (current as of 8 November 1993)

Chief of Staff: Colonel Milosevic (current as of 8 November 1993)

Deputy Chief of Staff: Major Inzic (current as of 8 November 1993)

¹This summary outline of the command structures of the BSA Sarajevo Romanija Corps and the BiH 1st Corps Sarajevo is based on the following sources: UNPROFOR, "Bosnia-Herzegovina Warring Factions HQ BH Command," Edition No. 3 as at 14 February 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 15811; Edition No. 4 as at 22 March 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 38621; Edition No. 5 as at 25 May 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 25048; Edition No. 6 as at 22 July 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 43141; Edition No. 8 as at 24 January 1994, IHRLI Doc. No. 62963. Also consulted were the following UNPROFOR ORBAT Database printouts: "BSA - 1st Corps Sarajevo," as at 8 November 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 55804; and "BiH -1st Corps Sarajevo," as at 8 November 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 55813.

²The units listed below were identified by UNPROFOR on 8 November 1993 as the BSA forces directly around Sarajevo. See UNPROFOR ORBAT Database printout: "BSA - 1st Corps Sarajevo," as at 8 November 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 55804. UNPROFOR orders of battle dated from 14 February 1993 to 24 January 1994 were reviewed to provide the following information on the command structure of these units.

³Originally called the IV E Bosnia Corps.

Deputy Commander for Discipline: Colonel Kosovac (current)

Deputy Commander for Logistics: Colonel Krsmanovic (current as of 8 November 1993)

Deputy Commander for Security: Colonel Lagonja (current as of 8 November 1993)

Chief of Cooperation with United Nations: Colonel Zarovic (current as of 8 November 1993)

1. 1st Sarajevo Brigade

Headquarters: Lukavica and Cica barracks

Commander: Lieutenant Colonel Stojanovic (Staganovic) (current)

Deputy Commander: Major Isailovic (current as of 8 November 1993)

Military Police: Captain Sarenac (current as of 8 November 1993)

Tank Battalion

Headquarters: Ilinica

Commander: Major Milankovic (current)

Deputy Commander: Captain Krsdonovic (Krsmanovic) (current)

2. Artillery Brigade

Headquarters: Uzdojnica

Commander: Captain Simic (current)

Deputy Commander: (unknown)

Chief of Staff: (unknown)

Field Artillery Commander Uzdojnica: Major Skrba (current as of 8 November 1993)

Multiple Launch Rocket System Artillery Commander: Captain Draskovic (current as of 8 November 1993)

Mortar Commander Klek: Lieutenant Mitrovic (current as of 8 November 1993)

Artillery Battery Commander Cicabarracks: Lieutenant Cado
(current as of 8 November 1993)

Anti-Aircraft Artillery Battery Commander Ilinaca: Captain
Antejevic (current as of 8 November 1993)

Anti-Aircraft Artillery Battery Deputy Commander Ilinica:
Lieutenant Minic (current as of 8 November 1993)

Mortar Battery Commander G. Kotorac: Lieutenant Papaz (current as of 8 November 1993)

Mortar Battery Deputy Commander G. Kotorac: Lieutenant Papaz
(current as of 8 November 1993)

3. 2nd Sarajevo Brigade (current as of 8 November 1993)
Headquarters: Vojkovici, Rear HQ, BP 8452, Forward HQ, Ostrici

Commander: Lieutenant Colonel Shehovac (current as of 8
November 1993)

Deputy Commander: Captain Markovic* (current as of 8
November 1993)

Chief of Staff: Captain Zaric (current as of 8 November 1993)

4. 1st Ramanija Infantry Brigade
Headquarters: Pale, BP 9861

Commander Infantry (Hresa BP 9861): Captain Vlado Lidzek (current)

Commander Artillery: Grajic Milomic (current)

Sy Off: Mile Pajic (current)

Grbavica/Lukavica (CP49) Battalion Commander: Major Dragan
Tupojic (current as of 8 November 1993)

5. Kosevo Brigade

*In July 1993, Colonel Markovic served under the command of Col. Krstic, who was the commander of the 49th Armoured Infantry Brigade. This Brigade was apparently disbanded after July as it does not appear on UNPROFOR orders of battle.

Headquarters: Radava BP 9263

Commander: Lieutenant Colonel Milo Krajisnic (current)

Deputy Commander: Major Vlado Medic (current as of 8 November 1993)

Chief of Staff: (unknown)

Deputy Chief of Staff or Operations: Captain Jovan Sarenac (current as of 8 November 1993)

6. Rajlovac Brigade

Headquarters: Academy of Rajlovac BP 8360

Commander: Major Mira Radic (current)

Commander Artillery-Ljubisa Lemez (current as of 8 November 1993)

7. Ilidza Brigade

Headquarters: Ilidza BP 827561

Commander: Lieutenant Colonel Radojic (current)

Deputy Commander- Guzina (current as of 8 November 1993)

Chief of Staff: Captain Popadic (current as of 8 November 1993)

Commander 2nd Battalion, Butmir: Slobodan Janic (current as of 8 November 1993)

Commander, 5th Battalion: Zoran Tuifinovic (current as of 8 November 1993)

Deputy Commander 5th Battalion: Milorad Gasovic (current as of 8 November 1993)

1st and 4th Battalions in Nejdarici, 3rd and 5th Battalion locations unknown

8. Vogosca Brigade

Headquarters: Vogosca BP 858641, Cemetery

Commander: Colonel Delic (current as of 8 November 1993)

Deputy Commander: Major Robert Jovanovski (current as of 8 November 1993)

Chief of Staff: Captain First Class Alexander Kovac (current as of 8 November 1993)

9. Hadzici/Igman/Blazuj Brigade (10th Brigade)

Headquarters: Hadzici BP 7456; Blazuj BP 790577; AOR: Igman Northwest

Commander: Lieutenant Colonel Cojic (current as of 8 November 1993)

Deputy Commander: (unknown)

Chief of Staff: (unknown)

10. Igman Brigade (current as of 24 January 1994)⁵

Headquarters: BP 790577

Commander: Lieutenant Colonel Cojic (current as of 8 November 1993)

11. Ilijas Brigade

Headquarters: AOR: Breza BP 8076; Visoko BP 7475

Commander: Colonel Yossipovic (current) (Operational Group Commander, Ilijas/Vogosca/Igman)

L.O.: Ljubiss Bosnjak (current)

12. Butmir Brigade (7th), Butmir

Headquarters: BP 8452; AOR: Igman Northeast

Commander: Lieutenant Colonel Jovo Bartula (current from at least 14 February 1993)

⁵According to sources reviewed, this Brigade appears to have been formed from part of the Hadzici/Igman Brigade (10th Brigade), which as of 8 November 1993, was under the command of Cojic.

Deputy Commander: (unknown)
Chief of Staff: (unknown)

S of Butmir (BP 8652) Battalion Commander: Slavisa Terzic (from at least 14 February 1993 to at least 20 July 1993)

Braninac (CP 6693) Battalion Commander-Svetozar Antic, (from at least 14 February 1993 to at least 20 July 1993)

Srebrenica (CP 6385) Battalion Commander-Ilija Stanarcevic (from at least 14 February 1993 to at least 20 July 1993)

13. Ostojici Brigade (current as of November 1993)⁶

Headquarters: BP 8741 Igman Area

Commander: Lieutenant Colonel Isailovic (current as of 8 November 1993)

Deputy Commander: (unknown)

Chief of Staff: (unknown)

1st Battalion (BP 8443 D. Grkarica) Commander: Major Cedo Nogo (current as of 8 November 1993)

2nd Battalion (BP 9041 Javorak) Commander: Major Srđan Kvezevic (current as of 8 November 1993)

⁶This Brigade does not appear on the 24 January 1994 UNPROFOR Bosnia-Herzegovina ORBATS of Warring Factions - Eighth Edition.

II. The Defensive Forces

The 1st Corps Sarajevo has served as the BiH defensive force in the city since the beginning of the siege. According to sources reviewed, the 1st Corps forces in the city included the following units:⁷

A. 1st Corps Sarajevo Command and Staff:

Headquarters: Kramlja Tomislava Street/Daniela Ozme 2; AOR: Sarajevo City/Igman

Commander: Vahid Karavelic (current);

-Mustafa Hajrulahovic (through at least 9 May 1993)

Deputy Commander: Ismet Dabic (current); Nisad Balta; (through at least 20 July 1993); Vahid Karavelic (through at least 9 May 1993)

Chief of Staff: Nedjad Ajnadzic (current); Ismet Alija (reported as 20 July 1993); Asim Dzambasovic (from at least 22 March 1993 to at least 9 May 1993); 14 February 1993 ORBAT reports no Chief of Staff, but reports Ismet Alija as Deputy Chief of Staff;

Deputy Chief of Staff: None currently reported

-Esad Pelko, from at least 22 March 1993 until at least 9 May 1993;

-Ismet Alija, through at least 14 February 1993;

Chief of SY: Fikret Muslimovic (current);

-Jusuf Jasarevic (reported as to 20 July 1993)

Political Officer: Ekrem Cerimovic (current prior to January 1994)

Supply Officer: Zlatko Pap (current prior to January 1994)

Chief of Security: Fikret Muslimovic (current prior to January 1994)

Intelligence Officer: Esad Pelko (current)

Logistics Officer: Zlatan Cico (current)

⁷The units listed below were identified by UNPROFOR on 8 November 1993 as the BiH forces in Sarajevo. See UNPROFOR ORBAT Database printouts: "BiH -1st Corps Sarajevo," as at 8 November 1993, IHRLI Doc. No. 55813. UNPROFOR orders of battle dated from 14 February 1993 to 24 January 1994 were reviewed to provide the following information on the command structure of these units.

B. Corps Assets, Sarajevo City

1. 1st Motorized/Mechanized Brigade (8 November 1993 source reports as 1st Motorized; this unit previously reported as 1st Mechanized):

Headquarters: Grabo Viste/Kobilija Glava
Area of Operation: Zuc Hill, Hum Hill

Commander: Ramiz Besic (current);
-Enver Sehovic (from at least 14 February 1993 to at least 22 March 1993)

Deputy Commander: Ibrahim Dervisevic "Ramsin" (current);
-(Prior Deputy Commanders unknown)

Chief of Staff: Tahir Hadjari (current);
-Ibrahim Dervisevic (from at least 14 February 1993 until at least 22 March 1993)

1st and 2nd Battalion Cdrs: (unknown)

3rd Battalion Cdr: Fikret Kavazovic "Raky" (current prior to January 1994)

2. 2nd Motorized Brigade:

Headquarters and Area of Operation: Vogosca-Zuc (current);
(Rajlovac reported as location on 22 March 1993)

Commander: Esad Pelko "Brzi" (current);
-Safet Zajko, from at least 14 February 1993 to at least 22 March 1993

Deputy Commander: Hilmo Kovac (current, from at least 20 July 1993);
-Safet Isovac (reported as 22 March 1993)

Chief of Staff: Emir Soljagic "Cobo" (current)

Battalion Commanders: unknown

3. 2nd Mountain Brigade:

Headquarters: Kosevo-Grdonj-Vratnik (current); Vasin Han, Vase Miskina St (prior to January 1994)

Commander: Hilmija Kadic (current);
-Hibrinja Korac (prior to January 1994);
-Sakid Puskar, also listed as Zakid Puskar, Zakir Puskar, Zakir Buskar (from at least 22 March 1993 to at least 20 July 1993);
-Redzo Mehic (reported as 14 February 1993)

Deputy Commander: Sead Kadic (current)
-Sead Babic (reported as 20 July 1993)
-Reported as unknown 22 March and 24 May 1993

Chief of Staff: (current unknown prior to January 1994);
-Hibrinja (Hilmija) Korac reported as 20 July 1993
-Safer Dzaferagic (from at least 22 March 1993 to at least 24 May 1993)
-Osman Cengic (reported as 14 February 1993)

Assault Platoon Commander: Salahudin Karavcic Karaga (current prior to January 1994)

4. 5th Brigade (reported 14 February and 22 March 1993 as 5th Mountain)
Headquarters: Dobrinja

Commander: Ismet Hadzic (current)

Deputy Commander: Humo Cesir (current)

Chief of Staff: uncertain, Halil Bicaj (current and as from 20 July 1993);

Battalion Commanders: (unknown)

5. 15th Mountain Brigade (Combination of Former 1st and 10th Mountain Brigades)

Headquarters: Bistrik/Grbavica

Commander: Nahir Hamzigula (current)

Deputy Commander: Zijad Poprezenovic (current)

Chief of Staff: Zlad Rujanac (current), Senad Pecar (prior to January 1994)

Battalion Commanders (unknown)

2 Mortar Units (under command of Mustafa Zulic, former Commander, 1st Mountain)

a. Former 1st Mountain: reported at Bistrik Trebevic, 20 July 1993; Starigrad, 24 May and 22 March 1993

Commander: Mustafa Zulic (reported as 20 July 1993 and prior)

Deputy Commander: Zlad Poprezenovic (reported as 20 July 1993) (prior unknown)

Chief of Staff: Zlad Rujanac (reported as 20 July 1993)
-Zijad Borezenovic (reported as 24 May 1993 and prior)

b. Former 10th Mountain: reported at Bistrik-Skenderija (20 July 1993);

Commander: Musah Topalovic "Caco", reported as 20 July 1993⁴

Deputy Commander-Unknown

Chief of Staff: Senad Pecar (reported as 20 July 1993)

6. 101st TDF Brigade:

Headquarters: Mojnilo, Area of Responsibility: Hrasno/Mojnilo (formerly reported both as 101st Infantry and 101st Mountain, Mojnilo, and Hrasno-Mojnilo, or former 101st disbanded and new TDF formed with same area of responsibility)

Commander: Ajnadzic Nedzad (current)

Deputy Commander: Sifet Puskar (current)

Chief of Staff: Tefik Sarik (current)

Subordinate Commanders (unknown): (Numerous snipers reported in this unit)

⁴On 26 October 1993, the BiH government initiated a crackdown against "Caco", and the commander of the 9th Brigade ("Celo"). Caco was killed during the course of his capture and Celo was placed under arrest.

a. Former 101st Infantry/Mountain: Hrasno Mojmilo (20 July 1993, Mojmilo 24 May (BP 8856) and 22 March 1993)

Commander: Nedžad Ajnadžić (from at least 14 February 1993 to at least 20 July 1993)

Deputy Commander: Fadil Hasanagić (reported 20 July 1993, prior unknown)

Chief of Staff: Vahid Cebo (from at least 14 February to at least 20 July 1993)

7. 102nd TDF Brigade:

Headquarters: Stup/Azici 34 T BP 8658 (replaces or reported earlier as 102nd Motorized, Stup-Azici, BP 8558, 20 July 1993, and 1st Motorized, Stup, 22 March 1993 and 14 February 1993)

Commander: Esad Paldum (current)

Deputy Commander: Mustapha Dzebo (current), (reported unknown 22 March 1993)

Chief of Staff: Amir Corbo (current from at least 20 July 1993)
-Zlatko Lagumdžija (from at least 14 February 1993 to at least 22 March 1993)

Known subordinate officers: Majors Sadiga, Djemal Habibiga and Muninovič, (current prior to January 1994)

3rd Battalion Commander: Rasim Pljevcjak (from at least 22 March 1993 to at least 20 July 1993)

8. 105th (former 9th Motorized, Kocevo, 9160, 20 July 1993) Brigade:

Headquarters: Kocevo 34 T BP 9249-5968, Trampina St., 14

Commander: Izet Bekovac (current)

Former 9th Commander: Suliman Ishirević (reported 20 July 1993)

Deputy Commander: None (current)

Former 9th Deputy Selo Askerović (reported 20 July 1993)

Chief of Staff: Eso (current, none prior reported)

8 November 1993 source reports: former subordinates Sulejman Imsirevic, Ramiz Delalic "Celo" and Sero Asterovic arrested in October 1993.

9. Sarajevo Brigade "Kraj Trvko" (reformation of disbanded HVO brigade of same name)

Headquarters: Grbavica BP 8960

Commander: Veraja Nedeljko (current)

Chief of Staff: Franjo Talinajic (current)

Subordinate staff and officers: (unknown)

a. HVO Sarajevo Brigade "Kraj Trvko" or "Kraj Turko Drugi" (currently disbanded, reported at Grbavica 20 July 1993; BP 9159 Sarajevo, 23 May 1993)

Commander: Ivan Volic (reported as 20 July 1993) Slarsko Zelic⁹

Chief of Staff: Franjo Talinajic (from at least 14 February 1993 to at least 20 July 1993)

b. There was an additional HVO-HSO unit in Sarajevo

Headquarters: Gengic Villa BP 9159 (reported 20 July and 23 May 1993, BP 8858)

Commander: Mate Matasin (current)
-Drasko Vrukovic (reported as 20 July 1993)

Subordinate command and staff: (unknown)

C. Ancillary Units

1. Logistical Brigade

⁹On 10 November 1993, several groups of HVO troops in Sarajevo were marched under BiH army guard and the HVO barracks were occupied by BiH army troops. Zelic was subsequently arrested. The BiH army thereafter announced that it was disbanding the HVO in Sarajevo and accused some of its members of "actively cooperating" with BSA forces around the city, jeopardizing its defenses. The BiH army then invited HVO soldiers to join a new Croatian brigade of the 1st Corps.

Headquarters: Tito Barracks BP 9059

Commander: Ekrem Imsirevic (current prior to January 1994)

Deputy Commander: Almir Sutrovic (current prior to January 1994)

Chief of Staff: Sead (current prior to January 1994)

2. Field Artillery Brigade

Commander: Miro Grbavac (current)

-Radzo Mehic (from at least 14 February 1993 to at least July 20 1993)

Deputy Commander: (Unknown)

Chief of Staff: Osman Cengic (current from at least 14 February 1993)

3. AAA Artillery Regiment

Commander: Darvin Lisica (current); Snija Omanovic and Darvin Lisica (current and prior)

Deputy Commander: (Unknown)

Chief of Staff: Danijel Bilajac (current and prior)

4. Military Police Battalion

Commander: Munir Alibabic (current);

-Stepjan Vlastic (prior to January 1994)

Subordinate Command and Staff: (unknown)

5. Special Force Battalion/2nd Independent Battalion

Headquarters: Zuc

Commander: Adlan Solakovic (current and from at least 20 July 1993)

-Fahrudija Hadzimehmedagic, from at least 14 February to at least 23 May 1993

Deputy Commander: Nihad (current prior to January 1994)

Chief of Staff: Fahrudin Hadzimemedagic (current prior to January 1994)

6. Civilian Police/Milicija (reported 8 November 1993 under 1st Corps Command, HQ, Skenderija)

Regional Commander: Munir Alibabic (current prior to January 1994)

Sarajevo Commander: Zelko Varunek (current prior to January 1994)

Chief of Stari Grad: Ener Bezdraf (current prior to January 1994)

Chief of Centar: Reuf Jacuc (current prior to January 1994)

Chief of Novi Sarajevo: Alija Kazic (current prior to January 1994)

Chief of Novi Grad: Jusuf Vates (current prior to January 1994)

Chief of Traffic Police: Bairo Cesko (current prior to January 1994)

D. Units No Longer under 1st Corps in Sarajevo

1. 11th Territorial Defense Force Brigade, BP 9159, Novi Sarajevo, under HVO command (reported 22 March to 20 July 1993 sources)¹⁰

2. 12th Territorial Defense Force Brigade, Zuc, BP 8762, also under HVO command (current from 14 February 1993)¹¹

Commander: Nijaz Grebovic (current from at least 22 March 1993)

3. 10th Territorial Defense Force Brigade, Bistrik (reported 22 March

¹⁰According to the reports reviewed this Brigade was possibly subsumed by other BiH brigades.

¹¹According to the reports reviewed this Brigade was possibly subsumed by other BiH brigades.

1993)

4. 3rd Motorized Brigade, Stup (reported 14 February and 22 March 1993 sources)

Commander: Blevad Radzo

Deputy Commander: (unknown)

Chief of Staff: Amir Corbo

5. 3rd Mountain, Sedrenik, (reported 14 February and 22 March 1993 sources)

Commander: Sabrija Zimic

Deputy Commander: (unknown)

Chief of Staff: Ramir Delalic

6. 6th Mountain Brigade, Hrasno (reported 14 February and 22 March 1993 sources)

Commander: Adem Halilagic

Deputy Commander: (Unknown)

Chief of Staff: Barudin Fazlic

7. 7th Mountain Brigade, Kosevo (reported 14 February and 22 March 1993)

Commander: Mirsad Bezdob

Deputy Commander: (unknown)

Chief of Staff: Mehmed Sesic

E. Corps Assets Mount Igman

1. Operational Group HHQ (1st Corps)

Headquarters: Hrasnica Stan BP B15505 or Pazaric, AOR: Igman North Commander: Nejdad Ajnadzic (1st Hill Brigade) (current prior to January 1994)

- Salko Gusic (reported as 23 May 1993)
- Dzevad Rado, reported as 22 March 1993

Deputy Commander: Alija Ismet (current)

Chief of Staff: Vehbija Karic (current and from at least 14 February to at least 20 July 1993);

- Salko Mumanovic (prior to January 1994)

2. 4th Mountain Brigade (1st Corps)

Headquarters: Hrasnica BP 8452, AOR: North East of Igman and Hrasnica

Commander: Fikret Prevlar (current and from at least 23 May 1993)

- Fikret Delic (reported as 22 March 1993)
- Zulfikar Nihad (reported as 14 February 1993)

Deputy Commander: Esael Mulahasanovic (current and from at least 23 May 1993)

- Zulfikar Nihad, reported as 22 March 1993
- Fikret Delic, reported as 14 February 1993

Chief of Staff: Emir Redzovic (current and from at least 14 February 1993)

3rd Battalion Commander: Sabotir Hirsad (from at least 23 May 1993 to at least 20 July 1993)

3. Units of other Corps serving under 1st Corps Operational Control

a. 81st Mountain Brigade (6th Corps)

Headquarters: Igman, AOR: Malo Polje (formerly reported as 8th Infantry Brigade, Igman BP 8252)

Commander: Fehim Bebic (current)

- Jana Alispago (from at least 14 February to 20 July 1993)

Deputy Commander: Boja Dzic (current and prior)

Chief of Staff: Muhamed Nogo (current and prior)

i. Special Forces

Commander: Juka Prazina (current)¹²

b. 9th Mountain Brigade (6th Corps)

Headquarters: Pazaric BP 7252

Commander: Negir Kasic (current and from at least 22 March 1993)

-Dzevad Rado (reported as 14 February 1993)

1st Battalion Commander at Tarcin: Mustapha Abazovic (reported at least from 23 May to 20 July 1993)

c. 7th Mujahideen Brigade (3rd Corps) (location, command and staff unknown)

d. 6th Hill Brigade (6th Corps) (location, command and staff unknown)

¹²According to source materials, Juka Prazina commands a special forces battalion composed mostly of former convicts, mercenaries of middle-east countries and Europe currently in Konjic/Jablanica.

Appendix 2

REVIEW OF THE SHELLING OF THE SARAJEVO CLINICAL CENTER KOŠEVO

UNIVERSITY CLINICAL CENTER SARAJEVO
CLINICAL CENTER CONSTRUCTION ENGINEERING DEPT.

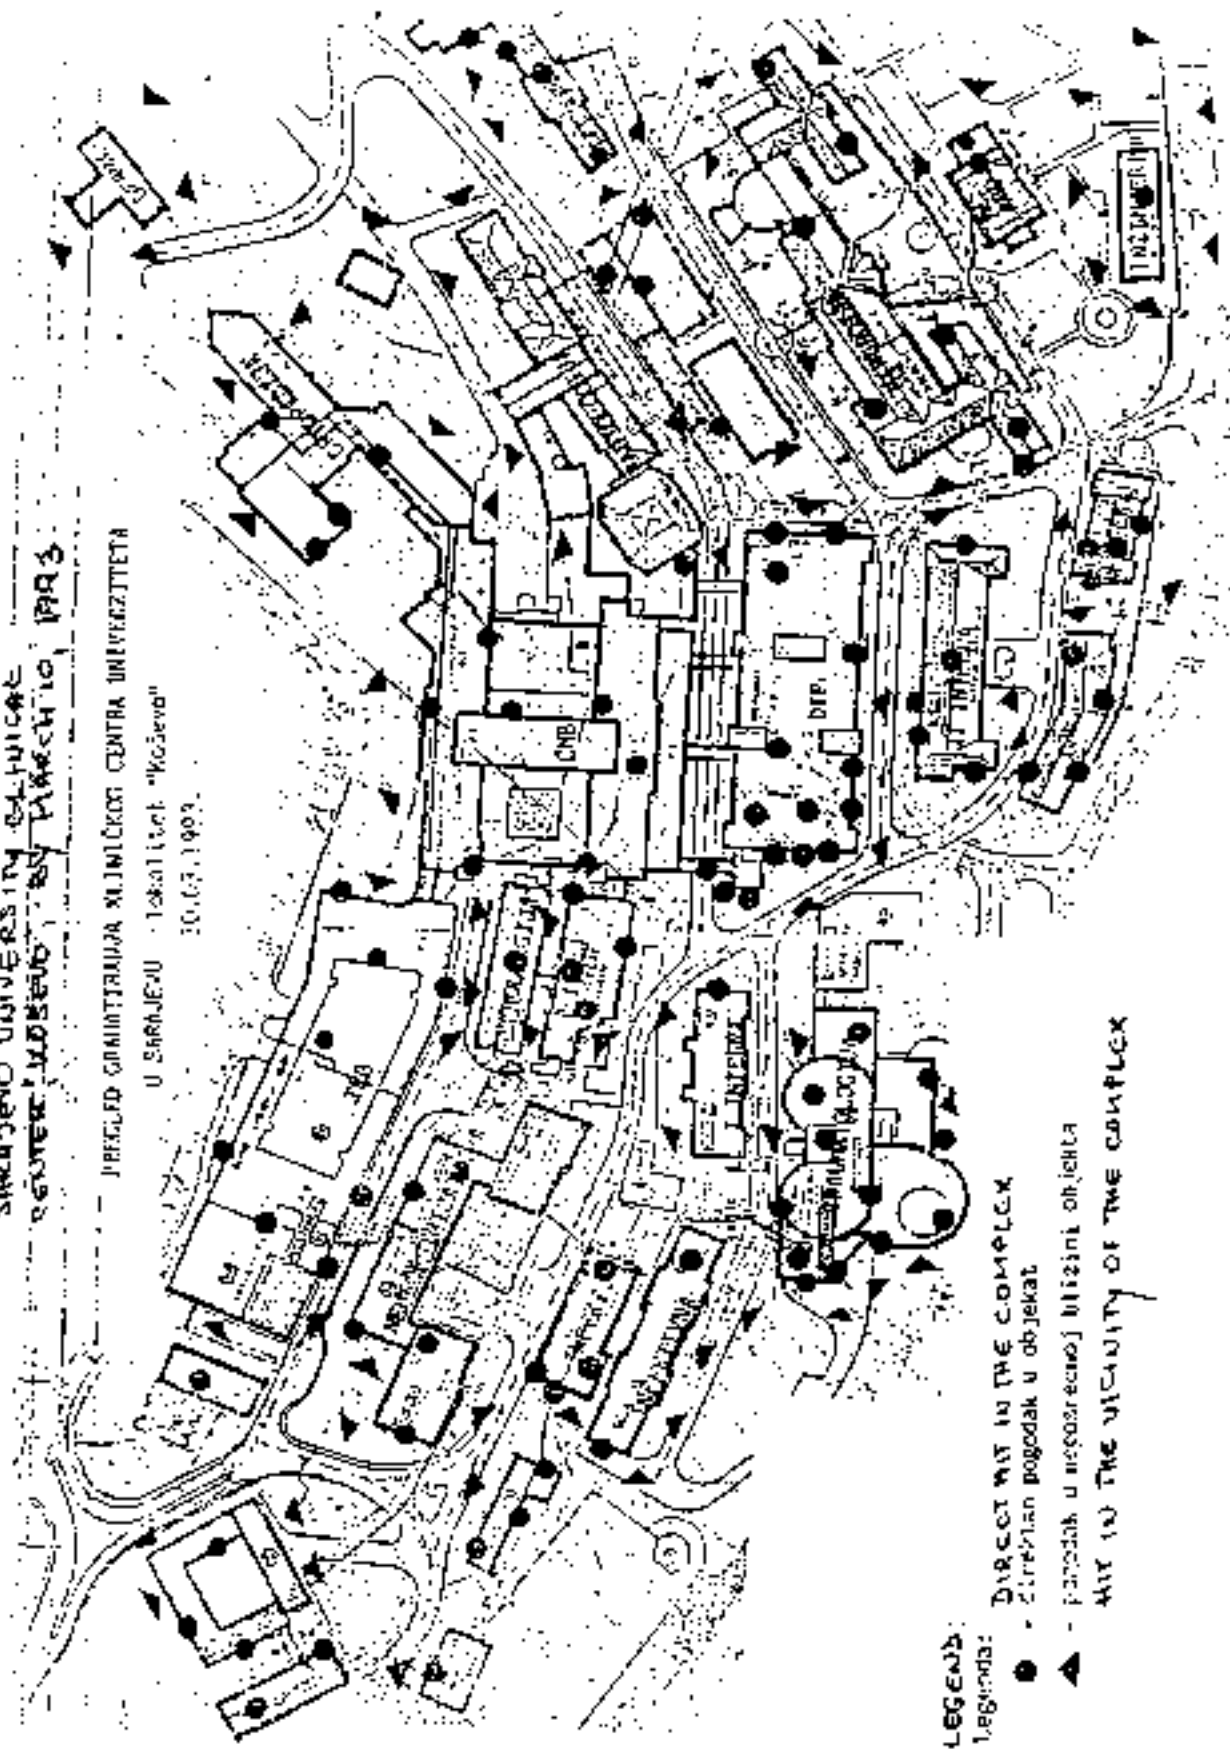

COMPLETED WITHIN THE "KOSEVO" CLINICAL CENTER
HIT BY MARCH 10, 1993

COMPLEX	DIRECT HIT	HIT IN THE COMPLEX & VICINITY
1. Traumatology Clinic	12	5
2. Technical&Economic Dept.	7	4
3. Amphitheater	4	4
4. Orthopedics Clinic	3	5
5. Diagnostic&Polyclinic	13	4
6. Nephrology Clinic	1	3
7. Surgery Clinic	6	6
8. Otorhinolaryngology Clinic	4	2
9. I Internal Clinic	1	2
10. Infectious Diseases Clinic	6	5
11. Pharmacy	4	2
12. III Internal Clinic	7	6
13. II Internal Clinic	2	2
14. Neuropsychiatry Clinic	5	4
15. Engineering Dept.	1	7
16. Central Medical Dept.	9	8
17. Immunology Lab. (leprosaniva)	3	2
18. Former UHC Management	3	8
19. Dermatology Clinic	-	2
TOTAL:	90	82
20. Ophthalmology Clinic	3	8
21. "Podhrastovi" Clinic	18	8

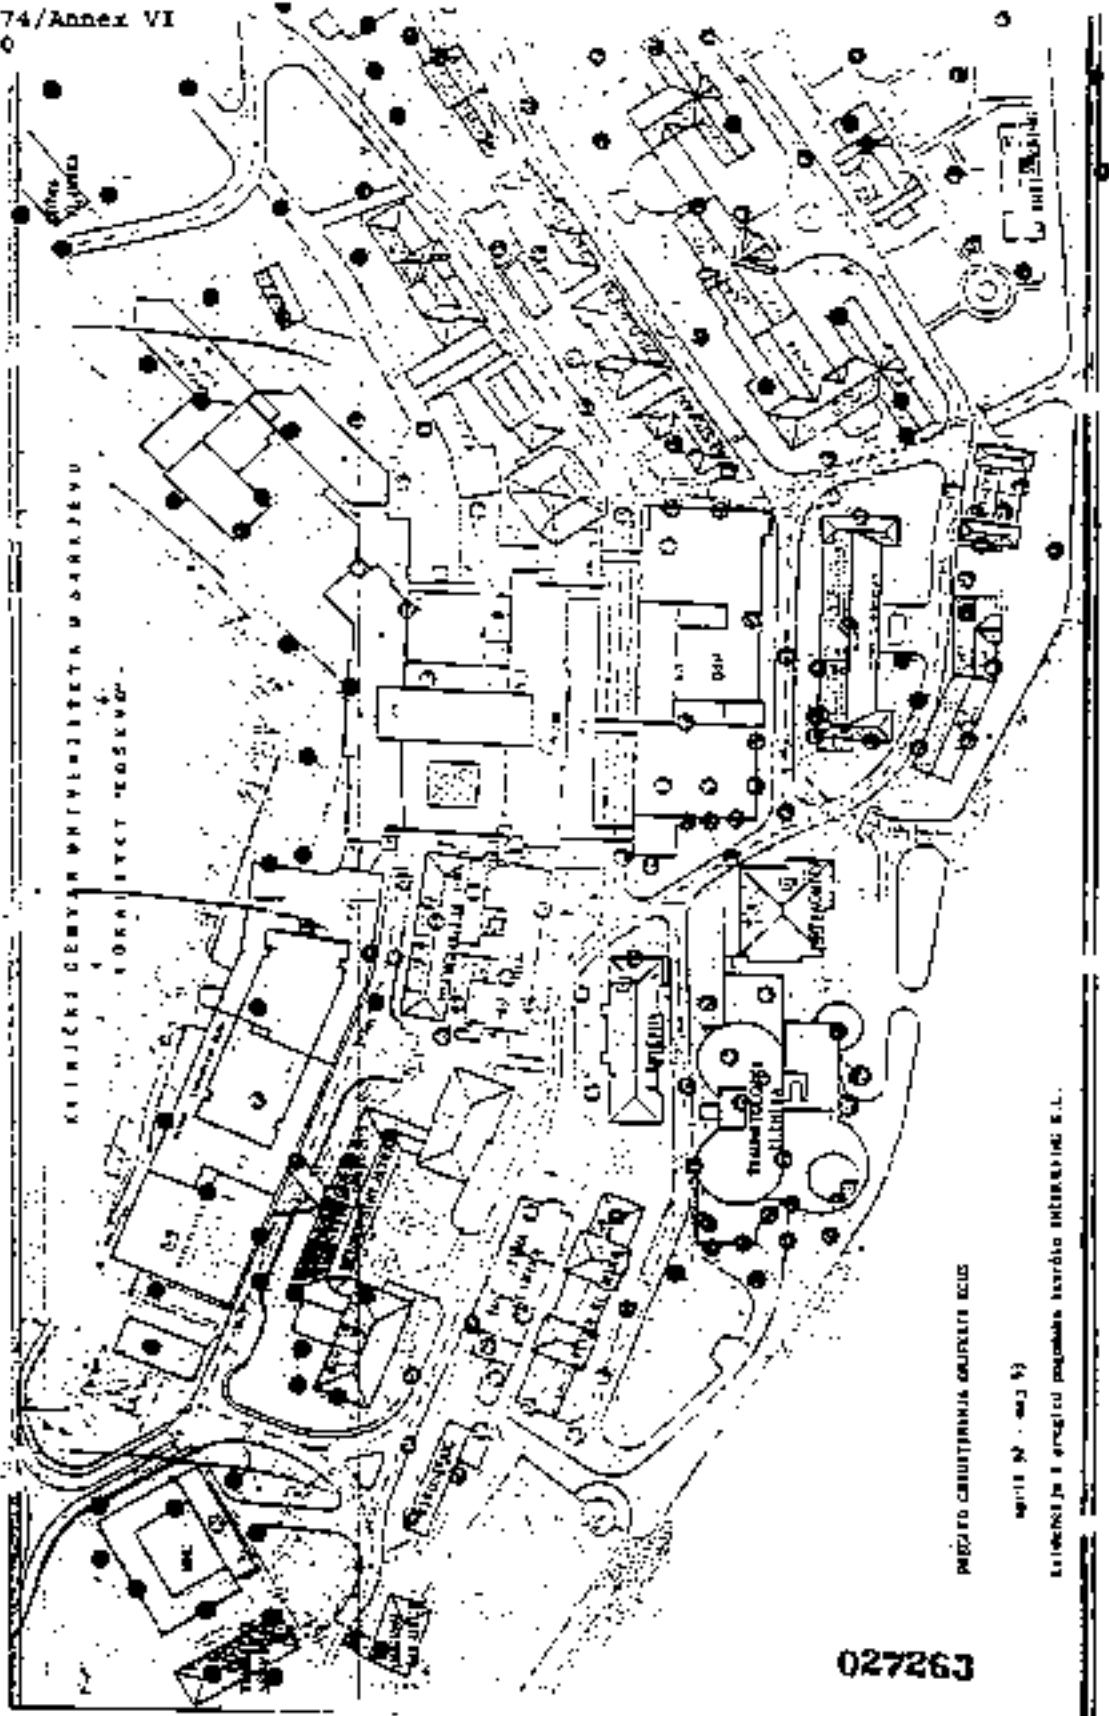

By March 10, 1993 170 shells fell within the "Kosevo" Clinical Center, 11 at the Ophthalmology Clinic and 26 at the "Podhrastovi" Clinic.

Head of the Clinical Center
Construction Engineering Dept.:
Faruk Dizdarevic, B.Sc.Civ.Eng.

REVIEW OF SHELLING OF THE SARAJEVO UNIVERSITY CLINICAL CENTER "KOŠEVO" BY AIRCRAFT, PAR 3
PREGLED GNANITIRANJA KLINIČKOG CENTRA UNIVERZITETA
U SARAJEVU - lokalitet "Koševo"
10.07.1993.

LEGENDA:
Legend:
● - DIRECT HIT IN THE COMPLEX
- Direktni pogodak u objektu
▲ - pogodak u neposrednoj blizini objekta
▲ - HIT IN THE VICINITY OF THE COMPLEX

PROJEKT ARHITEKTURNE GRUPE EKSUS

BR. 11 24 - 2001 24

KIRIĆKI CENTAR I OSTALI OBJEKTI U VUKOVARU, S.R.N.

027263

Security Council

Distr.
GENERAL

S/1994/674/Add.2 (Vol. III)
28 December 1994

ORIGINAL: ENGLISH

FINAL REPORT OF THE UNITED NATIONS COMMISSION OF EXPERTS
ESTABLISHED PURSUANT TO
SECURITY COUNCIL RESOLUTION 780 (1992)

ANNEX VI.A
INCIDENT STUDY REPORT REGARDING MORTAR SHELLING DOBRINJA, SARAJEVO ON 1 JUNE 1993: INVESTIGATION

Under the Direction of:

William J. Fenrick
Member and Rapporteur on On-Site Investigations,
Commission of Experts Established Pursuant to
Security Council Resolution 780 (1992)

Prepared by:

Members of Canada's Contributed Personnel to the Commission of Experts (Canadian War Crimes Investigation Team)

CONTENTS

	Paragraphs	Page
I. METHODOLOGY	1 - 5	3
II. INCIDENT STUDY	6 - 18	4
III. FINDINGS	19 - 21	5

I. METHODOLOGY

1. This study resulted from an investigation conducted by Sergeant J.L. Lamothe and Warrant Officer S. Murray-Ford, Canadian Forces Military Police, as part of the Canadian Investigation Team. They were part of an investigative group consisting of the Rapporteur for On-Site Investigations, a representative of the Secretariat and the Canadian War Crimes Investigation Team (WCIT), which was comprised of three military lawyers and four military police investigators. The group was deployed to the territory of the former Yugoslavia for the period of 20 June to 10 July 1993 and was in Sarajevo for the period of 24 June to 8 July 1993. The WCIT, in general, consisted of military personnel from the Canadian Office of the Judge Advocate General as well as military investigators who were seconded from Canada to the Commission of Experts for specific missions. The teams were referred to within the Commission and for the purposes of its reports as the Canadian War Crimes Investigation Team.

2. The objective of this study was to prepare a report analyzing in depth a specific incident in the siege of Sarajevo; to identify specific violations of the law of war, particularly violations in which civilian casualties occurred; to analyze the circumstances of the incident; and to assess the feasibility of identifying and prosecuting alleged offenders, particularly the military commanders. The report was to be based on information which could be obtained in and around Sarajevo.

3. No incident was chosen prior to arrival in Sarajevo. Criteria to be considered in selecting an incident included: number of casualties, number of projectiles fired, sources and, to a lesser extent, time elapsed since the incident. It was hoped that it would be possible to get information from Bosnian, UNPROFOR and Serbian sources. The rationale for preferring an incident in which more than one projectile was fired was that multiple projectiles would give a stronger indication of intent to commit an offence. It might be possible to explain away an incident caused by a single projectile.

4. Authorities from the Bosnia and Herzegovina (BiH) State War Crimes Commission were requested to provide evidence concerning six incidents of their choice, on the understanding that these incidents would be considered, but not necessarily chosen for in-depth investigation. The evidence could not be compiled by the Commission within a short period of time and, as a result, an alternative approach was decided upon. BiH authorities suggested six incidents for which they believed a reasonable amount of information was available. Two of these incidents, the shelling of a soccer game on 1 June 1993 and the shelling of a funeral in mid-June, were selected for possible in-depth investigation. Preliminary investigation indicated that information on the shelling of the funeral would only be available from one source, as heavy rains the day after had washed away the evidence which UNPROFOR had intended to gather.

5. The incident finally selected for in-depth investigation was the mortar shelling of a soccer game in the Dobrinja suburb of Sarajevo on 1 June 1993. The investigators interviewed several witnesses on the BiH side and also reviewed the crater analysis produced by UNPROFOR. Investigators were unable to interview witnesses on the Serbian side.

II. INCIDENT STUDY

6. On 26 June 1993, Sergeant J.L. Lamothe and Warrant Officer S. Murray-Ford, Canadian Forces Military Police, as part of the WCIT, were tasked to conduct an investigation into a mortar attack that occurred in the Dobrinja District of Sarajevo on or about 1 June 1993.

7. They received a copy of a crater analysis conducted by UNPROFOR relating to this incident. The analysis report reveals the following:

- (a) the attack occurred at approximately 10:20 a.m. on 1 June 1993;
- (b) two mortar rounds fell;
- (c) the shells landed at grid reference (GR) 47395653, on a map of Sarajevo, Series M709, sheet 27821, scale 1:50,000;
- (d) the minimum calibre of the shells was 81 millimetres;
- (e) the first shell had a bearing to the origin of fire of 143 degrees, while the second round had a bearing of 130 degrees;
- (f) due to the fact that both rounds impacted into a macadam surface, the angle of descent and range cannot be determined;
- (g) working from known angles of descent for both 81 millimetre and 120 millimetre mortars, the minimum range for an 81 millimetre round would be 1,120 metres, while the minimum range for a 120 millimetre round would be 1,340 metres; and
- (h) from a determination of the distance from the roof of the surrounding buildings and crater number 1, the team concludes that both shells must have come from the Serbian side of the confrontation line, approximately 300 metres south of Lukavica Barracks.

8. On 1 July 1993, the WCIT visited the University clinical hospital in Sarajevo. The WCIT also interviewed persons injured as well as witnesses. Because of the confidential and prosecutorial nature of the reports, they are not disclosed herein.

9. On 1 July 1993, the WCIT went to Dobrinja, where it met with a member of the BiH State Commission for War Crimes. He provided the WCIT with a list of wounded and injured persons from this incident. Perusal of the list shows that 13 persons were killed as a result of this occurrence, while 131 were injured. The injuries consisted of fractured limbs, abrasions, shrapnel wounds, and the like.

10. While in Dobrinja, the WCIT intended to visit the scene in order to make measurements and take photographs. Information from UNPROFOR officials indicated that the area is on or near the front line, riddled by sniper and heavy machinegun fire, and that the approaches may be mined. It was therefore decided not to go to the scene. At this time, the WCIT received a detailed map of the Dobrinja area.

11. The BiH War Crimes Commission advised the WCIT that any documents relating to the incident would be in the custody of the Chief of Police for Dobrinja.

12. On 2 July 1993, the WCIT visited the Dobrinja Police Station, where it met with the Chief of Police. It was advised that all investigative material relating to the incident had been forwarded to the Main Police Station in Sarajevo. While at the Main Police Station, the WCIT was informed that materials regarding the mortar attack could be obtained at the Security Services Center.

13. That same day, the WCIT visited the Security Services Center, where it was advised that there was no investigation conducted into the matter by civil authorities, although the BiH military may have made enquiries. The WCIT was further advised that the Center was investigating the organizers of the tournament and that BiH television may have video footage of the event. It would appear that, inasmuch as UNPROFOR authorities had attributed the incident to the Serbian military, this was sufficient for the Security Services Center.

14. On 2 July 1993, the WCIT went to Sarajevo Airport, where it met with a member of the Meteorological Section. He provided the records for 1 June 1993, which showed that the visibility at the time of the incident was 10 kilometres with calm winds.

15. Plans to interview up to 10 witnesses in the Dobrinja area on 3 July 1993 had to be abandoned due to severe shelling in Sarajevo and Dobrinja. Efforts to conduct these interviews on 4 July 1993 were also canceled as a result of heavy fighting in and around Dobrinja and Sarajevo Airport.

16. On 4 July 1993, a copy of a map of Dobrinja was received from UNPROFOR officials. This map shows that the soccer game was held in a location surrounded on three sides by buildings (west, east, and south). In addition, it was explained that there were BiH mortars located outside the hospital approximately 500 metres from the soccer location, however, these were not observed during the WCIT's visits to the Dobrinja area.

17. On 4 July 1993, the WCIT went to the Serbian Liaison Officer's office in the Sector Sarajevo headquarters of UNPROFOR. There it explained that it was conducting an investigation regarding the matter, and that allegations had been made regarding Serbian involvement in the incident. The WCIT was advised that all such enquiries would have to be made to the Liaison Officer in Lukevica Barracks.

18. On 4 July 1993, the WCIT went to the site and interviewed an eyewitness. Because of the confidential and prosecutorial nature of the information, it is not disclosed.

III. FINDINGS

19. To date, this investigation has revealed that:

(a) on 1 June 1993, a soccer tournament was in progress in Dobrinja when two mortar rounds fell at about 10:20 a.m.;

(b) 13 persons were killed, and another 133 were injured as a result;

(c) the weather at the time was clear and sunny, and visibility was good; and

(d) an UNPROFOR crater analysis of the scene indicates that the shells came from the Serbian side, approximately 300 metres south of Lukevica Barracks.

20. Other investigative steps relating to this case may include interviews with Serbian officials as well as other witnesses.

21. In connection with this report, the following documents have been transmitted to the Office of the Prosecutor of the International Criminal Tribunal for the former Yugoslavia in The Hague: UNPROFOR shelling report; medical report; statements; audio and video tapes; list of casualties; maps of Dobrinja; meteorological records; and crater analysis.

Security Council

Distr.
GENERAL

S/1994/674/Add.2 (Vol. III)
28 December 1994

ORIGINAL: ENGLISH

FINAL REPORT OF THE UNITED NATIONS COMMISSION OF EXPERTS
ESTABLISHED PURSUANT TO
SECURITY COUNCIL RESOLUTION 780 (1992)

ANNEX VI.B
THE BATTLE OF SARAJEVO AND THE LAW OF ARMED CONFLICT

Prepared by:

William J. Fenrick
Member and Rapporteur on On-Site Investigations,
Commission of Experts Established Pursuant to Security Council Resolution 780 (1992)

and

Major A.J. van Veen, Canadian Armed Forces;
Member of Canada's Contributed Personnel to the Commission of Experts

CONTENTS

	Paragraphs	Page
I. METHODOLOGY	1 - 8	3
II. CONSIDERATIONS	9	4
III. BACKGROUND	10 - 15	4
IV. THE BATTLE	16 - 53	6
A. Organization, command, control and equipment	17 - 31	6
B. Tactics used during the battle	32 - 49	10
C. Casualties	50 - 53	14
Table #1		15
Table #2		16
Table #3		18
V. APPLICABLE LAW	54 - 56	20
VI. COMMAND RESPONSIBILITY	57 - 59	20
VII. THE MILITARY OBJECTIVE	60 - 61	21
VIII. SIEGE WARFARE	62 - 66	23
IX. VIOLATIONS OF THE LAW OF ARMED CONFLICT	67 - 83	24
A. Starvation as a method of warfare	73 - 77	25
B. Attacks on civilian persons and objects	78 - 83	26
X. ACCOUNTABILITY	84 - 90	28
Appendix
I. Anecdotal account of the battle (derived from UN reports).....		31

I. METHODOLOGY

1. This study was conducted by the Rapporteur for On-Site Investigations and Major A.J. van Veen. They were part of an investigative group consisting of the Rapporteur, a representative of the Secretariat, and the Canadian War Crimes Investigation Team (WCIT), which was comprised of three military lawyers and four military police investigators. The group was deployed to the territory of the former Yugoslavia for the period of 20 June to 10 July 1993 and was in Sarajevo from 24 June to 8 July 1993. The WCIT, as a whole, consisted of military personnel from the Canadian Office of the Judge Advocate General, as well as military investigators who were seconded from Canada to the Commission of Experts for specific missions. The teams were referred to within the Commission and for the purposes of its reports, as the Canadian War Crimes Investigation Team.

2. The writers, both of whom have a background in military operations and in the law of armed conflict, visited Sarajevo from 24 June 1993 to 6 July 1993. During that period of time they visited a number of incident sites in Sarajevo, including Dobrinja, where civilians at a soccer game were killed by mortar fire on 1 June 1993; the National Library, which had been gutted by Bosnian Serb Army (BSA) artillery fire; the Brewery, where people standing in line for water were killed by mortar fire; and the Koševo Medical Centre and the Bakery, both of which had been hit several times. As the normal mode of transport for team members was armoured personnel carriers, and as the team was discouraged from travelling to certain areas and from moving about in open areas, it rapidly became apparent that attempting an in-depth look at property damage was not practicable.

3. The team met with several officials from Bosnia and Herzegovina (BiH), including City officials; General Delić, the commander of the BiH Army; General Hajrulahović, the commander of BiH forces in Sarajevo; members of the BiH State War Crimes Commission; and Professor Smajkić of the BiH Committee for Health and Social Security. The team discussed casualty figures at some length with Dr. Smajkić and obtained a nearly complete set of The Bulletin, which is produced in Bosnian and English. The team also obtained a certain amount of background information, most of it written in Bosnian from the State Commission and from city officials. The State Commission was preparing a chronology of the battle, but it was not available at the time of the writers' departure. The team was unable to visit the BSA side during the investigation.

4. The team, in particular Major van Veen, met with several UN Military Observers (UNMOs) and with a wide range of officers in the UN Protection Forces (UNPROFOR), both in Sarajevo and in Kiseljak. All were most helpful and forthcoming in their comments, but it is inappropriate to mention these officers by name either here or in the text. They received a substantial amount of information from UNPROFOR, including maps, oral briefings, and a complete set of the HQ BiH Command Weekly INFOSUMS from numbers 1 to 36, and editions 3 and 5 of Bosnia-Herzegovina Warring Factions (apparently editions 1, 2, and 4 are very difficult to locate). These materials, together with a preliminary version of the Draft Study of Sarajevo Battle and Siege, prepared by the Chairman and his staff at the International Human Rights Law Institute at DePaul University (IHRLI), provided the basis for the first draft of the military history and analysis portion of this report prepared by Major van Veen. Although both team members were involved in the writing of this report, Major van Veen was primarily responsible for those sections concerned with the battle organization and tactics, while Commander Fenrick was primarily responsible for the sections concerned with legal issues. The assistance of Lieutenant Commander Phillips of the Office of the Judge Advocate General in analysing the casualty statistics is gratefully acknowledged.

5. This study is a non-exhaustive survey of armed conflict issues arising during the siege of Sarajevo. As the investigators did not have an opportunity to visit BSA forces during the investigation, they were not exposed to allegations of BiH misconduct during the siege unless the allegations came from UN sources. The study focuses on combat-related offences, unlawful targeting, and the use of unlawful means and methods of warfare.

6. The objective of the study was to prepare an analytical survey of the entire battle of Sarajevo, focusing on the major violations of the law of war which have occurred and attempting to impute command responsibility.

7. A consolidated chronology of the battle has been prepared, including a chronology of civilian casualties and a chronology for military units and commanders. These chronologies rely heavily on work which has been done by other entities.

8. It is understood that the Chairman's staff at IHRLI has completed an analysis of the battle relying on documentation in the database. However, this analysis was not available for use during the study.

II. CONSIDERATIONS

9. An analytical study of the battle as a whole, conducted in the same period of time as a study of a selected incident, is bound to be more impressionistic and superficial than the latter study. It is much less likely to result in the development of specific prosecutable cases. The survey approach may, however, result in the development of numerous insights and suggestions worth following up at a later time by teams which are focusing on the development of specific cases.

III. BACKGROUND

10. Sarajevo is the capital city and the economic, political and cultural centre of BiH. The 1991 census indicated that the municipality of Sarajevo, which included the city and some surrounding areas, had a population of 525,980 and occupied 2,049 square kilometres. The population was 49.3 per cent Muslim, 29.9 per cent Serb, 6.6 per cent Croat, 10.7 per cent Yugoslav, and 3.5 per cent "others". Presumably, many members of the group referred to as "Yugoslav" would also have been entitled to classify themselves as "Muslim", "Serb" or "Croat", if they so wished. The population of Sarajevo constituted 11 per cent of the population of BiH.

11. Sarajevo occupies a long, narrow valley on the banks of the Miljacka river. It is in a valley dominated by the steep mountain slopes and ridges of Trebević, Jahorina, Igman, and Bjelašnica, all of which abut directly on the city. The city consists of a dense core, surrounded by a number of quarters which reach up the various slopes and several municipalities located in open ground at its western end. The existence of Sarajevo was first recorded after the Roman conquest of the area in the first century A.D.. The Slavs later colonized the area and erected a castle which can still be seen in the south-east of the city. In 1428 the Turks captured the castle and named the area Seraglio, from which the city takes its name (Sarajevo means "Palace in the fields"). In reality, the native Slavs who had been converted to Islam ruled the city. Sarajevo became renowned for being a prosperous and luxurious city during the Ottoman period. In 1878, the city was assigned to Austria by the Treaty of Berlin. Hatred of the Austrians increased, fed by South Slav (Yugoslav) nationalist fervour. In 1914, a Bosnian Serb student assassinated the Archduke Franz Ferdinand in Sarajevo, setting in motion World War I. The old part of the city dates from the Turkish and Ottoman Empires. The new part of the city was planned in the Grbavica area, which developed a main electronics and metal industry to supply parts to other areas of the former Yugoslavia.

12. In November and December 1990, multi-party parliamentary elections were held in BiH, which was then one of the constituent republics of the Socialist Federal Republic of Yugoslavia (SFRY). The Muslim-based Party for Democratic Action (Stranka Demokratske Akcije or SDA) won the majority of seats with 86 seats in Parliament, followed by the Serbian Democratic Party (Srpska Demokratska Stranka or SDS) with 72, and the Croatian Democratic Party (Hrvatska Demokratska Zajednica), which received 44. The remaining parties received 33 seats. The seven-member Presidency, elected by the parliament, included representatives of all three major parties. Alija Izetbegović, the SDA leader, became President of the BiH Presidency. Problems in achieving consensus between national groups in BiH intensified, as the first declarations of independence were made by Croatia and Slovenia in June 1991. Soon after, in October, Muslims and Croats discussed the eventual secession of BiH from the SFRY, which Serb politicians totally opposed.

13. In December 1991, the Muslims and Croats applied for diplomatic recognition by the European Community (EC). On 9 January 1992, Bosnian Serbs declared that they would form their own state, the "Serbian Republic of Bosnia and Herzegovina" (SRBiH), if BiH was recognized as independent. They claimed territory in six regions of BiH where they were the dominant ethnic group. A referendum on independence was held throughout BiH on 1 March 1992, in order to satisfy a condition imposed by the EC for recognition. The results indicated that 63 per cent of eligible voters participated in the vote and 96 per cent of the voters opted for independence. However, local SDS administrations refused to cooperate, a number of polling stations were not opened, and many Serbs boycotted the poll and declared it invalid. After the results of the referendum were announced, President Izetbegović declared the republic independent and called for international recognition.

14. Ethnic tensions gradually increased soon after the declaration of independence by Croatia and Slovenia in June 1991. Many factors contributed to the escalation of violence, among them, the Yugoslav People's Army (JNA) and Serbian irregular forces stationed in BiH that launched attacks on Croatia, and the arrival of JNA troops withdrawing from Croatia, adding to the presence of Serbian paramilitary groups already in BiH. Clashes involving armed civilians, police, and paramilitaries of all nationalities occurred throughout 1991 and early 1992. Armed conflicts intensified and became widespread during and after the March referendum on independence. Consequently, the President of BiH, on 6 April 1992, declared a state of emergency and mobilized territorial defence units. Violence eventually escalated to a full-scale war in early April, almost immediately after the international community recognized the independence of BiH. On 6 April 1992, the EC voted to recognize the independence of BiH. The United States and Croatia followed suit on 7 April, Canada on 8 April, and so did members of the international community, including the Arab World, all in early April.

15. On 7 April 1992 in Banja Luka, Bosnian Serbs declared the independence of the SRBiH and claimed two thirds of the new state's territory. Serbian irregular forces from BiH, and JNA units stationed in BiH, paramilitary groups from Serbia and Serbian-controlled territory in Croatia launched, or participated in, attacks throughout BiH, in the hope of preventing all or part of the republic from seceding. Muslim forces of the BiH Government, Bosnian Croats, and Croatian Army units sent from neighbouring Croatia responded to these attacks. By mid-April, the self-proclaimed SRBiH controlled approximately 70 per cent of BiH territory.

IV. THE BATTLE

16. A detailed history of the Battle of Sarajevo remains to be written. The battle began in April 1992, at a time when the JNA still had troops stationed in barracks in Sarajevo. On 27 April 1992, the Serbian and Montenegrin members of the SFRY parliament voted to adopt a new constitution for the Republic of Yugoslavia (FRY) consisting of Serbia and Montenegro. FRY promptly declared it had no territorial claims on neighbouring republics. On 4 May 1992, the FRY Presidency announced that all members of the JNA who were nationals of the newly proclaimed FRY were to leave BiH within fifteen days. The fighting in Sarajevo for the first significant period of time involved both JNA forces, more or less penned up in their barracks, and Serb forces surrounding the city. JNA forces do not appear to have completed their withdrawal from Sarajevo until 6 June 1992, when JNA troops and their dependents confined in the Maršal Tito Barracks were permitted to evacuate in an 80-vehicle convoy. Since the completion of the withdrawal of JNA troops from the city, the battle had been a siege, with BSA forces occupying the hills surrounding the city and some of the suburbs and BiH forces in the city with the bulk of civilian population. Attachment VI.A.1 is an anecdotal account based on weekly reports prepared by the UN following the establishment of the BiH Command (BiH Comd) by UNPROFOR on 23 October 1992. It gives an impressionistic picture of the battle from one perspective and is no substitute for a comprehensive history.

A. Organization, command, control, and equipment

17. The SFRY relied on a strategic doctrine titled "peoples defence". This doctrine accepted that either a forward defence, or border perimeter defence, of Yugoslavia was strategically futile. Accordingly, based on its World War II experience, and consistent with the extremely rugged terrain, Yugoslav defence was oriented to a concept of operations based on partisan warfare. During World War II, Maršal Tito, by mounting remarkably effective guerilla warfare on a nationwide scale, kept some twenty divisions tied down. This guerilla campaign centred on territorial local forces whose intimate knowledge of the local terrain, coupled with a basic self-sufficiency in most weaponry, amplified their effectiveness to a degree which made the occupation of Yugoslavia prohibitively expensive in military terms. In the modern doctrine of "peoples defence", this success was built upon.

18. Apart from the regular JNA, local territorial forces were equipped and organized to function on a stand alone basis in their own localities. In accordance with doctrine, stores of weapons, munitions, and matériel were dispersed throughout the country, a factor that played directly into the hands of the regional interests that arose as Yugoslavia dissolved. These territorial forces were doctrinally, tactically, operationally, and emotionally wedded to operating in their local areas. This factor has been illustrated fully in that the factions in BiH have been unable to mass sufficient troops to achieve a concentration of forces.

19. At the beginning of the siege, BiH forces in the Sarajevo area composed 1st Corps Sarajevo. From the beginning of the siege to the date of writing, the commander of this corps has been Mustafa Hajrulahović, with his headquarters located in Sarajevo. With the exception of his Deputy Chief of Staff, Ismet Alija, who was replaced by Esad Pelko in the spring of 1993, Hajrulahović's senior staff has remained unchanged, with Vahid Karavelić as Deputy Commander and Asim Džambašović as Chief of Staff.

20. BiH I (Sarajevo Corps) was originally organized as three Operational Groups: Visoko, Sarajevo City, and Mount Igman. This 40,000 strong force was further divided into one mechanized infantry brigade, three motorized infantry brigades, seven mountain brigades, an artillery brigade, an air defence regiment, one territorial defence force brigade, and a special forces unit of undetermined composition. BiH I (Sarajevo Corps) has been recently reorganized and the Visoko Operational Group has been placed under command of BiH 3 Corps. The purpose of the reorganization has been to enhance command and control, increase political and military reliability, and streamline the command structure. In furtherance of this goal, a large number of inexperienced or untrained personnel at command level were replaced at brigade and battalion level with ex-JNA. Currently, BiH I (Sarajevo Corps) is divided into 10 infantry brigades plus a logistic brigade, air defence regiment, military police battalion, an artillery brigade, an anti-sabotage unit, and a special forces group under direct command of the Minister of Internal Affairs Bakir Alispahić. The HVO brigade, formerly commanded by the civilian head of HVO in Sarajevo, Slavko Zelić, is now commanded by Ivan Vulić with Franjo Taljanić, who has been Chief of Staff since the beginning of the siege. There is a second HVO special action unit of indeterminate size which reports directly to the HVO members of Sarajevo city council. The reorganization has reduced BiH I (Sarajevo Corps) to a more manageable strength of approximately 25,000 to 30,000. Of these, some 8,000 to 9,000 are normally on the front line.

21. A number of sources indicate that the BiH forces in Sarajevo are facing a severe shortage of munitions, particularly for their heavy weapons. BiH has indicated that it has a significant manufacture capability in the city, but this seems to be limited to the provision of small arms and light mortar ammunition. Nevertheless, sources estimate BiH I (Sarajevo) Corps' heavy inventory as follows:

(a) seven to 10 T55 tanks with 100 millimetre guns and no infra-red capability;

(b) 10 to 15 APCs of various types including BTR 50 and BTR 152 equipped, with either 12.7 or 14.5 millimetre heavy machine-guns;

(c) 15 to 20 artillery weapons, a mixture of 85 millimetre recoilless rifles, 122 millimetre D30 howitzer and 155 millimetre howitzers of indeterminate origin; and

(d) 40 to 50 mortars, of either 82 or 120 millimetre with some mounted on vehicles for enhanced mobility.

In short, the BiH forces are overwhelmingly infantry heavy, with limited sustainability and insufficient assets for combined operations on any significant scale.

22. Control of BiH forces seems to be difficult at best. BiH forces in the city are relying on telephone and easily monitored "Motorola" hand-held transmitters. Further, there appears to be friction between the Army and the Presidency and the opposition regarding the line of authority. On a series of occasions, outside sources have observed the erection of checkpoints and the repositioning of heavy weapons in support of what appears to be domestic brinkmanship.

23. A final potential difficulty in the BiH command and control relationship in the city is the position of HVO troops. These troops, reporting directly to HVO political authority, constitute a wild card in the BiH hand. As open war breaks out between BiH and HVO forces in the rest of BiH, the loyalty and effectiveness of these troops in support of BiH operations and objectives is an open issue.

24. The July 1993 BiH order of battle at Sarajevo appears to be as follows:

- (a) 101 Brigade--Novi Grad: Commander--Nedžad Ajnadžić; Chief of Staff--Vahid Čebo;
- (b) 102 Brigade--Stup: Commander--Esad Paldum; Deputy Commander--Mustafa Džebo; Chief of Staff--Amir Čorbo;
- (c) 1st Mountain Brigade--Stari Grad: Commander--Mustafa Zulić; Chief of Staff--Zijad Boreženović;
- (d) 2nd Mountain Brigade--Vratnik, Vasin Han: Commander--Sahin Puškar; Deputy Commander--Atif Adžić; Chief of Staff--Safet Džaferović;
- (e) 1st Mechanical Brigade--Vogošća--Žuč: Commander--Enver Šehović; Chief of Staff--Ibrahim Dervišević;
- (f) 2nd Motorized Brigade--Rajlovac: Commander--Safet Zajko; Deputy Commander--Safet Isović; Chief of Staff--Enin Suljagić;
- (g) 5th Brigade--Dobrinja: Commander--Ismet Hadžić; Chief of Staff--Halil Bičaj;
- (h) 9th Motorized Brigade - Koševo, Grdanj;
- (i) 10th Motorized Brigade - Skenderija; and
- (j) HVO Brigade (Kralj Tvrtko)--Grbavica: Commander--Iva Tulić; Chief of Staff--Franjo Taljanić.

25. A final factor having a potential bearing on the BiH command and control structure is the ethnic mix of BiH 1 (Sarajevo Corps). Currently the Corps is thought to have the following ethnic mix: 15 to 20 per cent Serb; 5 to 10 per cent Croat; 10 to 15 per cent Yugoslav; and 55 to 70 per cent Muslim.

26. The BSA forces around Sarajevo from the onset of the siege in April 1992 are troops of the Sarajevo Romaniya Corps commanded by Major General Tomislav Šipčić and are now commanded by Major General Stanislav Galić, both ex-JNA regular officers. This Corps consists of eight brigades. The troops, consistent with the former Yugoslavia "peoples defence" doctrine, are mainly from either the local area or from Sarajevo itself. A number of factors have made it possible for the BSA to develop a more sophisticated command and control structure than BiH:

- (a) the besiegers' organization and positions have, by and large, remained static throughout the siege;
- (b) the force does not have the difficulties with ethnic mix as does BiH 1 (Sarajevo) Corps, which is virtually all Serbian;
- (c) the vast majority of commanders at battalion, brigade, and corps level are ex-JNA regulars, as is a cadre of NCOs and company grade officers;
- (d) the Sarajevo Romaniya Corps has enjoyed, for the most part, command continuity over the entire period of the siege;
- (e) permanent, secure land line communications have been established, thereby permitting well-coordinated artillery fire planning;

(f) local commanders have been granted the freedom for fire of opportunity with their heavy weapons and the initiative to use those weapons in local reprisals for BiH sallies; and

(g) the BSA concept of operations, being primarily militarily defensive and psychologically offensive, is straight forward.

27. Galić's Corps Headquarters is located at Lukavica on the high ground, with an excellent view of the entire western half of the city. Based on the pattern of heavy artillery fires, it appears that Galić has excellent control of his artillery assets. On a series of occasions, this fire has been simultaneously directed from a number of directions with coordinated time on target (TOT). Further, Galić's logisticians have shown themselves to be adept at replenishing the vast amount of munitions fired quickly across the tortuous highland road and trail system. Galić is thought to have approximately 600 pieces of artillery at his disposal and has demonstrated a high skill at its tactical use.

28. The besiegers, numbering some 13,000 troops, are formed into nine brigades based on their original territorial units. Of these, eight brigades actually occupy the siege line. These brigades each have an area of operations with which they both: a) have a territorial affinity, and b) have occupied on a semi permanent basis.

29. These brigades are as follows:

(a) Sarajevo 1st Brigade--Lukavica: Commander--Lieutenant Colonel Stojanović;

(b) Rajlovac Brigade: Commander--Lieutenant Colonel Miroslav Bandžur; Chief of Staff--Miroslav Radić;

(c) Koševo Brigade--Radava: Commander--Miroslav Krajišnik;

(d) Ilidža Brigade Ilidža: Commander--Colonel Radojčić;

(e) Vogošća Brigade Vogošća: Commander--Miloš Delić; Chief of Staff--Robert Evanovski;

(f) Romanija Brigade--Grbavica: Commander--M. Petković;

(g) Nedžarići Brigade--Idejkovići: Commander--Mijović Dragan;

(h) Trebević Brigade and at Igman mountain outside the perimeter; and

(i) Blažuj Brigade Blažuj: Commander--M. Čojić.

30. In addition to the brigade commanders, Colonel Zdravko Zgonjanin, as Chief of Police for Boundaries, with his deputy Goran Zubac have been responsible for the interdiction of Bosnian personnel and refugees across the international zone at Sarajevo Airport.

31. Like the BiH forces, the BSA use essentially ex-JNA equipment:

(a) Tanks--T55 and M84;

(b) Howitzers--155, 152, 130, 120 and 105 millimetre;

(c) MLRs--truck mounted 122 millimetre;

- (d) anti-tank--fired direct fire artillery 100 meters T100;
- (e) Anti-Aircraft Artillery (AAA)--57 millimetre, 40 millimetre, 3 by 20 millimetre Oerlikon, dual 14.5 millimetre, 14.5 millimetre and 12.7 millimetre; and
- (f) mortars--82 millimetre and 120 millimetre.

B. Tactics used during the battle

32. As of early July 1993, the strategic situation at the siege of Sarajevo is one where the Serb forces continue to dominate much of the perimeter of the city more for the political significance it holds than for any intention of gaining possession of the city at this time. BiH forces do not appear to be able to amass adequate fighting power to effectively break the state of siege.

From a tactical perspective, it is essential to note that, at this stage of the conflict, the siege, while of tremendous political and military significance, is not the main focus of BiH, BSA, or HVO activity. The BiH forces are conducting a major offensive in central BiH, and fighting at various levels of intensity is occurring in the periphery. As a consequence, the operations at Sarajevo have developed into a classic siege, with neither side being in possession of either the will or the military ability to force a conclusion. Nevertheless, both sides have maintained a high tempo of violence.

33. Tactics in Sarajevo and its environs are influenced by a correlation of several factors:

- (a) The unique combination and proximity of both prominent high ground and developed urban terrain;
- (b) the actual force structure of the warring factions;
- (c) the limited ability of both parties to consolidate and reconstitute those forces for subsequent combat operations;
- (d) the extremes in weather, which have been particularly telling for troops exposed on the surrounding hill features;
- (e) the state of the various intermittent political negotiations; and
- (f) the presence of influential external elements, in particular the various arms of the United Nations and, of at least equal importance, the world media.

34. Serb forces have a preponderance of heavy weapons and large stocks of munitions of all calibres. It is apparent that the BSA was able to obtain large stocks of ex-JNA inventory. However, the Serbs suffer from a distinct manpower shortage, with estimates at about 13,000 persons. As the BSA has been hard pressed at Goražde, central and northern BiH, the Bihać area, and the Posavina corridor, there has been no influx of new troops and no rotation of besieging units. Specialist gunners for the heaviest ordinance are moved around the perimeter, as there are more gun positions and 155 millimetre weapons than crews to man them. However, local commanders have the full freedom to use their unit's heavy weapons. As such, the individual unit determines the scale and target of both harassing and interdiction fire.

35. The BiH, as an infantry force, has limited capabilities at best. The areas of vital concern are the high ground, along the steep ridges surrounding the city, and the open ground at the west end between the airport and the Butmir/Igman mountain positions. BiH activity has focused on four basic objectives:

(a) the seizure of the high ground to interrupt Serbian direct line of sight/line of fire into the city;

(b) the seizure of key mountain roads to isolate Serbian positions on the various high features;

(c) the opening of a land corridor through the west end of the city, through the municipality of Ilidža, to break the siege and link up with the BiH main body; and

(d) focusing as much international attention as possible on the situation in Sarajevo as a means to obtaining international assistance and sympathy.

36. The BiH army has dispersed its forces throughout the city, as any concentration of forces or permanent deployment of assets would bring down an unsustainable weight of fire from the commanding hills. To that end, those defenders not actually manning the perimeters or engaged on duty are quartered at their homes. The weapons shortage is so acute that, on shift change, reports have been received that the new replacements are "handed off" the small arms of the previous shift. None the less, the BiH has conducted an aggressive mobile defence. Heavy weapons are not dug-in in fixed emplacements. Rather, they are hidden throughout the built-up areas and shifted to preclude counter-battery fire. As use of these weapons always provokes a disproportionate Serb response, the BiH army has given its weapons, most notably its mortars, significant mobility by mounting them on the backs of trucks.

37. The BiH army also employs the classic infantry tactics but is limited to smaller unit actions by three factors: lack of supporting firepower, a lack of logistics sustainability, and the Serb ability to detect and target the staging of any forces of above-company strength. Consequently, BiH has primarily employed small-unit tactics. The BiH army, like the Serbs, has employed a high level of sniping. This tactic has stimulated direct reprisal by BSA artillery fire, as specifically indicated by them during the week of 14-20 March 1993. Included in this sniping is the use of AAA in the direct fire anti-personnel mode, particularly in support of the snipers. The BiH forces have also indulged in sporadic indirect and small-arms fire, most notably with their mobile 82 millimetre and 120 millimetre mortars.

38. The majority of BiH attacks are of platoon-plus size, with a minimum of preparatory artillery fire, although supporting fire has been received from main-body positions on and around Igman mountain. With the advantage of interior lines of communication and the ability to achieve local tactical initiative, BiH forces have conducted a series of deliberate pre-dawn attacks aimed at high features, Serbian strong points, and vulnerable supply routes. BSA counter-attacks have usually involved severe artillery fire. The common scenario appears to be an initial BiH success followed by an inability to consolidate due to a lack of sustainability of logistics and supporting fire under the weight of Serbian counter-fire from heavy weapons. BiH casualties are high due to the following factors:

(a) most attacks involve frontal assaults against fixed emplacements and bunkers equipped with crew-served automatic weapons;

(b) BSA positions have superb positions of observation and fire with pre-registered killing zones;

(c) the BSA has confirmed night vision capability;

(d) the BSA has pre-registered defensive fire plans, including final defensive fire (FDF), on their own positions; and

(e) the presence of significant armour resources permits the deployment of high-flexibility, high-intensity reaction forces, where the terrain permits.

39. None the less, BiH tenacity has been such that the perimeter integrity has, by and large, been maintained.

40. BiH has also mounted large numbers of platoon-size trench raids. These raids have limited tactical objectives, such as the reduction of a particularly bothersome strong point, the elimination or capture of Serb heavy weapons, the capture of BSA personnel, or the diversion of attention from surreptitious crossings at Sarajevo airport or other movements. These operations are of limited size and duration and conclude with a withdrawal to the main perimeter. Due to the factors listed above, coupled with an apparent deficiency in coordination, BiH is unable to exploit tactical opportunities created by these raids. This problem with coordination inhibits larger scale operations. One example of this was an abortive three brigade attack south of Sarajevo from Mount Igman towards the Butmir area on 25 January 1993. Coordination collapsed as regards timing, fire support, and manoeuvre, to the point where the operation rapidly degenerated to a confused series of local platoon attacks and counter-attacks. More successful has been the BiH tactic of long range infiltration into BSA lines. This infiltration has the objective of sabotaging or capturing BSA equipment. This equipment most notably includes tanks, gun emplacements and logistics stores. While BiH has exaggerated the success of these raids to include the accidental destruction of a large BSA ammunition dump, the raids have had sufficient effect to divert BSA overtaxed reserves of manpower for enhanced "rear area" security.

41. In the static defence mode, BiH tactics have followed the conventional techniques for the defence in Fight in Built-Up Areas (FIBUA) operations. The use of mutually supporting strong points, communication trenches and tunnels, jury rigged barricades to block fire, movement and observation are all common. Due to the constant sniper fire, key crossroads, particularly on the north/south streets, have been shielded to facilitate pedestrian and vehicular movement. There are unsubstantiated reports that the BiH has expanded the sewer system and built underground factories, command posts, and hospitals. What has been substantiated was the existence of a steel reinforced tunnel approximately 1.4 metres under the airport from Muslim held Butmir to the Dobrinja quarter in the southwest of the city. That tunnel was detected and flooded.

42. BSA objectives in the siege are much less complex than those of BiH. The Serb concept of operations appears to be the extension of the siege as a focus of political negotiations, activity, and propaganda intended for political leverage rather than military advantage. Notwithstanding, the tempo of BSA operations can be intensive for protracted periods. Their overriding tactical concern is their shortage of manpower. The current manpower situation is such that a definitive BSA military solution is unattainable until forces can be shifted from other areas of operation. The eight BSA brigades are inordinately well equipped with dedicated artillery and mortar assets. Estimates range from between 600 and 1,100 artillery and mortar weapons and do not include the large inventory of heavy calibre AAA weapons and tanks. Based on its concept of operations, BSA tactics are primarily defensive and reactive in nature.

43. From their entrenched and rivetted positions on the high ground around the city, BSA gunners can strike at any part of the city with relative impunity. The following factors reinforce the predominance of the BSA reliance on artillery:

(a) the high ground offers an unimpeded view of the city with direct lines of sight and, frequently, lines of fire;

(b) for the weapons systems employed, ranges are virtually point blank;

(c) ample munitions for the weapons are in situ;

(d) many of the gunners are locals and as such are familiar with the layout of the city; and

(e) the duration of the siege has permitted the detailed registration of the guns.

44. The BSA has employed its artillery in two ways. The first is for traditional purposes, such as close support for assaults, counter-attacks by fire, defensive fires against BiH forays, the harassment and interdiction of BiH supply lines and staging areas, area denial, the reduction of BiH strong points and entrenchments, and counter-battery fire. The second is for the express purpose of terrorizing the besieged populace. In the conventional role, the BSA use of artillery has been highly effective. On 8 December 1992, for example, when BiH forces attacked various access routes in the northern boundary of the perimeter, the BSA responded with heavy shelling and a quick counter-attack on the high feature at Žuč. The position was isolated on three sides by a curtain of shells, the position was taken, and the BiH counter-penetration attack was broken up by a massive barrage employing the full range of fuses including air burst, delay, and point detonating.

45. It is the second tactic, that of using heavy artillery as a weapon of terror by the BSA, that is most controversial. Some of the shelling into the populated quarters of the city may well have a bona fide military objective, such as counter-battery fire on the elusive BiH tubes. However, the sheer weight of fire precludes any discussion of proportionality. The BSA has indicated, both by its conduct and by direct comment, that shelling of the built-up areas is conducted for the express purpose of reprisal for BiH sniper fire, raids, barrages, and attacks along the perimeter. Further, this shelling has followed a pattern consistent with life under siege. Shelling routinely occurs at dawn and at dusk and is random in both source and target. There are allegations that civilians are being targeted at schools, parks, sports fields, water and food distribution points, hospitals, and cemeteries. As a variation on this theme, BSA gunners have used AAA in the form of 20 millimetre and 14.7 millimetre auto cannon in the direct fire, anti-personnel mode, directly targeting individual civilians as they move through the city. There are numerous recorded instances where this fire has been directed at UN and relief personnel and activities. As regards the destruction of cultural properties, there has been some evidence to suggest that BiH forces have stationed or positioned weapons either directly in, or in close proximity to, these structures. However, as stated earlier this alone would not account for the sheer volume of fire directed at them. Further, UN sources indicate evidence that city utilities are being directly targeted with predictable effects on the populace.

46. The entire city is under constant BSA small-arms fire. Some of this fire is sporadic or originates from the area of the confrontation line. It should be noted, though, that the majority of this fire is from specifically dedicated snipers, with medium and heavy machine-guns. This fire is directly targeted at any person or vehicle in the perimeter and is completely random. One observed technique is to bring down a victim, wait, and then engage rescuers, including marked ambulances and UN vehicles. Persons on the BSA side have observed numbers of snipers equipped with specialized weapons for their operations. The overwhelming number of casualties from this continuous sniping and sporadic shelling are civilians. The sniping and shelling incidents escalate directly in relation to the lack of tangible results in negotiations. It should be noted that: a) local commanders have the full freedom to use their heavy weapons; and, b) the collapse of negotiations reduces the control over local leaders. It should be stressed, however, with shelling that varies from 20 to 2,400 impacts per day, with an average of 200 impacts recorded per day, the required logistics impute constructive knowledge of this targeting to the higher echelon commanders.

47. As regards offensive tactics, the BSA is not keen to participate in FIBUA operations for a number of reasons:

(a) its concept of operations does not, as yet, require the taking of further ground in the Sarajevo perimeter;

(b) its current selected aims are satisfied by the existing tactical situation;

(c) FIBUA operations are too infantry intensive; and

(d) as indicated during an attack of the city in the Oteš district on 21 December 1992, the BSA has experienced disproportionate casualties in both personnel and equipment, especially tanks, with respect to the advantage gained.

48. In the open areas to the west of the city, the BSA has fared better in combined arms operations. The BSA employs armour in company strength plus (10-20 tanks) supported by APC's and artillery. The combination of the rugged hill features and urban terrain, together with the BiH's effective use of its anti-armour weapons and obstacle plan, have relegated the armour to two secondary roles: mobile artillery and rapid reaction for counter-attack or counter-penetration.

49. The BSA is capable of terrorizing Sarajevo in its geographic entirety with its heavy weapons but cannot force the fall of the city from a strictly military view. In contrast, the BiH can, at the present time, deny the urban terrain to the BSA but cannot break the siege. The key elements, as both realize, are the civilian population and, through them, international pressure.

C. Casualties

50. It is extremely difficult to determine precise civilian casualty figures during an armed conflict. The Committee for Health and Social Security of Citizens of the Ministry of Health of BiH, headed by Professor Dr. Arif Smajkić, has been publishing a weekly publication, The Bulletin, which has attempted to capture total casualty figures for Sarajevo alone and for BiH as a whole. A meeting with Dr. Smajkić convinced the writers of this report that he is making a good faith effort, under enormous difficulties, to compile accurate figures. Unfortunately, for whatever reasons, although all practicable efforts have been made to compile total casualty figures resulting from military activity, relatively little effort has been devoted to distinguishing between civilian and military casualties.

51. In compiling the tables which follow, all copies of The Bulletin from 3 June 1992 (Number 8) to 28 June 1993 (Number 63) have been reviewed. The totals in the 28 June 1993 issue might be noted. By that time, it was estimated that 8,934 persons had been killed in Sarajevo due to military activity (including 1,418 children) and 52,518 persons had been heavily wounded (including 13,738 children). The vast majority of these casualties were non-combatants and not legitimate objects of attack. If there are eventually to be prosecutions for attacks on the civilian population in the Sarajevo area, it will be necessary to review the casualty figures held by the Committee to precisely identify combatants and non-combatants, because the combatants are, of course, lawful targets. It must also be noted that the casualty figures in The Bulletin, because of the inevitable problems of gathering such statistics in wartime, have certain gaps and discontinuities. Two inexplicable discontinuities are the enormous increase in the estimate of the cumulative number of persons killed, from 2,349 to 7,468 between 27 September 1992, and 9 November 1992, and the simultaneous decline in the estimate of the cumulative number of persons seriously wounded, from 13,605 to 12,000.

52. Certain issues of The Bulletin contain varying estimates of the percentage of total casualties which are non-combatant casualties:

(a) 2 August and 10 August 1992--70 per cent of total casualties were civilians;

(b) 19 August 1992--75 per cent of total casualties were civilians;
and

(c) 27 September 1992--80 per cent of those killed and 75 per cent of those wounded were civilians.

These estimates refer to casualties in all of BiH, not Sarajevo alone. Dr. Smajkić estimates that about 85 per cent of the casualties in Sarajevo itself were non-combatants.

53. The following Table presents some basic statistics from the 1992 and 1993 Sarajevo casualty figures, which are presented in toto in Tables #2 and #3 which follow on the next pages:

Table #1

Year	Statistic	Deaths	Wounded
1992	Average/wk	79.7	506.2
1992	Maximum/wk	172	1,324
1992	Minimum/wk	17	113
1993	Average/wk	33.6	219.0
1993	Maximum/wk	77	421
1993	Minimum/wk	9	58

One can quickly see that the figures for 1993 are approximately 44 per cent of 1992 figures.

Table #2

1992 Weekly Sarajevo Casualties

1992	Bulletin Date	Deaths			Wounded
Bulletin #		Reported Total	Reported/Week	Calculated/Week	Reported Total	Reported/Week	Calculated/Week	Heavily Wounded
8	6/3/92
9	6/10/92
10	6/18/92
11	6/26/92	1,320			6,448
12	7/3/92	1,359		39	6,716		268
13	7/11/92	1,420		61	8,040		1,324
14	7/19/92	1,467		47	8,355		315
15	7/26/92	1,511		44	8,662		307
16	8/2/92	1,569		58	9,333		671
17	8/10/92	1,682		113	9,446		113
18	8/16/92	1,713		31	9,677		231
19	8/23/92	1,829	1991	116	10,887	540	1,210
20	8/30/92	1,954		125	11,649		762
21	9/6/92	2,037		83	12,293		644
22	9/13/92	2,123		86	12,789		496

Table #2

1992	Bulletin Date	Deaths			Wounded
Bulletin #		Reported Total	Reported/Week	Calculated/Week	Reported Total	Reported/Week	Calculated/Week	Heavily Wounded
23	9/20/92	2,252	129	129	13,059	796	270
24	9/27/92	2,349	111	97	13,605	617	546
25	10/5/92
26	10/11/92
27	10/18/92
28	10/25/92
29	11/2/92
30	11/9/92	7,468	61		12,000	314
31	11/15/92	7,509	24	41	12,142	171	142
32	11/23/92		17			161
33	11/30/92	7,579			12,283
34	12/7/92	7,694		115	13,086		803
35	12/14/92
36	12/21/92	7,845
37	12/28/92	8,017		172	13,886

1993 Weekly Sarajevo Casualties

1993	Bulletin Date	Deaths			Wounded
Bulletin #		Reported Total	Reported/Week	Calculated/Week	Reported Total	Reported/Week	Calculated/Week	Heavily Wounded
38	1/4/93		27			184
39	1/11/93		14			135
40	1/18/93	8,155	43		47,573	272		14,285
41	1/25/93		15			139
42	2/1/93		77		48,105	393		14,592
43	2/8/93	8,281	34		48,315	210	210	14,748
44	2/15/93	8,327	46	46	48,557	242	242	14,894
45	2/22/93	8,373	46	46	48,930	373	373	15,080
46	3/1/93	8,414	31	41	49,068	138	138	15,149
47	3/8/93	8,454	40	40	49,260	192	192	15,290
48	3/15/93	8,484	30	30	49,489	229	229	15,443
49	3/22/93	8,535	51	51	49,860	371	371	15,591
50	3/29/93	8,565	30	30	50,106	246	246	15,759
51	4/5/93		14			72
52	4/12/93		25

Table #3

1993	Bulletin Date	Deaths			Wounded
Bulletin #		Reported Total	Reported/Week	Calculated/Week	Reported Total	Reported/Week	Calculated/Week	Heavily Wounded
53	4/19/93	8,617			50,458			15,965
54	4/26/93	8,657	40	40	50,663	205	205	16,075
55	5/3/93		31			203
56	5/10/93	8,713	25		51,002	136
57	5/17/93	8,722	9	9	51,060	58	58	16,301
58	5/24/93	8,748	26	26	67,616	190
59	5/31/93	8,789	41	41	51,471	221		16,466
60	6/7/93	8,840	51	51	51,892	421	421	16,608
61	6/14/93	8,871	31	31	52,086	194	194	16,660
62	6/21/93	8,913	42	42	52,307	221	221	16,786
63	6/28/93	8,934	21	21	52,518	211	211

V. APPLICABLE LAW

54. For the purposes of this report, it is presumed that the law applicable in international armed conflicts applies to the battle of Sarajevo for the reasons indicated in paragraph 45 of the Commission's first interim report (S/25274 of 10 February 1993):

"45. The Commission is of the opinion, however, that the character and complexity of the armed conflicts concerned, combined with the web of agreements on humanitarian issues the parties have concluded among themselves, justify an approach whereby it applies the law applicable in international armed conflicts to the entirety of the armed conflicts in the territory of the former Yugoslavia."

55. It is presumed that the law applicable in international armed conflicts includes the provisions of Additional Protocol I of 1977 and of the Hague Cultural Property Convention of 1954, as well as the Geneva Conventions of 1949 and the rules of customary law.

56. It is noted that the Statute of the International Criminal Tribunal refers to grave breaches of the Geneva Conventions of 1949 (article 2), violations of the laws of customs of war (article 3), genocide (article 4), and crimes against humanity (article 5). The Statute, for whatever reason, does not refer explicitly to Additional Protocol I of 1977. The standards set forth in Additional Protocol I will be referred to repeatedly in the discussion and analysis that follows because the various parties to the conflict have agreed to apply Protocol I, and because it is assumed that many of the provisions in Protocol I can be considered statements of customary law. It is noted that article 85 (5) of Protocol I refers to grave breaches as war crimes. It is hoped that article 3 of the Statute of the International Criminal Tribunal can be interpreted in such a way as to include grave breaches of Protocol I.

VI. COMMAND RESPONSIBILITY

57. A commander giving an order to commit a war crime is equally guilty of the offence as the person actually committing it. He is also liable to punishment if he knew or had information which should have enabled him to conclude, in the circumstances at the time, that a subordinate was committing or going to commit a breach of the law, and failed to take all feasible steps to prevent or repress that breach. The mental element necessary when the commander has not given the offending order is a) actual knowledge; b) such serious personal dereliction on the part of the commander as to constitute wilful and wanton disregard of the possible consequences; or c) an imputation of constructive knowledge. That is, despite pleas to the contrary, the commander, under the facts and circumstances of the particular case, must have known of the offences charged and acquiesced therein. (W. Hays Parks, "Command Responsibility for War Crimes", 62 Military Law Review 1, 101-104).

58. Articles 86 (2) and 87 of Additional Protocol I essentially codify the customary law concerning command responsibility. These state:

"Article 86 - Failure to act

2. The fact that a breach of the Conventions or of this Protocol was committed by a subordinate does not absolve his superior from penal or disciplinary responsibility, as the case may be, if they knew, or had information which should have enabled them to conclude in the circumstances at the time, that he was committing or was going to commit such a breach and if they did not take all feasible measures within their power to prevent or repress the breach."

"Article 87 - Duty of commander

1. The High Contracting Parties and the Parties to the conflict shall require military commanders, with respect to members of the armed forces under their command and other persons under their control, to prevent and, where necessary, to suppress and to report to competent authorities breaches of the Conventions and of this Protocol.

2. In order to prevent and suppress breaches, High Contracting Parties and Parties to the conflict shall require that, commensurate with their level of responsibility, commanders ensure that members of the armed forces under their command are aware of their obligations under the Conventions and this Protocol.

3. The High Contracting Parties and Parties to the conflict shall require any commander who is aware that subordinates or other persons under his control are going to commit or have committed a breach of the Convention or of this Protocol, to initiate such steps as are necessary to prevent such violations of the Convention or this Protocol, and, where appropriate, to initiate disciplinary or penal action against violators thereof."

59 The military commander is not absolutely responsible for all offences committed by his subordinates. Isolated offences may be committed of which he has no knowledge whatsoever. A commander does, however, as a fundamental aspect of command, have a duty to control his troops and to take all practicable measures to ensure that they comply with the law. The arguments that a commander has a weak personality or that the troops assigned to him are uncontrollable are simply unacceptable. One writer, (W. D. Burnett, "Command Responsibility and a Case Study of the Criminal Responsibility of Israeli Military Commanders for the Program at Shatila and Sabra", 107 Military Law Review 71, 189 (1985)) concluded his study of the massacres in the Palestinian refugee camps as follows:

"Finally, to avoid the misfeasance of past commanders, including Eitan, Orseri, and Yaron, any military commander, Israeli or otherwise, assigned command and control over armed combatant groups similar to the Phalangists which has engaged in widespread war crimes in the past should refrain from employing that group in combat situations until they have demonstrated clearly and unequivocally their commitment to the fundamental humanitarian protection of the law of war."

If, for whatever reasons, the argument is made that military forces fighting in the Sarajevo area are not capable of complying with the law, that is no defence to a war crimes charge against a commander.

VII. THE MILITARY OBJECTIVE

60. A fundamental aspect of the law of armed conflict is the principle of distinction: military commanders are required to direct their operations against military objectives exclusively and, to the extent practicable, to avoid causing casualties or damage to civilian persons or objects. Military objectives include enemy combatants and certain objects. The definition of military objective in Additional Protocol I is now generally accepted. It states:

*2. Attacks shall be limited strictly to military objectives. Insofar as objects are concerned, military objectives are limited to those objects which by their nature, location, purpose or use make an effective contribution to military action and whose total or partial destruction, capture or neutralization, in the circumstances ruling at the time, offers a definite military advantage."

One of the leading commentaries on the Protocols discusses the definition in the following terms:

"Military objectives are those objects which by their nature, location, purpose or use:

- a. make an effective contribution to military action, and
- b. whose total or partial destruction, capture or neutralization, in the circumstances ruling at the time, offers a definite military advantage

2.4.2 The objects classified as military objectives under this definition include much more than strictly military objects such as military vehicles, weapons, munitions, stores of fuel and fortifications. Provided the object meet the two-pronged test, under the circumstances ruling at the time (not at some hypothetical future time), military objectives include activities providing administrative and logistical support to military operations such as transportation and communications systems, railroads, airfields and port facilities and industries of fundamental importance for the conduct of the armed conflict....

2.4.3 Military objectives must make an 'effective contribution to military action'. This does not require a direct connection with combat action. . . . Thus a civilian object may become a military objective and thereby lose its immunity from deliberate attack through use which is only indirectly related to combat action, but which nevertheless provides an effective contribution to the military phase of a Party's overall war effort"

(M. Bothe, K. Partsch and W. Solf, New Rules for Victims of Armed Conflict 323-324 (1982)).

61. In the municipality of Sarajevo, BiH and HVO forces, their equipment and facilities, including barracks and factories producing weapons or other equipment for the forces, would be legitimate military objectives. The civilian population, civilian housing, medical facilities, schools, religious facilities, and facilities producing food or other objects primarily for the use of the civilian population would not be legitimate military objectives. BiH and HVO forces are not, however, entitled to conceal themselves among the civilian population or in civilian objects and claim immunity from attack. As indicated in article 51(7) of Protocol I, the party being attacked is not to use its own civilian population to shield military objectives from attack. Compliance with the law of armed conflict is particularly difficult during a siege as in Sarajevo because of the almost inevitable intermingling of military forces and the civilian population. The besieged forces continue to have an obligation, to the extent practicable, to distinguish themselves from the civilian population. The besieging forces continue to have an obligation to comply with the rule of proportionality and to avoid causing excessive collateral losses to the civilian population. It is inevitable, however, that there will be a proliferation of dual-use facilities such as communications systems, power networks, transportation systems and supply facilities, which are used by both the civilian population and military forces. Generally speaking, these dual-use facilities would become legitimate military objectives

VIII. SIEGE WARFARE

62. Siege is a traditional method of warfare whereby one party to a conflict attempts to compel another party to surrender an area occupied by the other party's forces. It is accomplished by surrounding the area, cutting off all access to the outside, and bombarding or starving the area into submission. Under the law, as set forth in the Hague Regulations of 1907 and the Geneva Conventions of 1949, belligerents were forbidden to attack or bombard undefended cities (Sarajevo is defended by BiH and HVO forces), and must notify the authorities in the city of a bombardment, except in the case of an assault. In addition, belligerents must take all necessary steps to spare, as far as possible, buildings dedicated to religion, art, science, or charitable purposes, historic monuments, hospitals, and places where the sick and wounded are collected, provided they are not being used at the time for military purposes

63. In the words of Sir Hersch Lauterpacht, [Oppenheim's International Law, volume XI, at 419 (7th ed. 1952)]:

"With regard to the mode of carrying out sieges without bombardment, no special rules of International Law exist, and here too only the general rules respecting offence and defence apply. Therefore, an armed force besieging a town may, for instance, cut off the river which supplies drinking water to the besieged, but must not poison the river. Moreover, no rule of law exists which obliges a besieging force to allow all non-combatants, or even women, children, the aged, the sick and wounded, or subjects of neutral Powers, to leave the besieged locality unmolested. Further, should the commander of a besieged place expel the non-combatants, in order to lessen the number of those who consume his store of provisions, the besieging force need not allow them to pass through its lines, but may drive them back."

64. Subject to article 17 of the Geneva Civilians Convention, which encourages the conclusion of local agreements for removal of some persons from besieged areas, and article 23 of the Civilians Convention, which provides for the free passage of medical and religious supplies for all persons and of essential food for children under fifteen, expectant mothers, and maternity cases, the commander of the investing force has the right to forbid all communications and access between the besieged place and the outside.

65. Simply put, under the law as it existed prior to Protocol I, the investing force was, generally speaking, entitled to starve, freeze, or dehydrate the inhabitants of a besieged area into submission.

66. Assuming that Additional Protocol I is also applicable to the siege of Sarajevo, the legal situation becomes somewhat different:

- (a) starvation of civilians as a method of warfare is prohibited (article 54);
- (b) the provisions concerning relief actions are somewhat stronger (article 70); and
- (c) directing fire on non-combatants entering or leaving a besieged area is now unlawful (article 51).

IX. VIOLATIONS OF THE LAW OF ARMED CONFLICT

67. Any recent visitor to Sarajevo quickly becomes aware of the fact that many violations of the law of armed conflict are being committed during the battle. The focus of this particular investigation is on offences committed during the fighting, in particular, the use of impermissible methods or means of warfare, and attacks on illegitimate targets. Although the question of whether certain acts were lawful reprisals might be raised in defence at a trial, the reprisals issue will be ignored in this study.

68. In the words of the editors of the Law Reports of Trials of War Criminals (volume 15, at 109), "Those rules of international law which relate to the actual conduct of hostilities have only infrequently been made the basis of war crime trial proceedings". The editors, writing in the aftermath of World War II, go on to indicate that the then applicable law for the conduct of hostilities on land consisted essentially of articles 22-28 of the 1907 Hague Regulations. They point out (at 110) that "no records of trials in which allegations were made of the illegal conduct of air warfare have been brought to the notice of the United Nations War Crimes Commission". The types of offences which they discuss in their analysis include: wearing enemy uniforms while engaging in combat, inciting troops to deny quarter, continuing to fire on a vessel after it has surrendered, killing the survivors of sunken ships, and participating in hostilities as an unlawful combatant.

69. Article 6(b) of the Statute of the International Military Tribunal at Nuremberg listed "wanton destruction of cities, towns or villages, or devastation not justified by military necessity" as war crimes. It appears, however, that to date no one has been tried on a charge related to wanton destruction and that those persons tried on charges related to devastation, such as General Rendulic, who was acquitted on a charge of this type in the "Hostage Trial" 18 Law Reports of Trials of War Criminals 34, 67-69), have been tried for offences alleged to have been committed in occupied territory.

70. Article 3 of the Statute of the International Criminal Tribunal states:

"The International Tribunal shall have the power to prosecute persons violating the laws or customs of war. Such violations shall include, but not be limited to:

- a. employment of poisonous weapons or other weapons calculated to cause unnecessary suffering;
- b. wanton destruction of cities, towns or villages, or devastation not justified by military necessity;
- c. attack, or bombardment, by whatever means, of undefended towns, villages, dwellings, or buildings;
- d. seizure of, destruction or wilful damage done to institutions dedicated to religion, charity and education, the arts and sciences, historic monuments and works of art and science; and
- e. plunder of public or private property."

71. With reference to the Battle of Sarajevo, it must be noted that Sarajevo is not "undefended". The British Manual of Military Law Part III ¶ 290 (1958) contains a concise statement of the applicable law:

"An undefended or 'open' town is a town which is so completely undefended from within or without that the enemy may enter and take possession of it without fighting or incurring casualties. It follows that no town behind the immediate front line can be open or undefended for the attacker must fight his way to it. Any town behind the enemy front line is thus a defended town and is open to ground or other bombardment, subject to the limitations imposed on all bombardments, namely, that as far as possible, the latter must be limited to military objectives. This means that hospitals, convalescent homes, churches and monuments duly marked by signs notified beforehand must not be deliberately attacked if they are not used for military purposes. Thus, the question of whether a town is or is not an open town is distinct from whether it does not contain military objectives. A town in the front line with no means of defence, not defended from outside and into which the enemy may enter and of which he may take possession at any time without fighting or incurring casualties, e.g., from crossing unmarked minefields, is undefended even if it contains munitions factories. On the other hand, all defended towns whether situated in the front line or not may be subjected to bombardment provided that it is not directed solely against non-military objectives duly marked as mentioned above.*

72. The writers did not see any evidence of the use of poisonous or other unlawful weapons during their time in Sarajevo. As indicated in the anecdotal account of the battle (16 to 22 November 1992, and 7 and 14 December 1992), there have been reports of the BSA using vehicles which were painted white with UN markings. Such acts constitute perfidious conduct, are prohibited by article 37(1) of Protocol I, and can constitute a grave breach under Article 85(3)(f) if persons caused death or serious injury while using such vehicles. Also, as indicated in the anecdotal account (21 to 28 December 1992), it appears that BiH forces have, on occasion, directly attacked UN forces. In this context, UN forces are non-combatants and illegitimate targets.

A. Starvation as a method of warfare

73. The tribunal in the "High Command Trial" (12 Law Reports of Trials of War Criminals 84, 84) approved the following opinion:

"A belligerent commander may lawfully lay siege to a place controlled by the enemy and endeavour by a process of isolation to cause its surrender. The propriety of attempting to reduce it by starvation is not questioned. Hence the cutting off of every source of sustenance from without is deemed legitimate. It is said that if the commander of a besieged place expels the non-combatants, in order to lessen the number of those who consume his stock of provisions, it is lawful, though an extreme measure, to drive them back, so as to hasten the surrender."

This opinion clearly supports the use of starvation as a method of warfare in the case of a siege. Article 54 of Protocol I prohibits starvation as a method of warfare in general terms. It states:

1. Starvation of civilians as a method of warfare is prohibited.
2. It is prohibited to attack, destroy, remove or render useless objects indispensable to the survival of the civilian population, as such as foodstuffs, agricultural areas for the production of foodstuffs, crops, livestock, drinking water installations and supplies and irrigation works, for the specific purpose of denying them for their sustenance value to the civilian population or to the adverse Party, whatever the motive, whether in order to starve out civilians, to cause them to move away, or for any other motive.

3. The prohibitions in paragraph 2 shall not apply to such of the object covered by it as are used by an adverse Party:
 - a. as sustenance solely for the members of its armed forces; or
 - b. if not as sustenance, then in direct support of military action, provided, however, that in no event shall actions against these objects be taken which may be expected to leave the civilian population with such inadequate food or water as to cause its starvation or force its movement."

74. One might pose two fundamental questions concerning article 54. First, does it apply to the siege of Sarajevo either because Protocol I applies as a treaty obligation or because its starvation provisions are now part of customary law? Second, if article 54 does apply, does it override the traditional law concerning siege or is the traditional law a form of lex specialis? Both the ICRC Commentary on the Protocols and the Commentary by Bothe, Partsch, and Solf, hail article 54 as a substantial new principle of international law applicable in armed conflicts. It is considered that article 54 applies to the siege as a treaty obligation, not as part of customary law. It is also considered that the law for siege warfare is not a lex specialis and that, as a result, where there is an inconsistency between article 54 and the traditional law, article 54 governs.

75. Although Sarajevo has been under siege from the beginning of the conflict, and food, water, heat, and electricity have been extremely limited for much of that time, The Bulletin, which reports casualty figures in Sarajevo, has not indicated that anyone has died in the city from starvation, dehydration, or freezing. Repeated references are made in the anecdotal history to electricity, food, and water shortages. It is noted in the Observations Concerning the Battle History as of July 1993 subsection that both sides have used the city's logistics as an instrument of war against the populace to influence each other and affect the media.

76. One of the fundamental problems of legal analysis during a siege is that combatants and non-combatants are collocated, frequently using the same resources and facilities. For example, with reference to article 54, food supplies, drinking water, and electricity may be used by both the civilian population and military forces in Sarajevo. If there is a shortage in any of these supplies, the shortfall may be levied against the military forces, the civilian population, or both groups. As a practical matter, it is extremely unlikely that the shortfall would be levied against the military forces alone. One is faced with the unpalatable fact that, unless there is a neutral arbiter, the only way to starve-out a besieged military force, a legitimate act of war, is to starve the civilian population.

77. As no one appears to have died of starvation, cold, or dehydration in Sarajevo, it is unlikely anyone could be held liable for using starvation of civilians as a method of warfare during the siege.

B. Attacks on civilian persons and objects

78. Under the law as essentially codified in Protocol I:

- (a) attacks must be directed against military objectives;

- (b) attacks directed against civilian persons or objects are prohibited;
- (c) indiscriminate attacks are prohibited; and
- (d) indiscriminate attacks include:
 - (i) area attacks, and
 - (ii) attacks causing disproportionate incidental civilian casualties.

Incidental or collateral loss of civilian life and damage to civilian property is a tragic but inevitable byproduct of armed conflict.

79. The battle to recapture Manila from the Japanese in 1945 is a particularly painful example of an attempt to minimize civilian casualties which went wrong for reasons beyond the control of the attacking force. Once American forces were committed to recapture the Philippines, it was necessary for them to retake Manila. General Yamashita, the Japanese commander in the Philippines ordered his troops to evacuate the city on the approach of American forces because he did not have sufficient forces to defend it and did not have enough food to feed the civilian population of one million. A subordinate Japanese commander disregarded Yamashita's orders and directed his troops to fight to the death to defend the city. In the course of the battle, American forces surrounded the city and closed in towards its centre. The Japanese would not surrender. Initially, American commanders imposed severe restrictions on the use of artillery, but, as American casualties mounted, many restrictions were lifted. The American official history described the situation:

"The losses had manifestly been too heavy for the gains achieved. If the city were to be secured without the destruction of the 37th and the 1st Cavalry Divisions, no further effort could be made to save the buildings; everything holding up progress would be pounded, although artillery fire would not be directed against structures such as churches and hospitals that were known to contain civilians. Even this last restriction would not always be effective for often it could not be learned until too late that a specific building held civilians. The lifting of the restrictions on support fires would result in turning much of southern Manila into a shambles; but there was no help for that if the city were to be secured in a reasonable length of time and with reasonable losses."

(R. Smith, Triumph in the Philippines, 264 [1963]).

An estimated 16,000 Japanese soldiers died in the battle and American forces casualties were 1,000 killed and 5,000 wounded. Manila was devastated, and the bodies of 100,000 Filipino civilians were found in the rubble, most of them killed in the exchange of fire between American and Japanese forces.

80. Substantial civilian casualties are particularly likely to be caused during sieges, fighting in built up areas, and on other occasions when attacks are directed against cities. As Sarajevo is under siege, a certain number of civilian casualties can be expected even if the combatants made a conscientious effort to comply with the law of armed conflict. Several thousand persons have been killed or wounded in Sarajevo during the siege. The Bulletin estimate of 28 June 1993 was that 8,934 persons had been killed and 52,518 persons had been wounded as a result of military activity. The precise totals, the identity of the killed and wounded and their classification as combatants or non-combatants are not yet known. It is, however, reasonable to conclude that the vast majority of the casualties, probably over 75 per cent, are civilians and not legitimate objects of attack.

81. The writers did not attempt to conduct their own survey of property damage during the siege of Sarajevo. It is, however, apparent to any visitor to the city that most buildings, including many which are clearly civilian objects, such as churches and mosques, have suffered serious battle damage. The Holiday Inn, where the writers stayed during their visit, is an 11-story structure, but occupancy is now confined to the first five floors, because of damage to one side and because the other side is exposed to sniper fire. It must be conceded, however, that the Holiday Inn was initially the headquarters of the Serbian Democratic Party and some damage was caused when it was seized by Muslim militiamen on 6 April 1992. The writers visited the National Library, however, and it was apparent that this civilian structure had been deliberately destroyed by Serb artillery from the nearby hills. The interior of the library was gutted, yet several surrounding buildings were completely untouched. It will eventually be possible to make a global survey of property damage in Sarajevo, but it will probably be very difficult to establish a precise chronology and indication of causality in most cases. It will also be necessary to apply a discount factor because of the BiH tendency to move its limited artillery resources among various civilian areas. On the morning of 3 July 1993, the writers observed from their windows in the Holiday Inn a BiH mortar being fired repeatedly from an area where civilian housing was located. They also observed a substantial amount of Serb counter-battery fire hitting the houses.

82. The weapons systems being used by BSA forces in the siege of Sarajevo, predominantly direct-fire weapons, and artillery at point blank, frequently direct-fire, range, are systems which can be used with a high degree of accuracy. A sniper rifle is normally aimed at a particular person in view of the sniper. Mortars and guns used at short range normally fire projectiles which land quite close to where they are aimed. These are not inherently indiscriminate weapons, particularly in the case of sniper fire. If non-combatants are being killed or wounded, this occurs because the sniper intends to kill or wound them.

83. There are legitimate military objectives in Sarajevo such as the BiH forces wherever they are located and modest weapons and ammunition manufacturing facilities. It does not appear, however, that conscientious efforts are made to ensure that attacks are directed exclusively against these military objectives. There is every indication that civilians have been deliberately targeted by snipers and by BSA artillery. As indicated in the discussion of BSA tactics, small arms and artillery have frequently been used as weapons of terror directed against the civilian population. There are cases in which BSA artillery has been directed against military objectives and, nevertheless civilian casualties have been caused. In these cases, it is appropriate to attempt to measure military advantage gained against suffering caused to the civilian population in a crude proportionality equation. Quite frequently, however, application of the rule of proportionality will be irrelevant for the simple reason that causing civilian casualties is the objective of BSA action, not an incidental effect.

X. ACCOUNTABILITY

84. This report is a non-exhaustive survey of law of armed conflict issues arising during the siege of Sarajevo. As the writers did not have an opportunity to visit BSA forces during the investigation, they were not exposed to allegations of BiH misconduct during the siege unless the allegations came from UN sources. The report focuses on combat-related offences, unlawful targeting, and the use of unlawful means and methods of warfare.

85. It is unlikely that weapons which are illegal per se have been used during the siege. If it can be established that named individuals in the BSA used or authorized the use of vehicles which carried UN markings, this could be viewed as perfidious conduct and, if persons were killed or wounded as a result of this action, a grave breach of Protocol I could be established. The "Hagendorf" case (13 LAW Reports of Trials of War Criminals 146, 146-148), in which a German soldier was convicted for abusing the Red Cross emblem by firing at American soldiers from an ambulance, might constitute a useful precedent. In that case, however, the accused was captured at the time of the incident. Somewhat similarly, if it can be established that named individuals attacked or authorized attacks on UN forces, these persons could be charged with violating the laws or customs of war, contrary to article 3 of the International Criminal Tribunal Statute, by committing a grave breach of article 85(3)(a) of Protocol I and making the civilian population or individual civilians the object of attack. In the Sarajevo context, UN peacekeepers are non-combatants and entitled to be treated as civilians. As indicated in the discussion of starvation as a method of warfare, the tendency of both sides to control food, water, and electricity for publicity purposes, the collocation of military forces and the civilian population, and the fact that no one appears to have died during the siege from starvation, dehydration, or freezing, combine to make difficult the establishment of a solid case that starvation is being used as a method of warfare. The conduct on this matter has been deplorable but its criminality is debatable.

86. Most of the war crimes committed in Sarajevo have involved attacks on civilian persons and objects. As indicated in the preceding section, it will be difficult but not impossible to compile a reasonably accurate list of persons killed or seriously injured during the siege of Sarajevo, to determine if they were combatants or non-combatants and to determine when, where, and how they were killed or injured. Once this information is available, it will be possible to determine relative percentages of military and civilian casualties over time. It may also be possible to determine, in a general manner where the projectiles causing casualties came from, in such a way that X number of casualties were caused by a particular unit. Whether or not it is possible to determine which individuals or which units caused civilian casualties, it will certainly be possible to establish that a large number of casualties have been caused by the BSA forces surrounding Sarajevo during a specific period of time. It will probably also be possible to determine roughly how many of the civilian casualties have been caused by some form of sniper fire. Whether or not one might consider applying the rule of proportionality in other cases where civilian casualties are incurred, it is reasonable to presume that civilian casualties caused by sniper fire are the result of deliberate attacks on civilians, not the result of indiscriminate attacks.

87. The compilation of a chronological and quantitative survey of damage to civilian objects in Sarajevo will be more difficult to do and has not yet been attempted. It is possible to determine what damage has been caused to certain religious, cultural, and medical buildings and, in most cases, it would be possible to determine whether these buildings were located near legitimate fixed military objectives. It would also be possible to focus on whether certain types of objects were deliberately targeted. For example, a detailed study of the shelling of the Koševo medical facility or of the National Library would probably indicate that these objects had been deliberately targeted. It may also be possible to establish that religious facilities were deliberately targeted. The tendency of BiH forces to conceal their resources among civilian objects would probably result in some of the damage to civilian objects caused by BSA projectiles, thereby constituting legitimate collateral damage. There is enough apparent damage to civilian objects in Sarajevo to justify an in-depth study. Such a study might well conclude that either civilian objects have been deliberately targeted or that they have been indiscriminately attacked. This study, which would require unimpeded movement for extended periods throughout Sarajevo, is not practicable at present.

88. There have been incidents in the past where substantial civilian casualties have been caused, but substantial military advantage has also been gained by a particular military action. The battle of Manila, referred to earlier, is an example, as are many of the bombing raids of the Second World War. In these cases, one might attempt to quantify both military advantage and civilian losses and apply the somewhat subjective rule of proportionality. As a general statement, however, the rule of proportionality is not relevant to the sniping activities of the BSA forces and it is of questionable relevance to many of the artillery bombardments. BSA forces are deliberately targeting the civilian population of Sarajevo either as a measure of retaliation or to weaken their political resolve. Attacking the civilian population is a war crime.

89. It will probably be very difficult to link specific individuals or units to specific incidents in which civilians or civilian objects have been deliberately attacked or subjected to indiscriminate attacks. It may be possible to localize incidents in such a way that it is clear that a certain unit under a particular commander was the cause of a number of incidents. Whether or not it is possible to develop a firm case against individual soldiers or unit commanding officers, it should be quite practicable to develop a prima facie case against the officer or officers responsible for the BSA Sarajevo Romanija Corps which has been the unit surrounding Sarajevo from the beginning of the siege. It is understood that the Sarajevo Romanija Corps is now commanded by Major General Stanislav Galic and that it was formerly commanded by Major General Tomislav Šipčić. Further research may indicate the identity of other officers responsible at the Corps level.

90. Command has burdens and responsibilities, as well as privileges. The commander of the Sarajevo Romanija Corps is responsible for the attacks on the civilian population and the indiscriminate attacks launched by his troops if he ordered these attacks. He is also responsible to a degree, even if he did not give the orders if he knew or should have known that his subordinates were committing or going to commit such attacks and he failed to take all practicable steps to prevent or punish them. To determine whether or not the Corps commander must have known about the acts of his subordinates, one might consider a number of indices, including: the number of illegal acts; the type of illegal acts; the scope of illegal acts; the number and type of troops involved; the logistics involved, if any; the geographical location of the acts; the widespread occurrence of the acts; the tactical tempo of operations; the modus operandi of similar illegal acts; the officers and staff involved; and the location of the commander at the time. On the basis of these indices, a Corp commander headquartered on high ground at Lukavica with a good view of the city, good communications, and a reasonably low tempo of operations at almost all times, would have some difficulty arguing that he was unaware of small arms and artillery fire being directed against civilians and civilian objects.

Appendix

ANECDOTAL ACCOUNT OF THE BATTLE (Derived from UN Reports)

25 October-1 November 1992

BiH positions continued to receive sporadic shelling throughout this week. In the north central sector of the perimeter, the defence line between Uraca and Koševo was heavily shelled with a number of shells hitting the Koševo Medical Centre and the heavily populated area adjacent to the Residency (UNPROFOR BiH Command Forward). Bosnian Serb Army (BSA) gunners continued to interdict BiH movement of personnel and equipment through the airport corridor. UNPROFOR engineers noted problems with shortages of electricity, potable water, and flour in the city.

1-8 November 1992

BiH positions around the airport and the centre of the city continued to be shelled. However, apart from the sporadic shelling and sniping that are the hallmarks of the siege, activity was relatively calm. UNPROFOR speculated that this was probably due to the high profile given to the UNICEF week for children with the attendant media exposure.

8-15 November 1992

This week saw an increase in the tempo of violence due to continued BiH efforts to move personnel and material across the airfield corridor. A confrontation between HVO (Bosnian Croat) special forces and BiH regulars flared into a series of fire fights that were finally terminated by a BiH threat with repositioned AAA auto cannon. The week concluded with the locking on of AAA targeting radars on UNHCR aircraft and the consequent closing of the airport. The radars were sourced as coming from Serb positions. Finally, on 15 November 1992, a convoy of 400 refugees escorted by UNPROFOR was heavily sniped while crossing the lines on the route to Kiseljak by suspected BSA troops.

16-22 November 1992

Sarajevo sector remained quiet until the morning of 18 November, when BiH troops simultaneously attacked BSA positions at Žuč and Ilidža unsuccessfully. The BSA responded with increased shelling into the city centre and with sporadic mortar and tank fire. On 20 November observers reported that the BSA, using white trucks with hand-painted UN letters, moved between Sarajevo and Pale.

23-29 November 1992

Since a cease-fire had been declared BSA shelling in Sarajevo shifted from civilian targets to mostly harassment and interdiction on BiH forces positions at the west end of the city in the suburbs of Dobrinja, Butmir, Ilidža, Mojmiro, and Bistrič. Sporadic sniping throughout the city continued.

30 November-6 December 1992

Shelling in the southwest escalated to high levels in response to BiH attacks in the Otes area. The BSA counter-attacked Otes with infantry and tanks and shelled the western suburbs with artillery shells fused with air burst, point detonating, and delay.

7-14 December 1992

Muslim refugees abandoned the Oteš-Ilidža area and retreated into the city, leaving Oteš and Azići. As the week progressed, fighting intensified with a series of attacks and counter-attacks. BSA artillery reprisals were heavy, and large areas were destroyed. Reported sightings of white Serbian vehicles with UN markings resulted in the BiH engagement of some UN vehicles. The fighting caused further restriction of electricity and water by destroying recent repairs to the infrastructure of the city.

13-20 December 1992

As a result of the previous week's operations, only light shelling and sniping continued. It was established that the BSA had suffered heavy casualties in personnel and tanks and had depleted their munitions reserve by taking and holding Oteš.

21-28 December 1992

It appeared during this period that BiH forces were deliberately engaging UN forces. The UN shuttle from the Sector Sarajevo headquarters building (PTT) was sniped at, and the forced evacuation of the Residency was made necessary by point blank artillery fire from BiH positions. The 23rd consecutive day for Sarajevo without electricity or water was marked on 27 December 1992.

28 December 1992-4 January 1993

The tempo of small arms and artillery was reduced, and UN sources ascribed the lull to the Geneva talks. Significant troop movement was evident in the Mount Igman area and the BiH Army aggressively launched a series of platoon-sized raids all around the perimeter. Persons crossing the runway continued to cause difficulties for the French battalion at the airport (FRBAT-2). On 1 January 1993, the UN APC shuttle was engaged twice in the Stup area from the BiH area.

4-11 January 1993

On 8 January, an UNPROFOR APC carrying Muslim Deputy Prime Minister Turajlić from Sarajevo Airport to the city was blocked at a Serb checkpoint. During negotiations, a BSA soldier, thought to be operating independently, assassinated the Deputy Prime Minister. The city entered its fifth week without electricity or water. BiH forces were able to consolidate some gains in the Grbavica area in house to house fighting.

11-18 January 1993

Five FRBAT-2 soldiers were injured by shelling that originated from BiH held Hrasnica. In response to increased Muslim efforts to cross the airport, the BSA retaliated on 13 January with a barrage of some 1,300 impacts into the central districts of the city.

18-25 January 1993

The level of shelling decreased but the areas hit by concentrated fire increased to the entire western side of the city. On 16 January, BiH positions at Hrasnica again shelled the airport, wounding three FRBAT-2 soldiers. On 19 January, a UNMO was shot and wounded by sniper fire from BSA positions in the Šmiljevići area. During this period, several repair teams working on the city's electrical system came under fire while working from mortars in the Serb positions on the northern perimeter. Although fired upon on five occasions, repair teams were able to alleviate the electrical and water situation. On 21 January, Serbs halted UN humanitarian aid convoys from Kiseljak to Sarajevo.

25-31 January 1993

The level of shelling and military activity remained low, probably due to a Serb national holiday. However, Serbs continued to harass and snipe at UN vehicles and convoys.

1-7 February 1993

Shelling concentrated on the airport area and on the eastern old town. Serious infantry fighting took place at Medžarići, Dobrinja, and the Rajlovac rail yards. BiH elements unsuccessfully struck at the road between Lukavica and Pale in the Batarija area. The BSA shelled the Grdonj and Koševo hospitals periodically. Serb check points demanded parts of the loads from UNHCR vehicles. On 6 February, the Serbs unilaterally asked for a cease-fire to begin the next day, followed by negotiations.

8-14 February 1993

Activity at Sarajevo increased dramatically on 11 February when both sides exchanged heavy artillery fire. BSA forces struck at Ilidža from Stup in the city and from Butmar, attempting to link up unsuccessfully. The UN found itself increasingly under fire:

- (a) on 11 February, 4 FRBAT-2 soldiers were injured in a deliberate mortar attack--one fatally;
- (b) the UN airport checkpoint was shelled and sniped;
- (c) an UNMO observation position was shelled;
- (d) the BiH command shuttle was shelled; and
- (e) BiH mortars were positioned adjacent to the PTT building and the building was subsequently shelled and sniped.

Throughout this period BSA artillery indiscriminately shelled the entire city.

14-20 February 1993

Heavy fighting raged all week as the Serbs and Muslims battled for the suburb of Ilidža. The BiH had two objectives: 1) break the siege and open the road to Visoko; and 2) cut Serbian supply routes in the siege. These battles saw an extensive use of artillery by both sides and a strong use of armour by the BSA in containing the BiH assaults. In retaliation, the BSA heavily shelled the western end of the city. UN troops were targeted by both warring factions. The fighting petered out with President Izetbegović calling for a cease-fire on 20 February.

21-28 February 1993

The tempo of operations was low during this period. Both sides showed indications of having significantly depleted their munitions stocks. While the cease-fire did not hold there was a marked decrease in shelling, mortaring, and sniping. The previous week's intense fighting accomplished minimal shifting in the confrontation line.

1-7 March 1993

There was a lull in the combat activity in the Sarajevo sector. UN sources speculated that the lull was due to either the very bad weather, the consolidation of positions and resupply, or the latest cease-fire attempt in New York. Generally, however, the level of shelling increased to some 570 impacts per day, concentrated mainly at Stup, Dobrinja, Butmir, the Koševo Medical Centre area, and the city centre. In particular, very accurate tank fire was received, while sniper activity against the besieged increased throughout the city.

8-15 March 1993

The main area of concentration of artillery and mortar fire was in Koševo but generally, shelling activity was low. BiH continued to restructure 1 (Sarajevo) Corps in the city and it was expected that this activity, which commenced with the execution of two BiH battalion commanders on 25 February, would be completed by 10 March. The low level of fighting coincided with the BiH reorganization and new talks in New York. Both sides used the lull to reinforce and resupply.

16-21 March 1993

Sarajevo experienced one of the most turbulent weeks of the siege. Sniper fire was very high on both sides and the BSA threatened its usual artillery reprisal. Fierce fighting erupted in the west end, with very heavy shelling over the entire city. UN forces reported a number of incidents of shelling and sniping and a British aircraft reported being fired upon. The BSA was able to make significant gains in the Rajlovac, Stup, and Nedžarići suburbs, setting the stage for fierce BiH counter-attacks. On Sunday, 21 March, the most heavy shelling of the siege was recorded with 2,398 impacts.

22-28 March 1993

Intense fighting continued as strong BSA attacks with heavy shelling continued on Stup, Očeš, Vratnik, and Krasno-Grbavica. The Serb objective, the Stup bridge overpass, appeared to be within their grasp. The capture of this feature would allow the Serbs to control the main highway into the city and effectively dominate two thirds of the city by direct line of sight/line of fire. Further, with the Stup position, the BSA would be in a position to isolate the Dobrinja pocket and would allow the Serbs to take the rest of the city piecemeal, by way of smaller operations. However, the attacks at Stup exhausted the limited BSA infantry capability and took a particularly heavy toll on both infantry and armoured assets. This, coupled with dramatically deteriorating weather conditions, ground the BSA offensive to a halt. The BiH shifted AAA weapons into the sector for direct fire support, and the fighting petered out into the usual sporadic shelling, small-arms fire, and sniping.

29 March-4 April 1993

The city remained relatively quiet as both sides recovered from the intensity of the battle in the west end and the street fighting in Grbavica. During this period only a total of 54 impacts, about one fourth of an average day's shelling, were recorded in the city. The cold weather and heavy snow continued but the snipers continued to be particularly active, killing four and wounding 14 civilians.

4-10 April 1993

Sarajevo remained relatively quiet with the exception of snipers from both sides. On 8 April, a UN truck being inspected at the BSA checkpoint at Ilidža was found to have ammunition concealed under a removable pallet. The Serbian media leapt on the incident, further restricting UN freedom of movement.

11-17 April 1993

Sniper activity continued as Muslims continued to infiltrate across the airport at night. On 12 and 15 April, the Serb gunners intensified their fire into the centre of the city near the hospital and the Presidency. Observers detected large concentrations of BSA troops at Azici and Lukavica and anticipated further offensives against Stup and Dobrinja.

18-25 April 1993

The anticipated shifting of BSA reserves to the city from Srebrenica did not occur. The airport area was subject to particularly heavy sniping and machine-gun fire, and the BSA blocked a number of convoys. The city was shelled some fifty times a day on average.

26 April-2 May 1993

The situation in the city remained stable with the average daily shelling calculated at 1991 impacts per day. Troop movement and resupply by the BSA was noted, including the shifting of Serb heavy weapons.

3-9 May 1993

BSA aggressive behaviour against UN operations became highly aggressive, although the lull generally persisted. A number of new Serb checkpoints in the Vogosca area were opened, further restricting the movement of aid convoys.

9-15 May 1993

As a result of the referendums on the Vance/Owen Peace Plan (VOPP), the Sarajevo tactical picture became extremely calm. Despite small-arms and sniper activity, shelling activity dropped significantly. UN sources noted many civilians in the streets and the opening of some shops.

16-22 May 1993

The tempo of activity slowly rose through the week although, in Sarajevo terms, the cease-fire accompanying the VOPP continued to be respected. A total of 73 BSA cease-fire violations (CFV) and 26 BiH CFV were observed. Snipers killed one civilian and wounded eight, while UN convoys continued to be blocked and delayed at BSA check points.

23-29 May 1993

Shelling increased during the week with 174 impacts on 26 May, 190 on 28 May, and 210 on 29 May.

30 May-5 June 1993

Although the number of impacts diminished as the week progressed, the city remained tense as the level of indiscriminate sniping rose.

6-12 June 1993

No change to the general situation, however the shelling in Konjic destroyed the power lines between the Jablanica power plant and Sarajevo. This caused a further degradation of the central BiH power grid with significant effects on the city's utilities. In Sarajevo the provision of water was directly reliant on electric pumps, and the limitation of power had a negative impact on the water distribution system.

13-19 June 1993

Heavy Serb shelling in response to a BiH attack at the Dvor bridge was followed by a BSA counter-attack in an apparent effort to keep the main supply route open. A cease-fire was almost respected on 19 June.

Observations Concerning Battle History as of July 1993

The main BSA objective at this time no longer appears to be the capture of the city. This is apparent from the low Serbian manning levels. The Serb military objectives seem to have been:

- (a) continued isolation of the city;
- (b) the capture of the Stup bridge; and
- (c) cutting the city in half from a North-South axis through Centre Sarajevo.

The reasoning behind these objectives:

(a) Isolation severely limits the power of the Presidency Government to the degree where its collapse and the surrender of the city could undermine Muslim military activity throughout BiH;

(b) the capture of the Stup bridge, as noted earlier, would effectively put the BSA in control of the city and give it a secure covered main supply route into the city; and

(c) the dissection of the city on the north-south axis would either cause the city to fall by shattering BiH tactical integrity or would allow the BSA to take the city piecemeal at their relative leisure.

On the BiH side their strategic objectives appear to be as follows:

(a) to break the siege by attacking from Visoko to the north to link up with troops breaking out from the Vogošća area and with troops breaking out from Stup and Butmir through Ilidža. This would have the effect of cutting BSA supply and movement around the city, panning down BSA forces to where they can be defeated in detail; and

(b) to keep the support of world opinion by manipulating the media to present the BSA forces and the Serbs as the aggressors.

The levels of fighting in and around Sarajevo reflect the changing postures of the warring factions and are often an indicator of not only their military but also their political intentions. As an example, during the December 1992 negotiations, the BSA lowered its shelling rate to below that of the BiH forces. BiH responded by increasing its fire and carrying out a series of attacks in the hope of prompting a BSA overreaction which could be presented as unwarranted Serbian aggression. On the other hand, the Serbs would use their predominance in artillery to punish the BiH through the civilian populace of the city for any perceived indiscretion, either political or military. This targeting of civilian areas by massive shell fire, coupled with the terrorizing of the populace by the well-equipped and ever present snipers, has been the BSA methodology for using the civilians as leverage against the Presidency.

Both sides have used the city's logistics as an instrument of war against the populace to influence each other and affect the media. The Serbs control the power grid, and power lines and transformers have been damaged by deliberate or accidental destruction or by maintenance failures. UN escorted repair teams have been prevented by a variety of means, including being fired upon, from effecting repairs. The control of UNHCR and NGO-provided supplies is also used as a weapon by both sides. This tactic must be delicately executed because of the food aid's high media profile. Another serious infra-structural difficulty was the city's dry sewage system. The system has been used for communications, movement, storage and, in some cases, shelters. Although the gravity design permits limited function, UNPROFOR engineers have stated that major maintenance is required to preclude the very real chance of disease in the summer heat.

Security Council

Distr.
GENERAL

S/1994/674/Add.2 (Vol. III)
28 December 1994

ORIGINAL: ENGLISH

FINAL REPORT OF THE UNITED NATIONS COMMISSION OF EXPERTS
ESTABLISHED PURSUANT TO
SECURITY COUNCIL RESOLUTION 780 (1992)

ANNEX VII
MEDAK INVESTIGATION

Under the Direction of:

William J. Fenrick
Member and Rapporteur on On-Site Investigations,
Commission of Experts Established Pursuant to
Security Council Resolution 780 (1992)

Principal Legal Analyst:

Major J. C. Holland, Canadian Armed Forces; Member of Canada's Contributed Personnel to the Commission of Experts

CONTENTS

	Paragraphs	Page
I. INTRODUCTION	1 - 3	3
II. OVERVIEW	4 - 7	3
III. DESCRIPTION	8 - 68	3
IV. ANALYSIS	69 - 106	10
V. RECOMMENDATIONS	107 - 108	14

I. INTRODUCTION

1. The Medak Pocket Operation comprises the military operations of the Republic of Croatia (Croat), United Nations Protection Force (UN or UNPROFOR) and, to a lesser extent, the "Republic of Serbian Krajina" (Serb) forces near Medak, Croatia, in September 1993.

2. Sadly, it is only a typical example of how war is, and apparently always has been, waged in the Balkans.

3. It is especially amenable to legal study for a variety of reasons. The operation was confined in both time and geography. The units involved were limited in number. UNPROFOR reported on the operation in a particularly detailed and helpful manner. UN forces anticipated law of war violations and gathered much relevant information during the operation. Lastly, it was a recent event so evidence and witnesses were still available.

II. OVERVIEW

4. The operation took place just north of the town of Medak and just outside the United Nations Protected Area designated as Sector South. Medak is about 150 kilometres south-west of Zagreb.

5. Before 9 September 1993, the Medak Pocket was a collection of small rural villages and hamlets forming a finger of Serb-controlled land jutting into Croat territory.

6. On 9 September, at about 6:00 a.m., Croat forces attacked the Pocket. An artillery, mortar and/or tank fire barrage preceded an infantry and tank advance. Croats attacked from the north-east and quickly killed or routed the few Serb defenders. Overrunning the Serb defences, the Croat forces soon captured Divoselo (Strunići), Čitluk (Lički), Donje Selo, and the surrounding villages. By 10 September, the Croatian army was in charge of the area.

7. The rationale for the Croat attack is impossible to determine with certainty. Speculation includes: a rehearsal by the Croats for a larger operation, a test of their forces by the Croats, retaliation by the Croats for Serb shelling of Gospić, a desire by the Croats to straighten their front, or simply a Croat desire to seize territory.

III. DESCRIPTION

8. Evidence of events during the Medak Pocket Operation emerges from various witnesses' experiences. The following is an extremely summarized version of their experiences.

9. Captain "1" was in command of the Serb forces in the Divo Selo area. In the face of the Croat attack, he ordered his soldiers to withdraw. This they did along with many local civilians. Over the next days, this mixed group made its way by foot to Serb territory. During the escape, an unidentified Serb soldier escaping with the group told the Captain that Croat soldiers had spared him. Indeed, the Croats told the unidentified soldier to escape when they could easily have killed or captured him.

10. "2" was a soldier in the Serb army on 9 September. Upon the Captain's orders, he withdrew in the face of the Croat attack. During his escape to Serb territory, he saw the Croats burn houses and steal livestock. He came across a body. Someone had either badly mutilated it after death or had tortured the victim before death. During his escape, he entered Čitluk to try to find food. There he came within 10 to 15 metres of a group of Croat soldiers. He heard instructions translated into German for some soldiers. The apparent commander said in Croatian: "Those houses are Serbian houses and you can do anything you wish."

11. "3" was a Serb soldier on the front line at the beginning of the Croat attack. He retreated with his comrades but became separated from them. He came across a female body with an eye, an ear, and all right-hand fingers cut off. "3" saw Croat soldiers setting fire to houses and stealing sheep.

12. Three other Serb soldiers all fled the Croat attack. They all report that the only Croat activity they saw was legitimate "soldier against soldier" combat.

13. "4", a resident of "A", was in the local Serb militia. He fled the Croat attack and immediately returned to his home. There he saw his elderly sister-in-law dead. A search of the scene after UNPROFOR took control of the area revealed only some clothing. She was wearing this clothing when "4" saw her dead body. During "4 s" escape to Serb territory, he saw Croat soldiers killing sheep belonging to local civilians and stealing five or six tractors owned by the local populace.

14. "5", a resident of "A", was also a member of the Serb militia. On 9 September, he was on the front line. Upon the attack he fled, returned to his home, and warned his family to flee. While he was in hiding, before he reached safety, he saw his tractor being stolen by the Croats. Croat soldiers wounded him during his escape.

15. Two persons, "6" and "7", witnessed the murder of an 83 year-old blind woman.

16. "6" was a resident of "B". He left his home at the beginning of the Croat attack. Upon leaving, he saw the victim and a younger unidentified woman outside her home, from about 200 metres away. About 20 unidentified Croat soldiers came up to the victim's house and ordered the younger woman away. Then, the soldiers gunned down the victim. After this, "6" fled to the forest with relatives, where he eventually joined a mixed group of Serb military and civilians. They walked to safety.

17. "7", a resident of "A", was hiding in the woods also near the victim's house. From the woods, she saw 10 unidentified Croat soldiers approach the victim, who was standing alone outside her home, and simply kill her.

18. "8" was a resident of "B". During the early morning of 9 September, he tried to evacuate two wounded Serb soldiers in his private vehicle. Croat forces ambushed the vehicle, their gunfire hitting all three vehicle occupants. "8" believed the gunfire killed both of his passengers. "8" escaped and hid in bushes approximately 20 metres from the ambush site. Ten to 15 unidentified soldiers approached the vehicle, dragged the two dead Serb soldiers out, placed the bodies near a building and set the building on fire. In "8 s" original statement, he said one of his passengers was alive when taken from the vehicle by the Croats. He also said that they placed both the wounded soldier and the body of the other dead soldier in the building before setting it afire. The correction of the original statement was not placed in all versions of the various reports compiled by UN organizations.

19. "9", a resident of "A", fled the initial attack with her family. When shortly thereafter she returned to her house to get shoes, she was shot and wounded by unidentified Croat soldiers. She heard the soldier's conversation from 300 to 500 metres away. The conversation showed that the Croats deliberately targeted her as a civilian. One soldier objected to shooting at her with, "No, it's a woman"; the other replied, "It does not matter".

20. "10" resided in "A". During the 9 September attack, she was in her home. "10's" son fled the house at the start of the attack. He took his rifle with him. No one has seen him since, and he is presumed to be dead. An unidentified Croat soldier saw her through a window then threw a grenade into her house. The subsequent explosion wounded her. The same soldier entered the house and fired into the room in which she lay. This gunfire did not hit her. Wounded but still in her house, "10" observed two Croat vehicles pull up disguised as UN vehicles (i.e. white with "UN" lettering). These vehicles carried Croat military forces. She heard instructions, translated between German and Croatian, to slaughter everything and leave nothing. She saw Croats killing her sheep and pigs. During her escape, she also saw Croats killing domestic animals, burning houses and stealing roof tiles. She eventually made her way to safety.

21. "11" lived between "B" and "A". He and his family escaped to the woods at the beginning of the attack. He fled with his rifle. From hiding, he returned to his house on 10 September. There he found all his possessions destroyed, his animals mostly dead or injured and his house burning. During the several days it took "11" to reach safety, he was shot at several times and eventually wounded. A neighbour accompanied "11" during most of the time.

22. "12", a resident of "B", also fled during the attack carrying his rifle. On 10 September, while still in the area, Croat soldiers discovered him and a friend. The Croats arrested both and ordered them to turn over their weapons. A Croat soldier then used his rifle to hit "12". "12" fled with the Croats trying unsuccessfully to shoot him. His friend apparently did not escape, not having been seen since. He spent the next several days hiding in various houses and in the forest in the area. During this time, he discovered Croats had taken the furniture and animals from his house. "12" observed the Croats stealing sheep, cows, and horses belonging to others. He was shot at by Croats twice and wounded in the leg on the second occasion.

23. "13", a resident of "A", fled the 9 September Croat attack. During his escape, he saw civilian Croats stealing cattle, including his own cows and calves.

24. "14" a resident of "A", escaped from her house on 9 September. During the several days she spent in the woods before she made her way to safety in Medak, she saw Croat soldiers burning houses and throwing grenades into houses. Other Croats fired upon her while she was walking to Medak.

25. "15" lived in "C". She entered the Pocket on 26 September to look for her sheep. While searching, she came across the body of a dead female, whose fingers were cut off.

26. Many witnesses report joining up with groups of fleeing Serb soldiers or mixed groups of fleeing Serb civilians and Serb soldiers.

27. Many male civilian residents of the area carried or fled with their rifles.

28. There are many witnesses available who, while not seeing any illegal activity by Croatian forces, can establish the general non-damaged nature of the area prior to the attack and the non-military use of most of the civilian houses.

29. Within several days of their attack, Croatian authorities showed a willingness to withdraw to their 8 September positions. Serb artillery attacks on Karlovac and a Serb missile attack on Zagreb may have prompted this willingness.

30. Negotiations took place, and the parties eventually agreed that the Croats would withdraw to their 8 September positions, and UN forces would occupy the territory vacated by the Croats. UN forces consisted of Canbat I, the Canadian battalion of the Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry. It was augmented by two companies of infantry from two separate French battalions. The Croat withdrawal and insertion of UN forces started on 15 September and were originally to be completed by 6:00 p.m., 16 September.

31. During the evening of 15 September, UN and Croat authorities held a meeting to iron out the implementing details of the original agreement.

32. As the UN forces began to deploy into the Pocket on 16 September, they could hear tens of explosions and see new smoke rising from Croat-controlled territory. There were no Serb forces in those areas nor had there been for many days. Such explosions and smoke had not been seen before 15 September. They also heard small arms fire from the same area. There are many witnesses to this including nearly all Canbat I personnel, UNMOs, UNCIVPOLs, UN civilian personnel, UN and Canadian Forces public affairs personnel and news reporters. All suspected that the Croats were engaged in ethnic cleansing of the Pocket before turning it over to the UN.

33. During the morning of 16 September, several more meetings took place between Croat and UN authorities. As a result, the time by which UN forces were to complete the takeover of territory evacuated by the Croats was delayed 24 hours until 17 September.

34. At noon, 16 September, Croat forces prevented Canbat I soldiers from crossing into the Pocket. This was a violation of the agreement. UN public affairs video and radio, plus Reuters news agency, videotaped this delay. Additionally, there were numerous witnesses to this delay. UN personnel felt the delay was a deliberate tactic used by the Croats to give them more time to complete their ethnic cleansing of the Pocket. UNPROFOR pressed the Croats, and after a delay of about two hours, they allowed UN forces to enter the Pocket.

35. The explosions and smoke from fresh fires continued to be evident from Croat-controlled parts of the Pocket throughout the Croat withdrawal. Again, there are many witnesses to this, including all UN personnel involved in the operation.

36. As UN forces entered the Pocket, they found every building burning or demolished. There were hundreds of such buildings in the several villages and hamlets, none of which were habitable. Special sweep teams assessed and recorded damage, searched for survivors and collected bodies. The teams included UNPROFOR medical officers, UNCIVPOLs, and soldiers.

37. On 16 September, in the Medak Pocket, "16" saw the crest of the Croat Ninth Mechanized Brigade (Ninth) on several Croat army trucks. He also saw the crest of the Croat 111th Home Defence (HD) Brigade (111th) on a Croat army truck.

38. "17" noted Croat soldiers with the shoulder flashes of the Ninth Brigade. On 16 September, he saw Croat police of the Special Police in the Medak area. He witnessed the explosions and fires that preceded the Croat withdrawal. He also saw the complete destruction throughout the Medak Pocket.

39. "18" heard the explosions and saw the fires within Croat-controlled territory on 16 September. He questioned a Croat liaison officer about these.

The Croat officer replied that maybe the Croats were destroying their own homes in the area. "18" also observed that the Croat troops within the territory did not react to the explosions as they would to incoming artillery.

He witnessed the total destruction and devastation throughout the area. He saw no house undemolished and took photographs of the damage.

40. Also on 16 September, "19" saw about 15 Croat Special Police at Drjlei in the Pocket. These Special Police appeared fresh, probably having recently arrived in the area.

41. During a 16 September meeting held at 10:00 a.m. an UNPROFOR officer specifically asked a Croatian officer to stop the explosions and fires in Croat-controlled territory. The Croatian officer clearly ordered to ensure his troops stopped those actions.

42. Two more representations to the same effect were made to the Croats that day. The Croats said that Croat soldiers were firing into the houses, but that Croat forces were causing the explosions by detonating mines to make the area safe.

43. On 17 September, after personally viewing the destruction in the Pocket, an UNPROFOR officer expressed his disappointment at this devastation to Croat officers. The Croats offered no explanation, but said they would again warn their troops.

44. Also on 17 September, during a dispute between UN forces and the Croatian Army on the exact proper location of their respective forces, an UNPROFOR officer met a Croatian officer in the Pocket. The Croatian officer had a map and was plainly in charge of the Croat forces. The map had been obviously and crudely altered, and it no longer represented the earlier agreed upon placement of various forces.

45. On 19 September, Croatian and UNPROFOR officers met and discussed the exact boundaries of the UN zone of responsibility in the Pocket.

46. On that same date, an UNPROFOR officer met Croatian officers. During this meeting, a Croatian officer threatened to have his Croat forces fire on UN forces, if he did not receive the cooperation he wanted.

47. On 22 September, a meeting was held to finalize the agreed upon positions of Croat and UN forces in the Medak Pocket. A Croatian officer signed a map depicting the agreed relative positions.

48. The Medak Pocket area falls within the area of responsibility of the Croat OZ Gospi~. Croat units involved were largely from OZ Gospi~. Some Special Police Forces from OZ Split were seen during the operation, but their role seemed to be secondary.

49. The nominal OZ Gospi~ Commander was a particular Croatian officer. However, during the relevant prelude to the attack and the attack itself, he was not in command due to his absence on leave and to illness. The actual OZ Commander was another officer.

50. The major Croat unit involved in the attack was the Ninth Mechanized Brigade (Ninth), which is unofficially called the "Wolves". It had been designated the 6th Mechanized Brigade until about July 1993. The Ninth was directly responsible to OZ Gospi~. Graffiti left on the walls of buildings in the Pocket by Croat forces included the "Ninth" and "Wolves".

51. The 111th also participated in the attack. Miscellaneous other Croat army units formed a minor part of the attacking forces.

52. The UN Military Information (MI) Branch (at UNPROFOR headquarters and elsewhere) compiles orders of battle (orbats) for all the protagonists in the former Yugoslavia.

53. UNPROFOR units sweep teams recovered 18 bodies in the Pocket in the immediate aftermath of the operation. Croat authorities turned over another 64 bodies they said they recovered in the Medak Pocket. These bodies were all given to the Serb authorities. Of all the bodies recovered, 59 (71 per cent) were probably those of soldiers and 23 (29 per cent) those of civilians. Among other factors complicating the determination of military status is that many civilians wear items of military clothing and many local military wear items of civilian clothing.

54. Serb authorities have identified most of the bodies. There are no reported witnesses to the deaths of any of the bodies identified.

55. Medical officers examined many of the 18 bodies recovered by UNPROFOR. The preliminary field examinations and the circumstances in which the bodies were found revealed:

(a) Some suspicious circumstances, e.g., two badly burned bodies were found in a concrete chicken coop that could have been used as a jail, spent casings found near bodies, one body tied up, etc.;

(b) Some bodies had injuries that might have occurred before death, e.g., broken legs, a broken neck, a smashed face;

(c) Some evidence of either pre-death torture or post-death mutilation, e.g., missing ears, eyes or fingers; and

(d) A perhaps higher portion of head and close range wounds than might be expected.

56. These examinations led a medical officer to place the times of death from 24 to over 96 hours before discovery of the bodies, with six having died after 14 September.

57. Serbian authorities had a doctor conduct an examination of the bodies turned over to them by the Croats and UNPROFOR. Only one full autopsy was done. UNCIVPOL describes the rest of the examinations as " cursory". After this, Serb authorities quickly turned over the bodies to relatives for burial.

58. The Serb authorities prepared a postmortem report and gave it to Major Holland. He passed it on to Dr. Robert Kirschner, an experienced pathologist with the independent group, Physicians for Human Rights. Dr. Kirschner's report states that regarding the bodies recovered by UNPROFOR, "there is insufficient evidence to document an execution style slaying". Of those bodies turned over to the Serbs by the Croats, "I could find no evidence to suggest a pattern of extra-judicial executions". His opinions regarding both groups cannot exclude some murders and admit some suspicious circumstances, but in summary the evidence is ambiguous.

59. Dr. Kirschner's further verbal opinion was that the earlier preliminary field examinations and those conducted by a Serbian doctor are not reliable. This unreliability results from the necessarily rudimentary conditions of the field examinations, e.g., the bodies could not be washed, no x-ray equipment was available, etc. Additionally, the medical personnel involved understandably lacked forensic experience.

60. The Croats claimed in an 11 October statement to the UN in Geneva that they did not violate the laws of war during the Medak battle. They specifically cited the cases of two elderly but apparently still feisty women killed during the attack. They said one was killed while operating anti-aircraft artillery and another blew herself up with a grenade to avoid capture.

61. Most Canbat I personnel entering the Pocket witnessed the total destruction involved. Many buildings were still on fire on 16 September. There may be others with equal experiences. A Canbat I photographer took 1,400 photographs recording the destruction and the 18 recovered bodies. Much of this activity was video recorded by Canbat I personnel.

62. Besides the destruction of buildings, all witnesses saw that most livestock was killed and most personal property, including vehicles and farm equipment, was destroyed. They noted that haystacks were set on fire, and wells were polluted. Croatian forces had discarded hundreds of surgical gloves throughout the area.

63. Canbat I personnel think the bulk of the destruction in the Pocket was done on 16 September.

64. The Canbat I reports state that firewood and other incendiary materials were seen being brought into the area by the Croats. Unfortunately, the report does not identify the specific witnesses to this.

65. UN civilian employees and UNCIVPOLs also witnessed the same destruction. A UNCIVPOL team member made sketches of most buildings and detailed damage assessments of over 100 representative buildings. These assessments confirm the total devastation in the Pocket.

66. The Canadian War Crimes Investigation Team (WCIT) visited the area from 27 to 31 October and on 10 November 1993. The WCIT consisted of Major Holland and Master Corporal T. McComb, both of the Canadian Forces. The team was accompanied by Dr. Kirschner. The team took video and still photographs, interviewed some witnesses and gathered further materials and reports. The team also obtained the 1,400 photographs taken by the Canbat I photographer and arranged and conducted the videotaped assessment by Major S. Laplante (a combat engineer in the Canadian Forces serving as UNPA Sector South Engineer) and Chief Warrant Officer Bastid (an explosive ordinance disposal expert in the French Army serving with UNPROFOR HQ Zagreb) of the damage to civilian buildings.

67. The examinations of the buildings by Major Laplante and Chief Warrant Officer Bastid reveal that the buildings were either set on fire and/or demolished by charges set inside the buildings. Artillery did not cause the damage nor did tank fire, mortar shells, rocket propelled grenades, nor aerial bombardment. Canbat I personnel believed that antitank mines were used to demolish those buildings not burned. However, neither of the above witnesses could be that certain of the type of explosives used.

68. Croat authorities say that the widespread destruction in the Medak Pocket was necessitated by the Serbs using the civilian homes for barracks and the storage of ammunition. What evidence there is of military use of the civilian accommodation is ambiguous or point to its military use by Croat forces. The type of garbage (Croat cigarettes, newspapers, etc.) and the direction the builders pointed the defensive positions (towards Serb controlled areas, etc.) support usage by Croat forces.

IV. ANALYSIS

69. The preceding reveals several potential broad categories of "serious violations of international humanitarian law"¹ or war crimes within the jurisdiction of the International Criminal Tribunal. These are:

(a) Murder ("willful killing"--Article 2(a), "murder"--Article 5(a), unlawful targeting of civilians causing their death being a general unlisted violation of the laws of war--Article 3);

(b) Torture ("torture or inhuman treatment"--Article 2(b), willfully causing great suffering or serious injury"--Article 2(c), "torture"--Article 5(f));

(c) Genocide by killing (Article 4(2)(a)) or by causing serious bodily . . . harm (Article 4(2)(b));

(d) Wanton destruction ("extensive destruction and appropriation of property, not justified by military necessity and carried out unlawfully and wantonly"--Article 2(d), "wanton destruction of . . . villages, or devastation not justified by military necessity"--Article 3(b)); and

(e) Plunder ("plunder of . . . private property"--Article 3(e)).

70. The war crimes have been analysed in a pragmatic narrow legal fashion. The analysis will seek to decide who specifically, if anyone, can be held criminally responsible for any given crime. Dealing with a war crime, no matter how horrendous or how clear, is in this analysis a fruitless exercise if specific legal responsibility cannot be attributed.

71. Such an analysis will deal with those directly responsible "who planned, instigated, ordered, committed or otherwise aided and abetted" the crime (Article 7(1)). Also dealt with will be indirect (command) responsibility, as referred to in Article 7(3), of a superior "if he knew or had reason to know that the subordinate was about to commit such acts or had done so and the superior failed to take the necessary and reasonable measures to prevent such acts or to punish the perpetrators thereof."

72. The analysis of direct criminal responsibility for any of the disclosed war crimes is very simple. At present, there is no evidence implicating any specific identifiable individual in the direct planning, instigation, ordering, commission, aiding or abetting of any of these crimes. Therefore, this analysis will concentrate on indirect, i.e., command responsibility.

73. Proof of command responsibility for war crimes will often be largely circumstantial. Absent capturing or obtaining written orders by the suspects or having the testimony of witnesses to the issuing of these orders, such responsibility can usually only be inferred. Inferences of such orders of a sufficiently reliable nature to satisfy a criminal tribunal can only be derived from clear and convincing patterns. Under the first head of criminal command responsibility, the patterns must be so strong that the only reasonable inference is that the suspect ordered the commission of the crimes. Under the second head of criminal command responsibility, the pattern must be so strong that the only reasonable inference is that the suspect knew of the crimes and failed to control or punish his offending subordinates or that the suspect criminally abandoned his command.

74. As mentioned, there is no evidence identifying any specific individuals with any crimes, including any of the murders. The only first-hand evidence of a murder is in the murder of the 83 year-old blind woman. However, even here, neither of the witnesses identified the responsible individuals beyond being "Croat soldiers". In any event, there are serious discrepancies between the two witnesses. "6" describes 20 soldiers, "7" describes 10. Furthermore, "6" describes a second woman with the victim, but "7" omits this.

75. The reliability of these witnesses, particularly "6", is questionable. "6" was 200 metres away. "7" was hiding to save her life and almost certainly greatly upset. Their opportunity to reliably observe is moot.

76. There is no convincing general pattern in the deaths occurring in the Pocket. It is suspicious that UN troops found virtually no survivors. It may also be suspicious that there were more head wounds and close-range injuries than might be expected. However, the majority (71%) of the located dead were military. Although not strictly comparable, this was a higher percentage of military casualties than the global figures in WWII, the Korean War, or the Vietnam War.

77. Despite the importance of the presence of surgical gloves stressed in the Canbat I report and elsewhere, their presence is ambiguous. The sinister explanation is a possible one. However, surgical gloves may have simply been ordinary precautions by the Croats to deal with the legitimate dead and wounded anticipated in any attack. The photographs of Canbat I personnel show them also using surgical gloves.

78. A prosecutor cannot use the postmortem examinations of the bodies, as they are unsatisfactory from several points of view. The initial examinations in the field were of necessity cursory, done without equipment and by doctors without forensic pathology qualifications.

79. Further, the examinations done by the Serb authorities were unsatisfactory. They were extremely undetailed and were conducted in an unprofessional atmosphere, i.e., the supervising judge's drunkenness and corruptness.

80. Thus, conclusions reached in the preceding examinations are unreliable. As earlier mentioned, an independent examination of what material remains (Dr. Kirschner's report) also fails to disclose any convincing pattern.

81. Care must be taken in relying upon local witnesses. They tend to be unreliable due to their extremely emotional attachment to their own community's cause and their demonization of the enemy. Witness "9" has given several versions of her experiences. While her versions are not inconsistent, they do not cover the same material, some of which it is surprising not to hear in all versions. Her testimony should be confirmed and carefully considered before presentation.

82. The irrationality of the parties to this conflict is shown by the absurd excuse given by the Croat authorities for the deaths of the two elderly women. They say one was killed while operating anti-aircraft artillery and another used a grenade to kill herself rather than face capture.

83. Therefore, any reliable prosecution should be based on objective evidence, objective witnesses, or clear patterns. One or even two local witnesses may be insufficiently reliable to obtain a conviction.

84. Yet, even using a stringent standard, it is obvious from the many witnesses' experiences that Croatian forces fired on fleeing civilians, killing some. However, this action cannot be proved to be illegal.

85. Many civilians were fleeing in the company of retreating Serb soldiers, armed Serb civilians or were themselves armed. Thus, the actions of many Croat soldiers were possibly lawful and, at least, ambiguous. Much of the firing was at night. They may have believed they were firing on retreating non-surrendering enemy forces, which remain lawful targets. The law of war does not impose a standard of perfection on soldiers. It accepts that unfortunately civilians near military objectives may be incidentally killed without necessarily breaching the law of war. The inherent ambiguities surrounding this aspect of the Medak Pocket Operation make building a prosecution for unlawful targeting of civilians difficult. The evidence is not sufficiently reliable or clear to obtain a conviction.

86. There is even a hint of contradictory evidence. The sparing of the Serb soldier, as related to "1" is some, albeit second hand, evidence that either there was no express policy to kill everyone, or at least any such policy was not strictly observed. Additionally, the witnesses naturally would not be aware of the possibly many times they were not fired upon by Croat forces.

87. All this being said, some dead were probably murdered. However, no individual can be proved to be directly responsible. Further, there is no strong unambiguous pattern of willful killing emerging from the evidence available to this point. Without such a pattern, it is impossible to affix criminal responsibility upon the Croat commanders.

"Clearly, assignment to command military troops is accompanied by broad authority and heavy responsibility. This has been true of all armies throughout recorded history. It is absurd, however, to consider a commander a murderer or rapist because one of his soldiers commits a murder or a rape."²

What is required is something "extensive and widespread". No such pattern emerges from the evidence. Many commentators have criticized the General Yamashita prosecution, which was, at least, an aggressive use of the doctrine of command responsibility. Even at that, the prosecutors of General Yamashita could point to tens of thousands, if not hundreds of thousands, of victims with 286 witnesses and 423 exhibits.

88. Unlike the deaths arising from the Medak Pocket Operation, there is a clear, obvious and overwhelming pattern of wanton destruction. Hundreds of homes were destroyed, virtually hundreds of other buildings were destroyed, most animals were killed or taken, virtually all personal property was destroyed or taken, all vehicles and farm equipment were destroyed or taken, haystacks were fired, and many wells were polluted. Devastation was total.

89. The timing of the destruction is inconsistent with any legitimate military conduct or of military necessity. The bulk of this destruction occurred on 16 September, according to the many eyewitnesses. The sounds of the explosions, the rising of the smoke from fires, and the fact many buildings were still on fire as UN personnel entered the Pocket establish this.

90. The destruction occurred well after all Serb resistance had ended. There was no Serb resistance in the areas from which the explosions were heard and the rising smoke seen. All effective Serb forces had fled the area at the time of the bulk of the destruction. The devastation was wrought in an unopposed withdrawal, not a contested advance or retreat. Even the Croat liaison officer was forced to use an excuse not involving legitimate combat activity by the opposing forces. The scattered nature of the buildings, with the brief and desultory original Serb defence, does not explain this level of destruction.

91. The widespread destruction by demolition and fire is also generally inconsistent with legitimate military operations. If buildings are contested, then demolition charges cannot usually be placed inside them. Similarly, absent incendiary weapons, of which there is no evidence, being able to set fire to buildings implies an ability to approach and control them. That is inconsistent with enemy forces being present in them.

92. Various contradictory excuses given by the Croats for the destruction suggest the lack of any legitimate excuse for such widespread destruction.

93. The reports, if confirmed, of incendiary materials being brought into the Medak Pocket by the Croats is some evidence of planning. However, this evidence is ambiguous. Obviously lumber and even timber can be used to construct defensive positions as well as be used to burn buildings.

94. The Canbat I report states that any antitank mines used in demolitions would have been centrally controlled. This indicates that their use to destroy civilian objects would have required high level approval. Such control is usual in a regular well-run military. However, there is evidence that this is not always the case with the forces involved in this conflict. Some minefields in Sector South have overlapped, indicating a lack of such central control. Additionally, all the forces display large measures of ill-discipline, lack of control, and disorganization.

95. There are at least two defences to this charge offered or available to the responsible Croat authorities. A Croat press release said that the level of destruction in the Pocket was required by the Serbs use of civilian buildings as barracks and for ammunition storage. This is clearly an inept excuse. The timing of the destruction, being after Serb resistance ended, argues against it. The extent of the destruction also argues against this excuse. If every destroyed building had contained Serb soldiers and ammunition, the Croats would never have captured the Pocket. Destruction by fire and demolition, as opposed to conventional military assault, also suggests this Croat excuse is invalid.

96. Although not yet raised by the Croats, the second possible excuse is that this destruction was a legitimate use of a "scorched earth" policy. However, pointing out that this excuse was not what the Croats themselves have claimed demolishes it. They chose to rely on the use of these buildings for military purposes by the Serbs.

97. Further, this area was not being turned over or being re-occupied by enemy forces. The UN was taking control of it to the exclusion of the Serb military.

98. Lastly, as a party to the 1977 Protocols to the Geneva Conventions, Croatia is bound by Part IV, Section I of Protocol I. That treaty prohibits this tactic even if the Croats could otherwise claim they were entitled to lay waste to their own territory as a legitimate defensive tactic.

99. It is not practical to prosecute anyone for any torture committed during the Medak Pocket Operation. First, it is not clear anyone was tortured. In each instance of suspected torture, it is possible the body was subjected to post-death mutilation and not pre-death torture. However, mutilation of bodies is itself a conventional war crime. It is not specifically covered in Article 3, but it is perhaps within its general ambit. The determination of this question turns on whether mutilation of corpses is a "serious violation of international humanitarian law" (Article 1).

100. Second, as with the suspected murders, no specific individual can be identified as involved in any torture or mutilation. Again, assuming torture or mutilation could be proved, the few cases do not form any convincing pattern that could then be attributed to commanders.

101. A particular Croatian officer was clearly in charge of the operation for the Croat forces. The evidence is clear and convincing that he was responsible.

102. The thoroughness of the destruction, the open nature of the methods used (the explosions could be heard and the smoke seen by all), the orders overheard by civilian survivors, the inherent control a commander must or should have, and the express concerns raised by all overwhelmingly point to his responsibility. He, by his actions and by attending at various meetings, was clearly the responsible OZ Commander.

103. Widespread use of roadblocks by all parties in the conflict, particularly near front lines, means that the responsible commanders would or should know about any large-scale movements of personnel or goods entering or leaving an area of operations. Therefore, the commanders either did know or should have known about demolition or incendiary materials entering the Pocket and plundered goods leaving.

104. Can responsibility be found above that officer? Another officer was clearly in charge of the withdrawal of the Croat forces. However, he was only sent from the Zagreb general staff on about 15 September to oversee the withdrawal. The Croats saw the withdrawal as extremely sensitive, requiring a high level of supervision. His responsibility is therefore problematic due to his limited time in the area.

105. There is no direct evidence of the commander of the Ninth's role in the wanton destruction. However, based solely on the orbat information, a prima facie case can be made. As the commander of the major unit involved, he is responsible for the destruction inflicted in the Pocket, which must have involved his unit. Graffiti in some of the destroyed buildings implicate the Ninth.

106. The OZ Commander was replaced shortly after this battle. This, plus his reported Albanian ethnic background, suggests that the Croatian authorities are perhaps more likely to turn him over to the International Criminal Tribunal than another officer of Croat background and in more political favour.

V. RECOMMENDATIONS

107. It is recommended that two Croatian officers be charged with the following war crimes, respectively:

(a) A grave breach of the Geneva Conventions of 12 August 1949, being the extensive destruction and appropriation of property protected under the provisions of the relevant Geneva Convention, such destruction and appropriation not being justified by military necessity and carried out unlawfully and wantonly contrary to Article 2(d);

(b) A violation of the laws or customs of war, being the wanton destruction of villages or devastation not justified by military necessity contrary to Article 3(b); and

(c) A violation of the laws or customs of war, being plunder of private property contrary to Article 3(e).

The charges involve the wanton destruction and plunder which occurred during the Medak Pocket Operation. While the case against one officer is stronger than that against the other, it is believed that there is also a prima facie case against the second officer.

108. It is also recommended that no one be charged with any murder (murder, killing, unlawful targeting of civilians or genocide related deaths), torture or mutilation occurring during the operation. No one has been identified as being directly responsible for such crimes. There are some suspicious circumstances and even some probable murders. However, no convincing pattern can be proved such that a commander can be held indirectly criminally responsible using the doctrine of command responsibility.

Notes

1/ From the Statute of the International Criminal Tribunal (Statute) Article 1. All further references to articles are to those in the Statute, unless stated otherwise. It is interesting that virtually all these provisions are echoed in the Yugoslav constitution.

2/ "Trial of General Yamashita", 4 Law Reports of Trials of War Criminals 35.

Security Council

Distr.
GENERAL

S/1994/674/Add.2 (Vol. IV)
27 May 1994

ENGLISH ONLY

LETTER DATED 24 MAY 1994 FROM THE SECRETARY-GENERAL TO THE PRESIDENT OF THE SECURITY COUNCIL

Addendum

ANNEXES TO THE FINAL REPORT OF THE COMMISSION OF EXPERTS ESTABLISHED PURSUANT TO SECURITY COUNCIL RESOLUTION 780 (1992)

VOLUME IV - ANNEX VIII

Security Council

Distr.
GENERAL

S/1994/674/Add.2 (Vol. IV)
27 May 1994

ORIGINAL: ENGLISH

FINAL REPORT OF THE UNITED NATIONS COMMISSION OF EXPERTS
ESTABLISHED PURSUANT TO
SECURITY COUNCIL RESOLUTION 780 (1992)

ANNEX VIII PRISON CAMPS

Under the Direction of:

M. Cherif Bassiouni
Chairman and Rapporteur on the Gathering
and Analysis of the Facts, Commission of Experts
Established Pursuant to Security Council Resolution 780 (1992)

Principal Legal Analyst:

Eric J. Krauss, IHRLI Staff Attorney
William B. Schiller, IHRLI Director of Research

Contributors:

Patsy Campbell, IHRLI Staff Attorney
Mirande Dupuy, IHRLI Staff Analyst
Richard R. Danis, Jr., IHRLI Staff Attorney
Georgann M. Grabiec, IHRLI Staff Attorney
Christine Matthews, IHRLI Staff Analyst
Marcia L. McCormick, IHRLI Staff Attorney
Suzan Ozturk, IHRLI Staff Attorney
John Stompor, IHRLI Staff Analyst
Stacey White, IHRLI Staff Analyst

and

The Staff of the International Human Rights
Law Institute, DePaul University

CONTENTS

	Paragraphs	Page
I. INTRODUCTION	1 - 3	8
II. SUMMARY AND ANALYSIS	4 - 250	8
A. Methodology	4 - 7	8
B. Observations	8 - 26	9
C. Camps reported in BiH	27	11
1. Bosnian Serb controlled camps	28 - 58	11
2. BiH and Croat controlled camps	59 - 71	15
3. Reported Camps by location	72 - 163	17
D. Camps reported in Croatia	164 - 165	25
1. Croat controlled camps	167 - 174	25
2. Serb controlled camps	175 - 181	26
3. Reported camps by location	182 - 228	26
E. Camps reported in FRY	229	30
1. Serb/FRY controlled camps	230 - 239	30
2. Reported camps by location	240 - 245	31
F. Camps reported in Slovenia	246 - 249	32
1. Reported camps in Slovenia	250	32
III. ANALYSIS BY GEOGRAPHICAL LOCATION	251 - 3760	33
A. BiH	251 - 2912	33
1. Banja Luka	251 - 436	33
2. Bihać	437 - 461	58
3. Bijeljina	462 - 507	61
4. Bileća	508 - 562	67
5. Bosanska Dubica	563 - 569	72
6. Bosanska Gradiška	570 - 587	73
7. Bosanska Krupa	588 - 604	75
8. Bosanski Brod	605 - 628	77
9. Bosanski Novi	629 - 647	79

CONTENTS (continued)

	Paragraphs	Page
10. Bosanski Petrovac	648 - 658	82
11. Bosanski Šamac	659 - 693	83
12. Bratunac	694 - 710	86
13. Brčko	711 - 865	88
14. Breza	866 - 877	107
15. Bugojno	878 - 896	108
16. Busovača	897 - 901	111
17. Čajniče	902 - 910	111
18. Čapljina	911 - 942	113
19. Cazin	943 - 947	117
20. Čelinac	948 - 959	117
21. Čitluk	960 - 962	119
22. Derventa	963 - 974	119
23. Doboј	975 - 1020	120
24. Donji Vakuf	1021 - 1034	125
25. Foča	1035 - 1109	126
26. Fojnica	1110 - 1115	136
27. Gacko	1116 - 1153	136
28. Glamoč	1154 - 1156	142
29. Goražde	1157 - 1161	143
30. Gornji Vakuf	1162 - 1171	143
31. Gradačac	1172 - 1179	144
32. Grude	1180 - 1183	145
33. Han Pijesak	1184 - 1185	145
34. Jablanica	1186 - 1195	146
35. Jajce	1196 - 1199	147
36. Kakanj	1200 - 1203	147
37. Kalesija	1204 - 1209	148

CONTENTS (continued)

	Paragraphs	Page
38. Kalinovik	1210 - 1227	148
39. Kiseljak	1228 - 1237	151
40. Kladanj	1238 - 1241	152
41. Ključ	1242 - 1258	152
42. Konjic	1259 - 1335	154
43. Kotor Varoš	1336 - 1366	164
44. Kreševo	1367 - 1370	167
45. Kupres	1371 - 1372	168
46. Laktaši	1373 - 1375	168
47. Lištica	1376 - 1377	168
48. Livno	1378 - 1395	168
49. Ljubinje	1396 - 1397	170
50. Ljubuški	1398 - 1405	171
51. Lopare	1406 - 1409	172
52. Lukavac	1410 - 1411	172
53. Maglaj	1412 - 1414	172
54. Modriča	1415 - 1425	173
55. Mostar	1426 - 1467	173
56. Mrkonjić Grad	1468 - 1473	179
57. Nevesinje	1474 - 1477	180
58. Odžak	1478 - 1506	180
59. Olovo	1507 - 1508	183
60. Orašje	1509 - 1527	183
61. Posušje	1528 - 1529	185
62. Prijedor	1530 - 2255	185
63. Prnjavor	2256 - 2258	187
64. Prozor	2259 - 2275	188
65. Rogatica	2276 - 2328	269

CONTENTS (continued)

	Paragraphs	Page
66. Rudo	2329 - 2335	276
67. Sanski Most.	2336 - 2377	276
68. Sarajevo	2378 - 2521	281
69. Šekovi•i	2522 - 2526	303
70. Šipovo	2527 - 2530	304
71. Skender Vakuf	2531 - 2533	304
72. Sokolac	2534 - 2542	305
73. Srebrenica	2543 - 2545	306
74. Stolac	2546 - 2549	306
75. Tešanj	2550 - 2554	307
76. Teslić	2555 - 2574	307
77. Titov Drvar	2575 - 2582	310
78. Tomislavgrad	2583 - 2606	311
79. Travnik	2607 - 2612	313
80. Trebinje	2613 - 2615	314
81. Tuzla	2616 - 2643	315
82. Ugljevik	2644 - 2646	318
83. Vareš	2647 - 2655	319
84. Velika Kladuša	2656 - 2657	320
85. Višegrad	2658 - 2717	320
86. Visoko	2718 - 2732	321
87. Vitez	2733 - 2744	328
88. Vlasenica	2745 - 2807	330
89. Zenica	2808 - 2840	336
90. Žepče	2841 - 2846	341
91. Zvornik	2847 - 2912	341
B. Croatia	2913 - 3393	349
1. Beli Manastir.	2913 - 2920	349

CONTENTS (continued)

Paragraphs Page

2.	Benkovac	2921 - 2927	351
3.	Bjelovar	2928 - 2941	351
4.	Daruvar	2942 - 2956	353
5.	Djakovo	2957 - 2959	355
6.	Drniš	2960 - 2968	356
7.	Dubrovnik	2969 - 2970	357
8.	Dvor	2971 - 2978	357
9.	Glina	2979 - 3002	358
10.	Gospić	3003 - 3012	361
11.	Gračac	3013 - 3014	362
12.	Grubišno Polje	3015 - 3018	362
13.	Imotski	3019 - 3020	363
14.	Ivanec	3021 - 3022	363
15.	Karlovac	3023 - 3025	363
16.	Knin	3026 - 3049	364
17.	Korenica	3050 - 3065	367
18.	Kostajnica	3066 - 3074	368
19.	Kutina	3075 - 3076	370
20.	Metković	3077 - 3086	370
21.	Našice	3087 - 3089	371
22.	Nova Gradiška	3090 - 3110	371
23.	Novska	3111 - 3112	375
24.	Ogulin	3113 - 3125	375
25.	Osijek	3126 - 3140	377
26.	Otočac	3141 - 3142	379
27.	Pakrac	3143 - 3164	379
28.	Petrinja	3165 - 3170	382
29.	Podravska Slatina	3171 - 3173	382

CONTENTS (continued)

Paragraphs Page

	30.	Pula	3174 - 3175	383
	31.	Rijeka	3176 - 3179	383
	32.	Šibenik	3180 - 3187	384
	33.	Sinj	3188 - 3189	385
	34.	Sisak	3190 - 3196	385
	35.	Slavonska Požega	3197 - 3207	386
	36.	Slavonski Brod	3208 - 3235	387
	37.	Slunj	3236 - 3241	390
	38.	Split	3242 - 3258	391
	39.	Vinkovci	3259 - 3261	393
	40.	Varaždin	3262 - 3263	394
	41.	Vojnić	3264 - 3267	394
	42.	Vrbovec	3268 - 3269	394
	43.	Vrginmost	3270 - 3271	395
	44.	Vukovar	3272 - 3361	395
	45.	Zadar	3362 - 3369	406
	46.	Zagreb	3370 - 3393	408
C.	FRY		3394 - 3746	410
	1.	Kosovo	3394	410
	2.	Montenegro	3395 - 3405	411
	3.	Serbia	3406 - 3463	412
	4.	Vojvodina	3464 - 3745	419
	5.	ICRC visited camps	3746	455
D.	Slovenia		3747 - 3761	455
	1.	Unknown	3761	457

I. INTRODUCTION

1. This report on detention facilities, attempts to identify and provide relevant information concerning all alleged detention facilities (camps) within the territory of the former Yugoslavia. This study is not designed to classify detention sites based on their prosecutorial potential, but is intended to provide a description and analysis of the detention facilities reported to have existed.

2. The report is divided into two sections. The first section is the summary and analysis. The summary and analysis discusses the methodology of the report and provides the total number of reported detention facilities in the territory of the former Yugoslavia. The total number of detention facilities is also broken down by geographic region. In addition, the summary and analysis discusses patterns, trends and commonalities which have manifested themselves in the various reports of detention facilities.

3. The analysis by geographic location in Section II below, divides detention facilities by their location, i.e, whether they were located in Bosnia and Herzegovina (BiH), Croatia, the Federal Republic of Yugoslavia (FRY), or Slovenia. Within those locations, it further breaks down reported facilities by the county or region in which they were located. The 1991 population and ethnic distribution figures are also provided for each county or region, as well as other background information.

II. SUMMARY AND ANALYSIS

A. Methodology

4. To analyse the contents of the database for this report, all documents in the International Human Rights Law Institute (IHRLI) documentation centre were first reviewed to identify those reports containing allegations of detention facilities within the territory of the former Yugoslavia. After initial review, the documents were organized geographically by county or region and then analysed. Relevant information pertaining to alleged detention facilities was then gleaned, and individual geographic reports were thereafter prepared, containing information, wherever available, identifying: 1) the name, location, dates of operation, and physical description of alleged detention facilities; 2) information concerning command and control, including the identities and ethnicity of commanders and guards, and any other groups or individuals reported to be involved in the camp operation; 3) information pertaining to prisoners, including their ethnicity, civilian or military status, subsequent transfers, and total reported prisoner population; 4) the treatment of prisoners, including, maltreatment or good treatment, food, hygiene, toilet and medical facilities, sleeping accommodations, and other conditions.

5. The main criterion for determining whether a site would be deemed a detention facility for purposes of this report, depended mainly upon whether persons were alleged to have been held against their will, and whether the detention site appeared to have been established as a result of the armed conflict between the warring factions identified.

6. In some instances, the existence of certain detention facilities were well documented and independent sources corroborated reports of those alleged facilities. In other instances, only uncorroborated claims or corroborated reports by non-neutral sources were received. Those claims were included in the report and are indicated as such.

7. It is significant to note that a wide variety of sources were utilized in this report. It should also be noted that the Commission had no basis to confirm the information contained in that source material. To make a qualitative assessment of the information contained in this report, efforts were therefore made to confirm or corroborate allegations of camps wherever possible. To this effect, it is indicated in each camp report whether: 1) the existence of the detention facility was corroborated by multiple neutral sources; 2) the existence of the detention facility had been corroborated by a neutral source; 3) whether the existence of the detention facility had been corroborated by multiple sources, none of which were neutral; or 4) whether the existence of the detention facility had not been corroborated by multiple sources.

B. Observations

8. Since the armed conflict in Slovenia in June 1991, the warring factions have operated a variety of detention facilities (camps). It appears that as the situation in the former Yugoslavia disintegrated and war erupted, detention facilities came into existence in increasing numbers. A large number of camps came into existence in Croatia after the beginning of hostilities in September 1991. The greatest number of camps came into existence in BiH in the period after April 1992. It appears that many of the camps appearing in this report are now closed.

9. The reports reviewed allege a total of 960 reported places of detention in the territory of the former Yugoslavia. Of those 960 alleged places of detention, 466 (48.5 per cent) were reportedly operated by Bosnian Serbs or forces of FRY; 121 (12.6 per cent) by Bosnian Croats or the Government of Croatia and the Croatian Army; 84 (8.8 per cent) by the Government and Army of BiH or Bosnian Muslims; 32 (3.3 per cent) jointly by Bosnian Muslims and Bosnian Croats; 9 (.9 per cent) as private prisons, individuals or groups; 4 (.4 per cent) by the Government or armed forces of Slovenia; and 244 (25.4 per cent) by unidentified forces.

10. As the above statistics and following discussion indicate, the number of camps and reported violations in camps controlled by the Government of BiH and its army are the fewest among the warring factions, irrespective of the ethnic or religious background of the detainees held. The number of reported violations by the Croatian Government, the Croatian Army, and the Croatian Defence Council is larger, particularly against Serbs in Krajina and in eastern and western Slavonia and against Muslims from BiH in Herzegovina. The period of time during which those camps were operated in each of these contexts is relatively limited. The two warring factions identified above are, however, reported to have committed far fewer numbers of violations than those committed by the Serb forces and those working on their behalf, whether in Croatia or BiH. Camps operated by Serbs in BiH are by far where the largest numbers of detainees have been held and where the harshest and largest number of violations occurred.

11. The information concerning the number of prisoners includes a wide range of estimates. It appears that none of the detaining powers involved in the conflict made a concerted effort to identify and maintain records of the number of individuals they detained. If they have done so, such information was not made available.

12. The camps reported range in size from small detention and screening centres that temporarily housed a few prisoners, to camps that housed large numbers of prisoners. The duration of their operation varied from days to months. The vast majority of places used to detain prisoners were pre-existing structures, such as penitentiaries, municipal buildings, administrative offices, schools, sports arenas, factories, warehouses, mines, farms and private homes, hotels, restaurants, and apartments. In a very few examples, camps were reported to have been newly constructed for the purpose of detaining prisoners.

13. Due to a lack of information, it was generally very difficult to determine the command and control in the camps. The information, when available, was usually limited to individual camps at a very immediate and local level. The extent to which superior or central authorities had control in the operation of camps was usually unknown.

14. Some reports describe a situation whereby camps were maintained and operated by a mix of military personnel, former army officers and soldiers, various paramilitaries, local volunteers, members of civilian police forces, or politicians. There were also many reports of situations where there was movement in and out of camps by visitors, including local civilians, paramilitary forces, and the army, who perpetrated abuses upon the prison population.

15. Most detainees appeared not to be prisoners of war, but, rather, civilians. POWs and civilian prisoners were detained together, and prisoners from the conflict were sometimes mixed in with the common criminal population of a penitentiary. Often, civilians were arrested and detained for the purpose of collecting prisoners for exchange.

16. There is little to suggest a legitimate purpose for the internment of so many non-combatant civilians by the various authorities and forces concerned.

There is much to suggest that such internment was wholly illegitimate and intended to serve the geopolitical and military objectives of the detaining powers.

17. The parties to the conflict acknowledged and agreed on a number of occasions to the valid effect of those aspects of international humanitarian law relating to the treatment of prisoners of war, civilians and others detained by the parties to the conflict.

18. Under the law of armed conflict, prisoners of war are considered to be in the hands of the detaining power. The detaining power, therefore, is responsible for the treatment given prisoners of war irrespective of the individual responsibilities that may exist. The same holds true for the treatment of civilians detained.

19. It appears that little or no effort was made by any of the detaining powers to provide the judicial or administrative bodies required by law to identify, record, and determine the status of prisoners of war and internees.

20. Parties to the conflict appear to have considered the detention of those thought to be potentially capable of fighting as a legitimate activity. There are many instances of detention apparently based upon the suspicion of hostile activity against the detaining power.

21. Prisoners were commonly subjected to the most inhumane treatment imaginable. Mass executions, torture, rape, and other sexual assaults were frequently reported. Those in control of the apprehension and detention of prisoners were often reported to have stolen prisoner belongings. Guards and soldiers frequently humiliated those detained. Sometimes prisoners were placed in dangerous situations and used in military operations, such as mine clearing. There were also reports of reprisal killings carried out upon innocents detained in a number of camps.

22. The ethno-religious aspects of the conflict appear to have translated directly into prisoners suffering actively adverse distinctions based on nationality, religious belief, and political opinions.

23. The patterns and violations in the camps appear to differ to some extent, depending on the controlling authority, the purpose of the camp, and the camp commander.

24. The conditions in most camps were generally described as very poor. The camps commonly lacked sufficient heat, light, food, and water. Lack of hygiene was pervasive. Little or no medical attention was prevalent and a total lack of security for the prisoners was apparent. In fact, it was reported that those in control of camps often allowed drunk soldiers and others access to abuse the prison population.

25. Wounded and sick prisoners were often maltreated and/or left to suffer, although many wounded and sick prisoners were treated to some extent.

26. The following section of this summary and analysis is divided by location, and contains various observations relating to certain patterns and commonalities in the detention facilities reported. For a more detailed breakdown of individual regions and camps, see Section II below, which contains a geographical listing and full analyses of the individual detention facilities reported.

C. Camps reported in BiH

27. The reports reviewed alleged a total of 677 camps within BiH. Among those camps, 333 (49.2 per cent) were alleged to have been controlled by Bosnian Serbs; 83 (12.2 per cent) by Bosnian Muslims; 51 (7.5 per cent), by Croats; 31 (4.6 per cent) by both Croats and Muslims; 5 (.7 per cent), by private parties; and 174 (25.7 per cent) by unidentified forces.

1. Bosnian Serb controlled camps

28. The reports indicate that Bosnian Serbs operated numerous camps where grave breaches of the Geneva Conventions and other violations of international humanitarian law, including killing, torture, and rape occurred on a large scale. Those camps were mostly in BiH and predominantly held Bosnian Muslims, but also Bosnian Croats and a small number of Serbs.

29. The reports indicate that Bosnian Serbs used camps in BiH to facilitate territorial and political control of geographic regions and to expel and eliminate other ethnic and religious populations from that area. In essence, the Bosnian Serb forces, including former Yugoslav National Army (JNA) officers and soldiers, paramilitary units, police forces, civilians, and the political leadership of the Serbs of BiH, apparently with a significant degree of participation by and cooperation with the Serbs and Montenegrins of FRY, incorporated and exploited the detention of civilians as an integral aspect of their campaign of "ethnic cleansing". While armed, uniformed soldiers of the forces opposed to the Serbs were incarcerated in significant numbers, the vast majority of those imprisoned by Serbs in BiH appear to have been civilians.

30. Groups of camps appear to have been established and operated in clusters in various geographical areas and were frequently part of a network. Prisoners were frequently moved from one facility to another. Different facilities often appeared to have separate purposes, such as mass killing, torture, rape, and exchange of and detention of civilian prisoners.

31. The Bosnian Serb implementation of practically identical strategies and tactics for the conquest of territories and subsequent detention of non-Serb populations suggest an overall plan devised prior to the conflict and carried out locally. There seems to be a similarity in the structure of camps which might suggest a degree of pre-planning before the war was started. The notion of clusters of camps, triage camps, distribution camps, older persons and women and children held in established minimum security facilities, and men of fighting age held in established maximum security facilities, suggests such a plan. The similarities of the allegations of camp usage also strongly suggests that a plan did exist and was carried out across the board geographically. Reports suggest a common method of initial apprehension and identification of those non-Serbs detained for ultimate disposition (either long-term detention, deportation, or execution). A common plan is also suggested by the implementation of a system whereby prisoners were detained, classified, and subjected to similar types of abuse (e.g., it was often reported that intellectuals, politicians, police, and the wealthy were regularly tortured and killed in certain camps). There is also a similarity in the command and control of the camps, whereby there was a mix of civilian, political, JNA, paramilitary, and local Serb reservists and civilians involved in camp operations. With regard to practical aspects of camp operation, large suitable facilities appear to have been selected and prepared, to some extent, in advance. Whether a plan was established by the military, police, or politicians, is something that could not be ascertained.

32. The method by which the campaign of "ethnic cleansing" was carried out ensured that, comparatively, the most brutal and inhumane treatment of those detained occurred within the geographic arc following the Sava and Drina Rivers of the former Yugoslavia. See examples, camps in Prijedor, Višegrad, Zvornik, Brčko and Foča, and Bijeljina. For, it is within this region of BiH that the Serbs required absolute control in order to establish a separate nation with contiguous borders and an uncompromised geographic link with Serbia and Montenegro. That control required the subjugation, if not the disappearance of the non-Serb populations of the area. In large part, that subjugation and elimination was accomplished by wholesale detention of those populations in various places of detention.

33. Commonly, Serb forces reduced the opposition of a county area and upon conquest of the territory of that BiH county (opština) immediately began to round up the non-Serb population. It sometimes occurred that the entire population of a town or village was gathered together so that the Serb and non-Serb populations could be separated and dealt with accordingly. During the rounding-up process, members of the population were frequently tortured, raped, and killed. Sometimes, the local population would be interned in different locations. Other times, after an initial round of apprehension, non-Serbs would be released and weeks later re-apprehended and placed in various camps to be either killed or moved out of the area.

34. Frequently, the religious, political, civic, professional, and business leaders of the non-Serb population were immediately identified for detention and for the worst abuses. Often on the captors' side, local civil servants, political leaders, and particularly the police, participated or were involved in the rounding-up process. Prisoners were also often forced to surrender their money and valuables to their captors.

35. It was often reported that men between the ages of 18 and 60 were separated from women, children, and elderly men. Apparently, men between the ages of 18 (or younger) and 60 were considered to be of fighting age, constituting a class of quasi-prisoners of war or perhaps legitimate internees because of their potential for hostility. However, rarely did reports include any information to suggest that those considered capable of fighting had ever actually committed hostile acts or had organized to do so. In fact, many Muslim villagers simply surrendered the weapons they had upon an initial demand by the Serb forces in the region. After that surrender, the villagers were in many cases detained. The reports indicate that in many instances, men between the ages of 18 and 60, were ultimately transferred to heavily guarded larger camps where killings or torture were prevalent.

36. A large number of Bosnian Serb places of detention appear to have been used as short term detention facilities before transfer or transport of prisoners out of the area.

37. Smaller camps, in many cases, housed prisoners temporarily until the captors divided the prisoners into groups and transported them to the larger camps. The prisoners were often packed into buses, trains, and lorries, and were subjected to physical and mental abuse. During transport, and upon arrival at their new camps, prisoners were also reported to have been killed at random and denied food, water, and access to toilet facilities. The prisoners were on occasion transported by automobile to camps by locals, or were marched under armed guard.

38. Detainees were sometimes transported from camps within a given region to camps in another region because of overcrowding, anticipated International Committee of the Red Cross (ICRC) inspections, visits by the media, exchange of prisoners, and as a result of triage for unlawful purposes.

39. Very few camps appear to have been actually constructed for the purpose of detaining captured prisoners or interning the civilian population. The vast majority of the sites used for detention were pre-existing facilities. Some of those facilities were modified in order to create more secure camps. For example, electric and barbed-wire fences were sometimes reported to have been installed around a number of buildings.

40. Bosnian Serbs were also reported to have maintained Muslim "ghettos" in certain towns and sometimes used villages as camps to detain a large group of captives. See examples, Trnopolje camp in Prijedor, Es Naselje in Brčko, and Brezovo Polje in Brčko.

41. There is little to suggest that captured uniformed combatants were treated with the respect required by the law of armed conflict. Those prisoners who had in fact committed hostile acts against the Serbs were frequently punished. The punishments included severe mental and physical abuse and often execution.

42. Those women and children detained were also subjected to the worst kinds of abuse, including rape and other sexual assaults. ^{1/} There are reports of many detention facilities in existence for the sole purpose of holding women and girls for rape and sexual entertainment. There are also numerous allegations of rape at camps wherever women and girls were held. Captors reportedly raped female prisoners in front of other prisoners. Those who resisted, were often reportedly killed or otherwise brutalized, often in the presence of others. There were also reports of the sexual abuse of men, as well as castration and mutilation of sex organs.

43. Elderly persons detained often suffered the same level of abuse as the others. This indicates that the captors spared no group from detention and maltreatment.

44. There were reports that certain individuals were spared detention and abuse, because of the intervention of influential Serbs in the area or because they were somehow able to bribe their way out of detention. There were also instances of local Serbs risking their own lives to help Muslims and Croats escape detention in various Serb camps in BiH.

45. There were also reports of Serbs who were detained in Serb-controlled facilities. In those cases, the prisoners had usually refused to participate in the conquest of a region or in the activities of "ethnic cleansing". Those imprisoned Serbs were treated as poorly as the other prisoners.

46. A large number of the Bosnian Serb-controlled camps appear to have served as screening stations for the purposes of interrogation and decisions as to how individual prisoners would be disposed of. Interrogation almost always consisted of questions relating to military and strategic information (including the location and possession of weapons), political affiliation, and political belief. Captors also interrogated detainees concerning the personal wealth and family connections of other detainees. Interrogations were commonly accompanied by brutal conduct and humiliation and, in some cases, by torture and killing. Confessions were often forcibly extracted from prisoners and used as a reason for their detention and treatment. The forced confessions on many occasions described some sort of offence or hostile act.

47. Reports indicate that upon arrival at the larger camps, prisoners were regularly subjected to random beatings. Reprisals appear to have been carried out against the prisoner population for Bosnian Serb setbacks in battle. Such reprisal activities included beatings, severe torture and killings. Apparently, one motivation for the punishment of inmates was retribution for supposed Serb casualties suffered in battle.

48. The type and amount of torture, abuse and maltreatment visited upon the prisoners detained in Bosnian Serb camps was of a great magnitude. Not only were prisoners physically abused, but they were also commonly humiliated, degraded, and forced to abuse one another. In several instances, prisoners were reported to have been forced to inflict injury upon each other, sometimes as entertainment for the guards. Humiliation often involved behaviour contradictory to the prisoners' religious background. Prisoners were also subjected to mental abuse and humiliation, including barrages of ethnic slurs.

49. Several Bosnian Serb controlled camps served as places of mass and continuous killing and execution by various means. Such camps also maintained large populations of prisoners for considerable periods of time. Other camps housed large numbers of prisoners but were not the site of a great number of killings.

50. At the larger camps, prisoners were reported to have been killed on a daily basis. In some cases, their bodies were left to rot on the camp grounds, or were loaded by prisoners and hauled away by truck to various destinations. The bodies were also reportedly disposed of in mass graves abutting the camps and thrown into rivers, lakes, ravines, mine shafts and mining pits, and other local venues. 2/ Bodies were also reported to have been incinerated or dismembered.

51. Prisoners who were targeted for torture or death at the larger camps often included prominent members of the community who were wealthy, educated or politically influential. Guards often were reported to have information identifying which prisoners fell into those categories.

52. The conditions in the places of detention were almost uniformly harsh. There was consistently a lack of food, insufficient access to toilets and beatings accompanying toilet-use, little drinkable water supply, an absence of soap and infrequent opportunities to bathe or change clothes, inadequate bedding, and often little protection from the natural elements.

53. Prisoners in some camps were reported to have suffered from dysentery and lice epidemics. Medical attention was, for the most part, non-existent at the camps. In some instances, inmates with medical training, treated fellow prisoners. However, due to an absence of supplies and facilities, such treatment was very primitive.

54. In the larger camps, male prisoners were often reported to be packed tightly into the detention facilities, so that they had no room to lie down or sit, or sometimes even to breathe. The prisoners were in many cases forced to urinate and defecate in containers and on the floors of the rooms in which they were accommodated.

55. Prisoners were often reported to have been subjected to abuse during meals, and, at best, were given one meal per day consisting of small portions of soup or bread. In some reported instances where food was delivered to a camp by the ICRC, the food was not distributed to prisoners, but was instead diverted to Bosnian Serb guards or forces.

56. There appears to have existed a certain degree of acknowledgement by Bosnian Serb authorities that camps were maintained. The camps appear to have been maintained and operated by a mix of former JNA officers and soldiers, Bosnian Serb Army personnel, various Serb paramilitaries, local volunteer Serbs, local impressed Serbs, members of the various Serb police forces and at least some Montenegrins. There also exists information that civilian Serb politicians were intimately involved with the operation of such places of detention.

57. Bosnian Serb authorities often expressed the belief that the above-described detention facilities were legitimate. The reasons stated included the necessity of protecting civilians from the dangers of combat, interning those who threatened the security of the detaining forces and detaining those responsible for criminal activity.

58. It is interesting to note that in at least one Serb-run camp, Batković, Bijeljina, the local Serb population was reported to have become aware of the situation inside the camp and demanded that the prisoners there be treated better. Conditions for the prisoners were reported to have subsequently improved.

2. BiH and Croat controlled camps

59. The BiH Government and Muslim forces and Bosnian Croat forces were also reported to have detained thousands of soldiers and civilians in BiH. At one point, because of an alliance between the two parties, they both imprisoned Serbs. A significant number of camps were reported to have been operated jointly by Croat and BiH forces. After that alliance disintegrated, both sides were reported to have imprisoned each others' soldiers captured in battle, and large numbers of civilians of their opponents' ethnicity.

60. There are indications that BiH forces and Bosnian Croats to some extent reacted to the method of warfare and "ethnic cleansing" initiated by Bosnian Serbs by taking up similar methods of warfare. This included the indiscriminate detention of civilians, rather than maintaining methods of behaviour required by the international law of armed conflict. There seemed to be elements of revenge for past imprisonment of Muslim and Croat civilians. Also, the idea existed, perhaps, that if one held a significant number of the "enemy" prisoner, the "enemy" would be more likely to treat its own prisoners well so as to avoid the impulse for reprisals by the other side.

61. Both BiH forces and Bosnian Croats are reported to have interned civilians for the purpose of exchange for members of their own forces and populations held by the other two parties to the conflict. There also seems to be rather isolated attempts at smaller scale "ethnic cleansing".

62. The BiH and Muslim forces were reported to have imprisoned a number of individuals who resisted military service. Some of those persons were tried and convicted of criminal offences, and others were sent to the front to dig trenches. The BiH authorities also arrested people for possession of weapons. In Kladanj, Serbs were said to be imprisoned for the purpose of protecting them against retaliation by the local Muslim population. In Zenica, the BiH captors reportedly established a tribunal to determine the status of those imprisoned as either military or civilian.

63. The treatment of prisoners in Bosnian Muslim run camps was in some cases reported to be brutal and degrading. That treatment was often reported to include violent interrogations and beatings. Reports of forced same-sex sexual acts between prisoners also exist. Drunk guards were reported to have abused detainees, and civilians were allowed access into camps to beat and harass prisoners. Personal vendettas were also allowed to be consummated against prisoners of war. The killing of prisoners was not uncommon. There were also reports the Bosnian Muslim forces used prisoners as human shields.

64. There were reports of Bosnian Muslim-run brothels and rape camps. A number of reports also alleged the operation of private prisons controlled by various Bosnian Muslim forces or individuals. The BiH Government, in fact, acknowledged the existence of such Muslim private prisons and officially deplored them.

65. Reported conditions at most BiH and Muslim camps, were generally described as being no better than the vast majority of other places of detention in the former Yugoslavia.

66. In Bihac, BiH forces were reported to have imprisoned captured soldiers and supporters of leader Fikret Abdić. Likewise, the forces of Fikret Abdić reportedly maintained a camp to hold captured BiH forces and civilians deemed in opposition to Abdić's authority.

67. Bosnian Croat forces were also reported to have maintained camps in areas under their control imprisoning both Bosnian Muslims and Serbs. While there is at least one report of a "death camp" run by Bosnian Croats in Orašje, killing of prisoners, though not uncommon, was on a scale much lower than that apparently perpetrated by the Bosnian Serbs.

68. The Bosnian Croat camps were reported to have been maintained by both military and paramilitary forces. The forces of the Republic of Croatia and Bosnian Croat forces apparently cooperated in the detention and transfer of prisoners.

69. The Bosnian Croats were said to have apprehended a significant numbers of individuals to hold for the purpose of prisoner exchanges. Other prisoners were supposedly held to protect them from the dangers of combat. Men were also imprisoned who were considered to be of fighting age. In addition, there appeared to be some attempts to expel non-Croat populations from some areas, such as in Vitez. Some persons there were arrested for so-called security reasons and for possession of weapons.

70. In at least one site, the Central Mostar Prison, it was reported that Croats divided their prisoners into five categories: Serb combatants; enemy collaborators; prisoners held for purposes of exchange; civilians accused of common crimes; and Croatian soldiers serving time for disciplinary infractions.

71. Bosnian Croat captors reportedly maltreated a significant portion of those detained. Allegations of beatings, rape, and theft of prisoners' personal belongings were rather common. The prisoners were also reported to have been used as human shields. The litany of abuses perpetrated in those camps was much like the abuses perpetrated in the other camps in the former Yugoslavia.

3. Reported camps by location

72. Of the reports of 677 camps alleged in BiH, 381 were corroborated (i.e., reported by a neutral source or multiple neutral sources) and 296 were uncorroborated (i.e., reported either by multiple non-neutral sources, or not corroborated by a neutral source). The following is a numerical breakdown of the camps reported to have existed in BiH:

73. Banja Luka: Total camps: 9
Run by: Serbs: Corroborated: 7 Uncorroborated: 2
74. Bihać: Total camps: 14
Run by: Serbs: Corroborated: 2 Uncorroborated: 2
Muslims: Corroborated: 4 Uncorroborated: 1
Unknown: Corroborated: 5 Uncorroborated:
75. Bijeljina: Total camps: 12
Run by: Serbs: Corroborated: 7 Uncorroborated: 1
Muslims: Corroborated: 1 Uncorroborated:
Unknown: Corroborated: 2 Uncorroborated: 1
76. Bileća: Total camps: 9
Run by: Serbs: Corroborated: 6 Uncorroborated: 2
Unknown: Corroborated: 1 Uncorroborated:
77. Bosanska Dubica: Total camps: 4
Run by: Serbs: Corroborated: Uncorroborated: 4
78. Bosanska Gradiška: Total camps: 6
Run by: Serbs: Corroborated: 5 Uncorroborated:
Unknown: Corroborated: 1 Uncorroborated:
79. Bosanska Krupa: Total camps: 7
Run by: Serbs: Corroborated: 1 Uncorroborated: 5
Unknown: Corroborated: 1 Uncorroborated:
80. Bosanski Brod: Total camps: 8
Run by: Serbs: Corroborated: Uncorroborated: 1
Croats: Corroborated: 1 Uncorroborated: 2
Unknown: Corroborated: 3 Uncorroborated: 1

81. Bosanski Novi: Total camps: 7
 Run by: Serbs: Corroborated: 5 Uncorroborated: 1
 Croats: Corroborated: Uncorroborated: 1
82. Bosanski Petrovac: Total camps: 1
 Run by: Serbs: Corroborated: 1 Uncorroborated:
83. Bosanski Šamac: Total camps: 6
 Run by: Serbs: Corroborated: 4 Uncorroborated: 1
 Unknown: Corroborated: 1 Uncorroborated:
84. Bratunac: Total camps: 3
 Run by: Serbs: Corroborated: 2 Uncorroborated:
 Unknown: Corroborated: 1 Uncorroborated:
85. Brčko: Total camps: 34
 Run by: Serbs: Corroborated: 26 Uncorroborated: 4
 Unknown: Corroborated: 2 Uncorroborated: 2
86. Breza: Total camps: 4
 Run by: Muslims: Corroborated: Uncorroborated: 1
 Unknown: Corroborated: 3 Uncorroborated:
87. Bugojno: Total camps: 12
 Run by: Muslims: Corroborated: 3 Uncorroborated: 1
 Croats/Muslims: Corroborated: 1 Uncorroborated: 2
 Unknown: Corroborated: 2 Uncorroborated: 3
88. Busovača: Total camps: 1
 Run by: Croats: Corroborated: 1 Uncorroborated:
89. Čajniče: Total camps: 4
 Run by: Serbs: Corroborated: 3 Uncorroborated: 1
90. Čapljina: Total camps: 6
 Run by: Croats: Corroborated: 3 Uncorroborated: 1
 Unknown: Corroborated: 1 Uncorroborated: 1
91. Cazin: Total camps: 3
 Run by: Muslims: Corroborated: 1 Uncorroborated:
 Unknown: Corroborated: 2 Uncorroborated:
92. Čelinac: Total camps: 4
 Run by: Serbs: Corroborated: 3 Uncorroborated: 1

93. Čitluk: Total camps: 2
Run by: Muslims: Corroborated: Uncorroborated: 1
Unknown: Corroborated: Uncorroborated: 1
94. Derventa: Total camps: 4
Run by: Serbs: Corroborated: 2 Uncorroborated: 2
95. Doboj: Total camps: 13
Run by: Serbs: Corroborated: 8 Uncorroborated: 1
Unknown: Corroborated: 4 Uncorroborated:
96. Donji Vakuf: Total camps: 5
Run by: Serbs: Corroborated: 3 Uncorroborated: 1
Unknown: Corroborated: Uncorroborated: 1
97. Foča: Total camps: 15
Run by: Serbs: Corroborated: 7 Uncorroborated: 5
Unknown: Corroborated: 1 Uncorroborated: 2
98. Fojnica: Total camps: 2
Run by: Unknown: Corroborated: 1 Uncorroborated: 1
99. Gacko: Total camps: 15
Run by: Serbs: Corroborated: 10 Uncorroborated: 3
Unknown: Corroborated: 2 Uncorroborated:
100. Glamoč: Total camps: 1
Run by: Serbs/
Montenegrins: Corroborated: Uncorroborated: 1
101. Goražde: Total camps: 3
Run by: Muslims: Corroborated: Uncorroborated: 3
102. Gornji Vakuf: Total camps: 2
Run by: Unknown: Corroborated: 2 Uncorroborated:
103. Gradačac: Total camps: 4
Run by: Croats: Corroborated: 1 Uncorroborated: 3
104. Grude: Total camps: 2
Run by: Croats/
Muslims: Corroborated: 1 Uncorroborated:
Unknown: Corroborated: 1 Uncorroborated:
105. Han Pijesak: Total camps: 1
Run by: Unknown: Corroborated: 1 Uncorroborated:

106. Jablanica: Total camps: 5
 Run by: Muslims: Corroborated: 2 Uncorroborated: 1
 Unknown: Corroborated: 2 Uncorroborated:
107. Jajce: Total camps: 1
 Run by: Muslims: Corroborated: Uncorroborated: 1
108. Kakanj: Total camps: 3
 Run by: Muslims: Corroborated: Uncorroborated: 1
 Unknown: Corroborated: 2 Uncorroborated:
109. Kalesija: Total camps: 5
 Run by: Serbs: Corroborated: 1 Uncorroborated: 2
 Muslims: Corroborated: 1 Uncorroborated:
 Unknown: Corroborated: Uncorroborated: 1
110. Kalinovik: Total camps: 5
 Run by: Serbs: Corroborated: 2 Uncorroborated: 2
 Unknown: Corroborated: Uncorroborated: 1
111. Kiseljak: Total camps: 7
 Run by: Croats: Corroborated: 1 Uncorroborated: 1
 Unknown: Corroborated: 4 Uncorroborated: 1
112. Kladanj: Total camps: 1
 Run by: Croats/Muslims: Corroborated: Uncorroborated: 1
113. Ključ: Total camps: 4
 Run by: Serbs: Corroborated: 3 Uncorroborated: 1
114. Konjic: Total camps: 29
 Run by: Muslims: Corroborated: 6 Uncorroborated: 5
 Croats/Muslims: Corroborated: 4 Uncorroborated: 12
 Unknown: Corroborated: Uncorroborated: 2
115. Kotor Varoš: Total camps: 9
 Run by: Serbs: Corroborated: 2 Uncorroborated: 7
116. Krešsevo: Total camps: 3
 Run by: Unknown: Corroborated: 3 Uncorroborated:
117. Kupres: Total camps: 1
 Run by: Unknown: Corroborated: Uncorroborated: 1

118. Laktaši: Total camps: 2
Run by: Serbs: Corroborated: Uncorroborated: 1
Unknown: Corroborated: Uncorroborated: 1
119. Lištica: Total camps: 1
Run by: Croats/Muslims: Corroborated: 1 Uncorroborated:
120. Livno: Total camps: 10
Run by: Muslims: Corroborated: Uncorroborated: 1
Croats: Corroborated: 3 Uncorroborated:
Unknown: Corroborated: 3 Uncorroborated: 3
121. Ljubinje: Total camps: 1
Run by: Serbs: Corroborated: 1 Uncorroborated:
122. Ljubuški: Total camps: 3
Run by: Muslims: Corroborated: Uncorroborated: 1
Croats: Corroborated: 1 Uncorroborated: 1
123. Lopare: Total camps: 1
Run by: Serbs: Corroborated: 1 Uncorroborated:
124. Lukavac: Total camps: 1
Run by: Unknown: Corroborated: Uncorroborated: 1
125. Maglaj: Total camps: 1
Run by: Croats: Corroborated: Uncorroborated: 1
126. Modriča: Total camps: 3
Run by: Serbs: Corroborated: 1 Uncorroborated: 2
127. Mostar: Total Camps: 15
Run by: Serbs: Corroborated: 2 Uncorroborated:
Muslims: Corroborated: 2 Uncorroborated: 1
Croats: Corroborated: 5 Uncorroborated: 1
Unknown: Corroborated: 1 Uncorroborated: 3
128. Mrkonjić Grad: Total Camps: 4
Run by: Serbs: Corroborated: 1 Uncorroborated: 2
Unknown: Corroborated: Uncorroborated: 1
129. Nevesinje: Total Camps: 2
Run by: Muslims: Corroborated: 1 Uncorroborated:
Unknown: Corroborated: Uncorroborated: 1

130.	Odžak:	Total Camps: 3
	Run by:	Croats:	Corroborated:	Uncorroborated: 2
		Unknown:	Corroborated:	Uncorroborated: 1
131.	Olovo:	Total camps: 1
	Run by:	Serbs:	Corroborated: 1	Uncorroborated:
132.	Orašje:	Total Camps: 3
	Run by:	Muslims:	Corroborated:	Uncorroborated: 1
		Croats:	Corroborated: 1	Uncorroborated: 1
133.	Posusje:	Total Camps: 1
	Run by:	Croats:	Corroborated:	Uncorroborated: 1
134.	Prijedor:	Total camps: 36
	Run by:	Serbs:	Corroborated: 28	Uncorroborated: 8
135.	Prnjavor:	Total camps: 1
	Run by:	Serbs:	Corroborated: 1	Uncorroborated:
136.	Prozor:	Total Camps: 7
	Run by:	Croats:	Corroborated: 3	Uncorroborated: 3
		Unknown:	Corroborated: 1	Uncorroborated:
137.	Rogatica:	Total Camps: 12
	Run by:	Serbs:	Corroborated: 3	Uncorroborated: 8
		Unknown:	Corroborated: 1	Uncorroborated:
138.	Rudo:	Total Camps: 3
	Run by:	Serbs:	Corroborated: 1	Uncorroborated:
		Unknown:	Corroborated:	Uncorroborated: 2
139.	Sanski Most:	Total Camps: 10
	Run by:	Serbs:	Corroborated: 8	Uncorroborated: 2
140.	Sarajevo:	Total Camps: 91
	Run by:	Serbs:	Corroborated: 7	Uncorroborated: 20
		Muslims:	Corroborated: 11	Uncorroborated: 18
		Croats:	Corroborated: 1	Uncorroborated: 1
		Croats/ Muslims:	Corroborated:	Uncorroborated: 7
		Unknown:	Corroborated: 11	Uncorroborated: 13
		Private:	Corroborated:	Uncorroborated: 2
141.	Šekovići:	Total Camps: 4
	Run by:	Serbs:	Corroborated:	Uncorroborated: 1
		Unknown:	Corroborated: 3	Uncorroborated:

142. Šipovo: Total Camps: 2
Run by: Serbs: Corroborated: Uncorroborated: 2
143. Skender Vakuf: Total Camps: 1
Run by: Serbs: Corroborated: 1 Uncorroborated:
144. Sokolac: Total Camps: 8
Run by: Serbs: Corroborated: 3 Uncorroborated: 3
Unknown: Corroborated: 1 Uncorroborated: 4
145. Srebrenica: Total Camps: 2
Run by: Serbs: Corroborated: 1 Uncorroborated:
Unknown: Corroborated: 1 Uncorroborated: 1
146. Stolac: Total Camps: 4
Run by: Unknown: Corroborated: 1 Uncorroborated: 3
147. Tešanj: Total Camps: 4
Run by: Serbs: Corroborated: 1 Uncorroborated:
Muslims: Corroborated: 1 Uncorroborated: 1
Unknown: Corroborated: 2 Uncorroborated:
148. Teslić: Total Camps: 7
Run by: Serbs: Corroborated: 2 Uncorroborated: 3
Unknown: Corroborated: 1 Uncorroborated: 2
149. Titov Drvar: Total Camps: 6
Run by: Serbs: Corroborated: 3 Uncorroborated: 2
Unknown: Corroborated: 1 Uncorroborated:
150. Tomislavgrad: Total Camps: 9
Run by: Croats: Corroborated: 3 Uncorroborated: 2
Unknown: Corroborated: 3 Uncorroborated: 1
151. Travnik: Total Camps: 3
Run by: Unknown: Corroborated: 1 Uncorroborated: 2
152. Trebinje: Total Camps: 2
Run by: Serbs: Corroborated: 1 Uncorroborated:
Unknown: Corroborated: 1 Uncorroborated: 1

153. Tuzla: Total Camps: 15
 Run by: Muslims: Corroborated: Uncorroborated: 3
 Croats/
 Muslims: Corroborated: Uncorroborated: 1
 Private: Corroborated: Uncorroborated: 1
 Unknown: Corroborated: 5 Uncorroborated: 5

154. Ugljevik: Total Camps: 2
 Run by: Serbs: Corroborated: Uncorroborated: 2

155. Vareš: Total Camps: 5
 Run by: Serbs: Corroborated: 1 Uncorroborated:
 Croats: Corroborated: 2 Uncorroborated:
 Unknown: Corroborated: 2 Uncorroborated:

156. Velika Kladuša: Total Camps: 1
 Run by: Muslims: Corroborated: 1 Uncorroborated:

157. Višegrad: Total Camps: 21
 Run by: Serbs: Corroborated: 2 Uncorroborated: 17
 Private: Corroborated: Uncorroborated: 2

158. Visoko: Total Camps: 7
 Run by: Muslims: Corroborated: 2 Uncorroborated: 3
 Unknown: Corroborated: 2 Uncorroborated:

159. Vitez: Total Camps: 8
 Run by: Muslims: Corroborated: 1 Uncorroborated:
 Croats: Corroborated: 2 Uncorroborated:
 Unknown: Corroborated: 5 Uncorroborated:

160. Vlasenica: Total Camps: 12
 Run by: Serbs: Corroborated: 4 Uncorroborated: 3
 Muslims: Corroborated: Uncorroborated: 1
 Unknown: Corroborated: 4 Uncorroborated:

161. Zenica: Total Camps: 16
 Run by: Muslims: Corroborated: 2 Uncorroborated:
 Croats/
 Muslims: Corroborated: Uncorroborated: 1
 Unknown: Corroborated: 5 Uncorroborated: 8

162. Žepče: Total Camps: 2
 Run by: Croats: Corroborated: 2 Uncorroborated:

163. Zvornik: Total Camps: 28
 Run by: Serbs: Corroborated: 23 Uncorroborated: 3
 Unknown: Corroborated: 2 Uncorroborated:

D. Camps reported in Croatia

164. The reports reviewed alleged a total of 201 camps within Croatia. Among those camps, 77 (38.3 per cent) were alleged to have been controlled by Bosnian Serbs; 70 (34.8 per cent) by Croats; 1 (.5 per cent) by Bosnian Muslims; 1 (.5 per cent) by both Croats and Muslims; 1 (.5 per cent) by Slovenians; 51 (25.4 per cent) by unidentified forces.

165. As armed conflict erupted between Croats and Serbs in Croatia, the detention of combatants and civilians reached a large scale. Ultimately, at least several thousand Croats and Serbs had been imprisoned in Croatia from the end of 1991 to the present.

166. Most of the places of detention in Croatia were maintained by Croats or Serbs. There are, however, a significant number of reported detention facilities where it was unclear who maintained control.

1. Croat controlled camps

167. The reports indicate that Croatian forces captured and detained both Serb combatants and Serb civilians. As the conflict progressed, it appears that the Croats began to capture and detain Serb civilians for the purpose of later exchanging them for Croats held prisoner.

168. Some cooperation appeared evident between the Croats of the Republic of Croatia and the Croats of the Republic of BiH. At one point, at least, Bosnian Croat forces were apparently able to transfer prisoners from the Bosanski Brod and Odžak areas of BiH to Slavonski Brod in Croatia. Some of those prisoners were later transferred back to places of detention in the territory of BiH. Others were apparently transferred to places of detention elsewhere in Croatia.

169. The Croats appear to have used numerous sites to detain and interrogate Serbs for short periods of time and maintained only a few places for long term detention.

170. It was reported that the Croatian camps were often divided into three blocks. The first block consisted of former JNA members who surrendered without a struggle. The second block consisted of elderly persons and the third block was reported to have consisted of military police, volunteers, and individuals identified by the Croats as "Četniks".

171. In Pakrac, Croats were alleged to have maintained two "death camps" for the elimination of captured Serbs. This was the only allegation of Croats operating a place of detention for the purpose of large-scale execution. However, there were numerous allegations of Croatian mistreatment of prisoners in other places of detention, as well as numerous allegations of killings.

172. The reported maltreatment inflicted upon prisoners in Croat-controlled detention facilities consisted mainly of indiscriminate beatings, some rapes, public humiliation, and forced appearance on television. Electric shock and forced same-sex sexual acts were also alleged as common methods of torture and abuse.

173. Those who were reported to have controlled and maintained the Croatian places of detention were the Croatian armed forces, local police forces and some paramilitary groups.

174. Camp conditions were generally poor. However, in at least one instance at Gospić Prison, it was reported that Croatian captors attempted to improve conditions when notified of an ICRC visit.

2. Serb controlled camps

175. There were also Serb controlled places of detention in Croatia which were reported to have consisted mainly of pre-existing facilities. However, the Serbs apparently found it necessary to erect a few camps in order to effectively detain their captives. The Serb camps in Croatia held both civilians and prisoners of war.

176. Prior to the war in BiH, Serb captors in Croatia transferred some prisoners to the Manjača camp in Banja Luka, Bosnia. Later, after fighting started in BiH, Bosnian Muslims and Bosnian Croats were reported to have been held at Serb camps in Croatia.

177. Those reportedly responsible for the operation and maintenance of Serb-controlled camps in Croatia were a mixture of JNA officers and soldiers, SAO Krajina police forces, Serb Territorial Defence units and various paramilitary forces.

178. Maltreatment of prisoners was commonly attributed to the Serb controlled camps in Croatia. Camp commanders appear to have been well aware of the abuse that took place and often allowed Serb civilians and paramilitaries access to the prisoners in order to abuse them. In at least one case, Bosnian Serbs reportedly travelled to Knin, Croatia to participate in the abuse of Bosnian Croats and Muslims held there.

179. There are a number of reports that the guards in Serb camps consumed drugs and alcohol and in an intoxicated state subjected prisoners to different types of maltreatment.

180. As with other detaining powers, the Serbs in Croatia were reported to have attempted at times to deceive visitors interested in the condition of camps. For example, places of detention and the prisoners themselves were cleaned up before a visit and prisoners who appeared to be in satisfactory condition were shown off, whereas those who showed physical signs of maltreatment were hidden.

181. There were also reports of prisoners coerced to appear on Belgrade television to describe their supposed offences against Serbs.

3. Reported camps by location

182. Of the reports of 201 camps alleged in Croatia, 100 were corroborated (i.e., reported by a neutral source or multiple neutral sources) and 101 were uncorroborated (i.e., reported either by multiple non-neutral sources, or not corroborated by a neutral source). The following is a numerical breakdown of the camps reported to have existed in Croatia:

183. Beli Manastir: Total camps: 6

Run by:	Serbs:	Corroborated:	Uncorroborated:
	Unknown:	Corroborated: 4	Uncorroborated: 1

184. Benkovac: Total camps: 5

Run by:	Serbs:	Corroborated:	Uncorroborated:
			5

185. Bjelovar: Total camps: 6
Run by: Croats: Corroborated: 3 Uncorroborated: 1
Unknown: Corroborated: 2 Uncorroborated:

186. Daruvar: Total camps: 8
Run by: Serbs: Corroborated: Uncorroborated: 2
Croats: Corroborated: Uncorroborated: 4
Unknown: Corroborated: 1 Uncorroborated: 1

187. Djakovo: Total camps: 2
Run by: Croats: Corroborated: 1 Uncorroborated:
Unknown: Corroborated: Uncorroborated: 1

188. Drniš: Total camps: 2
Run by: Serbs: Corroborated: 1 Uncorroborated:
Unknown: Corroborated: 1 Uncorroborated:

189. Dubrovnik: Total camps: 1
Run by: Unknown: Corroborated: 1 Uncorroborated:

190. Dvor: Total camps: 4
Run by: Serbs: Corroborated: Uncorroborated: 2
Unknown: Corroborated: Uncorroborated: 2

191. Glina: Total camps: 3
Run by: Serbs: Corroborated: 1 Uncorroborated:
Unknown: Corroborated: 2 Uncorroborated:

192. Gospić: Total camps: 5
Run by: Serbs: Corroborated: Uncorroborated: 1
Croats: Corroborated: 2 Uncorroborated: 2

193. Gračac: Total camps: 1
Run by: Serbs: Corroborated: Uncorroborated: 1

194. Grubišno Polje: Total camps: 1
Run by: Croats: Corroborated: Uncorroborated: 1

195. Imotski: Total camps: 1
Run by: Croats: Corroborated: 1 Uncorroborated:

196. Ivanec: Total camps: 1
Run by: Unknown: Corroborated: 1 Uncorroborated:

197. Karlovac: Total camps: 2
Run by: Croats: Corroborated: 2 Uncorroborated:

198. Knin: Total camps: 7
Run by: Serbs: Corroborated: 4 Uncorroborated: 3

199. Korenica: Total camps: 3
Run by: Serbs: Corroborated: 1 Uncorroborated: 1
Unknown: Corroborated: 1 Uncorroborated:

200. Kostajnica: Total camps: 2
Run by: Serbs: Corroborated: 1 Uncorroborated: 1

201. Kutina: Total camps: 1
Run by: Serbs: Corroborated: 1 Uncorroborated:

202. Metković: Total camps: 4
Run by: Croats: Corroborated: 1 Uncorroborated: 2
Unknown: Corroborated: 1 Uncorroborated:

203. Našice: Total camps: 1
Run by: Croats: Corroborated: Uncorroborated: 1

204. Nova Gradiška: Total camps: 4
Run by: Serbs: Corroborated: 1 Uncorroborated: 1
Croats: Corroborated: 1 Uncorroborated: 1
Unknown: Corroborated: 1 Uncorroborated:

205. Novska: Total camps: 1
Run by: Croats: Corroborated: Uncorroborated: 1

206. Ogulin: Total camps: 3
Run by: Serbs: Corroborated: Uncorroborated: 2
Croats: Corroborated: Uncorroborated: 1

207. Osijek: Total camps: 14
Run by: Serbs: Corroborated: 2 Uncorroborated: 4
Croats: Corroborated: 2 Uncorroborated: 3
Unknown: Corroborated: 3 Uncorroborated:

208. Otočac: Total camps: 1
Run by: Unknown: Corroborated: 1 Uncorroborated:

209. Pakrac: Total camps: 7
Run by: Serbs: Corroborated: 1 Uncorroborated: 2
Croats: Corroborated: 1 Uncorroborated: 2
Slovenians: Corroborated: 1 Uncorroborated:

210. Petrinja: Total camps: 2
Run by: Serbs: Corroborated: 1 Uncorroborated:
Croats: Corroborated: Uncorroborated: 1

211. Podravska Slatina: Total camps: 2
Run by: Serbs: Corroborated: 1 Uncorroborated:
Croats: Corroborated: Uncorroborated: 1

212. Pula: Total camps: 1
Run by: Unknown: Corroborated: 1 Uncorroborated:

213. Rijeka: Total camps: 3
Run by: Croats: Corroborated: 2 Uncorroborated:
Unknown: Corroborated: 1 Uncorroborated:

214. Šibenik: Total camps: 7
Run by: Muslims: Corroborated: 1 Uncorroborated:
Croats: Corroborated: 2 Uncorroborated: 1
Unknown: Corroborated: 2 Uncorroborated: 1

215. Sinj: Total camps: 1
Run by: Unknown: Corroborated: 1 Uncorroborated:

216. Sisak: Total camps: 3
Run by: Croats: Corroborated: 3 Uncorroborated:

217. Slavonska Požega: Total camps: 5
Run by: Croats: Corroborated: 2 Uncorroborated: 2
Unknown: Corroborated: 1 Uncorroborated:

218. Slavonski Brod: Total camps: 7
Run by: Croats: Corroborated: 1 Uncorroborated: 2
Croats/
Muslims: Corroborated: Uncorroborated: 1
Unknown: Corroborated: 3 Uncorroborated:

219. Slunj: Total camps: 3
Run by: Serbs: Corroborated: Uncorroborated: 1
Croats: Corroborated: 1 Uncorroborated:
Unknown: Corroborated: 1 Uncorroborated:

220. Split: Total camps: 4
Run by: Croats: Corroborated: 1 Uncorroborated:
Unknown: Corroborated: 3 Uncorroborated:

221. Vinkovci:	Total camps: 2
Run by:	Croats:	Corroborated: 1	Uncorroborated: 1
	Unknown:	Corroborated: 1	Uncorroborated:
222. Varaždin:	Total camps: 1
Run by:	Unknown:	Corroborated: 1	Uncorroborated:
223. Vojnić:	Total camps: 3
Run by:	Serbs:	Corroborated: 1	Uncorroborated:
	Unknown:	Corroborated: 2	Uncorroborated:
224. Vrbovec:	Total camps: 1
Run by:	Croats:	Corroborated:	Uncorroborated: 1
225. Vrginmost:	Total camps: 1
Run by:	Croats:	Corroborated:	Uncorroborated: 1
226. Vukovar:	Total camps: 44
Run by:	Serbs:	Corroborated: 7	Uncorroborated: 27
	Croats:	Corroborated:	Uncorroborated: 9
	Unknown:	Corroborated: 1	Uncorroborated:
227. Zadar:	Total camps: 7
Run by:	Croats:	Corroborated: 3	Uncorroborated: 1
	Unknown:	Corroborated: 3	Uncorroborated:
228. Zagreb:	Total camps: 8
Run by:	Croats:	Corroborated: 2	Uncorroborated: 1
	Unknown:	Corroborated: 5	Uncorroborated:

E. Camps reported in FRY

229. The reports reviewed alleged a total of 71 camps within FRY. Among those camps, 56 (78.9 per cent) were alleged to have been controlled by Bosnian Serbs or forces of FRY; and 15 (21.1 per cent) by unidentified forces.

1. Serb/FRY controlled camps

230. A combination of JNA personnel, police forces and Serb paramilitaries, reportedly operated and maintained the camps in FRY.

231. A significant number of Croats, probably at least several thousand, were reported to have been captured by Serb forces in Croatia and transferred to what is now known as FRY. The majority of those imprisoned in various prisons and camps in FRY were apparently captured at the battle of Vukovar in approximately November 1991.

232. Those captured were a mix of soldiers and civilians. Apparently, the Serbs first regarded their Croat prisoners as insurgents and rebels and later, as the independence of Croatia was recognized, to a certain extent regarded their captives as prisoners of war. It was also reported that when the Republic of Croatia was internationally recognized, Croat prisoners in FRY were severely beaten as a result.

233. It was reported that Serb authorities tried and convicted a number of Croat prisoners for various offences. Those prisoners were often transferred to other detention facilities. Serbs also commonly transferred other prisoners between detention centres.

234. Treatment of prisoners at the FRY camps was commonly reported as very poor. Violent interrogation, and reports of beatings and sadistic treatment of prisoners were common. For example, it was reported that prisoners were forced to participate in various "games", the rules of which inevitably led to the abuse of the participants. It appeared that Serb authorities in FRY transported local Vukovar Serbs to FRY in order to identify certain prisoners and participate in their maltreatment. Personal vendettas were allowed to occur. Drunk guards were also reported to have inflicted great harm upon those imprisoned. There were also reports of women who were held and exploited for sexual purposes.

235. Living conditions for the prisoners were also reported as very poor. Common complaints included a lack of food, insufficient access to toilet facilities, and an inadequate opportunity to bathe and change clothes. Facilities were often cold and damp, and inmates were often left without sufficient bedding. The wounded and sick often suffered without adequate medical care.

236. It appears that the majority of Croat prisoners in FRY were exchanged by late summer of 1992.

237. It was also reported that prisoners captured in BiH were transported to camps in FRY. A number of the Bosnian Muslims held in such camps were reportedly captured around Višegrad and Bosanski Šamac.

238. A number of Bosnian refugees in Montenegro, from Foča, were reportedly arrested by FRY police forces, held in various prisons, and later turned over to Serbs maintaining camps in Foča where they were then imprisoned. It was also reported that a significant number of Muslim prisoners held in Bileca, were transferred to a camp in Subotica.

239. Upon investigation by third party teams, certain alleged concentration camps for Muslims in FRY were found to be refugee centres where living conditions were poor.

2. Reported camps by location

240. Of the reports of the 71 camps alleged in FRY, 42 were corroborated (i.e., reported by a neutral source or multiple neutral sources), and 29 were uncorroborated (i.e., reported either by multiple non-neutral sources, or not corroborated by a neutral source). The following is a numerical breakdown of the camps reported to have existed in FRY:

241. Kosovo: Total camps: 1

Run by: Serbs/FRY: Corroborated: 1 Uncorroborated:

242. Montenegro: Total camps: 9

Run by: Serbs/FRY: Corroborated: 5 Uncorroborated: 1
Unknown: Corroborated: 1 Uncorroborated: 2

243. Serbia: Total camps: 27

Run by: Serbs/FRY: Corroborated: 13 Uncorroborated: 13
Unknown: Corroborated: 1 Uncorroborated:

244. Vojvodina: Total camps: 25

Run by: Serbs/FRY: Corroborated: 10 Uncorroborated: 13
Unknown: Corroborated: 2 Uncorroborated:

245. Unidentified Locations in FRY:

Total camps: 9

Run by: Unknown: Corroborated: 9 Uncorroborated:

D. Camps reported in Slovenia

246. The reports reviewed alleged a total of seven camps within Slovenia. Among those camps, three (42.9 per cent) were alleged to have been controlled by Slovenian forces and four (57.1 per cent) by unidentified forces.

247. As the various conflicts in the former Yugoslavia erupted and unfolded, detention of soldiers and civilians reportedly became commonplace. In June and July 1991, Slovenian forces reportedly captured and imprisoned a few hundred soldiers of the JNA and some civilian personnel of SFRY, including internal police, for a short period of time after Slovenia declared its independence on 25 June 1991.

248. The Slovenes reportedly held the prisoners in various places including mining facilities and a penitentiary. The captors allegedly subjected the prisoners to beatings, verbal humiliations, and threats. Since the prisoners' release and the subsequent conflicts in Croatia and BiH, there were no reports concerning detention in Slovenia.

249. Of the reports of the seven camps alleged in Slovenia, six were corroborated (i.e., reported by a neutral source or multiple neutral sources) and one was uncorroborated (i.e., reported either by multiple non-neutral sources, or not corroborated by a neutral source). The following is a numerical breakdown of the camps reported to have existed in Slovenia:

1. Reported camps in Slovenia

250. Slovenia: Total camps: 7

Run by: Slovenians: Corroborated: 2 Uncorroborated: 1
Unknown: Corroborated: 4 Uncorroborated:

III. ANALYSIS BY GEOGRAPHICAL LOCATION

A. BiH

1. Banja Luka

251. Banja Luka County is in the north-west quarter of BiH. According to the 1991 census, it had a population of 195,139. Bosnian Serbs comprised the majority at 54.8 per cent, 14.9 per cent were Bosnian Croat, 14.6 per cent were Bosnian Muslim, 12 per cent described themselves as "Yugoslavs", and the remaining 3.7 per cent were classified as "others".

252. Manjača camp: The existence of this detention facility as well as the alleged number of individuals hereby detained has been corroborated by multiple sources, among them: the ICRC, the US Department of State and the UK Defence Debriefing Team.

253. Location: According to reports, the Manjača camp was located approximately 25 kilometres south of the city of Banja Luka. Manjača is the name of a mountain and there is no village by that name. 3/ The camp was reportedly located in a mountainous area controlled by Serbian forces, on or near an unidentified former JNA base which had been a farm and had later been used as a training facility. 4/ Tanks, rockets and other military equipment were reported just below the site. 5/

254. Description of the Manjača camp: Reports describe the Manjača facility as consisting of one section of a large farm which was surrounded by a fence and used as the camp. 6/ An ex-prisoner at the camp provided a diagram of the grounds and stated that the camp was located in a former JNA training area. He added that the camp itself was a former military cattle farm, a section of which had been fenced off for use as the camp. 7/

255. The camp's perimeter is described as forming an area of approximately 240 by 260 metres. 8/ According to reports, the Manjača camp was surrounded by a single fence and divided into two sections by a central fence. 9/ These fences were reported as being between two and three metres high. 10/ An ex-prisoner who was transferred to the camp in 1992 reported that while the camp was divided into two separate sections, one was not used until August 1992. 11/

256. There were reportedly three detention buildings in each section of the camp 12/ which were described as unheated, former livestock stables arranged in two rows of three. 13/ These structures appeared to be more or less the same size which was estimated in different reports as 80 by 12 metres, 14/ 60 by 18 metres, 15/ and 70 by 20 metres. 16/ Each of the six structures reportedly had six stalls, three on each side of a corridor. 17/

257. Several reports estimate that each of the main structures housed between 600 and 700 prisoners. 18/ One report stated that between 600 and 650 prisoners were accommodated internally in each structure in three rows of 200. 19/ Another report stated that detainees occupied a space, approximately 6.5 feet by 30 inches, in six long rows of approximately 80 persons per row. It was also reported that there was a walkway, approximately two feet wide between the rows and that the estimated total occupancy per stable was 500 persons. 20/

258. One subject reported that each of the camp's two sections had a separate entrance with a gate guarded by soldiers. 21/ Another subject described two gates into the camp, one on the north-western, and another on the south-western side of the camp. 22/ Reports also describe an unknown number of guard dogs tied to a post near the north-western gate 23/ and patrolling the periphery of the camp's centre. 24/

259. According to the reports reviewed, mines were laid between the two fences surrounding and separating the sections of the camp. 25/ One subject described a one-metre-wide strip of mined earth which separated the two rows of stables and encircled the entire camp. 26/ Another subject described a three metre mined section of earth, running from one end of the camp to the other, effectively dividing the camp structures into two groups. According to the subject, an unidentified male prisoner was killed by an explosion when he ventured too close to the centre mine strip. 27/ It was also reported that mines had been placed in a one metre wide strip of earth immediately inside the fence separated from the camp's interior by a single strand of wire suspended one metre off of the ground. 28/

260. One subject reported that the interior fence had signs posted to warn of the minefield. 29/

261. Reports also describe two smaller sheds which served as kitchens in each of the prison sections. 30/ One report describes high roofed shelters which were used as the food preparation and serving and eating area. 31/ Another report said that one of the camp's sections had a small building used for storing food taken from relief organizations and for torturing inmates. 32/

262. Reports describe a camp building where prisoners were taken for torture, calling it the Samica (meaning single cell). 33/ One subject reports that the Samica was located approximately 50 metres from the barn where he was held. 34/ Another subject similarly reported that on 28 August 1992, he witnessed prisoners being beaten in an area that was used for solitary confinement of prisoners, about 100 metres from the barn. 35/

263. The area outside the camp compound: One subject described the area to the east of the fenced in compound as containing another seven buildings which were used by the camp administration. Each of those buildings were reported to be approximately 12 metres by 50 metres in size. According to the description, the buildings on the outside of the camp included a doctor's office and a structure utilized by Serbian police interrogators. 36/ Three of the buildings on the outside of the camp were reportedly used as housing for the camp's guards. 37/ One of the buildings was reportedly occupied day and night by approximately 10 soldiers from a nearby tank unit, which one source believed was a security reinforcement. 38/ One subject reported that there was also a building which was used for food storage and as a medical clinic for prisoners and guards. 39/

264. Another report describes buildings as being located in the western section outside the camp, including a hospital, sleeping accommodations for the guard force, a large administration building, and a gatehouse and checkpoint at the entrance to the fenced area. 40/

265. One former prisoner said that 20 soldiers/camp guards were permanently quartered in a building called the "Krug" (circle), located outside the camp compound. The subject said that the same building contained a kitchen and a canteen where the guards ate three times a day. Two female cooks from Banja Luka reportedly cooked for the guards and two prisoners were reportedly detailed daily to clean their quarters and assist in the kitchen. 41/

266. Guards were reportedly posted outside the fence surrounding the camp. 42/ Reports also describe bunkers immediately outside the camp's perimeter. One subject described the bunkers as having wooden walls with one metre high earthen mounds containing openings to accommodate small arms.

Another subject described several ground level bunkers. 43/ Manned watchtowers were also reported in the area outside the camp. 44/ One subject described four guardhouses inside and outside the camp. One of these guardhouses was said to be a 10 metre high watchtower. 45/

267. Number of prisoners: Reports indicate that during its peak operation period, the Manjača camp held approximately 3,700 prisoners. The ICRC reported that from mid-July 1992, approximately 3,600 persons were detained at the Manjača camp and had been regularly visited and registered. 46/ The ICRC specifically reported in mid-August 1992 that there were 3,737 prisoners visited at Manjača on 14-16 July 1992, 28 July 1992, and 12-14 August 1992. 47/ A CSCE Mission to the Manjača camp reported that on 30 August 1992, there were 3,640 prisoners at the facility. 48/

268. Other reports estimate a higher number of prisoners at Manjača. Some sources state that the camp held approximately 4,000 Bosnian Muslim males. 49/ One subject who was transferred to the camp from Omarska camp in Prijedor, estimated that the camp contained about 5,500 prisoners. 50/ Another report, citing estimates by refugees from the Kozarac area, claimed the number of prisoners at Manjača at 8,000. 51/

269. Reports indicate that prior to mid-June 1992, the Manjača camp had a lower prisoner population, which rose dramatically in early-August 1992. It was also reported that in order to accommodate the influx of prisoners from Omarska camp in Prijedor and other detention facilities in August 1992, a second compound of the Manjača camp was opened. One subject estimated that when he arrived at Manjača in mid-June, the camp had a population of 1,700 male prisoners, and that on 23 August 1992, the camp held 4,500 prisoners. 52/ Another subject who was detained at the camp in 1992 stated that prior to August 1992, the camp held a total of 1,759 prisoners and that after August, and the opening of the second compound, an additional 1,710 prisoners were brought in. 53/

270. Sex and age of the prisoners: Most reports indicate that the camp contained male prisoners of all ages but mostly between the ages of 18 and 60. 54/ However, there are allegations that in the early spring of 1992, a small number of women were held at the camp and raped.

271. Ethnicity of prisoners: Manjača's prison population was in most reports described as predominantly Bosnian Muslim and Croatian. Some subjects estimated the prisoner population at Manjača at approximately 80 per cent Bosnian Muslim and 20 per cent Croatian. 55/ One report estimated the camp's population at 96.4 per cent Muslim, 3.4 per cent Croatian and .01 per cent Serbian. 56/

272. At one point, several Serbians from north-western Bosnia were reportedly detained at the camp for several days because they refused to go to the war front. Each of the men was reportedly older than 45 years of age. The men reportedly slept in a separate room but received the same food as the other inmates. 57/

273. Status of prisoners: Reports indicate that the majority of the prisoners at the Manjača camp were civilians. CSCE mission member John Zerolis, a U.S. Foreign Service officer assigned to the US Embassy in Zagreb, inspected the Manjača camp and reported that he observed several thousand prisoners, none of whom were wearing any type of uniform. He stated that he was told by the prisoners that they were non-combatants and that they had been arrested from their homes. 58/ The CSCE Mission further reported that the vast majority of the Manjača's prisoners claimed to be civilians or were arrested at their homes for no apparent reason except as an integral part of

"ethnic cleansing" operations. 59/ One subject who was held at the camp said that Manjača was not a POW camp as claimed by Serbian authorities and that an estimated 95 per cent of the prisoners there were civilians. 60/

274. According to a report of the Special Rapporteur of the United Nations Commission on Human Rights,

"the administrators of this [Manjača] facility who are officials of the army of the Bosnian Serbs, maintain that the prisoners are prisoners of war. However, other observers consider that most of them probably never bore arms, and were detained simply because their age and Muslim ethnic origin made them potential combatants in the eyes of the Serbian authorities." 61/

275. The leader of Merhamet, the Muslim charitable organization in Banja Luka, reportedly stated that most prisoners at Manjača had no connection with the military clashes. 62/

276. One unidentified subject who was transferred to Manjača from another detention facility reported that he saw several Imams at the camp. He did not know their names but said that they were from Prijedor and Kozarac. 63/

277. Organization of prisoners: Reports indicate that Manjača's prisoner housing was allocated according to place of prisoner origin. For example, an ex-prisoner stated that prisoners were assigned to buildings by region (Doboj, Grapska; Ključ; Prijedor; and Sanski Most). He said that he was housed in the building designated for all those from his north-west BiH municipality. 64/ Another ex-prisoner stated that one side of the camp was filled with men from Ključ, Sanski Most and Prijedor. He said that there was one stable in his part of the camp which was filled with men from Sana (i.e. Sanski Most), and that another contained prisoners from the Kozarac and Prijedor area. 65/ A third ex-prisoner reported that he was in a section of the camp with 186 prisoners who had been accused of possessing arms and 50 others who did not have documents and were put in with that group. He said that most of the people in his area of detention were from Sanski Most. 66/

278. According to one report, there were a number of Muslim prisoners who were responsible for order and smooth operation of the camp. The prisoners called them the "camp commanders". They reportedly slept together with the other prisoners on the concrete floor and were not permitted to leave the camp. Their function was reportedly to maintain a liaison with the administration office and with the medical office, to supervise the Bosnian cooks and the "trustees", 67/ and to present any problems to the camp commander. It was also alleged that these individuals cooperated with the Serbs and caused the death of at least one Bosnian Muslim prisoner. 68/

279. Prison ledger: An ex-prisoner stated that a prison ledger contained the names of every prisoner and the various categories to which he was assigned. Specifically, the subject reported that the prisoners' disposition was noted in the last column of the ledger and that if this was written in pen, as opposed to pencil, it was irrevocable. The subject said that those who had "VIZ" (Military Investigation Centre) written in pen after their name always disappeared. 69/

280. Dates of operation/camp opening: According to reports, the Manjača camp was first used as a prisoner of war camp in the summer and autumn of 1991. Croatian soldiers were reportedly held there during the war. However, since the early spring (April or May) of 1992, the same facility was reportedly used to hold both Croat and Muslim prisoners and it was believed that most of those individuals were civilians. 70/ According to reports, Manjača's prisoner population rose dramatically in early August, 1992, when an estimated 1,200 to 1,800 prisoners were transferred there as a result of the Omarska camp's closure.

281. Visits to Manjača by outside organizations: From mid-July 1992 until its closure in December 1992, Manjača was closely monitored by the ICRC and other organizations. As a result, it is possible to get a fairly clear picture of the camp's conditions and the number of prisoners held there during that time.

282. ICRC monitoring of the Manjača camp: the ICRC reported that about 3,600 persons detained at Manjača had been regularly visited, registered, protected, and assisted by the ICRC from mid-July 1992. 71/ However, the ICRC noted that it was refused access to Manjača and Trnopolje from 18 to 26 August 1992. 72/

283. Reports indicate that after the ICRC's first visit on 14 July, Manjača's conditions improved, and there was more food and fewer beatings at the camp. 73/ However, one ex-prisoner said that much of the food was diverted there from ICRC deliveries. He added that a half-hour before each visit, a senior guard would inform the Manjača prisoners of the pending visit and state that if the prisoners complained about conditions, they would be punished. 74/ Another ex-prisoner stated that prior to a 13 August 1992 ICRC visit to the camp, prisoners were instructed to tell the ICRC that they were treated well. The ex-prisoner noted that some prisoners did manage to tell the representatives about ill-treatment, despite the fact that each ICRC representative was accompanied by two Serb soldiers. 75/

284. One ex-prisoner who had been transferred to Manjača from another detention facility said that food and conditions improved considerably at Manjača after the ICRC visit. He said that winter clothing and boots were also issued as the weather turned cold and the first snow arrived in November. He said that the ICRC was present everyday between 9:00 a.m. and 3:00 p.m.. He also said that the ICRC visited on Tuesdays and came with search lists. 76/

285. Amnesty International reported that ex-prisoners stated that beating ceased for the first visit of the ICRC to the camp in mid-July, but that prisoners were systematically beaten the day after the departure of the delegation. 77/ Helsinki Watch quoted an ex-prisoner who had been detained at the camp from 6 August to 1 September 1992 as saying that after the ICRC visit in mid-July, conditions in the camp improved but that beatings continued. 78/

286. Sources also reported that although the camp was under ICRC supervision during the day, the Serbs beat the prisoners at night when the ICRC workers left. It was also reported that on one occasion trucks arrived in the middle of the night and took away 300 prisoners who were later replaced by 300 new inmates so the ICRC would not become suspicious. 79/

287. The ICRC reported that it conducted the following activities at the camp from 14 July 1992 to 18 December 1992: 80/

(a) On 14 July 1992, it visited detainees held at the camp. Each detainee was registered. Since then, there were visits two to three times a week by ICRC delegates.

(b) On 17 August 1992, it introduced relief programs and a specific food emergency program.

(c) It distributed 2.7 metric tons of drugs and medical equipment; mattresses, jerry cans, blankets, plastic sheeting, polystyrene, lime, detergent, soap, and clothing and 427.2 metric tons of food weekly.

(d) On 15 September 1992, under the auspices of the ICRC, 68 medical cases were transferred directly to the United Kingdom for medical treatment.

(e) 1 October 1992, under ICRC auspices, there was a meeting of plenipotentiaries from the three parties involved in the conflict in BiH and the signing of an agreement on the release and transfer of detainees.

(f) On 14 November 1992, 755 detainees were evacuated to Karlovac Centre, a refugee camp in Croatia.

(g) After 2 December 1992, approximately 3,000 persons still held at the camp were regularly visited by ICRC delegates. 81/

(h) On 9 December 1992, there were bilateral talks between ICRC President Sommaruga and leaders of the parties involved in the conflict. Additionally, they confirmed the previous commitments concerning liberation of the detainees.

(i) On 13 December 1992, 532 detainees were transferred by camp authorities to a destination unknown to ICRC. The ICRC undertook to localize those detainees and obtain their freedom.

(j) On 14 December 1992, the ICRC transferred 1,009 detainees to the Karlovac Centre refugee in Croatia.

(k) On 16 December 1992, the ICRC transferred 1,001 detainees to Karlovac.

(l) On 18 December 1992, the remaining detainees 426 were transferred to Karlovac.

(m) On 20 December 1992, the ICRC visited Batković camp, where 401 detainees originating from Manjača were imprisoned. According to reports, the other 131 prisoners remained missing for more than a month. The ICRC was ultimately informed that the missing 131 were at the Kula camp near the Sarajevo airport in preparation for an exchange of prisoners. However, the ICRC did not confirm this information for security reasons. 82/

288. Visits to Manjača by other organizations and individuals: In addition to the ICRC, other organizations and individuals visited and monitored the Manjača camp.

289. On 19 July 1992 (on the occasion of the first ICRC inspection), one reporter was said to have made the first western press visit to Manjača. The reporter said that he was unable to enter the camp but that eight interviewees were marched in formation into a small plaza near the camp entrance. He described the prisoners as wearing prison uniforms and appearing pale, weary, and under duress. When interviewed in the presence of army guards, the prisoners expressed little criticism for their captors and made only a few indications of mistreatment. The reporter said that during that visit he was told by the deputy commander of the Bosnian Serbian Army's Krajina corps at his nearby headquarters that: "We are concealing nothing". However, the reporter noted that former prisoners interviewed away from the camp described a regime where beatings were routine. 83/

290. A chapter of Caritas from Banja Luka reportedly visited the Manjača camp on approximately 17 August 1992. Thereafter, other relief agencies visited. One ex-prisoner said that prior to the visits, food was moved from the kitchen used by the guards and camp administration and put into the kitchen used for feeding prisoners. 84/

291. The Special Rapporteur of the United Nations Commission on Human Rights, Mr. Tadeusz Mazowiecki, was reported to have attempted to visit the Manjača camp during the last week of August 1992. The mission arrived at the camp and was informed by the officer in charge that 3,000 prisoners of war were being held there. The mission, however, was denied permission to visit the camp. The officer said that the prisoners were "tired of being visited by international missions" and that it was too late in the day for a visit (it was reportedly more than an hour before sunset). The officer thereafter indicated that he could not allow the prisoners to be seen because the mission had not requested permission from the central authorities to enter the "Serbian Republic of Bosnia and Hercegovina". The mission failed to see the prisoners at the camp but said that it was provided with information, including photos by a person who it said had visited the camp a few weeks earlier. The mission said that there were signs of malnutrition and in some cases torture. A man also informed the Special Rapporteur that a man detained at the camp had recently been taken to a hospital and weighed only 34 kilograms. 85/

292. The CSCE Thomson Mission reportedly visited the Manjača camp on 30 August 1992. 86/ And, according to a Helsinki Watch report, that organization visited the camp on 13 December 1992. 87/

293. Release of prisoners/camp closing: The Manjača camp was reportedly closed on 18 December 1992 after the above-mentioned series of prisoner releases performed under the auspices of the ICRC. 88/ The following organized prisoner releases took place at Manjača:

(a) The ICRC reported that on 14 November 1992, 755 detainees (including 729 BiH Muslim and 26 Croatians), were released from the camp and transferred to the Karlovac transit camp. 89/

(b) On 14 December 1992, 1,008 90/ prisoners who had been held at Manjača, were released under the auspices of the ICRC. A 9 December 1992 agreement between ICRC President Sommaruga and Bosnian Serb leader Karadžić stipulated that all of the prisoners visited and registered by the ICRC at the Manjača camp were to be released by 18 December 1992. 91/

(c) On 16 December 1992, another 1,001 persons who had been held at the Manjača camp were released. The ICRC, however, requested information about 529 detainees transferred from the camp without its delegates' knowledge and whose whereabouts were unknown at the time. 92/

(d) On 18 December 1992, the Manjača camp was proclaimed closed and the 418 detainees still held there were released under the auspices of the ICRC. The ICRC commented that the camp was totally unsuitable for holding detainees and it trusted that the camp would not be used for that purpose again. Eight other detainees being treated at the Banja Luka hospital were also freed. In a related development, during a visit to a camp in Batković in north-eastern BiH, ICRC delegates found some of the 529 detainees who had been transferred from Manjača on 13 December 1992 without the ICRC's knowledge. 93/ A press report quoted the Batković commander as stating that 532 Manjača detainees were brought to Batković, and that 130 of them were taken to Sarajevo and freed in an exchange. 94/ Another report stated that the ICRC was informed that the missing 130 prisoners were at the Kula camp near the Sarajevo airport in preparation for an exchange of prisoners. However, the ICRC did not verify this information for security reasons. 95/

294. Control of the Manjača camp: Reports describe the Manjača camp as being under the control of the Bosnian Serb Army. 96/ One report generally described the camp as being under the control of the "army". 97/ An ex-prisoner stated that the camp was under the control of Bosnian Serb irregulars calling themselves "Martićevci". Their headquarters were reported to be in Banja Luka. 98/

295. Guards at the Manjača camp: 99/ Soldiers and guards at the Manjača camp reportedly referred to themselves as "Martićevci". 100/ Several reports also stated that the guards referred to each other by Muslim names to hide their identities. 101/ According to one ex-prisoner, the guards used code names to conceal their identities. He added that none of the guards were from the same region as the prisoners. 102/ Another subject said that military police guards were used on the perimeter area of the camp and that these guards were assigned to the camp from either Prijedor or Ključ. 103/

296. One subject who was transferred to Manjača from another detention facility said that the guards at Manjača wore a mixture of JNA uniform, with some wearing the "četnička kapa", and others wearing headbands. The subject also reported guards wearing the "White Eagles" badge of the Arkan Tigers paramilitary group. 104/

297. According to reports, there were approximately 50 soldiers assigned as guards at the camp. 105/ One subject, who was imprisoned at Manjača for several months, reported that the overall camp personnel at no one time exceeded 60. 106/

298. A subject who was transferred to the camp from another detention facility, reported that the guard force at Manjača worked a 7:00 a.m. to 5:00 p.m. shift during the time he spent there until November 1992. The subject also reported that a shift consisted of 30 guards. He added that, unlike Omarska where the guards were drawn from the immediate area and arrived and departed on a daily basis, the guards at Manjača were largely from outside the Manjača area including Ključ and Sanski Most. 107/ The subject said that the guards lived in accommodation outside the fenced area of the camp in the remaining sheds and barns, and that they were replaced every seven days by a new batch of guards. He reported that the guards were armed with automatic rifles, pistols, and clubs. 108/

299. Another subject reported that buses brought in numbers of guards to the camp on a rotating basis. He said that there were 15 guards on duty at a time and that the guard force changed every two hours. He said that the guard force was comprised of soldiers from the Ključ and Sanski Most areas. 109/

300. It was also reported that 20 soldiers/camp guards were permanently quartered in a building called "Krug" (circle), located outside the camp compound. According to one subject, the guards were changed every two weeks. The subject added that the guards wore JNA field uniforms. 110/

301. One ex-prisoner who was transferred to Manjača from another detention facility, said that the "police" at Manjača were mobilized and rotated every month and that camp duty was regarded as their leave period from the front line. He said that when the "police" knew that they had to return to the front line they took it out on the prisoners. 111/

302. Many of the camp's prisoners were transferred to Manjača from other camps.

303. Banja Luka in April/May 1992: One subject reported that he was arrested by Serbian forces in Banja Luka in April 1992 and was sent to the Manjača camp where he was held for a number of days. He said that he had been accused by his captors of participating in subversive activities. 112/

304. Gornja Sanica in May/June 1992: On 28 May 1992, 135 male prisoners from Gornja Sanica were reportedly taken by trailer truck to Manjača 113/ from a transit camp in a school approximately two kilometres west of the Gornja Sanica village centre. 114/ It was similarly reported that in Gornja Sanica on 31 May 1992, Bosnian Muslim males between the ages of 18 and 60 were taken to the town's only school and as large groups were formed, were moved out. According to one subject, some of the males were taken to the city of Ključ for one day, then to Sitnica for five days, and then to the Manjača camp. 115/

305. Doboј in May 1992: It was reported that 240 Muslim prisoners were brought to Manjača from Doboј in May 1992. 116/

306. Stara Gračka in June 1992: One subject reported that on 7 June 1992, 224 BiH Muslims were transferred from Stara Gračka to the Manjača camp. 117/

307. Stara Gradiška in May/June 1992: One subject reported that prisoners were transferred from the Stara Gradiška camp to Manjača in May or June of 1992. The subject said that Yugoslav soldiers escorted them during the transfer and beat them severely. 118/ Other reports describe the transfer of prisoners from Stara Gradiška in June 1992. On 12 June 1992, a prisoner was reportedly transferred from a camp at Stara Gradiška to Manjača. 119/ It was also reported that 450 prisoners were brought to the camp from Stara Gradiška in mid-June 1992. 120/

308. Bosanska Dubica City Jail in late June 1992: One subject reported that he was held at the Bosanska Dubica city jail for interrogation. He said that he was held at the jail until he was transferred with 46 prisoners to Manjača. The subject stated that nine of those transferred were considered to be Muslim extremists. 121/

309. Ključ in June/July 1992: One subject reported that between June and July 1992, approximately 1,300 prisoners were brought to Manjača from a camp in Ključ. 122/ Additional reports describe the transfer of prisoners from a sports hall in Ključ to Manjača. One subject reports that approximately 120 men from the village of Kamičak, near the town of Ključ on 31 May 1992 and loaded into three coaches and taken to Ključ. After being beaten and detained in an unidentified sports hall there, the subject stated that on an unspecified date, they were forced to march 25 kilometres to the Manjača camp, escorted by armed soldiers. He said that the prisoners were marched through an unidentified Serbian village and abused by the villagers. He stated that once the prisoners arrived at the Manjača camp, the soldiers beat them systematically at the entrance. 123/ It was also reported that on 27 June 1992, between 110 and 120 persons were transferred from a detention facility in a sports hall in the town of Ključ to the Manjača camp. A subject said that upon arrival at Manjača, they were stripped naked and their belongings were taken away. He added that they were then beaten for five hours in front of a barn with at least 10 guards present at a given time. 124/

310. Sitnica in June 1992: Other reports describe the transporting of prisoners from a sports hall or other detention area in the village of Sitnica, in June of 1992. On 31 May 1992, people from the village of Vrhpolje were reportedly taken to the neighbouring village of Kamičak where 80 of the men were separated from the women and abused for two days while their village and parts of Kamičak were destroyed. Thereafter, it was reported that the prisoners were taken by bus to the village of Sitnica where they were held in a sports hall with about 350 other persons. The prisoners were reportedly held at Sitnica for about seven days after which they were forced to march 14 miles to the Manjača camp. 125/ One subject also reported that on 7 June 1992, prisoners arrived at Manjača after being transferred by bus from Ključ to the town of "Sitnice" where, after being abused and initially held for one week, they were forced to walk another 20 miles to Manjača. 126/

311. Camp in Sanski Most in July 1992: One subject said that were taken from their homes in Ključ on 27 May 1992 and were first held in Sanski Most for 12 days. He said that thereafter, six covered trucks, each packed with 150 people or more were transferred to Manjača. He said that 18 people died on the way as a result of asphyxiation since there was not enough air to breathe. 127/

312. Other reports describe the transport of inhabitants from Sanski Most to the Manjača camp on 7 July 1992. 128/ In one report, a subject stated that on 7 July 1992, he and approximately 600 other men originating from the village of Sanski Most were taken from a large indoor gymnasium at a school in the district of Narodni Front where they had been detained for 42 days. The men were loaded onto trucks and relocated to the Manjača camp. According to the report, each truck held approximately 160 men who were crammed into the vehicles. As each man entered the truck he was reportedly beaten severely by armed military escorts with police batons. The subject reported that by the end of a nearly six hour journey to Manjača, 20 prisoners had died from dehydration, heat stroke, or severe injuries. 129/ A subject reported that in July 1992, 1,000 to 1,100 Muslims were transported from a camp in Sanski Most and 100 from Prijedor. 130/

313. Another subject reported that on or about 14 July 1992, all of the prisoners held at a gymnasium in Sanski Most were transferred to Manjača via four large livestock transport trucks with trailers. He said that the prisoners were loaded onto the trucks with their hands tied behind their backs and that the convoy was guarded by military police who were identifiable by their belt buckles. He added that the civilian police handed over accountability lists to the military police and that one trailer had a regular JNA soldier armed with an assault rifle. He reported that conditions on the truck were very bad and that approximately 18 prisoners died en route to the Manjača camp. He added that the corpses were left on the trucks. 131/

314. Omarska camp, Prijedor in August 1992: There are numerous reports describing a mass transfer of prisoners from the Omarska camp to the Manjača camp on or about 6-8 August 1992. Another transfer of the remaining prisoners at the Omarska camp was also reported at the end of August.

315. One document purportedly sent to the United Nations by the Banja Luka City Council, stated:

"On 7 August 1992 we had received a report that about 35 buses, filled with camp inmates, who were simply hidden by the police, [were] moved from their location in Omarska camp to another area, this time going towards Manjača." 132/

316. Below are summaries of reports which allege that there was a mass transfer of prisoners from the Omarska camp to Manjača during the period of 6-8 August 1992. There was also a smaller transfer of Omarska prisoners to Manjača in late August 1992. Most of the early-August reports describe prisoners jammed onto buses on a hot summer day, with the heat turned up and the windows sealed shut. The reports also describe physical abuse, men dying from the heat and lack of water, and cases of killing of prisoners en route and upon arrival at Manjača. 133/ The reports vary as to certain details, but appear to establish that such a mass transfer of prisoners did occur:

(a) A subject stated that about three days after a group of journalists arrived at the Omarska camp, the prisoners began to be dispersed to other camps. He said that Omarska authorities prepared lists of three categories of prisoners. He added that it was unclear how these lists were divided but said that it seemed that Category 1 may have been the active-duty military people and intellectuals; Category 2 consisted of about 1,700 prisoners, who were sent to the Manjača camp and; Category 3 prisoners were sent to Trnopolje. He said that the trip to the Manjača camp began with a guard reading off a list of prisoner names. He said that those prisoners boarded approximately 24 buses which would take them to Manjača. He reported that the convoy set off at about 5:00 p.m. but that it got a flat tire and did not arrive until about 11:00 p.m.. 134/

(b) Likewise, an ex-prisoner who was held at Omarska said that lists of names were read out, and that prisoners were placed in three categories: 1) those who had fought when Serbs invaded; 2) those in some way connected with 1; and 3) those, who had a clean sheet. The subject said that categories 1 and 2 were sent to Manjača while those in category 3 were sent to Trnopolje and subsequently released. 135/

(c) Another subject similarly reported that on 6 August 1992, there was a roll call at Omarska and approximately 1,200 prisoners were loaded onto 11 buses which departed at approximately 4:00 p.m. for Manjača. Each bus reportedly carried between 110 and 115 prisoners and four camp guards. Subject stated that each guard had a seat while prisoners sat in the remaining seats and on the floor and were required to keep their heads bent between their knees. He said that there was no water and that the bus windows were shut tight and covered with curtains. He said that the bus did not stop and arrived at Manjača at about midnight. The subject stated that no one was allowed off the bus until 8:00 a.m. on 7 August. He said that the temperature inside the buses reached approximately 32 degrees centigrade. He added that at least 16 elderly men died en route to Manjača. 136/

(d) One subject who was part of the transfer, stated that on 6 August 1992, the prisoners were divided into two groups and 30 buses arrived from Prijedor to transport them to Manjača. He said that he was placed, together with 97 other persons, in a bus with tightly sealed windows and that the passengers were given no water and drank urine to survive. 137/

(c) Another subject reported that on 5 August 1992, Serbian camp authorities from the Omarska camp transported most of the prisoners to Manjača. He said that at 1:00 a.m., on 6 August, the armed Serb guards who escorted the buses took 10 prisoners off the buses and killed them. 138/

(d) A subject 139/ stated that on 6 August 1992 he and approximately 1,800 other prisoners were transported by buses containing 80 to 100 prisoners each. He said that during the journey he and the others were made to sit with their heads bowed, and that the windows were closed despite the mid-summer heat. He added that during the journey they were subjected to ill-treatment including robbery by the guards from Omarska and Prijedor who accompanied the convoy. According to the subject, the convoy arrived at Manjača at 2,200.

(e) Another subject reported that on 6 August 1992, approximately 1,000 prisoners were transported from Omarska to Trnopolje and that another 1,300, including the subject, were transported in 17 buses to Manjača. He stated that during the transport there were constant beatings and that the heat in the buses were turned on with the windows sealed shut. He said that the drive to Manjača lasted between 16 and 21 hours. The subject stated that the prisoners on the bus were dehydrated and that three died from a lack of oxygen. He said that nine prisoners on the buses died from severe beatings and that one was thrown from a moving bus. 140/

(f) One subject who was included in the transfer reported that on 7 August 1992, 2,300 prisoners were transferred to Manjača from Omarska. He said that Manjača camp officials had what appeared to be a computerized list of the incoming prisoners' names when they arrived. He stated further 2,000 of the prisoners were admitted and that an additional 300 were taken elsewhere. Subject said that the remaining prisoners later concluded that those 300 prisoners were all residents of Kozarac. 141/

(g) Another subject who was part of the transfer to Manjača stated that he and the other prisoners had to sleep in the buses during the first night. He stated that they were next brought to a field and that a person who he identified as the camp commander brought a list of names. The subject stated that those who were called had to stay on their knees, head down, for hours. They were thereafter brought to the former stables. 142/

(h) One subject who was already at Manjača, stated that on 7 August 1992, a 23-bus column containing around 1,300 prisoners from Omarska arrived. He said that prisoners were forced to kneel and were kicked during transport and that six dead were removed from the buses. 143/

(i) One report quotes a subject who was brought to Manjača from Omarska on an unidentified date. According to the subject:

"During the ride we had to sing Serbian songs. We got nothing to drink and we had to keep the windows closed. Furthermore, the Serbian soldiers also beat us during the ride. They stopped at every inn; the soldiers went off and drank . . . Before arriving in the camp we stopped, eight persons were brought out of the bus and knifed by the Serbian soldiers . . . One of the prisoners died in the bus because he couldn't stand the heat and thirst". 144/

317. One subject said that on 6 August 1992 he was transferred with several other prisoners to the camp at Manjača. He recalled that after his departure, some 180 prisoners remained at Omarska. He reported that en route to Manjača, 18 prisoners were killed and another 12 were killed in front of the Manjača camp upon arrival. He said that the prisoners were escorted by members of the irregular police called "Martić's Unit" and two camp guards from Omarska. 145/

318. A subject who was held at the Omarska camp from late May 1992, reported that he was transferred to the Manjača camp in August 1992 with an estimated 184 remaining men at Omarska. 146/

319. Jajce and Kotor Varoš in October 1992: A subject who had been at Manjača from June through the end of 1992, stated that 100 persons were transported to the camp from Jajce and that 300 others were brought in from Kotor Varoš. 147/

320. Intake procedures: Prisoners were reportedly brought to the Manjača camp at night by closed freight trucks and buses. The vehicles were reportedly parked on the outside corner of the camp and were guarded until daylight, when the passengers were unloaded and processed into the camp. 148/ Thereafter, the prisoners were reportedly in-processed, accompanied by searches and beatings. 149/

321. One subject who was transferred from Omarska to Manjača in early August 1992 stated that he and the other prisoners had to sleep in the buses during the first night at the camp. He stated that they were next brought to a field and that a person whom he identified as the camp commander brought a list of names. The subject stated that those prisoners who were called had to stay on their knees, head down, for hours before being brought to their housing. 150/

322. Another subject who was included in the transfer from Omarska to Manjača in early August stated that Manjača camp officials had what appeared to be a computerized list of the incoming prisoners' names when they arrived. He stated further, that 2,000 of the prisoners were admitted and that an additional 300 were taken elsewhere. The subject said that the remaining prisoners later concluded that those 300 prisoners were all residents of Kozarac. 151/

323. Abuse and killings during intake: One subject who arrived at the Manjača camp from an area in western BiH in early 1992, said that en route to their detention building, prisoners were forced to pass one-by-one through a double row of guards who beat them as they passed. 152/ Another subject reported that on 7 July 1992, he and other prisoners were beaten as they exited buses upon their arrival at Manjača from another camp in Sanski Most. 153/

324. A subject who had been at Manjača from June through the end of 1992 reported that on the evening of 19 July 1992, 1,200 Muslims from the Omarska area were brought into Manjača by bus and parked outside the perimeter. The next morning the captives were unloaded and formed into groups for processing. The subject reported that 24 of the prisoners were attacked with knives and killed. He said that the corpses were loaded onto trucks and taken away. 154/

325. One subject who was transferred from Omarska in August 1992, reported that after spending the night on the buses, three prisoners were called out by the guards, who ordered them to kneel down. The guards thereafter slit the prisoners' throats. The subject reported that the camp commander arrived thereafter and stopped further killings. 155/

326. Likewise, a subject who was reportedly transferred from Omarska in August 1992 stated that after their arrival, they spent the night on their buses. During the night he said that 15 men were called outside and killed with bayonets. He said that in the morning, a Montenegrin man who he identified as the camp commander, arrived and stopped further killings. 156/

327. Another subject who had been transferred from Omarska to Manjača in August 1992, reported that the first group of prisoners were kept in buses overnight. He reported that on the following day, six of the prisoners in the group were killed by guards who had escorted them from Omarska. He said that these men had been owners of enterprises who had held positions of responsibility. He described the killing of one man who was called by guards from about 10 metres away, made to kneel and had his throat cut. 157/ Likewise, one subject who was transferred to Manjača from the Omarska camp (this appears to have occurred in early August) reported that when the prisoners came to Manjača, eight to 10 men had their throats cut in front of his eyes. 158/

328. One subject reported that during his transfer from Omarska in early August 1992, the prisoners were made to stay on the buses until 7:00 the following morning. He added that they were ill-treated and that nine prisoners were taken off the bus by guards and beaten to death. He identified four of these men and stated that they were killed for no apparent reason other than the fact that they had raised their heads. According to the subject, the first of the identified individuals was beaten to death after first begging to be killed swiftly. Subject said that after beating this victim to death, guards urinated on the body. The subject also described and identified another prisoner who was stabbed to death after looking out of the bus window. 159/ The subject stated that the prisoners were thereafter called out of the buses by name and formed into groups of 100. He said they were marched into barns outside of the fenced camp area where they were made to strip naked and adopt the Islamic position of prayer and shout blasphemies. He added that their clothing was searched and items such as razor blades and toothbrushes were confiscated. 160/

329. One subject who was transferred to Manjača from Omarska in early August stated that on the morning of 7 August, the guards at Manjača called out the names of about eight prisoners who were taken from the buses and shot or beaten and slashed to death. He stated that several prisoners inside the bus were able to peek through the curtain and witnessed the killings. He stated that once removed from the buses, the prisoners were seated on the ground in two groups of 600 men each. Each group reportedly formed 60 rows of 10 men. According to the subject, there was no water and each prisoner was required to sit with his head between his knees. He said that the first 600-man group entered Manjača at about 3:00 p.m. and that the second group followed two hours later. Once inside the camp, he stated that for the first time prisoners received medical attention. He added that those who were sick, very old, very young, or injured, were sent to Trnopolje in two buses. 161/

330. One subject stated that after being transferred on buses from Omarska on an unspecified date, he and the other prisoners were given no water for 26 hours and no food for almost 40 hours. He added that after removal from the buses, some of the men were forced to crouch in a prayer position on the gravel for a few hours, and that those who did not crouch "properly" were hit with rifle butts. 162/

331. Surrender of valuables during intake: In mid-June 1992, a group of 450 prisoners from Stara Gradiška were reportedly lined up along the road before entering the camp and were ordered to undress completely as the guards searched their personal belongings, reportedly taking all valuables from them including rings, watches, gold, money, etc. 163/

332. One subject who was reportedly transferred along with other prisoners from Omarska in early August, 1992, said that once the prisoners were removed from their bus, they were registered and "robbed". 164/

333. Camp conditions: Almost all sources confirm Manjača's harsh conditions. According to a report of the United Nations Special Rapporteur of the Commission on Human Rights:

"Despite being denied access to the Manjača prison camp, the Special Rapporteur had received ample information about conditions there. Most sources give the number of detainees as being approximately 4,000 men who are housed in large, open buildings formerly used as stables. Physical conditions were especially bad during the first several months after the detention facility was opened. Evidence of serious malnutrition, harsh discipline, strictly rationed water, poor sanitation, overcrowding, lack of proper medical care and beating of prisoners has been received from a variety of credible sources. Physical conditions have improved somewhat since the camp began to be visited by international bodies in August". 165/

Another report by the Special Rapporteur states: "[C]onditions at the Manjača camp before it was closed were reliably reported to have been extremely poor, with life-threatening neglect of prisoners, lack of food and inadequate hygiene". 166/

334. Subjects who were transferred from Omarska in early August 1992 reported that conditions were difficult at Manjača but were more bearable than they had been at Omarska. Some noted that this was especially true following the visit by the ICRC. 167/ One subject who had been transferred from Omarska in early

August 1992 commented that although they were housed in former stables at Manjača, they were treated fairly during their stay there and were visited by the ICRC until the camp closed in mid-December. 168/ Another subject who was transferred to Manjača from Omarska in early August said that those prisoners who volunteered for work got better food and that guards sometimes beat prisoners but much less than at Omarska. 169/

335. A subject who arrived at Manjača in mid-July 1992 stated that he was told by other prisoners that during the three-month period prior to the ICRC's arrival at the camp, many prisoners were killed either individually or in groups and that they were buried in fields surrounding the Manjača camp compound. 170/

336. Meals/Nourishment: According to The Thomson CSCE report in September 1992:

"A major concern in this centre [Manjača] involves the lack of proper nourishment provided to detainees until two to three weeks ago, which has resulted in seriously malnourished states. A majority of detainees exhibit obvious signs of cachexia, alopecia (hair loss), gross muscle wasting and 'sunken eyes' and all have lost 10 to 40 kilos in weight during two to three months of detention. A meal was served during our visit, a thick bean soup and bread, and the authority and detainees all told us that more nourishing meals have been available during the past two weeks than formerly." 171/

337. According to reports, there were two meals served per day at the camp. 172/ Reports described meals being served between 6:00 to 9:00 a.m. and 2:00 to 5:00 p.m. 173/ The meals were said to improve after the ICRC visits in July-August 1992. 174/

338. It was reported that food was prepared by prisoner-cooks in each of the two sections of the camp in three field kitchens standing outside the mess hall. 175/ One subject confirmed that the prisoners worked in the kitchens. 176/

339. Each housing building was reportedly divided into six groups which proceeded separately into the mess hall. Each building reportedly had one prisoner trustee (Poverenik) who was responsible for getting everyone out fast and for keeping order. 177/

340. One subject who arrived from Omarska in early August 1992, stated that prisoners at Manjača were taken one "hut row" at a time (approximately 200 prisoners) for eating and that prisoners were given 15 minutes to eat their meal. He estimated that it took about three hours per sitting. He said that the food upon his arrival was very poor but that it improved both in quantity and quality after the ICRC visited Manjača on 25 August. 178/

341. There were various descriptions of the content of meals served at the Manjača camp. One kilogram of bread reportedly was divided between 40 prisoners for each meal. 179/ For breakfast, a small jar of meat spread was reportedly divided between six prisoners. For dinner there was sometimes kasha, potatoes or rice. Tea was seldom served. 180/

342. Likewise, a subject who was transferred to Manjača from Stara Gradiška in May/June 1992, said that 30 prisoners split one loaf of bread, five tins of liverwurst for breakfast, and that each prisoner received 1/2 litre of tea. He said that for lunch the prisoners were given one kilo of bread per 30 prisoners with a helping of boiled potatoes or beans per prisoner. 181/

343. Another subject who was held at the camp from May to November 1992 reported that in the morning each prisoner was given one cup of tea and that 30 prisoners shared one loaf of bread. The subject reported that at around 4:00 p.m., each prisoner received a slice of ham and bread and also one loaf of bread for every 30 prisoners. 182/

344. It was also reported that: one loaf of bread was shared by 22 prisoners daily; 183/ each prisoner's daily food ration consisted of two small slices of bread and a small quantity of tea daily (from June to November 1992); 184/ in the morning the prisoners got a thin slice of bread and plain tea, and lunch consisted of another slice of bread and a small amount of cooked food, usually soup or gruel (in early August 1992). 185/

345. One subject who was transferred from Omarska in early August said that upon his arrival at Manjača the food was very poor. He added, however, that after the ICRC visited the camp on 25 August, the food improved both in quantity and quality with cocoa/milk and a tin of fish between two prisoners and a quarter of a loaf of bread for the first sitting. He said that for the second sitting the prisoners received a plate of stew of greater variety and substance than had been previously served. He added that every two weeks each prisoner was given a packet of 20 cigarettes and a half kilo of biscuits. 186/ Another subject who was transferred from Omarska in early August said that about a month after his arrival the ICRC started feeding the prisoners, and they were given vitamin tablets. He alleges, however, that the camp guards stole much of their food. 187/

346. Water: The Thomson CSCE Mission reported that in September 1992 there was no local water supply at Manjača and that portable containers were trucked there regularly, permitting only "five litres of water per day" for each prisoner. The report said that this ration was to be used for consumption, personal washing, and laundry. 188/

347. It was also reported that water had to be brought in daily by the prisoners in plastic containers from a lake located 600 metres from the camp. 189/ Another subject who had been transferred to the camp from Omarska in early August and remained there for several days, reported that water was available from a cistern. 190/

348. One subject reported that water was rationed and available only in small quantities at Manjača. In the summer, only 10 litres of water was reportedly provided to each building with an estimated 700 prisoners. It was reported that two faucets were located in each section of the camp outside of the buildings, and that the prisoners were unable to get to the water since they were strictly forbidden to leave the buildings. Any prisoner who asked for more water reportedly received beatings. 191/

349. Other reports varied as to the amount of water provided to Manjača's prisoners. One subject reported that 60 litres of water was provided for all occupants of each stall between the periods including July through December 1992; 192/ another subject who had been transferred to Manjača from Omarska in early August estimated that the prisoners would get 3,000 litres of water for 2,000 men, working out to about one and a half litres of water for each man per day. He said that some of this water was used for ordinary cleaning. 193/

350. Sleeping facilities: Reports describe conditions at Manjača with men living in un-insulated cattle barns. Despite being cold, the prisoners stated that the conditions were much better than at Omarska. 194/ Reports also stated that Manjača's prisoners were forced to sleep on concrete floors. 195/

351. One subject who was transferred to Manjača from the Stara Gradiška camp in May or June of 1992 said that upon arrival the prisoners had to first clean manure from the sheds. He said that when they cleaned the sheds they were given straw to make themselves beds on the concrete floor. 196/ A subject who had been transferred to Manjača from Omarska in early August stated that wet grass was used as bedding rather than hay or straw and that they "would probably have been better off without it". 197/

352. According to one report, in mid-June 1992, new arrivals slept on the concrete floor without blankets. For the next 15 days, three prisoners reportedly slept under one blanket. 198/ Other reports in June and July 1992, said that four detainees were required to share each blanket. There was, however, reportedly some straw or ferns on the concrete ground where the prisoners slept. 199/ Only after a ICRC visit in July 1992 did each prisoner receive his own blankets. 200/

353. The CSCE Thomson Mission in August 1992 reported that detainees occupied a blanket-covered concrete or earth floored space, approximately 6.5 feet by thirty inches, in six long rows of approximately 80 persons per row. It said that there was a walkway, approximately two feet wide between the rows. The total occupancy per stable was estimated at 500 persons. 201/

354. Medical treatment: The CSCE reported that at Manjača

"[m]edical services are very basic, provided by detainee physicians, who have little with which to work. Drugs and other medical supplies are very limited, whereas medical records are scrupulously maintained. The 'hospital ward' is housed in a small stable, accommodating approximately 15 ill or injured detainees on a concrete floor, with only a blanket each for comfort. We were told that the more seriously ill and injured were taken to the Banja Luka hospital for treatment." 202/

355. One subject reported that a Serbian medical doctor used to come once a week to the camp to "superficially" check sick prisoners. He said that no medicine was available for the prisoners. He also stated that there were three Muslim prisoners who were medical doctors and were permitted to move freely, when accompanied by a guard, to help prisoners. 203/ Another subject reported that there was no medicine at the camp and that the only medical treatment was provided by two doctors who were themselves prisoners. 204/

356. One subject who was transferred to Manjača from Omarska reported that upon arrival at Manjača, prisoners were taken 10 at a time into a room for a medical inspection. He said that the prisoners had to strip to their underwear and socks and that any belts, shoelaces, or documents were removed. The subject reported that despite having a "black back" from prior beatings and a stab wound in his side, he was admitted as having nothing wrong with him. 205/

357. Electricity: One subject reported that there was no electricity in the camp. He also reported that he observed no generators and that the camp was in virtual darkness throughout the night. 206/

358. Toilets: It was reported that each of the two camp sections had two latrines used by the prisoners. 207/ It was also reported that "pit latrines" had been constructed in several locations of the camp, closed on three sides and apparently periodically treated with lime and regularly relocated. However, these latrines reportedly produced an "offensive" odor. 208/

359. Hygiene: The September 1992 report of the Thomson CSCE Mission stated that a "portable shower" with privacy curtain, was brought to the camp every 15 days. But the report added that personal hygiene was seriously compromised at the camp. 209/ One subject who had been transferred to Manjača from Omarska in early August similarly reported that a bath was organized for the prisoners every 15 days and that the prisoners had about 60 seconds to wash. He added that the prisoners were allowed to wash out laundry every Sunday if there was water. 210/ Another subject reported that he was unable to wash for three months. 211/

360. Weight loss: It was reported that detainees at the Manjača camp lost from 10 to 40 kilograms during two to three months of detention at the camp. 212/ One subject reported that during his time at the camp between mid-June and mid-August 1992, he lost 37 kilograms. 213/ Another ex-prisoner who was held at the camp for quite a few days from May to June of 1992, reported that he lost 17 kilograms. 214/ Another ex-prisoner who was held from mid-June 1992 until mid-November 1992, stated that his weight dropped from 100 kilograms to 72 kilograms while in the camp and that his sight had been affected as a result of his diet there. 215/

361. Prisoner routine: It was reported that the Manjača camp was "run like a prison with very strict rules". According to one report, the prisoners were forced to get up at 5:00 a.m. and fold their blankets. 216/ Further, the prisoners reportedly had to engage in very hard labor. 217/ (For examples of forced labor see paragraphs 363 to 367, below.)

362. The Thomson CSCE Mission reported that they were advised by Manjača's commander that detainees were permitted out of doors for up to several hours each day, and that some agreed to various types of outside work, "all according to the Geneva Conventions". The commander reportedly added that not all detainees took advantage of these opportunities. 218/ One subject who had been transferred to Manjača in early-August from the Omarska camp said that the prisoners were allowed to walk out of their stables only with the permission of the guards. Although he added that it wasn't very hard to get permission to visit other stables. 219/

363. Forced labor: Forced labor was reported as a common practice at Manjača. One report claims that prisoners worked under observation of armed guards and dogs. 220/ One subject reported that prisoners were assigned to work 6-8 hours a day, six days a week. 221/

364. There are reports that prisoners worked in the forest near the camp. 222/ One subject reported that a group of 34 prisoners were expected to cut 40 cubic metres of wood daily and that each man received .5 kilograms of bread daily. The prisoners were also reported to have been beaten by the soldiers guarding them and were not allowed to tell the camp commander about the beatings. 223/ Another ex-prisoner said that every day approximately 1,000 prisoners carried wooden planks measuring one metre long by one-half metre wide, up a hill to trucks to be loaded or unloaded. 224/ One ex-prisoner reported that they were sent on forced labor details to cut wood to heat the offices and quarters of Serbian soldiers in Banja Luka. 225/

365. One ex-prisoner who was transferred to Manjača in May or June of 1992 said that when he first arrived at the camp the prisoners had to clean manure from the camp's sheds. He said that the guards also beat them. In addition, he reported they were forced to dig trenches around the camp and put up a barbed wire fence. 226/

366. There are also reports that several prisoners were selected to provide labor at a military base near the camp. One ex-prisoner said that in late August 1992, approximately 80 tons of guns and grenades were unloaded over a 20-day period and placed in a warehouse. According to the subject, the warehouse was a concrete structure with a red-tiled peaked roof, located near the edge of the forest at the foot of a slope below the prison camp. Prisoners were reportedly not allowed to work at the base more than one day for security reasons. Subject said that prisoners were not abused there. 227/ Another ex-prisoner reportedly did forced labor at the JNA base in Banja Luka.

This subject claims that the prisoners built fences around the base and were often beaten during the day for not working fast enough. 228/

367. Some reports stated that prisoners worked in the fields to harvest feed corn for the livestock, cleaned and cared for the animals, repaired vehicles and roads, and performed other strenuous labor at the camp. 229/ Other prisoners were reportedly forced to dig potatoes and engage in other agricultural work, engage in heavy manual labor, and dig ditches for irrigation. 230/ According to one ex-prisoner, when not working, they were confined to their sheds. 231/

368. Abuse during detention: The Thomson CSCE Mission report stated that,

"[w]e are convinced that the authority has little sympathy for the detainees [at Manjača] and that discipline in the centre has been maintained by extreme and unlawful measures. We witnessed the results of beatings with blunt instruments, and have good reason to believe that people who appear to have been innocent detainees were executed since late May 1992. . . . Detainees were reluctant to provide specific detail concerning atrocities, but hints were offered to that effect. There is also reason to believe that conditions are relatively improved since international delegations, the ICRC and the press have had ready access to this centre. The centre's military commandant stresses 'work, order and discipline', and he undoubtedly does so very forcefully." 232/

369. Beatings and killings during detention: There are numerous allegations of deliberate and arbitrary beatings and killings of prisoners at the Manjača camp. Below are representative examples of the types of atrocities reportedly committed at the Manjača camp.

370. One subject stated that almost everyday in the late afternoon, six to eight "Martićevci" would come to the prisoner housing and pick from five to 10 prisoners to torture them in a building which the prisoners called Samica (meaning single prison cell). The subject was never personally beaten in this manner but reported that other prisoners were made to stand at the wall and were beaten with bats, rubber clubs, metal wires, electric cables, and other objects. According to the subject, prisoners were also kicked about the head and face when they were unable to walk. The subject said that some of these prisoners died and some were shot in the Samica. He stated that prisoners who were picked up after 8:00 p.m. were almost always beaten to death and did not return from the Samica. 233/

371. A subject who was brought to Manjača in late May 1992, stated that every night after dark, several guards would come to the barn with a list of names to remove approximately five to six prisoners whose names were on a list. Those prisoners were then taken to the Samica building which was approximately 50 metres from the barn where the subject was held. The subject stated that the prisoners in the adjacent barn could hear the screams of the prisoners while they were being tortured. He said that the prisoners on the lists were generally either people of standing or members of the Party for Democratic Action (SDA--Stranka Demokratske Akcije). 234/

372. Another subject who was brought to the camp in early June said that every second day the camp guards beat him in the evening after the prisoners had gone to bed. He said that the guards walked past his housing stall and read out about 10 names. The prisoners followed the guards to a room near the kitchen, and each prisoner was beaten for 20 minutes to a half-hour. He said, "We were beaten until we fell over. It was best to stay up as long as you could. It was easier to take body blows than to be kicked." It was also reported that one prisoner earned the nickname "rubber man" because he never let himself be knocked down. 235/

373. One subject described beatings at the camp with high voltage wire. The subject said that once the prisoners fell, they were kicked until they died. 236/

374. Another subject reportedly witnessed the guards at the camp shoot a man and then jump on his head. The prisoner decedent was not identified. The same subject also reported prisoners being forced into genital biting. 237/

375. One report quotes a subject who said that prisoners at the camp were frequently beaten. He reportedly lost 11 teeth in three days due to beatings. He alleged that Serbian soldiers were "taking out" the skilled people and the "intellegentsia" from a list. He alleged that when a new group of prisoners arrived at the camp the soldiers selected 10 persons at random and cut their throats. 238/

376. One subject who was transferred to the camp from Ključ in late June 1992, said that on 27 August 1992, he was severely beaten. He said that on 28 August 1992, he witnessed the President of the Party for Democratic Action in Prijedor and two other men being killed. He said that the prisoners were beaten in an area that was used for solitary confinement of prisoners, about 100 metres from the barn. 239/

377. Another subject, who was transferred from Omarska in August 1992 stated that by the time of his arrival, the killing of prisoners largely ceased at Manjača. He added that beatings were confined to the body so that they would not be visible. Another subject who had been transferred from Omarska in early August said that the conditions at Manjača were far better than those at Omarska, that there were no incidents of cruelty, and that the food was better. 240/

378. One subject stated that during his nine-plus weeks at the camp, he counted 50 prisoners killed by beating, torture or shooting. 241/

379. Another subject said that during his time at the camp from June to December 1992, nine detainees were killed. 242/

380. One report described the discovery of 25 bodies of emaciated men, believed to be prisoners at Manjača in August 1992. 243/

381. Disposal of bodies: One subject stated that a civilian ambulance from Banja Luka marked with Red Cross signs was used to pick up dead bodies and transport them. He said that the van was always operated by civilian drivers. 244/

382. One subject said that after the killing of 24 prisoners who had just arrived from Omarska on 20 July 1992, the corpses were loaded onto trucks and taken away. 245/

383. One unidentified subject who was transferred to Manjača from Stara Gradiška said that the bodies of the prisoners killed at the Manjača camp were taken to Banja Luka by truck and placed into freezers there. 246/

384. One subject who had been transferred from the camp from Omarska said that he did not personally know, but heard that bodies from Manjača were thrown into the river Vrbas. 247/

385. Local residents reportedly found the bodies of 25 prisoners near the camp in July 1992. 248/

386. Torture during detention: One report quotes a subject who stated that every day guards took him and the other prisoners out of the stables at 7:00 a.m., and forced them to sit in the sun holding their heads down with their hands behind their backs. He stated that Serb guards forced them to stay in that position until 3:00 to 4:00 p.m. He added that Serb guards, soldiers and civilians came to beat them with bats, pieces of wood, metal bars, hoses, wire cables, and that they kicked them, and hit them in the kidneys, across the neck, back, and over the head. He stated that Serb civilians were let into the camp, including women and children, and that they spit on the prisoners, stone them and beat them with various objects. He stated that some of them even cut fingers from the prisoners' hands, leaving only three fingers (the Serb salute). 249/

387. One subject who was held at the camp from approximately June 1992 to 15 September 1992 said that at Manjača, a list of names would be read out by the Serbs and that the persons on the list would be tortured, some to death. He said that the accusations made against those persons were "vague misdemeanors". 250/

388. One subject who was held at the camp from approximately June 1992 to mid-September 1992, stated that in one incident an Imam was given a half glass of water mixed with urine to drink. 251/

389. Interrogation During Detention: One subject who was transferred from Omarska said that only those prisoners who were former policemen were subjected to interrogation. 252/

390. One subject described his interrogation at Manjača in mid-June, a few days after arrival. He was reportedly interrogated twice by the same official, dressed in a blue SUP uniform, who had interrogated him three weeks earlier in Stara Gradiška. Each interrogation reportedly lasted one to two hours and was conducted in a neutral manner with the same routine questions: whether he possessed a home or weapons; if he voted for an independent BiH in the recent referendum; if he was a member of a political party and; whether he wanted to return to his home after the war was over. 253/

391. One report quoted a subject as saying that unidentified individuals came daily, taking people for interrogation and that many prisoners did not return. He stated that this went on for seven months. He identified a person who was a judge of the Regional Court in the subject's town of Sanski Most. The subject stated that this person was a Serb who along with others would interrogate approximately 100 persons daily. The subject further stated that prisoners were beaten and tortured to admit that they were part of a movement against the Serbs. 254/

392. One subject stated that there were far fewer interrogations at the camp than at Omarska. 255/

393. Rape during detention: Although most reports indicate that only males were held at the Manjača camp, there are allegations by at least two women who say they were held at the camp and raped. One female subject 256/ claimed to have been held at the camp for 16 days with her daughter and son. She reported that both she and her daughter were raped and tortured in different ways. 257/ Another report described what appears to be the same woman 258/ who was interrogated, tortured and, along with her daughter, raped by guards.

The woman also said that she watched as guards questioned another mother and raped her daughter in front of other women held at the camp. The young girl reportedly died soon afterward. These rapes were reported to have occurred between 12 and 18 April 1992. 259/ Another female subject, 260/ said that she was held at Manjača where she was raped. She was reported to be 25 weeks pregnant at the time of a subsequent examination. This report did not detail when the woman was alleged to have been held at the Manjača camp. 261/

394. It was also reported that during an unspecified time period, Bosnian Muslim men were forced to rape females as young as 15 years old at Manjača. It was further alleged that in one case, a 14 year-old boy was forced to have sex with a 60 year-old woman. 262/

395. Special treatment of Croat prisoners: One witness stated that Bosnian Croats were treated more poorly than were Muslims at the camp. He reported that Croats at Manjača were under strict restrictions and could not move anywhere. It was also reported that each time Serbian forces were beaten in the battlefields, Serbs then took Croat detainees, broke their fingers and arms, and cut them repeatedly. 263/

396. One subject stated that a Croatian prisoner of war was shot and killed by one of the guards/commanders in September 1992, during an interrogation in the Samica. 264/

397. One subject alleged that on 17 October 1992, authorities at Manjača reportedly loaded 120 Croat prisoners and took them to itnić (Croatia) where they were to be exchanged. The prisoners were reportedly forced to swallow large quantities of salt and were beaten with wooden clubs and forced to sing pro-Serbian songs. The prisoners were then taken to Knin and imprisoned in a building overnight where they were reportedly maltreated by persons with SAO Krajina insignia, members of the irregular police, and anonymous civilians (including women and young boys). The prisoners returned to the Manjača camp on the following morning. 265/

398. Other subjects reported a similar occurrence on 20 October 1992, when 120 Croatian prisoners at the camp were taken from Manjača for an alleged prisoner exchange. 266/ The reports said that Serbian soldiers escorting the buses forced the prisoners to lick and eat handfuls of salt and then refused them water. The reports said that the exchange did not take place and that the prisoners were placed in rooms in an unidentified military facility in Knin. The prisoners were then reportedly beaten and abused by irregular Serbian police and members of unidentified paramilitary forces and drunk civilians in Knin. On the following day the prisoners were reportedly returned to Manjača. 267/

399. Transfer of the Manjača prisoner population to other camps: Reports indicate that prisoners held at the Manjača camp were in some cases transferred to other detention facilities. The following reports detail such transfers.

400. Transfer to Batković and Kula camps in December 1992: According to the ICRC and other sources, an estimated 529 prisoners at Manjača were transferred to the Batković camp in north-eastern BiH without the ICRC's permission on 13 December 1992. Helsinki Watch reported that on that date, it witnessed 500 men (including 319 Muslims, 180 Croatians and one German--numbers reportedly given by Serbian authorities administering the camp), being taken away from Manjača on buses marked "VRS" (Vojska Republike Srbije--Army of the Serbian Republic). According to reports, the ICRC discovered 401 of the above-mentioned prisoners at the Batković camp on 20 December 1992 and was ultimately informed that the remaining prisoners were awaiting a prisoner exchange at the Kula camp near the Sarajevo airport. 268/

401. Transfer to Trnopolje Camp in August 1992: One subject who was brought to Manjača from Omarska in early August 1992 stated that 140 prisoners 269/ who were sick, very old, very young, or injured, were sent to Trnopolje in two buses after their intake at Manjača. 270/ Another subject who was transferred to Manjača from Omarska in early August stated that after 15 days, some prisoners, mostly very old or very young men, were transferred from the camp to Trnopolje. The subject was reportedly among this group of more than 150 prisoners who boarded two buses and were taken to Trnopolje. 271/ One subject reported that after he was brought to the Manjača camp from Omarska in early-August, he was told that he had been found "not guilty" 272/ and was thereafter transferred to Trnopolje. 273/

402. Bistrica: The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely the UK Debriefing Team. It is reported that Bistrica was a "temporary" or an "improvised" camp set up at some time before the 14-15 December 1992 ICRC visit to Manjača. The camp was reportedly part of a Serb ploy designed to mislead ICRC officials. It is reported that some 529 prisoners were moved to the new camp at Bistrica while it appeared that the Manjača camp was being closed down. 274/

403. The camp is not described, however the report locates the camp approximately 10 kilometres west of Banja Luka city. A map search identifies a village by the name of Bistrica in that locale.

404. Dubička Gora: The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely the US Department of State.

405. Reportedly a "sub-camp" of Manjača, holding 300 to 400 men, 275/ this camp is located approximately 15 kilometres from Manjača toward Mrkonjić Grad and past the village of Stričići. Research of available maps does not reveal a Dubička Gora, and also shows two Stričići within 20 kilometres of Manjača on the road to Mrkonjić Grad.

406. According to prisoners at Manjača, Dubička Gora was considered to be a "hidden camp" where the treatment of prisoners was worse than at Manjača. 276/

407. One subject reports that prior to one of the ICRC visits (he thinks it was in July) 277/ three named prisoners were removed to Dubička Gora because their physical condition was so bad. According to the subject, the ICRC officials insisted on seeing these prisoners and the camp officials relented. While it is reported that ICRC representatives spoke privately with the men, it is not clear whether the alleged meeting was held at Dubička Gora or Manjača. 278/ According to the subject, after the ICRC visit the men disappeared. 279/

408. Mali Logor: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely the US Department of State and the ICRC.) Reportedly a Serb-run detention camp situated in the Borik section of the city of Banja Luka, this camp was said to be located in a former JNA barracks. 280/ The ICRC first visited the facility on 3 May 1993 and described the facility as a military prison. 281/ The number of prisoners detained at this camp is not known. Torture was alleged to have occurred there. 282/

409. Dates of this camp's operation are not reported. One subject reports that beginning in September 1992, uniformed "officials" apprehended non-Serbian residents (especially young Muslims who had refused mobilization) and sent them to Mali Logor, Manjača, and to the Tunjice Prison. The subject reportedly could not determine from their uniforms if the "officials" were regular Serbian soldiers. He also reported that he heard from his wife that some of the Mali Logor prisoners were people who had been picked up at the city market and found to be without a permit to leave their houses. According to the subject, police frequently surrounded the market and checked permits. 283/

410. Banja Luka Hospital: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely the Helsinki Watch and the ICRC.) Reports describe a detention area for injured Muslim and Croat prisoners located in the Banja Luka Hospital. 284/

411. There are no available dates of operation for this detention area. However, the ICRC reportedly first visited the hospital on 22 September 1991. 285/ In late August 1992, six survivors of a regional skirmish 286/ who had been captured by Serb forces, were reportedly brought to the Banja Luka hospital. The prisoners were detained at the hospital for approximately 25 days. 287/

412. Reportedly in late August 1992, during the detention of Bosnian Muslim survivors of the skirmish, a single police officer guarded the room during each of three shifts per day. 288/ However, when a named member of the Croatian army (HV,) from Croatia proper, was brought into the room in late August or September 1992, the number of guards was reportedly increased to four. 289/

413. The detainees were reportedly beaten by members of the army, police, and unidentified Serbian patients. One subject claims that he was beaten more often than throughout his entire detention at Trnopolje camp. The subject reports that the guards let anyone into the room, even if they carried truncheons and cable wire. 290/ This mistreatment was reportedly carried out with the knowledge and consent of the hospital staff and Serbian armed forces. 291/

414. A member of the Croatian Army was reportedly brought to the detention area while the survivors of the area skirmish were held captive. According to the report he was badly beaten while in the hospital and died from injuries sustained during the beatings. 292/

415. The ICRC reportedly visited the hospital on the 23rd day of the skirmish survivors' detention and registered the prisoners. 293/ The ICRC representatives were not allowed to see the prisoners on their second visit the following day. Subjects believed that this was because of the Croat's beating. 294/ After their 25th day of detention the skirmish survivors were reportedly taken to the Banja Luka police station where the prisoners gave their statements to a magistrate and were released to workers of the Muslim relief agency Merhamet. The men were eventually evacuated from BiH. 295/

416. It was also reported that some injured prisoners from the Manjača camp were sent to Banja Luka hospital. 296/

417. City Hospital, Banja Luka: (It is unclear from the source information if a detention facility existed at each of two hospitals identified in Banja Luka. It is, for that matter, unclear if two hospitals existed in Banja Luka. The existence of at least one hospital and its use as a detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely the US Department of State.)

418. City Hospital in Banja Luka was reported to have detained injured Croatian POWs, during 1992. 297/ The ICRC has only one listing for a detention area in a Banja Luka hospital 298/, and it is unclear if City Hospital is another name for Banja Luka Hospital.

419. Reportedly, in early April 1992, following clashes between Croatian and Serbian forces in the villages surrounding Derventa, in northern Bosnia, injured Croatian soldiers captured in fighting were taken to the Banja Luka city hospital for treatment. 299/

420. Prisoners were reportedly held in a special detention area on the third floor of the hospital, in a part of the building separate from the rest of the hospital patients who were Serbs. 300/ It is reported that at least two guards were posted at the door. 301/

421. The medical treatment given the Croatian soldiers reportedly was crude, despite the subject's belief that there was no apparent shortage of medical supplies in the hospital. The subject reported that one prisoner had two open bullet wounds which were stitched to control the bleeding, but that anesthesia was not administered prior to this procedure. 302/

422. Paprikovac Optical Hospital: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely the US Government.)

423. Located in the outskirts of Banja Luka City, the Paprikovac Optical Hospital was reportedly used by Bosnian Serbian forces as a military hospital. The hospital was also used as a detention area for wounded Bosnian Muslim and Croat prisoners. 303/

424. Four survivors of the regional skirmish who were found separately and recaptured by Serb military forces were brought to Banja Luka. 304/ These survivors were reportedly held at the surgical hospital between 24 and 27 August 1992, and then transferred to the Optical hospital, across town, where they remained until September. 305/

425. Eighteen Muslim males were reportedly detained at the hospital during the period from 27 August through 16 September 1992. There were two other rooms accommodating four Muslims each. 306/

426. The door to Room Number 11, wherein the skirmish survivors were housed, was reportedly always locked and the hallway wall of the room was made of translucent glass, permitting the guard stationed outside to see inside. 307/

427. According to one report, wounded Serbian soldiers from elsewhere in the hospital, as well as guards, beat the prisoners daily. The prisoners were beaten with cable wires and police batons. 308/ One of the survivors of the regional skirmish, a 16 year old Muslim student claims that he was beaten 20 times on his kidneys by the military police in attendance at the hospital. His weight was said to have dropped substantially. The youth claims he could identify the military commander of the hospital. 309/

428. The prisoners' daily meal reportedly consisted of a slice of bread and some broth. They were given almost no pure water to drink, and were reportedly forced by the guards to drink urine regularly. 310/

429. The subjects all had hospital discharge papers which stated that they had been treated for internal injuries and chronic heart diseases, however they claimed that they never received so much as an aspirin while in detention. 311/

430. Duboki Potok: (The existence of this detention facility has not been corroborated by multiple sources.) Duboki Potok was reportedly a Serb-run rape camp located on Kozara Mountain, near the Moštanica Monastery. 312/ There is no exact location information or description of the camp. A search of the available maps did not reveal a Duboki Potok, but a Moštanica Monastery is located about 15 kilometres north-east of the city of Prijedor, near the border between Bosanska Dubica and Prijedor counties.

431. Duboki Potok reportedly held women from Banja Luka and the surrounding villages. According to a report, the detained women were of no specific age group but the majority were of reproductive age. 313/

432. There is no information on the dates of operation of this camp, however, according to one report, as of September 1992, there had been women held at the camp for over a year. 314/

433. Novoselija: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely the US Department of State.) Novoselija reportedly was a Serb-run camp in the village of Novoselija, approximately three to five kilometres south of Banja Luka. 315/ There is no information on this camp regarding the dates of operation or number of prisoners, and there is no record of an ICRC visit to the facility.

434. Tunjice (Banja Luka Tunjice): (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by multiple sources including the ICRC.) Several sources report that a Serb-run concentration camp was established at Tunjice, apparently in an existing prison facility in Banja Luka. 316/ The ICRC lists two facilities at Tunjice: the Tunjice Prison/Penitentiary which it first visited on 5 November 1992, and the Military Prison, which it first visited on 31 August 1993. 317/

435. Karmina: (The existence of this detention facility has not been corroborated by multiple sources.) Reportedly, residents of Kozarac who fled the village during the Serb attack in late May 1992, were rounded up and detained in camps at Karmina, Omarska, and Trnopolje. 318/ The camp Karmina, reportedly located in Serb-controlled BiH, is mentioned in only one document. A search of the available maps does not reveal this village.

436. Laktaši: (The existence of this detention facility has not been corroborated by multiple sources.) A rape/death camp by this name is reported to be located in Banja Luka County. 319/

2. Bihać

437. Bihać is in north-east BiH. As of 1991, its population was 70,896 of which 66.6 per cent were Muslim, 17.8 per cent Serbian, 7.7 per cent Croatian, 6 per cent "Yugoslav" and 1.9 per cent "other".

438. Barracks, Bihać: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely the ICRC.) According to representatives of the ICRC, a detention facility was established at the barracks in Bihać. ICRC representatives visited this facility on 16 November 1992. No information was provided regarding the ethnicity of the inmates or controlling parties nor the conditions or duration of the facility at this location. 320/

439. Hospital, Bihać: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely the ICRC.) According to representatives of the ICRC, a detention facility was established at the hospital in Bihać. ICRC representatives visited this facility on 26 November 1992. No information was provided regarding the ethnicity of the inmates or controlling parties nor the conditions or duration of the facility at this location. 321/

440. Military Prison, Bihać: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely the ICRC.) According to representatives of the ICRC, a detention facility was established at the military prison in Bihać. ICRC representatives visited this facility on 15 August 1992. No information was provided regarding the ethnicity of the inmates or controlling parties nor the conditions or duration of the facility's existence at this location. 322/

441. Prison/Penitentiary, Bihać: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely the ICRC.) According to representatives of the ICRC, a detention facility was established at the local penitentiary in Bihać. ICRC representatives visited this facility on 7 December 1993. No information was provided regarding the ethnicity of the inmates or controlling parties nor the conditions or duration of the facility's existence at this location. 323/

442. Police Station, Bihać: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely the ICRC.) According to representatives of the ICRC, a detention facility was established at the local police station in Bihać. ICRC representatives visited this facility on 14 December 1993. No information was provided regarding the ethnicity of the inmates or controlling parties nor the conditions or duration of the facility's existence at this location. 324/

443. Račić: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by multiple sources, however none among them are neutral.) Račić is reported to be a Serb-run camp near the city of Bihać. 325/ Apparently, it is run by some of the same Serbian "extremists" who established the camp at Ripač. These individuals are identified in the source materials.

444. Ripač: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by multiple sources, including the Thomson CSCE Mission.) Ripač is a village just south of Bihać on the Croatian border. The Serbian "extremists" named above (in connection with the camp at Račić) are said to have also established the camp at Ripač in May 1992. 326/ Apparently, at this time the entire village was closed off and segregated by ethnic background. In this way, the entire village functioned as a detention camp. 327/ Members of the Serbian Democratic Party (SDS) participated in the arrest of activists of the Party of Democratic Action (SDA) and local Muslim police officers. They also employed strict traffic controls and curfews.

445. Thomson Mission representatives visited the Muslim section of Ripač in late August 1992. The Mission found this Serb-run detention facility and identified some 60 Muslim inmates in detention at that time. 328/

446. According to another source, 60 Muslims and an unknown number of Croats from the village were reportedly detained in Ripač. 329/ At one time, the number was estimated to have reached near 200. 330/ Prisoners were tortured, raped, and sexually abused. Many of them died. One report claims that approximately 140 prisoners were kept at the "tractor station". 331/ Another alleges that much of the sexual abuse took place at a "high school centre". 332/

447. Orašac Primary School: (The existence of this detention facility has not been corroborated by multiple sources.) Orašac is located in western Bihać province on the Croatian border. There is a report that the JNA held Muslim prisoners at the primary school there. 333/

448. Jedinstvo Soccer Stadium: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely the Permanent Mission of Germany.) There are a few reports that the Bosnian Government held Serbs at the Jedinstvo Stadium. 334/ Apparently, as many as 900 prisoners were detained. 335/

449. BiH Government-run camp in Bihać: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely the ICRC.) There are also reports from the ICRC that its representatives visited a BiH Government-run camp in Bihać. Representatives visited this camp on 4 and 5 July, 15 August, 20 November 1992, and 5 June 1993. In July, they saw two prisoners, in August they saw 13, in November they saw seven, and finally, in June 1993 they saw three. 336/

450. Unidentified Camp: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely the Thomson CSCE Mission.) Thomson Mission representatives visited a detention facility in Bihać on 30 August 1992. The facility was reportedly controlled by unidentified Muslim forces. On the occasion of their visit, the Mission identified 30 Serbian detainees. 337/

451. Croatian and Muslim "Bordellos": (The existence of these detention facilities has been corroborated by multiple sources, however none among them are neutral.) Finally, there are reports of "bordellos" operated by Muslim units. 338/ Here, Serbian women and girls were raped by members of Muslim and Croat forces who visited the camps in late 1991 and 1992. 339/ Detainees who became pregnant were not permitted to leave to get abortions.

452. According to the Serbian News Agency, there were 15 bordellos in Bihać. Among them were those owned or operated by the following individuals: Mustafa Vuković, Abdulah Alijagić, Senad Hadžiabdić, Rizvan Zujkić or Zjakić, Husein Lipovača, Hasan Zirić, Alija Džeferović, Ala Besić, Smajo Murtić, Jasmin Harbas, Ekrem Abazij, Huković, Civić, Deganović, and Murtić. 340/

453. The only specific information regarding these bordellos is that 30 women were estimated to be housed at the Vuković bordello. 341/ Also, according to the Information Service of the 2nd Krajiški Corps, UN Peace-keeping forces were aware of the activities at the Lipovača camp. 342/

454. Abdić Camp at Poultry Farm near Croatian border: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely Agence France Presse.) Apparently, civilians are being held at a poultry farm near the Croatian border by Muslim secessionist forces led by Fikret Abdić. 343/ According to the Agence France Presse, between 400 and 700 civilians have been arrested and detained for opposing the war effort. These prisoners include women, teenagers and elderly people, relief officials and others. 344/ While their exact ethnic make-up is unidentified, it has been established that a large number of them include troops loyal to the Bosnian president as well as Muslim inhabitants who have refused to join Abdić's forces.

455. Rumours have been circulating in the region of Velika Kladuša, where many Bihać inhabitants have fled, that the prisoners of Abdić are being mistreated and deprived of food. 345/ Relatives say that they are being forced to dig trenches on the front lines. At the end of June, a group of civilians were seen on the front lines near the hamlet of Hasići with picks and shovels. There were soldiers watching over them, but there was no way to confirm their status as prisoners. 346/

456. A member of the ICRC gained access to the camp in early June after nearly a week of pressuring authorities. Following his visit, he related that

"[The prisoners] are men who refused to serve in the military, and political dissidents, but what is worse, their relatives have also been arrested, including women, adolescents and elderly people." 347/

457. Apparently, many of the detainees were arrested and taken away from their homes when they would not actively support Abdić's secessionist effort. One report claims that the arrests began on 10 June, the day that the BiH Army launched a strong military offensive against Bihać. These troops have been attempting to defend the Bihać enclave against attacks by the BiH Army since this time.

458. They are commanded by Fikret Abdić, a millionaire businessman who broke with the Muslim-led government in Sarajevo over his willingness to negotiate with BiH's Serbs. 348/ He declared the region of Bihać autonomous in September of last year, and fighting between his forces and the army began a month later. The one-month cease-fire agreed to by Muslims and Serbs on 10 June does not cover Bihać since Abdić did not sign the truce. Abdić's forces are reported to be highly outnumbered in the fighting -- 500 versus 15,000 army men. 349/

459. The speaker of Bihać's self-proclaimed parliament, Božidar Šicel, admitted that 150 people had been arrested, but dismissed them as "spies or agents spreading disinformation". 350/

460. In addition to these reports, there is also an earlier press release that these forces and troops loyal to Bosnian President Alija Izetbegović participated in a prisoner exchange around 25 April. 351/ This exchange followed the signing of an agreement between the two sides on 23 April. According to the ICRC, forces led by Abdić freed 280 prisoners and troops loyal to the BiH government freed 76. 352/

461. The report does not positively identify the poultry farm as the place of detention for the prisoners held by Abdić, so it is possible that there is another camp. At the same time, it also failed to include information about where the 76 prisoners of BiH government forces had been held. 353/

3. Bijeljina

462. The municipality of Bijeljina is located in eastern Bosnia and is bordered by Vojvodina and Serbia to the north and east. According to the 1991 Yugoslavian census, the population of Bijeljina was 96,796; of which 59.4 per cent were Serbs, 31.3 per cent were Muslims, 0.5 per cent were Croats and the remaining 8.8 per cent were described as "other".

463. Batković: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by multiple sources, including the UN Special Rapporteur Mazowiecki, Helsinki Watch, and the US Department of State.) Allegedly, Batković camp was established in mid-June, 1992. 354/ It was located approximately 12 kilometres north of Bijeljina, three kilometres north of the town of Batković, 355/ two to three kilometres from the Sava river, 356/ in what used to be an agricultural facility.

464. The main detention buildings were described as two barns 357/ or warehouses used for grain storage 358/, 50 metres by 20 metres. 359/ They were described as hangars by one witness. 360/ Two tents were used to feed prisoners. 361/ Showers and field toilets were located outside. 362/ The facility was surrounded on three sides by a barbed wire fence two metres high, and on the south side was a sheet-metal wall. 363/ People were kept from looking either into or out of the compound by piles of hay and straw. 364/ The main pedestrian entrance was situated on the west side, adjacent to a building which was used both as a barracks and as an administrative office. 365/ A vehicle entrance was located on the west side. 366/ A guard tower with spotlights was situated within the perimeter, on the eastern side of the compound. 367/ According to a different prisoner, this seven metre tall tower, and one outside as well, were always occupied by guards. 368/

465. The camp was operated by paramilitary forces involved with the Serbian Democratic Party, 369/ with "Četnik" guards. 370/ It is claimed that on 13 July 1992, the director of Batković was an officer, who is identified in the materials. 371/ The Batković director's superior was alleged to be JNA Colonel Petar Dmitrović, the camp commander. 372/ It is reported that as of late August 1992, one Major Mauzer was the camp commander. 373/ It is also reported by the US State Department that Ljubiša Savić was known as "Mauser". 374/ In a US State Department submission, it is claimed by a former prisoner that one Lieutenant Colonel Vasiljević became the commander of the camp in August or September. 375/ On 1 September Major Šćvic, an information officer, introduced a Lieutenant Colonel as the director of the camp, but did not give the Colonel's name. 376/

466. In addition to guards, witnesses also described Muslim trustees, or "Kapos", the term used for German prisoners who assisted guards in World War II. 377/

467. Prisoner movements to and from Batković occurred both often and on a large scale. Because of this, and probably because of faulty estimates, the reported numbers of the population vary widely. Prisoners from the Sušica River valley were alleged to have been detained in Batković as early as 30 June 1992. 378/ It is reported that there were 740 prisoners in the camp on 1 July. 379/ On 5 July, 84 of the more healthy prisoners in a facility in Zvornik were transferred to Batković. 380/ Approximately 450 Muslims and Croats were brought to Batković on 9 July from Zvornik. 381/ There were reported to be 700 prisoners already there on that date. 382/ On 15 July, another group was transferred in from Zvornik, this time numbering at least 60. 383/ It is claimed that three buses, with 70 to 80 men from elopek, also arrived on this date. 384/ This transfer was arranged by Zoran Rekić, a Serb military leader, and reportedly improved the situation of these prisoners. 385/ About this time, the population was estimated to be between 1,500 386/ and 2,000 prisoners. 387/ It was reported by one man, held there from 18 July until 20 August, that 1,200 men were kept in his building, and the total population during his stay was about 1,700. 388/ Early in August, there were reportedly 1,600 detainees. 389/ In late August, 1,200 prisoners were held, according to by Major Mauzer himself, two-thirds being former combatants, and the rest being held "for their own protection". 390/ On 1 September, there was reported to be 1,280 men held because of their ethnicity. 391/ There was a reported population of 1,000 on 19 September. 392/

468. Food was scarce. One former detainee reported that for breakfast, prisoners received bread with butter, or an egg. Lunch and dinner were bread with soup or stew. Although they were served three meals, the witness claimed that the meals consisted only of one and one-half to two portions. 393/ Another prisoner reported that the soup was "funny smelling" and watery. 394/

469. Abuse is invariably indicated in accounts regarding treatment of prisoners prior to September. According to one detainee, prisoners were forced to perform sexual acts with each other, and sometimes with guards. 395/ Detainees were beaten regularly until new guards arrived in September. 396/ Reports of the frequency of beatings vary from daily beatings 397/ to beatings 10 times each day. 398/ Prisoners arriving from Sušica were beaten upon exiting their bus. 399/ Upon arrival on 15 July, another group of prisoners were beaten with sticks. 400/ Thereafter, they were beaten regularly. 401/ Thirty-five guards "had a go" at each member of a group brought in July. 402/ Beginning in July,

15 Muslims, considered to be extremists, were beaten every day until they were transferred to Dobož in September. 403/ In one incident, four men were beaten outside of the camp. Two of them managed to get into the camp, one was beaten so much that he could later not recognize his own father (a fellow prisoner), and the fourth man, about 20 years old, was killed. 404/

470. Prisoners were also forced to labour. This did not excuse them from other abuse, and, as one prisoner reported, they were beaten while at work to make them work harder. 405/

471. One detainee reported that it was not the guards, but rather soldiers going to or coming from the front that abused the prisoners. 406/ This same man claimed that POWs received that worst treatment, whereas civilian prisoners were not treated as badly. 407/ Another prisoner alleged that those prisoners from areas in which Serbs had suffered losses were most harshly treated. 408/

472. Because of the level of mistreatment, many prisoners died. One man stated that during his stay, mid-July to mid-August, 13 prisoners were beaten to death. 409/ Another prisoner died because he had gangrene which went untreated. 410/ Five more may have died from hunger. 411/ Allegedly, 20 prisoners died prior to September. 412/

473. The ICRC visited Batković twice between 15 July and 23 September. One of these visits was on 15 August. 413/ US Congressman Frank Wolf visited on 1 September. 414/ Allegedly, guards hid prisoners under 18 years of age or older than 60 before delegations visited. 415/ The ICRC could not register prisoners. 416/

474. However, beginning in September, the situation changed. Local Serb villagers, hearing reports and rumours of activity in the camp, protested. 417/ The villagers, led by Ilija Gajić, owner of a vegetable farm and leader of the village assembly, demanded that the prisoners in Batković be treated as they wished Serb detainees were treated. 418/ Reports claim that by January 1993, Lieutenant Colonel Petar Dmitrović was the camp commander. 419/

475. Prisoner movement continued. Dmitrović admitted that all of the detainees were civilians. 420/ On 1 October 1992, there was a prisoner exchange. 421/ Another reportedly took place on 6 October. 422/ There was an exchange of approximately 600 prisoners on 17 October for Serb POWs. 423/ Late in October, the UN Special Rapporteur reported the camp held 1,000 Muslims. 424/ Upon one prisoner's departure, on 24 November, there were reportedly 800 detainees. 425/ This prisoner claimed that 150 prisoners were exchanged on this date. 426/ On 1 December, a 450-prisoner exchange took place. 427/ On the same day, 174 prisoners arrived at Batković, making the total number of detainees reportedly 620. 428/ All of the prisoners were male, except two females who refused to leave their husbands and sons. 429/ On 13 December, 532 prisoners arrived from Manjača. 430/ These prisoners were 159 Croats, 242 Muslims from Kozarac, Prijedor, and Ljubija, and 131 Muslims from Grapska and Dobož. 431/ Serbs claim that 131 of these were immediately taken to Sarajevo and exchanged, leaving 401 in the camp at Batković. 432/ However, as of January 1993, the ICRC was unable to confirm this exchange. 433/ On 27 December, 700 prisoners from Bosanski Šamac came to Batković. 434/

476. On 7 January 1993, in Dragolić, 30 prisoners were exchanged as the result of direct negotiations between Croatian and Bosnian Serb forces. 435/ As of 10 February, there were alleged to have been 1,163 prisoners. 436/ Another 18 were brought from Zvornik on 12 February. 437/ It was claimed by one prisoner that he was transferred to Batković on 21 February from a prison in Zvornik. 438/ After he spent 10 days in Batković, he was exchanged with 47 other Muslims for 24 Serbs imprisoned in Zenica. 439/ It is also reported by him that there were

2,000 prisoners in Batković. 440/ On 15 March, there were said to have been 700 prisoners in the camp. 441/

477. Treatment of the prisoners by the camp authorities apparently improved. The Special Rapporteur noted that, during his visit to Batković in October, the prisoners did not complain of ill-treatment and appeared well. 442/ One newspaper article claims that the prisoners complimented the new guards. 443/ One new guard said that he felt he did not need to beat the prisoners. 444/ Detainees could wash with the faucets outside if the weather permitted. 445/ In December, prisoners "were not forced to work, but generally agreed to do so in order to combat boredom". 446/ On New Years Day, they received slivovitz, and soon also had televisions in the warehouses. 447/ Reportedly, several hundred prisoners were working six days a week in January, because they would receive better meals at work sites. 448/ By March, 300 were working outside of the camp. 449/ Some prisoners who had received money from relatives shopped in local stores. 450/ By March, any fence that had enclosed the camp was gone. 451/ However, 17 may have died on 26 March when their vehicle was ambushed on the way to work. 452/

478. None the less, conditions at the camp were still lacking. The Special Rapporteur described the buildings as "cavernous" and "unheated", 453/ and there was no electric lighting. 454/ Dysentery raged, and sanitation was poor. 455/ In the winter of 1992-1993, the outdoor latrines froze. 456/

479. There was no medical attention given to the prisoners. One source estimated average weight loss among the prisoners to be 20 kilograms. 457/ An elderly man died, and both prisoners and guards, unaware, left his body lying in the building for two days. 458/ Allegedly, eight prisoners died due to lack of medical attention, 459/ including one diabetic who did not receive any insulin. 460/ However, medical personnel appeared before ICRC visits. 461/

480. It is not known if the camp was closed, nor what happened to the prisoners who were last reported to be there.

481. Agricultural School, Bijeljina: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely the ECMM.) On Tuesday, 6 July 1993, 48 Muslims were taken from Doboј to Bijeljina. They had volunteered to be exchanged in order to be reunited with their families. They were fed and well treated in an agricultural school on the outskirts of town, where they spent three to four days. They were locked up only at night and were guarded by policemen during the day. Those who could afford to spend the night in a hotel were allowed to do so. 462/

482. On Saturday, 10 July, they each had to pay 50 to 60 deutsche marks to leave, instead of the 30 that the Red Cross in Doboј had indicated. They paid Major Vojkan Djurković, the representative of the Government Commission for Exchange, who was reportedly working with Arkan. 463/

483. From Bijeljina they were taken to the front at Šatorovići, where they had to walk across the front-line. There they were met by the BiH Army. 464/

484. It is also reported that another group of 11 came as far as Bijeljina with the group of 48. These 11 paid DM 200 to go to Hungary. Major Djurković reportedly also received this money. They crossed into Serbia at Rača. 465/ Nothing further is known.

485. Village School, Donja Mahala: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely the ECMM.) There is alleged to be a Muslim run "private prison" which held nine prisoners in the village school in Donja Mahala, near Orašje. It is also claimed that a body of a man imprisoned on 28 December 1992, is buried behind the school. 466/

486. Village Camp, Janja: (The existence of this detention facility has not been corroborated by multiple sources.) The village of Janja is 12 kilometres south of Bijeljina. It is reported that in May 1992, the whole village was turned into a camp, guarded by Serbian "Četniks". 467/

487. Allegedly, there were approximately 5,000 people there, mostly women and children, held in poor conditions. There was a lack of medicine and clothing. There was also a severe shortage of food. Pregnant women received a piece of bread and a glass of water for the day. The old gave their rations to children. Radio Sarajevo reported that 18 people had died from hunger and/or cold. Reportedly, women also suffered rape. One 65 year-old woman, after being raped, bled to death. There were also cases in which fetuses were cut out of wombs. 468/

488. A source reported that a Serbian man charged DM 1,000 to get people out of the camp. He, in turn, had to pay the soldiers at both Janja and Raja. Another "contact person" was a Muslim doctor. 469/

489. Storage Facility, Klis: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely the US Government.) It is reported that a former agricultural produce storage facility in Klis was used as a detention facility. The camp was opened at least as early as 26 September 1992. The only information provided about the guards is that they wore solid green uniforms. 470/

490. One prisoner was a Bosnian Muslim male, who was arrested in his hometown of Bijeljina at the end of September. On the second night that the 48 year-old was there, guards took several prisoners at different times to an adjacent facility, from which there came much screaming. All but one man, a coffee trader, eventually returned. The witness' neighbor, a gold trader, died from his wounds on the fifth night. According to a man imprisoned with the witness, another "wealthy" man died from beating. It appears that these men were singled out because of their wealth. 471/

491. Military Barracks: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely the US Department of State.) It is reported that the old military barracks on Maršala Tita street near the bus station was used as a detention facility from at least 8 April to 8 May 1992. Four or five buildings were used. 472/

492. Although no group is explicitly named as being in control of the barracks, Serb forces were in control of the town at that time. Between 8 April and 8 May, 200 to 300 people were held at any one time. The facility was also reported to be notorious for torturing prisoners. 473/

493. Members of the Thomson CSCE Mission visited the Stepa Stepanović Casern (Military Barracks) on 2 September 1992 and, after walking the length of the grounds, found no evidence suggesting that detainees were being held in the army barracks in Bijeljina. 474/

494. Petkovići: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by multiple sources, however none among them are neutral.) It is alleged that Serbian forces detained people in the village of Petkovići. On or about 13 May 1992, 120 people were taken to Petkovići from the Luka camp in the Prijedor region. 475/ The women's group "Trešnjevka" also named Petkovići in a list of rape-death camps, but gave no details. 476/

495. Popovi: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely the US Department of State.) There was reported to have been a camp between the villages of Popovi and Jasmajlice, in the Bijeljina area. 477/ It was a new facility 478/, built specifically to be a detention centre and capable of holding up to 1,000 prisoners 479/.

496. Although no group was explicitly named as running the camp, a US government report says that Serbian forces were in control of the area. Allegedly, Muslims were held hostage there, and would be killed if the Bijeljina area was attacked by Muslim forces. 480/

497. Secondary School Centre: (The existence of this detention facility has not been corroborated by multiple sources.) The women's group "Trešnjevka" names a secondary school centre in Bijeljina in a list of rape-death camps. However, they give no further information. 481/

498. Slaughterhouse: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely the US Department of State.) Allegedly, a slaughterhouse located between Caffee Sezam and the Serb village of Obarska, 12 kilometres north-west of Bijeljina, was used as a detention facility. The building, 70 metres by 20 metres, reportedly held at least 200 Muslims and Croats, probably residents of Bijeljina. The guards were Serbs. 482/

499. Španac JNA Barracks: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely the US Department of State.) According to the US government, the Španac JNA Barracks, located in Bijeljina, was used as a detention facility from 5 May 1992 until 13 May 1992. The barracks supported an unidentified armor unit and an unidentified pontoon unit. The barracks' sports hall held the prisoners. 483/

500. The guards at the barracks were allegedly JNA military police. An unnamed Lieutenant Colonel interrogated the prisoners. He was from Tuzla, and wore a camouflage uniform with a Serbian flag on his arm. 484/

501. Forty-seven males from Bosanski Šamac were brought to the JNA casern in Brčko after Bosanski Šamac fell to Serb forces. 485/ These prisoners were Muslim, with perhaps a few Croats. 486/ There were four unidentified prisoners in the Brčko casern when the group from Bosanski Šamac arrived. On 5 May, all 51 of these prisoners were transferred to Španac. 487/ In the group of 51, one 70 year-old man was a member of the Croatian Democratic Union. 488/

502. When the group left Brčko, an unidentified man was placed in the trucks with the prisoners. This man was accused of raping Serbian girls. When the group arrived at the barracks, this man was thrown from the truck and shot dead. 489/

503. It is reported that at the camp, prisoners were forced to clean the pontoon unit's equipment, including the boats. For food, the prisoners were given leftovers from the soldiers' kitchen. They were interrogated. They were also made to sit with their heads bowed and were beaten while in this position. 490/

504. On 9 or 10 May, six prisoners were transferred out of Španac. Five were sent to a camp in Batajnica, and one was sent to the prison in Sremska Mitrovica. 491/ On 13 May, the remaining prisoners were bused back to Bosanski Šamac, where they were allegedly held in the Secondary School centre. 492/

505. Velika Obarska: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely the US Department of State.) It is reported that a former slaughterhouse in Velika Obarska was used as a detention facility. 493/ The prisoners were kept in one four metre by five metre room. 494/ One guard was always stationed outside the room. 495/ There may have been one or two office rooms in the same building, which were occupied by guards. 496/

506. The room held 15 to 20 Muslim prisoners. 497/ The number often changed. One prisoner was arrested on 25 June 1992, held for 15 days, and released on 10 July. 498/ He still suffers back pains and has poor memory because of torture. 499/

507. The prisoners were forced to sleep on the concrete floor without any blankets. They were served two pieces of bread and one cup of weak soup once each day. Diarrhea was caused by the water that was available. Several prisoners were interrogated each day. The interrogations lasted about 10 minutes, and the prisoners were beaten regardless of what their answers were. The questions were generally about political and military affiliations. One prisoner from Bijeljina died in July as a result of torture. 500/

4. Bileća

508. Bileća is located in eastern Herzegovina. Pre-war population of the county of Bileća was reported as 13,269. Approximately 80.3 per cent of the population was Serb, 14.7 per cent Muslim, and 5 per cent "others". 501/

509. Apparently, in May 1992, an American witness stated that he saw Serbian soldiers torture a Croatian soldier to death in a camp near Bileća. He saw the same soldiers torture another group of Croatian prisoners resulting in the death of one of those prisoners. 502/

510. Unidentified Hall: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely the Büro für Notleidende Menschen in Osteuropa.) One witness reported that on or about 9 June 1992, six prisoners captured by Serb forces in Mostar and held in the North Camp for a night were thereafter transferred to Bileća. They were first taken to some sort of hall. The captors, who had threatened to cut their throats, placed them against a wall and questioned them. After this questioning, they were detained in the building basement for one week. 503/

511. The guards told those detained that there were prisoners being held in rooms upstairs. The above-mentioned witness pleaded with the guards to be placed in such a room. Finally, the captors placed them in the above-stated room. 504/

512. There were approximately 50 individuals detained in one room. The guards would move the prisoners between rooms and the basement from time to time. Groups of three to four men described as "Četniks" would occasionally question and beat individual prisoners in the presence of the other prisoners. The prisoners were forced to participate in group exercises and were required to follow orders exactly as instructed. 505/

513. This routine continued until 4 July 1992, when the reporting witness and others heard their names called out and told they could go home. While being transported to Stolac, they were required to keep their heads down or they would be beaten. 506/

514. One source reported that there appeared to have been three rounds of arrests by Serbs in Bileća from June to December, 1992. The first round took place the week of 10 June 1992. The second around 5 October (apparently after the release of the Sutomore group). The third round of arrests occurred during the first week of December when, for the first time, women and children were detained. 507/

515. Police Station/Detention Centre: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by multiple sources, including the ICRC.) The Serbs reportedly took many to the police station first. The captors never told those detained the purpose of their arrest and many believed they were arrested because they were Muslim. Apparently, during the first round of arrests, Muslim men were detained at the police detention centre in small groups of six to seven for about a week and were then transferred to a boarding school that had been converted into a detention centre. It seems that the majority of those detained in June were later transferred back to the police detention centre about four months later after the release of what was referred to as the Sutomore group on 15 October 1992. Many complained of severe beatings and interrogation. 508/

516. Boarding school: (The existence of this detention facility has not been corroborated by multiple sources.) According to one report, a detention facility existed at an unspecified boarding school in the region. No information was provided regarding the location of this facility, however the report suggests that the Muslim detainees were transferred to this location from the police station, detained here for an unspecified period of time and then transferred back to the police station detention facility. 509/

517. The same source describes the treatment of prisoners in Bileća. However, the exact place of detention, whether the police station or boarding school, is not clear. Some detainees were reportedly held in cells measuring nine square metres and others were held in cells measuring 12 to 16 square metres. The smaller cells contained 13 people, the larger held 16. The captors did not provide food. Family members and friends were allowed to bring meals directly to the detainees except when the detainees had been subjected to harsh beatings. On those occasions the guards brought the meals. 510/

518. Harsh beatings were apparently not uncommon. Many stated that most of the beatings took place on the first day of detention. Most were kicked on the chest and back after being pushed to the floor. They were also beaten on the head with plastic pipes and were hit in the face. Several showed signs of such beatings and others complained of lasting physical trauma caused by such beatings. 511/

519. It was reported that in August, 1992, just prior to a visit of Conference on European Security and Cooperation representatives, individuals who had been the most severely beaten were hospitalized for a period of seven to 10 days. 512/

520. According to the ICRC, Red Cross representatives first visited the police station on 19 August 1992. 513/

521. Apparently, one 30 year-old man died of injuries suffered as a result of beating. Although fellow detainees brought the victim to the hospital, there was no doctor to treat the man. 514/

522. A few of the detainees claimed they were tortured with electric shock. Their thumbs were tied to wires and electricity to shock them was generated manually with a telephone like apparatus. 515/

523. The report states that on 18 November 1992, some detainees suffered harsh physical treatment during a visit of uniformed personnel from Trebinje. 516/

524. One former detainee stated that some detainees were asked to load food and personal possessions from Muslim homes onto trucks and unload the same at a Red Cross warehouse. Allegedly, the goods were then transferred to the army. 517/

525. On 5 December 1992, women and children were reportedly rounded up and detained for three days. Several men turned themselves in to be with their families. The men, however, were not released with the women and children. 518/

526. After meeting with an individual unidentified in the report collected, the prison commander on 17 December 1992, informed the detainees that they were free to leave if they wished but that he could not guarantee their safety outside the detention centre in Bileća. 519/

527. It seems that on 19 December 1992, 51 detainees who had been held at the police station and boarding school were transferred from Bileća to Montenegro under ICRC supervision. 520/

528. Civilian jails: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by multiple sources, including the ICRC and the US Government.) Another individual reported that her husband, a Muslim, had been impressed into military service, later escaped and returned to Bileća. There, in mid-June 1992, he was arrested and detained in what is described as one of two civilian jails in Bileća. He was detained there for five months and released on 5 October 1992. 521/

529. According to the same individual, Muslim civilians from all over eastern Herzegovina were being held at the jails in Bileća. Allegedly, the Bileća chief of police, Miroslav Duko, was responsible for the jails. 522/

530. The prisoners' families were allowed to bring them food. Women made daily treks to the jails in order to feed the men there held. They would have to stand in line and remain silent, or else, their husbands would not receive the food that they carried. 523/

531. One wife declared that she witnessed cells designed to hold five people holding 50. On one visit she noticed a bruised prisoner. 524/

532. Apparently, the women of Bileća banded together and requested the ICRC in Trebinje to inspect the prison. ICRC representatives visited twice. In June, 1992, the ICRC representative was turned away at the Opština President's door and told that no camps existed in Bileća. The same thing happened the second time. The women continued to report the existence of detention camps for Muslim men in Bileća and demand that the ICRC visit them. In August, 1992, the individual reports that the European Peace Union visited the jail and managed to get all of the sick, wounded and tortured prisoners transferred to the hospital. 525/

533. In July, an ICRC representative was able to visit the jails, register the prisoners and issue them refugee cards. 526/

534. Reportedly, between this representative's first and second visits, White Eagles teargassed and fired into the Bileća jail cells with automatic weapons. Some of the prisoners were apparently wounded and taken to a hospital but returned to the jails after two days. ICRC representatives were not allowed to visit the wounded in the hospital. 527/

535. A document received 27 May 1994, states that the ICRC first visited a prison/penitentiary in Bileća on 7 November 1991. 528/

536. Another source reported that as of 12 June 1992, the Militia Station in Bileća held 38 prisoners. The militia commander was identified in the source materials. The source also states that a prisoner was killed during captivity. 529/

537. Djački Dom (Students' Home): (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by multiple sources, including the US Department of State.) A camp was reported to exist here as of 12 June 1992. 530/

538. A CSCE mission to detention camps in BiH visited a student dormitory on 2 September 1992 and found 74 Muslim detainees held by Serbian authorities. 531/

539. Cellar: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely Mazowiecki.) Serbs reportedly imprisoned 170 Croats and Muslims in a cellar in Bileća. The cellar measured 120 square metres and had three small windows. 532/

540. The Serb guards reportedly beat the detainees three times on the night of their arrival. One detainee was reported to have died as a result 10 days later.

Detainees were also beaten by three or four soldiers as they went to the toilet.

The witness reporting claimed that from 1 June to 10 August 1992 he was allowed to bathe once and never allowed a change of clothes. Apparently, at night, the guards closed the cellar windows and turned on 2,000 watt reflectors. The stifling heat caused the prisoners to dehydrate. The prisoners' dehydration was aggravated by the fact that they would not receive water until late in the afternoon on the following day. Supposedly, one prisoner went into a coma and died as a result. The witness also reports that everything improved when the ICRC arrived and the detainees were registered. 533/

541. Unidentified Camp: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely the National Organization for Victim Assistance.) There are a few reports of a number of Muslims taken prisoner in Gacko by Serb forces then later transferred to a camp in Bileća. 534/ One witness claims that he was included in a group of 100 prisoners being held in Gacko and transferred by truck to a camp in Bileća around 4 July 1992. According to this witness 200 young people from Bileća had been taken to this camp 10 days prior. Immediately upon arrival the prisoners were maltreated. Eighty were held in a small room. They had three meals a day, though the witness complains that the food was awful. No medical help was available. The witness also claims that they were allowed to bathe only twice in 37 days. The room was stuffy because the windows were locked at all times. The prisoners were allowed to use the toilet twice a day, at 5:00 a.m. and 5:00 p.m. Over a period of 38 days the witness claims that three prisoners in his room died because of malnutrition, the living conditions and torture. Apparently, he was in a room with elderly men, while the younger men were held on the ground floor. 535/

542. After a visit by representatives of the ICRC, he reports that conditions at the camp improved. After 38 days in the camp, the witness reports that the captors placed those detained in two buses and drove them to a place 78 kilometres from Stolac where they were left. 536/

543. Another individual reports being arrested at Gacko and transported by truck to a camp in Bileća where he was held for 80 days. He describes being held in a barrack with 160 men. The barrack measured approximately 120 square metres. On the floor were wooden planks covered with thin office carpeting. He describes being packed so tightly that their legs dove-tailed into each other when they all lay down. 537/

544. They received meals three times a day: one boiled egg in the morning and at 2:00 p.m. a mixture of potatoes and mackerel. The witness did not provide a description of the third meal. Other inmates, assigned the task, delivered the meals to the gate. The captors provided each prisoner a half a litre of water per day. The water was provided at about 5:00 p.m. when the prisoners were allowed to go to the latrines. 538/

545. Prisoners were allowed about five minutes in the latrine. The witness claims there was no time for any ablutions. In the barracks, there were two tin cans to urinate in. The cans were constantly overflowing. 539/

546. Prisoners were not allowed to exercise outside. They were often required to assume a crouching position on the floor. 540/

547. At one point, about 10 prisoners were taken out for questioning. The people taken were from the surrounding villages and were suspected of possessing weapons or arms deals. They returned at the end of the day with signs of a severe beating. 541/

548. A guard once kicked the witness in the ribs for no apparent reason. Once, the guards beat the entire barrack population when they found the latrine dirty. The guards ordered the prisoners to stand against the walls with their arms and legs outstretched. The guards then reportedly beat the prisoners indiscriminately with belts, sticks, and gun butts. 542/

549. The witness believes that two inmates died from causes unrelated to the treatment received. He also reports that 12 men once taken for questioning never returned. He claims that the Serbs listed those 12 as having escaped from custody at a POW exchange when he was liberated. 543/

550. Reserve Officers School: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely the US Department of State.) Reported to be located on the west side of the road from Bileća to Trebinje at the "entrance" to Bileća and in use as a camp as of 12 June 1992. This facility was surrounded by a wall. 544/

551. A source claims that the commander of the camp in January 1992 was an ex-State Security Service (SDB) officer. He was reportedly scheduled to return to Belgrade after his tour of duty as camp commander. However, he was allegedly killed by his own men because they believed he may reveal atrocities to Belgrade authorities. 545/

552. Another commander of this camp was reported to be a General Stubičević. He was allegedly succeeded by a General Stanković. Supposedly the original designee to replace Stubičević was a General Vujević who refused to serve after seeing women and children in the camp. He supposedly pretended to have suffered a heart attack and withdrew. 546/

553. The camp was apparently controlled by a paramilitary group. 547/

554. Approximately 130 prisoners from this camp were reportedly moved to Sutomore on the Adriatic Coast, south-east of Titograd. Thirty-eight were reportedly moved to the militia station in Bileća. 548/

555. The ICRC reported that on 5 October 1992, 109 detainees from Bileća were transferred to Montenegro. 549/

556. Army Barracks/Former Yugoslav Army Officer Training School: (The existence of this detention facility has not been corroborated by multiple sources.) A British Defence Debriefing team assessed that reports of camps at the army barracks and a former Yugoslav Army officer training school were referring to the same camp, although, the reports of prisoner treatment vary significantly. 550/

557. In relation to the training school, it reportedly held at least 3,000 Muslim and Croat men and was heavily guarded. 551/ Serbs reportedly used the training school only to hold prisoners to be exchanged for Serbian prisoners of war. In July 1992, a large number of the detainees there were supposedly transferred to Titograd.

558. According to another source, the Serb prisoner of war camp in the army barracks at Bileća was the site of gross prisoner maltreatment. Allegedly, prisoners were beaten in their cells. They were frequently beaten to death. In order to conceal the screams, camp personnel would park trucks at the back of the camp and rev the engines. 552/

559. Supposedly, 13 people were beaten to death in their cells on the night of 27 April 1992. The bodies were then taken to a bunker and put in large plastic sacks which were weighted with stones. Helicopters reportedly arrived early the next morning and carried the bodies to be dumped in the sea off of Dubrovnik.

560. Prisoners reportedly slept in their underwear on cement floors with no mattresses or blankets. Those prisoners being prepared for exchange for Serb prisoners were held in the fitness centre. 553/

561. A BBC monitoring unit provided the text of a transmission apparently from Bosnia Hercegovina Radio, Sarajevo Studio that included the claim that 170 Muslims were imprisoned in one military and two civilian prisons in Bileća from the beginning of June until mid-December 1992. 554/

562. That transmission declared that the Bileća mayor Milorad Vujović and the head of the public security station Goran Vuković authorized the torture of prisoners in Bileća. 555/

5. Bosanska Dubica

563. A United Nations memorandum states that mayors, police and local territorial defence units in Serbian controlled areas in Croatia have been cooperating with their counterparts in Serbian controlled sections of northern Bosnia, including Bosanska Dubica, in an effort to ethnically cleanse the area of non-Serbs, primarily Muslims. 556/

564. Additional reports suggest that the population of this northern BiH county has been reduced by one-third since the beginning of the conflict. 557/ Many residents fled the area with the onset of the aggression between the warring factions. Still others were coerced into captivity. As Serbian forces advanced they began arresting area residents and interning them in detention facilities, including: the local gymnasium, the Kooper building, the sports hall, and a bordello established in nearby Mesetnica-Duboki Jarak. Reports from the Bosanska Dubica area allude to the complete dehumanization of the area's non-Serbian population facilitated to a large degree by the establishment of these concentration camps. 558/

565. United Nations personnel report that individuals have been fleeing northern BiH and seeking protection in UNPA's. A UN memo dated 3 July stated that "one Mustafa Ogorinac swam across the river Una at 8 in the morning on 2 July from a camp in Bosanska Dubica . . . he showed signs of physical abuse and punishment". 559/

566. Gymnasium: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by multiple sources however none among them are neutral.) The local gymnasium's purpose appears to have been the containment of non-Serbian prisoners of war following interrogation at the local police headquarters. 560/ Specifics as to the operation and length of average detention was not made available.

567. Kooper Building: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by multiple sources however none among them are neutral.) While very little information regarding this location was available, the communication that was provided suggests that internment at this facility necessarily included severe physical mistreatment. Reportedly the citizens interned here were brutally beaten, most commonly with iron rods. 561/ Following the beatings the victims were reportedly taken to the medical centre where they were allegedly given infusion solutions and then returned to the Kooper facility. 562/

568. Sports Hall: (The existence of this detention facility has not been corroborated by multiple sources.) Reportedly a number of inmates were held at this location but only for a few hours at a time. Reports suggest that they were occasionally used as forced labour in the town and for other tasks desired by Serbian forces. 563/ Allegedly the inmates were given no food or water and on some occasions were reportedly forced to stay in the sports hall through the night. 564/

569. Mesetnica-Duboki Jarak bordello: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by multiple sources however none among them are neutral.) Following the occupation of the Bosanska Dubica area by Serb forces, a bordello was established which reportedly housed 11 year-old girls. The girls were reportedly subjected to sexual abuse throughout their detention. 565/ The report accuses the Serbian forces of premeditating the acts of rape in an attempt to humiliate and degrade a race of people while simultaneously destroying its biological reproductive potential. 566/

6. Bosanska Gradiška

570. On 18 August 1992, the Bosnian town of Bosanska Gradiška was attacked by Serbian forces using multi-rocket launchers, artillery and tanks. 567/ The bombardment started early in the morning and after several hours of vigorous shelling, the poorly armed defenders of the town were captured by the Serbian forces. 568/

571. Within a few days, the Serbian corps, going house-to-house, rounded up civilians and divided them into groups. 569/ Women and children were sent to camps in Uskoci and Donja Varoš. Men were sent to locations throughout Bosanska Gradiška including: the Stara Gradiška prison--where as many as 200 prisoners were interned at once, the Red Cross building, a local school, a facility called the Praktikum, a school in Podgrace and a facility in Donja Nova Topola, which also reportedly interned some 300 individuals. 570/

572. Stara Gradiška Prison: 571/ (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely the US Department of State.) Following skirmishes between Croatian and Serbian forces in northern BiH villages, and the ensuing capture of Croatian forces by the Serbs, Croatian soldiers were taken to the Serb-run prison at Stara Gradiška, formerly known as Bosanska Gradiška. 572/

573. The Serbs organized the facility for optimal control. The anterior building of the facility was designated the administrative quarters as well as the lodgings for Serbian forces. 573/ The prison was a single, two-story, L-shaped building with approximately 17 rooms. 574/

574. The Serbs compactly contained their prisoners in the left side of the building. Those cells intended to accommodate two inmates were filled with as many as 10. 575/ Other cells which measured approximately eight by 10 metres were filled with almost 50 men each. 576/ The inmates had to sleep on their sides on the concrete floor and were reportedly fed a piece of bread every four to five days. 577/

575. The reports state that although only half of the prison was full, prisoners were separated into two groups with one group occupying rooms on the second floor and one group occupying rooms on the first floor. 578/ According to the reports, the prisoners were either Muslim or Croat, and all were men. 579/ There appears, however, to have been no clear criteria used in separating the prisoners. 580/

576. On their first night in the prison, inmates were commonly held in a tiny room on the second floor called a Samica. The Samica measured approximately two by three metres and was allegedly used to emotionally and psychologically weaken the prisoners, thereby decreasing their capability to resist interrogations. 581/

577. Thereafter, the prisoners were interrogated two times per day, once in the morning and once at night. Prior to each interrogation, they were usually put into a Samica. 582/ The investigations lasted an average of 30 minutes and consisted of beatings with hands and sticks, especially on sensitive areas such as recently obtained battle wounds. 583/

578. The Serb in charge was a former corrections officer at the penitentiary and currently a unit leader of the paramilitary White Eagles (Beli orlovi). This individual reportedly told the prisoners that they would all be killed. 584/

579. Additionally, the identified leader allegedly ordered the torturing and killing deaths of three Croatian brothers. Their bodies were thrown into the facility's well which was located between the buildings. Fifty to 60 corpses were reportedly also thrown into the camps' well. 585/

580. Among the methods utilized by the Serbs in torturing their victims at the facility was the setting of guard dogs upon the inmates and watching the ensuing destruction of helpless victims. 586/ Reportedly, the Serb commander claimed that those killed in this manner were to be cut into small pieces and force-fed to other starving inmates. 587/

581. Red Cross Community Centre: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely the US Department of State.) During the assault on the villages in northern BiH, a group of Bosnian Serb soldiers known as the Scorpions occupied the Red Cross building in Bosanska Gradiška and reportedly operated a camp at this location. 588/ This group wore a combination of camouflage and JNA uniforms and appeared to have been Bosnian Serbs who had been mobilized into paramilitary units. 589/ This paramilitary group was comprised of 200-300 Bosnian Serbs, organized in April 1992. These soldiers wore a patch depicting a scorpion on the left shoulder of their uniforms. 590/

582. The Scorpions were commanded by a former JNA. 591/ Local unidentified police personnel assisted the Scorpions in the apprehension and detention of Muslims and Croats in Bosanska Gradiška from April to December 1992. 592/ Detainees were first brought to the facility for screening and interrogation. They were held at this location for up to four days, after which they were either released and told to leave or taken to area detention facilities. 593/

583. Local school: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely the US Department of State.) A detention facility was established at a school just north of the Red Cross building and some 400 metres from the town's Roman Catholic Church. 594/ This facility was operated by the above-mentioned Scorpion paramilitary unit. 595/ The school was reportedly used for internment during those times when the students were on holiday. 596/

584. The Praktikum: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely the US Department of State.) Another facility which may possibly have been an internment facility was located adjacent to the above-mentioned school. This site known as the Praktikum was said to have been used for interrogations which involved torture. 597/ It was also allegedly used for the training of individuals in the operation of various textile machinery. 598/

585. Podgrace School: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely the US Department of State.) The Scorpions also operated a facility in the village of Podgrace, which was just east of Jelići on the way to Bosanska Gradiška. The detention facility was located at the village school. 599/ The seven by eight metre, two-story school building used as a detention facility was called the old school and was adjacent to the main road. A newer, larger, three-story school building which had an asphalt playground existed just south of the old building. 600/

586. Approximately 10 soldiers from Bosanska Gradiška were transported to the old school building on a daily basis to relieve the previous day's guard component. An unknown number of Muslims were routinely detained at the facility. 601/ Some Muslim residents of Bosanska Gradiška believed that many of the detainees were sent to other camps in Bosnia from Podgrace, and that Muslims were being held in the building as of late December 1992. 602/

587. Donja Nova Topola Facility: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely the US Department of State.) The Scorpions were said to operate yet another facility just 10 kilometres south of Bosanska Gradiška in the town of Donja Nova Topola. Approximately 300-400 individuals were housed at an unidentified location in the town in December 1992. Reportedly some of the prisoners were transferees from the camps in Podgrace, Omarska, and Prijedor. 603/ Reports suggest that the majority of the citizens before April 1992 had been of Muslim nationality. 604/

7. Bosanska Krupa

588. Bosanska Krupa is located in north-western BiH. According to the 1991 census, it had a population of 58,212. 74.5 per cent were Muslim, 23.6 per cent Serb, and 1.9 per cent "other".

589. There are reports of six Serbian-run camps in this region. They are as follows: Bosanska Krupa, the elementary school at Gorinja, Jasenica, the camp in the forest near Jasenica, Petar Kočić Primary School, and the elementary school at Suvaja. These camps allegedly contain Muslim civilians who were unable to escape the region upon Serbian attacks of their villages in May, June, and July 1992. Apparently, those that were able to escape fled to the villages of Cazin and Bužim. 605/ There is also one report which suggests the existence of a detention facility in the village of Bužim. The source is silent with respect to information regarding the identity of those controlling this facility.

590. Military Prison, Bužim: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely the ICRC.) This report was provided by the ICRC, whose representatives visited this detention facility on 7 January 1994. No information was provided regarding the conditions at this facility or the identity of those in residence. 606/ This is the only report of a facility in this village, the remaining sites of detention appear to be located within the city limits of Bosanska Krupa.

591. According to witness testimonies, prisoners were transferred between the camps of Bosanska Krupa, Jasenica and the Petar Kočić School. The camp in the forest near Jasenica and the elementary schools in Gorinja and Suvaja are not mentioned in connection with any other camps.

592. Unidentified Facility, Bosanska Krupa: (The existence of this detention facility has not been corroborated by multiple sources.) This camp is located in the city of Bosanska Krupa. Its specific whereabouts and dates of existence are not reported although one witness describes his short detention at Bosanska Krupa following the attack of his village in early June 1992. 607/ He was taken to Bosanska Krupa from the camp in the surrounding area, and later transferred from there to the Petar Kočić Elementary School. 608/

593. This unidentified facility is reportedly run by Serbs, yet the only group specifically named in connection with the camp are the White Eagles, a Serbian paramilitary organization. 609/ While there is no evidence that the White Eagles actually managed the camp, there is witness testimony that they actively participated in the beating of prisoners there. 610/

594. In one instance, the White Eagles beat prisoners with sticks, baseball bats, metal rods, and a thick rope soaked in water. Then, after letting the prisoners rest a bit, they took them to a place where 20 men beat them again, this time to the point of unconsciousness.

595. Gorinja elementary school: (The existence of this detention facility has not been corroborated by multiple sources.) There are reports that a Serb-run camp was established at the elementary school in Gorinja. Apparently, Muslim prisoners were forced to do hard labor there. 611/

596. Jasenica: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by multiple sources however, none among them are neutral.) Jasenica is a detention camp near Bosanska Krupa which was established in May 1992. 612/ There is no indication whether it is still in existence or not. There is one report that suggests it is at a "high school centre". 613/ It is described as a "transit camp" where non-Serbs are interrogated and then sent on to Petar Kočić school for long-term detention. 614/ It is run by the Serbian Army, and apparently, Martić's Četniks from Knin have also taken part in beatings and killings at the camp. 615/

597. The prisoner population consists of Muslims from Bosanska Krupa, Cazin, and the surrounding region that were captured upon the Serbian attacks of their villages. 616/ One report specifically states that 100 Muslims captured at Bosanska Krupa were arrested and taken to this camp. 617/

598. Once at the camp, prisoners were interrogated, beaten, and raped. 618/ One witness describes having his teeth knocked out and ribs broken during a beating there. 619/ There are also reports that prisoners are forced to do hard labor. 620/

599. Camp in forest near Jasenica: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely the Defence Debriefing Team.) There is one report of a Serb-run prisoner-of-war camp located in the forest near Jasenica. This camp is described as having been "built from nothing", and was supposedly established to hold Muslim men from Sanski Most. 621/ It is not clear from the report whether this camp is part of the central camp at Jasenica or managed by the Serbian Army. There is no further information.

600. Petar Kočić Primary School: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by multiple sources however, none among them are neutral.) This school is in Bosanska Krupa. While there are no precise dates of existence for this camp, an ex-prisoner alleges that he was detained here for two and a half months starting sometime after 10 June 1992. 622/ One report estimated that at one point 4,000 prisoners were detained at this camp and an additional 3,000 had passed through it. 623/ Apparently, some prisoners were transferred to Petar Kočić from the camp at Bosanska Krupa and the camp at Jasenica. 624/

601. Prisoners were severely beaten and raped at the school. 625/ Serbian guards extinguished cigarettes on prisoners' foreheads, chests, and other sensitive parts of the body. They cut crosses in their backs with sticks. Finally, one report alleges they painted the prisoners at the school, dressed them in folk dresses and fezes, and made them sing anti-Muslim songs. 626/

602. Pero Sunić is alleged to be the commander of this camp. 627/ One of the perpetrators assisting here reportedly brought poison to the camp which guards then gave to the prisoners. One ex-prisoner describes the death of a man he was detained with by poisoning. 628/ This witness also reports the visit of a certain captain to the school who came with Captain Zdravko Narandžić, the commander of the military police department, and killed many prisoners. There are no further details about how either of these men were involved with the camp at Petar Kočić School. 629/

603. Suvaja elementary school: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by multiple sources however, none among them are neutral.) This is a Serbian-run camp in Suvaja where Muslim prisoners are reported to be put to hard labor. 630/ There is no additional information about this camp.

604. According to the Sarajevo-Radio BiH Network, Radovan Karadžić and other members of the Serbian Ministry called a meeting in response to the well-publicized human rights violations committed by the Serbian Army in February 1993. Apparently, they agreed that Miroslav Vještica should answer for the events taking place in Bosanska Krupa. 631/

8. Bosanski Brod

605. The municipality of Bosanski Brod is located in northern BiH and is bordered by Croatia to the north and the municipalities of Derventa, Modriča and Odžak to the south. According to the 1991 Yugoslav census, the population of this municipality was 33,962, of which 41 per cent were Croats, 12.2 per cent were Muslims, 33.8 per cent were Serbs and the remaining 13 per cent were described as "other".

606. Bosanski Brod Camp: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely the ICRC.) This facility is reportedly a Croatian-run camp with a sizeable containment capacity. Sources suggest that, at one time, as many as 1,000 Serbs from the surrounding area were contained here. 632/

607. The detainees were reportedly beaten every day and some had broken arms and legs as a result. 633/

608. The guards reportedly moved the severely beaten detainees from this location when the ICRC and UN Peacekeepers visited the camp. 634/ The ICRC visited this facility on 20 July 1992. No additional information regarding the conditions or duration of the camp's existence was provided. 635/

609. Bosanski Brod Stadium: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by multiple sources, however none among them are neutral.) This stadium appears to have been used by both Serb and Croatians as a detention centre when in control of the region.

610. Initially, Croatian forces exercised dominion over the stadium facility. Reportedly throughout the period of Croatian control, the Croatian Military Police arrested men and women from the Bosanski Brod region and detained them at the stadium facility. 636/

611. Male detainees were contained in the facility's men's room. 637/ At night, Croatian soldiers, who returned from the front, were reportedly permitted to take the male detainees to the terrace, the basement, and into the corridors of the stadium where the inmates were then subjected to severe beatings. 638/ During the day, the male detainees were relegated to forced labor groups and made to perform tasks which included washing Croatian cars and digging trenches. 639/

612. Reportedly one incident involved the shooting death of 12 male detainees and the disposing of their bodies in nylon bags and dumping them into the Sava River. 640/

613. About 13 women were placed in the ladies' room at the stadium. 641/ The women were reportedly raped. 642/ Muslim and Croatians raped the women in a bathroom where the women were allowed to shower. 643/ The women were raped by as many as six or seven men in the same night. 644/ The older women were forced to perform fellatio on the soldiers. 645/ The younger women were reportedly taken off-site and raped. 646/ The victims were returned to the camp the following morning. 647/

614. When UNPROFOR representatives came to Bosanski Brod, the women were reportedly taken to a kayak club on the Sava River for three days until the representatives departed. 648/

615. The detainees from the Bosanski Brod stadium were transferred to the Tulek Warehouse in August and later exchanged. 649/

616. In October, 1992, when Serbs forces succeeded in control of the Bosanski Brod, they reportedly loaded the remaining area residents onto trucks and took them to the stadium detention facility. 650/

617. Although rather scant information was made available regarding Serb activities at the stadium, reports suggest that women were taken from the stadium to nearby apartments and raped. 651/ Sources suggest that they were also kicked and beaten. 652/

618. Liješće: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by multiple sources however, none among them are neutral.) The detention camp consisted of small rooms behind a school. 653/

619. The camp was run by the "White Eagles" that were from Belgrade. 654/ Their commander was identified in the materials. 655/ At least a couple of Serbian women were with the White Eagles. 656/ In addition, some men from Jović and Šešelj paramilitary groups were at the camp. 657/

620. The White Eagles entered the rooms one at a time, beat the detainees, and then interrogate them about the number of Croatians in neighboring areas. 658/ The White Eagles threatened to kill the detainees. 659/

621. Local Serbs also beat the detainees. The beatings occurred in dark rooms. 660/

622. Male detainees from Tulek Warehouse may have been transferred to Liješće after inquiries at Tulek by ICRC and UNPROFOR. 661/

623. School Bosanski Brod: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely the ICRC.) According to the list of detention places visited by ICRC in the former Yugoslavia, a detention facility was established at an unidentified school in Bosanski Brod. Representatives of the ICRC visited this facility on 12 August 1992. No information regarding conditions, duration, the ethnicity of detainees nor the identities of the controlling parties was provided. 662/

624. Bosanski Brod Warehouses: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by multiple sources however, none among them are neutral.) This detention camp was located in a warehouse at the Tulek housing estate. 663/ Detainees interned at this located were from Novi Grad, Donja Dubica, Trnjak and Lipik. 664/ Most of the detainees were transferred from other camps in the area to this facility. 665/ The detainees slept on planks under the eaves of a shed containing lime and cement. 666/

625. The male detainees were sent to the front to dig trenches and many died. 667/ The women held in the camp were taken to the warehouse offices and were raped. 668/ The detainees were beaten, burned with cigarettes and brutalized. 669/ At least one, Milan Jagodić from Donja Dubica, died from his injuries. 670/

626. Forced Brothels: (The existence of this type of detention has not been corroborated by multiple sources.) Croatian forces reportedly held Serb women in Bosanski Brod where they were physically abused and raped between January and April, 1992. 671/

627. Prison/Penitentiary, Bosanski Brod: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely the ICRC.) According to the list of detention places visited by ICRC in the former Yugoslavia, a detention facility was established at an unidentified prison in Bosanski Brod. Representatives of the ICRC visited this facility on 9 July 1992. No information regarding conditions, duration, ethnicity of detainees nor the identities of the controlling party was provided. 672/

628. Hospital, Bosanski Brod: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely the ICRC.) According to the list of detention places visited by ICRC in the former Yugoslavia, a detention facility was established at an unidentified prison in Bosanski Brod. Representatives of the ICRC visited this facility on 9 July 1992. No information regarding conditions, duration, ethnicity of detainees nor the identities of the controlling party was provided. 673/

9. Bosanski Novi

629. The area along the Una River in north-west BiH--which includes the communities of Sanski Most, Ključ, Prijedor and Bosanski Novi--is said to have been the site of concerted Serbian action intended to bring about an undiluted Serbian Republic. 674/

630. Serb occupation in the region began in July 1991. 675/ It was then that the community of Bosanski Novi became a vital Serbian military base from which Croatian targets were attacked. 676/ By June 1992, the strategic function of the mostly Muslim area had changed and the Serbs began to rid the area of the remaining Croats as well as its large Muslim citizenry. 677/ Accordingly, on a daily basis, "unrestrained formations of SDS" engaged in looting and burning of non-Serbian homes. 678/ The Serbs then collected the citizens and, separating the men from the women and children, sent the former to concentration camps in Bosanski Novi and the latter to camps in Doboje. 679/

631. Reports suggest that men were detained primarily at the sports stadium 680/ but other detention facilities were erected throughout Bosanski Novi to facilitate the Serb expulsion process, including the police station, the Hotel Una, the local fire station, a secondary school, and an area factory. Reportedly some 6,000 inmates were processed through one facility.

632. Stadium Mlakve: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by multiple sources, including Amnesty International and Helsinki Watch.) As early as May 1992, the sports stadium was used as a detention facility. 681/ Some witnesses report being held there for as a few as two days while others report being held for as many as two months. 682/ The conditions at this location were conspicuously deficient. The detainees were made to sleep in changing rooms, on the floor in corridors and in other spaces under the grandstand. 683/ During daylight hours inmates were kept outside in a roughly marked area of the football pitch. 684/ On one occasion an inmate fell unconscious, reportedly resulting from the combination of heat and the lack of food. 685/

633. According to one witness:

"We received food twice a day, usually a seventh of a kilo of bread and gruel with beans and peas; but only the luckiest got that, most of the others got just the watery soup. The men guarding us were reservists of the 'Army of the Serbian Republic'. The guards changed every seven days. When a captain of the 'Serbian Army' was killed on the front, they reduced our meals to only one a day. It was hot, conditions were bad and older men began to collapse." 686/

634. All of the ex-inmates interviewed stated that they were poorly fed and that the stadium conditions were grossly overcrowded. 687/ The Stadium was home to both non-Serbian military and civilian police as well as civilians from the surrounding areas. 688/ One report suggests that all the men in the villages of Blagaj and Bosanski Novi, aged 15 and older, were collected by Serbian military police and taken to the sports stadium in Bosanski Novi. 689/

635. There were reportedly more than 6,000 detainees at the sports stadium all of whom were subjected to physical mistreatment. 690/

636. On 22 July 1992, a large number of inmates were released from the stadium and taken to Croatia in a convoy arranged by international agencies. 691/ The survivors were allegedly able to identify many of their captors. 692/

637. Hotel Una: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by multiple sources, including Helsinki Watch and Amnesty International.) Sources suggest that camp inmates were transferred between the facilities following interrogations by their captors. 693/ Some were transferred to the Hotel Una from the stadium and others to the stadium from the hotel. 694/ Regardless of the location, the conditions at both appear uniformly harsh.

638. In one account, the victim was blindfolded and beaten both with truncheons and what he believes were bags of sand. 695/ The beatings occurred in conjunction with interrogations regarding the victims knowledge of the identities of "extremists" in the area as well as the reason why the victim had not been mobilized to fight against the Serbs. 696/

639. Following a two hour interrogation, the victim was taken to a cellar where 17 other men were held in a room of about 15 square metres. 697/ All were reportedly interrogated, but not all were beaten. 698/ On 11 June 1992, the other detainees were released, and the victim was transferred to the sports stadium for further interrogation. 699/

640. In another account, 16 inmates were transferred from the sports stadium to the hotel. 700/ The reporting inmate noted that prisoners were contained in rather poor facilities which consisted of one room in the cellar without windows and which was completely dark. 701/ The room reportedly measured four by three square metres, and four men were already detained therein when they arrived. 702/

According to the witness, the four inmates were Muslims. 703/ One was a soldier, another had been accused of trading arms on the black market and the alleged crimes of the third and fourth were unknown. 704/

641. The witness noted that there was a candle but not enough air to sustain the flame. It was reportedly also difficult to breathe. 705/ There was a pipe and a sink in the corner. The sink was used as a toilet and the pipe was used for water. The detainees defecated into a nylon bag and then stored the bag in the corner of the room. The bag remained in the room with the prisoners because the guards refused to remove it. 706/ The victims were also poorly fed, receiving no food for the first three days. 707/

642. On the day after their arrival at the hotel on 23 July, they learned that a convoy had evacuated the men held at the stadium. 708/ On the seventh day of their detention at the hotel, the men were removed from the cellar and transferred to another detention facility. 709/

643. Fire Station: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely Helsinki Watch.) Reportedly, the local fire station was among the possible facilities in Bosanski Novi where men from the surrounding area were interned. According to one witness, conditions at the fire station were much better than those at other sites in Bosanski Novi. 710/ Although the inmates were required to work at this location, 711/ they were fed twice daily and received the same food as the military police. 712/ Nineteen inmates were kept in one room which reportedly measured six by four metres in size. They were given pallets of board or cardboard to sleep on but no blankets. Some of the detainees were beaten from time to time, and all were interrogated. One witness recalled that he was released from the fire station on 10 August 1992. 713/

644. Police Station: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by multiple sources, including Amnesty International and Helsinki Watch.) Several reports refer to a detention facility at the local police station, but specific information regarding its description, operation and control were not made available. The reports allege that only men from the villages and towns in the area of Bosanski Novi were detained at the site 714/ and that some inmates were only held here long enough to be interrogated, after which they were transferred to other area facilities. 715/

645. Secondary School: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely the International Society for Human Rights, British Section.) According to one report, Serbian military and Serbian police collected members of Muslim families from the area of Bosanski Novi and detained them in the local secondary school. The report states that the Muslim detainees were forced to wear white bands around their arms. 716/ No information was available as to the conditions at this site.

646. Ustaša Camp: (The existence of this detention facility has not been corroborated by multiple sources.) There is only one report of a Croatian-controlled detention facility in the Bosanski Novi area and no specific information regarding location was given. 717/ The report alludes to the activities of one of the alleged perpetrators including his culpability in torturing Serbs in this Ustaša camp. He was said to have brutally beaten four named inmates including battering one inmate about the testicles. 718/ The report also suggests his responsibility for the killing of another inmate. 719/

647. Factory: (The existence of this detention facility has not been corroborated by multiple sources.) Only one report makes reference to a detention facility at a factory site. This allegation was made by a Muslim girl who stated that she was detained at this site along with several other Muslim men and women from her village of Blagaj. She stated that while at this location she watched her Serbian captors shoot a man in the stomach and then cut off his head with a knife. She stated further that only unarmed civilian victims were detained at this facility. 720/

10. Bosanski Petrovac

648. According to the 1991 Yugoslav census, this county had a population of 15,552, of which 75.2 per cent were Serbs, 21.1 per cent were Muslims and the remaining 3.7 per cent were described as "other". 721/ The village of Bosanski Petrovac is located at the intersection of two highways just 20 air miles east of the Croatian/Bosnian border. 722/ Information of reported internment facilities include camps at Jasikovac, 723/ in the village of Vrtoče 724/ and at Kozile. There is however no descriptive information regarding the operation or control of the facilities at Jasikovac nor Vrtoče. What follows are several accounts from former detainees in camp Kozile.

649. Kozile: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely the US Department of State.) This prison camp was reportedly located just east of the village of Bosanski Petrovac. The facility was erected along the site of what was formerly a horse farm. 725/ Reports suggest that the camp may have come in to operation some time prior to July 1992, but was of rather limited duration. 726/

650. The report suggests that men from nearby villages were routinely sent to Kozile. 727/ Some inmates were said to have come from Sanica, others from Orašac and still others from Bosanska Krupa. 728/ The camp was very small, reportedly only capable of containing 200 men at a time. 729/ Allegedly, an identified Serbian soldier was said to have acted as chief of interrogations and torture at the facility. 730/

651. On 6 August 1992, the Serbs discontinued camp activities and transferred all prisoners directly to a camp in Kamenica. 731/ Kozile was allegedly closed because unidentified representatives from the ICRC were scheduled to visit the area the following day, and the Serbian forces were concerned that the representatives may have discovered the camp and requested an inspection. 732/

652. Another ex-detainee recalls that Kozile 733/ was situated in an old factory in the woods where some 70 Muslim men were detained. The conditions were poor. The facility contained no beds or blankets. 734/ There were no medicines to assist the infirm, and the detainees were frequently beaten and used as forced labor. 735/

653. In still another account, a former detainee recalled being arrested by militiamen of the Serbian district of the county and taken to the local police station. After a few hours, he and several other prisoners were taken to Kozile by bus. 736/ At the camp, the bus was met by 30 armed men. 737/ The prisoners were instructed to stand in a line adjacent to an iron fence while the apparent leader called the inmates one at a time. Once identified, the personal articles were reportedly removed from the prisoners. 738/

654. The former detainee recalls that the facility was essentially a "hut". 739/ The hut was made up of six rooms with an adjoining hallway. 740/ On their first evening, the inmates were placed into a small room where they remained for the night. 741/ Because of the size of the room and the lack of ventilation, the inmates experienced difficulty breathing. 742/

655. The following day, the prisoners were divided up and placed in different rooms. 743/ There were 16 prisoners in the room 744/ with the witness. They received no food the first day. On the second day, the prisoners were beaten and eventually given food. They were, however, not permitted to use the toilet. 745/656. Following the beatings, they were made to walk on all fours to a trough and to lie down in front of the trough for two hours. They were also forced to bark like dogs and sing etnik songs. 746/

657. According to the witness, guards were on duty at all times. Approximately 10-15 among them were "head guards". 747/ They were professionals from the Correctional Institution of Bihać. 748/ The above-mentioned perpetrator was reportedly a warden at that institution and was, in the witness' estimation, the most abusive of the guards. 749/ The perpetrator reportedly removed from the camp some 43 prisoners whose names appeared on a list. The witness believed that a number of these prisoners were killed on his command. 750/

658. The remaining 42, including the witness, were reportedly released when the ICRC announced their plans to visit the location. 751/ Following their release the detainees were required to report to the police station twice daily. 752/

11. Bosanski Šamac

659. Bosanski Samac is located in northern Bosnia on the banks of the Sava River. It is bordered to the east by Orašje and to the west by Odak. According to the 1991 Yugoslav census, the population of this municipality was 32,835. Of that number, 44.7 per cent were Croat, 41.5 per cent were Serbs, 6.8 per cent were Muslims and the remaining 7 per cent were described as "others".

660. Bosanski Šamac T.O. Facility: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely the US Department of State.) According to reports, approximately 800 civilian Croats, Muslims, and Albanians were detained in the Bosanski Šamac Territorial Defence Building. 753/ The detainees were kept in two large warehouses adjacent to the central police station. 754/ The buildings had previously been used to store and service territorial defence force equipment and vehicles. 755/

661. When the Serbian Territory Defence entered the area, they arrested all the Muslims and Croats who were politically active. 756/ The local members of the Bosnian Muslim political party (SDA) were all held in this facility. 757/ Next, the Serbs arrested all the intellectuals, and then everyone else who did not have working obligations. 758/ The detainees were not charged with any offences. 759/ 662. The detainees were interrogated and beaten primarily in the police headquarters basement. 760/ After an initial period, the detainees were then moved to the T.O. Warehouse or to the School. 761/

663. At the T.O., the detainees were beaten, denied drinking water, denied use of the toilet and proper food. 762/ They were given only one meal a day consisting of a small slice of bread with jam. 763/ However, some of the local Serb guards were sympathetic and would smuggle in food packets, letters and other items from the wives of local detainees. 764/

664. The Serbian Special Forces beat detainees at first. 765/ Later, the local Serb police guards beat the detainees and were more brutal than the Special Forces. 766/ The beatings varied in instruments and number of perpetrators. 767/ The detainees were beaten with iron bars, wood planks, and truncheons by between one and 10 men. 768/

665. For example, one perpetrator reportedly beat detainees with an old automobile shock absorber and stabbed detainees with a bayonet. 769/ This perpetrator was also responsible for pouring salt into the deep knife wounds he inflicted. 770/ In another instance, another perpetrator killed Father Jozo Puškarić, a religious figure, by picking him up and throwing him to the ground. 771/ This perpetrator reportedly injured many detainees in this manner. 772/

666. The Serbian Special Forces usually beat the detainees during the day in the room in which they were housed or in the yard. 773/ The police guards would beat the detainees at night and attack in the dark. 774/ When the beaten detainees would fall unconscious as a result of the blows, fellow detainees would have to carry them back to the detention area. 775/ A doctor was allowed to treat some of the detainees at the camp for their injuries that resulted from the beatings and mistreatment. 776/

667. The police guards also forced some detainees to eat sand and forced one prisoner to swallow his own feces. 777/ According to one report, the police guards forced one detainee to perform sex acts on a fellow detainee. 778/

668. In April 1992, 47 detainees from the T.O. Building were transferred by two trucks to the JNA Casern Barracks in Brčko. 779/ Some detainees were sent to different detention facilities in the region but were then later returned to this detention camp. 780/

669. Farmers' Cooperative Storeroom: (The existence of this detention facility has not been corroborated by multiple sources.) Approximately 45 non-Serb people were detained in the Farmer's Cooperative Storerooms in Crkvina. 781/ Crkvina is situated about three miles from Bosanski Šamac. 782/

670. On 7 or 8 May 1992, the Serbian Special Force Squad came to the detention centre and ordered the detainees to line up along one side of the room. 783/ A soldier shined a flashlight on each of the detainees. 784/ He then hit one detainee on the head with his gun and shot the detainee as he was falling to the floor. 785/ This procedure was repeated along the line of detainees. 786/

671. When the soldiers finished going down the line killing certain detainees, they ordered the remaining detainees to line up on the other side of the room. 787/ While going down the line this time, the soldiers asked the detainees their names and occupations. 788/ The killings were based on the detainees' answers. 789/

672. After going through the line the second time, the soldiers ordered the remaining detainees to line up on the next wall. 790/ The soldiers ordered the younger detainees to place the dead bodies on a truck which was backed up to the doorway. 791/ The detainees then had to clean the blood off the floor. 792/ Fifteen from among the 45 detainees were reportedly killed. 793/ At least one of the survivors was transferred to the Bosanski Šamac Jail. 794/

673. Bosanski Šamac Elementary School: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by multiple sources, including the US Department of State.) The camp was located in the Bosanski Šamac School. 795/ The camp consisted of three buildings. 796/ The gymnasium held between 300 and 500 detainees ranging in age from 18 to 85 years old. 797/ The Osnovna Škola (Primary School) Building held approximately 80 detainees that were Muslim and Croats ranging in age from 18 to 65 years old. 798/ The third building was the Spomen Dom (Memorial) Building which held approximately 40 detainees. 799/

674. Area residents, including women and children, were taken by truck to the school gymnasium. 800/ For the first three days, the detainees were not provided with food. 801/ After the fourth day at the camp, one loaf of bread per day was distributed for every 12 people. 802/ The guards never provided any blankets or bedding to the detainees. 803/

675. The detainees in the Osnovna Škola Building were reportedly beaten, tortured and some were killed. 804/ Although some severe beatings occurred in the gynasium, they were reportedly uncommon. 805/

676. Initally all the guards were local civilian policemen. 806/ In July 1992, the local guards were replaced or supervised by Serbian Reserve Soldiers and the treatment of the detainees became worse. 807/ The Serbian soldiers beat the detainees with sticks and burned them with cigarettes. 808/ The soldiers threw cold water on the detainees and beat them further.

677. The detainees received one meal a day that consisted of a half slice of bread and an egg. 809/

678. The camp commander was a former civilian policeman. 810/ The camp was controlled by the military police of the Serbian army. 811/

679. The most feared individual at the camp was named in the source materials. 812/ Although this individual was not a guard at the camp, he visited whenever he wanted and would proceed to beat and kill detainees. 813/ The killings took place in the gymnasium in front of all the detainees. 814/

680. At times, Serbian Troops would take groups of 15 to 20 men to dig trenches at the front. 815/ At least three men from the camp were seriously wounded by cross-fire. 816/

681. On or about 20 August 1992, 100 detainees from the school were transferred to the T.O. Building in Bosanski Šamac in anticipation of an exchange. 817/ Some of these detainees were tied up and threatened prior to the exchange. 818/

682. Bosanski Šamac Secondary School: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely the US Department of State.) Detainees from Bijeljina were taken to this school where they spent three days. 819/ At this time, they were the only detainees in the school. 820/ Later, 10 men and two women were brought to the school from the Bosanski Šamac Police Jail. 821/ A Red Cross visit to the jail prompted the transfer. 822/

683. The detainees were later transferred to the Bosanski Šamac School Gymnasium. 823/

684. Old Police Building: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by multiple sources, including the ICRC.) A detention facility was located in Bosanski Šamac in the Old Police Building on Titova Street. 824/

685. When the Serbian Territory Defence entered the area, they arrested all the Muslims and Croats who were politically active. 825/ The local members of the Bosnian Muslim political party (SDA) were all held in this facility. 826/ Next, the Serbs arrested all the intellectuals, and then everyone else who did not have working obligations. 827/

686. The detainees were interrogated and beaten primarily in the police headquarters basement. 828/ After an inital period where they were beaten every day, the detainees were then moved to the T.O. Warehouse or to the School. 829/

687. Five of the detainees were civilans who had surrendered arms to a Serbian Paramilitary Unit. 830/ Although they were told by the police that they were to be treated as POWs, these men were tortured and beaten. 831/ Detainees were forced to lie face down while guards sliced their knuckles and beat them with wooden and rubber clubs. 832/

688. The Serbian military would come to the jail at random times each day and force the detainees to sing etnik songs for an hour. 833/ Detainees who were leaders in the political communities of the Muslims or Croats were taken out of the chorus and beaten while the others continued to sing. 834/ Those who had relatives fighting in the Croatian Army were also singled out for harsh treatment, often death. 835/ In some cases, Serbs came from the front after fighting to beat the detainees. 836/

689. Detainees were taken to dark rooms in the upper floor of the jail and beaten from behind. 837/ Detainees were forced to eat hot chili peppers to cause additional pain to the cuts they had from the beatings. 838/ Reportedly some detainees died or disappeared during their internment at the jail. 839/

690. The camps were controlled by the military police of the Serbian army. 840/

691. According to the list of detention places visited by ICRC in the former Yugoslavia, a detention facility was established at a local police station in Bosanski Šamac. Representatives of the ICRC visited this facility on 13 May 1992. No information regarding conditions, duration, the ethnicity of detainees nor the identities of the controlling parties was provided. 841/

692. House Arrest: (The existence of this type of detention has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely the US Department of State.) The women and children from the Bosanski Šamac area were detained in houses in the village of Zasavica. The village was policed by Serbian Soldiers and Serbian irregulars. 842/

693. Sources suggest that the women were repeatedly raped while detained under house arrest. 843/

12. Bratunac

694. This municipality is located in the central eastern part of BiH, bordered on the east by Serbia. According to the 1991 Yugoslav census, there was a population of 33,575 before the war. Of that number, Muslims constituted the majority with 64.2 per cent, Serbs made up 34.2 per cent, and the remaining 1.6 per cent described themselves as "other".

695. At the end of April 1992, Bratunac was occupied by former JNA Novi Sad corps and the Šešelj and Arkan formation from Serbia. The majority Muslim population failed to resist occupation, mostly out of fear of Serb retaliatory action. 844/ Two weeks later, the process of "ethnic cleansing" began, and was reportedly completed in less than one week. 845/

696. By early May, Serb forces had robbed, burned, destroyed, and ethnically cleansed the villages of Hrančić, Glogova, Biječevo, Krasnopolj, Miholjevići and a large part of Bratunac itself. 846/ The Serbian extremists and aggressors have effectively forced 20,332 Muslim citizens, or 92 per cent of the Muslim population from the Bratunac area, into exile. 847/

697. Serbian extremists arrested Muslims en masse. Many were taken to the stadium or sport grounds and stripped of their possessions. 848/ The men were separated from the women and children and then transferred to other detention facilities. 849/ A camp whose location is unknown is alleged to exist in one report. 850/

698. FK "Bratstvo" Stadium: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by multiple sources, including the Austrian Mission.) According to one report, "Četniks" from Serbia instituted a manhunt throughout the area inspecting one house at a time, collecting residents and sending them to the local stadium for "consultations with the new authorities". 851/ When the citizens arrived, their names were read off, they were divided into groups, and the men were transferred to the gymnasium of the local elementary school. 852/

699. According to another report, some 6,000 to 7,000 Muslims were interned at the stadium by "Četniks" on 10 June 1992. 853/ They were reportedly forced to serve as blood donors, and some did not survive because so much blood had been withdrawn. 854/ Reportedly, the bodies of hundreds of individuals have been burned or thrown into the Drina River. 855/ This camp is also reported in a list of camps. 856/ Other reports also allege the existence of this camp. 857/

700. "Vuk Stefanović Karadić" Primary School: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by multiple sources, including the Austrian Mission.) Muslim men were detained at this location in the centre of the village following "consultation" and assignment at the stadium. Many were subjected to beatings. Several were reportedly tortured and killed. 858/ Allegedly the richest among the detainees were killed first. According to one report, detainees numbered approximately 800. Four hundred among them were later transported to Pale for prisoner exchange. 859/

701. Many of the allegations concerning this camp are corroborated in the Special Rapporteur's report of 10 February 1993. It was reported that after the mass arrest of about 2,000 Muslims by Serb police in Bratunac on 9 May 1992, 500 to 600 men were detained in the hall of an elementary school. Those who could not fit inside were reportedly shot with automatic weapons in front of the hall. Beatings were carried out according to lists naming the most influential in the community. Between 30 to 50 people died from injuries the first night while nine others suffocated in the crush as the 500 to 600 struggled to escape the beatings. An Imam was allegedly beaten and stabbed to death after refusing to take the Christian faith and raise three fingers in the Serb manner. After three days of beatings, the group was transferred to Pale. 860/

702. In another report, some 600-700 male Muslims were brutally tortured and killed by Serb paramilitary units and local "Četniks". Some victims were beaten with wooden and iron poles, others were taken to the "so-called investigation" room which was full of dead bodies where they were made to jump up and down on the bodies of the dead. 861/ Witnesses claimed that the corpses were "butchered", with noses, ears and genitals cut off and crosses cut into their skin. 862/

703. According to another report, on 12 May 1992, several individuals from the village of Rakovac were arrested by Serb police 863/ and detained at this location. Their personal effects were removed, they were beaten and then made to remain in a squatting position without food or water for some 30 hours. 864/ Two among them were reportedly set afire. Two other detainees were also killed. 865/ In the witness' estimation, some 21 individuals were killed during the course of the evening. Some days later, several prisoners were taken to Pale where they were exchanged. 866/

704. In another report, a witness/victim was brought to this location in early April 1992. Reportedly hundreds of men between the ages of 16 and 50 were interned here. 867/ Every day a group of inmates were removed from the camp, and never returned. The witness was detained at this location until mid-May, at which time he was transported to Pale. 868/ During his detention at the school, he witnessed summary executions and arbitrary killings of other prisoners. 869/ Several individuals suffered from starvation. The witness was reportedly forced to bury many of the dead and was made to clean up the bloodstains left behind with his clothing. 870/ Another witness testimony provides similar details and it is unclear if it is the same witness. 871/

705. In another report, after being transferred to the school from the stadium, some 500-600 men were forced into one main hall. 872/ The aggressors beat the detainees to try to squeeze them all into the hall. Those who could not fit, were shot in the doorway with automatic weapons. 873/ Consequently, many died from the suffocation which resulted from individuals squeezing others into the corners of the room to escape death. According to the report, those men who survived were beaten throughout the night. 874/

706. In the days that followed, inmates were reportedly taken outside, beaten, placed into garbage containers, and burned alive. 875/ The open containers were then placed under the windows of the containment area causing the smoke to fill the room. The dead were later transported by trucks and disposed of in the river Drina. 876/

707. According to several reports, the Imam, Mustafa Mojkanović, from Bratunac was killed by Serb extremists on 10 June before thousands of Muslim citizens. 877/ Reportedly, the Serb extremists ordered the Imam to cross himself, when he refused they beat him. They reportedly also stuffed his mouth with sawdust, poured beer in his mouth and then cut his throat. 878/ That same evening some 200 other Muslims were also killed, but not before being subjected to extreme abuses and physical mistreatment. 879/

708. One witness reported that he and 120 other inmates from this camp were due to be exchanged for "etnik" prisoners at Kladanj on 14 May 1992. The source believed that they were actually taken to the village of Donja Vratnica, near Visoko, where they were untied and handed over to Bosnian soldiers wearing "fleurs de lis" badges. The source did not see any of the "etnik" prisoners they were to be swapped with. 880/

709. This camp is also reported in a list of camps. 881/ Other reports also allege the existence of a camp here. 882/

710. Military Prison: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely the ICRC.) According to the ICRC, there is a camp in the Military Prison in Bratunac. The ICRC first visited the Military Prison on 14 October 1993. 883/

13. Brčko

711. Serbs have used and may still be using detention camps to facilitate the destruction and expulsion of non-Serbs from Brčko. Serbian conquest of Brčko is strategically significant in that it provides one link in a chain ensuring contiguous borders and access to FRY for Bosnian Serbs. Brčko lies on the southern bank of the Sava river which serves as the boundary between BiH and Croatia. Pre-war population of the city and county of Brčko was about 87,000, 40,000 in the city. Approximately 44 per cent were Muslim, 25 per cent Croat, 21 per cent Serb, six per cent Yugoslavs and 3 per cent "others". The county is part of the Sava River valley and supports mixed farming. 884/ The city was a light industrial centre. 885/

712. The political and military objectives of the Bosnian Serbs are clear. The creation and preservation of Serbian dominated and controlled territory within what had become BiH and its direct geographic and political link with FRY. Brčko Serbs expressed their intention toward the end of April 1992. SDS Assemblyman Ristanić declared that Bosnia's Serbs wanted to be part of Yugoslavia. He announced that Brčko's Serbs wanted the city broken into three parts, one each for Muslims, Serbs, and Croats. This announcement was covered on local television and in the newspapers Gradiety and Brčanske Novine. He insisted that division must take place by 3 May or there would be war. 886/

713. Their demand for ethnic division either unanswered, unmet, or unimportant, Serbian forces destroyed the two bridges over the Sava River, on or about April 30, 1992. Fifty to 100 people were killed by the explosions. Body parts were scattered nearby and windows in downtown Brčko were shattered. The Serbs bombarded Muslim areas with artillery. After about a day, Serb forces secured downtown Brčko and the predominantly Serb areas east of the main road to Tuzla. The Serbs also began to round up Muslim residents. 887/

714. For several months before April 1992, JNA equipment (including artillery, tanks, and small arms) from Slovenia and Croatia was brought into the Brčko area for storage. Buses carrying Serb forces (probably paramilitary) reportedly moved from Bijeljina toward Brčko in the days just before the end of April. By late April, the Serb leadership in Brčko appears to have had both experienced forces and a ready stockpile of arms at hand. 888/

715. Reportedly, the JNA had begun to patrol around the city and county of Brčko in January and February 1992. The reserves were called up in February, soldiers were told they would fight in the Osijek area. Most Croats and Muslims left their units and escaped to Croatia. At that time, the JNA confiscated all of the weapons and matériel of the Bosnian Territorial Defence Force and began to arm local Serbian civilians. Small squares were placed on every house and apartment building to identify the ethnicity of its inhabitants. Ethnic lists were compiled for every village and town in the area. 889/

716. As described above, Serb forces commenced their attack upon Brčko with the destruction of the two bridges (road and rail) that cross the Sava at Brčko, on April 30 or very early in the morning of 1 May 1992. 890/ The Serbian forces proceeded to bombard Brčko with artillery. Fighting reached the centre of the city on 1 May, when Serbian reservists from Bijeljina positioned artillery around the train station and began firing into Muslim parts of the city. The shells landed at a rate of 75 every 45 minutes. In some parts of town, local Serbs who had obtained weapons beforehand began arresting their Muslim and Croatian neighbors. 891/ After the bombardment, Colonel Pavle Milinković and his garrison troops occupied the city with help from local mobilized Serbs. Muslim men were placed under house arrest. 892/

717. The battle for the city of Brčko was over for all practical purposes by 4 May 1992. Victorious Serb forces began rounding up Muslim and Croat residents. The captives were taken to several holding areas, including the Brčko police station, the local bus depot, a former sand and gravel depository, the hospital, a former textile factory, a mosque, a hotel, and a pig farm south-east of the city. Killings and beatings allegedly took place in each. 893/

718. A Bosnian Serb from a village populated entirely by ethnic Serbs, who participated in the takeover of Brčko provided the following account: Bosnian Serbs in Lukavac received a shipment of weapons from the JNA base in Brčko at the end of April 1992. The weapons, mostly AK-47's and M-48's, were delivered by JNA military trucks to a house in the village. The owner of the house, his brother and their friend then reportedly distributed the weapons in Lukavac. 894/

719. On April 30, 1992, JNA forces stationed in Brčko destroyed the two bridges over the Sava. Approximately 3,000 paramilitary troops from Serbia came from Bijeljina and attacked Brčko from the south-east. Bosnian Serb irregulars from Gornji Bukvik and the surrounding area attacked from the west. The two attacking forces met at the JNA military base in Brčko to further coordinate the takeover of Brčko with local JNA forces. 895/

720. The president of the local Serbian Democratic Party then allegedly announced the mobilization of all Bosnian Serbian male residents of military age. On 7 May, about 600 gathered. According to this witness, within the next seven days all Muslim and Croatian residents were rounded up and taken to the Luka port camp. 896/

721. Another witness reported that in the first half of May, Serbs searched for weapons, registered the local population and restricted movement in the city. 897/

722. According to the same witness, successive waves of military and paramilitary forces came to Brčko. Every few days a different group appeared to be in charge. At one time or another, the men of Dragan Kalinić, Arkan (eljko Ranjatović) or Vojislav Šešelj were in charge. Martić's people from Bosanska Krajina were supposedly the last to hold the city. 898/

723. Each weekend groups of Serbian "weekenders" (vikendaši), armed Serbian men, not necessarily soldiers, allegedly descended upon the area from Bijeljina to plunder and vandalize. 899/

724. Reportedly, during the first few days of May, the local Serbs established what was called the "War Presidency", a committee of local leaders representing important sources of authority in the region. These allegedly included: the chief of uniformed police, Veselin Veselić, the commander of the military garrison, Colonel Pavle Milinković, the commander of the Luka camp, Dokić, the commander of the fire brigade, Kristo Purić, the head of health, Milenko Vojinović, aka Dr. Beli and reportedly in the Bosnian Serb Assembly in Pale, the head of the judiciary, Todor Gavrić, the information director, Boško Lomović, the head of defence, Milutinović and the police commander, Drago Vesiljević. Djordje Ristanić was reported to be the head of the executive body. The War Presidency may now call itself the "Executive Committee". 900/

725. JNA Casern: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by multiple sources, including the US Department of State and Helsinki Watch.) As stated previously, the collection and imprisonment of non-Serbian residents began immediately after Serb conquest of the city. In fact, there is at least one report of Muslim detention at the JNA casern prior to the outbreak of armed hostilities in the city. 901/

726. Allegedly, on 26 April 1992, 47 prisoners from the Bosanski Šamac T.O. Building were transferred by two trucks, one civilian and one military, to the JNA casern in Brčko. The casern was still a JNA installation and supported an unidentified armour unit and an unidentified infantry unit. Some soldiers wore a star on their uniforms, while others had a star with the Serbian tri-colour in the middle. The detention facility took up half the casern and it already supposedly contained four unidentified civilians from the Brčko area. 902/

727. The alleged camp commander was a JNA counter-intelligence major who wore civilian clothes. Guards were JNA military police. 903/

728. The prisoners were reportedly interrogated and beaten. Interrogators included the camp commander and the commander of the Bosanski Šamac fourth detachment who was also a member of the city's crisis headquarters, who traveled to Brčko on at least two occasions for the purpose of interrogating prisoners. The goal was collection of information regarding Muslim/Croatian military posture and capabilities. 904/

729. One prisoner was allegedly maltreated because he was a member of the Croatian Democratic Union (HDZ) in Bosanski Šamac. 905/

730. On 5 May, all 51 prisoners were reportedly transferred to the Španac JNA barracks territory in Bijeljina. 906/

731. It was also reported that on about 1 May 1992 about 200 men were held in the casern movie theatre from an ethnically mixed apartment building. 907/

732. Many were placed under a sort of house arrest, ordered to stay within their homes or a small area around their homes. It was reported that bands of Serbs entered Muslim homes, took away young females, raped them and returned them after two or three days. 908/ Most who found themselves alive and subject to the authority of Serbian forces were put in a number of places for several days before being shipped to the primary detention camp in Brčko, at the Luka port facilities.

733. The number of detainees was reported to have grown so rapidly that a number of facilities in and around Brčko were designated as holding areas. Accounts of the locations of these holding areas vary, but the following have appeared in a variety of reports and interviews received.

734. Police Station: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by multiple sources, including Helsinki Watch and the US Mission.) Reports suggest the detention and execution of hundreds of people at the Brčko police station probably located on Majevička Brigada Road in Brčko. 909/

735. One man claims to have been held there for seven days in May 1992. He stated that Serbian forces used this police station as a killing centre from 7 May 1992 until 1 June 1992. He may have loaded bodies into trucks during his seven day period of incarceration at the rate of 100 bodies per day. He claims to have survived only because of the intervention of a Serbian Orthodox priest who apparently secured his transfer to the Luka camp, which was located in a quarry and brickyard outside Brčko. The witness claims that he was later transferred to a camp in Serbia; where after a period of time he obtained his release. 910/

736. Apparently, the same individual recalls the execution of several Muslim teenage boys after they had been ordered to sing a Serbian song. He was also told that specific rooms in the police station were used for torture and execution. A guard at the facility supposedly claimed that 300 people were killed each day. The majority of killings seemed to take place around a series of stalls or elevators. 911/ A second individual apparently detained at the same place declared that he was responsible for unloading bodies from an elevator. He estimated that he loaded about 500 bodies onto trucks over a three day period. 912/

737. Several individuals were also reportedly beaten, interrogated, and forced to work. 913/

738. Slaughterhouse/Abattoir: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by multiple sources, including the UK Defence Debriefing Team.) According to a British report, the Abattoir, adjacent to the wharf complex in Brčko, was set up as a torture camp where the slaughter equipment was used on the inmates. 914/

739. The fact is, the slaughterhouse may have been used by the Serbs in conjunction with the police station as a detention and execution complex. Apparently, a slaughterhouse is located next to the police station. 915/ Also, another individual reported that he visited a cattle slaughterhouse near Brčko, near the Luka camp. He heard screams and shots. He also spoke with an alleged survivor of the facility who said that 100-300 people were killed there each day from 7 to 14 May 1992. 916/

740. A Former Sand and Gravel Depository: 917/ (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by multiple sources, including the US Mission.) It was reported that in late April 1992, the former sand and gravel depository "Luka-Skladište Šljunka i Peska" was turned into a detention camp where, within 30 days, more than 1,000 Muslims were sent. Inmates were fed once every two or three days. Every night a group of prisoners was taken away and not seen again. In late June, this camp allegedly held over 5,000. In a two day period in late June-early July, over 2,000 people from this camp were allegedly killed. New arrivals in the camp kept the population at roughly 5000. 918/

741. Former Textile Factory Interplet: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely the US Mission.) Over 2,000 people, mostly women, were reportedly held in a former textile factory in Brčko. About 1,000 women there were allegedly subject to constant rape by Serb gangs. 919/

742. The Fesfema Restaurant: (The existence of this detention facility has not been corroborated by multiple sources.) The Fesfema restaurant was reported as a place of detention in Brčko. 920/ No additional information was provided regarding its operation or control.

743. The Fraser (or Faser) Car Service Company: (The existence of this detention facility has not been corroborated by multiple sources.) This facility was reportedly operated as a place of detention in Brčko. 921/ No additional information was provided regarding its operation or control.

744. Sports Hall/Stadium complex "Partizan": (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by multiple sources, including the US Department of State and the Danish Helsinki Committee.) A sports hall and/or stadium complex called Partizan allegedly held over 500 people.

745. Reportedly a group of 96 Muslims were transported to this location immediately after which two were killed and the remainder were forced to beat each other. A Major Dragan was said to have cut one prisoners' ear off and forced another prisoner to lick the wound. A machine-gun was supposedly placed in the middle of the hall and the guards threatened to kill everybody on the spot. Allegedly some guards placed pistols in prisoners' mouths, while others combed prisoners' hair with bloody combs. The report states that of the original 96, 26 survived two days of torture. Some were then reportedly taken to Bijeljina, others to the Luka camp. 922/

746. The Hotel Galija: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely the US Mission.) Where more than 500 female Muslims were allegedly held for the sexual entertainment of Serb forces. 923/

747. Luka: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by multiple sources, including Mazowiecki and the British Defence Debriefing Team.) The brick factory and port facilities located on the Sava River; the primary detention camp in Brčko, notorious as a death and torture camp. 924/

748. The Serbs detained prisoners at the Luka port facility from at least 8 May 1992 until late July or August 1992, when, it seems, the Luka camp was shut down, and surviving prisoners were transferred elsewhere. Reports suggest that the camp population ranged from 1,000 to 5,000 inmates with the total number of people who passed through unknown. Supposedly about 95 per cent were ethnic Muslims and the remainder Croatian; however, there are reports of Serbs held and killed at the Luka camp also. Additionally, it seems that all those detained at the Luka camp were from around Brčko. 925/

749. During the camp's operation, many prisoners were released, some bribed their way out and others were saved by personal intervention of influential Serbs. Up to three thousand prisoners may have been killed in the Luka detention complex and all inmates were subjected to inhumane living conditions and a variety of brutal assaults, including rape and torture. The perpetrators of such acts were guards, administrators, soldiers and paramilitaries. Many survivors have rendered statements and may be available to testify. 926/

750. The Luka camp had five main parts: an administration building, which included barracks, offices, interrogation rooms, and rooms where women were held to be raped; a large warehouse divided into three compartments, where the detainees were held; a police barracks; a small building used as barracks by groups of front-line soldiers who visited the complex; and a second large warehouse, where visiting soldiers could obtain small arms and equipment. (The warehouse held a new model of rifle manufactured by the company in Serbia that usually supplied the JNA; some trucks making deliveries to the warehouse had license plates from Serbia.) The visiting soldiers, especially members of Arkan's forces, appear to have been responsible for many of the beatings and killings. 927/

751. From early May, Luka's commander was reportedly Major Petar Djokić; the Deputy Commander was an identified Captain. Both men wore JNA uniforms. The Major was known by locals to be the richest man in the Semberi region of Bosnia and had a house in Dvorovi. 928/ They appeared before the prisoners sparingly. Djokić reportedly oversaw or participated in some beatings and at least one killing of prisoners. They did not inform prisoners of their rights and responsibilities, nor did they apparently take necessary steps to maintain discipline within the Luka camp. They were directly involved in arranging for the transfer to the "Serbian Republic" of the property of at least some Muslims interned in the camp, in concert with representatives of the Arkanovci. They appear to have had repeated, direct contacts with various paramilitary leaders (including Arkan, Captain Dragan, and Captain Mauser, a local paramilitary). 929/

752. Until late May, the commander of the halls in which prisoners were held was an identified individual who reportedly committed numerous beatings and killings and was present for many others. This man had keys to the second warehouse, where arms were stored. He was reportedly succeeded as commander by a young man. This young man was from Brčko, was well known to detainees, and had worked in Luka from early May. After assuming command, he registered detainees; which the former commander had not. Both men were members of the local police (SUP). Nearly all guards in the camp (and all those seen after Kosta took command) wore blue SUP uniforms. Paramilitaries, in particular the Arkanovci and Draganovci, participated in the transportation of detainees to and from Luka. 930/

753. A Bosnian Muslim from Brčko provided an account of his arrest and imprisonment at Luka from the inception of its use as a camp. He stated that Serbian forces stormed into the suburb of Novo Brčko. "Četniks", including White Eagle forces, shot rifles into the windows of residences and drove people into the street. All residents were put into six trucks, which made about three trips to ferry the people to an area where three schools were collocated. 931/

754. The residents of Novo Brčko were gathered onto the combined athletic fields of the schools. With megaphones, the captors directed Serbs to one part of the field, Croats to another, and Muslims to yet another. Members of mixed marriages and children were not permitted to remain together. Along with a group of males aged 13 and older, the witness was among the first prisoners taken to the Luka camp. He was forced to sign documents "selling" his property in Novo Brčko at a low price to a Serb. 932/

755. During his first days at the camp, the captors called out names of prisoners from electoral rolls. All those who were members of the SDA (a Bosnian, primarily Muslim, political party) or who had held positions of leadership in business or industry were killed. Shootings often occurred at 4:00 a.m. The witness estimates that during his first week at Luka more than 2,000 men were killed and thrown into the Sava River. 933/

756. After four days of mass shootings, there was a lull. From the fifth day, prisoners who were ethnic Serbs and were accused of being disloyal to the "etnik" cause were taken for interrogation and beatings. 934/

757. The witness was interrogated on the seventh day of his captivity. This was the stage when detainees with property or money were subjected to questioning and torture. The witness, who was affluent, would not describe his own beating. By this point, all prisoners known to have been politically active had already been killed. 935/

758. Following his second week in the Luka facility, the witness saw guards torture or kill Serbs who had hidden or helped Muslims. The camp commander designated a Bosnian Serb who had been a waiter at a Brčko hotel to seek out specific ethnic Serb prisoners for interrogation because he knew most of the Brčko area residents by name. 936/

759. After the witness had been interrogated, he was taken with other prisoners to Hanger Two of the loading dock, where they were forced to look at a pile of more than 200 corpses or torsos. Most of the body parts had been chopped off: hands, arms, and genitals. The prisoners standing outside Hanger Two were told they would end up like that if they told lies while being interrogated. 937/

760. Looking out the window during one of his interrogations, the witness saw the soldiers gang-rape a woman whom he had known since his high school days, and murder her husband. A Brčko school teacher among the guards, an ethnic Serb, was shot dead for refusing to join in the torture and killing of this couple. 938/

761. The witness identified the second camp commander, among others as responsible for the atrocities at Luka. This commander showed serious concern over the fact that some guards carried out their "duties" with knives. Most other guards at Luka were also visibly afraid of the knife-wielding guards, who were regularly seen castrating male prisoners. 939/

762. He also observed the beating of "handsome" male prisoners, aged 20 to 30, on the genitals repeatedly and for extended periods of time. 940/

763. The witness reported that on Wednesdays and Saturdays, guards raped teen-aged girls. Also, certain other guards routinely lined up handsome young men, Croat against Muslim, in rows of three or four. The male prisoners were forced to perform sodomy on one another while being taunted by laughing guards. 941/

764. According to the witness, the younger handsome males at Luka suffered the most horrific abuses by far of any group of prisoners. 942/

765. This witness observed eight to 10 teen-age girls brought to the camp commander's office building on Wednesdays and Saturdays, between about 1,400 and 1,800 hours. The teenagers came only two days of the week. 943/

766. The camp commander would take his time selecting a girl, who was then escorted upstairs. Once the commander had made his choice, three or four guards selected one girl to share among them, and so on. Only the commander was permitted a girl to himself. 944/

767. The witness identified one perpetrator as the well-known daughter of

Brčko's leading prostitute. She bragged about her job of going around town to "buy and prepare" the girls, and she was assisted by three men who participated in the "delivery service", as well as serving as "police" at the Luka camp. The witness identified all of the aforementioned people, and provided names of girls known to be dead and presumed to have died from being gang-raped at the Luka camp. 945/

768. The female perpetrator reportedly brought a nurse to Luka to "prepare the girls and make them calm". The girls apparently had no idea what was going to happen to them because they were only slightly frightened. The witness implied that the nurse was coerced into "treating" the girls. 946/

769. The nurse, also a fellow refugee, said that this female perpetrator had stabbed one girl, who had resisted being sent to the soldiers, on the breast and in the vagina with the broken neck of a glass bottle; the girl bled to death. The nurse personally witnessed this incident. 947/

770. He reported that in the first week of June, the bodies of most of the 2,000 that he estimates were killed were thrown down a well and emerged later floating down the Sava River, surfacing at Brezovo Polje and even as far away as Belgrade. As Luka guards became aware of the surfacing corpses, they took to cutting open the bodies and packing them with sand to keep them submerged. This effort did not always succeed. The third approach was to chop up corpses and burn the bodies. 948/

771. It seems that upon arrival at the Luka-Brčko camp, all internees were questioned by one of the three inspectors, who then decided their fate. Internees who were members of the SDA or HDZ political parties were usually executed at the camp. The internees were also questioned as to whether they, or their neighbors, possessed any currency, gold, or weapons. Prisoners could only be released by a signature from either the police chief at the camp or from the major or captain in charge. The Inspectors themselves did not have such authority. Approximately 1,000 prisoners were released though, by having a Serbian person vouch, with his or her life, that the internee would not leave Brčko, not discuss politics, and not own any weapons, and by having these Serbian sponsors sign a document to this effect. 949/

772. Allegedly, a Serbian police officer, provided his signature to authorize some executions; however, it is understood that many killings reportedly occurred without any such signature being provided, required or even sought. 950/

773. The Serbian police seemed to have administrative control of the camp, and it was reported that Serbian police officers were always present when atrocities occurred. One witness, saw camp guards at Luka-Brčko wearing black berets, which at that time indicated membership in units belonging to eljko "Arkan" Ranjatović. However, the witness also described the administration of Luka-Brčko as changing at least once a month. 951/

774. Apparently, the camp itself measured approximately 230 by 150 metres and was enclosed by an electrified fence constructed by the detainees. Mines were supposedly buried around the exterior of the camp. The internees lived in one of three hangers: the first, 20 millimetres by 28 millimetres in size, housed 650-700 Muslim men from Brezovo Polje; the second 20 millimetres by 40 millimetres, housed 120-180 men; and the third 20 millimetres by 40 millimetres housed 300 men, women and children. Women and children were also held in one other undisclosed area. 952/

775. The second and third hangers were connected by a large door through which the internees could see each other. Internees in the first hanger usually slept standing up because of the limited space. In the other two hangers the internees were allowed to sit along the wall, but their legs had to remain straight out along the ground. The internees were allowed to use the toilet, located in a different building, only once a day and for no longer than one minute. 953/ After 25 May 1992, each hanger was given five 10 litre buckets, which then served as their toilets. As of June 1992, goats were also placed in the hangers and lived with the internees. It was reported that combined stench of goat and human excrement, and dead internees from behind the third hanger, was overpowering. Blood was also reported to be ankle deep from behind the third hanger where the dead bodies were usually kept until later disposed. 954/

776. It was reported that in the beginning of May 1992, each intern received food rations of 50 grams of bread and .15 litres of thin bean soup each day. This ration was later changed to 80 grams of bread per day and .08 litres of spoiled bean porridge soup per week and later drastically cut to 70-80 grams of bread only every four to five days. 955/

777. Apparently, murder and torture were a daily occurrence. Such activity often appeared to be random. Reports received describe a plethora of various acts of violence and degradation. For example, witnesses reported ears and noses cut off and eyes gouged out. Some of the internees were killed for such slight infractions of camp rules as raising a leg off the ground. Many prisoners were killed by being shot in the back of the head. Such killings were usually carried out near floor drains which emptied into the Sava river. Knives were reported to be used to cut into the skin of the internees all the way to the bone and others had their fingers cut off. 956/

778. Guards regularly beat prisoners with different types of clubs. Some prisoners were reportedly beaten with clubs to the point that their faces caved in and were then simply left to die. Another form of maltreatment was to jump from tables onto internees breaking their ribs and other bones. Many men were allegedly castrated. Such atrocities were almost always reported to have been committed in front of other detainees. The bodies of the dead, or dying internees, were often taken to the camp dump or moved behind the prisoner hangars. Other internees were required to move the bodies. Sometimes the prisoners who carried the dead were killed while carrying such bodies to the dump. The dead were also taken and dumped outside the Serbian Police Station located on Majevička Brigada Road in Brčko. 957/

779. One source indicates that these daily atrocities were committed by 10-15 Serbian paramilitary soldiers and an unknown number of Arkanovci, Šešeljovci, and Yugoslavian Federal Specijalci soldiers, as well as by Serbian police. Internees were often told to sing and those that did not sing loud enough were shot point blank. After the singing started the guards would often come in and start randomly shooting the internees. In one undated incident, approximately 50 men, women and children were killed. The internees were told that this was in retaliation for the deaths of 12 Serbian paramilitary soldiers killed at the front. This type of random shooting was reported to have occurred on a daily basis with anywhere from 15-50 victims. 958/

780. There was also reported to be a torture room at the camp, and those internees taken there never returned. Those tortured were either killed immediately or left to bleed to death in pools of their own blood. No other prisoners were allowed to help them and if they did not die on their own within two to three days, they too were then shot to death. 959/

781. It was reported that dozens of Muslim prisoners had crosses engraved into their foreheads with knives and were then given Orthodox names such as Aleksander and then required to repeat, for example, "I am Aleksander". 960/

782. Apparently, several camp guards would enter the third hanger on a daily basis and force a prisoner to drink some sort of alcoholic beverage and swallow white pills. They would then order the prisoner to beat his fellow prisoners. 961/

783. One report estimated that "Četniks" were involved with approximately 70 per cent of the tortures at the camp. Fifty to 60 per cent of the killings were estimated to be done by Arkanovci; however, other Serbian paramilitary forces such as, Šešeljovci, Specijalci, and Draganovci were also involved in the killing and torture and Serbian Police were often present. 962/

784. According to the report "Četniks" and "STDF" forces guarded the camp and internees often unloaded ammunition from civilian trucks which was stored directly next to where the detainee's were housed. This ammunition was reported to have been used by Serbian forces belonging to the Brčko garrison. 963/

785. A Bosnian Serb who joined Serb forces and worked as a guard at the Luka-Brčko port facilities provides one of the most detailed descriptions of the camp located on the west bank of the Sava River. This description both corroborates and contradicts certain aspects of other reports on the camp. He stated that the camp was approximately 500 metres long and 100 metres wide and was surrounded by a two metre high chain-link fence with barbed wire outriggers (fence appeared part of the original port facilities). 964/

786. A single gate was located on the north-west side and provided vehicular and pedestrian access. The INA-Luka gas station was located immediately adjacent to the gate and on the same side of the road as the camp. Facing the gate from the outside of the camp, the gas station was to the left of the gate. The gate was five or six metres wide and consisted of two hinged doors, made of spaced vertical metal rods mounted on a metal frame, which moved on rollers. The gatehouse was located on the outside of the gate. The camp accommodations consisted of two one-story warehouse buildings, each measuring approximately 40 metres long and 20 metres wide. Between the two warehouses but closer to the river were the ruins of a building. 965/

787. The outside perimeter was guarded by six guards who worked in pairs in two hour shifts. These guards were lodged in a nearby house outside the camp perimeter. All six were Bosnian Serbs from the Brčko area and were ordered to participate in some of the rapes, torture and killing of male and female prisoners held at the camp. 966/

788. Male and female prisoners, no children, were delivered to the camp in military trucks and unloaded in the warehouses. No effort was made to segregate the sexes. Between 300 and 400 prisoners were confined inside each of the two warehouses, where they were kept at all times. The prisoners were provided one meal a day and forced to sleep on concrete floors. No bedding or blankets were provided. 967/

789. Between 100 and 150 Serbs from Belgrade worked in shifts of about 50 men inside the camp. They wore green camouflage uniforms and green berets bearing two white eagles. They were armed with AK-47's with folding stocks and knives that they carried either at their waists or in their boots. They were the only Serbs allowed to operate within the camp. Every day, they carried out the interrogation, torture and killing of prisoners in the small office rooms at the inside end of each of the two warehouses. 968/

790. The rapes of young female prisoners were carried out in a room known as the rape room that was an annex, measuring 2.5 by three metres, at the corner of one of the warehouses. 969/

791. The screams of prisoners and sound of shots being fired from the warehouses were very common. Bodies of killed prisoners were immediately loaded onto military trucks and taken to the Kafilerija Farm for disposal. Some were buried in mass graves; some were placed in a garbage truck, compressed, and dumped at a dump site; some were processed for use as livestock feed. 970/

792. The witness also stated that the camp was visited daily by two or three high ranking civilian officials, in civilian cars, who remained on the camp premises for approximately two hours before leaving. Twenty-four hours a day, trucks, in convoys of two to four, brought new prisoners in while other trucks took prisoners out. Some prisoners were taken in civilian cars to the JNA base in Brčko for additional interrogation. He reports that an identified individual was in charge of the "S" Local Community in Brčko. The "S" Local Community was the fourth of four administrative divisions in Brčko. The first was the Serbian Varoš Community; the second was the Tuzla Road Community; the third was the Bijeljina Road Community. Brčko camp was located within the jurisdiction of the "S" Local Community. 971/

793. One of the more notorious incidents to have occurred at the Luka-Brčko camp was related by a Bosnian Serb who joined the Serbian forces and worked as a guard at the camp. On 17 May 1992, in the afternoon, six guards at the Serb detention camp in Brčko, selected 12 female prisoners between the ages of 12 and 25 and took them to what was known as the rape room. A small room attached to the corner of one of the two warehouses used for housing prisoners at the camp. The room had no furnishings. Part of the floor was covered with cardboard. Five of the guards were from a group of guards that had come from Belgrade. The sixth was from Bosnia. Once inside the room, the girls were forced against one of the walls. Two of the guards grabbed a 12 year-old girl, removed her clothes and pinned her to the floor. One held her hands while the other held her legs. The Bosnian guard was ordered to rape her. The other guards watched to ensure compliance with the order. After the rape, the victim dressed and the prisoners were removed. 972/

794. About an hour after the rape, a group of 80 male Bosnian prisoners, Serbs and Croats, between the ages of 20 and 50 were lined up against the wall of a ruined building located close to the river and in line with a point halfway between the two warehouses. Three prisoners between the ages of 35 and 40 who were standing closest to the guards, were separated from the group and brought to the Bosnian guard about 20 metres away. One of the other guards gave the Bosnian guard a knife about 30-35 centimetres long and ordered him to kill all three by slashing their throats. The Bosnian hesitated. The other guard grabbed his hand and forced the knife through one prisoner's neck below the ear. The knife was pulled out and the victim fell into convulsions for 30 seconds before death. The Bosnian guard was ordered to kill another prisoner in the same manner, he again hesitated so another guard pushed the knife into the prisoner's neck killing the man instantly. The Bosnian guard then tried to kill the third prisoner with the knife, failed, so finished him off with his rifle. The three bodies were loaded onto a military truck. The Bosnian guard was then ordered to kill the remaining 77. He did so with his rifle. The bodies were placed on trucks and brought to the Kafilerija farm for disposal. 973/

795. A Bosnian Serb forcibly conscripted into the Reserve Contingent of the Serbian Territorial Military Police by "Specijalci" described a situation indicative of the atmosphere at the Luka camp and amongst the guards. He was assigned to the camp on 15 May 1992, because of a shortage of guards. Upon arrival at the camp, he was picked up by a "specijalci" 974/ soldier in a camouflage uniform and posted on an open street about 50 metres from the warehouses. He replaced another guard who left with the "specijalci". After about two hours on guard, around 9:00 a.m., another soldier in camouflage came to the guard post and told him to follow. This soldier appeared to be one of those in charge. About 10 metres from a hangar, the other soldier told him it was time to have some fun. He was told that as a Serb it's his duty to rape several Bosnian Croatian or Bosnian Muslim women to show his patriotism to the government in Belgrade that had sent "Specijalci" to Brčko to liberate local Serbs. He was told that unless he got his hands dirty like the rest he would be shot as a traitor. After threatened with death, he agreed to commit rape. 975/

796. He failed in his first attempt to rape a young woman about 25 who seemed to be Muslim. He successfully raped a 15 year-old girl who fought back and had to be held down by four soldiers. Ten to 12 "specijalci" stood outside the warehouse indifferent or bored, jeering and cursing the conscript when he protested. Over a period of one hour, he raped five women between the ages of 15 and 22. Not totally convinced of his loyalty and saying the rapes were just for fun the soldiers informed him that he must now do something more serious. 976/

797. At about 1,000, two well dressed men between the ages of 30 and 50 were brought out from one of the warehouses and placed in front of its wall. The conscript was ordered to shoot. He resisted. He was then threatened with a pointed rifle, at which time he did the job. Then to further prove his loyalty to the Serbian cause he was told to cut some throats. He couldn't do it so the soldiers guided his hand to cut the two throats of the prisoners. 977/

798. The following account of a Bosnian Muslim civilian male from Brčko who was arrested by Bosnian Serb Forces on 10 May 1992 displays the humiliation and degradation commonly reported as being suffered by prisoners at the Luka camp.

799. The man was ordered into one of a series of connected warehouses each approximately 20 by 50 metres in size. There were already about 100 prisoners there. For the first 15 minutes, the prisoners were forced to sit with their heads down while Bosnian Serb Army soldiers hit them with rifle butts and executed several of the men by shooting them in the head. After about 15 minutes, the man's name was called for a hearing. When he entered the room he saw another man on the floor pressing a cloth to his bleeding head and a pool of blood on the floor. He was immediately hit from behind with a rubber truncheon and fell on top of the other man. He was asked where his video camera was hidden. He was accused of filming events for Croatian TV. When he responded that he never had a camera, he was kicked and beaten by guards who were all from Bijeljina. The guards then asked him where they had hidden arms. He responded that he did not have any. The guards then beat and kicked him until he bled from the ears. He was next ordered to make the orthodox sign of the cross. He genuflected several times. When he made a mistake a guard kicked one of his teeth out. When he left, other prisoners were brought in. A prisoner unable to walk was killed. He was returned to the warehouse. 978/

800. A policeman from Bijeljina entered the warehouse and told the prisoners to pair off and then punch one another in the face. Other policemen would stand behind the prisoners and beat them if they did not hit hard enough. This lasted about two hours. The witness was severely beaten by the younger and stronger man he had paired off with. The guards then arranged forced boxing matches. In one case a 70 year-old had to fight a 20 year-old. For the rest of the evening, so-called Četniks would enter the darkened warehouse and beat people randomly. At about 2,200, four men referred to by the witness as Četniks entered and took all valuables to be found on the prisoners. 979/

801. The next night and each proceeding night for the rest of this man's time in Luka, men he referred to as "Četniks" came in with flashlights and took 20 to 30 prisoners. Shouts and screams would then be heard. In the days that followed, groups of four men were taken either to load bodies into refrigerator trucks or to throw them into the Sava River. 980/

802. The witness recalled that one prisoner was beaten by 12 "Četniks" clad with black baseball bats. They systematically broke his fingers, arms and knees. Then one man, who the witness calls one of the main "Četniks" from Brčko, killed that prisoner with a pistol. 981/

803. The witness reported that two days later, the "etnik Captain", who had worked in the same factory as the witness, requested that seven men from among the detainees go over to the medical clinic to clean up broken glass. The witness volunteered. Upon his arrival at the clinic, the witness found 70, so-called, "Četniks" waiting in two rows to beat the male detainees. 982/ The witness recalled seeing a number of men already beaten who were unable to stand. One of these "Četniks" refused to allow them to be hit more than once. This "etnik" retrieved the witness from Luka on 14 May and put him under house arrest until 14 July when, the witness reported, all Muslim men from Brčko were taken in three buses to the Batković camp. 983/

804. Another alleged prisoner at the Luka camp reported that he was never registered, interrogated, beaten or tortured while there. However, the prisoner reported that he witnessed the gross maltreatment of other prisoners, including killing, on a daily basis. 984/

805. According to this witness, he was transferred from "the military headquarters" in Brčko to the Luka camp on 7 May 1992. He remained there until 12 July 1992 when he was transferred to Brezovo Polje. He states that at Luka his personal documents were taken away from him and he was placed in Hall 2. He could witness the events going on in front of the halls through a large gate in his hall that was open during the day. Because of what he witnessed he lived in constant fear. 985/

806. He reported that "Četniks" tortured and killed prisoners with an iron spiked mace. He also reported that prisoners loaded 200-300 dead bodies onto refrigerated trucks every day from 4:00 to 5:00 a.m. According to this witness the bodies were taken to the Kafilerija food factory to be burned. 986/

807. He states that he was assigned to load dead bodies twice. He claims that 80 per cent of the dead had had their throats cut while 20 per cent had been shot or had been beaten or tortured to death. He said that almost all of the victims had been inhabitants of Brčko. 987/

808. He also provided some specific examples of brutality committed in the camp. Once, guards entered Hall 2 and randomly picked five prisoners. The guards ordered the five men to stand facing a wall. A guard or some sort of military member then drove a truck inside the hall and crushed the men up against the wall. The driver put the truck in reverse and repeated this maneuver until all five were dead. While this was going on, the 150-200 other prisoners in the hall were forced to sit down and avert their eyes. 988/

809. This witness also claims that on about 10 May 1992, "Četniks" delivered a truckload of 30-40 Muslims and Croatians to Hall 2. One of the "Četniks" called out the name of a family, a husband, wife and their five year-old daughter, and took them outside in front of the hall. The "etnik" then held the daughter by the hair and allegedly cut her throat. The mother fainted. The father then had his throat cut. Other guards revived the mother, and then she was killed in the same way. When this was going on, the witness describes a sort of chaotic situation in the camp. Guards were drunk and drinking and firing shots into the air. 989/

810. The prisoner claimed that a Serbian front line soldier visited the camp almost every other day. On each visit, the soldier allegedly shot and killed four or five detainees in the back of the head with his pistol while the detainees sat on the ground with their heads down. He describes another front line soldier visiting the camp on at least three occasions and executing prisoners he had apparently knew and had identified to be executed before his arrival. 990/

811. The same prisoner claims that his brother was also detained at the Luka camp and informed him of other acts of brutality. For example, on 12 or 13 May 1992, the brother supposedly claimed that "Četniks" ordered about five detainees to lie down in a line on the tar road in front of Hall 1 inside the camp. A Serbian guard then allegedly drove a truck filled with sacks of sand over their necks, killing them instantly. 991/

812. The brother also supposedly reported that on four or five different evenings in the middle of May, 1992, approximately 15 young prisoners (from 15 to 20 years old) were forced to get into a closed delivery van and transported away. The next morning, prisoners who were assigned to load dead bodies on to the refrigerated trucks noticed that among the dead bodies were the 15 young men taken away three or four hours earlier. The bodies were naked and each had two openings cut into their backs. 992/

813. Many of the prisoners killed in Luka-Brčko were allegedly buried in a series of four mass graves situated behind a local drinking establishment on the road between Brčko and the village of Brezovo Polje. The road runs parallel to and is about 500 metres from the Sava River. The mass graves lie in a wooded area between the road and the river. 993/

814. The bodies of internees from the Luka-Brčko camp were also reported to have been transported to and burned at the old "Kafilerija" animal feed and rendering factory in Brčko. 994/ This factory was approximately four miles from the camp and located where Bijeljinska Cesta ended and Vase Pelagica street began. Refrigerated and TAM-110 trucks were reported to leave Luka-Brčko camp at 4:00 a.m. each morning with approximately 20 bodies each. Additional refrigerated trucks, from other unknown locations, also arrived at this factory. When the bodies arrived at the factory they were first dumped by 10-12 internees inside a building where three large furnaces were located. Unnamed Serbian paramilitary forces then stripped the bodies of valuables before dumping them into the furnaces. This facility was also guarded by unnamed "Šešelj's" forces. The burning of the bodies started in May 1992 and prior to this time the bodies had been dumped into the Sava river until the number of bodies needing to be disposed of became too high. 995/

815. Apparently, the ECMM reported an allegation that Serbs in Brčko destroyed the cadavers of their Muslim victims by throwing them into machines designed to grind up dead animals to make animal feed for cattle. Other Muslims were allegedly forced to operate this machine and later allegedly also killed. This may very well be a description of the Kafilerija plant. 996/

816. It seems that yet another source had heard that children at the Luka camp had been killed and then thrown into cement mixers; their remains used as food for poultry. 997/

817. There was also reported to be a mass grave located on the southern side of of a local street, in the eastern part of Brčko. 998/

818. Another witness who allegedly spent some time at the Luka camp claimed that from nine to 11 May 1992, he and three other Luka prisoners were taken to the Brčko hospital to load dead bodies into a furnace. According to this witness, the bodies had been cut into pieces and placed into 50 kilogram nylon sacks. He saw body parts from men, women, and children, most with civilian clothing. The sacks were brought to the hospital in small trucks. The witness claims that he personally loaded about 200 such sacks into the furnace over the two day period. When his group left, they were replaced by another group of four men. The men were always under armed guard.

819. Other unnamed sources have stated that as of August, 1993 there were over 3,000 ex-detainees in the free territory of Brčko (not counting detainees who have left the area already), 1,200 of whom are women and 500-600 of whom are children. Approximately 500 of these women have been reported to have been raped while imprisoned. 999/

820. The Bimex Agricultural Complex: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by multiple sources, including the US Department of State and the US Mission.) A pig farm south-east of the city, about three kilometres from Brčko, was reportedly used as an interrogation and torture centre for Muslims. Those sent there never returned. 1000/ However, several Luka prisoners were transferred to the pig farm where they were required to work and continued to be subject to maltreatment at the hands of their captors. One witness reported that between about 18 May 1992 and the Spring of 1993, 32 Muslims and six Croats performed forced labour there. The men worked day and night and were allowed to sleep four to five hours a night. The prisoners were often beaten. A mass grave is reported to be located there. 1001/

821. Another witness reported three mass graves on the way to the farm. He said that he often passed three large pits, at least 15 metres long, to which bodies were taken in a certain TAM truck. He passed these pits on the way to the Bimex swine breeding farm from Brčko, three kilometres east of Brčko. 1002/

822. A mass grave was also reported to be located not far from the pig farm. Refrigerated meat transportation trucks were reportedly used to haul bodies to this mass grave. 1003/

823. Unidentified Detention Facilities: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely US Mission.) Two other unidentified Serbian detention facilities, near the Bimex pig farm, were reportedly located about 200 metres further west of an area restaurant at a small river port on the river Sava. 1004/

824. The Laser Factory: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely the US Department of State.) One witness was hiding with neighbors at home when Serbs came to his neighborhood with a TAM truck, saying they were to take everyone to a factory called "Laser". Because there was not room enough to carry everyone in the neighborhood, the Serbs took only men. They took them to the restaurant at the Laser factory where there were already 200 men, women and children. The next day, 7 May buses arrived. Women, children and the elderly were taken away. One bus headed toward Čelić, the other toward Brezovo Polje. That night, two individuals and a Serb from Brčko allegedly came in to the factory, took out four prisoners, beat them and took their valuables. On 8 May, the prisoners were given the choice of going to Čelić or Brezovo Polje. Most chose Čelić because it was located in the "free territory". The witness boarded a bus and was taken to the Luka camp. 1005/

825. Another witness describes a group of 100-120 people being held at the Laser factory restaurant, on or about 6 May 1992. He reports that at night a Serb arrived. This Serb supposedly called out people's names and killed those he called out in front of the building. The other prisoners were told to keep their heads down inside the building and not to look out. Those killed had their throats cut. In a room next door about 10 women of different ages were held. This Serb reportedly raped a woman in front of her mother. 1006/

826. The Hotel Bosna: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely the Committee on Foreign Relations of the US Senate.) Thirty-three civilians from Brčko were reportedly held in the attic of the Hotel Bosna in Brčko for seven days. Neighbors served as their guards. After seven days they were transferred to the Luka camp. 1007/

827. Three Mosques of Brčko: (The existence of these detention facilities have been corroborated by multiple sources, including US Department of State and Helsinki Watch.) The three mosques in Brčko were also reported as places where Serbs housed prisoners. 1008/ One witness reported that between 100 and 150 men ages 15-80 were held in a mosque for a night after the town fell to the Serbs. According to this witness, the prisoners were forced to sing "etnik" songs. They were ordered to squat in a single line and told that if they fell asleep they would never wake up. During the night, local Serbs from Brčko who were dressed in "etnik" uniforms would arrive and beat the prisoners with their boots. Men, including some old men, were beaten at random by groups of three or four Serbs who entered every 10 minutes. They beat each person for about 10 minutes. One man had his teeth knocked out. Seven or eight men were taken out of the mosque never to return. A paramilitary called "Mauzer" from Bijeljina seemed to be in command. JNA recruits responded to his orders and the witness reported the visit of JNA generals to the mosque who surveyed the situation and left the paramilitaries in control. The paramilitary captors also supposedly tied a white ribbon around a prisoner's arm and sent him out of the mosque to see whether he would draw the fire of a Muslim sniper. In the morning, the prisoners were taken to the basement of the local hospital. 1009/

828. Some of the women reported to have been held at the Hotel Bosna were also later transferred to a mosque. 1010/ Another witness reported that a group of 180-200 men were held in "the" mosque for four days where they were forced to go to the bathroom on the "abdesthana", a place for religious ritual. 1011/

829. Hospital/Health Centre: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely Helsinki Watch.) Those that were reportedly held in the mosque for a night were taken to the basement of the local hospital the next morning, where they were interrogated. According to the same witness the prisoners were questioned every two hours for two days. The interrogators were two Serb men from Brčko and two other men. The interrogators first beat the prisoners then asked them questions. They wanted to know who had weapons in the area and who had shot at Serb forces. The witness was beaten until unconscious, revived and beaten again. 1012/

830. At the time of this captivity, Muslim forces, trying to retake the town, attacked the hospital. Serb defenders placed the witness in front of a window vulnerable to fire from the Muslim forces. A Serb paramilitary held a gun on the witness at all times. The witness reports that the Muslims stopped firing after they saw him standing in the window. The witness escaped torture at the hospital by trading his watch to a paramilitary for transport to Brezovo Polje. 1013/

831. Another witness described punishment for the smallest remarks ranging from beating on the palm of the hands with a truncheon to cutting off ears and noses and jumping from a table on to prisoners' chests. This occurred at the Brčko Health Centre. 1014/

832. Es Naselje Ghetto: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely the US Department of State.) On 13 July, 1992, Serbian forces swept through the Es Naselje Ghetto, a block of apartment buildings that they regularly patrolled, located near the casern, and that Serbs had turned into a small ghetto for Muslims and Croats. The Serbs collected about 450 Muslims and Croats and bused them to the Batković camp. 1015/

833. An Ethnically Mixed Apartment Building: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely the US Department of State.) Local Serbs held Muslim and Croat residents of the building in the basement for six days then turned them over to Arkanovci. They were then transferred to the JNA casern. 1016/

834. The Hotel Posavina: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely the US Department of State.) Serbs reportedly took some of the Muslims and Croats that they had rounded up to the Hotel Posavina in Brčko. A massacre is also reported to have occurred there. 1017/

835. The Village of Brezovo Polje: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by multiple sources, including the US Department of State.) Serbs occupied the village of Brezovo Polje on 15 April 1992. Allegedly, the entire village became a concentration camp for two months, after which, on 17 June the Muslim and Croatian populations were evacuated. The Serbian force that occupied Brezovo Polje consisted primarily of paramilitary forces, Arkanovci, Šešeljovci, White Eagles and the Srpska Garda (Mauserovci). The commander of the latter and some regular JNA troops was identified in the report. 1018/

836. Serbian forces immediately declared martial law and confined the citizens to certain areas within the village. Apparently, about 2,750 Muslims were held prisoner. Male Muslims were interrogated at the local police station, where some were also beaten and one or two killed. Food in town ran low. Electricity and telephone service were cut off. 1019/

837. According to one source approximately 1,500 people were detained in Brezovo Polje from around 7 May 1992 to 1 June 1992. That witness also states that four or five people were taken away daily never to be seen again. According to two witnesses, the JNA was in charge to begin with; however, Serbian paramilitaries soon assumed command and the local JNA soldiers appeared to subordinate themselves to the paramilitaries, most of whom were members of the White Eagles. 1020/

838. Another report declares that some Muslim and Croatian prisoners first taken to the Luka camp were then selected for transfer to Brezovo Polje and there tortured. 1021/

839. Another witness claimed that about 1,000 people were held at Brezovo Polje. Some later removed to Tuzla. The witness also reports that 150 girls ages 12 and above were raped by gangs of 30 or more men at a time. 1022/

840. The greatest number of prisoners claimed was 5,000 Muslims. That report also alleges the occurrence of massacres and other violence visited upon the Muslim prisoners. 1023/

841. Apparently, On 17 June 1992, the men between 18 and 50 were transferred to the Luka-Brčko camp. Women, children and some old men were transferred to Lončari 1024/, a village north of the city of Brčko.

842. Automobile Maintenance Shop, Lončari: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely the US Department of State.) Once in Lončari, 70 old men and two boys were placed in an automobile maintenance shop. All 72 slept on the concrete floor of a room five by six metres in size. 1025/

843. Elementary School, Lončari: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely the US Department of State.) Twelve hundred women and children were placed in three rooms of a small elementary school next to the car shop. The two boys mentioned above were later transferred to the school. There was not enough room for all in the school, so some had to sleep outside on the sidewalk in front of the school. Everyone else had to sleep on the floor with no blankets. 1026/

844. It was an old school with no water supply or toilet. Two latrines were set up in the field next to the school. Guards brought water for the prisoners to drink. Food was delivered twice a day from a local farm, at 1,100 and 1,900 hours. Each prisoner received a small portion of bread with butter or lard. Sometimes, boiled eggs, hot tea or hot watery soup were provided. 1027/

845. Twice, a local Serbian Orthodox priest brought the 250 children fresh milk. Otherwise, children received no special ration. 1028/

846. Prisoners were generally hungry. They were required to work in the fields of a local farm and otherwise told to remain in the car shop, school and police station. Guards warned the prisoners not to wander because mines were located outside the perimeter (A statement later discovered to be false). 1029/

847. Six guards of the local police (SUP) watched the area at all times. Captain Dragan was the SUP commander in Lončari.

848. No prisoners in Lončari were ever questioned, tortured, killed or raped. 1030/

849. On 20 June 1992, 48 females between the ages of 13 and 30 were selected and taken away by bus to Karakaj where they were reportedly raped in the Glinica factory. On the same day, approximately 900 of the remaining women and children were loaded on buses and transported to a place near Tuzla. There, about 150 girls aged 12 and older were allegedly raped by gangs of 30 or more men at a time. 1031/ After 20 June, only about 300 old men and women and some younger women remained in Lončari.

850. On 29 June 1992, Lončari was abandoned as a place of detention and all remaining prisoners were transferred to Ugljevik. 1032/

851. The Restaurant "Westphalia": (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by multiple sources however none among them are neutral.) The Westphalia restaurant was reportedly located near Stolina across from the Bimex Pig Farm and Agricultural Complex on the road between Brčko and Brezovo Polje. Supposedly, Serbs began using the restaurant as a place of detention immediately after the occupation of Brčko. The detainees were reportedly from East and West Bosnia. From this camp, women and girls were reportedly distributed to other Serb run brothels. Girls as young as 15 were reported to be held and abused there. Those who resist the sexual acts are said to be tortured. For example, womens' breasts were cut and crosses were carved into their bodies with knives. 1033/

852. A Coffee House Near Skijana: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely an official UN source.) Skijana is a Brčko suburb in the direction of Bijeljina, where a large number of girls were allegedly held and abused by Serbian soldiers. 1034/

853. A Coffee House Near Stolina: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely an official UN source.) This alleged place of detention may be the same as the restaurant Westphalia. 1035/

854. A Private House in Grčica: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely an official UN source.) Grčica is an intercity neighborhood of Brčko. A detention facility was reportedly established in a house which was located 20 metres from an unidentified paint shop. This location was reportedly a site where Serbs detained females for rape. 1036/

855. Another source describes a detention facility in a home in Grčica used as a residence and headquarters by a Captain who served as the head of the Draganovci in Brčko. She also stated that a Lieutenant Colonel who was the garrison commander, often attended parties there. She states that she was raped repeatedly and forced to keep house for the four men who lived there. 1037/

856. Dragan Training Camp: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely the US Government.) One witness claims that her teenage daughter had been detained at the Dragan training camp for local Dragan supporters at a storehouse complex near the old Kafilerija. Her daughter allegedly watched repeatedly as Muslims were brought to an area in front of the camp and killed with a gunshot to the back of the head. These and other bodies transported to the area were buried in a hole called the "rupa", dug by bulldozers. The bodies were then covered with truckloads of refuse and dirt. 1038/

857. The Hotel Elvis: (The existence of this detention facility has not been corroborated by multiple sources.) This hotel is also identified as a place used by Serbs immediately after the occupation of Brčko to hold women and girls from east and west Bosnia for the purpose of rape. 1039/

858. The Hotel Galeb: (The existence of this detention facility has not been corroborated by multiple sources.) This facility was identified as a place used by Serbs to hold females for the purpose of rape. 1040/

859. Private House Behind SUP Headquarters: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely the US Government.) After a few days detention at the Luka camp, a woman reports being transferred to a house behind SUP headquarters in Brčko on 17 May 1992. There she was detained several weeks, and then she was moved to a home in Grčica. 1041/

860. She claims that the house was occupied by 14 Draganovci who were part of a special unit that carried out arrests for the SUP. 1042/

861. The Tanjug news service reported on 29 September 1992 that the Serbian leadership in Brčko denied an allegation by the United States administration that there were concentration camps for Muslims in Brčko. According to the report, the Brčko Serbian leadership requested international organizations to send their officials to the Muslim part of Brčko where, again according to the report, approximately 1,500 Serb women, children, and old people were being held prisoner. Also, the Serbian leadership of Brčko apparently asked international organizations to visit Brčko and see for themselves that there were no concentration camps for Muslims and that Muslims who remained in the Serbian part of Brčko lived normally. 1043/

862. According to another report, Radovan Karadžić rejected as completely unfounded the American accusations that 3,000 Muslims were killed at the Brčko Luka camp. In addition, the report states that an American from Brčko inquired amongst friends and family in Brčko of such allegations and discovered that they were not true. 1044/

863. A Bosnian Serb Army officer believes the initial apprehension of Muslims legitimate. He concedes that later confinement may have become illegitimate. BSA forces apprehended civilian Muslim men of fighting age. Any such Muslim man found in the "combat area" around Brčko was taken into custody and delivered over to the civilian authorities. The purpose of such detention was two-fold. First, the Serbs defended themselves against potential adversaries, and second, the Serbs protected the non-combatants from the dangers of combat.

864. The Serb Captain described a situation in Brčko conducive to lawless activity and victimization of civilians. With regular army units busy on the front lines, ill-disciplined and criminal paramilitaries were free to wreak havoc in the town. Effective and law-abiding civilian authority was absent. Arkan's men, other volunteers from Serbia and local toughs took advantage of the situation, and innocent people suffered. He corroborates the stories of several alleged victims that an identified individual murdered more than a hundred Muslims. He denies the allegation of 3,000 killed at Luka, believing perhaps 600 killed at the camp and in the town between May and July 1992. 1045/

865. Gornji Rahić: (The existence of this detention facility has not been corroborated by multiple sources.) Reportedly, Bosnian Croat forces took the village of Bukvik, county of Brčko, in mid-September 1992. Allegedly, commanders of the 108th HVO Brigade issued orders to effect the transport of the entire Serbian population there to a camp in Gornji Rahić and to other camps. They also allegedly ordered the torture and inhuman treatment of the civilians detained. The source identifies three who then tortured and beat up civilians detained at the camp in Gornji Rahić. Apparently, they inflicted severe injuries on several people. 1046/

14. Breza

866. This county is located in the centre of BiH, just north-west of Sarajevo. According to the 1991 Yugoslavian census, the population of this municipality was 17,266, of which 75.6 per cent were Muslims, 12.3 per cent were Serbs, 7.1 per cent were described as "other", and 5 per cent were Croatians.

867. Breza Camp: 1047/ (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by multiple sources however none among them are neutral.) According to one report, three young women from Ilijas and Visoko were captured by 10 Bosnian Muslims 1048/ on 26 May 1992, and taken to an unspecified location in Breza.

868. Initially, they were detained in a basement room of a facility containing small windows. It was reportedly cold, damp, and dirty.

869. According to the report, upon the women's arrival their captors began to rape them. The women were repeatedly raped at this location where their detention lasted two days. 1049/

870. The victims were then transferred to another room in a different building, apparently a part of the same camp, wherein five other women were interned. Conditions in the new location were almost as bleak. There was a bathroom, but the women were not permitted to shower or bathe. 1050/ They were permitted to use the washbasin, on occasion, but only for very brief periods. They were fed pieces of moldy bread or macaroni, some leftovers and soup. The women were never able to speak to one another as there was always a guard present. 1051/

871. In the new location, the women were reportedly raped by as many as 20 men at a time, one after another. When the women fainted from the abuse, their captors simply doused them with water to revive them and continued the raping. 1052/

872. The women remained in the room the majority of the time except on those occasions when they were taken out to watch the male prisoners being beaten or killed. 1053/ According to the report, the mistreatment of the men consisted of beatings, drowning, or the "tearing" of their bodies "bit by bit". 1054/

873. On one occasion, they tried to make a father rape his 17 year old daughter. Both father and daughter were beaten when they refused to obey. When the Muslims put a knife to the father's throat, he relented. 1055/

874. According to the witness, the male Serb inmates were subjected to forced labour. They were frequently taken to construction sites and made to dig. 1056/ The male workers were of all ages, there were even children among them, some as young as five. 1057/ When the men were beaten, the women were brought to watch. When the women were raped, the men were reportedly also made to watch. 1058/

875. Factory: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely the ICRC.) The ICRC reported the existence of a camp in a factory in Breza. The ICRC first visited the camp on 11 November 1993. 1059/ Information regarding the operation or control of the facility was not provided.

876. Military Prison: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely the ICRC.) The ICRC reported the existence of a camp in the military prison in Breza. The ICRC first visited the camp on 27 November 1992. 1060/ Information regarding the operation or control of the facility was not provided.

877. Police Station: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely the ICRC.) The ICRC reported the existence of a camp in the military prison in Breza. The ICRC first visited the camp on 3 March 1993. 1061/ Information regarding the operation or control of the facility was not provided.

15. Bugojno

878. The municipality of Bugojno is located in the west-central section of BiH. According to the 1991 census, it had a population of 46,843 prior to the war. Muslims comprised the majority of the population at 47.1 per cent, Croats comprised 44.1 per cent, Serbs were 18.9 per cent, and 4.9 per cent were described as "other". One source reported that 10,000 eastern BiH refugees and several thousand refugees from Jajce arrived in Bugojno before the summer of 1993, the majority of which were Bosnian Muslims. Between 18 July and 22 July 1993, the BiH Army established control over the city of Bugojno. All HVO (Bosnian Croatian Defence Council) troops were disarmed at that time. 1062/

879. There are reports of independently verified Muslim controlled camps in Bugojno where Croatian prisoners are being held. 1063/ According to one report, 2,500 Croatian civilians and 750 members of the HVO were imprisoned in several concentration camps in the county of Bugojno. 1064/ This source did not provide the exact location or identity of any of the reported camps. There was one report of a Bosnian Croat and Muslim controlled camp where Serbian prisoners were being held. 1065/

880. BiH Hospital Bugojno: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely an official UN source.) The town of Bugojno is located in the centre of the county of Bugojno. On 6 August 1993, UN forces reportedly visited five Croatian prisoners held in the BiH hospital in Bugojno. They observed that the prisoners had been beaten on their backs and that one had died as a result of the beatings. 1066/

881. Bugojno Brothel: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by multiple sources however none among them are neutral.) One report indicated that a Muslim and Croat controlled brothel exists in the town of Bugojno, but did not specify the location within the city. 1067/ According to this source, Serbian women are being forcibly held and subjected to repeated sexual abuse. Those who become pregnant as a result of the rapes are held captive at the brothel until they are five months pregnant, and if released, are prohibited from leaving their homes to prevent them from getting an abortion. According to this source, members of Muslim and Croatian units who are infected with the AIDS virus or other communicable diseases are deliberately brought to the brothels to rape the Serbian women. It was reported that 12 year-old girls have been raped at this brothel. 1068/

882. The 1st Krajina Corps in Banja Luka reported that Serbian women of all ages were imprisoned and subjected to rape in private prisons belonging to several Bosnian Muslims. 1069/

883. Iskra Stadium: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by multiple sources, including the US Department of State.) The main detention centre in the city of Bugojno was reportedly located at the Iskra Stadium. 1070/ According to one source the camp is under the control of the BiH Army. Three hundred twenty prisoners were held at Iskra at its "peak" during the summer of 1993. 1071/ During this time 19 prisoners allegedly died or were killed at the camp. One hundred fifty prisoners were reportedly released before August 1993 due to a shortage of food. 1072/

884. The ICRC reportedly visited the Iskra camp and interviewed prisoners in preparation for a possible exchange. The report did not provide the exact date of the visit, but it is believed to have occurred between August and November 1993. As of November 1993, 150 prisoners were still being held at the camp, and no prisoner exchange had been reported. 1073/

885. According to one report, on 20 September there were 300 civilians held prisoner in the Sports Stadium in the city of Bugojno. 1074/ As of 23 August 1993, the Bosnian civil police in Bugojno continued to detain an unknown number of HVO civil police. According to this source, some of the prisoners were transferred to the Sports Stadium and the primary school. 1075/

886. Bugojno Primary School: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely an official UN source.) As of 23 August 1993, the Bosnian civil police in Bugojno continued to detain an unknown number of HVO civil police. According to this source, some of the prisoners were transferred to the Sports Stadium and the primary school. 1076/

887. According to one report, members of the ICRC visited a detention facility at a school in Bugojno on 7 September 1993. The report was, however, silent as to the conditions existing at this facility as well as the duration of its existence. 1077/

888. Prušac Detention Centre: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely the US Department of State.) It has been reported that the Prušac Detention Centre is located just outside the city of Bugojno. According to one source, 15 disarmed HVO (Bosnian Croatian Defence Council) soldiers were imprisoned at Prušac from 18 July-23 July 1993. Several of the prisoners were released and allowed to return to their homes, and the rest of the prisoners were transferred to a detention centre at Iskra Stadium. 1078/

889. Another source reported that UN troops discovered the camp on 10 August 1993. At that time, approximately 40 HVO soldiers were imprisoned in the camp. The prisoners were reportedly well treated, and family members were allowed to visit the camp. 1079/

890. Privredna Banka Building Basement: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely the US Department of State.) According to one report, a temporary detention facility for disarmed HVO soldiers was set up in the Privredna Banka Building in the city of Bugojno during the summer of 1993. At the end of the summer, prisoners held here were either released or transferred to the camp at Iskra Stadium. No other information concerning the camp was provided by the report. 1080/

891. Kalin Motel: (The existence of this detention facility has not been corroborated by multiple sources.) It was alleged that a brothel is located at Ravno Rostovo in the county of Bugojno. One report stated that the brothel was Muslim-controlled and the women detained there were Croatian. 1081/ No other information concerning the brothel was provided.

892. Rostovo Ski Centre: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by multiple sources however none among them are neutral.) According to a report compiled in 1992, 150 Serbian prisoners were held at the ski centre, and 30 of those prisoners were reportedly Serbian women. 1082/ This camp may be the same as the Kalin Motel brothel located at Ravno Rostovo. 1083/

893. House of Relja Lukić: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by multiple sources however none among them are neutral.) According to one source, the home of Relja Lukić, a Serb allegedly killed by Muslim or Croat forces, was used as a concentration camp for 50 Serbian prisoners. 1084/ One report estimated that 15 Serbian women were being held at this house. 1085/ The exact location of the camp within Bugojno was not provided. The report indicated that either the Army of BiH or the Army of the Republic of Croatia was in control of the camp. 1086/

894. Slavko Rodić Factory: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely the ICRC.) The Commission has received a report of a concentration camp controlled by the Army of the BiH or the Army of the Republic of Croatia, located in the Slavko Rodić Factory. There are reportedly 700 Serbian prisoners being held at the factory. 1087/ According to one report, the ICRC visited a detention facility established at a factory in Bugojno on 28 September 1993. No information was provided regarding numbers of detainees or the conditions then existing at the prison. 1088/

895. Bugojno Gymnasium: (The existence of this detention facility has not been corroborated by multiple sources.) According to a report compiled in 1992, approximately 200 Serbians are being held prisoner in the Bugojno Gymnasium building. 1089/

896. Coal Mine-Village of Bračnica: (The existence of this detention facility has not been corroborated by multiple sources.) According to a report compiled in 1992, 250 Serbian prisoners were reportedly being held in a coal mine in Bračnica. 1090/

16. Busovača

897. This county is located in the centre of BiH, surrounded by Zenica, Vitez, Fojnica and Kakanj. According to the 1991 Yugoslavian census, Busovača's population was 18,883, of which 48.1 per cent were Croats, 44.9 per cent were Muslims, 3.4 per cent were Serbs, and the remaining 3.6 per cent were described as "other".

898. Kaonik Prison: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely the ECMM.) The only detention centre of note in Busovača is the Kaonik Prison. 1091/ Busovača is controlled by Croatian forces and the Kaonik Prison which is run by the HVO, is under the jurisdiction of the military court in Travnik. 1092/ Most of the information concerning this prison was provided to ECMM officials by the Director of the Kaonik Prison, Zlatko Aleksovski. 1093/ This facility is the military prison for the whole region of Central Bosnia and it apparently served this function before the outbreak of hostilities. Muslims arrested during the conflict are the charge of the Busovača and Vitez HVO. 1094/ It is an open question how long the prison has been in operation or whether the facility is still in operation.

899. On 15 May 1993, the prison held 79 military and civilian Muslim prisoners; neither women nor children were detained here. 1095/ On 19 June 1993, the ECMM secured the release of 31 Muslim prisoner from Kaonik Prison. 1096/ These prisoners were probably civilians. Soldiers that are detained are POWs, while the civilians are purportedly detained for their own protection. 1097/ The Director claims that the ICRC visits the prison regularly and that the ICRC is informed when additional prisoners arrive.

900. The Director outlined several factors affecting the quality of prison life. First, there is a lack of food for prisoners. Second, there is a lack of security at the prison because most of the prison staff was mobilized and taken to the front lines. Third, the Director claims that he is compelled by the HVO brigade commanders to put the prisoners to work (he is aware that this is a violation of the Geneva Conventions). Prisoners made statements to the ECMM to the effect that they were treated well and that they had no complaints about the conditions there. 1098/

901. There are no explicit allegations of mistreatment of prisoners. However, there are indications in the report that prison guards and Busovača residents would sometimes drink too much and abuse the Muslim prisoners. The Director claimed that it was difficult to restrain those abusing Muslim prisoners, in light of the fact that prison guards do not usually carry weapons. 1099/ The only other mistreatment alleged concerns the use of prisoners to dig trenches for military defence purposes. 1100/ The ICRC has attempted to intervene with local military officials on behalf of the prisoners to resolve this question.

17. ajniče

902. The municipality of ajniče is situated in south-eastern Bosnia. It borders Montenegro to the south and Gorade and Rudo to its north and east. The 1991 Yugoslav census reports that the population of ajniče was 8,919. A translation of that figure reveals that 52.9 per cent were Serbs, 44.9 per cent were Muslim, .1 per cent were Croats, and the remaining 2.1 per cent were described as "other".

903. Allegedly, four detention facilities were located in ajniče. Each facility reportedly was controlled by Serbian or Bosnian Serb forces, and the majority, if not all of the prisoners, were Muslims. Reports indicate that at least 83 people have been detained at these sites.

904. Elementary School in ajniče: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by multiple sources however none among them are neutral.) Serbian forces allegedly used the elementary school in ajniče as a "bordello", where several Muslim women were imprisoned and raped daily. 1101/

905. Mostina Hunting Lodge: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by multiple sources, including the Austrian Mission and the US Mission.) The Mostina hunting lodge, also described as a hotel, was located in the forest between ajniče and Metaljka. 1102/ Reports indicate that Serbian forces controlled the Mostina hunting lodge and used it to detain Muslims. 1103/ One report states 50 Muslim men were held in the lodge. 1104/ Another report states that Serbian forces took 40 people to the camp, and ordered them to cut trees for the firm named Stakorina. 1105/ Following their work, it is unclear whether they were taken from the camp to another location. 1106/ Consequently, these reports may describe the same prisoners.

906. Additionally, a Bosnian Muslim from reported that a Serb from the village of Stakorina entered the lodge at about 5:00 p.m. and opened fire on the prisoners. 1107/ The firing reportedly lasted for 10 minutes; 1108/ however, the evidence does not state how many prisoners were killed or wounded. According to another report, an identified individual and his assistants killed 34 civilians at the Mostina lodge. 1109/ It is unclear whether this second report is related to the shooting incident.

907. Police Station in ajniče: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely Helsinki Watch.) Members of the Bosnian Serb militia allegedly used a police station in ajniče to detain several Muslim villagers. 1110/ The evidence suggests that the Serbian controlled police station was used for at least several weeks to imprison Muslim villagers from Ravno and Selište. 1111/ Forces of the Bosnian Serb militia reportedly imprisoned at the police station several Muslim villagers abducted from Ravno on 16 February 1993. 1112/ At least six of these detainees were held until 17 March 1993. 1113/ However, about five other Muslims from the village of Selište were still believed to be detained as of July 1993. 1114/ While at the police station, members of the Bosnian Serb militia questioned and threatened the detainees. 1115/ The detainees also were given little to eat, and one woman was strip searched. 1116/

908. Shipping Container: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by multiple sources, including the US Mission.) There are two reports of a shipping container, or simply a container, that was used as a detention facility. 1117/ One report describes the shipping container as being near ajniče. 1118/ The second report locates the container at the Mostina hunting lodge. 1119/ Both reports might describe the same container and the second report might duplicate some of the evidence from the first report. It also is possible that the container was moveable or that more than one container existed.

909. The evidence states that the container was five or six square metres in size and that there was a barrel of petrol inside. 1120/ Serbian forces controlled the container, and at least 22 people allegedly were held inside the container at one time. 1121/ Several of the prisoners were Muslim; however, it is unclear whether all of the prisoners were Muslims. 1122/

910. According to a report, Serbian forces detained a witness and then took him to a containment area where 11 others were already imprisoned. 1123/ On 5

May, 10 more people were shepherded into the above-referenced containment facility. 1124/ On both nights, Serbs reportedly tortured the prisoners, and on the second night, the prisoners kept fainting. 1125/ The witness also reports that he was beaten by the brother of the town's Serbian Democratic Party leader. 1126/ This perpetrator is allegedly responsible for breaking the witness' teeth and pushing a knife deep into his throat. 1127/

18. Čapljina

911. Čapljina is located in southern BiH, near Mostar. The total pre-war population of Čapljina was 27,852, of which Croats were a majority with 53.9 per cent, Muslims comprised 27.7 per cent, Serbians 13.5 per cent, and 4.9 per cent were described as "other". 1128/

912. According to the ICRC, as of 1 October 1992 all of the detainees formerly held in Čapljina were transferred to Mostar prison. 1129/

913. One report indicated that, according to figures available from eye-witness sources and international humanitarian agencies, 4,000 men had been arrested in Čapljina since July 1993. HVO authorities told the Special Rapporteur's field officers that the arrests had been carried out for "security" reasons and admitted that due process had not been observed. From the information available to the Special Rapporteur it appears that only a small number of these detainees were prisoners of war. Most appear to have been arrested because they were suspected of hostility to the HVO, or to provide a pool of prisoners to exchange for Bosnian Croats held as prisoners of war, or for use on the front-line as forced labour or as "human shields" to protect the army's advance. 1130/

914. Detention Facility, Gabela: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely Helsinki Watch.) The Gabela detention camp is located near Čapljina. 1131/ The Gabela camp was formerly used as a logistics base by the JNA. Bosnian Croat authorities allegedly operated the camp under the command of Boko Brevišić. Brevišić was reportedly an HVO military police officer.

915. Reports indicated that the camp was overcrowded and the inmates were physically abused and mistreated. Additionally food was scarce and facilities for personal hygiene were lacking. Many inmates reportedly suffered from malnutrition. 1132/ Bosnian Croat authorities who allegedly ran the camps admitted to Helsinki Watch representatives that conditions at the camps were substandard. They blamed overcrowding as the reason for the substandard conditions. 1133/

916. Conflicting reports of the physical description of the camp were received. There are reports that at any one time between 1,500 and 3,000 men were held in two hangars. 1134/ However there also are reports that the prisoners were housed in three large storage sheds and that approximately 650 prisoners were housed in at least one of the sheds. 1135/

917. The prisoners were allegedly fed once a day. The daily meal consisted of a small portion of rice, beans, macaroni soup, and bread. 1136/ The prisoners received 650 grams of bread to be shared between 16 prisoners. 1137/ When HVO forces suffered defeats the prisoners received no food. 1138/

918. Outside observers were not allowed to visit Gabela until August, 1993. 1139/ At this time the ICRC registered 1,100 inmates. 1140/

919. Munitions Warehouse: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely an official UN source.) Reports indicated that women were confined in an overheated metal shed that was a former munitions warehouse at an abandoned JNA barracks outside of Čapljina. The camp was allegedly run by a Major of the Croatian Defence Association of the Party of Rights (HOS). Another report stated that a former JNA ammunition warehouse in Gabela, south of Čapljina, was one of the main detention centres in Čapljina. 1141/

920. Dretelj Camp: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by multiple sources, including Helsinki Watch.) The Dretelj camp is located between three and 15 kilometres outside of Čapljina and is a one and a half hour drive from Mostar, opposite Počitelj. 1142/ Prior to the war, the camp was the site of JNA barracks. 1143/ More recently, the location was used as a prison camp, first by Bosnian Croat HOS forces and then by the HVO. 1144/

921. The camp was reportedly overcrowded and the inmates were physically abused. There was a lack of food and many inmates suffered from malnutrition. There was also a general lack of hygiene at this camp. Bosnian Croat authorities who allegedly ran the camp admitted to Helsinki Watch representatives that the camp conditions were substandard. They blamed overcrowding as the reason for the substandard conditions. 1145/

922. Reports indicated that as many as 1,500 Serbs were detained here. 1146/ Both men and women were imprisoned at this camp. 1147/

923. Several women initially were housed in a two by three metre cell. After a month at the camp, all prisoners, both male and female, were placed in five separate hangers where they slept on concrete floors. 1148/

924. Available reports suggest that one of the hangars housed approximately 400 people and another hangar--which was approximately 260 square metres--housed approximately 540 people. 1149/ Some 70 women of different ages were reportedly housed in at least one other hangar. 1150/

925. The camp's physical plant was contained under tin roofs, which became extremely hot in the warm weather months. Several prisoners died from dehydration brought on by the heat. 1151/ Others were forced to drink urine to avoid dehydration. 1152/

926. Allegedly prisoners were also detained in four tunnels, in complete darkness. The only light seen, crept in when the prisoners were fed the slice of bread and the few spoonfuls of soup that they received each day. Up to 600 people were reported to be in each of these tunnels which were only big enough to accommodate 170 people. 1153/

927. It is possible that the treatment of the inmates was not uniform throughout the facility. Conflicting testimony concerning whether the prisoners were fed once or twice a day was received. 1154/ For some, the meals consisted of rice, beans or macaroni, and one slice of bread. In some cases, the inmates' families were permitted to bring them food. Deprivation of food was reportedly also used as a form of control and punishment. For example, between 13 and 15 July 1993, sources suggest that none of the prisoners were fed, in response to losses suffered by HVO forces in Dubrave. 1155/

928. There are reports that the inmates were regularly beaten and subjected to torture. 1156/ All men were reportedly beaten with sticks, wood, rifle butts and fists upon their arrival at the camp and also during interrogations. Beatings usually occurred at night. 1157/ Additionally, the prisoners were forced to engage in fisticuffs, and if the beatings were not to the guards' satisfaction, the guards would intercede, imposing severe beatings. 1158/

929. The inmates were reportedly subjected to various forms of torture including having needles pushed under their finger and toe nails, being burned with candles and cigarettes, having their tongues impaled with knives, being forced to give guards rides on their backs, and being forced to eat grass and drink their own urine. 1159/ Other prisoners were forced to lick the toilets clean. 1160/ At least two prisoners were reported to have been scalped. 1161/ Several others were reportedly made to wear JNA uniforms when western reporters were given access to the camp, although witnesses report that none of the inmates were combatants. 1162/ During this visit, any prisoner with visible signs of abuse were hidden in separate rooms. 1163/ The soldiers reportedly threatened to kill any inmate who refused to confess to foreign reporters that the reason for his imprisonment was because he was a combatant. 1164/

930. Reports indicated that the women were also interrogated and tortured. They were allegedly beaten during interrogations. The torture included needles stuck under their finger nails and cuts to their breasts. They were reportedly raped and forced to watch the soldiers beat the men. 1165/

931. The inmates were also subjected to a variety of sexual abuses. Women, at least for a period of time, were raped daily by groups of men and were also forced to engage in same-sex sexual intercourse. 1166/ The rapes were committed in front of the other prisoners, including their relatives. 1167/ Reportedly, the rapes of the female detainees stopped after approximately 10 days, although the physical mistreatment of all inmates continued throughout their detention at the facility. 1168/ Male detainees were forced to perform same-sex sexual acts upon one another while other prisoners watched, 1169/ as well as being forced to engage in acts of necrophilia. 1170/

932. According to one report, several prisoners managed to survive detention at this facility, 1171/ although an undetermined number of prisoners were tortured and killed at Dretelj. 1172/

933. Meanwhile, another report insists that only a few of the people detained at this location survived. 1173/ This information, however, seems unlikely based upon several reports detailing the release of hundreds of prisoners. For example, in one account occurring on 10 July 1993, approximately 400 civilian men between the ages of 18 and 60 were transferred from Dretelj prison to the Rodoc detention facility in Mostar. 1174/ Other prisoners were transferred to the Grebovina prison near Mostar on 17 August 1992 and ultimately released from Rodoč camp as part of a prisoner exchange. 1175/

934. Additionally, on 28 August 1993, a group of approximately 400 prisoners were released from Dretelj and expelled to Jablanica. The sources suggest that these former prisoners were in poor physical condition resulting from the physical mistreatment and lack of food at the Dretelj camp. 1176/ Outside observers were not allowed to visit Dretelj until September 1993. 1177/ On 1 September 1993, 350 prisoners were released. 1178/ On 6 September 1993 the ICRC registered 1,200 Muslim prisoners at this camp. 1179/ The Dretelj camp reportedly was partially closed in early October, 1993 when a number of prisoners were released. 1180/

935. The Dretelj camp was allegedly run by Mr. Aničić, the commander of the HVO military police in Čapljina. 1181/ His nickname was Dida. 1182/ In August, 1993, another individual reportedly replaced Mr. Aničić as the commander of the Dretelj camp. Allegedly conditions at the camp, particularly with regard to beatings, became much better when the new commander took over.

Inmates report that this new commander tried to prevent the beatings. 1183/ There was also a report that a completely different individual was the commander of the detention facility in mid-1992. 1184/ 936. Reports allegedly that the camp was operated by the HOS who handed it over to the HVO in September, 1993. The HOS guards dressed in black Ustaše uniforms, carried Ustaše flags and saluted the way Ustaše did. They were heavily armed with machine-guns and daggers. This information is not entirely consistent with the reported change in command in August, 1993. 1185/ A commander of the Croatian armed forces from Ljubuški allegedly visited the prison often. 1186/

937. A young investigating officer, reportedly supervised interrogations at the Dretelj camp. 1187/ On his order, beatings and other abuses were inflicted upon the prisoners. The abuses included the removal of tips of the inmates' fingers or the crushing of the bones in their hands. During one period, this officer allegedly believed the prisoners had become somewhat indifferent to the beatings and the camp commander then order the beatings to be stopped for a 10 day period. During this period other forms of punishment were implemented. For example, one man was forced to bark like a dog while a noose was around his neck and his captors kicked him. The man then was forced to eat a pack of cigarettes and to drink a half liter of oil. 1188/

938. Several sources identified guards who allegedly participated in the torture reap and murder of the inmates at the detention facility. 1189/

939. Tobacco Warehouse: (The existence of this detention facility has not been corroborated by multiple sources.) Serbian women and some men were arrested and allegedly taken to a tobacco processing station in Čapljina, reportedly the headquarters of the HOS. 1190/ The prisoners were subjected to torture. 1191/ Reports indicated that women were raped at this camp and subjected to daily abuse. 1192/ The guards placed a hot iron on at least one woman's bare flesh. The women were forced to walk naked in the street where they were called etnik prostitutes. 1193/ Several women tried to kill themselves. The guards told one woman that she would not die until she gave birth to an "Ustaša". 1194/

940. Several male prisoners were put in a hermetically sealed cell that was filled with tobacco dust. After a period of time, the guards entered the room and beat the men. These men were subsequently transferred to the Poduh tobacco processing plant at Metković and from there to several other camps. 1195/

941. Gasnice Camp: 1196/ (The existence of this detention facility has not been corroborated by multiple sources.) Reportedly, on 3 August 1993 the entire remaining Muslim population of Stolac, including approximately 4,000 women, children and elderly were arrested and imprisoned at the Gasnice camp in Čapljina. 1197/ Although this report was provided by official sources, the veracity of this very serious allegation has not been confirmed. UN representatives attempted to verify this information, but were unsuccessful in doing so. 1198/

942. Police Station: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely the ICRC.) According to one report, ICRC representatives visited a detention facility at a police station in Čapljina 1199/ on 31 July 1992. 1200/ No information was provided regarding the operation and control of this facility.

19. Cazin

943. Cazin is located in the north-west corner of BiH. As of 1991, its population was 63,406, of which 97.6 per cent were Muslim and 2.4 per cent were classified as "other".

944. Detention Facility, Cazin: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely the ICRC.) There are reports of a Muslim-run detention facility in Cazin, but no information regarding its exact location nor dates of existence. There are simply reports that Team Hotel of the ICRC monitored the release of 25 Serbian prisoners held by "Muslim forces" in Bihać and Cazin on 3 November 1992. 1201/ These 25 prisoners were ultimately transferred to Belgrade. 1202/

945. The ICRC then visited the camp on 11 March 1993; they found no prisoners at this time. 1203/

946. Factory: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely the ICRC.) According to one report, ICRC representatives visited a detention facility at a factory in Cazin on 28 March 1992. 1204/ No information was provided regarding the operation and control of this facility.

947. Prison/Penitentiary: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely the ICRC.) According to one report, ICRC representatives visited a detention facility at a prison in Cazin on 13 August 1992. 1205/ No information was provided regarding the operation and control of this facility.

20. Čelinac

948. Čapljina is located approximately 12 kilometres east of Banja Luka in BiH. The territory had a pre-war population of approximately 7,000 residents, of whom 88.9 per cent were Serbs, 7.7 per cent were Muslims, and 3.4 per cent were Croats and others. 1206/

949. In April 1992, the Serbs took affirmative steps to completely occupy the territory. 1207/ They began by firing all Muslims and Croats from their jobs. 1208/ This was followed by the setting of a 24-hour curfew--the violation of which was punishable by death. 1209/

950. The Serbs also established detention facilities to effectively manage the non-Serbian population, whom the Serbs "evaluated as individuals who have been carrying out negative activities". 1210/ Detention sites included "home ghettos", the Miloš Dujić Elementary school (some 1,200 individuals were reportedly detained there), the Stanari Coal Mine and the Mramor company. 1211/

951. "Home Ghettos": (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by multiple sources, including the ECMM.) The creation of home ghettos in the territory in Čapljina was evidence of a new method employed by the Serbs to ethnically cleanse the region of non-Serbians. 1212/ The non-Serbian community was small by comparison. Muslim and Croatian homes were concentrated in one area of Čapljina with the majority of the population of both groups residing on two adjoining streets. 1213/

952. On 23 July 1992, following a meeting of the Serbian War Presidency of the Municipality of Čapljina, the War Presidency issued an official "Decision" regarding the management of the territory's non-Serbian citizenry. 1214/ The decree pronounced that all non-Serbs were subject to a 24-hour curfew; 1215/ that non-Serbs were not permitted to use telephones or any telecommunications devices; that they were not permitted contact with their neighbours; that they were not permitted to walk out of doors and not permitted in the streets, restaurants or any other public places. 1216/ They were also not permitted to travel to other towns without appropriate authorization and further not permitted to communicate with relatives who were non-residents of Čapljina. 1217/ In effect, the non-Serbian population were prisoners in their own homes.

953. Occasionally the Serbs allowed the non-Serbian women to buy permission to shop for food. 1218/ The only time that Muslim and Croatian men were permitted to leave their homes was to complete "the tasks of compulsory work" assigned them. 1219/ When so obligated, the men were escorted by Čapljina police to the locations to perform their assigned tasks. 1220/ Additionally, while the men were working, masked Serbs searched the homes of non-Serbians in an effort to recover any and all possessions of firearms. 1221/

954. There was reportedly a battle in Derвента, on or about 13 August 1992, in which several Serbians were killed. Allegedly in retaliation, the Serbs burned 20 homes in Čapljina belonging to Muslims and Croats. 1222/ They reportedly also threw grenades into other Muslim and Croat homes which resulted in injury to four children and two women. 1223/ When one man tried to carry his wounded child out of the house, he and his child were reportedly killed by machine-gun fire. 1224/ Reportedly, following this incident, Muslims and Croats attempted to leave the area, however, the Serbs would not permit their departure. Instead the Serb captors detained them in the Miloš Dujić Elementary School. 1225/

955. Miloš Dujić Elementary School: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by multiple sources, including the US Department of State.) According to a report issued by the United Nations, 17 Muslim homes in the village of Čapljina were destroyed following accounts that local Serbian soldiers had been killed in combat. 1226/ Due to the difficulty in fleeing the region, some 650 Muslims were reported to have sought refuge in the local school. 1227/ The report stated that the ICRC was not permitted to visit the school despite their communicated concerns regarding possible starvation and famine suffered by Čapljina Muslims. 1228/ United Nations representatives visiting the area were also denied an opportunity to visit the school. 1229/

956. In one report, some 1,200 individuals were held at the local school for seven days. Reprieve was only granted to women, who were allowed to leave the school to buy food. 1230/ The report alleges that four brothers were taken away and not seen again when the Serbs learned that their fifth brother was serving in the Croatian Army. 1231/

957. At one point the detainees allegedly demanded to see the ICRC, but the Serbs refused to accommodate their request. After approximately a week in detention, the inmates were allowed to return to their homes. 1232/ Reportedly, the Serbs then permitted the ICRC to come and see the empty school. 1233/ The Serbs reportedly would not allow the ICRC to distribute food to the Muslims and Croats. 1234/

958. Stanari Coal Mine: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely the US Department of State.) A refugee from Čapljina reported the existence of a detention facility at the coal mine in Stanari. 1235/ The facility was allegedly operational "because coal was still available even though the Serbian men who had worked there were fighting at the front". 1236/ The refugee surmised that prisoners were being used as forced labour to obtain the coal. 1237/

959. Mramor Company: (The existence of this detention facility has not been corroborated by multiple sources.) According to an unofficial report provided to the UN, a group of eight Serbian reservists forced all the Muslims from the village of Čapljina into the centre of town. 1238/ The women, children, and the elderly, totalling 56, were forced at gunpoint to walk back and forth across the Vrbanja River. 1239/ A group of the men were detained in an "improvised" facility established at the Mramor company. 1240/ No further information was given regarding the length of duration, nor the operation or control of the facility.

21. itluk

960. According to the 1991 Yugoslav census, the population of itluk county was 14,709. Of that number 98.9 per cent were Croats, .7 per cent were Muslims, .1 per cent were Serbs, and the remaining .3 per cent were described as "others".

961. Prison: (The existence of this detention facility has not been corroborated by multiple sources.) Information from this county in southern Bosnia and Herzegovina regarding the existence of concentration camps and prison camps is rather slim. One report makes reference to the existence of a prison camp in the village of itluk. 1241/ The report states that on 15 September, 1242/ a humanitarian team visited the prison and found no prisoners of war. 1243/919 No other information regarding location, operation or control was made available.

962. Gabela: (The existence of this detention facility has not been corroborated by multiple sources.) Another report indicates that on 2 July 1244/, all Muslim HVO soldiers in the area of Stolac, a reportedly Muslim-dominated community, were demobilized and interned in Gabela. 1245/ The report estimates that as many as 10,000-15,000 individuals may have been interned "under very difficult circumstances" at Rodoč and in Dretelj and Gabela. 1246/

22. Derventa

963. According to the 1991 Yugoslavian census, the municipality of Derventa had a population of 56,328. Of that number 40.8 per cent were Serbs, 39 per cent were Croats, 12.6 per cent were Muslims, and the remaining 7.6 per cent were described as "others".

964. Derventa is one among the eight municipalities which comprise the Bosanska Posavina region in northern BiH. The region is situated along the Sava river which borders the Republic of Croatia. 1247/ On 11 and 12 July 1993, Serbian forces occupied Derventa, forcing thousands of Croats to flee the region and seek refuge in Bosanski Brod and Croatia. 1248/

965. Reports suggest that the Serbian objective was to control this vital northern corridor and expel or destroy its non-Serbian citizens. 1249/ Accordingly, between April and November 1992, Serbians "ethnically cleansed" Croats from Derventa and the surrounding Posavina area. 1250/

966. Derventa Camp: (The existence of this detention facility has not been corroborated by multiple sources.) According to one report, Derventa was the site of one of BiH's most notorious concentration camps. Several thousand individuals were noted to have passed through this camp. 1251/

967. The inmates at this facility were reportedly subjected to severe physical abuses. Among the forms of mistreatment used by Serbian forces at this and other area camps were the summary execution and slaughter of detained civilians. 1252/

968. Shoe Factory: (The existence of this detention facility has not been corroborated by multiple sources.) SDS extremists and military government personnel had reportedly organized a camp for over 100 persons of Muslim descent in the shoe factory "Sloga". The factory was located in Prnjavor near Derventa. 1253/

969. Grain Mill: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely the US Government.) Another report alleges the existence of an additional camp in Prnjavor. This one was said to have been established in an abandoned grain mill. 1254/ Reportedly some 50 men and 10 women were initially interned at the facility. 1255/

970. The physical plant was only one level and reportedly surrounded by a fence and mines. The inmates were made to sleep on wooden pallets and were not permitted to wash for 60 days at a time. 1256/ There were no toilets, and the detainees urinated and defecated in the common area of containment. Food was also scarce. Reportedly, one tin of beans was shared between 12 to 14 people. 1257/

971. The report suggests that the facility was controlled by members of Šešelj's military police, who, one witness recalls, conducted the interrogations. The witness identified them as having had special etnik cockades and were either White Eagles or White Wolves. 1258/

972. The procedure for interrogations included beatings applied by heavy electric cable, truncheons and the flat side of swords. 1259/ The reporter witnessed the death of two fellow inmates as the result of these beatings. 1260/ One report states that a father and son were arrested. The captors forced the father to beat the son and vice versa. This witness also recalled that there was a paralysed man who was beaten until unconscious. 1261/

973. Omeragići Camp: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely the ECMM.) One report alleges the existence of a camp in Omeragići which interns Croats. The village of Omeragići is located just west of Derventa. The report alleges that one inmate who was granted official permission to leave was denied exit by his Serbian captors. 1262/

23. Doboj

974. Forced deportations from the county of Doboj were not unusual. Many village inhabitants and former camp detainees were taken by train from their previous location to Doboj and forced to migrate to Croatian/Muslim controlled territories. During their trip to Doboj, many encountered a variety of hardships at the hands of Serbian soldiers and guards.

975. In May 1992, the residents that remained after the Serbians took control of Grapska and Sjenina were forced to march to Doboj. Along the way, people were periodically pulled out of the column and shot. 1263/

976. Individuals formerly held in the Sanski Most Sports Centre and Krinks Factory were loaded into freight trains and taken to Doboj. After being unloaded, the detainees were forced to walk across the bridge over the Spreča River and drop all their personal belongings and documents into the river. 1264/ At the other side, the detainees were turned over to the Territorial Defence. 1265/

977. The inhabitants of Blagaj, located in north-western BiH, were taken to Doboj in cattle cars. 1266/ The trains left at 7:00 p.m. and arrived in Doboj

the next morning. 1267/ The cars were overcrowded and the air vents were closed. 1268/ At Doboj, the people were given water. 1269/ The women and children were allowed to flee to Travnik in south-central BiH. 1270/ The men were sent to a detention facility at the stadium in Bosanski Novi, also located in north-western BiH. 1271/

978. Some former detainees from the Trnopolje detention centre in north-western BiH were put on rail cars and sent to Doboj. 1272/ The first convoy that left Trnopolje consisted of five cattle trucks filled with 1,800 people. 1273/ During the two day trip, the detainees were not given any food. 1274/ In addition, the cars did not have any ventilation. 1275/ The detainees collected money which they gave to the soldiers to purchase food for the children but the soldiers never came back. 1276/ In some instances, the soldiers required that a ransom be paid by a specific car of detainees to ensure that the children contained within would not be killed. 1277/ At Doboj, the detainees were marched along a mined road. 1278/ Then, the detainees crossed the bridge where they were met by HVO troops and Muslim soldiers. 1279/

979. In early July, 1992, another account records Trnopolje detention centre detainees that were released and taken by cattle cars to Doboj. On the way to Doboj, soldiers stopped the train and demanded money, gold and jewelry from the detainees. Upon arrival in Doboj, the men whose ages ranged from 18 to 60 were separated from the others. The remaining detainees were told to walk over a clothing-covered bridge. Serbian soldiers used young boys as shields to stop the Croatian and Muslim gunfire in the crossing. 1280/

980. Doboj School Gymnasium: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by multiple sources, including the New York Times and Helsinki Watch.) After villages in the Doboj region were taken over by Serbians, the men and women were separated and sent to different detention facilities. 1281/ The women were taken to a school in Doboj. 1282/ Between 600 and 2,000 women and girls were held at this detention centre. 1283/ When the women arrived at the school, they were "classified" according to their education, financial status and appearance. 1284/ The ugly and poor women disappeared. 1285/

981. The school centre was a three story gray building with a large sports hall, connected by a corridor to the school. 1286/ The school's second floor was designed to look down on the first floor from a railing. 1287/ The third floor was comprised of enclosed classrooms. 1288/

982. The female detainees were kept in the gymnasium at the school. 1289/ The gymnasium was very large with a main playing floor and various smaller courts with spectators' seats and even a balcony. 1290/ Women sat in all the areas. 1291/

983. Four different types of soldiers were known to be at the camp, the local Serbian militia, the JNA, the police forces from the Knin, and members of the paramilitary group, "White Eagles". 1292/

984. Upon arrival, the young women were taken to the gymnasium where they were physically abused. 1293/ The Serbian "etnik" soldiers tore off the women's clothes, cut their breasts and the bellies of women who wore traditional Muslim baggy trousers. 1294/ In addition, the women were raped in front of all the other detainees. 1295/ Some women were shot and killed. 1296/ Their bodies were left in the gymnasium where the other detainees could see them. 1297/ The next day the bodies were thrown into the river. 1298/

985. During the day, the women were forced to sit in the hall with their knees pulled up to their chests and their heads down. 1299/ They were told not to look at the soldiers so that they would not be able to identify them. 1300/ The women were not allowed to talk with each other. 1301/ If a woman was caught talking, the soldiers would beat her, and more than the usual number of men would rape her. 1302/ The women were not allowed to change their clothes or to wash themselves. 1303/

986. The detainees were fed every two or three days. 1304/ The guards would just drop the food at the entrance to the hall. 1305/ The women close to the food ate and those women at the back of the hall often did not get anything. 1306/

987. At night the women were raped by as many as 10 men. 1307/ The women would be forced to have both oral and vaginal sex at the same time with the different men. 1308/ Often the local Serbian soldiers wore black stockings or paint over their faces as a disguise. 1309/

988. The women were removed from the gymnasium in groups of 40 each day. 1310/ They were led to individual classrooms in the school and raped. 1311/ The guards told the women they were being held to "make etnik babies". 1312/

989. If the Serbian soldiers were physically unable to rape, they raped the women with guns, beat them, and urinated on them. 1313/ The Serbian soldiers also brought non-Serbian male detainees to the detention centre and threatened to shoot anyone who would not rape the women detainees. 1314/

990. The Serbs who guarded the women would accept money for the release of a detainee. 1315/

991. Many of the women became pregnant as a result of being raped at the Dobojski School Gymnasium. 1316/ Pregnant women were not exchanged but were transferred to a hospital and fed well so that they could bear the soldiers' offspring. 1317/

992. Occasionally, the daily routine of rapes would break when the Serbian paramilitaries went off to fight, leaving the women under the guard of local Serbs. 1318/ When the paramilitaries came back after losing a battle, they would be particularly brutal to the women. 1319/

993. Red Cross Refugee Camp: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by multiple sources, including the US Government.) A Serbian Red Cross refugee centre was established at a high school in Dobojski. 1320/ In the spring of 1992, the camp contained approximately 160 Serbian refugees and 20 Muslims and Croats. 1321/ The non-Serbs at the camp were treated as prisoners. 1322/ Food was denied to the non-Serbian refugees. 1323/

994. Soldiers, in fatigues with the insignia "SMP," would come to the camp in the evening and take the non-Serbian women to apartments in the surrounding area where the women would be repeatedly raped. 1324/ Different groups of soldiers, usually four at a time, came to the camp for women every three to four days. 1325/

995. Bare Military Barracks: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely the US Government.) The Bare Military Barracks/Warehouse consisted of a number of military warehouses that each held approximately 200 detainees. 1326/ The detainees were primarily from the villages of Taravci, Dobruja, Oteza, and Kladari. 1327/ The camp was run by Bosnian Serbs and Montenegrins, some of whom wore yellow hats with etnik symbols. 1328/ The detainees were men and women between the ages of 30 and 55. 1329/

996. Each structure held approximately 200 detainees. 1330/ The detainees were primarily from the villages of Taravci, Dobruja, Oteza, and Kladari. 1331/ The camp was run by Bosnian Serbs and Montenegrins, some of whom wore yellow hats with etnik symbols. 1332/ The detainees were men and women between the ages of 30 and 55. 1333/

997. At first, the detainees slept on concrete floors, but then they were eventually provided with wooden pallets. 1334/ The detainees were given meager portions of bread to eat and had to dig outside for corn to have additional food. 1335/ The detainees were allowed outside only from 6:00 a.m. to 6:00 p.m. 1336/

998. At night, the detainees were forced to relieve themselves inside the warehouses. 1337/ In the daytime, the detainees were permitted to construct and use latrines outside the warehouses. 1338/

999. Some former detainees describe the two Serbian camp managers as "good men". 1339/ However, on weekends when they were not present, the detainees were beaten by the Serbian prisoners. 1340/ The Serbian guards allowed the beatings but did not participate. 1341/

1000. In June, 1992, the Red Cross removed the women and children from this facility but left the men of military age. 1342/

1001. The men appeared to receive different treatment than the women. Serbians beat the male detainees with police batons, axe handles and the butts of rifles. 1343/ The male detainees were also forced to dig shelters at the front lines for the Serbian soldiers. 1344/ In addition, the detainees were forced to farm, load trucks and plunder the villages around Doboj for livestock and furniture for the Serbians. 1345/

1002. Usora Military Facility: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by multiple sources however none among them are neutral.) The military camp was located near the Usora river and the Bosanka juice factory in Doboj. 1346/ Three hangers were established at this location to house all the people from the area that were detained when Doboj was taken by the Serbians. 1347/ The first hanger was for the Muslims and Croats arrested by the military police. 1348/ The second hanger was for Muslims and Croats that were arrested by the civil police. 1349/ The third hanger was for Serbians that were found to be disloyal to the occupying authority. 1350/

1003. The women detained at this camp were routinely raped. The Serbs had a man who professed to be a gynecologist at the camp to give the women medical examinations. 1351/ If a woman was found to be pregnant, she was prohibited from buying release or exchange until late pregnancy. 1352/ Women who did not get pregnant were beaten more often and their release was put up for ransom. 1353/

1004. Central Prison in Doboj: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by multiple sources, including the Canadian Mission.) The Central Prison in Doboj was used as a detention centre for men of the region. 1354/ Approximately 250 detainees were confined in a room that was 16 metres by 20 metres with cement floors. 1355/ The detainees had to use hand held cans for toilets. 1356/ The detainees were interrogated and beaten, usually two or three times a day. 1357/ Some men died from the beatings. 1358/

1005. Military Barracks at Ševarlije Kod Doboja: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely the US Government.) Starting in early June, 1992, approximately 300 men, women and children were detained in a basement under military barracks outside Doboj. 1359/ The room was about 30 metres long and 10 metres wide. 1360/

1006. All the detainees could not sleep at the same time because the room was too small. 1361/ As a result, the men slept during the day, and the women and children slept at night. 1362/

1007. The detainees were fed toast and sugar. 1363/

1008. The detainees were not allowed to leave the premises. 1364/ On 18 June 1992, after 18 days, the women and children were released. 1365/

1009. SUP Building Complex: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely the US Department of State.) The SUP Building was the Headquarters for the Serbian Police and Investigative Service. 1366/ In the adjacent annex, the Serb police detained individuals that they deemed of high interest. 1367/

1010. The detainees were brought from the annex to the main building for interrogations. 1368/ The detainees were subjected to torture during questioning. 1369/

1011. Poljoremont Repair Plant: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely the US Department of State.) A warehouse built as part of a plan for extending the Poljoremont Repair Plant was converted into a detention centre. Approximately 2,000 Muslims from Doboj were detained at this location. 1370/

1012. Vila Disco Bar: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by multiple sources, including the US Department of State.) Serbs detained between 200 to 412 Muslims in a building/bar in Vila. 1371/ The building was owned by Kasim Perco, a Muslim who fled during the hostilities. 1372/

1013. The detainees were interrogated and beaten. At least one detainee was beaten for six hours and stabbed with a knife. 1373/

1014. Approximately 50 detainees were removed from the camp to be used as a "living shield" by soldiers. Twenty-three of the detainees were killed. 1374/

1015. etvrti Juli: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely the Canadian Mission.) An army barracks in Doboj called etvrti Juli was used as an interrogation and detention centre. 1375/

1016. Stanari Mine: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by multiple sources, including the US Committee for Refugees.) Detainees were interned at the Stanari Mine in Doboj. 1376/ They were forced to dig coal. 1377/ Even the women and children detainees had to dig coal with their bare hands. 1378/

1017. All the men up to age 55 from the village of Omeragići were taken to Stanari. 1379/

1018. Kovinotehna: (The existence of this detention facility has not been corroborated by multiple sources.) Croatian and Muslims from Grapska were detained at a detention centre called "Kovinotehna". The Serbs detained an equal number of Croats and Muslims, however, the Serbs released or exchanged a majority of the Croatian detainees. The Muslim detainees were all that remained. 1380/

1019. The detainees would get one piece of bread every three days. 1381/

1020. Hospital: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely the ICRC.) According to one report, ICRC representatives visited a detention facility established at a hospital in Doboj on 25 June 1993. 1382/ No additional information was provided regarding the operation or control of this facility.

24. Donji Vakuf

1021. The municipality of Donji Vakuf is located in west-central BiH, bordered by the municipalities of Bugojno, Pucarevo, Fojnica, Prozor, and Kupres. According to the 1991 census, this county had a population of 24,232. The county was predominantly Muslim and Serb, the Muslims comprising 55.3 per cent of the population and Serbs comprising 38.7 per cent, and the remaining 6 per cent were described only as "other".

1022. Secretariat for Internal Affairs (SUP) in Donji Vakuf: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely the US Department of State.) A civilian detention facility for Bosnian Muslim males was located in the Secretariat for Internal Affairs building in the city of Donji Vakuf. The city of Donji Vakuf is located in the centre of the municipality of Donji Vakuf. In May 1992, Bosnian Serbs reportedly took control of the city of Donji Vakuf. 1383/ According to one report, many Muslim residents fled the city at that time and approximately 700 Bosnian Muslims remained. This source stated that on 30 May 1992, Bosnian Serb forces arrested an unspecified number of Bosnian Muslim males. The soldiers took the prisoners to the building of the Secretariat for Internal Affairs where they were imprisoned from 30 May 1992 until 10 June 1992. 1384/

1023. The report indicated that the detention facility was operated by Bosnian Serbs but does not state whether the prison was run by military or civilian personnel. Two Bosnian Serbs, the Chief of the Police station and a Senior Inspector, were identified in connection with the administration of the facility. 1385/ According to the report, several Bosnian Serb "Četniks" reportedly visited the camps, carried out the executions, beatings and torture of prisoners. These individuals are identified in the source materials. 1386/

1024. The prisoners held at the Secretariat for Internal Affairs were Bosnian Muslim males from the city of Donji Vakuf arrested in late May 1992 when Bosnian Serbs conducted searches of all Muslim homes in the city. It was reported that during the 10 days the prisoners were held, an additional 21 Bosnian Muslim prisoners arrived at the prison. 1387/ An estimated 90-100 prisoners were held at the facility between 30 May and 10 June 1992. 1388/

1025. The prisoners regarded as "intellectuals" and those prisoners who had "confessed" to committing crimes against the Serbs were transferred to Manjača. 1389/ The report did not indicate the date the transfer occurred. On 10 June 1992, five prisoners were transferred to the Vrbas-Promet detention camp located in the city of Donji Vakuf. 1390/

1026. The prisoners held at the Secretariat for Internal Affairs were subjected to interrogations and torture at the detention facility. The report indicated that several prisoners were beaten to death and others were executed. 1391/

1027. Vrbas-Promet Detention Camp: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by multiple sources, including the US Department of State.) The Vrbas-Promet detention camp was a civilian camp in the city of Donji Vakuf. The city of Donji Vakuf is located in the centre of the municipality of Donji Vakuf. The camp was a former warehouse that had been converted into a detention facility by the Bosnian Serbs when they took control of the city in May 1992. 1392/

1028. Male Muslim prisoners that had been held since 30 May 1992 in the building which housed the Secretariat for Internal Affairs were transferred to Vrbas-Promet on 10 June 1992. The report provides no information concerning the length of time the prisoners were held. 1393/ One report received by the Commission of Experts stated that 860 prisoners were held at the camp as of October 1992. 1394/

1029. Donji Vakuf Police Station: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely the US Department of State.) According to one report, prisoners were held and beaten at the police station in the city of Donji Vakuf. 1395/

1030. The report identified two Serbian police officers responsible for the arrest and beating death of at least one Muslim woman. The first officer was identified as a commander of the police station. 1396/ The second officer was identified as the old Deputy Police Chief. 1397/

1031. The report indicated that at least one prisoner was selected for arrest based on her Muslim ethnicity and the fact that her son was in the Bosnian forces defending Sarajevo. 1398/

1032. House in Donji Vakuf: (The existence of this detention facility has not been corroborated by multiple sources.) A report submitted by an examining physician indicated that six women were detained and raped in an unidentified house in the city of Donji Vakuf. The report stated that the house was located near a gas station in the city but did not provide any other identifying information. One young woman was imprisoned in the house and raped from 27 April to 1 October 1992. 1399/

1033. The report stated that the women were travelling by bus from Donji Vakuf to Bugojno when the bus was stopped by JNA soldiers. The soldiers ordered six young women and 10 young men off the bus and took them to a house near the gas station. The source reported that these young people were detained and raped by a Serbian civilian and a JNA soldier. Both were reported to be between 28-30 years old. 1400/

1034. Warehouse on Omladinska Street: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by multiple sources, however none among them are neutral.) The Commission has received reports concerning the location of a camp at an unidentified warehouse somewhere on Omlad Street in the city of Donji Vakuf where 440 prisoners were reportedly being held in 1992. The reports specify neither the ethnicity of the prisoners nor that of the controlling party. 1401/

25. Foča

1035. The city and county of Foča are located approximately 35 miles to the south-east of Sarajevo, in BiH. The Drina River runs north to south through the middle of the county which borders FRY (Serbia and Montenegro) on the west. The city of Foča lies on the eastern bank of the Drina River. Pre-war population of the region was approximately 41,000. About 52 per cent of the population was Muslim, 45 per cent Serb, and 3 per cent were described as "other". Foča is hilly and forested. 1402/

1036. The attack on Foča began in April 1992. Apparently, members of the Serbian Democratic Party (SDS) issued an ultimatum to Muslim representatives of the local area demanding an ethnic division of the region. The ultimatum rejected, violence ensued. After artillery bombardment, Serbian infantry forces moved in and quickly gained control of the town. 1403/

1037. Several individuals have been identified in the source materials as those primarily responsible for the attack upon and ethnic cleansing of Foča. 1404/ One of them apparently called in additional forces from Nikšić, Montenegro. Bringing the total number of Serbian forces in and around Foča to about 4,000 by the end of April. 1405/

1038. Some suspect that a Major General planned the attack, or at least served as a significant actor in the planning of the attack because many residents noticed his frequent visits to the Bosnian Serb military headquarters in Miljevina, a few kilometres west of the city, in the weeks just prior to the attack. Another individual, with the same name but unrelated to the general, was present during the apprehension of many Muslims after the Serbs gained control of the area. He was, at the time, a lieutenant colonel and former JNA officer. 1406/

1039. The Serb forces (former JNA, paramilitaries, and armed and mobilized local Serbs) quickly gained control of the area and continued their assault upon the villages of the region throughout the following months as late as July and August 1992. During this campaign, Serbian forces employed the same basic strategy. They would deliver an ultimatum. That ultimatum unmet, bombardment with artillery would commence followed by infantry and/or paramilitary assault.

1040. A Muslim school teacher from Foča related the following account of events in the city. On 7 April 1992 it was unusually quiet. Serbian children did not go to school and Muslim children were turned away at school. A Serb nurse warned a Muslim colleague to go home as there would be an attack upon the city. On the eighth, unidentified Bosnian Serb units attacked. Military and civilian vehicles were used to block all roads into Foča. Muslims and Croats attempting entry were turned away. Some were apprehended. 1407/

1041. The attack upon the village of Jeleč was typical of Serbian tactics throughout the region. Bosnian Serb soldiers blocked roads leading to Jeleč and its surrounding villages on 18 April 1992. This area contained a population of about 1,200 Muslims. A Bosnian Serb delegation entered Jeleč and demanded that the Muslims turn over their weapons to the military complex in Miljevina by 12 noon on 22 April. All members of the delegation were dressed in civilian clothes except one who wore a JNA uniform with the old emblem replaced by a Serbian Republic of BiH flag. 1408/

1042. The deadline passed and no weapons had been turned in. Small arms fire was heard in the hills surrounding Jeleč on 23 April. Many Muslims fled. Most took up residence in nearby hills and waited to see if military action would actually occur. Between 1 and 3 May, the Serbian military bombarded the Jeleč area with artillery and one unidentified military aircraft dropped bombs on various targets. On 4 May, paramilitary troops from various units arrived in seven military buses and began a systematic roundup of Muslims left in the area. These units, according to a soldier involved with the witness' apprehension, included White Eagles, the Montenegro Guard, and the Vukovar unit, commanded by Pero Elez. An unknown number of Muslims were captured and transported to detention facilities. Many found in remote areas were simply lined up and shot. 1409/

1043. According to one female witness who lived in the predominantly Serbian area of ukovac, Foča located on the banks of the Drina, Radovan Karađžić's wife Linda and a Serbian Democratic Party (SDS) leader, Biljana Plavšić, visited the town and appeared at a rally in the stadium to congratulate the fighters, especially the White Eagles, responsible for the delivery of Foča. Although the town was occupied she reported that was not forced to leave her home immediately because it was a predominantly Serbian area.

1044. In July, she reported, the Serbs began killing the Muslims of ukovac. Many were allegedly killed at a "Tito" sign on a hill overlooking Foča and thrown into the Drina. Several times over a four to five day period a yellow mini-van coming from the direction of the Foča prison (KP Dom) delivered a number of men who were disposed of in like manner. This witness reported that she was later abducted and raped. She reported that she spent a number of days in a rape house. The house was owned by a man reportedly imprisoned by the Serbs in KP Dom and apparently still alive and interned there as of December 1992. 1410/

1045. Collection of non-Serbian peoples of the Foča region commenced and continued contemporaneously with the battle. In the city, uniformed Serbs, many masked, turned residents out of their homes and delivered them to various places where a screening took place. Serbian residents were advised to move to certain outlying villages for their own protection against the possibility of future fighting in the area and Muslims were transferred to various detention centres. The initial screening stations included a civil defence bunker located under a large apartment building. 1411/

1046. One witness stated that shortly after BiH declared its independence on 8 April 1992, the head of the local branch of the Serbian Democratic Party (SDS) ordered that the Muslim population of the city be rounded up and deported to various camps. He claimed that Muslims and Croats were picked up 100-200 at a time and held for a few hours at local high schools before being sent to various camps. He stated that the first taken were intellectuals, city officials, and police officers. 1412/

1047. Solana: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely the US Department of State.) After these screenings, a number of Muslims were moved and held in two warehouses known as Solana because they were formerly used to store salt. As Solana filled up, Muslims intended for detention there were instead held in various houses and apartments. 1413/

1048. KP Dom: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by multiple sources, including the US Department of State.) The primary place of detention was, and may still be, the Foča Prison, also known as Kazneno Popravni (KP) Dom (House of Criminal Rehabilitation). 1414/ The prison had been one of the largest in the former Yugoslavia with a 2,000 inmate capacity. On or about 1 April 1992, Foča prison guards allegedly set an unknown number of inmates free. All but 20 of the original inmates reportedly left the prison compound. Some time later in April, the mobilized Serbian residents of Foča took control of the prison. On or about 10 May, control was transferred to the Foča Police.

1049. About 35 people worked at the prison in three shifts. Seven guards on duty during the day and three or four during the night. Extra guards were posted when fighting increased in the surrounding area. Most guards were prison employees, although the Muslim guards had been dismissed in early April. Prison personnel traditionally wore blue-gray uniforms and caps; after April, 1992, the cap emblem was changed from a red star to the Serbian flag.

1050. The prison reportedly served as part of a "crisis headquarters". 1415/

1051. The Foča Prison complex reportedly consists of two four story buildings and one L-shaped one story building. All three buildings are surrounded by two walls: an inner wall 3.5 metres high and an outer wall five metres high. Four steel guardshacks are positioned on the corners of the outer wall. At night the prison grounds are well illuminated with lights affixed to the outer wall and the grounds outside the wall. The westernmost building was reportedly used for administration and interrogation. Two rooms used for interrogation were located on the ground floor. The eastern building housed the detainees. The administration and detention buildings were eight metres apart. The L-shaped building was a prison workshop. The administration and detention buildings have sloped, bricked roofs and the workshop building had a sloped aluminum roof. An inner wall separated the buildings from a courtyard that reportedly contained antipersonnel mines. 1416/

1052. One source reported that on 19 May 1992, there were 130 Muslim detainees in the Foča men's prison, and between 19 and 25 May, 400 new detainees were brought in. Inmates estimated at least 36 prisoners were killed by guards in June. Guards would typically enter a cell between 8:00 p.m. and 10:00 p.m., call out inmates' names, inform them that they were to be exchanged, and take them away. These prisoners were never heard from again. 1417/

1053. Approximately 200 inmates were taken from the prison for unknown reasons in late August, most inmates believed they were killed by guards. Thirty-five prisoners were taken away on 15 September and 12 more at the end of the same month, allegedly for a prisoner exchange. Prisoners released since that time failed to locate any of these men. Prisoners on the fourth floor observed guards carrying blankets containing what seemed to be human bodies and dumping them in the Drina River. Thirty-six blankets from May to October. Muslim inmates estimated that in early August the prison held 570 inmates, and that by 13 October it held 130 detainees. 1418/

1054. Each new prisoner brought into Foča prison was interrogated and spent time in a solitary confinement cell. Periods of confinement varied but the average stay was 30 days. Some prisoners were placed in solitary before interrogation, and some afterwards. Interrogations also varied with some conducted immediately after a detainee's arrival and others conducted up to three months later. During interrogation a detainee was questioned about his political affiliation, his property holdings and the status of Muslim defence forces in his area of residence. At the end of the interrogation each detainee was required to sign a statement detailing the subjects discussed during interrogation. Personnel files, which included biographical data and circumstances of apprehension were kept on all detainees. On 30 September, Red Cross files were opened on all inmates, but the Red Cross had not visited as of April 1993. 1419/

1055. Apparently, the ICRC first visited the KP Dom on 23 June 1993 and found 70 detainees. They reportedly visited again on 4 August 1993 when they found 52 detainees. 1420/

1056. Reportedly, many Muslims who earlier fled to Serbia and Montenegro believing it was safe, were later tracked down and returned to the Foča prison. 1421/

1057. Helsinki Watch reported the stories of two men who claimed they were detained at the Foča KP Dom and not mistreated. According to one, Serbian forces arrested him and 27 other men in Foča at the end of April 1992. The Serbs told those arrested that they were being taken to a place where they would be required to make a statement. 1422/

1058. All those arrested with this man were later questioned. According to the witness, his interrogator told him that he did not know what he was supposed to ask him and that he had a paper which required an interrogation. The witness was then required to sign a document. As the man arrested walked out of the office, he reported that another guard walked into the office and asked the interrogator whether the witness had confessed. The interrogator then supposedly replied, "Did he confess to what?" The guard then reportedly said that if the special forces arrived the arrested man would confess to everything. 1423/

1059. The 28 reportedly arrested were detained at the prison four months. According to the same witness, approximately 560 men were detained in the prison throughout his detention. The number detained fluctuated depending on whether or not prisoner exchanges took place or if new inmates were brought to the prison. 1424/

1060. This witness was detained in a room with 74 others. The room was divided into quarters. The prisoners were given a place to sleep, some socks, and sponges to wash themselves. He reported that others were held in jail cells. 1425/

1061. He reported that prisoners were fed three times a day. He stated that they received cabbage, macaroni and water daily. According to this and another witness, the prisoners also received 15 decagrams of bread a day to be shared among 20 prisoners. 1426/

1062. Helsinki Watch reported the story of another witness who stated that he was placed in room number 22 with 44 other men, after which, they were individually questioned. The questions primarily concerned membership of the SDA and the number of weapons in his village. He stated that cots and blankets were provided to the prisoners and that neither he nor his son were mistreated. 1427/

1063. Both of the above men were reportedly released from the KP Dom and deported from the region on or about 30 August 1992. One of the men claimed that 250 men remained in the prison at the time of his release. 1428/

1064. Helsinki Watch included the story of another alleged prisoner of Serb forces in Foča. He reported that detainees were beaten in the prison. This individual claims that all those interrogated were also threatened. He states that for three and a half months he was held in one room. The number of prisoners in that room, he stated, gradually increased from about 30 to 75. According to this man, a police officer would come to the room in the evening and read out the names of some men who would then be taken from the room and beaten. Although he was not beaten, he claims that some were beaten severely. Some men who were taken out reportedly never returned.

1065. The above witness was released from the Foča prison on 29 August 1992. They were to be taken to Nikšić, Montenegro. On the way, Pero Elez stopped the bus and ordered it back to the prison. There, two police officers identified 20 of the prisoners and took them away. The remainder returned to the bus and left for Montenegro. 1429/

1066. Probably the same Muslim school teacher from Foča mentioned above described the murder of prisoners at the Foča Prison. 1430/ Bosnian Serbs captured him and interned him in the men's prison from May to December 1992, when he was released in a prisoner exchange. 1431/ Between 12 June and 20 June 1992, at least five or six prisoners were taken nightly from their cells and interrogated in the administration building opposite the detention building. Prisoners could see their fellow inmates taken into the two interrogation rooms on the ground floor of the administration building opposite and were able to see individuals from the waist up through windows looking into the two rooms. Two prisoners were taken into the interrogation rooms while the others waited outside under guard. Prisoners in the detention building heard screams for 20 minutes, after which a second pair of prisoners were brought into the two rooms.

1067. Prisoners on the third floor of the detention facility could see over the administration building to the road and the river. They watched as guards carried blanket wrapped bundles of what appeared to be bodies to the river, where they were dumped. Guards carried such bundles to the river only after such interrogation. Those brought to interrogation were never seen again. This witness identified 13 victims. 1432/

1068. Another man reported being arrested with his son and 18 other men in his neighbourhood and taken to the KP Dom on 27 April 1992. He stated that 560 Muslim men from the Foča area were interned there. He claimed that the Serbs running the camp maintained written records and biographic files on all those interned. Interrogations reportedly focused on discovering which Muslims in town had weapons. According to this man, about four prisoners were beaten each night between midnight and 1:00 a.m. 1433/

1069. A Muslim woman from Foča reported that on 18 April 1992, she was arrested by masked men calling themselves "Četniks". She was taken to the KP Dom and interrogated. After the interrogation, she alleged that she was beaten with a rifle butt until she bled from the mouth and ears. She then states that she was thrown into a cell holding men. A half an hour later, a Muslim man who had a bullet wound and who had been beaten on the head was thrown into the cell. Other beaten prisoners were later thrown in and she was threatened and forced to surrender her wedding ring before being eventually released. 1434/

1070. Another teacher at the school in Foča was treated well as a prisoner. Unidentified individuals from Foča frequently visited this teacher, who would then relay information to the other prisoners. For example, a Bosnian Serb soldier, a former teacher at a school in Foča, told the teacher/inmate that an identified prisoner was killed on 18 June 1992. This information was then passed along to others. 1435/

1071. Several witnesses describe bodies dumped into the Drina River and washing up on the shores of Gorade. Many, former inmates of the KP Dom. 1436/ Corpses which are believed to be those of Muslims executed in Foča prison camp were seen daily in the River Drina at Gorade. Amongst them were children as young as seven. Corpses were frequently mutilated and carried signs of torture. There were seven to eight corpses a day as late as end of July 1992, although Serbs claimed Foča ethnically clean. 1437/

1072. Another source claimed that she and her daughter were arrested by Serbs in her house in the middle of August 1992 and taken to the KP Dom where they were both raped. She states that she was raped twice and her daughter several times. According to this witness, she and her daughter spent 10 days imprisoned at the KP Dom, 10 days "in another place" and seven days in a camp before they escaped. 1438/

1073. White Eagles surrounded the village of Kremaluša on 5 May 1992. They opened fire with mortars and machine-guns and continued firing until 6 May when they moved into the village and began to search the houses and round up the residents. A Muslim Kremaluša villager detained at the KP Dom until mid-December, 1992, when he was exchanged near Sarajevo, reported the greatest number of prisoners held there at one time was 586, all male, during the period of June to September 1992. 1439/

1074. According to this witness, interrogators wanted the names of people who possessed weapons, the location of weapons caches, and the identities of members of the Muslim Party (SDA). Interrogators also attempted to extract confessions of "crimes committed against the Serbs". Alleged torture was common and committed in the same building where interrogations took place. Each day three to five prisoners who had confessed to such crimes were removed to the Drina River, executed and dumped into the water. Prisoners had one meal a day. The meal consisted of water diluted leftovers from the guards' meals. This witness also provided a list of inmates as of December 1992. 1440/

1075. According to one of the teachers detained, there were 95 prisoners in Foča Prison on 12 December 1992. Ninety-three Muslims, one Croat, and one Slovenian journalist who had been on assignment for an unidentified French media company. 1441/ However, one heard rumours that as late as May, 1993 there were 500 men still detained in the prison. 1442/

1076. A BBC reporter apparently interviewed the Deputy President of the (Serbian) Municipality of Foča, Ljubomir Todović and a Muslim prisoner held at the KP Dom on 26 and 27 August 1993. 1443/ The reporter saw KP Dom. He was not allowed to know how many prisoners were there. The Commandant was identified by name in the source materials.

1077. According to the Deputy President, as reported:

"Check wherever you want, but during the fighting and after the fighting in Foča, there were no prisons for civilians, i.e. for women, children and other people. Only for people who were capable of fighting . . . and I haven't heard anybody saying that they have taken in women, children and old people. . . . As far as I know, none such actions took place here, because the military/government/police didn't authorise such actions. In fact the authorities were the buffer zone for the Muslim civilians here, until the Muslims decided to go." 1444/

1078. The reporter was allowed to interview a Muslim soldier captured by Serb forces in the summer of 1993 and held at the KP Dom. Apparently, the prisoner participated in an attack upon Serb civilians in the Jošanica valley. He provides no other information relating to his incarceration. 1445/

1079. Miljevina Police Station: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by multiple sources, including the National Organization for Victim Assistance.) Miljevina is a village in the Foča province, located a few kilometres to the west of the city of Foča. Bosnian Serb military headquarters were supposedly located there prior to the conflict and witnesses often referred to the Miljevina Motel as a Serb Headquarters. 1446/

1080. As in all other villages conquered by the Serb forces, Muslims were rounded up and placed in detention for various amounts of time. Reportedly, Serbs used the Miljevina jailhouse to imprison all the men of the village on 11 June 1992. 1447/

1081. A woman reported that on 6 August 1992, a Serbian police officer took her and her 11 month old son, her mother-in-law and her two children to the prison in Miljevina. Although the others were released she was held in a cell with another man and a woman. After four hours the police officer took her to another room and raped her. He then released her. 1448/

1082. On 20 June 1992, a man was imprisoned at the Miljevina jail and held for seven days and beaten after which he was used to clear mines. He was forced to drive a car in front of a convoy to clear a path or at least ensure the location of a safe path through minefields for Serb forces. He was later imprisoned at the KP Dom. 1449/

1083. On or about 18 August 1992, 20 men in uniforms of Serbian nationality arrested five men and a girl and took them to the house of Nusret Karaman. After spending a night there, they were taken to the Miljevina police station where the girl was questioned and released. The men spent 15 days at the police station when they were transferred to the KP Dom. 1450/

1084. Elementary School in Donje epče: (The existence of this detention facility has not been corroborated by multiple sources.) On 16 April 1992, Serbs ambushed a truck carrying 45 soldiers committed to the defence of Foča near the village of Donje epče. Three Muslims were wounded; the others taken prisoner and placed in the elementary school in Donje epče. The wounded were taken to the Foča hospital. Eight prisoners were immediately released. Later, the Serb captors released another two Muslim prisoners because they looked exhausted. Those who remained in custody were reportedly beaten by three identified men. Upon request of the Muslim defence forces it was agreed to release the remaining prisoners on 18 April 1992. At the time of the release two prisoners were accidentally killed crossing the Muslim barricades. 1451/

1085. Foča Police Headquarters: (The existence of this detention facility has not been corroborated by multiple sources.) One man claims to have been captured by Serbian irregular forces in the village of Zubovići and detained from 14 April to 3 May 1992 when he was paroled. According to this man, two other men repeatedly interrogated him and other prisoners at police headquarters in Foča. He states that he was not maltreated but claims that a number of inmates lost weight because they were not given enough to eat. 1452/

1086. Bug/Buk Bijelo Workers Barracks/Construction Site: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely the US Government.) On or about 3 July 1992, some local Serbs and some Montenegrins reportedly held some women from the village of Mesaje for one night in the workers' barracks. They were interrogated about possession of weapons. 1453/

1087. Various Houses and Apartments in Foča: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely the US Government.) After arrest by a group of 26 Serbian soldiers claiming to be Šešeljovci from Trebinje, a group of women and children were separated into four groups at the police station and taken to separate houses confiscated from Muslim owners. A soldier told one of the women that women, children and old people were being taken to these homes because they were not worth a bullet. 1454/

1088. This woman was placed in a group of 28 women and kept in a house for 27 days. The prisoners ranged in age from 12 to 60 years-old. Four to five local Serbs stood guard at all times. Soldiers came to the house day and night to select women and girls for beating and rape. Frequently, the soldiers sought mother-daughter combinations. The captors also forced some of the prisoners to drink alcohol and eat pork. Many women threw up and were then beaten for getting sick. On 18 August 1992, the women were allowed to leave on a convoy evacuating Muslims from Foča. 1455/

1089. A woman who had been imprisoned for one month at the Kalinovik High School was allegedly taken from there by two Montenegrins to a house in Foča occupied by an individual from Trnovača. She was held there five days then taken to the Miljevina Bordello by the same two men. 1456/

1090. In Miljevina, the apartments of Zoran Samardić and Nedo Samardić were reported to be places where women and girls were detained for the purpose of rape. Each holding two or three women or girls and including at least one transfer of a prisoner from Zoran's apartment to Nedo's apartment. In fact, a number of apartments seem to have been maintained by a group of soldiers and paramilitaries led by Pero Elez. 1457/

1091. Gymnasium: (The existence of this detention facility has not been corroborated by multiple sources.) One report claimed that the women and children of Miljevina were imprisoned in a gymnasium for about three days. In that time, the report alleges that all of the females between the ages of 12 and 35 were taken out every evening and raped. After three days, the women and children were taken to Gorade and left there. 1458/

1092. Another source reported the story of a woman who claimed to have been held in a gymnasium in Foča with 30 women and children. She and her daughter were allegedly raped there, her daughter several times. After 10 days at the gymnasium the witness reported being moved to a school in Kalinovik. 1459/

1093. Foča High School: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely the US Department of State.) A woman from the village of Mesaje describes the typical roundup and separation of Muslim men, women and children by Serbian forces around 15 April 1992. Taking the men to prison in Foča and leaving the women and children behind. On or about 3 July, 500 "Četniks" surrounded the forest near Mesaje, where the remaining Muslims had fled, and killed and captured those within. Approximately 70 women and children and five old men were taken to a collection camp located in the High School in Foča. 1460/

1094. The witness describes the school as a woman's transit camp at the high school, Ahmeda Fetahovića Street, Foča-Aladja. All 70 were kept there from 3 July to 17 July 1992. All were forced to stay in a former classroom 10 metres by 10 metres. They were able to use mattresses and blankets left behind by Serbian soldiers who had occupied the school earlier. Toilets and water were available. The food was very bad. The first week they received no warm food. Twice a day a loaf of bread was given to 10 persons. A warm soup of potatoes or peas was occasionally received later in the day. Believed soup a mixture of leftovers from a military mess hall. The military guard consisting of two soldiers standing outside was changed every eight hours. All women between ages 15 and 45 were continuously raped by Serbian military members. 1461/ This happened in other rooms at the school or outside in empty formerly Muslim homes in the town. 1462/

1095. On 8 July 1992, the source and seven other women were raped by 10 "Četniks" in another room in the building. She resisted and therefore struck on her back with the butt of a rifle. A former acquaintance ("etnik") interfered on her behalf and rescued her from rape and any further abuse, escorting her back to the detention room. The guards frequently raped the women they guarded. 1463/

1096. Partizan Sports Hall: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely the US Department of State.) On 17 July all those detained at the high school were transferred to the Partizan Sports Hall in the centre of Foča on Samoborska Street. 1464/ There the above witness and her relatives were detained until 13 August 1992 when all were transferred by bus to Roaj, Montenegro where they lived with local Muslim families until 9 May 1993. Almost all of the prisoners were from Mesaje with a few from Foča. They stayed in the former gym which was 15 metres by eight metres in size. They slept on the floor without mattresses or blankets. Toilets and water were available inside the building. They were unable to take a bath or shower. They had no soap or other hygienic utensils. The food situation was as bad as at the school. Children received no milk, fruit, or vegetables, and everyone was always hungry. They were forbidden to leave their billets or receive visitors. "Četniks" continued to rape women as they did earlier at the school. 1465/ As there were no other rooms available in the building, women were occasionally raped in the gym in front of all the detainees, including children, or outside the building on the meadow. Most of the time, however, women were taken out and driven in a car to empty, former Moslem, apartments or houses in town. Each time they were kept all night. On several occasions, several women were kept several days and nights at one place and raped every night by a different group of "Četniks". 1466/

1097. As far as this witness knew, no women or children were killed at either place. Women were not tortured but were beaten if they refused sex. Often, especially at the beginning, women who resisted returned in the morning with bloody faces. Many women became pregnant. Several weeks later many aborted the fetuses in Rozaj. Three Muslim girls from Mesaje were not released on 13 August. They were forced to stay in a brothel in Foča as objects of pleasure for Serbian soldiers. These women were identified by name in the report. 1467/

1098. Velečevo Women's Prison: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by multiple sources, including the US Department of State.) Serb forces allegedly used the Velečevo Women's Prison in Foča as a concentration camp for Muslim women. 1468/ Women were reportedly held there as late as April 1993. 1469/

1099. According to one source, the prison contained approximately 500 female inmates prior to the conflict; another source indicates 50. 1470/ The first source claims that younger Muslims were imprisoned with the criminals there after the Serb attack and round-up of Muslims in the area. The same source believed that most of the criminal inmates were later killed, leaving 120 females from Velečevo's original prison population surviving. 1471/ The second source reported that the 50 female inmates who had been housed in the prison before April 1992 were moved to an unidentified facility in Puz on 12 April 1992. 1472/

1100. Velečevo prison is four kilometres south of the KP Dom in Foča. It is a multi-storied building surrounded by wire fencing covering an area of about 200 by 200 metres. 1473/

1101. BiH Government authorities claimed that the girls and young women held there were tortured, raped, often killed, and otherwise maltreated. 1474/

1102. Sources reported that the mobilized Serbs of Foča set up their headquarters in or next to the Velečevo Women's Prison. 1475/ Radovan Karadžić said that he was unaware of any such headquarters. He also said he had not known that Velečevo was the site of a women's prison. 1476/

1103. Miljevina Motel: (The existence of this detention facility has not been corroborated by multiple sources.) One girl describes being captured by three men dressed in camouflage uniforms with the insignia of Serbian Voluntary Guard. They brought her to a place she described as Serb headquarters at a motel in Miljevina where she spent one night. She was then taken to Ismet Bašić's apartment. 1477/

1104. Ismet Bašić's Apartment: (The existence of this detention facility has not been corroborated by multiple sources.) The girl mentioned above was kept in Ismet Bašić's apartment from about 10 June 1992 to November 1992. After two months of detention, Pero Elez reportedly raped her. She alleges he raped her continually until he was killed in December of 1992 when she was transferred to Nedo Samardić's apartment. 1478/

1105. Miljevina Bordello: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by multiple sources however none among them are neutral.) Several sources described a bordello in Miljevina which could be the same place described as the Miljevina Motel or Serb Headquarters in Miljevina. 1479/ According to one woman, Pero Elez was the "main etnik" in Miljevina. According to her, he knew everyone in the village and therefore did no harm; however, his soldiers were criminal, and among them the Montenegrins were supposedly the worst. She stated, though, that it was understood that Elez took five 12 year old girls from Kalinovik and brought them to what the witness reported as Elez's bordello in Miljevina where they were kept as concubines. 1480/

1106. Another woman describes being taken to a Nusret Karaman's house and held there six months with other young women and raped. 1481/ According to another woman, the Miljevina Bordello was located in a three story white house with an orange tile roof, owned by Nusret Karaman, a Muslim who worked in Germany. The bordello was 50 metres from her window across the Bistrica River. 1482/ Another woman confirmed the existence of the bordello. She, too, could see it from her home. 1483/ According to another source, by 3 September 1992, the only Muslims left in Miljevina were bordello girls. 1484/

1107. Another source reported that on or about 2 September 1992, 10 girls 12 years-old or less were being held in the brothel in Miljevina. 1485/

1108. Former Prison for Underage Delinquents: (The existence of this detention facility has not been corroborated by multiple sources.) One source reported 131 Muslims held in the former prison for under-age delinquents in Foča on or about 2 September 1992. According to the report there had been as many as 600 prisoners held there in June and July of 1992. Many had purportedly died as a result of beatings and abuse. Many were allegedly shot or taken away to the mines of Miljevina, Gacko, Montenegro, Serbia or to unknown locations. 1486/

1109. Identification of Perpetrators: The perpetrators were identified by name in the source materials.

26. Fojnica

1110. According to the 1991 Yugoslavian census, the county of Fojnica had a population of 16,227, of which 40.9 per cent were Croats, 49.4 per cent were Muslims, .9 per cent were Serbs, and the remaining 8.8 per cent were described as "others".

1111. Fojnica is located in the southern region of BiH, approximately 50 miles south of Sarajevo. One report received from this area described a Muslim controlled facility in or about which several Croatian soldiers and civilians are buried. 1487/

1112. According to the report, Croatian civilians are presently living and detained in the community, however the conditions of their detention were not specified. 1488/

1113. On 29 September 1993, a prisoner exchange between Fojnica and Kiseljak was arranged. Additional information regarding future prisoner of war exchanges suggested that five Croats would be released for Kiseljak and a team would be permitted to exhume the bodies of the buried Croats. 1489/

1114. Fojnica Camp: (The existence of this detention facility has not been corroborated by multiple sources.) One report alleges the existence of a camp in Fojnica. There are no details provided in the report. 1490/

1115. Fojnica School: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely the ICRC.) The ICRC reported the existence of a camp in a school in Fojnica. The ICRC first visited the camp on 3 August 1993. 1491/

27. Gacko

1116. The municipality of Gacko is located in south-eastern BiH, bordered by the municipalities of Bileća, Nevesinje, Kalinovik, Foča and FRY. According to the 1991 census, Gacko had a prewar population of 10,844. Serbs comprised the majority of the population at 62.4 per cent, Muslims comprised 35.3 per cent, and Croats 2.3 per cent. In 1992, 37 per cent of the region's 10,000 population was Muslim who formed the middle classes and constituted a majority inside the town of Gacko. 1492/ Serbian forces began arresting young men in the Gacko area in early June and July of 1992 and began to incarcerate the civilian population in camps. Approximately 136 people were killed in the town and many were sent to a camp in Bileća. 1493/ One source provided a list of all prisoners transferred from the municipality of Gacko to Bileća. 1494/

1117. According to one source, a witness from Bileća reported that over 200 refugees who had escaped from Bileća to Gacko. In Gacko, the refugees were imprisoned by commanding officers Popović and alasan. 1495/ The report did not indicate the exact location in Gacko the refugees were held. The witness also recounted an incident in which a female prisoner was pushed while alive into a fire. 1496/

1118. According to one source, former detainees from Gacko and Bileća fled to the Dubrovnik area. One man, an employee of the thermoelectric power station of Gacko, was reportedly arrested on 1 June 1992 because of his ethnicity as a Muslim. 1497/ He was imprisoned for 15 days, released, and then arrested again seven days later. He was then transferred to a camp in Bileća. 1498/

1119. Military Casern Avtovac: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by multiple sources, including the US Department of State.) It was reported that a Serbian controlled concentration camp was located 4 miles south-east of the town of Gacko in Avtovac. 1499/ One hundred and ten Bosnian Croat and Bosnian Muslim males were captured by Bosnian Serb forces and imprisoned from 1-5 June 1992 at the military casern in Avtovac. 1500/ On 5 June 1992, the prisoners were transferred to a processing centre in the basement of the Samački Hotel. 1501/ It was reported that 1,000 people were held at this camp as of November 1992. 1502/

1120. A separate report described the ethnic cleansing and imprisonment of Muslim civilians in the city of Gacko in March through July 1992. 1503/ A Muslim witness reported that the Serbian Army initially entered Gacko in March 1992 on the way to the front in Mostar. 1504/ Local members of the "White Eagles" paramilitary group allegedly destroyed Muslim owned cafes, apartments and shops. In the middle of May the "White Eagles" began shooting into homes and making arrests. 1505/

1121. According to an eyewitness, on 1 June, Serbian soldiers arrested Muslim men at the Gacko Power Plant as they finished their shift. One hundred prisoners were placed in military transport and taken to the military prison in Avtovac, five kilometres from Gacko. 1506/ Serbian soldiers then moved from house to house arresting more Muslim men and taking them to Avtovac and then to Hotel Terma, outside Gacko. 1507/ On 4 July, Serbian forces reportedly went from house to house for any remaining Muslims. The soldiers entered the home of the reporting witness and told her that she had two minutes to leave the house. The witness and 980 Muslim residents were taken by bus and train to the Serbian-Macedonian border. A Muslim relief organization took them to Skopje. 1508/

1122. Hotel Terma: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely the US Government.) Male Muslim prisoners from the city of Gacko were transferred from Avtovac to the hotel. The report provided no other information concerning a camp at this location. 1509/

1123. Gacko Hotel: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely the National Organization for Victim Assistance.) In the beginning of June 1992, Serbian forces in Gacko arrested 200 Muslims that had been held (the report is unclear about this point) on the ground floor of the hotel. 1510/ Fifteen Muslim male prisoners were killed by the Serbian captors which caused the rest of the prisoners to panic. The witness reported that the Serbians began robbing and torturing the prisoners, extorting money and seizing property and cars. 1511/ The prisoners were mistreated the entire month of June. The prisoners were reportedly beaten if they refused the demands of the soldiers. Beginning of 18 June, all the Muslim villages near Gacko were set on fire. The burning and looting continued until 1 July. Some of the Muslim inhabitants, older men and women, were brought to Gacko. 1512/ Some of them were allegedly killed at Kula. 1513/ On 4 July, all prisoners held at the hotel were taken to the TE Hotel. 1514/

1124. TE Hotel: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely the National Organization for Victim Assistance.) According to one report, one hundred male civilians were separated from their families and transferred to the TE Hotel from the Gacko Hotel on 4 July 1992. 1515/ Women and children were put onto 11 buses and driven to Macedonia via Montenegro. 1516/

1125. TPP Hotel: (The existence of this detention facility has not been corroborated by multiple sources.) In April 1992, the city of Gacko and surrounding Muslim villages were attacked by Serbian forces. According to one report, some of the Muslim residents were held in this hotel before being transferred to a concentration camp in Bileća. 1517/ Bosnian Muslim women and children were allegedly transported to a camp in Kalinovik where they were reportedly subjected to physical mistreatment and rape. 1518/ The report stated that 10 minor women were transferred to a bordello in Miljevina. 1519/

1126. The report provided the names of Serbians who allegedly took part in the crimes committed against Muslims in Gacko. 1520/

1127. Samački Hotel: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely the US Department of State.) The Samački Hotel was located in the south-east end of town of Gacko. 1521/ On 5 June 1992, prisoners from the military casern in Avtovac were transferred to a processing centre in the basement of the Samački Hotel in Gacko. 1522/ The conditions in the basement were poor as a significant amount of water had reportedly leaked in. 1523/

1128. Male Bosnian Muslim prisoners who were captured by Serbian "White Eagles" paramilitary forces near the Košuta Motel on 18 June 1992, and imprisoned at the Secretariat for Internal Affairs (SUP) building in Gacko were transferred to the basement of the Samački Hotel sometime after 18 June. At least six prisoners were killed at the hotel before 136 prisoners were transferred on 1 July 1992 to a prison in Bileća. Four prisoners were shot and killed by Serbian forces as they were being loaded into trucks for transport. 1524/

1129. Another report stated that the Serbian offensive in the city of Gacko began in the beginning of June 1992. The "Četniks" reportedly captured as many Muslim males as they could. Those residents of Gacko who were not captured escaped with their families into the mountains and Borovina woods on the east side of the city. The male prisoners were then reportedly taken to a "prison in the basement of a hotel in a Gacko suburb". 1525/

1130. A separate witness statement stated that Serbian forces shelled the villages around the town of Gacko on 18 or 19 June 1992. 1526/ The reporting witness fled to Basici west of Gacko after leaving Gacko. Those who survived the shelling on 18-19 June were captured by Serbian forces and taken to a prison in "a hotel in the suburbs of Gacko". 1527/ This appears to be consistent with previous descriptions of the Samački Hotel. 1528/

1131. Another witness reported that sometime in early June 1992, "Četniks" took 320 men prisoners to a prison in the basement of a hotel in a Gacko suburb. 1529/ Eleven men reportedly died within 15 days of confinement after being subjected to interrogation, physical abuse and deprivation of food and water. 1530/ The prisoners were transferred to the town of Bileća, between Gacko and Trebinje to the military camp which was converted into a concentration camp and to the police station. 1531/ On 28 June 1992 the Muslim village Patorci was destroyed.

1132. Gacko Police Station: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely the ECMM.) Serbian forces attacking the city of Gacko in June 1992 positioned themselves approximately two kilometres from the city on a small hill called Glavice, in a house belonging to Zejnil Tanović. The Serbian forces reportedly positioned an anti-aircraft machine-gun at the top of the hill and launched attacks on the refugees who had fled into the mountains east of the city. 1532/ The leader of the Serbian forces at Glavice reportedly also worked at the Steam Power Plant in Gacko. He was appointed by the Serbs after the former plant director, Branko Grk, refused to give Serbian forces a list of employed Muslim males born in 1973 and 1974 during the JNA mobilization of new recruits in June 1992. Those who resisted conscription were reportedly imprisoned. 1533/

1133. The reporting witness and family were part of a group of 200 Muslim and Croatian refugees who surrendered to Serbian forces on 12 July 1992. The refugees were loaded into trucks and taken off the mountain. At Bohuša near the city of Gacko the refugees were taken out of the trucks and detained for three or four hours. The Serbs interrogated the refugees about the location of the men from the city. One group of civilians were sent back to the mountain and the other group of refugees were taken to the Gacko police station. 1534/

1134. The refugees were held at the police station until 4:00 p.m. on 12 July. The witness stated that the police station was filled with items that had been plundered from Muslim homes. 1535/ The younger women were reportedly questioned by Vitomir Popić. 1536/ The reporting witness and her cousin were interrogated regarding the whereabouts of their fathers, brothers and neighbours. 1537/ The prisoners were then loaded into trucks and transported to Trebinje and then Bileća. 1538/

1135. Another witness reported a Serbian assault on the city of Gacko in April 1992. 1539/ Inhabitants of the city fled into the mountains near the village of Meduljici where they remained for 22 days. The witness and her children were captured along with 100 civilians and taken to the Gacko police station. 1540/ At the police station, the prisoners were reportedly interrogated for several hours. 1541/ The report did not indicate how long the prisoners were held at the police station before they were transported by truck to Trebinje. 1542/

1136. Secretariat for Internal Affairs (SUP): (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely the US Department of State.) The Commission has received a report from the U.S. Department of State that Bosnian Muslim males were held prisoner by Bosnian Serb forces at the Secretariat of Internal Affairs building in the town of Gacko. 1543/ The report stated that on 18 June 1992, the Bosnian Serbs controlling Gacko announced that all Bosnian Muslim and Croat residents could leave town. One hundred men, women and children left Gacko in a convoy heading towards Montenegro. Serbian paramilitary member of the "White Eagles" intercepted the convoy approximately seven kilometres south of Gacko near the Košuta Motel in Zborna Gomila. 1544/ All able-bodied male prisoners were taken from the convoy, forced to lie down on the road, and searched by the paramilitary members. 1545/ The men were stripped of their valuables, and the women and children were forced into several military trucks and taken back to Gacko. 1546/ An identified Serbian soldier from Gacko was allegedly responsible for the shooting death of at least one prisoner. 1547/ The male prisoners were transported by military truck to the Secretariat for Internal Affairs (SUP) building in Gacko. 1548/

1137. An identified Serbian was reportedly in charge of the SUP in Gacko. 1549/ The prisoners were interrogated and tortured by two inspectors who were identified in the materials, both from Gacko. 1550/ After the prisoners had been tortured, the Serb leader transferred the prisoners to the basement of the Samački Hotel. 1551/

1138. The BiH War Crimes Commission published the names of men accused of committing war crimes in Gacko. Their identities are available in the source materials. 1552/

1139. Gacko Electric Plant: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by multiple sources however none among them are neutral.) A Serb-controlled camp was located at the Gacko Electric Plant in the city of Gacko. 1553/ The camp was reportedly established under the direction of the SDS (Serbian Democratic Party) Commander in Eastern Hercegovina. 1554/ The report stated that Muslim and Croatian prisoners were held at the camp. 1555/

1140. Gacko Power Plant: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely the UN Economic and Social Council.) Muslim and Croat men were reportedly imprisoned by Serbian forces in the Gacko Power Plant in June 1992. 1556/ The prisoners were allegedly beaten repeatedly, especially at night, to prevent them from sleeping. Ten of these prisoners have reportedly disappeared after guards called them by name. One former prisoner is reported to have witnessed the arbitrary executions of five prisoners on separate occasions. 1557/

1141. Fazlagić Tower: (The existence of this detention facility has not been corroborated by multiple sources.) According to one report, a Bosnian Muslim witness described the "ethnic cleansing" of a cluster of villages referred to as Fazlagića Kula in the Gacko area. 1558/ On 19 June 1992 Serbian forces from the villages Miholjače, Srdjevići and Medjulić entered Fazlagić Kula, reportedly looted the homes and stole livestock. Approximately 200 to 300 village residents fled into the surrounding mountains and remained there for 27 days. 1559/ Serbian forces allegedly bombed the mountain in an attempt to force the villagers out. On 25 July, the Serbian forces communicated with the villagers by megaphone demanding that they give themselves up and promising them protection. Approximately 200 to 300 women and children reportedly responded and came out of the mountains. 1560/ The women were taken to Gacko by Serbian forces and then loaded in four military convoys and transported through Bileća to Trebinje. The transport was rejected at Trebinje so they were dropped off at Bileća. 1561/ After 15 days in Bileća, the witness fled to Montenegro. 1562/ A Serbian controlled camp was located at the Fazlagić Tower. The report did not indicate which city in the municipality of Gacko the camp was located. 1563/

1142. Hotel Košuta: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by multiple sources, including the US Government.) Hotel Košuta was located 10 kilometres south of Gacko, 500 kilometres from the road. 1564/ Part of the Serbian headquarters were reportedly located at the hotel, and the other part were located at the Gacko police station. 1565/ According to one source, Muslim residents who had remained in the city of Gacko during the Serbian shelling of the city had been issued written passes from Serbian authorities which permitted them to leave the city. As a group of the Muslims attempted to leave the city, they were intercepted by members of the "White Eagles" paramilitary group. 1566/ The Muslim males were beaten and "dragged by hands, heads or legs all over the parking lot" in front of the hotel before being taken back to prison in Gacko. 1567/ The men and women were robbed of personal possessions, and their cars were stolen. 1568/ The Serbian forces set prisoners on fire after dousing them with gas and beat prisoners on their heads with rifle butts. 1569/ The women and children were forced to watch the incident from the cars. 1570/ The Muslim women were raped at the hotel and then taken into the woods a few kilometres from the hotel and murdered. 1571/

1143. One female Muslim prisoner who was among the group of Muslim prisoners ambushed by the "White Eagles" near the Hotel Košuta. 1572/ The soldiers reportedly entered the cars of the prisoners and drove the women to the hotel. The witness stated that some of the men who had been arrested by the Serbs were at the hotel when the women arrived, and that they were so bloody and beaten that they were unrecognizable. The witness stated that the soldiers began beating the men again forcing the women and children to watch. 1573/ After conducting the beatings, the soldiers began to search the women. The women were reportedly taken to a large room in the hotel and robbed of jewelry and any other valuables in their possession. 1574/ After being robbed, some of the female prisoners were reportedly taken into various hotel rooms and raped. 1575/ The men were taken to the Gacko prison for 10 days and the women were sent back to Gacko. 1576/

1144. Unidentified Hotel in Gacko: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by multiple sources, including the US Government.) Another witness was reportedly arrested at his home by one identified individual and two unidentified Serbians. According to the witness, he and his wife were beaten and robbed before being taken to a hotel in Gacko. 1577/ One of the perpetrators was an unidentified Montenegrin who threatened to kill those who had not responded to the draft. 1578/ The male and female prisoners were separated and the men were taken to the basement of the hotel and the women were sent to Macedonia. 1579/ Several prisoners were allegedly killed in the basement of the prison. 1580/ After what appears from the report to be a brief detention, the male prisoners were transported to Bileća in two trucks by military police. 1581/

1145. A separate report stated that the witness was confined in the basement of a hotel in Gacko. 1582/ A Bosnian Muslim male from south of Banja Luka reported that in late April and early May 1992 Serbian infantry forces attacked Mostar. 1583/ The city residents reportedly fled into the hills surrounding the city. Serbian forces captured 15 refugees and transported them by truck convoy to a hotel in Gacko on 1 June. 1584/ The prisoners were reportedly beaten by the Serbian soldiers before being imprisoned in the basement of the hotel. 1585/

1146. When the prisoners arrived at the hotel, 100 prominent Bosnian Muslim citizens of Gacko were imprisoned in the basement of the hotel. 1586/ These included wealthy businessmen, civic leaders and teachers. One Croat citizen was among the prisoners. Each night, eight or nine prisoners were taken upstairs and interrogated about military information and beaten for two to three hours. Fifteen prisoners disappeared. It was alleged that those who disappeared were buried in a mass grave in Gacko's World War II Partisan Cemetery. 1587/

1147. During the night of 28 June, a Serbian guard from Gacko reportedly fired into the basement killing one Muslim prisoner and wounding another. 1588/ In July, 1,100 prisoners were taken out of the basement in groups of 10 and beaten as they passed through a gauntlet of Serbian guards. The prisoners were told that they were being taken for exchange. Three prisoners were shot as guards loaded the prisoners into a large truck. 1589/ Instead of being exchanged, the prisoners were taken to a former JNA Reserve Officer training academy in Bileća commanded by a Serb from the Sarajevo area. 1590/

1148. Hotel Rudnik: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely the ECMM.) One report indicated that the Gacko prison was located in the Hotel Rudnik Basement and the Gacko Power Plant. 1591/ Muslim and Croat men were reportedly imprisoned by Serbian forces in the Gacko Power Plant in June 1992. 1592/ The prisoners were allegedly beaten repeatedly, especially at night, to prevent them from sleeping. Ten of these prisoners have reportedly disappeared after guards called them by name. One former prisoner is reported to have witnessed the arbitrary executions of five prisoners on separate occasions. 1593/

1149. One male Muslim prisoner who had been captured by the Serbs at Hotel Košuta was among male prisoners taken to the part of the Gacko prison located at Hotel Rudnik. The witness reported that the prisoners were beaten continuously and that the worst period of the day was from 5:00 p.m. until midnight because the soldiers beat the prisoners to prevent them from sleeping. 1594/

1150. In the rooms of Hotel Rudnik the "Interviewing Platoons" which reportedly guarded the prisoners. 1595/ Their commander was an active duty officer who the reporting witness was unable to identify. His deputy was identified. 1596/ The head officers or main soldiers in the platoon were also identified. 1597/ It was reported that they acted on the orders of the Ministry of the Interior (SUP) in Gacko. 1598/ Those in charge at the SUP were an individual identified as the Chief of Police, another described as the Commander, a third who was said to be the Inspector, and one simply described as a policeman. 1599/ The witness stated that those men and another man also identified were ideological leaders of the Serbian population.

1151. A male Muslim prisoner reported that members of the "White Eagles" and JNA soldiers reportedly conducted most of the beatings at the prison. 1600/ The witness stated that the prisoners were beaten until the soldiers tired. 1601/ Prisoners reportedly began to disappear from the hotel. Some were beaten by soldiers and returned to the prison, while others disappeared permanently. 1602/ The witness reported that one evening a drunk Serbian soldier entered an area where prisoners were being held and demanded that the prisoners identify persons whose pictures he was carrying. When none of the prisoners identified these people, Sušić took out his gun and began firing at the prisoners randomly. One prisoner was shot in the head and died from his wounds and one prisoner was shot in the colon and survived. 1603/

1152. The prisoners were taken from the cellar of the hotel, loaded into trucks and transported to a camp in Bileća. Serbian soldiers beat the prisoners as they entered the truck. 1604/

1153. Gacko Prison: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely the ECMM.) On 19 July 1992, Serbian forces shelled the mountains east of Gacko where the Muslim and Croatian residents of Gacko had fled. 1605/ Six Muslim women were arrested and taken to the Gacko prison, interrogated and then released. The report did not provide any other identifying information concerning the Gacko prison or its location. Another report stated that the Gacko Prison was located at the Hotel Rudnik and the Gacko Power Plant. 1606/ The Serbians who had detained the women demanded that the women give the men a message to surrender. 1607/

28. Glamoč

1154. According to the 1991 Yugoslavian census, the municipality of Glamoč had a population of 12,421. Of that number 79.3 per cent were Serbs, 18.1 per cent were Muslims, 1.5 per cent were Croats, and the remaining 1.1 per cent were described as "others".

1155. Stadium: (The existence of this detention facility has not been corroborated by multiple sources.) The one report available from this area suggests that members of Serbian and Montenegrin paramilitary units and nationalist members of the Serbian Democratic Party were responsible for the creation and control of a concentration camp in Glamoč. 1608/ The report states that some 400 of the areas most respected Muslims were imprisoned in the camp established at the stadium. 1609/

1156. The above-mentioned extremists were reportedly also responsible for abuses suffered by the Muslim detainees. 1610/ The author noted that included among the examples of atrocities committed against the Muslim people was the drawing of vital quantities of blood from detainees for use in Serbian hospitals in the treatment of Serbs. No regard was given to the fact that this loss of blood necessarily resulted in loss of life to the donors. 1611/

29. Gorade

1157. The village of Gorade is a strategically and pragmatically important village for Serbs. It is located adjacent to a highway linking the Serbian capital of Belgrade with Serb held villages to the south-east. The village of Gorade has a population of approximately 65,000. Its status currently is that of a UN protected area and is safe haven for hundreds of refugees from some eight surrounding villages. Gorade is also one of the few remaining Muslim enclaves along the Drina river valley. 1612/

1158. In Gorade, there allegedly are four camps for detaining mainly Serb civilians, 1613/ but the evidence only provides names for three of the four detention facilities. BiH Government or Muslim forces reportedly operated the three named facilities. Reports indicate that at least 480 Serbs were detained in these camps. However, the report from the ICRC's visit to Gorade on 2 August 1993 states that the Government of BiH held 24 prisoners. 1614/ Additionally, previous Red Cross reports from 6 May 1993 and 22 June 1993 indicate that the BiH Government held 29 prisoners in Gorade. 1615/

1159. Caves de Ville: (The existence of this detention facility has not been corroborated by multiple sources.) Muslim forces allegedly operated a prison for Serbs at Caves de Ville in Gorade. 1616/ No additional information was provided regarding the location, operation or conditions at this facility.

1160. Šašići Village: (The existence of this detention facility has not been corroborated by multiple sources.) Reports indicate that BiH Government forces detained as many as 100 Serbs in the village of Šašići. 1617/ No additional information was provided regarding the location, operation or conditions at this facility.

1161. Vitkovići: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by multiple sources however none among them are neutral.) Reports indicate that BiH Government forces detained as many as 380 Serbs in the village of Vitkovići. 1618/ One report also alleges that Serbs detained at Vitkovići were tortured. 1619/ Additionally, between 3 and 5 May 1992, Muslim "Green Berets" from Gorade, a former waiter among them, reportedly killed several Serbs from Vitkovići. 1620/ The report also alleges that Serbian women were raped and Serbian children were killed. 1621/

30. Gornji Vakuf

1162. Gornji Vakuf is located in west-central BiH. The pre-war population of the city and province of Gornji Vakuf was about 25,130. Approximately 56.1 per cent Muslim, 42.6 per cent Croat, and 1.3 per cent others. 1622/

1163. On 17 May 1993, UNPROFOR reported that the continued detention of 45 Muslim prisoners in Gornji Vakuf illustrated the direct control of HVO military police within brigades by the OZ commander. Apparently the MP commander refused to obey the orders of the brigade commander in Gornji Vakuf. He only took orders from the OZ Commander. 1623/

1164. After intervention by UN and ECMM teams, the above-mentioned 45 Muslim prisoners were reportedly released. 1624/

1165. The ECMM actively monitored the situation in relation to prisoners of war in Gornji Vakuf. On 26 July 1993, BiH forces reported to an ECMM team that it held 300 to 500 POWs from Bugojno. 1625/

1166. On 10 September 1993, an ECMM team reported that after clashes between BiH troops and HVO troops, there were about 500 POWs and at that time more than 300 had been released. The Croats however claimed that there were more than 300 POWs still being held by BiH authorities at the time. ECMM personnel expected more POWs to be released within seven days. 1626/

1167. On 10 September 1993, the "Civil Police" reported to an ECMM team that 70 Muslim POWs were being held in Trnovača. It seems that the same "civil police" admitted that they let Croat POWs dig trenches. 1627/

1168. On 16 September 1993, the ECMM reported that BiH forces continued to use POWs to build earth works on the front lines. In fact, on 15 September 1993, one HVO prisoner was wounded while digging trenches at BiH positions near Gornji Vakuf. He was evacuated to the hospital in Bugojno. 1628/

1169. Private House: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely the ICRC.) ICRC representatives reported the existence of a detention facility in a private home in Gornji Vakuf. Their first visit to this facility was reported to have been on 12 March 1994. No additional details were made available regarding the operation, control nor conditions of this facility. 1629/

1170. Military Prison: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely the ICRC.) ICRC representatives reported the existence of a detention facility in a private home in Gornji Vakuf. Their first visit to this facility was reported to have been on 29 March 1994. No additional details were made available regarding the operation, control, nor conditions of this facility. 1630/

1171. On 22 March 1994, the ICRC announced that BiH forces handed over six Croat captives at a camp in Gornji Vakuf. 1631/

31. Gradačac

1172. The municipality of Gradačac is located in northern Bosnia and bordered by Modriča to the west, Bosanski Šamac to the north, Brčko to the east and Srebrenik to the south. According to the 1991 Yugoslavian census, Gradač had a population of 56,378; of that 60.2 per cent were Muslim, 19.8 per cent were Serb, 15.1 per cent were Croat and the remaining 4.9 per cent were described as "other".

1173. Srnice Sports Hall: (The existence of this detention facility has not been corroborated by multiple sources.) Srnice was the only Serbian village in the vicinity of Gradačac. After the HVO forces surrounded the village, most of the Serb inhabitants were evacuated. Approximately 94 Serbs remained. These individuals were taken to the Sports Hall. They remained there for a few days. 1632/

1174. Gradačac Prison: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely the ICRC.) A number of Serbs were arrested in July 1992 and held in the prison in Gradačac. The detainees were never charged with an offence. 1633/

1175. They were released only to labour for the Croats, for example, agriculture, wood-cutting, and digging trenches. If the detainees refuse to work they were sent back to the prison. 1634/

1176. According to one report, ICRC representatives visited a detention facility established at a prison in Gradačac on 17 July 1993. No additional information was made available regarding the conditions or the length of the facility's existence. 1635/

1177. House Arrest: (The existence of this type of detention has not been corroborated by multiple sources.) Different groups of Serbian detainees were held in homes. At first, the detainees were held in the homes under guard. Later, the detainees were placed without a guard but with certain families that kept watch over them. 1636/

1178. Gornja Tramošnjica School: (The existence of this detention facility has not been corroborated by multiple sources.) Area Serbians were arrested and detained in a school building in Gornja Tramošnjica. The detainees were forced to work in the fields. 1637/

32. Grude

1179. The municipality of Grude is located in south-western BiH, on the Croatian border. It bounds Posušje to the north and Ljubuški to the south. Grude's prewar population was 15,976, of which 99.8 per cent were Croats, .1 per cent were Serbs, and the remaining .1 per cent were described as "others".

1180. Farm: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely the UK Defence Debriefing Team.) According to reports, a farm in Grude was used as a camp to detain male and female individuals from the region. 1638/

1181. No additional information regarding this facility was made available, consequently, the identity of witnesses, victims and perpetrators as well as conditions existing during detention remain unknown.

1182. Garage: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by multiple sources, including the ICRC.) The Commission has received reports that approximately 300 Serbs were detained in a garage in Grude. 1639/ The camp was operated by members of the Croatian-Muslim armed forces. 1640/ The ICRC visited the Grude camp on 16 September 1993 and reported that no POWs were found. 1641/

1183. At least one Serbian man, Aleksa Janjić 1642/, reportedly died as a result of injuries incurred while detained at this camp.

33. Han Pijesak

1184. Han Pijesak is located north-east of Sarajevo. According to 1991 census data, the population was 6,346. At that time, the population was reportedly 58.3 per cent Serb, 40.1 per cent Muslim, and 1.6 per cent were described as "other". 1643/

1185. Unidentified Detention Facility: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely the UK Defence Debriefing Team.) Reportedly, there was a detention facility in Han Pijesak where men were killed and women and young children raped. It has been previously reported that many people are also buried there. 1644/ The reports, however, did not provide information regarding the operation, control nor the length of the facility's existence.

34. Jablanica

1186. This county is in the south-west quarter of BiH, south-west of Sarajevo. According to the 1991 Yugoslav census, Jablanica had a population of 12,664, of which 72.1 per cent were Muslims, 17.8 per cent were Croats, 6.1 per cent were described as "other", and 4 per cent were Serbs.

1187. As a result of Muslim military aggression, the HVO or Croatian forces lost a great deal of territory. 1645/ Reportedly, after 14 April 1993, telephone lines were cut and the Croats of Jablanica were not permitted to work. 1646/ They were reportedly assigned to "work brigades" and used as forced labour to cut wood and dig trenches. 1647/

1188. Museum of the Revolution: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by multiple sources, including the Defence Debriefing Team.) According to sources, 800 Croats reportedly were, and may still be, interned in this Muslim-run detention centre. 1648/ All the prisoners slept on concrete floors, without blankets, were insufficiently clothed and were reportedly kept in appalling hygienic conditions. 1649/

1189. According to another report, as of 28 June 1993, some 200 Croatian civilians have been imprisoned in the museum. 1650/ The new detainees are, reportedly, in addition to the 500 civilians already said to have been detained here by members of the BiH Army. 1651/

1190. One report was offered by an employee of the power plant in Grabavica who was detained in the area for several days. The witness was transported to this location in the afternoon of 11 May 1993. 1652/ The witness was interrogated and reportedly not physically mistreated. By 9:00 p.m. that evening, he was allowed to leave. 1653/ Reportedly, because he was unable to return to his home, he remained overnight in the prison. Throughout the night, he heard others being beaten. It was his opinion that the individuals being beaten were members of the HVO. He recalled that the people administering the beatings were from Sandak. 1654/

1191. According to one source, 500 Croats have reportedly been interned at Jablanica since March 1993. 1655/ There is strong evidence of a food shortage in the area which brings into question the fate of those detained. There are also reports of the detainees being used as human shields and forced labour. 1656/ One source suggests that Croatian prisoners are made to dig trenches in mine fields in the immediate vicinity of the front lines. 1657/

1192. Jablanica Prison: (The existence of this detention facility has not been corroborated by multiple sources.) There is only one report which refers to a detention facility at this location. 1658/ According to the report, two of four HVO soldiers, who were in Doljani at the time of the Armija attack, were reportedly incarcerated in the Jablanica prison. 1659/

1193. Jablanica Factory: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely the ICRC.) The ICRC reported the existence of a camp in a factory in Jablanica. The ICRC first visited the camp on 21 April 1993. 1660/

1194. House in Doljani: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely Helsinki Watch.) It was reported that during a battle between Muslim and Croatian soldiers in the village of Doljani on 27 July 1993, about five armed and uniformed HVO soldiers, an armed male civilian and five unarmed civilians fled the village. Upon reaching a meadow they were shouted at to lie on the ground and as the group dropped they were shot at from two opposite directions. They were then approached by about 20 Muslim soldiers. The wounded and an HVO soldier were ordered to remain behind 1661/ while the two women and a civilian man were taken to a house by two of the Muslim soldiers, where they were imprisoned on the ground floor. A wounded HVO soldier was already being detained in the house when the three civilians arrived and the four remained incarcerated in the same room. 1662/

1195. Unknown Jablanica Camp(s): (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by multiple sources, including an official UN source.) The Special Rapporteur, Tadeusz Mazowiecki, reported being aware of appalling conditions in a detention camp in Jablanica where many civilians are held. Reportedly, among the detainees are a number suffering from psychiatric illness. There is no specific location given and no details are provided. 1663/ Several other reports also refer to the existence of a camp in Jablanica. 1664/

35. Jajce

1196. Jajce is located in west-central BiH. The pre-war population of the city and province of Jajce was 44,903. Approximately 38.8 per cent Muslim, 35.1 per cent Croat, 19.3 per cent Serb, and 6.8 per cent were described as "others". 1665/

1197. Old Town Fortress: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by multiple sources however none among them are neutral.) There were reports that Muslim forces ran a camp holding about 500 Serbs in the old fortress or Old Town Fortress in Jajce. 1666/

1198. The ICRC reported a place of detention in Jajce under common Bosnian Croat control as of 1 October 1992. 1667/

1199. On 11 August 1993, the President of the LRC Jajce met with an ECMM team in Livno and asked for assistance in relation to a group of Croats probably being held prisoner by Serbs, who occupied Jajce, in the Berta Kučar School in Jajce. 1668/

36. Kakanj

1200. This county is located in central BiH, north-west of Sarajevo. According to the 1991 Yugoslav census, the county had a population of 55,847. Muslims constituted 54.5 per cent of the population, Croats were 29.8 per cent, Serbs were 8.8 per cent, and the remaining 6.9 per cent were described as "other".

1201. House in Kakanj: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by multiple sources however none among them are neutral.) A number of sources refer to an incident involving a young woman from Kakanj who was detained for almost a month in her grandmother's home by two Muslim soldiers. The soldiers reportedly raped her on a daily basis, eventually impregnating her. 1669/

1202. Power Plant in Katići-Termoelektrana: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely the ECMM.) According to one report, more than 500 Croatian men are being detained at this location just outside of Kakanj. The report suggested that the location was being monitored by UNPROFOR, but that the detainees were not permitted to leave the facility. 1670/

1203. Kakanj Factory: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely the ICRC.) The ICRC reported the existence of a camp in a factory in Kakanj. The ICRC first visited this camp on 28 September 1993. 1671/

37. Kalesija

1204. The county of Kalesija is located in north-eastern BiH. According to the 1991 census, the population was 41,795, of which 79.5 per cent were Muslim, 18.3 per cent were Serb, and 2.2 per cent were described as "other". 1672/

1205. Caparde "Bordello": (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by multiple sources, including Amnesty International.) It is reported that 40 young Muslim women from the town of Brezovo Polje were held and systematically raped in a makeshift bordello in a furniture warehouse in Caparde following the capture of the town by Serb forces in early summer 1992. 1673/ On 17 June 1992 1674/, about 1,000 women, children and old people were taken away from the village by Serbian forces, arriving in the town of Caparde several days later. 1675/ At Caparde, the older women were separated from the younger women (15-25) 1676/. The younger women were then held for several nights in a furniture warehouse and repeatedly raped before rejoining the older women and later being released. 1677/

1206. Warehouse, Gornje Vukovinje: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely an official UN source.) A woman 1678/ was beaten and raped in her home on 18 May 1992 by two Muslim men. 1679/ She was then taken to Gornje Vukovinje where she was detained for seven days, without toilet or washing facilities and without bedding. 1680/ She was questioned about having a radio station in her house to contact the Serbian Army and was threatened but was not mistreated. 1681/ There is no indication that there were others held here.

1207. Osmaci Village Camp: 1682/ (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by multiple sources however none among them are neutral.) A camp is reported to exist or have existed in Osmaci Village in Kalesija. 1683/ No additional information was provided regarding operation, control nor the duration of the facility's existence.

1208. Camp at Unknown Location in Kalesija: (The existence of this detention facility has not been corroborated by multiple sources.) A Muslim woman 1684/ from Zvornik reported being taken by Serbs on Sunday, 31 May 1685/ with about 150 women and children in two buses in the direction of Tuzla. 1686/ The woman and two others were sent to Tuzla and Kalesija while other women and children were kept to be exchanged for captured Serbs. 1687/

1209. Camp at Unknown Location in Kalesija: 1688/ (The existence of this detention facility has not been corroborated by multiple sources.) It is reported that between 17 and 19 June, "extremists" bussed non-Serbian civilians in 12 buses from Brčko to Bijeljina. These people were allegedly tortured for several days at Majevisa, and then some of them returned to Bijeljina, while some were taken to Caparde in Kalesija county, where after two days of torture, they were released and managed to flee to Kladanj and Tuzla. 1689/

38. Kalinovik

1210. The municipality of Kalinovik is located in south-eastern BiH and is bordered by the municipalities of Trnovo, Foča, Gacko, Nevesinje and Konjic. According to the 1991 census, the population of Kalinovik was 4,657. The ethnic majority in the municipality were Serbs at 60.6 per cent, Muslims comprised 37.1 per cent, and Croats 2.3 per cent.

1211. Kalinovik Elementary School: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by multiple sources however none among them are neutral.) It was reported that a concentration camp was located in the city village of Kalinovik. The Serbian controlled camp reportedly held 60 civilian prisoners. The prisoners were men and women of all ages. 1690/

1212. A refugee from the town of Gacko reported that 1,000 Bosnian Muslims fled Gacko when Serbian soldiers entered Kalinovik and began destroying Muslim homes. 1691/ The refugees stayed at an unidentified location on Zelengora Mountain until "Četniks" began shelling the area on 1 July 1992. Some of the refugees were killed immediately and others were reportedly pushed down the "Previla Cliff" by Serbian soldiers. One hundred eighty-seven of the refugees were captured by the soldiers and taken to the Kalinovik Elementary School. 1692/

1213. All prisoners were allegedly physically and psychologically mistreated by the Serbian soldiers. 1693/ One former prisoner reported that he and his family were imprisoned in the school without food for one month. 1694/ before being transferred from the school to a Muslim house in the town of Foča where he was held for three days. 1695/ One former prisoner stated that women of all ages were raped in front of their relatives, and many disappeared. 1696/ On 1 August 1992, 12 young women age 12-19 were taken from the school and were never seen again. 1697/ Another former prisoner reported that young girls were subjected to severe torture at the camp and many were repeatedly raped. 1698/

1214. Two Serbian perpetrators were identified in the report. The first was identified as Pero Elez, and the second was also identified in the source materials. 1699/ This report identified a Montenegrin perpetrator who wore a camouflage uniform. 1700/ A Bosnian Muslim female from Gacko, arrested in a nearby village, along with her family, by Serbian forces at the end of June 1992, was reportedly held at the school for one month. 1701/ She reported that two armed Montenegrins dressed in camouflage uniforms came to the school at the end of July. 1702/ The witness identified one of the men by both his name and his nickname. 1703/ The second man was identified only by his nickname. 1704/ The witness stated that she and her family were taken to a house in the town of Miljevina in the municipality of Foča by the two men. 1705/

1215. Yet another report refers to a concentration camp located in a school in Kalinovik. 1706/ A Bosnian Muslim family from Jeleč was reportedly taken prisoner by "Četniks" from Miljevina. The family was detained in the police station for two hours and then taken by truck to Foča. 1707/ They were imprisoned in "Partizan Hall" in Foča for 10 days and then loaded into trucks with several other families and brought to the Kalinovik School. The former prisoner's wife and daughter were allegedly raped at the Kalinovik School. 1708/

1216. According to a female victim from the village of Berač, she and her family attempted to escape the aggression in the area by going in the direction of Konjic. 1709/ They were allegedly arrested by the Serbian army and detained for a few days in Ulog, just outside of Konjic, after which, they were taken to and detained at this school in Kalinovik for a month. 1710/

1217. The witness reported that she and others received very little food over the course of the month. The witness was reportedly then taken by two Montenegrins to a private home in Foča where she was raped repeatedly. 1711/

1218. Barutni Magazin: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by multiple sources however none among them are neutral.) The Commission has received one report of a concentration camp located in Jelašačko Polje where 150 civilians were held at the a gunpowder store called "Baratni Magazin". 1712/ One witness reported that on 2 August 1992, four prisoners were taken out of the camp. The report stated that their bodies were discovered 10 days later in the town of Rugoj. 1713/ The report stated that the bodies had been mutilated and the hands of the victims were tied together. It is unclear from the report who found the bodies. The bodies were reportedly buried in the village of Dujmovići. 1714/ On 5 August 1992, 14 prisoners disappeared from the camp and never returned. 1715/

1219. On 5 August 1992, 23 prisoners were taken from the camp to the village of Ratine to a stable owned by Mustafa Tuzlak where they were shot by soldiers. 1716/ A witness who survived the killings stated that the victims were brought in to the stable, doused in gasoline and set on fire. 1717/

1220. Camp Kalinovik: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by multiple sources however none among them are neutral.) The Commission received one brief report concerning the location of a Serbian run camp in the village of Kalinovik where Muslim women were allegedly subjected to rape and torture. Local "Četniks" and members of local Serbian paramilitary reportedly controlled the camp. The female Muslim prisoners were from the municipality of Kalinovik, and from Nevesinje, Gacko, Podrinje and the Drina River valley region. 1718/ According to the report, a former 12 year old female prisoner from the village of Jeleč near Foča stated on video tape that she had been raped by Serbian soldiers on nine occasions, and on each occasion she was raped multiple times. 1719/

1221. The Serbian soldiers released male prisoners from the camp and detained 50 female prisoners. 1720/

1222. Kalinovik Powder Plant: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely the BBC.) The Commission of Experts has received one report of a concentration camp located at the Kalinovik Powder Plant where 10 Muslim prisoners were held. 1721/ The report mentions two "local Četniks" responsible for taking male and female prisoners from the camp.

1223. Kalinovik Hotel: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely The Independent). The only hotel in Kalinovik was used as a rape camp for Muslim women being held at the Kalinovik camp. Various reports use the names "Kalinovik camp" the Kalinovik Elementary School," the "Kalinovik School" and the "school gymnasium" interchangeably so that it appears that all refer to the same camp. The witness was among Muslim refugees from the town of Gacko and other towns in the area who fled to the Zelengora Mountains after Serbian forces began arresting and murdering Muslim inhabitants. 1722/ The Serbs captured 105 Muslim women and transported them in open trucks to Kalinovik where they were imprisoned in the gymnasium. 1723/

1224. The reporting witness stated that initially the women were not mistreated by the Serbian guards. However, in early August those guards were replaced by Šešelj's "White Eagles" paramilitary forces. 1724/ The witness described the men as "filthy" and stated that they shouted obscenities at the female prisoners. 1725/ A woman with long brown hair who identified herself as a member of the "White Eagles" ordered the female prisoners to examine their babies to see if they had been circumcised. 1726/

1225. On 2 August 1992 the reporting witness and 11 other young women being detained in the Kalinovik Elementary School with 100 young Muslim women were taken by Serbian militiamen from the camp to the only hotel in Kalinovik where they were subjected to systematic rape. 1727/ The women were allegedly chosen based upon their child bearing potential and those who were already pregnant were left alone. 1728/ The witness reported that she was raped by two "Četniks" who told her she would be killed if she did not comply with their demands. She stated that she was repeatedly raped by Serbian soldiers for one month. 1729/

1226. A former prisoner who escaped being raped by convincing the Serbian militiamen that she was pregnant reported that the Serbs came to the gymnasium each night and took several young women by force to the hotel to be raped. Many of the women were in their early teens, and the militiamen selected certain girls repeatedly. 1730/ The witness identified three of the militiamen responsible for the rapes. The first, who she described as the worst of the three men, was named Pero Elez from Miljevina. 1731/ The second was also identified. 1732/ The women held at the gymnasium were released on 28 August 1992 for Serbian prisoners in Croatian hands. 1733/ At least 15 of the women who became pregnant as a result of being raped by the militiamen obtained abortions in Mostar and Jablanica. 1734/

1227. During the day, the women were forced to clean the hotel, after which they were returned to the camp. Rapes began on 2 August 1992 and by 28 August. All but 10 of the 105 female Muslim prisoners held at the Kalinovik camp had allegedly been gang-raped by Serbian soldiers. 1735/ The women identified the perpetrators as Serbian members of Vojislav Šešelj's "White Eagles" paramilitary group. 1736/ Several of the victims stated that Serbian militiamen placed four and five year old children on a table with knives held to their throats to persuade the mothers to relinquish jewelry and money. 1737/

39. Kiseljak

1228. The county of Kiseljak is located in central BiH. According to the 1991 census, the pre-war population of Kiseljak was 24,081. At the time, the population was 51.7 per cent Croatian, 40.9 per cent Muslim, and 7.4 per cent were referred to as "other". 1738/

1229. Kiseljak Prison: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely the ICRC.) It was reported that ICRC has been denied access to the prison in Kiseljak. 1739/ The ICRC provided a list of camps visited including a camp in a prison which was first visited on 28 February 1994. 1740/

1230. Barracks, Kiseljak: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely the ICRC.) According to one report, ICRC representatives visited a detention facility established in a barracks on 25 April 1993. The report was silent as to the identity of both the detainees and the controlling party as well as the conditions at the facility. 1741/

1231. Hospital, Kiseljak: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely the ICRC.) According to one report, ICRC representatives visited a detention facility established in a hospital on 20 July 1993. The report was silent as to the identity of both the detainees and the controlling party as well as the conditions at the facility. 1742/

1232. Duhri Camp: (The existence of this detention facility has not been corroborated by multiple sources.) It is reported that all males are detained by the HVO in the Muslim village of Duhri near Kiseljak. They were taken to a municipal building in Kiseljak on 7 July 1743/ where they are forced to dig ditches at night. 1744/

1233. Concrete Hangar: (The existence of this detention facility has not been corroborated by multiple sources.) The Deputy Commander of 3 Corps in BiH, Ramiz Dugalić, reported a camp holding 150 Muslims in a concrete hangar in the HVO barracks in Kiseljak. 1745/

1234. Unknown Camp in Kiseljak: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely the ICRC.) Five people are reported to be detained by Croatian forces in an unidentified camp in the area of Kiseljak. 1746/

1235. On 10 June 1993, an "Agreement among the parties to halt the conflict in Bosnia-Herzegovina" was signed. Article II concerned the release of prisoners/detainees and displaced persons. A Joint Humanitarian Commission (JHC) was established on 14 June. The JHC agreed to release all prisoners and displaced persons step by step, and it was agreed that BiH should start to release all prisoners from the prison in the Zenica area, presuming that HVO would release all prisoners from Kiseljak, Busovača, and Vitez. 1747/

1236. Town Jail, Kiseljak: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely the ECMM.) It was reported that on 20 June 1993, a total of 66 prisoners were released from the town jail. 1748/

1237. It was reported that on 23 June 1993, a convoy of 19 buses was observed crossing from Serb-held territory to Kiseljak. It is felt that the most likely explanation is that they were prisoners being released in the latest example of BSA/HVO liaison. 1749/

40. Kladanj

1238. The municipality of Kladanj is located in eastern Bosnia. The pre-war population of Kladanj was 16,028. Muslims comprised the majority of the population at 73.3 per cent, Serbs comprised 23.9 per cent, and 2.8 per cent were listed as "other".

1239. The Commission received a report that stated that 95 Serbian civilians and one child were imprisoned since May 1992 in the village of Stupari, eight kilometres north of the town of Kladanj. 1750/ The report quoted the Mayor of Kladanj, stating that the prisoners were being held "for their own security, to protect them from retaliation by the Muslim population." 1751/ A team from the ECMM reported that they visited the three buildings in the town of Stupari where the prisoners were held. 1752/

1240. According to the report, the prisoner's homes had been burned by Muslim forces. The prisoners were guarded by five armed soldiers who allowed them to go outside for one hour a day. The prisoners sometimes were not given anything to eat for three days. The prisoners reported that guards were frequently violent toward them and that no medical care was provided. The ICRC reported that the prisoners appeared to be "psychologically worn out and very weak". 1753/

1241. Stupari Elementary School: (The existence of this detention facility has not been corroborated by multiple sources.) In early August 1992, Serbian prisoners who had been exchanged in Malinjak, reported that approximately 1,000 Serbs from the villages of Lupoglava, Matijevići, Majdan, and Kočajevići were detained in the Stupari Elementary School. 1754/ Conditions in the camp were reportedly very poor. According to the report, an identified physician forcibly took blood from the Serbian prisoners for wounded Muslims and Croats. 1755/

41. Ključ

1242. Ključ is a province in north-west BiH. According to the 1991 census, it had a total population of 37,233, of whom 49.5 per cent were Serbian, 47.6 per cent Muslim, and 2.9 per cent were described as "other".

1243. There are reports of four Serb-run camps in the region: the sports hall at Ključ, the Jedinstvo School in Tomina, Jezerce, and the Sanica Elementary School. Many of the prisoners from these camps were ultimately sent on to the Manjača Camp in Banja Luka. Others were sent to Sanski Most and Stara Gradiška, Croatia. 1756/

1244. There is also one report of a camp controlled by the BiH government in Ključ, but no precise information about where it is located or who it holds. 1757/

1245. Sports Hall at Ključ: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by multiple sources, including the Defence Debriefing Team.) The sports hall located in the centre of Ključ was established by Serbian forces. The prisoners kept there are Muslim villagers from the region who were arrested upon the siege of their villages. In particular, there are reports that men, women and children from Velagići and Vukovska Brda were taken to the sports hall in May and June 1992. 1758/ It appears that the camp was first founded somewhere near this time. 1759/

1246. These reports describe the sports hall as a sort of "collecting centre" where prisoners were interrogated and stripped of their valuables before being sent off to another camp. 1760/ Apparently, men between the ages of 16 and 60 were to be taken to Manjača. 1761/ The ex-prisoners of the reports here describe being detained for only one or two days before they were sent somewhere else.

1247. One report describes the shelling of the village of Velagići and the arrest of its inhabitants on 27 May 1992. 1762/ At this time, many women and children escaped by foot to the nearby village of Pastajre. Those that remained were arrested and taken to the sports hall at Ključ. Approximately 70 men and a number of women, children and the elderly were captured. According to the witness, the men were interrogated at the sports hall during the evening of 28 May and the morning of 29 May. They were asked about the locations of weapons and positions of Croatian and Muslim special forces. During these interrogations, they received harsh beatings with wooden and rubber sticks. They were also beaten and kicked by a group of civilians and soldiers who lined the corridor leading to the interrogation room. 1763/

1248. The Serbs in charge of the camp are not named, but it is reported that the local Serbs responsible for the attack of Velagići itself were assigned to the Sixth Krajina Brigade based two kilometres north of Velagici along the Sanica River. 1764/

1249. In this case, the male prisoners were transferred to the prison at Stara Gradiška in Croatia after interrogation. 1765/ In the late afternoon of 28 May 1992, about 400 of them were put on three buses and left for the camp. The women and children remained at the sports hall for another two days and were then released. 1766/ Apparently, those that remained at the camp were forced to work in the fields. 1767/ The exact character of their duties is not explained.

1250. A second report about the camp at the Ključ sports hall comes from a man who was arrested on 26 June 1992. 1768/ He was arrested with 14 other men and brought to the sports hall. There, he and the others were interrogated and beaten. Three men died as a result of these beatings.

1251. The witness does not mention precisely who ran the camp but claims that the men who arrested him were either members of the Serbian police or army. 1769/ They wore camouflage or olive uniforms and were accompanied by men in civilian clothes with beards.

1252. After one day at the sports hall, the witness was transferred with 120 other prisoners to the Manjača Camp in Banja Luka. 1770/

1253. Jedinstvo School: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely the US Department of State.) The Jedinstvo School is in Tomina. Tomina is in between Sanica Donja and Sanski Most in the Ključ province. Apparently, this school held Muslims who had been defending the towns of Tomina, Vrhpolje, and Hrustovo, yet it is also described mentioned in some detail in a report about the Muslim prisoners of Sanica Donja. 1771/

1254. Apparently, the 6th Krajina Brigade of the JNA started shelling the village of Sanica Donja on 29 May 1992. The Muslim villagers successfully defended themselves for about a month, but were ultimately defeated in late June. They were arrested and taken to Jezerce. 1772/ From there, they were sent on to Sanski Most by truck. En route, they stopped at the Jedinstvo School. Here, the driver of the truck talked to a camp guard and told him that he was bringing more prisoners. The guard told him that they should be taken to Sanski Most.

1255. Before continuing on their journey, the prisoners waited outside the camp. During this time, they witnessed the decapitation of nearly 100 prisoners in front of the school. Male prisoners were brought out of the school three at a time. They were walked over to three soldiers who laid them down and cut their heads off with a curved knife about 30 centimetres in length. Four men in civilian clothes, presumably prisoners, then loaded the heads onto one truck and put the decapitated corpses onto another. 1773/

1256. The prisoners in the truck described Jedinstvo School as a three-story building with all of the windows covered over or opaqued. Two livestock transport trucks were parked on the square at the time that they were there. 1774/

1257. Jezerce: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely the US Department of State.) Jezerce is a village near Sanica Donja. Villagers of Sanica Donja were initially detained at Jezerce upon their arrest in late June 1992. They were accounted for by name and loaded onto a truck heading for Sanski Most. 1775/ They stopped en route at Jedinstvo School as described above.

1258. Sanica Elementary School: (The existence of this detention facility has not been corroborated by multiple sources.) There is also a report of a camp at the Sanica Elementary School. 1776/ From the report, it appears that the school is somewhere in the Ključ region, but there is no indication of its exact whereabouts. Apparently, villagers from Batonjići, Crnolići, and Gornji Budelj were held there. The witness explains that sometime near the end of June 1992, every man from the village of Gornja Sanica was arrested by "Serbian soldiers" and taken to Sanica Elementary School. There, they were held for two nights. During this time, they were not given any food and were beaten and tortured. Then, he and 250 other men held at the school were transferred to Manjača. 1777/

42. Konjic

1259. The county of Konjic is located the central part of BiH. According to the 1991 Yugoslav census, the population of Konjic was 43,636. Of that number, 54.5 per cent were Muslim, 26 per cent were Croatian, 15.2 per cent were Serbs and the remaining 4.3 per cent described themselves as "other". While the Serbs comprised a minority of the total population in the district, they made up the majority in the following villages: Bjelovčina, Blace, Borci, Bradina, Cerići

Čičevo, Dolovi, Donje Selo, Dubravice, Jezero, Kula, Sitnik and Zagorice. 1778/

1260. By Bosnian Serb historical accounts, several aggressive measures have been taken since the second World War to discourage Serbian presence in the area. 1779/ On 30 October 1990, the desecration of the Serbian Orthodox Church in Konjic marked the beginning of what Serbs believed to be renewed attempts to reduce Serbian presence even further. 1780/

1261. Reportedly, on 19 April 1992, joint Bosnian Croat-Bosnian Muslim forces attacked the JNA military facilities at Čelebići. 1781/ The grossly outnumbered Bosnian Serb forces were rendered powerless and compelled to retreat. Serbian soldiers were then arrested, paving the way for full Croat-Muslim occupation of Čelebići and, from there, of the greater Konjic municipality. 1782/

1262. According to Bosnian Croat chronicles, in early 1992, Serbs began shelling Konjic from the villages above the region. 1783/ As the battles with Serbs developed, Croats organized themselves, forming the HVO, and shortly thereafter Muslims organized into the BiH Army. 1784/ The HVO and BiH forces positioned themselves in the hills above the villages of Konjic and, by joint effort, successfully resisted Serb occupation. 1785/

1263. Regardless of which historical position is adopted, by March 1993, the political rampart constructed by Croat and Muslim forces had begun to crumble, and on 14 April 1993, fighting broke out between Muslim and Croatian forces in Klis. 1786/ The Muslims, assisted by Mujahedin, were a formidable force in the region, and Croatian villages came under siege and eventually under Muslim occupation. 1787/

1264. By 16 April, BiH forces attacked Croatian HVO positions in Konjic, resulting in the overthrow of Croatian forces and the complete Muslim occupation of Konjic. 1788/

1265. In the following accounts, the first 16 camp descriptions detail those locations cooperatively controlled by Croatian and Muslim forces. The subsequent 11 accounts describe facilities controlled solely by Muslims, and the two remaining locations fall under undetermined authority. There are also several reports that allege the existence of a camp or camps in Konjic without supplying enough detail to determine the exact location or by whom they were controlled. 1789/

1266. Čelebići Camp: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by multiple sources, including the ICRC and the Thomson Mission.) In May 1992, following the withdrawal of the JNA from its barracks in the village of Čelebići, Croatian-Muslim forces assumed control of the barracks and transformed them into a detention centre for Serbian prisoners. 1790/

1267. Immediately after its creation on 4 May 1992 and continuing through to the suspension of operations in December 1992, camp Čelebići interned several hundred citizens from the municipality of Konjic. 1791/ The number of detainees changed regularly.

1268. Men and women were separated, with men interned in several locations including a concrete tunnel called hangar Number 9, a sheet metal hangar called Number 6, a depot called Number 22 and, on occasion, in concrete manholes believed to be oil storage sites. 1792/ Women were imprisoned either in an administrative building, located at the camp entrance, or in a shaft excavated in the ground next to the tunnel at hangar Number 9. 1793/

1269. The detainees were brought to Čelebići from all corners of Konjic. 1794/ On 22 May 1992, Croatian and Muslim forces allegedly attacked the Serb villages of Bjelovina, Ceriⁿⁱ, and Donje Selo. Reportedly all surviving members of the Serb population in these villages were taken to camp Čelebiⁿⁱ. 1795/ In another report, members of the "TO B-H" invaded the village of Brdjani on 15 June 1992 and ordered all the men to surrender. Forty-eight Serbian prisoners were put on trucks and taken to Čelebiⁿⁱ. Some 200 individuals from Bradina were already in residence when they arrived. 1796/

1270. In another report, a Serbian resident from the village of Bradina recalled that he and some 50 other men were instructed by Croatian and Muslim forces to report to headquarters in Podorašac. Upon arrival, the witness and others were loaded onto a tarpaulin-covered truck and transported to Čelebiⁿⁱ concentration camp. 1797/

1271. According to several reports the conditions at the camp were deplorable. Hangar Number 9, which was an abandoned atomic shelter/ventilation tunnel, measured approximately 120 centimetres in width, 30 metres in length and 2.5 metres in height. Air entered through a small glass window in the door, and there was absolutely no illumination. Reportedly, because of the construction of the tunnel, it was impossible for an individual to stand upright. 1798/

1272. The 50 or so detainees in the tunnel defecated in a bucket that was emptied infrequently. Human waste accumulated up to 10 centimetres at one end of the tunnel. The detainees were not permitted to wash during the first 20 days of their internment, and for the first three days they were not provided with food. 1799/

1273. According to one inmate, throughout the first one and a half months of detention, the inmates were fed small pieces of stale bread and some vegetables three times daily. In the two months that followed, they were fed only bread. 1800/ He recalled that the men had no choice but to perform all bodily functions in one corner inside the hangar. Muslim soldiers often placed the prisoners food in the same locations and often times dropped the plates, spoons, or bread into the excrement. 1801/

1274. The several reports detailing the initial acts of mistreatment suffered by the inmates at the hands of their captors appear to be in agreement. Upon arrival at Čelebiⁿⁱ, Muslim soldiers were lined up at the entrance in two rows. 1802/ The detainees were made to pass between the rows of soldiers with their hands clasped behind their necks. As the inmates passed, the soldiers beat them with blunt objects, iron bars, shovels, pickaxes, thick electric cables, and rubber truncheons. 1803/

1275. The prisoners were then placed in manholes for several hours at a time. 1804/ These manholes were formerly oil storage reservoirs. The lids were replaced on the manholes serving to cut off the flow of air. As a consequence, men collapsed from suffocation. 1805/

1276. For those inmates assigned to hangar Number 9, once removed from the manholes they were subjected to additional beatings at the entrance to hangar Number 9. In one report, the guards beat 25 inmates with shovels so severely that 12 shovels were broken in the process. 1806/ After a period of time spent in Number 9, the inmates were then transferred to Number 6. 1807/ In some cases, due to the space limitations in hangar Number 9, some detainees were sent directly to Number 6.

1277. For those assigned to hangar Number 6, the guards came and collected all the valuables from the inmates. 1808/ The inmates were then taken in groups of 10 to a nearby building called "the Command"--which was so-called because the JNA command had previously been located there. 1809/ Once inside the Command, the prisoners were ordered to stand on tip-toe facing the wall with their hands

raised high above their heads. Muslim soldiers then conducted interrogations regarding alleged "etnik" activity, strategy and weapons locations. 1810/

1278. Following the initial, somewhat routine abuses, the specific acts of mistreatment appear from the reports, to some degree, to be haphazard. The variation on the methods of mistreatment included beatings with batons, wooden clubs, truncheons, chains, iron rods; imprisonment in drainage shafts; scorching and cutting by hot knives pressed to the inmates' faces, bodies and chests; spraying with gunpowder and setting alight; binding male genitals with low-burning fuses, the breaking of ribs, arms and legs; and the cutting off of ears and fingers. 1811/ Some inmates report being detained in manholes filled with water for 24 hour periods. Occasionally, using their feet, the Muslim guards forced the inmates under water and held them there to near suffocation. 1812/

1279. The inmates detained in the sheet metal hangar, Number 6, noted that in August 1992, when the day's heat was at its worst, the doors and windows of their containment facility remained closed. Temperatures reportedly reached 50 degrees Celsius or 148 degrees Fahrenheit. 1813/

1280. In another report, two male detainees had their trouser-legs--below the knee--doused with a flammable liquid and then ignited. As the men's legs began to burn their Muslim captors reportedly forced them to sit down and forbade them to extinguish the flames. 1814/

1281. Reports also suggest that all imprisoned women were systematically raped. Women were usually raped by more than one guard. 1815/ Serbian women were reportedly housed in or near the Command building and ushered to the appropriate locations when required. 1816/ Male prisoners were also sexually molested by forcing them into same-sex anal intercourse or oral sex. 1817/

1282. The entire Čelebići facility was initially controlled by Croatian forces and manned by Muslim guards. Due to shifting political winds, Muslim forces later assumed control. However, before this change, Croatian, "Š", was the commander of the camp, and "□" 1818/, a Muslim, was his deputy. A number of reports suggest that "□" was directly responsible for the mistreatment, torture and murder of a great many of the inmates. 1819/ Prisoners were abused or killed on the orders of deputy commander "□". "□" ordered prisoners to fight each other. If "□" did not feel satisfied that the blows were severe enough, he ordered the guards to beat both prisoners. 1820/

1283. Reportedly, prisoners were forbidden to sleep. "□" selected one prisoner to keep the others awake. If "□" found anyone asleep the prisoner in charge was severely punished. 1821/

1284. In another report, a female prisoner at Čelebići alleged being raped by "□". She alleged that she was beaten and kicked during several interrogations regarding the whereabouts of her son and husband. 1822/

1285. Additionally, the witness alleged that she was stripped naked by young men who held knives to her throat and held lit cigarettes to her eyelashes, burning her eyelids when she screamed. 1823/ She was subjected to multiple rapes by a variety of men, many of whom she was unable to recognize because of the dark night. She alleged that she was taken to an office where the rapes lasted from three to four hours at a time. 1824/

1286. The witness stated that she was detained in a room near hangar Number 9. 1825/ She recalled that some 39 men were held there, and she witnessed the men being beaten, kicked and tortured. She recalled that the tunnel was poorly lit and poorly ventilated. She stated further that she witnessed "□" kill one of the inmates. 1826/ It was her understanding that "□" raped every woman brought into the prison. 1827/ She alleged that some 120 women were raped by "□". 1828/ Women were reportedly set aside solely for his pleasure. 1829/

1287. Several reports note that although "□" was notorious for his cruel actions, a young guard called "š" 1830/ was worse. 1831/ He was said to have participated in all the murders and a great many of the rapes in the camp.

1288. "š" reportedly beat prisoners with baseball bats and made them kneel while he beat them about their breasts and stomachs. 1832/

1289. "š" is noted for wrapping slow-burning fuses around the legs or waist of inmates, putting another end between the inmate's legs or in his pants and then lighting the fuse. 1833/ The burning fuse which was wrapped in plastic, clung to the victim's body as it melted. The victim's family was usually forced to watch this torture. 1834/

1290. Another inmate was made to wear a gas mask with the air filter sealed so that he was unable to breathe. 1835/ "š" forced him to wear it for an hour while standing in the hot summer heat. Consequently, the victim collapsed several times. 1836/

1291. In still another report, prior to a visit by an Arab TV crew, "š" selected three prisoners to tell about their "crimes" against Muslims. One among them was ordered to say that he had killed Muslims and Croats in Mostar and burned down their homes. 1837/ When the man refused, "š" beat him with a soldier's belt until he bled. 1838/ "š" reportedly doused the prisoners with gas and gunpowder and then set them alight, causing severe burns and wounds. 1839/

1292. In another incident, "š" subjected two young brothers to severe mistreatment. He reportedly deformed their faces, then put gas masks over their heads and closed the air filters. 1840/ Thereafter, he compelled the brothers to engage in oral sex with one another and also to strike each other about the genitals. 1841/

1293. In one report a detainee from Čelebići witnessed "□" and "š" beat 15 or 16 Serbs to death. 1842/ Another witness reported that the two ordered inmates to run away. When the inmates complied and attempted to escape, they were beaten. If an inmate continued running after receiving the beating, he was killed. 1843/

1294. Čelebići camp was temporarily closed in December 1992 and was re-opened on 20 April 1993, with a smaller number of Serbs in detention at the camp and a greater number of Croats imprisoned as a result of the collapse of the Croat-Muslim coalition and the ensuing conflicts that arose between the two groups throughout BiH. 1844/

1295. Several other reports corroborate the existence of the camp at Čelebići. 1845/

1296. Members of the Thomson Mission visited this facility on 3 September 1992. Mission members identified 109 Serb individuals detained in the oil storage area of this Muslim-controlled facility. The majority of the detainees were reportedly from the villages of Bradina and Donje Selo. The report goes on to state that "neutral sources report executions in Konjic, and a wooden wall at the entrance with extensive bullet holes suggests a sinister purpose." 1846/

1297. Police Station: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by multiple sources, including ICRC.) According to one report, an elderly Bosnian Serb farmer was arrested on 9 May 1992, in his village of Idbar, near Konjic. He was taken to the police station in Konjic where he was detained for 21 days. Thereafter, he was removed to the camp at Čelebići, some six kilometres away. 1847/ No additional information was available regarding his treatment, the facility nor its operation or control.

1298. The ICRC reported the existence of the camp in the Police Station in Konjic. The camp was first visited by the ICRC on 4 November 1992. 1848/

1299. Ministry of Internal Affairs (MUP) building: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by multiple sources however none among them are neutral.) Although all relevant reports agree that this facility was controlled by Muslim forces, there is considerable disagreement regarding the inmate composition. According to one report, all arrested Bosnian Serb civilians from Konjic and Bradina were taken to this location and later transferred to the camp at Čelebići. 1849/ Another source suggests that only in some cases were detainees brought to this facility, beaten, and then transferred to designated detention facilities. 1850/ Another report suggests that only women, children, and the elderly were interned at this location. 1851/

1300. Village of Donje Selo: (The existence of this detention facility has not been corroborated by multiple sources.) Reports suggest that on 22 June 1992, Croat and Muslim authorities transformed the village into a prison camp for Bosnian Serbs. 1852/ Guards were set up around the periphery of the village to discourage Serb detainees from leaving the area. 1853/ The reports suggest that although men were resident prisoners at this location, women and children were either interned in greater numbers or abused in greater numbers. 1854/ While no specific numbers were made available, the vast majority of the documented accounts of atrocities have been offered by or concern women and children. These sources suggest that women were raped on a daily basis. 1855/

1301. One report from a male detainee at Donje Selo reveals that men were subjected to considerably less abuse and mistreatment than women. 1856/ Each night the Muslim soldiers arrived in groups and barged into the homes containing women, raping all the women and girls. 1857/ According to the witness, during the day the guards did nothing more than walk around "monitoring" the situation. Quite frequently ex-camp inmates were re-arrested and sent back to one of the camps in Konjic without warning or provocation. 1858/ Prisoner swapping of some Donje Selo inmates occasionally took place in the village of Trnovo. 1859/ Other reports also alleged the existence of a detention facility in the village of Donje Selo. 1860/

1302. Devetka Tunnel in Bradina: (The existence of this detention facility as well as the number of alleged individuals hereby detained has been corroborated by multiple sources, including Helsinki Watch.) Bradina was reportedly the largest Serbian village in the Konjic area with 750 inhabitants. Following the taking of this village on 25 May 1992 by Croat-Muslim forces, the village was renamed Donji Repovci and a great many of the Serbs were expelled. Many of the Serbs who steadfastly remained were reportedly either killed by paramilitary forces or interned in various detention camps. 1861/

1303. One of the largest Serb inhabited detention facilities in the Konjic area was located at the Devetka Tunnel. According to reports, some 3,000 Serbs were detained at this location. 1862/ The Serbs were reportedly lined up against the wall, made to remove their clothing, and then tortured and beaten for several hours at a time. 1863/ The detainees were reportedly forced to participate in Muslim prayer and song and to learn the Koran. Those who refused were beaten and in some cases killed. 1864/ Although no dates were provided, several reports suggest that the facility was eventually closed and the prisoners were released. 1865/ Another report also alleges the existence of this camp. 1866/

1304. Musala ("Sportska sala") sports centre: 1867/ (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely the Thomson Mission.) According to several reports, Bosnian Serb and Bosnian Croat prisoners were detained at this facility. Reports suggest that as few as 110 and as many as 170 Serbs were detained at the sports hall beginning in May 1992. 1868/

1305. On 15 June 1992, 13 Serbs were reportedly killed and 12 wounded when Muslim forces from the hills above Prevalj shelled the sports hall. 1869/ The attack on these prisoners was reportedly wilful. 1870/

1306. By May 1993, following the eruption of fighting between Muslims and Croats, the total number of Bosnian Croats detained in the sports hall reached 400. 1871/ Bosnian Croat prisoners detained here were organized into forced labour groups. One such group was reportedly made to dig trenches for the BiH Army across from HVO lines south of Konjic. 1872/ Other Croatian detainees were made to serve as human shields and still others were forced at gunpoint to serve as blood donors. One report suggests that over the course of two days, some 50 detainees were forced by Muslim medical personnel to serve as blood donors. 1873/

1307. Sources suggest that conditions at the sports hall were insufferable. The prisoners were poorly fed, some even went without food for weeks at a time. 1874/ When they were fed, one report suggests that half the meal of one Muslim guard was used to feed as many as eight inmates. 1875/ There were no beds. The prisoners were made to sleep on carpets that originally belonged to the gym. 1876/

1308. There are also reported incidents of rape at the facility. One report states that on the night of 27 May 1992, Muslim soldiers raped five young women. 1877/ According to one report on the night of 29 May 1992, 10 girls and women imprisoned in the camp were raped. In other report, on 31 August 1992, a Serb man and woman were forced to engage in sexual intercourse while as many as 15 prison guards looked on. 1878/ In still another report, a 25 year-old woman was brought to the camp and raped repeatedly by some 15 Muslims. Her captors apparently then led her, naked, up and down the camp, drew "lilies" on her breasts and stomach with a lit cigar, chopped off her hair, disfigured her and then forced another male inmate to rape her and shove a rifle barrel into her vagina. 1879/

1309. Of the 400 Croats detained, 50 were reportedly exchanged in June 1993, 50 more were exchanged in August 1993 and the remaining 300 were exchanged in Jablanica on 19 October 1993. 1880/

1310. Thomson Mission members also visited this detention facility on 3 September 1992. According to their report, some 167 Serb individuals were detained in the gymnasium. Most were reportedly from the surrounding villages. The conditions of hygiene appeared to be normal. 1881/

1311. "Zvonimir Beliša Nono" Elementary School, Bradina: (The existence of this detention facility has not been corroborated by multiple sources.) The detention facility at this location primarily housed women, children and the elderly. Several reports allege that female Serbian inmates were regularly subjected to rape. 1882/ One report states that on 13 July 1992, 15 women were raped by Muslim Green Berets. 1883/ Reports also state that Muslim and Croatian forces subjected inmates to "severe mistreatment" and threats of death. 1884/

1312. Brothels: (The existence of this type of detention has been corroborated by multiple sources however none among them are neutral.) Reports suggest that Croat and Muslim-run brothels have been established throughout Konjic. Reports allege the existence of a brothel in Buturović Polje 1885/ and another at the "Amadeus" Cafe. 1886/ Serbian women reportedly were forcibly brought to and detained in these facilities. The women are impregnated and held captive until the fifth month of their pregnancy and then not permitted to leave the area. One report suggests that "members of Muslim and Croatian units who have contracted AIDS and other communicable diseases are deliberately sent to brothels to sexually abuse Serbian women" and young girls. 1887/

1313. House in Depa: (The existence of this detention facility has not been corroborated by multiple sources.) According to one report, a house in the village of Depa in the municipality of Konjic, was turned into a rape camp operated by Muslim Green Berets. Women were reportedly tortured at this facility and forcibly impregnated. 1888/

1314. Unidentified facility, Ljuta: (The existence of this detention facility has not been corroborated by multiple sources.) Following the attack on the Serb village of Bradina on 25 May 1992 by Muslim forces, a great many Serb citizens were captured. 1889/ One Serbian male reported that he was taken to Ljuta and that some 50-100 uniformed men came to interrogate him and those detained with him. 1890/ According to the witness, two or three of the detainees were pushed to the ground and beaten. 1891/ Thereafter their Muslim captors screamed verbal abuses and insults at them. Next their hands were tied behind their backs with wire and they were made to walk four to five hours to Trnovo. 1892/ Each prisoner reportedly had one guard, with the remaining 50 to 100 men following. Upon arriving at Bjelašnica mountain, they were put into two trucks and driven to the Muslim village of Šabići. 1893/

1315. School in Šabići: (The existence of this detention facility has not been corroborated by multiple sources.) According to one report Serb civilians were detained in a school in Šabići. The report alleges that the Serbian inmates were insulted and humiliated by the Muslim guards. From there, they were transferred to Hotel Famos in Bjelas. 1894/

1316. Konjic Detention Centre: (The existence of this detention facility has not been corroborated by multiple sources.) According to one report, several prisoners were transferred to this facility on 31 August 1992 from camp Čelebići. The detainees identified Hebibović Ismet, called "Bročeta", as the camp commander. The report states that "Bročeta" was commonly regarded and described as "good". None of the inmates spoke of the conditions at this location. The inmates were released from this facility on 23 December 1992. 1895/

1317. Hotel "Famos": (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by multiple sources however none among them are neutral.) According to reports, civilian prisoners from Bradina were transported to the hotel located in Bjelas 1896/. They were beaten and interrogated in a room in the basement of the hotel by both uniformed and civilian Muslims and Croats. 1897/ The detainees were forced to admit that they were "Četniks", "registered" and then forced to walk through a path with approximately 20 men on either side. 1898/ As the detainees passed, the men beat them with rifle butts. The detainees were then placed on trucks with their hands tied behind their backs and transported to Čelebići. They were reportedly interned at this location from June through 31 August 1992. 1899/

1318. According to another report, upon the arrival of Serb detainees at the hotel, they were made to lie on the floor in a line and beaten and kicked with the soldiers' heavy boots and pistol butts. Some detainees had guns shoved into their mouths and had their lives threatened. 1900/

1319. Following the beatings, they were taken to some sort of dark concrete cellar, where they were beaten by Muslim and Croat guards. 1901/ When they lost consciousness they were revived and beaten again. The next day, the prisoners' hands were again bound, they were blindfolded, and loaded onto trucks. 1902/ As they boarded the trucks, they received beatings with shovels, blunt objects, iron pipes, or anything that their captors could find. They were then transported to Tarčin. 1903/

1320. Buturović Polje Prison: 1904/ (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by multiple sources however none among them are neutral.) Serb civilians were reportedly detained by Croat-Muslim forces at this location. 1905/ The report does not, however, provide additional information regarding either the conditions or the operation of the facility. Other reports alleged the existence of a detention facility in the village of Buturović Polje. 1906/

1321. Technical High School in Konjic: (The existence of this detention facility has not been corroborated by multiple sources.) According to one report, Serbian civilians were detained in the gymnasium of the high school. The facility was reportedly controlled by Croat-Muslim forces. 1907/ The report does not provide additional information regarding either the conditions or the operation of the facility.

1322. Hrasnica: (The existence of this detention facility has not been corroborated by multiple sources.) Reports of the existence of a Muslim run camp in this village were not supplemented by information regarding the specific location or duration of existence. The camp was reportedly composed of Serbian prisoners. 1908/

1323. Konjic Hospital: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely the ICRC.) One report cites the existence of a Muslim-controlled facility at this location as of 11 April 1992. 1909/ However, no additional information was made available regarding conditions or operations at this facility. This detention facility is also alleged to exist in another ICRC report. The ICRC first visited this place of detention on 4 November 1992. 1910/

1324. Konjic Military Police: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely the ICRC.) One report cites the existence of a Muslim-controlled facility at this location as of 11 April 1992. 1911/ However, no additional information was made available regarding conditions or operations at this facility.

1325. Gornje Višnjevice: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely the ECMM.) According to reports this village is situated just outside of Konjic. One report alleges that some 192 Croats were or are currently detained at this location. 1912/ No additional information was available regarding the operation or control of the detention facility in this village.

1326. Nevizdraci Prison: 1913/ (The existence of this detention facility has not been corroborated by multiple sources.) According to one report, civilians from several Croatian villages including Crni Vrh, Donja Vratna Gora, Gornja Vratna Gora, Doštica, Homatlije, Solakova Kula, Lukšije, Donji Prijelog, Gornji Prijelog and Bušak have been imprisoned at this location. 1914/ Members of the BiH Army were said to be responsible for the operation and control of this facility. 1915/

1327. Parsovići Prison: 1916/ (The existence of this detention facility has not been corroborated by multiple sources.) According to one report, civilians from several Croatian villages including Crni Vrh, Donja Vratna Gora, Gornja Vratna Gora, Doštica, Homatlije, Solakova Kula, Lukšije, Donji Prijelog, Gornji Prijelog and Bušak have been imprisoned at this location. 1917/ The identity of the detainees at this prison is unclear, however one report suggests that primarily women and children were interned at this location. 1918/ Members of the BiH Army were said to be responsible for the operation and control of this facility. 1919/

1328. Salko Sultić's House: (The existence of this detention facility has not been corroborated by multiple sources.) Following the attack on the village of Trusina, members of the BiH Army detained civilians at the home of Salko Sultić. Army members forced inmates to carry the bodies of dead Croats and threatened detainees with harm for non-compliance. 1920/

1329. Building in Homolj: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely the US Department of State.) On 11 April 1993, approximately 200 men, women, and children from the village of Ovčari attempted to reach the three remaining Croat-controlled villages by crossing the Neretva River at Donje Selo when they were detained by members of the BiH Army. 1921/ Thirty men from among the refugees together with 40 Croats from another group were taken to Homolj, just north of Konjic. 1922/ When the group reached a location just outside of Homolj, 10 prisoners were segregated from the ranks, beaten and shot. 1923/ Those remaining continued on to Homolj and were housed for the evening in the basement of one of the buildings. 1924/ No information was provided regarding the exact location of the building. The following day, the prisoners were removed from the basement and taken to Podorošac where they were later transported to Tarčin. 1925/

1330. Unfinished House in Homolje: (The existence of this detention facility has not been corroborated by multiple sources.) Muslim forces 1926/ reportedly invaded the village of Donje Selo and forced citizens to emigrate to the village of Homolj. The more than 200 Croatian civilians were forced to carry the soldiers weapons and walk to the village of Homolj. 1927/ Once there, the report states that the men were placed in an unfinished house and subjected to severe physical mistreatment. Shortly thereafter, the men were transferred to the village of Podorosac. 1928/

1331. House in Trusina: (The existence of this detention facility has not been corroborated by multiple sources.) Following an infantry attack, reportedly launched by the BiH Army in the Croatian village of Trusina, Muslim forces detained 28 Croatian civilians in Vida Drljo's home and forced the detainees to carry ammunition and the bodies of the wounded to a nearby hill. The detainees were reportedly fired upon while they performed their required tasks. 1929/

1332. Turija Camp: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely ECMM.) According to one report, following the Muslim occupation of the municipality of Konjic, some Croats were expelled from the city and placed in a detention facility in the village of Turija. 1930/ No information regarding exact location, operation or the demographics of the inmates was provided by the report.

1333. Zabrdje i Zaslavlje Camp: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely ECMM.) According to one report, following the Muslim occupation of the municipality of Konjic, some Croats were expelled from the city and placed in a detention facility in the village of Zabrdje i Zaslavlje. 1931/ No information regarding exact location, operation or the demographics of the inmates was provided by the report.

1334. Boračko Jezero: (The existence of this detention facility has not been corroborated by multiple sources.) One report alleges the existence of a detention facility at this location. No information regarding operation, duration, prisoner composition, or control was made available. 1932/ Other reports also alleged the existence of a camp at this location. 1933/

1335. New Residential Suburb, Konjic: (The existence of this detention facility has not been corroborated by multiple sources.) Reports alleged the existence of a detention facility in the new residential suburb of Konjic holding approximately 1,500 Serbs. 1934/

43. Kotor Varoš

1336. According to the 1991 Yugoslav census, the population of the county of Kotor Varoš was 36,670. 1935/ Of that number, 11,161 were Muslims, 13,966 were Serbs, 10,640 were Croats, and 883 were of other nationalities. 1936/ Between April 1992 and July 1992, some 3,000 citizens, or 8.2 per cent of the population were displaced. 1937/ The expulsion doubled in the months that passed.

1337. This displacement is most notably the result of the Serb aggression which occurred on 11 June 1992. 1938/ JOS paramilitary groups from Banja Luka and Knin in cooperation with local Serbian paramilitaries layed siege to and occupied the territory of Kotor Varoš. 1939/

1338. Reports suggest that the Muslim village of Hrvaⁿⁱ was completely destroyed by artillery fire; the Croatian villages of Bilice, Veⁿⁱ and Viševice were devastated by toxic and scatter bombs; and the town of Kotorište was destroyed by incendiary grenades. 1940/

1339. One source suggests that on June 11 300-400 corpses were seen laying in the streets. 1941/ Another suggests that over the course of a several days of Serbian occupation, more than 500 people were killed. A large number of dead are reportedly buried in mass graves at Donji Varoš and Vrbanjci. 1942/ According to one of the gravediggers, the estimated minimum number of people buried at one location is 1,000. 1943/

1340. In addition to the wave of bombing and mass killing, the Serbs also established detention facilities throughout the area. With respect to the numbers of individuals interned, and the number of existing detention facilities, the information is unclear.

1341. The reports suggest the establishment of detention facilities at the Kotor Varoš Prison, 1944/ Pilana, 1945/ Maslovare Camp, 1946/ Koza Proletaria Fur Factory, Osnovni Sud Court House, Vrbanja Lumber Factory, the local police station, Bratstvo i jedinstvo primary school, the Kotor Varoš High School, in an open field, at the Borik Hotel, and also at the Kotor Varoš Hospital.

1342. Koza Proletaria Fur Factory: (The existence of this detention facility has not been corroborated by multiple sources.) Between 11 June and 10 October 1992, several Bosnian Muslims were arrested and detained in concentration camps throughout Kotor Varoš. Among them was a Bosnian Muslim who recalled the events of that time.

1343. On 11 June, the witness was captured by 12 Serbian soldiers wearing the insignia of the White Eagles. 1947/ He was taken to the fur factory, interrogated and beaten. The victim recalled that one guard forced a rifle into his mouth, 1948/ and another pulled out two of his teeth with a pair of pliers.

1344. According to the witness, he and the 100 other men, also held captive, were forced to perform sexual acts upon one another. 1949/ He recounted how he had been "sadistically beaten" on several occasions and forced, at gunpoint, to participate in the gang rape and killing of a Muslim woman. 1950/

1345. Osnovni Sud (local courthouse): (The existence of this detention facility has not been corroborated by multiple sources.) The above referenced Bosnian Muslim was transferred from the fur factory to the local courthouse. He was detained at the courthouse for three and a half months. 1951/ He recalled that some 170 other men were similarly detained in conditions which he described as "extremely oppressive". 1952/

1346. The witness and 70 other men were kept in a room which, in the witness' estimation, measured only three metres by four metres. 1953/ Reportedly, the Serbian guards played loud music while prisoners in adjoining rooms were beaten. 1954/

1347. According to the witness, the conditions were deplorable. The inmates were compelled to eat spoiled or moldy food and were not permitted access to toilet facilities. Reportedly, 10 to 15 men experienced diarrhea at any given time. Several suffered from jaundice. 1955/ The witness recalled that he was not allowed to bathe nor was he given a change of clothing for over three months. 1956/

1348. On 10 October, the witness and two other Muslims were exchanged for one Serb in the village of Vešić but not before being subjected to further degradation. 1957/ They were reportedly tied like captured game to the back of a vehicle and dragged through the streets to the hospital; forced to eat grass like animals and to make animal noises; forced to ingest gun-cleaning fluid; and were subjected to the extinguishing of cigarettes in their skin. 1958/

1349. Vrbanja Lumber Factory: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by multiple sources, including the US Mission.) According to a factory worker from a small village between Banja Luka and Doboje, Serbian forces rounded up the residents of her Muslim village, separated the men from the women and children and then killed the men. 1959/

1350. The women and girls, 60 in all, were taken to the lumber factory in Kotor Varoš where they were subjected to gang rape. 1960/ The witness noted that Serb irregulars came to their containment area at night and, by match light, selected women to be taken, and then led them away at knife point. 1961/

1351. According to the witness she was taken to a room where she was raped by two men, released briefly and then taken to another room with a cement floor where the raping continued for several hours. 1962/ The witness estimated that some 20 other women were similarly abused that evening. 1963/

1352. The following day the entire group of 60 women were expelled into the forest. 1964/ They then made their way to Travnik. The witness suffered permanent internal damage as a result of her abuse. 1965/

1353. In a similar report, a Bosnian Muslim from a nearby village recalled that on 13 August 1992, her community, was taken over by Serbian forces. The women and children, who numbered 60, were segregated from the men and transported to the Kotor Varoš lumber factory in a large tarpaulin covered truck. 1966/ She believed it to be the Vrbanja factory. The witness recalled that the women and children were forced into the factory's cafeteria. A similar sized group from another village arrived a short time later, and the two groups were consolidated and moved to an unfinished hall. 1967/

1354. After dark, the guards began selecting women and removing them from the hall. The women selected ranged in age from 16 to 35.

"Some women were taken to an alcove or room off the large hall where she and the others were being held. Though she could not see what was happening, she said the cries and screams of women were clearly audible, as was the laughter of the guards." 1968/

1355. At one point the witness was taken away and raped by five or six guards. When she was finally returned to the hall, bleeding, she noticed that some 15-20 women were in a similar physical state. 1969/

1356. On another occasion, the witness was taken to the second floor offices of the factory where she was raped by 10 men. She recalled that some of the men were wearing camouflage suits, some were in the local police uniform, and some wore special forces uniforms. She also recognized a high school classmate among the rapists. 1970/

1357. In the evenings, the witness noticed a steady stream of uniformed men coming into the factory. These men went to the alcove or, she believes, into the factory offices. The men were clad in uniforms that differed from those worn by the factory guards. 1971/

1358. The witness and the others detained with her were transferred from Kotor Varoš on the afternoon of 14 August. Two buses transported them to Mount Vlašić from where they were forced to find their way to Travnik. 1972/

1359. The Local Police Station: (The existence of this detention facility has not been corroborated by multiple sources.) According to one report, a Croatian man and his wife were arrested and taken naked to the police station. While there, the man was beaten and the other prisoners were forced to rape his wife. The two were released two days later. 1973/

1360. Bratstvo i jedinstvo Primary School: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by multiple sources however none among them are neutral.) At least 100 men from the Kotor Varoš region were rounded up at the Bratstvo i jedinstvo School. 1974/ According to one report, at some point following the outbreak of violence in the region, all the non-Serbian men were taken to the primary school. 1975/ According to a Croatian witness, the prisoners were reportedly beaten so severely that one young man, known as Peđa, died as a result of these beatings. 1976/

1361. Kotor Varoš Secondary School Centre: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by multiple sources however none among them are neutral.) Several reports refer to the existence of a concentration camp facility at the secondary school. 1977/ One report suggests that just after its creation, the facility was immediately saturated with prisoners. This camp was characterized as one of the three transit camps in Kotor Varoš. 1978/

1362. Open Field: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely Helsinki Watch.) According to foreign relief workers and press reports, Serbian Red Cross officials exercised dominion over an internment facility in an open field somewhere in Kotor Varoš. 1979/ The construct of the facility was essentially 6,500 Muslim civilians held within the confines of a barbed wire fence. 1980/

1363. Reports suggest that the facility was formed in mid-October 1992 as a containment area for Muslims awaiting evacuation by international agencies. 1981/ Serbian authorities claim that the camp was an "open reception centre" and that the Muslim civilians came of their own free will in search of an "easy route" to Western Europe. 1982/ When questioned by journalists about why they had left their homes in and around Prijedor, many of the civilians of the camp stated that their villages had been burned down. They made gestures which suggested that they were encouraged by the guns that were pointed at their heads and knives which were put to their throats. 1983/

1364. Sixteen busloads of women and children left the make-shift facility for the town of Travnik. 1984/ Reportedly 60 men on the buses were taken away by armed Serbian guards to an unknown destination. 1985/

1365. Hotel Borik: (The existence of this detention facility has not been corroborated by multiple sources.) It was not unusual to find make-shift brothels or rape camps set up in hotels throughout BiH. 1986/ In one report, a 17 year old girl was taken to the Hotel Borik by special duty soldiers. She was detained there over night and returned the next day in "terrible physical and mental condition." 1987/

1366. Kotor Varoš Hospital: (The existence of this detention facility has not been corroborated by multiple sources.) Two reports refer to the existence of an internment facility at the local hospital. 1988/ One report's findings of peculiar activities occurring at the hospital were supported by the fact that the Muslims and Croatians who were admitted to the hospital rarely came out alive. 1989/ Furthermore, that non-Serbians tended to fall from third and fourth floor windows by, what was always characterized as an, accident. 1990/

44. Kreševo

1367. The county of Kreševo is located in central Bosnia. According to the 1991 census, the pre-war population was 6,699. At that time, 70.7 per cent of the population was Croatian, 22.8 per cent was Muslim and 6.5 per cent was referred to as "other". 1991/

1368. Unidentified Factory: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely the ICRC.) According to one report, three detention facilities were identified in the Kreševo community. One detention centre was reportedly located in a factory and was said to contain Muslim civilians. Some of the inhabitants of this facility were displaced persons who were in the region when the fighting broke out. 1992/ The ICRC reported visiting this facility on 22 September 1993. No information was provided regarding the conditions existing at the site nor the identity of the controlling party. 1993/

1369. Unidentified School: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely the ICRC.) According to one report, three detention facilities were identified in the Kreševo community. One detention centre was reportedly established in a local school and was said to contain Muslim civilians. Some of the inhabitants of this facility were displaced persons who were in the region when the fighting broke out. 1994/ The ICRC reported visiting this facility on 22 September 1993. No information was provided regarding the conditions existing at the site nor the identity of the controlling party. 1995/

1370. Unidentified Prison: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely the ICRC.) According to one report, three detention facilities were identified in the Kreševo community. One detention centre was reportedly located in a local prison and was said to contain Muslim civilians. Some of the inhabitants of this facility were displaced persons who were in the region when the fighting broke out. 1996/ The ICRC reported visiting this facility on 8 January 1994. No information was provided regarding the conditions existing at the site nor the identity of the controlling party. 1997/

45. Kupres

1371. The county of Kupres is located in western BiH. According to the 1991 census, the pre-war population Kupres was 9,663. At that time, the population was 50.7 per cent Serbian, 39.6 per cent Croatian, 8.4 per cent Muslim, and 1.3 per cent were referred to as "other". 1998/

1372. Unknown Camp in Kupres: (The existence of this detention facility has not been corroborated by multiple sources.) A rumour was reported on 22 December 1992, that 529 people from Manjača are held in camps in three different places including one in Kupres. There is no other information provided concerning this camp. 1999/

46. Laktaši

1373. This county is located in north-central BiH. It is bordered to the west by Bosanska Gradiška and to the east by the municipality of Srbac. According to the 1991 Yugoslav census, the population of this county was 29,910, the majority of which were ethnically characterized as Serbs.

1374. High School: (The existence of this detention facility has not been corroborated by multiple sources.) Very little information is available regarding possible camps in this county located in northern BiH. The one available report refers to the existence of a detention centre which was established at the high school centre. The information suggests only that the centre has been implicated in reports of sexual abuse. 2000/

1375. Unknown Rape Camp: (The existence of this detention facility has not been corroborated by multiple sources.) One report cites the existence of a rape/death camp for girls and women up to the age of 25 in Laktaši. 2001/ According to the report, the rape camps were set up as part of an organized system of liquidation or "ethnic cleansing" of Muslims and Croats. 2002/ The report is, silent as to the current status of the camp as well as the operation and control of the facility.

47. Lištica

1376. Lištica, now known as Široki Brijeg, is located in southern BiH and had a reported 1991 population of 26,437. According to the 1991 census 99.2 per cent of the population was Croat. 2003/

1377. Lištica Camp: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely the UK Debriefing Team.) Reports were received which indicated that a camp was established in Lištica, approximately 20 kilometres west of Mostar. Apparently one of three jails in the town was run by Muslim militia and the HOS. 2004/

48. Livno

1378. This county is located in the central-western part of BiH, bordered on the west and south-west by Croatia. Information from the 1991 Yugoslav census suggests that out of a total population of 39,526, 72 per cent of the residents were Croatian, 15 per cent were Muslim, 9.6 per cent were Serbs, and the remaining 3.4 per cent described themselves as "other".

1379. Reports regarding this municipality suggest that there were at least three main detention sites in the area: one at a brothel, another at the police station, and the third at the local school. According to sources, the brothel is said to have been controlled by Alija's warriors--a Muslim paramilitary group--and peopled with Serbian women and children.

1380. The report regarding the location at the police station suggests that Croatian forces controlled the site, but is silent as to the ethnicity of the detainees. The report regarding the school facility is silent as to the ethnicity of the controlling group but notes that it was peopled with Serb males.

1381. Another report declares that 200-300 Muslims were or are being held by Croatians at an unstated location. Still another report states that over 500 Serbs were or are detained and mistreated at an unstated location controlled by Croatian paramilitary units.

1382. Large Luxurious House in Livno: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by multiple sources however none among them are neutral.) In April 1992, a Bosnian Serb woman was taken from her home to a home in Livno by members of Alija's Warriors. 2005/ According to the witness she was the exclusive servant of one soldier, who happened to be her former classmate. 2006/

1383. The witness noted that there were several other women detained at this location. They ranged in age from 18 to 40 and all were Serbian except one, who was Ruthenian. According to the report, very young girls were raped by seven or eight Muslim soldiers at one time. 2007/

1384. The witness was transferred with her former classmate when he was assigned to new locations. Each time the Muslim front moved, she moved. According to her statement, she was finally sent to a brothel in the Ciglane area where she was again reserved solely for her former classmate's purposes. 2008/

1385. Police Station: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by multiple sources, including the ICRC.) According to one report, Croatian paramilitary forces were in control in the Livno area in April. The forces allegedly forbade Serbian citizens to leave the area. 2009/ Several citizens were reportedly detained at the police station in three rooms which were overcrowded and lacked heat as well as other basic necessities. The report states that official sources acquired evidence that the detainees at this location were being beaten. 2010/ The ICRC also reports the existence of a camp in the Livno Police Station. The camp was first visited by the ICRC on 16 May 1992. 2011/

1386. Evidence of this camp's existence was also corroborated by members of the Thomson Mission who visited this location on 1 September 1992. Mission members found 40 Serbian detainees in this Croatian controlled facility. The detainees had an average age of 55 and most had been detained at this facility for several months. Mission members saw signs of beatings and abuse. 2012/

1387. Livno School: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by multiple sources, including the ICRC.) According to one report, this location was the site of the military interrogation centre. 2013/ Some 39 Serbian men and one Serb woman were detained and interrogated here. According to testimony from former detainees at the police station, the conditions at the Livno school were severe. 2014/ The ICRC also reports the existence of a camp in a school in Livno. The camp was first visited by the ICRC on 9 September 1993. 2015/ Another ICRC report also mentions the existence of a camp in the Livno school. 2016/

1388. Unidentified Location: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by multiple sources, including the ECMM.) According to one report, the Imam of Livno claimed that some 200-300 Muslim prisoners were being held by

HVO military police in Livno. 2017/ The military police confirmed that some 100 prisoners were being detained, but did not permit United Nations forces to visit the detainees. The information available suggested that the prisoners were being mistreated by their captors. 2018/ Amnesty International reported a camp in Livno. 2019/ Other reports also allege the existence of a camp in Livno. 2020/

1389. In another report, over 500 Serbs including women, children, and the elderly were being mistreated and tortured by Croatian paramilitary units. 2021/ The report suggests that these paramilitary groups detained the individuals at a camp in Livno and another camp in Tomislavgrad. 2022/ The ICRC reported that on 16, 19, and 21 July ICRC delegates supervised the simultaneous release in elebići and near Tuzla of some 800 persons detained in Batkovići, Kamenica, Livno, Tuzla and elsewhere. 2023/

1390. Livno Village: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely the ICRC.) The ICRC reported the existence of a camp in Livno village that was first visited by the ICRC on 4 September 1992. There are no details concerning this camp. 2024/ Many different reports provide differing numbers of people in detention at various times. These people are said to be "in assigned residence" or under "house arrest". 2025/

1391. Livno Hospital: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely the ICRC.) The ICRC reported the existence of a camp in the Livno Hospital. The camp was first visited by the ICRC on 7 April 1992. 2026/

1392. Livno Prison/Penitentiary: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely the ICRC.) The ICRC reported the existence of a camp in the Livno Prison. The camp was first visited by the ICRC on 8 November 1992. 2027/

1393. Livno Fortress-Old Town: (The existence of this detention facility has not been corroborated by multiple sources.) It was reported that about 950 Serbs were held in a fortress in the old town. 2028/

1394. Livno Brothel: (The existence of this detention facility has not been corroborated by multiple sources.) It was reported that information provided by the 1st Krajina Corps in Banja Luka indicates that a brothel in which Serbian women are held exists in Livno. 2029/

1395. Čelebići Village: 2030/ (The existence of this detention facility has not been corroborated by multiple sources.) According to several reports, an entire village of Serbian males are in detention. The males were reportedly used for prisoner exchanges between the BiH and Serb armies. 2031/

49. Ljubinje

1396. Ljubinje is located in Herzegovina. The pre-war population of the city and county of Ljubinje was 4,162. Approximately 89.9 per cent Serb, 7.9 per cent Muslim, and 2.2 per cent others. 2032/

1397. Unidentified Facility: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely the UK Defence Debriefing Team.) A Serb source reported to the British Defence Debriefing Team that (s)he had heard of a Serbian run camp at Ljubinje where Bosnians were held. A second source may also have made the same report. 2033/

50. Ljubuški

1398. Ljubuški is located in Hezegovina and had a reported 1991 population of 27,182. According to the 1991 census 92.6 per cent of the population was Croat, 5.8 per cent Muslim, and 1.6 per cent other. 2034/

1399. Ljubuški Police Station: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by multiple sources however none among them are neutral.) A camp reportedly exists at Ljubuški, approximately 25 kilometres south of Mostar. It is one of three jails run by Muslim militia and the HOS. 2035/ The detention facility was described in one report as the prison at the Ljubuški police station. 2036/ Conflicting testimony concerning the camp commander were received. Either a man from Mostar 2037/ or a Croat 2038/ was the commander of the jail. It is unclear whether these men were in power at different times or whether one acted as deputy commander to the other. Another source indicated that a man from itluk was the warden of the prison as well as other detention facilities in BiH. 2039/

1400. Apparently there were 12 cells at Ljubuški camp, 2040/ and up to 80 Serbs have been detained there allegedly awaiting trial. 2041/ However, when the ICRC visited the Ljubuški camp on 10 June 1993 only six prisoners remained. 2042/ Before the arrival of the ICRC, the guards dressed the Serbs in JNA uniforms so that it would appear that only soldiers were imprisoned here. 2043/ However, many of the detainees were reportedly civilians. 2044/

1401. Reports were received indicating that the guards did not abuse the inmates and that medical treatment was available for the prisoners. 2045/ However, statements from several witnesses indicated that they were subjected to beatings. 2046/ At least one witness reports that guards would come at night at 10:00 p.m. and 3:00 a.m. and beat the prisoners. 2047/ Another witness claimed that he was beaten five or six times upon his arrival to the detention facility. The guards made the prisoners lie down on top of one another to form a pyramid and beat the prisoner on top so those under him would feel the weight of those above. 2048/

1402. The prisoners were also forced to sing "Ustaše" songs and salute by raising the right hand and shouting "Ready for the homeland". The prisoners were exercised almost every day, allegedly in a humiliating manner such as behaving like animals. They were also forced to write statements that they had taken part in massacres and killings. 2049/ Reportedly inmates were also forced to work. 2050/

1403. The inmates received food in mess kits that went unwashed for months. 2051/

1404. Tobacco Station: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely Amnesty International.) Reports stated that the former tobacco station in Ljubuški was used as a transit camp. A plan revealed by Bosnian Croat leaders indicated that Muslim citizens of BiH were to be shipped to Ljubuški and from there, sent to other countries. Approximately 500 detainees were transported to Croatia from 16 July to 18 July 1993 and additional deportations were expected. 2052/

1405. Ljubuški Prison: (The existence of this detention facility has not been corroborated by multiple sources.) In May 1992, a witness was captured as a JNA soldier, he and other members of the JNA were taken to the prison at Ljubuški and held for three weeks. The witness was beaten while in custody with truncheons and umbrellas. He also claimed that he was kicked and punched. The prisoners allegedly received no food for several days and were forced to kneel for hours in the sweltering heat. They were reportedly beaten every time they left the cell to go to the toilet. 2053/

51. Lopare

1406. The municipality of Lopare is located in north-eastern BiH, bordered by the municipalities of Ugljevik, Zvornik, Kalesija, Tuzla, Srebrenica, Brčko, and Bijeljina. The pre-war population of Lopare was 32,400. 55.5 per cent of the population were Serbian, 37.7 per cent Muslim, 3.9 per cent Croat and 2.9 per cent categorized as "other".

1407. Unidentified Facility: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by multiple sources, including the Chicago Tribune.) According to one source, a concentration camp was located in the municipality of Lopare. 2054/ The report did not provide additional information concerning the camp in this community.

1408. ICRC sources reported that Bosnian Serbs took 100 Muslim men from Bijeljina, and imprisoned them in a labour camp in Lopare. 2055/ However, the report gives no further information.

1409. As late as 5 September 1994 Serbs were reported to have imprisoned Muslim draft-age men from Bijeljina in labour camps in Lopare. 2056/

52. Lukavac

1410. The municipality of Lukavac is located. The pre-war population of Lukavac was 56,830. The majority of the population was Muslim at 66.7 per cent of the population, Serbs comprised 21.6 per cent, Croats comprised 3.8 per cent, and 7.9 per cent were categorized as "other." 2057/

1411. Lukavac-Karanovac: (The existence of this detention facility has not been corroborated by multiple sources.) A detention facility was reported to have existed in Lukavac containing 800 prisoners. 2058/

53. Maglaj

1412. The municipality of Maglaj is located in north-eastern Bosnia and is bordered by Tesanj to the north-west, Gračanica to the north-east, Lukavac to the east and Zavidovići to the south. According to the 1991 Yugoslavian census, the population of Maglaj was 43,294, of which 45.4 per cent were Muslim, 30.7 per cent were Serb, 19.3 per cent were Croat and the remaining 4.6 per cent were described as "other".

1413. Tunnel: (The existence of this detention facility has not been corroborated by multiple sources.) In August 1993, the Bosnian Muslim forces surrendered to HVO in the village of Novi Šeher. Surrounding residents were assembled in front of the Catholic Church in Novi Šeher. From the church, the Muslim residents were transported by HVO trucks to a tunnel near Perkovići. The HVO soldiers separated the men of military age from the other detainees. The HVO instructed the women, children and elderly detainees to walk to Zenica. The male detainees of military age were held in the tunnel. 2059/

1414. Male detainees that were kept in the tunnel were reportedly taken to Teslić and Doboј. 2060/

54. Modriča

1415. The municipality of Modriča is located in northern Bosnia, bordered by Bosanski Brod to the north-west, Odak to the north, Doboј to the south and Gradačac to the east. According to the 1991 Yugoslavian census, the population of Modriča was 35,413; of that, 35.5 per cent were Serb, 29.5 per cent were Muslim, 27.3 per cent were Croat and the remaining 7.7 per cent were described as "other".

1416. Sutjeska Junior High School: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely Amnesty International.) Approximately 100 to 200 Muslim detainees were interned at the Sutjeska Junior High School on Ulica Maksima Gorka in Srpska Varoš. 2061/

1417. The school was composed of prefabricated buildings that were linked by a corridor. 2062/

1418. Men of military age were held in classrooms. Women, children and the elderly were detained in the school sports hall. 2063/

1419. Local Serbians guarded the detainees; however, Serb paramilitaries from Knin came to the camp for interrogations. 2064/ The detainees were questioned about weapons and political activities. Some detainees were beaten during interrogations. 2065/

1420. The school was hit by shell in mid-May, 1992. The detainees were then transferred to the Doboј military barracks camp. 2066/

1421. Modriča Police Station: (The existence of this detention facility has not been corroborated by multiple sources.) Serbs imprisoned 40 predominantly Muslim policemen from Modriča. 2067/ The policemen were detained in the police station basement. These detainees were interrogated, tortured and, reportedly, later shot. 2068/

1422. Metal Processing Plant: (The existence of this detention facility has not been corroborated by multiple sources.) The Metal processing plant in Modriča was converted into a detention camp for approximately 800 Muslims. 2069/

1423. At least some of the detainees were reportedly tortured and killed. 2070/

1424. In late May, 1992, Modriča was retaken briefly by the 102nd Voluntary Brigade who released all the detainees in Modriča. 2071/

1425. Other Modriča Camps: (The existence of these detention facilities have not been corroborated by multiple sources.) Camps that contain Muslim detainees in the surrounding area of Modriča are identified as: Miloševac, Garevac, Pelagićevo, Lončar, Turič, Slatina, Vranjak, Ledenice, Donji abar, Crkvina, and Gornji Skurgič. 2072/

55. Mostar

1426. Mostar is located in western Herzegovina and had a population of 126,067 according to the 1991 census. The population was 34.8 per cent Muslim, 33.8 per cent Croat, 19.0 per cent Serb, 10 per cent Yugoslav, and 2.4 per cent "other". 2073/ The Neretva River flows through the city. Before the war, Mostar was an ethnically mixed city. 2074/ Commencing in early 1993, however, Bosnian Muslims in Mostar were dismissed from their jobs. In May, approximately 10,000 of the Muslims who had arrived from other cities and who were occupying flats vacated by fleeing Serbs were ordered to leave the city. There are now two separate sections--a Croatian section on the left bank of the river controlled by the Bosnian Croat Militia (HVO) and a Muslim section controlled by Muslim troops on the right bank. 2075/ Several camps were established in this region. UN Military Observers were allowed access to the Mostar camps in May, 1993. 2076/

1427. Central Mostar Prison: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by multiple sources, including Helsinki Watch.) HVO forces operated a detention facility in the Central Mostar Prison. The Central Mostar Prison is also the site of a heliodrom. 2077/ After HVO assumed control over HOS forces in western Bosnia, many prisoners held by HOS forces were brought to the Mostar prison. Similarly, most of the prisoners held by HVO forces in smaller jails in the area also were transferred to the Mostar prison at approximately the same time. 2078/ Valentin Ori^ć is the chief of the HVO military police in Mostar. 2079/

1428. In September 1992, approximately 392 prisoners were interned at the Central Mostar Prison. 2080/ The jail detained mostly men but also a few women. 2081/ In October, 1992 between 51 and 54 women were held in the main Mostar prison. Most of these women were between 30 and 40 years of age. 2082/

1429. Approximately 90 per cent of the prisoners were Serbian civilians. 2083/ However, a number of Croats and Muslims accused of military offences also were detained at this jail. 2084/ The prisoners were divided into five categories: Serbian combatants; enemy collaborators; prisoners kept for exchange purposes; civilian criminals accused of having committed crimes other than war crimes; and Croatian soldiers serving time for disciplinary infractions. 2085/

1430. Some reports indicate that the prisoners slept in two large rooms and have access to a living room. 2086/ There were about 30 men in a room. 2087/

1431. The prisoners at this camp reportedly had more freedom than at some of the more notorious Serbian-run camps. They could freely move about and were allowed to go to the toilet. 2088/ The prisoners were allowed to walk outside for 30 minutes each day. 2089/ However, none of the prisoners had any visitors. 2090/ Some women have children and husbands but were not allowed to contact them unless it is through the ICRC. 2091/

1432. Officially, the prisoners were required to work at least eight hours every other day. 2092/ However, some prisoners state that they were forced to work every day from seven in the morning until nightfall, and occasionally at night as well. 2093/ Guards were present while the prisoners work. 2094/ The work assigned includes miscellaneous labour in the villages, in the city, and in the prison itself, cleaning buildings, loading and unloading various materials, and building bunkers at the front lines. 2095/ Three or four women were responsible for cleaning the Mostar jail. The rest of the women were required to do various other tasks. 2096/ Croatian prisoners did not have to work like the other prisoners. 2097/

1433. The prisoners were fed three small meals a day including breakfast which consisted of two slices of bread and tea, coffee or cocoa; lunch, which consisted of two slices of bread and soup or a souplike food; and dinner, which consisted of two slices of bread and about five or six spoonfuls of soup. 2098/

1434. An investigatory judge, a warden, and others oversaw the main Mostar prison. 2099/ There were between 20 and 25 soldiers on duty at the Mostar prison. 2100/ The guards were reportedly not allowed to talk to the prisoners concerning the reason for their imprisonment. Most of the guards had recently returned from the front lines. Anyone with a criminal record reportedly was disqualified from being a prison guard. 2101/ The commanders at the main Mostar prison did not allow the guards to beat the prisoners. However sometimes individual guards on duty violated this rule. 2102/ Several prisoners report that they were beaten while imprisoned at the Central Mostar Prison. 2103/ Reportedly, one or two guards would make the prisoners stand at attention and then would randomly beat them. 2104/

1435. The guards at the Mostar jail reportedly treated the women properly; however, two among them reportedly beat at least one woman while they interrogated her. 2105/ However, it was reported that some of the younger women were forced to perform same-sex sexual acts while the others watched. On one occasion, the women were then tied together and ordered onto a truck which reportedly contained a pile of bloody civilian clothes. They were driven through Mostar and beaten and forced to sing Ustaše songs. 2106/

1436. The military prisoners and the civilian prisoners are guarded by the same men. 2107/ Female guards attended the female prisoners in an area separate from the male prisoners. 2108/

1437. Thomson Mission members inspected this facility on 1 September 1992. According to their report, 75 Serb detainees were held at this Bosnian Croat-controlled facility on that date. Thirty-seven of the inmates were women who were classified as political prisoners. The inmates were reportedly detained under fairly good conditions. 2109/

1438. Former JNA Clinic: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely Helsinki Watch.) HOS paramilitary forces operated a detention facility in a former JNA clinic in Mostar. 2110/ HVO troops subsequently closed the HOS operated detention facility and transferred the prisoners to the central Mostar jail. 2111/

1439. Aluminum Factory and Gymnasium: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by multiple sources, including Reuters.) It was reported that Bosnian Croat forces are holding about 1,300 Muslim men, women and children in a factory and gymnasium outside of Mostar. 2112/ This former aluminum factory is located at the foot of a mountain three miles west of Mostar. 2113/ On one occasion, a group of men, women, and children who had been evicted from their homes and bused out of the city were forced at gunpoint to walk to the camp approximately 2.5 miles away. 2114/ HVO forces admitted that they had bused Muslim civilians out of the city but insist that it was for their own safety. 2115/ The Croat commander of this detention camp said approximately 1,000 of these people are civilians, while 300 are being treated as prisoners of war. 2116/ Indications are strong that the people were being held against their will. 2117/ Nevertheless, the detainees said they were being treated well.

1440. The gymnasium houses women and children on one floor and men on another. The prisoners had mats to sleep on but they lacked blankets. The food was scarce, consisting of bread, milk and some army rations. 2118/

1441. Unidentified Camp: (The existence of this detention facility has not been corroborated by multiple sources.) There are reports that the Croat forces have established at least one detention facility exclusively for the Muslim civilians of Mostar. 2119/ This camp reportedly has more than 2,000 men, women, and children who are detained by armed guards said to be wearing black uniforms (resembling the uniform of the Croat troops that sided with the Nazis during World War II).

1442. Šantičeva Street Jail: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely Helsinki Watch.) There is a report that at one time the HOS operated a prison on Šantičeva Street. This jail previously was used to house common criminals. 2120/

1443. The HOS soldiers reportedly dress in black uniforms with their own insignia. 2121/ It is alleged that during the night guards sometimes beat the prisoners. 2122/ The prisoners were reportedly also mistreated upon arrival at this camp. 2123/ It was reported that the women kept in the Santiceva jail were raped and abused by their HOS captors. 2124/

1444. The prisoners are provided three meals a day but do not receive any meat. 2125/

1445. According to the source, three female detainees remained incarcerated at the jail in Šantićeva Street at the time the report was prepared. 2126/

1446. University: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely Helsinki Watch.) There is at least one account that prisoners were also detained at a university in Mostar. Upon arrival there, they are said to have been beaten. One woman reported that the guards at this facility ordered three male prisoners to rape her. She was almost raped a second time but one of the commanders came in and prevented this. 2127/

1447. District Prison: (The existence of this detention facility has not been corroborated by multiple sources.) According to one source, approximately 300 Serbs were held here in November, 1992. 2128/

1448. Cemetery Building: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely the US Government.) It was reported that the Serbian irregulars operated an interrogation centre in a building that belonged to the cemetery in Sutine, which is several kilometres north of Zalik and adjacent to the Sutine landfill. The building was used as an interrogation and processing centre for Bosnian Muslim and Croatian prisoners. Two rooms in the building were used for interrogation and torture of the prisoners. It was reported that after the prisoners were interrogated they were summarily executed and their bodies were thrown into the landfill. 2129/

1449. Aircraft Factory: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely an official UN source.) It was reported that Croat forces operated a prison for a large number of Muslim and a smaller number of Serbian civilians at a disused aircraft factory south of Mostar town. 2130/ The camp is located one kilometre south of Mostar in the Buna area. The fence surrounding the premises was reinforced and there were bars on the windows. 2131/

1450. In May 1993 outside observers allowed into the camp estimated that between 1,500 and 2,000 men and women were imprisoned here. 2132/ The prisoners for the most part are from Mostar and are Serb civilians. They include university professors, doctors, journalists, and students. However, there also are people from some of the surrounding towns imprisoned here. 2133/

1451. The camp consists of four buildings. 2134/ The prisoners are held in a former military prison and two adjacent gymnasium buildings. 2135/ The women and children are housed separately from the men and no communication between the groups is allowed. 2136/ The women are kept downstairs and the men are kept upstairs. 2137/ The conditions at the camp are poor particularly for the male inmates. Up to 60 people are held in one room usually without mattresses or blankets to sleep on. Some rooms in the men's quarters have insufficient space for the men to sleep fully outstretched. 2138/ There are allegations that some of the detainees are being held underground and tortured. However, no investigation of this has been possible. 2139/

1452. The Croat forces running the camp argue that the women and children are free to leave and were brought to the camp to protect them for the heavy fighting in the city. The Croat forces running the camp have stated that those whose homes have not been destroyed by the fighting will be able to return there when the fighting ceases. The others would be kept at their current location. However, the Croatian neighbours of these inmates were not arrested and the inmates were forcibly removed from their homes and were not allowed to take any possessions with them. 2140/ The inmates reported to the investigators however that they were kept in locked doors and were only allowed outside moments before the investigators arrived. 2141/ The camp is under heavily armed guard and at least some detainees are said to be in fear for their lives. 2142/ The guards wear black uniforms. 2143/ Some of detainees have been removed from the camp and remain to be accounted for. 2144/

1453. Food is reported to be a couple of biscuits and a glass of milk or water per day. 2145/ Basic hygiene necessities such as soap or toilet paper have not been provided. 2146/ The toilet facilities are very small. 2147/

1454. On 12 May 1993 between 1,500 and 2,000 people were held at this camp. 2148/

1455. Mostar-Rodo: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by multiple sources, including Helsinki Watch.) Rodo is located near the heliport in Mostar. 2149/ Conditions at the Rodo camp reportedly were difficult but not life threatening. There are isolated reports of abuse but for the most part the inmates state that they were treated kindly by their captors. The most difficult problems facing the inmates are due to overcrowding, insufficient food, and inadequate hygiene. 2150/

1456. It was reported that as of 14 June 1993, Bosnian Croat authorities were detaining 506 prisoners at this camp. 2151/ In July 1993 as many as 2,000 civilians were housed in two buildings at the Rodo heliport detention facility. 2152/ An additional 400 civilians were scheduled to be transferred to Rodo from Dretelj prison on 10 July 1993. The ICRC registered 1,900 inmates at the Rodo camp in August, 1993. 2153/ Most of the inmates were Muslim men between the ages of 18 and 60 although there also were soldiers and common criminals who are being disciplined at camp. 2154/ In September 1993, the camp commander reported 1,300 inmates including two women who refused to leave. 2155/

1457. The heliport is a three story building. The men were housed in the basement and on the first and second floors. The number of prisoners in each room varied depending on the size of the room. At least in August 1993 the prisoners had bed mattresses to sleep on and also had blankets. 2156/

1458. Prisoners also were housed in a gymnasium. This had two large halls with approximately 250 inmates housed in each hall. The space for each inmate was limited to the area covered by his blanket. There were two shower halls for the entire facility but some showers did not work. There was only one toilet for the entire facility. 2157/

1459. Approximately 1,200 additional prisoners were housed in a four story school building. Three stories of class rooms were used to house 400 people including women and children per story with approximately 15 to 30 people per class room. There were eight toilets functioning on two floors and toilets on the first floor which did not function. There were no showers. 2158/ However, it was reported that in general the sanitary conditions at this camp were sufficient. 2159/

1460. The detainees were given tea and a slice of bread each morning and occasionally macaroni soup in the afternoon. On at least one occasion they were given beans. It was reported that the prisoners were not maltreated with the exception of the lack of food. 2160/

1461. The male prisoners regularly were forced to dig trenches and fill sand bags on the front lines. Reportedly the prisoners receive more food if they volunteered to dig trenches on the front lines and thus many inmates were coerced to these tasks because they are hungry. 2161/

1462. It was reported that HVO forces gave approximately 200 male inmates four hours to decide whether they would leave BiH for a third country. These prisoners were forced to sign papers that stated they were leaving for a third country. They were then given an hour and a half to go to their homes to gather their families and their belongings. The HVO police then took these prisoners and their families to the Croatian border where they were met by Croatian buses and police who escorted them to Gašinci. Several of these prisoners were interviewed in Gašinci. They were in bad physical and mental health. They stated that during their first two days of internment they were not given anything to eat. They were forced to work on the front lines and many stated that although they were not beaten they felt threatened. They agreed to leave Mostar because HVO forces advised them that they could no longer guarantee their safety. They also said that the Mostar Croats were nicer to them than the HVO Croats. 2162/

1463. Mostar-MUP: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely the ICRC.) It was reported that as of 14 June 1993 Bosnian Croat Authorities were detaining one person at this camp. 2163/

1464. Mostar-Left Bank: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely the ICRC.) It was reported that as of 14 June 1993 the Government of BiH held three prisoners at this camp. 2164/

1465. Musala: (The existence of this detention facility has not been corroborated by multiple sources.) It was reported that as of September 1993 60 Croatian civilians were being held in the Musala in Mostar. 2165/

1466. Lipno Detention Facility: (The existence of this detention facility has not been corroborated by multiple sources.) A detention facility was reported to exist in the village of Lipno and at least one individual was detained between 7 May 1992 and 11 May 1992. A retired JNA soldier was arrested in his apartment, location unknown, in May 1992, by a Muslim and taken to Lipno. There he was detained in an old school and beaten by the same man who arrested him and HOS members. He was punched, kicked, and beaten with truncheons and rifle butts. Cigarettes were extinguished on his body, and he was forced to eat plaster from the wall and cigarette butts. His hair was set on fire and he was forced to perform fellatio on one of his guards. 2166/

1467. Former Military Dispensary: (The existence of this detention facility has not been corroborated by multiple sources.) A report stated that a Serb female was detained in the former military dispensary in Mostar between 21 July 1992 and 24 July 1992. She was incarcerated in the basement of the building in a three by 3.5 metre room with five or six other women. On the first night of her detention she was taken for interrogation at 2:00 a.m.. The interrogator cursed her and threatened her with a knife. The next night she was taken to the same interrogator and he asked her if she would be his mistress. She declined and was transferred to the Dretelj detention facility. 2167/

56. Mrkonji Grad

1468. Mrkonji Grad is located in west central BiH. Its neighbours to the west include Titov Drvar and Glamo, and its neighbours to the east are Skender Vakuf and Jajce. According to the 1991 Yugoslav census, the municipality of Mrkonji Grad had a population of 27,379. Of that number 77.3 per cent were Serbs, 12.0 per cent were Muslims, 7.8 per cent were Croats, and the remaining 2.9 per cent were described as "others".

1469. According to reports, a policy of "ethnic cleansing" was effectively instituted in Mrkonji Grad, which the controlling Serbian extremists considered to be their "sports borough". 2168/ The bizarre lightheartedness of the activities carried on this area was exemplified on one occasion by what appeared to be a sort of pep rally like convention of military units held at the local sports stadium. Reportedly, a Serbian commandant and various members of the Serbian government in attendance at the convention promised the soldiers that upon the return of the Serbian troops from the front, all remaining Muslims would be "expelled or liquidated. 2169/ Along with this, they promised war booty in the form of real property of the Muslim citizens of Mrkojnic [sic] Grad". 2170/

1470. "Kula Barracks": (The existence of this detention facility has not been corroborated by multiple sources.) According to one witness, in early June 1992, members of the Serbian paramilitary group Beli orlovi took 11 young men captive. 2171/ They were bound with rope and transported to the "Kula" barracks in Mrkonji Grad. 2172/ The sojourn at the Kula barracks appeared to have been for no other reason than to administer beatings to the men before transporting them to yet another concentration camp. 2173/ No additional information was made available regarding the condition or operation of this facility.

1471. Mlinište: (The existence of this detention facility has not been corroborated by multiple sources.) One report suggests that just outside Mrkonji Grad (towards Klju) there are over 1,000 Muslims in detention. 2174/ Reportedly the conditions in the barracks which housed the prisoners were unbearable. Executions of certain (unspecified) individuals reportedly took place every night. 2175/

1472. Lake Balkan Area: (The existence of this detention facility has not been corroborated by multiple sources.) Reports suggest the existence of a concentration camp in the area above Mrkonji Grad, specifically above Lake Balkan. 2176/ This was reportedly the site for the containment of women and children. One witness recalls seeing some 30 buses and trucks with women and children going through Manjaa in that direction. 2177/

1473. Unidentified Camp, Mrkonji Grad: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely the National Organization for Victim Assistance.) Medecins Sans Frontieres, the French charity organization, reportedly acquired information from refugees 2178/ regarding the existence of a camp in Mrkonji Grad. 2179/ The French organization conducted filmed interviews with refugees who stated that their Serb captors were responsible for widespread atrocities including "systematic torture, sexual mutilation, rape and violence against children". 2180/ The report was, silent as to specific information regarding the location, operation or control of the facility.

57. Nevesinje

1474. The municipality of Nevesinje is located in Herzegovina and is neighbored by Mostar to the west and Gacko to the east. According to the 1991 Yugoslav census, the population of Nevesinje was 14,421, of which 74.5 per cent were Serbs, 23.0 per cent were Muslims, 1.3 per cent were Croats, and the remaining 1.2 per cent were described as "others".

1475. Bačko Jezero Facility: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by multiple sources however none among them are neutral.) Following the victory by the Muslim and Croatian defenders of Mostar, Serbian forces plundered the municipality of Nevesinje. Several villages including Sopilja, Hrušta, Lakat, Kljuna, Gornja Bijenja, Donja Bijenja, Postoljani, Presjeka, Borovčiči, Luka, and Kruševljani i Odak were burned to the ground. 2181/

1476. According to one report, at least five women from Nevesinje were taken to a camp in Bačko Jezero. The women reportedly were raped during their internment. 2182/ There was no evidence that men also were detained at this camp. The ICRC visited the camp on 21 October 1992 and reported that all prisoners had been released. 2183/

1477. House in Gaj: 2184/ (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely Helsinki Watch.) Following the outbreak of tension in late March 1993, in the village of Seonice in Konjic, Croatian women and children were captured by Muslim troops. 2185/ The captives were taken by approximately 60 Muslim soldiers to a home on the periphery of the village of Trusina, in an area known as Gaj. 2186/ The women and children were robbed of their personal possessions and ordered to carry crates of ammunition and weapons to Muslim military personnel in the village. 2187/ The detainees were later released but were told that if they tried to leave the area, they would be shot. 2188/

58. Odak

1478. The municipality of Odak is located in northern BiH. It is bordered by the Sava river to the north, Modriča county to the south, Bosanski Šamac to the east, and Bosanski Brod to the west. According to the 1991 Yugoslav census the population of Odak county was 30,651; 54.2 per cent of which were Croats, 20.3 per cent were Muslim, 19.8 per cent were Serbs, and the remaining 5.7 per cent were described as "others".

1479. Odak Primary School: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by multiple sources however none among them are neutral.) A primary school in Odak was turned into a detention centre. 2189/ The Serbian residents of the villages nearby were rounded up and taken to the school. 2190/ The men were kept in the gymnasium. 2191/ The women and children were kept in classrooms and then later interned in Muslim and Croatian houses in Odak. 2192/

1480. When the men arrived at the camp, they were forced to run through a gauntlet of non-Serbs who beat the Serb detainees as they entered the gymnasium. 2193/

1481. The gymnasium was crowded. 2194/ Approximately 700 men were detained at this camp. 2195/ The floors were very hard and the detainees had only coats or blankets for comfort. 2196/ When permitted, the detainees had to line up for the toilet or a bath. 2197/ Many detainees did not bathe for four months. 2198/ In at least one instance, prior to an ICRC visit, the guards brought a fire truck in and hosed the detainees down so that they appeared clean. 2199/ Many of the detainees fell as a result of the force of the water. 2200/

1482. The food in the camp consisted of one slice of bread and one cup of tea per day. Occasionally, prisoners were fed macaroni. 2201/ Once, the guards forced all the detainees to eat spoiled, stale macaroni. 2202/ The detainees were beaten if they raised their heads before they were finished eating the macaroni. 2203/ The detainees suffered from dysentery as a result. 2204/

1483. During the day, the detainees were forced to sing Ustaše songs for two or three hours at a time. 2205/ The detainees had to greet the Croatian army or members of the paramilitary formations with the greeting "Ready for the Homeland!" 2206/

1484. Some detainees were taken to the front and forced to dig trenches for the Croatian soldiers in the areas of Bosanski Brod and Orašje. Many detainees were wounded or killed. 2207/

1485. On 26 May 1992, a group of Croatian National Guards came to the camp, picked out a group of detainees and beat them. 2208/ This incident triggered the beginning of nightly beatings. 2209/ The guards beat the detainees with their feet, rifles, truncheons and other solid instruments. 2210/ The guards would appear in the hall and single out a dozen detainees at random or call out a year from 1962 to 1972 and all those men born in that year would have to suffer. 2211/

1486. The guards would force the detainees to face a wall and then they would smash the detainees' heads against the wall from behind. 2212/ In addition, the detainees were forced to run up and hit their own head against the blackboard or wall. 2213/ If they did not do it hard enough, they were beaten in the head with a gun. 2214/ After these beatings, the detainees were ordered to lick their own blood from the floor. 2215/

1487. A member of the National Guards of the Republic of Croatia, would usually be the guard to order the detainees to hit their heads against the wall. He also carved the letter "U" in the detainees' chests. 2216/

1488. In addition, other specific mistreatment included forcing the detainees to hold up their fingers as if making a cross and then beating those fingers. 2217/ The guards also left detainees in locked rooms with vicious dogs. 2218/ The guards also forced the detainees to beat each other, including relatives. 2219/ Additionally, the guards forced men to kiss each other. 2220/

1489. The guards beat the detainees until they were too tired to continue. 2221/ The soldiers and guards who beat the detainees were usually drunk. 2222/

1490. The guards then turned to torturing with threats. The guards would order the detainees to pull down their trousers and would threaten to remove their genitals. 2223/ The guards would put guns to detainees' heads and pull the trigger, however, the guns were not loaded. 2224/

1491. Detainees who were able to give money to one of the captors could buy a night without a beating. 2225/ This captor later confiscated all the detainees' money and jewelry. 2226/

1492. Approximately 30 women were interned at this camp. 2227/ These women were taken to adjacent offices and raped. 2228/ If they resisted, they were beaten. 2229/ The women were raped by a different man each night. 2230/ Serbian male detainees of various ages were occasionally brought to the women's area after the rapes and forced to lick the women. 2231/

1493. In one instance, the guards, including two women from the National Guards of the Republic of Croatia, brought a mentally handicapped girl, to the camp and forced some detainees to rape her. 2232/ The male detainees who raped her were promised a good dinner in exchange. 2233/ The guards also forced detainees to rape a girl who had previously worked at a restaurant in Novi Grad. 2234/

1494. The camp guards also organized a "wedding". They took a woman and man, both detainees, and forced a false marriage ceremony. 2235/ The guards made the detainees who played musical instruments play for the "wedding". 2236/ The detainees were then taken to another room where as "newlyweds" they were forced to perform sexual acts. 2237/

1495. A group of pregnant women from another rape camp were sent to Odak. 2238/ The women continued to be raped, but when they reached an advanced stage of pregnancy the Croatian men would leave them alone. 2239/ The men allegedly considered this respect for the growing Croatian child. 2240/

1496. At least some of the women were allowed to buy their freedom. Members of the "Black Legion" or "Black Coats" came to the camp and told the women that if they turned over money or jewelry they would be freed. 2241/ The women who had money or jewelry sewed in the hems of their clothes were exchanged. 2242/

1497. The soldiers from the 101st Bosanski Brod Brigade, 106th Osijek Brigade, 108th Slavonski Brod Brigade also mistreated the detainees. 2243/ One individual from Donji Hasi^ć was infamous at the camp. 2244/

1498. This camp operated until the ICRC and UNPROFOR representatives began to make inquiries in August 1992. 2245/ The women were then sent to a stockings factory and the men were evacuated to other detention facilities. 2246/

1499. A Serb teacher from Derventa who informed an ICRC representative about the women held at this camp was beaten to death by the guards. 2247/

1500. House Arrest: (The existence of this type of detention has been corroborated by multiple sources however none among them are neutral.) The Serbian residents of Donja Dubica, Struka, Novi Grad, and Trunjak attempted to negotiate a peaceful departure for Bosanski Šamac. 2248/ Instead they were taken into custody. 2249/

1501. The Serbian women and children from the villages surrounding Odak were rounded up with the men and taken to the Odak camp. 2250/ They were then released and detained in Muslim and Croatian homes in the area of Novi Grad. 2251/

1502. While detained in these homes, the women's ordeals began. 2252/ The Serbian women were repeatedly raped. 2253/ They were raped in the detention homes and taken from the homes and raped at other locations. 2254/ Many of the women were raped by their neighbours. 2255/

1503. Paramilitaries/soldiers would come at night and order all the women out of the detention home. 2256/ The soldiers would line them up, shine flashlights on their faces, and choose a few of the women to be taken away and raped. 2257/ The women would be returned in the morning, some naked. 2258/ The rapists told the women that they were to give birth to a young Ustaša. 2259/ Some of the rapists told the women that they were abusing them as the Serbs had abused their women. 2260/

1504. The women were raped by multiple men. 2261/ A few of the alleged rapists were identified as the guards at the detention facilities at Orašje, Donja Mahala, and Odak School. 2262/ The paramilitaries "Horses of Fire" were also identified as perpetrators. 2263/

1505. The Croatian police and other military officers attempted to curb the actions of these roaming groups of paramilitaries, such as the "Horses of Fire," but when arrested or questioned they were equally threatening to the officers. 2264/

1506. Strolit Factory: (The existence of this detention facility has not been corroborated by multiple sources.) Strolit Factory was a detention centre in Odak. 2265/

59. Olovo

1507. The municipality of Olovo is located just north of Sarajevo county, to the east of Vares and the west of Han Pijesak. According to the 1991 Yugoslav census, the population of Olovo was 16,901. Of that number, 75 per cent were Muslims, 18.9 per cent were Serbs, 3.9 per cent were Croats, and the remaining 2.2 per cent were described as "others".

1508. Unidentified Village: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely the Defence Debriefing Team.) According to Muslim refugees and BiH Army officers, Serbian soldiers have detained several men from Rijeka, a village in Olovo. It is unclear where the men were taken, or if they were released. Additionally, there also are reports that Serbian soldiers killed and raped an unspecified number of people in the village. 2266/

60. Orašje

1509. Orašje is located in northern BiH and had a population of 28,201, according to the 1991 census. The population was 75.3 per cent Croat, 6.7 per cent Muslim, 15 per cent Serb, and 3 per cent "other". 2267/

1510. Donja Mahala: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by multiple sources, including the Defence Debriefing Team.) Donja Mahala was a Croatian run camp located in the Bosanska Posavina region near Orašje. 2268/ The camp was a school before the hostilities. 2269/ Detainees were Serbian men from the surrounding regions and captured Serbian milita. 2270/ Many of the detainees had been previously interned in camps located in Odak, Bosanski Brod, and Slavonski Brod. 2271/ Donja Mahala has been described as "the death camp". 2272/ The camp operated from at least May 1992. 2273/ On 9 December 1992, ICRC delegates found 161 detainees at the camp. 2274/

1511. The detainees were fed the same food as the guards, however, they got only one meal every one or two days. 2275/

1512. The detainees were kept in groups of approximately 15 people in different rooms at the camp. 2276/ The detainees designated one room as the "solitary confinement cell". 2277/ Detainees that were moved into this room were killed. 2278/ In the solitary cell, the detainees received only a cup of tea and slice of bread a day. 2279/

1513. The detainees at Donja Mahala were routinely tortured and executed. 2280/ To muffle the screams of those beaten, the guards would stuff rags in their mouths. 2281/

1514. An inmate at the camp described various instances of torture that he endured. One perpetrator burned the inmate's beard off his face and drove screwdrivers through his hands onto a board. Another perpetrator beat him with a heated rod, a wooden oar, stabbed him in the back, and drove a power drill into his head. Still another tied the inmate's testicles with wire and then beat his genital region. Yet a fourth crushed his fingers so that the inmate would not be able to make a cross in religious services. The inmate considered himself fortunate compared to other detainees at Donja Mahala. 2282/

1515. In another account, the guards removed skin from one detainee's head every day so that he had only bloody wounds instead of hair. This detainee also had his right hand broken. 2283/

1516. The detainees were forced to clean up the blood from the floors, tables and walls after the beatings. 2284/ The guards further punished the detainees if any blood was found. 2285/

1517. While in the camp, some detainees were forced to dig trenches at the front for the regular army of the Republic of Croatia and for paramilitary Ustaše formations. 2286/ Fifteen men were killed while digging trenches at the front. 2287/ At the front, the detainees were forced to climb out of the trenches and shout abuse at the Serb soldiers. 2288/ In addition, the detainees pulled out dead and injured members of both armies. 2289/ The Serb trench diggers were forced to watch as the Serb soldiers' bodies were mutilated. 2290/ In one report, the guards killed a POW when he was too weak to dig a trench; he had been denied food for 13 days. 2291/

1518. Detainees were also beaten on the head, knifed in the legs, arms, and back, and burned with cigarettes. 2292/ On occasion, one of the perpetrators allowed a detainee to see a doctor concerning injuries sustained from a harsh beating, however, the guards would confiscate the medicine given to the detainee. 2293/

1519. Among those particularly brutalized were Serbian militia from Vukovar, including their commander and deputy commander. 2294/ The deputy commander died on the torture table. 2295/ Only eight of the Vukovar militamen survived the camp. 2296/ The guards pulled wire through the POWs earlobes and hung heavy wooden boards of the ends of the wires. The guards also slashed the tongue of one POW. 2297/ While the men were tortured, the guards laughed. 2298/

1520. Some of the detainees were moved to Donja Mahala when the Croatians pulled out of an area. Approximately 100 men were moved to the camp when the Serbs took over Bosanski Brod. 2299/ When the detainees arrived, they were met by one of the captors and then taken to the yard where they were beaten all day. 2300/ These detainees were not allowed water or toilet facilities. 2301/ Some of the men were beaten in the genitals. The guards told them they looked best as corpses floating along the Sava River. 2302/

1521. To further humiliate the detainees, the guards relieved themselves on the detainees' boots and refused to allow the detainees to remove the boots. 2303/ As a result, at least one detainee had open wounds on his feet that subsequently turned into gangrene. 2304/

1522. On the Orthodox Christmas, six or seven members of the Croatian National Guard arrived at Donja Mahala to further victimize the detainees. 2305/ The Croatian soldiers lined up the detainees and beat them. 2306/ The soldiers forced the detainees to admit to killings and rapes of Croatian and Muslim people. 2307/ The soldiers had the detainees repeat the forced confessions to German reporters. 2308/

1523. The guards also coerced some detainees to confess to certain crimes to reporters from Globus and Reuters and to English, Australian, and German reporters by offering an exchange for the confession. 2309/

1524. The camp also held suspected war criminals. 2310/ The alleged war criminals were first held in Bosanski Vlasti and then moved to Orašje. 2311/

They claimed that the Arkan's and Šešelj's Četniks forced them to torture and kill people. 2312/ An exchange was reportedly offered to the suspected war criminals, however, they declined. 2313/ The Serbs feared being considered informants. 2314/

1525. Orašje School: (The existence of this detention facility has not been corroborated by multiple sources.) Civilians were detained in a school in Orašje while they waited for prisoner exchanges. 2315/ Some of the detainees had been previously interned in different camps. 2316/

1526. Rape Camp: (The existence of this detention facility has not been corroborated by multiple sources.) From at least April to October 1992, a detention centre housed women in Orašje. 2317/ The women interned in this camp were repeatedly raped by Muslim militiamen. 2318/

1527. Many women who were raped became pregnant and suffered further as a result of their experiences. 2319/ Women sought abortions or adoptions at a number of hospitals and women's clinics. 2320/

61. Posušje

1528. The county of Posušje is located in south-western BiH. According to the 1991 census, the pre-war population of Posušje was 16,659. At that time, the population was 99.5 per cent Croatian, and .5 per cent were referred to as "other". 2321/

1529. Posušje Camp: (The existence of this detention facility has not been corroborated by multiple sources.) It is reported that in January and February 1993, draft age men were picked up in various parts of Croatia by the Croatian police, detained in Rijeka, and then being sent to Posušje. From Posušje they were transferred to Tomislavgrad, where they were allegedly beaten and tortured by the HVO, and finally released to the BiH Army in Jablanica. There are various examples cited in the report with numbers of detained ranging from 10-130. Most of the men detained were Muslim, but at least three were reported to be Serbian. 2322/

62. Prijedor

1530. The province of Prijedor is located in north-western BiH. It is surrounded by the provinces of Bosanski Novi, Bosanska Dubica, Bosanska Gradiška, Banja Luka and Sanski Most. According to a 1991 census, Prijedor's ethnic composition was 44 per cent Muslim, 42.5 per cent ethnic Serb, 5.7 per cent Yugoslav, 5.6 per cent Croat, and 2.2 per cent "other", of a total population of 112,000.

1531. It is reported that although the urban areas and Prijedor town in particular in this part of BiH had largely Muslim majorities, the surrounding villages were mostly ethnically Serb. 2323/

1532. The following excerpt appears in the report on the situation of human rights in the territory of the former Yugoslavia by Mr. Tadeusz Mazowiecki, Special Rapporteur of the United Nations Commission on Human Rights. 2324/ It is helpful background information when addressing the issue of the camps in located in the Prijedor area:

"On 30 April 1992, armed men from Banja Luka took control of strategic positions in Prijedor. Identity checks began, allegedly because of the failure of Muslims to turn in their arms. The elected head of the district, Mr. Čehajić, a Muslim, was obliged to make a statement on the radio indicating that the political authority had changed, and calling on the populations not to resist and to surrender their arms. He was then removed from office, and his place was taken by a Serb.

The following week most Muslim police and military officials surrendered their arms. The television and radio began to broadcast only programmes from Belgrade. Police identity checks intensified, and Mr. Čehajić and his staff were detained. Threats by armed men became more frequent, and for the first time some Muslims suffered beatings. Later in May many leaders of the Muslim community, such as teachers, physicians and religious leaders, had their homes searched and were detained.

Between 23 and 25 May, the Muslim village of Hambarine, 5 kilometres south of Prijedor, received an ultimatum: all weapons must be surrendered by 11:00 a.m. Then, alleging that a shot was fired at a Serbian patrol, heavy artillery began to shell the village and tanks appeared, firing at homes. The villagers fled to Prijedor. Witnesses reported many deaths, probably as many as 1,000.

Shortly afterwards, on 26, 27, or 28 May, the Muslim village of Kozarac, 20 kilometres east of Prijedor, suffered a similar fate. Citing the same pretext as Hambarine, Serbian heavy artillery began to shell the town, following which an attack was launched by tanks and infantry. Some inhabitants, anticipating the attack, had dug shelters, and a few of them tried to resist with the meagre arms at their disposal. The combat lasted some seven days. Those who fled the village, including women and children were detained in camps in Karmina, Omarska and Trnopolje. Mass arrests also took place, and those arrested were taken away in buses and trucks. The population, estimated at 15,000, suffered a great many executions, possibly as many as 5,000 persons, according to some witnesses.

The night of 29 May, tanks and infantry took up position around Prijedor, citing the same pretext as at Hambarine and Kozarac. When the attack began, Serbs from the village guided the tanks to the homes of certain Muslims, and the inhabitants were asked to come out and show their identity documents. Many of those who did were summarily executed. According to witnesses, some 200 residents of a single street (Partisan Street) were executed, and a hundred homes were destroyed. During the attack the local radio continued to call for the surrender of arms, yet not one shot had been fired by the Muslims.

When the artillery barrage stopped around noon, groups of extremists, probably under the control of the paramilitary leader Arkan, began executing people, taking their victims to the street and slitting their throats, according to witnesses. The bodies of the dead were carried away by truck, which left a trail of blood. Those who were not killed on the spot were taken to hotel, where they were transferred to a convoy which left in the direction of Omarska. In the aftermath, houses which had been too badly damaged were bulldozed, and their foundations covered with fresh earth. Five mosques were destroyed, and the Muslim cemetery was razed.

In mid-July, more villages in the Prijedor area were attacked. Bišani and Rokovahi, located some 5 kilometres to the west of Prijedor, were attacked by artillery and mortars, followed by tanks and infantry. There were many casualties, and the survivors were sent to Omarska and Keraterm. Ljubija, a Croatian village, also suffered many casualties, as did Vugovići-Selo, a Muslim village which was shelled before being attacked by tanks and infantry. The population of Gornja Puharska was forced to leave by repeated searches, which sometimes culminated in summary executions; the destruction of its mosque led to panic, and caused the population to flee their homes and seek shelter in other buildings until such time as their departure was organized; in contrast to the fate of other villages, few homes were destroyed"

a. Omarska Camp

1533. (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by multiple sources, including Helsinki Watch, US Department of State, UK Defence Debriefing Team, Austrian Government, ICRC, and Newsday.)

1534. Location: Omarska is a predominantly Serbian village in the Prijedor region. 2325/ The Omarska camp was reportedly established on the site of a former iron mine near the village of Omarska, 2326/ which was surrounded by open-pit iron mines. 2327/ The camp was located west of the road leading from Prijedor to Banja Luka, 2328/ approximately two kilometres south of Omarska, 2329/ 17 kilometres east of Prijedor, 2330/ and 25 kilometres west of Banja Luka. 2331/ Office buildings, halls, garages, and tunnels were reportedly used for detention purposes. 2332/ The camp was said to have consisted of several large and smaller buildings formerly used by the mine. 2333/

1535. Location: Omarska is a predominantly Serbian village in the Prijedor region. 2334/ The Omarska camp was reportedly established on the site of a former iron mine near the village of Omarska, 2335/ which was surrounded by open-pit iron mines. 2336/ The camp was located west of the road leading from Prijedor to Banja Luka, 2337/ approximately two kilometres south of Omarska, 2338/ 17 kilometres east of Prijedor, 2339/ and 25 kilometres west of Banja Luka. 2340/ Office buildings, halls, garages, and tunnels were reportedly used for detention purposes. 2341/ The camp was said to have consisted of several large and smaller buildings formerly used by the mine. 2342/

1536. Description of the Omarska Camp: Reports vary regarding a physical description of the Omarska camp's facilities, including the number, size, location and use of buildings at the camp. The following descriptions are representative of accounts which appear in the reports reviewed.

1537. One subject who was a prisoner at the Omarska camp and had reportedly worked at the iron ore mine as a young man, described the camp as being comprised of four buildings: two large buildings each of two floors, approximately 60 metres by 30 metres in size; and two smaller buildings each about 12 metres by six metres in size. The camp's structures were reportedly surrounded by fences two metres by two metres high, enclosing an area of about 1,000 metres by 600 metres. 2343/

1538. Reports indicate that a large two-story building was used for the camp's headquarters, a prisoner holding area, a prisoner mess hall, and food storage. 2344/ The subject who worked at the Omarska mine as a young man described this building as being approximately 50 by 30 metres in size. Management and administrative office space had formerly been located on the top floor and worker feeding and changing facilities on the ground floor. The ground floor was reportedly divided into sections, comprising a large kitchen, a changing area for the former mine workers, toilets, and an internal garage 5.5 by 5.5 metres square. There was also an area marked "Garderoba" which was formerly the ore miners' changing room, and a small glass-walled or partitioned room in the centre of the ground floor. The top floor was reportedly divided into eight rooms. 2345/

1539. Other reports reviewed commonly refer to the above structure as the "administration" building, which was described as a glass and brick structure. 2346/ According to one report, the building had a wing which was a kitchen and another larger two-story section. The ground floor of that section contained vehicle garages and an approximately 30 by 30 metre room in which an estimated 800 prisoners were kept. 2347/ The second floor of the building reportedly contained eight interrogation rooms. 2348/

1540. Reports indicate a second two-story building at the camp, located next to the administration building. 2349/ The subject who had worked at the Omarska mine, described this structure as containing a large hangar on the ground floor, approximately 60 by 30 metres in size, which had previously been used for the storage of four very large, wheeled excavation trucks used in the mine. The top floor of the building reportedly contained office space. According to the subject, the southern end of the ground floor of this building was closed off by a wire fence and was about 150 square metres in size. The northern end of the hangar was said to be similarly fenced-off. The top floor of the building in the south-west corner reportedly contained a 40 square metre room. 2350/

1541. Other reports reviewed commonly refer to a large garage or "hangar-like" building where a great deal of torture took place. 2351/ The reports also describe the hangar-like structure's first floor which contained former vehicle workshops and the second floor, which contained an office and four rooms numbered 26, 15, 24, and 23. 2352/

1542. The third structure at the Omarska camp was referred to as the "red house" and was located across from the main camp building. 2353/ The structure was described as being some distance from the main structures, and it was reported that prisoners did not return alive once they entered the building. 2354/ The subject who had worked at the Omarska mine described this structure as approximately six by seven metres square in size. The structure was also reportedly called the Klaonica (abattoir or slaughterhouse) by the inmates and had previously been used to store the mine's fire fighting equipment. 2355/

1543. The fourth structure, a one-story, 12 metres by six metres building known as the "white house" was reported as being located across from the main camp building. 2356/ It was also reported that the "white house" contained four rooms and a bathroom. 2357/ Two of the rooms were said to house prisoners who were professionals and intellectuals, one room was reportedly for prisoners who had been injured during beatings, and the fourth room reportedly housed prisoners who had possessed weapons and those who were to be exchanged. 2358/ This structure, was reportedly located some distance from the main facilities and was said to be used to torture and kill prisoners over long periods of time. 2359/ The subject who had worked at the Omarska mine similarly described the structure known as the Bijela Kuća ("white house") which was located to the centre-left (west) of the two main structures. He stated that the building was divided into four rooms and contained a central corridor. 2360/

1544. Reports also describe a tarmac area outside the main structures which was used as an open-air detention area, where large groups of men were forced to lie on their stomachs throughout the day. 2361/

1545. Reports conflict as to whether the Omarska camp was surrounded by a fence or barbed wire. One subject reported that the camp was surrounded by fences two metres high, topped with barbed wire. 2362/ It was similarly reported that a two-metres-high barbed wire fence with machine-gun emplacements at unspecified intervals surrounded the entire camp. 2363/

1546. One ex-prisoner who arrived at the camp during the first week of June 1992, stated that at that point the Omarska camp had not yet been built up. He stated that no fencing had been constructed. 2364/ Another subject reported that there were no defined camp perimeters, no barbed wire, watch towers, or any such installations normally associated with prison camps. 2365/

1547. Number of Prisoners: It was generally reported that the camp held between 3,000 and 4,000 men. 2366/ Reports also indicated that between 33 and 38 women were held at the camp. 2367/

1548. One female prisoner reported that the women at the camp were tasked with kitchen work and were in a position to know how many prisoners were being fed at the camp. According to the prisoner, the women drew lines on paper for every group of thirty men who were brought in to eat. She stated that on 14 June 1992, they counted 2,736 men and 33 women. 2368/

1549. There were reports which estimated that the Omarska camp contained a greater number of prisoners. Those estimates which varied greatly in number, included: 4,000 to 5,000; 2369/ 5,000 to 6,000; 2370/ 6,000 to 7,000; 2371/ 8,000; 2372/ and 11,000 prisoners. 2373/ Other reports estimated the total number of women held at Omarska at 58; 2374/ between 50 and 70; 2375/ and approximately 300. 2376/

1550. Sex and Age of the Prisoners: According to reports, men from approximately 16-60 years of age were held at the Omarska camp. 2377/ The camp was also reported to hold some boys, well under the age of 18. 2378/ The camp also held women, most of them belonging to the intellectual upper class: judges, teachers, engineers. 2379/

1551. Ethnicity of Prisoners: Reports generally described the Omarska prisoner population as consisting mainly of Bosnian Muslim and some Croat prisoners. 2380/

1552. Status of Prisoners: The prisoner population at Omarska has been referred to as the political and cultural elite of the city of Prijedor. 2381/ Reports indicate that after Bosnian Serb forces came to power in Prijedor in the spring of 1992, gradually, the Muslim and Croat upper class were taken to the Omarska camp, including: doctors, high government officials, and businessmen. 2382/

1553. The reports also indicate that at least some of the detainees at Omarska took up arms and fought the Bosnian Serb forces which attacked their towns and villages. It was also indicated that the camp was a place where the Bosnian Serb authorities, with the backing of the army, had taken thousands of Bosnian Muslims to be killed. 2383/

1554. Categories of Prisoners: According to Helsinki Watch, Serbian military officials in Banja Luka acknowledged that prisoners were divided into three categories. The first category reportedly included leaders of the predominantly Muslim Party of Democratic Action (SDA) and those "who organized the rebellion against the Serbs". The second category reportedly included Muslim combatants. Both categories of prisoners were reportedly interrogated at the Omarska camp and subsequently transferred to the Manjača camp. The third category of prisoners reportedly included "those who could not be found guilty". Those prisoners were reportedly held at the Trnopolje camp and included women and children, who were interned with other non-Serbs who had sought refuge from actual or potential Serbian attacks on their villages. 2384/

1555. Other reports describe the categorization of Omarska's prisoner population. One subject reported that inmates at Omarska were divided into three distinct categories: Muslim politicians, who were all shot; those who had either possessed or confessed to having had weapons; and professionals. 2385/

1556. Another subject reported that camp authorities prepared lists of three categories of prisoners, but that it was unclear how those lists were divided. He stated that Category 1 prisoners may have been active-duty military people and intellectuals who were reportedly killed. Category 2 reportedly consisted of about 1,700 prisoners, including the subject, who were sent to the Manjača camp. People in Category 3 were reportedly sent to the Trnopolje camp. According to the subject, the prisoner transfer to Manjača in early August began with a guard reading off a list of prisoner names and, once at Manjača, the commander there would not allow prisoners off the buses until names were available and a roll call could be made. 2386/

1557. In late July 1992, Omarska's guards reportedly began a census of camp inmates. Lists of names were reportedly read out, frequently including names of those who had died, and prisoners were placed in 3 categories: (1) those who fought against the Serbs; (2) those in some way connected with (1); and (3) those who had a "clean sheet". Subject stated that Categories 1 and 2 were sent to the Manjača camp while those in Category 3 were sent to Trnopolje and subsequently released. The subject stated that at the time, there were only a few prisoners left who were in Category 1, since most had already been killed at the camp. 2387/

1558. Organization and Treatment of Female Prisoners: Women at the Omarska camp were reportedly housed on one end of the second floor of the administration building which also contained the camp commander's office 2388/ Other reports confirm that the camp's female prisoners slept in rooms in the administration building. 2389/ The women reportedly slept in two rooms, 2390/ numbered 102 and 103. 2391/ It was reported that those rooms were where the daily interrogations of male prisoners were held. 2392/ It was also reported that female prisoners had special access to the camp command and administrators because they were confined near the camp offices next to the interrogation rooms. 2393/

1559. Many of the women who were detained at Omarska were said to be prominent professionals, including a judge from Prijedor County, a Deputy District Attorney, a County Court Judge, and a member of the Party for Democratic Action Council. 2394/ The women held at the camp reportedly slept on the floor with one blanket for every two women. 2395/ As the women tried to sleep they reportedly heard the screams of prisoners being tortured next door in the interrogation room. 2396/

1560. The women were reportedly woken up at six in the morning and two of them were randomly chosen to clean the interrogation rooms which were covered with blood each morning. 2397/ The women were also reported to have cleaned the commanders' offices on occasion. 2398/

1561. It was reported that women at the camp were also forced to work in the kitchen. 2399/ According to one report, each day the women would see over a hundred new detainees arrive, while the same number vanished. 2400/ After completing their daily kitchen duty, the women reportedly returned to their rooms at night. 2401/

1562. There are reports that the female prisoners at the camp were raped. 2402/ It was reported that male prisoners held in rooms below the women's rooms could often hear cries, shouts, and loud weeping from the female prisoners. 2403/

1563. One male subject stated that the women at the camp were raped nightly by Serb guards and others coming to the camp for that purpose. He added that one Muslim woman was forced to perform oral sex with other prisoners, and that prisoners were also forced to perform sex with her. When they refused she was beaten. 2404/

1564. Women held at Omarska stated that the camp commander would organize the rape and abuse of women at the camp. They stated that he would rape individual women himself, and organize an audience for the others. 2405/ One woman stated that at night they were taken out one by one. She stated that she was taken out four nights running and that the women were exposed to physical, mental, and sexual violence. She stated: "Every guard would pick a woman he was going to abuse. I had the bad luck to be chosen by the head of security at the camp, [name deleted]." 2406/

1565. One woman reported that on 15 June 1992, she and other female prisoners were returned from the "restaurant" to Room 102 at 7:00 p.m. (where they were assigned) and discovered that the room was covered with more blood than before and broken clubs and needles. At about 9:30 p.m. the women in Room 102 reportedly heard shouts in the hallway, calling for two prominent male Croatian Democratic Union Prijedor County officials, and the sounds of beatings. The door to Room 102 was then reportedly opened and a guard grabbed one of the women into the next room. One of the male Croat officials was reportedly laying on the floor in the next room, bleeding about the face. Guards then reportedly beat the woman with the butts of their weapons, mostly on her back, breaking her ribs and injuring her thorax. After she fell, the guards reportedly resumed beating the male prisoner. The woman then reportedly fainted, came to and saw the male official unconscious, was beaten again, fainted, and regained consciousness in the early morning and saw the male official being dragged out of the room by his feet. The woman was reportedly warned by identified perpetrators that she should not tell anyone about the incident. At approximately 6:30 a.m. on 16 June 1992, the woman was reportedly returned to Room 102. Two weeks later the same woman was reportedly called into the camp commander's office and told to be smart and obedient, that a decision was still pending on her future, and that her name was on a list of persons to be interrogated. She was then reportedly ordered to make coffee and thereafter was reportedly dragged into a bathroom, pistol whipped, beaten and raped by an identified officer, and subsequently brought back to the commander's office to finish making coffee. It was reported that this procedure was repeated for three more nights. On the fifth night, the commander asked her if she had ever been mistreated, and out of fear she said nothing. 2407/

1566. One woman, however, stated that she knew of no rapes or extreme beatings of the women at Omarska, although she reported that they were terrorized and used as forced labour. 2408/

1567. Another female prisoner stated that in the beginning, the killing of the prisoner population would be hidden from the women and that bodies would be deposited far away. She stated, however, that at the beginning of July, prisoners were killed before their eyes. 2409/

1568. One male subject reported that it was commonly known among prisoners that at least two identified women at the camp were killed. 2410/

1569. Dates of Operation-Camp Opening: Reports indicate that the Omarska mine was converted into a detention camp in late May 1992. 2411/

1570. Origin and Movement of Prisoners: The following is a summary of reports which indicate the dates of transfers and the points of origin of Omarska's prisoner population.

1571. Kozarac-Brezičani-Late May-Early June 1992: Reports indicate that on approximately 27 May 1992, following a two-day attack on Kozarac by Serb forces, Muslim survivors from the city were transported to the Omarska and Trnopolje camps. 2412/ One report stated that after the capture of Kozarac by former JNA troops on 25-26 May 1992, the city's Muslim inhabitants were ordered to report to the city centre, and those in possession of weapons were ordered to turn them in. After reporting to the city centre, the Muslim women were reportedly separated from the men and taken by buses to Trnopolje. The men were then reportedly transported to "Brezičani", where they were beaten, kept overnight, and then moved to the Omarska camp. 2413/ Other reports describe the transfer of men from Kozarac to Omarska and to Omarska via Brezičani in late May. 2414/

1572. Keraterm Camp, May-June-July-August 1992: It was reported that following shelling of the village, Serb forces rounded up 200 male inhabitants men from Kozaruša and transported them in buses to the Keraterm camp 2415/ for two days. According to the reports, on or about 23 May 1992, the Serbs emptied Keraterm and bused about 300 captives to Omarska. 2416/

1573. One subject reported that on 27 May 1992, at 10:00 p.m., Keraterm prisoners were ordered out of their cells and onto buses which had previously arrived at the camp. (There were reportedly 17 empty and six full buses) The subject stated that he heard that the prisoners in the occupied buses had been detained at the Brezičani school. At approximately midnight, the buses reportedly departed from the Keraterm camp and later arrived at the Omarska camp. The subject estimated that on that day, a total of 2,000 prisoners were brought to Omarska, 90 per cent of whom were Croat and Muslim civilians, and the remainder of whom were members of the regular and reserve police in Prijedor, and were of Croatian and Muslim nationality. 2417/ Another subject who had been taken to Keraterm from his village on approximately 25 May 1992, stated that on 27 May 1992, he and dozens of other prisoners (including his son), were transferred to Omarska. 2418/ It was reported that prisoners were severely beaten during the transfer of prisoners from Keraterm to Omarska. 2419/

1574. Another subject who had been transported from his village Kozaruša to the Keraterm camp on approximately 24 May 1992, was reportedly interrogated several times, and was then taken to the Omarska camp on 28 May. According to the report, the Keraterm prisoners were taken in crowded and deliberately overheated buses to the Omarska camp. 2420/

1575. One subject stated that after hiding in the woods with several groups after the attack on Kozarac, he and others gave themselves up to Bosnian Serb forces and thereafter were taken by bus to the Keraterm camp. He stated that 120 people spent two nights on a bus parked at the camp gate without fresh air or water and after being abused, spent two nights at the Keraterm camp. On the third day, subject and many other men were called out at 1:00 a.m., told to keep their heads down, and were driven to the Omarska camp. 2421/ Another subject who was involved in the armed resistance of Kozarac, stated that on approximately 29-30 May 1992, he and his "friends" were captured by Serb forces in the nearby woods while sleeping. He stated they were taken to the Keraterm camp for the first night and were transported in a police wagon to the Omarska camp the next day. The subject stated that on the way to Omarska, they passed through Kozarac where an elderly Serbian man was allowed to beat the young prisoners with a stick. 2422/

1576. One subject from Kozarac stated that on 4 June 1992, he was taken to the Keraterm camp, and that on 6 June he was transported to the Omarska camp, and along with 20 other prisoners, was beaten severely. 2423/

1577. One subject priest stated that he was taken on 16 June 1992, to Keraterm and the next day transferred to Omarska. 2424/

1578. One subject reported that he was transferred to Omarska from Keraterm on approximately 5 July 1992. 2425/ Another subject stated that on 9 July 1992, 30 men, most of whom were Croat, were transferred by bus to Omarska. 2426/

1579. One subject stated that the night before he was transferred from Omarska to Manjača on approximately 4 August 1992, a new group of about 70 prisoners were brought from Keraterm and put into the "white house". He claimed that this was done in order that the ICRC would not see the prisoners who had been more severely abused. 2427/

1580. Prijedor-June-July 1992: It was reported that on 3 June 1992, three large buses carrying Muslim and Croatian male prisoners left the main police station in Prijedor and transported prisoners to Omarska. 2428/

1581. One female attorney reported that on 14 June 1992, she was arrested by armed Serbian police officers, taken to the Prijedor police station, and told to wait in a small, blood-spattered room. She stated that another Prijedor lawyer, a member of the Croatian Democratic Union and two unidentified males were also detained in the room. At about 5:30 p.m. they were driven by auto along back roads to Omarska. They were at one point confronted by paramilitary troops and were taken to the Omarska camp. She stated that upon their arrival at Omarska, the prisoners were pushed out of the vehicle by men in "etnik" and JNA uniforms. 2429/

1582. A subject from Briševo stated that after Prijedor fell on 30 June, he and approximately 20 other men were arrested, taken to the local police station, and then to Omarska. 2430/

1583. One subject reported that he was arrested for the second time in Prijedor and was transported to the Prijedor police station where he was 'slapped about' by two unknown policemen. After two days, on 6 July 1992, the subject was reportedly transported to the Keraterm camp. He stated that he remained at Keraterm for only five hours before being taken by police car to the Omarska camp. 2431/

1584. A subject from Rizvanovići, near Prijedor, stated that on 21 July 1992, the Serbian army surrounded all of the villages in the area and took all of the adult males prisoner. The men were subsequently marched out, abused, and an hour later, one-half of them were transported by bus to the Keraterm camp which was full. The prisoners were then driven 30 minutes to the Omarska camp which was also full, and they were thereafter transported to the Trnopolje camp. At Trnopolje, the subject was reportedly abused by a guard during his intake, and after one night, he was thereafter transferred to the "Serbian police headquarters" in Prijedor where he was questioned for five hours. 2432/ The subject was thereafter transported to the Omarska camp with an unknown number of other prisoners. 2433/

1585. Kevljani (via Prijedor and Keraterm)-Late May 1992: Reports indicate that on approximately 26 May 1992, Kevljani was attacked by Serb forces, and the villagers fled to the woods, but after spending the night under heavy shelling, then surrendered to a Serbian officer 2434/ and other identified individuals. The Croatian and Muslim villagers were taken by bus to Prijedor where the women and children were taken to the youth centre. At 4:00 p.m. the men were taken in 24 buses to the Keraterm factory at the edge of the town. Keraterm, however, was full and the convoy proceeded in a round-about away through Tomašica to the Omarska Camp where they arrived at 11:00 p.m. 2435/ Another subject repeats essentially the same fact scenario, stating, however, that 400 of the villagers fled to a nearby river bank to escape the attack and that those men who came to the village school to surrender were beaten by Serb fighters and subsequently taken to the Omarska camp. 2436/ Other reports indicate that the transfer of persons from the village of Kevljani to the Omarska camp occurred at the end of May 1992. 2437/

1586. Donji Garevci-Late May 1992: According to one report, at the end of May 1992, Serbian irregular soldiers entered the village of Donji Garevci (six kilometres from Prijedor) and rounded up all of the Bosnian Muslim men for incarceration. The irregulars reportedly told the men that they were going to march to a camp at Trnopolje. They allegedly forced the men to sing patriotic Serbian songs and beat those who refused. Eventually the group reached Trnopolje where they were immediately put on buses and driven to the Omarska camp. En route, uncooperative prisoners were beaten. Upon arrival at Omarska, they found that the camp was "full", and the group was put back on buses and finally off-loaded at the Keraterm camp. 2438/

1587. Gornja Puharska-May-June 1992: It was reported that Gornja Puharska had a population of about 300 Muslim families and six Croat families. On 27 May 1992, JNA forces reportedly surrounded and besieged the village and on about 29 May 1992, Serbian "Red Berets" reportedly entered the village with tanks accompanied by non-uniformed irregular forces. The village's defenders reportedly surrendered, and on 1 June 1992, all of the men were reportedly taken prisoner and transported 23 kilometres south-east to Omarska on two buses and one large cattle truck. 2439/

1588. One subject reported that on 29 May 1992, the people of Gornja Puharska put white flags outside their homes to indicate their surrender. He said that the next day, on 30 May, four to five tanks and 500 soldiers came into the town and rounded up all of the men of military age (about 250 in total). The town's men were reportedly walked to the local mosque and abused. The subject stated that political leaders, policemen, and educated persons were immediately identified and put separately on a bus, along with former soldiers. The subject stated that in total, three buses transported a total of approximately 250 men to the Omarska camp. 2440/

1589. Ljubija-Early June-July 1992: On 10 June 1992, in the village of Kalajevo (approximately three kilometres north-east of Ljubija), "armed Serbs" in uniform reportedly arrested a man and drove in a lorry to the "Rudar" stadium in Ljubija where he was held in a locker room with another six prisoners. He stated that after being held in Ljubija for five days he was transferred to the Omarska camp. 2441/

1590. Another subject stated that he was arrested on 10 July 1992, in his father's yard and taken with two others inside a moving van to the police station in Ljubija where he was held with 15 other men. The men were reportedly interrogated by named individuals and were then taken away in the moving van to the Omarska camp. 2442/

1591. Matrišani-4 July 1992: One subject reported that on 4 July 1992, he was arrested in Matrišani and subsequently taken to the Omarska camp. 2443/

1592. Bišani-July 1992: One subject reported that on approximately 20 July 1992, Muslim males were taken by Bosnian Serb forces to Omarska from the village of Bišani. However, it was also reported that after arriving at Omarska, the convoy left for Trnopolje after those in charge of transportation were told that no more prisoners would be accepted at Omarska. 2444/

1593. It was reported that on 24 and 25 July 1992, approximately 300 civilians from the villages of Bišani, Rizvanovići, Rakovani, Hambarine, Ćarakovo, and Zecovi were brought in at around 4:00 p.m. and severely beaten. 2445/

1594. Rizvanovići-July 1992: One subject stated that on 20 July 1992, he was taken to the Omarska camp from Rizvanovići. 2446/

1595. Donja Puharska-July 1992: On 13 July 1992, all of the Muslim men who remained in Donja Puharska were reportedly arrested and taken to the Omarska camp. According to one subject, he and at least eight other Muslim men were summoned to the local police station to make a declaration of loyalty and to volunteer for work. The men were reportedly beaten by soldiers, locked in a cell, and later transported to Omarska. 2447/

1596. Transfer of Prisoners-Camp Closing: One subject reported that on approximately 30 May 1992, a group of 168 prisoners were selected for a "prisoner exchange". 2448/

1597. One subject reported that on 3 June 1992, three buses filled with older prisoners were transported from Omarska to the Trnopolje camp. 2449/ Another subject reported that on 3 June 1992, at 7:00 p.m., two buses were brought into the Omarska camp and loaded with 120 prisoners. The prisoners were reportedly told that the first bus was going to Kozarac and the second to Prijedor, but both buses reportedly went to the Trnopolje Camp. 2450/

1598. It was reported that on 25 June 1992, approximately 100 prisoners were transferred to the Trnopolje camp. These prisoners were reportedly called by name and included many weak individuals. 2451/

1599. One subject reported that in early July, 200 prisoners, all of whom were considered by the Serbs to have been "important", were taken away from the Omarska camp on a supposed prisoner exchange. Subject stated that none of the prisoners had been seen or heard from since. Other sources reportedly believed that those prisoners were killed. 2452/

1600. It was also reported that in mid-July 1992, camp authorities transferred 30 elderly and infirm patients to the Trnopolje camp. 2453/

1601. Reports indicate that the Omarska camp was closed at the end of August 1992. The closing was attributed to the attention drawn there by the media and the international community. 2454/ The detainees were, however, not released but transferred to other camps such as Trnopolje and Manjača. 2455/

1602. Manjača-Early August 1992: According to most reports, on approximately 6-8 August 1992, a mass-transfer of Omarska's prisoners took place when buses arrived to transport prisoners to the Manjača camp. 2456/ Each of the buses was reportedly crammed with prisoners, with the heat on and the windows sealed shut. The reports of this transfer included accounts where prisoners were abused and killed en route and upon arrival at the Manjača camp: 2457/

1603. Trnopolje-Early August 1992: Subjects reported a mass transfer of prisoners to the Trnopolje camp. One subject stated that 1,000 prisoners were transferred to the Trnopolje camp while 1,300 were transported to Manjača. 2458/ According to one subject, on 6 August, approximately 1,200 inmates of the second category (those who had possessed or confessed to having possessed weapons), were transferred by bus to the Manjača camp and at the same time, 700 prisoners of the third category (professionals) were sent to the Trnopolje camp. The subject was reportedly transferred to Trnopolje. He added that guards killed inmates at random during both of these transfers 2459/ Other reports describe what appears to be the same transfer. 2460/

1604. It was reported that on 3 August 1992, the women at Omarska were transferred to the Trnopolje camp. 2461/ One female prisoner stated that on 3 August 1992, 29 of the camp's 33 women were told to hurry and gather their things and were then taken outside and put onto buses for transfer to Trnopolje. 2462/ A similar report stated that before the camp was closed, 33 of the camp's female prisoners were taken to the Trnopolje camp, while 5 others were left at Omarska. 2463/ Other reports describe what appears to be the same transfer. 2464/

1605. Manjača-Late August 1992: It was reported that while prisoners were transferred to the Manjača camp in early August, approximately 180 prisoners remained at Omarska for another 15 days, after which they joined the others at Manjača. According to one report, the men who remained at Omarska were moved to a room near the kitchen where they were provided with beds and bedding and were given two meals a day of so much food that they could not eat it all. These prisoners reportedly had to clean up the "white house" and the area around it and paint the building white in preparation for a visit by the Red Cross and television crews. According to the subject, some women at the camp were kept out of sight when the Red Cross and the television crew came, but were returned to Omarska after the visit. 2465/

1606. One subject similarly reported that in early August, the Omarska guards became unsettled and moved men from room to room. The subject stated that he and 183 other men were transferred to a garage about 25 metres square, and after three days, 88 of them, including the subject, were taken to the "white house". The subject stated that on 6 August 1992, mass transfers to Manjača and Trnopolje took place, but that 184 men singled out before were left at the Omarska camp. Those prisoners were reportedly led to a large room where they had to assemble and make army beds. Subject stated that he was led away to a nearby room, beaten severely, and made to eat a cockroach. The subject believed that he was the last man severely beaten at the Omarska camp. The subject added that although the prisoners had made 120 beds, they were not allowed to sleep on them, but had to sleep of the floor of the hallway in that building. 2466/

1607. One report stated that of the 179 prisoners left at the Omarska camp, five were women. 2467/ One woman stated that she was among the last five women (out of 38) to leave the camp several days after Omarska was emptied of its last male prisoners. 2468/

1608. It was reported that on 21 August 1992, camp authorities roll-called 172 prisoners who were taken to the Manjača camp. Seven other prisoners, some of whom were women, were reportedly taken to an unknown destination. 2469/ Other reports confirm that the remaining prisoners held at Omarska were transferred to the Manjača camp. 2470/

1609. Visits to Omarska by Outside Organizations and Individuals: It was reported that in early August, a group of journalists arrived at the camp, but that camp officials did not allow them directly inside. One subject stated that the Omarska camp authorities prepared a group of 10-15 prisoners to talk with them. The prisoners were given some bread and were ordered to tell the reporters that conditions at the camp were good and that Omarska was not a concentration camp, but a reception centre. According to the subject, about three days after the visit, prisoners began to be dispersed to other camps. 2471/ Other reports described the process by which Omarska was prepared for the journalists' visits. Almost all of the female prisoners were reportedly transferred, the corpses on the lawn disappeared, and so did the prisoners marked by torture. 2472/ One subject reported that he remained at Omarska to take part in a clean-up of the camp while most of the other prisoners were transferred to the Manjača camp. The subject stated that there had been blood everywhere, and that marks of shooting on internal walls were covered with cupboards. The subject also reported that those involved in the clean up were told to tell journalists that nobody stayed in the camp for more than a day, and that Omarska was only a transit centre. He added that beds arrived the day before a visit from journalists but that prisoners were not allowed to use them. 2473/ Other reports contain similar descriptions of the events during this time period. 2474/

1610. It was reported that before the first journalists arrived at Omarska, about 200 men in one sleeping room were moved to another room already at overcapacity. The prisoners were then told to remain quiet and to keep their heads below the window. According to the report, there was only enough room for the men to sit with their knees against their chests. The other room was reportedly cleaned and 30 new prisoners from the Keraterm camp were reportedly put there and shown to reporters. 2475/

1611. On the 5th or 6th of August 1992, Independent Television News (ITN) reporters Penny Marshall and Ian Williams visited the Omarska and Trnopolje camps. 2476/ In their report they visited the camp and were shown only several hundred of the camp's prisoners, all Muslim men. ITN was reportedly told by authorities that those men were there to be interrogated. The authorities stated further that those men found guilty of fighting Serbs were sent to prisoner of war camps, and the innocents, to refugee camps. Reporter Marshall spoke to a woman identified as Nada Balaban, 2477/ the camp's administrator, who stated, "No, this is not a camp, this is a centre, a transit centre, Omarska and Trnopolje, both centres, not camps." When Marshall asked to see the prisoners' living accommodations, 2478/ the request was denied by Ms. Balaban. 2479/ When Marshall visited Omarska's cafeteria, she commented that the prisoners were silent and that the only voices heard were those of guards ordering the men to eat faster and leave. When a prisoner was asked by Marshall how he was treated, he reportedly responded, "I don't want to tell lies. I can't speak the truth. Thank you for coming." Marshall reported that ITN was told that the army did not control the Omarska camp and that its prisoners were the responsibility of the civil authorities and the local militia.

1612. Helsinki Watch reported that after the ITN television crew filmed the Omarska camp, the Serbian military began taking journalists and others on arranged tours of the camps in the area. The military reportedly drove the journalists from Banja Luka to Trnopolje and three other camps in the area: Omarska, Keraterm, and Manjača. Helsinki Watch reportedly visited the four camps in August 1992, and saw that they had recently been painted and cleaned. Most of the prisoners were reportedly terrified and refused to speak to the visitors. One prisoner, however, reportedly stated: "Don't believe what you see. They have made this place into a tourist attraction." 2480/

1613. One press report described the observations made by journalists who visited the Omarska camp: "Western journalists arrived at Omarska this week, only 175 men were still there. Crude attempts had been made to clean up the camp. Bunk beds were lined up in a room in which inmates said as many as 1,300 men had slept before." 2481/

1614. The ICRC was reported to have first visited the Omarska camp on 12 August 1992. 2482/ It was reported that due to the mass-transfer of prisoners to the Manjača and Trnopolje camps in early August, the ICRC was able to register only 173 prisoners during its visit. 2483/ One subject reported that on 12 August 1992, international journalists arrived at Omarska and that camp authorities told them that the prisoners there had been held for two or three weeks for interrogation. The journalists had reportedly brought ICRC registration cards and registered all of the prisoners. The subject stated that the reporters told them that they were now citizens of the United Nations. 2484/

1615. One subject reported that on 15 August 1992, the ICRC registered only male prisoners because camp authorities had hidden female prisoners from the ICRC representatives. 2485/

1616. Link Between the Omarska Camp and the Authorities in Prijedor and Banja Luka: Milomir Stakić, the man identified as the mayor of Prijedor after Muhamed ehajić was removed, reportedly acknowledged the link between civil authorities in Prijedor and the Omarska, Keraterm, and Trnopolje camps. Stakić stated in a translated statement that "[T]hose places like Omarska, Keraterm and Trnopolje were the necessity of the moment and were formed on decision of the Prijedor civil authorities." With regard to the issue of beatings at the camps, Stakić reportedly stated, "According to the information there was no mistreatment and physical violence in the centres themselves." Specifically addressing reports that persons had been killed at Omarska, Stakić said, "There were cases as the commander let me know--natural deaths with the medical documentation of death, not murder." Stakić stated that he did not know how many persons had died, but that there were "not many". 2486/

1617. Milan Kovačević, the Prijedor city manager in Prijedor, reportedly stated that the Omarska camp was an investigative facility set up "to see who did what during the war, to find the guilty one, and to establish the innocent so that they didn't bear the consequences". He reportedly said that the camp was closed when the investigation was completed. 2487/

1618. A man identified as "Drljača", who reportedly became the Prijedor police chief when Serb forces took power, reportedly stated that 3,334 persons were arrested on suspicion of resisting or plotting against the new authorities and were taken to Omarska. He reportedly insisted that no one had been killed at Omarska, and that only two prisoners died between 25 May and mid-August, both of "natural causes". He also stated that another 49 had "disappeared", including the lord mayor of Prijedor, Muhamed ehajić, and were presumed dead. He stated that detainees were interrogated for four days and shipped out. He said that 800 detainees who were alleged to have "organized the whole thing", among them "rich Muslims who financed" the Muslim SDA political party, were taken to Manjača, which was operated by the Bosnian Serb army as a prisoner-of-war camp, to await criminal trial. Taken with them were 600 people who reputedly commanded units of the Muslim and Croat resistance. The remaining 1,999 were found innocent and taken immediately to Trnopolje, which officials said was a transit camp, Drljača reportedly said. 2488/

1619. Reports indicate that the civilian and police authorities of Prijedor administered the Omarska camp. Helsinki Watch reported that during its visit to the camp in August 1992, Serbian authorities acknowledged that approximately 3,500 persons had entered and left the camp. The authorities referred to the camp as an "interrogation centre". The camp authorities claimed that, although the "centre" was guarded by soldiers of the "Army of the Serbian Republic", prisoners were interrogated by the local police. 2489/

1620. One news report contains a photograph of the camp's alleged administrator, Nada Balaban, who was pictured with a man identified as the Prijedor chief of police. 2490/ Another report contains the same photograph of the same two individuals, with the man who was said to be the chief commander of all camps in the region. 2491/

1621. One subject reported that in early July 1992, two prominent Serbian politicians from the Banja Luka council visited the camp. He said that a man who he identified as Vojo Kuprešanin and his deputy by the last name of

Glamocanin, arrived in a limousine escorted by a blue colored APC. 2492/

1622. One subject reported that in mid-July 1992, the prime minister of the Serbian Republic, identified as Brdjanin, 2493/ came to Omarska that the prisoners were paraded before him and made to sing a Serbian national song and do the three-finger salute. Brdjanin reportedly arrived in luxury car which was followed by helicopters. 2494/

1623. One woman who was held at the camp characterized the guards as uneducated persons from the hills around Omarska. She stated that everything was done on orders from the Prijedor police. She stated that they got their orders directly from Prijedor. She added that most of the inspectors at the camp came from Prijedor and that she knew them personally. 2495/

1624. One former prisoner stated that the strategy at Omarska was to beat prisoners who were considered privileged. He added that there was a camp priority for execution, which was: a) To execute those Muslims with party affiliations when the parties did not include Serbs; b) to execute those Muslims who had been caught in battle or had been arrested in possession of guns; c) to execute civilians; and d) random killings. He stated that at Omarska, legal cases were opened up against prisoners. One such case reportedly involved 35 Muslims and Croats from Prijedor. The subject stated that all 35 were found guilty of unknown charges and were forced to sign statements admitting their guilt and accepting their fate. Those papers were then reportedly filed away, and the individuals were executed. 2496/ The subject stated that orders for executions came down through the Omarska camp command from identified officials in Prijedor. 2497/

1625. Two reports from Prijedor lawyers who were held at Omarska also alleged that a "court" was used to legitimize the executions at the Omarska camp. 2498/ The subjects identified and implicated a Serbian judge and a lawyer who reportedly headed the "court". 2499/ The subjects also identified and implicated two other men who were involved in the "court", the chief prosecutor and his deputy. 2500/ One subject stated that court also consisted of a lawyer and a secretary. 2501/ One subject stated that on the days that the judge came to Omarska, liquidations and executions began. He commented that the judge and the other man heading the court, came to Omarska to sign "death warrants". 2502/

1626. According to one report from a prisoner who was a lawyer from Prijedor, the "war court" members came to Omarska to oversee findings of the MUP inspectors on an irregular basis. 2503/ The subject reported that the Prijedor MUP inspectors handled most of the interrogations at the camp; however, on occasion, either inspectors from Banja Luka or the army reportedly came to conduct interrogations on unidentified important cases. The subject identified the alleged Prijedor MUP inspectors and staff. 2504/

1627. One subject reported information on the organization of the Prijedor Ministry of Internal Affairs (MUP), including the organizational relationship to the camps (including Omarska) and the police. The Prijedor MUP reportedly fell under the control of the Banja Luka MUP. However, parallel with the Prijedor and Banja Luka MUPs were their respective Emergency Operation Centres 2505/ Under the Prijedor MUP's control was reportedly the Prijedor Civilian Police, the Omarska Civilian Police, the Omarska Camp, the Trnopolje camp, the Keraterm camp, the "war courts", and the MUP inspectors. 2506/ The subject stated that the Prijedor Chief of Police was a member of the MUP and possibly its director. 2507/

1628. According to one report, permission to enter the Omarska camp in early August was granted by local police officials and not by the military authorities. 2508/ It was reported that the camp was run by a mix of militias and that no one group seemed to be in charge. Some of the most extreme of the local Serb population was said to be at Omarska. 2509/

1629. Intake Procedures: It was reported that upon arrival at Omarska, prisoners were forced to run through lines of soldiers, during which time they were beaten and abused. A youth from Kozarac, who was reportedly taken to the camp one evening at the end of June 1992, described how he and other prisoners with him had to pass through two lines of soldiers who formed a passage between the bus and the shed into which they were first taken. He said that they were beaten with rifle butts, truncheons and a whip as they ran the distance of about 10 metres between the bus and the shed. 2510/ Another subject similarly reported that upon disembarkment from the bus, the prisoners were brought through a 30 metre "corridor" where all were seriously beaten and abused. He stated that this "ceremony" was called the "wedding party" by the prison guards and that the prisoners were forced to the ground and badly beaten, following which they were forced to sing Serbian nationalistic songs. 2511/

1630. One subject reported that after being transported to the camp on approximately 31 May 1992, he and other prisoners were made to pass through a "gauntlet" involving beatings by Serb soldiers. He stated that the garage facility in which they were going to be taken already held about 700 prisoners and that he and the others had difficulty pushing their way in. The subject stated that at least one prisoner was killed as the result of a beating by an identified guard. 2512/ Another subject who was transported to the camp on 31 May 1992, described a similar scenario, whereby prisoners had to pass through a corridor and were beaten by guards with rifle butts along the way to a sleeping area. 2513/

1631. One unidentified prisoner stated: "When arriving in Omarska, we had to leave the bus. We were only allowed to look on the ground. I personally was not beaten, but those men who rose their head were beaten by the Četniks". 2514/ Another unidentified witness stated: "When we arrived (28 May 1992) we had to walk to the tunnel through a row of soldiers who hit us with rifle butts, rubber sticks and fists". 2515/

1632. An unidentified 53 year-old ex-prisoner stated that upon his arrival at Omarska on 28 May 1992, the first and the last five men who left his bus were shot by Serbian soldiers. 2516/

1633. A subject who had been transferred to Omarska from Keraterm on 28 May 1992, stated that after getting off the bus in Omarska, the guards took out a health care provider; 2517/ a school teacher; a health care provider; and a restaurateur and beat them severely. They were not seen thereafter. 2518/

1634. A subject who was brought to the Omarska camp on approximately 30 May 1992, stated that two prisoners were killed immediately upon arrival at the camp and that they were told that this was to avenge the death of a Serbian soldier who was killed in battle. It was reported that the prisoners then forced to lay on the "runway" the entire day. 2519/

1635. One subject reported that after being transferred to the camp from Kevljani in late May 1992, he and other prisoners were taken to a warehouse where trucks were repaired. He said that about 20 guards received men who emerged from the buses, and beat them. The subject reported that four of the men who observed this tried to escape, and three of them were killed with rifles. 2520/

1636. One subject reported that in early July 1992, new arrivals were transported in and subjected to beatings with rifle butts. The subject reported that one of these prisoners were killed as a result of the beatings. 2521/

1637. Confiscation of Valuables: It was generally reported that Serb guards would force prisoners to give up all of their belongings and to sign documents giving away their property. 2522/ Subjects similarly reported that upon arrival at the camp, they were battered by guards who took their money and other valuables. 2523/

1638. Upon their arrival at Omarska, prisoners were reportedly searched and beaten, and all items of value were confiscated. 2524/ One former prisoner who arrived at the camp in early June 1992, reported that upon leaving the buses on which they were transported to the camp, prisoners were spread-eagled against and brick wall and searched. He noted that the wall was pock-marked with bullet holes and that the ground in front was covered with large blood stains onto which a soldier in a JNA uniform spread lime powder. 2525/ Another subject stated that after arrival at the camp on 29 May 1992, he and 35 other prisoners were subjected to a thorough search by guards who took all of their possessions, including personal identity documents. The guards then reportedly registered each of them by taking their names and other personal data. The prisoners were subsequently placed in a "large hall" on the first floor of the administration building, together with 500 other prisoners. According to the subject, they received no food for four days and had to sleep on a concrete ground without any mattresses or blankets. The prisoners were reportedly interrogated three days later. 2526/

1639. One subject reported that in late May 1992, personal effects were not taken from the prisoners upon intake, although anything resembling a weapon was. The subject stated, however, that during the night, guards would steal whatever they could from the prisoners. He said that a favourite method of obtaining money was for a prisoner to be selected and told to produce a sum of money in deutsche marks in one hour. If the prisoner did not, he would be severely beaten. The subject added that in the early days other prisoners would help to raise the money, but later there was little money and many were beaten. 2527/

1640. One subject said that after arriving at the camp on 4 July 1992, he was met at the entrance by five camp guards who battered him with batons and kicked him with boots. The guards also reportedly took all of his money. He stated that he was interrogated a couple of days after his arrival at the camp. 2528/

1641. Organization of Prisoners: The following are representative accounts of where prisoners were placed, and their subsequent treatment, after their arrival at the Omarska camp.

1642. One subject who was brought to the camp from Kozarac stated that he and 160 other persons were put into a five metres by five metres room and kept there for days. He reported that they were not fed and were not allowed to use the toilet. The prisoner also reported that he was beaten by soldiers using shoes, guns, and electric cables. 2529/ Another subject who was brought to the camp from Kozarac, similarly reported that they were put into five by five metre rooms and were not fed until "much later". He added that the prisoners were not allowed to go to the toilet and were forced to relieve themselves in the room. 2530/

1643. One subject who was transferred to Omarska from Brezi \square ani stated that he and 450 other prisoners from Kevljani-Kozarac were kept in a 20 metres by 20 metres room in a truck garage where they lived for two-and-one-half months. He stated that for eight days the prisoners were given only water, for which they were required to pay and that each day five to six prisoners were called out and beaten. He stated that on the ninth day they were given some bread and on the 10th day, they were able to go to the kitchen for their meal. 2531/

1644. One prisoner who was transferred from Keraterm to Omarska stated that prisoners arriving at Omarska were lined up chest to chest or back to back in numerous tight ranks in an open area in front of the two-story buildings. He said that they were not allowed to sit down, and whenever their ranks exceeded their captors expectations, some prisoners were taken to the side and beaten and shot. It was further reported that no prisoner was assigned quarters prior to an interrogation which took place in separate rooms on the second floor of one of the two-story buildings. He said that the interrogators asked the same questions as had been asked previously at Keraterm (regarding hidden weapons, incriminating documents, gold, and any affiliation with Muslim resistance forces), as well as additional questions regarding why Muslims had not joined in the efforts against Croats, and about the employment and property of each person. According to the report, every answer was accompanied by numerous blows from a rifle butt or iron rod. He stated that the majority of deaths among inmates were caused by injuries from rifle butt blows. He also stated that it appeared that every inmate was interrogated at least twice, and noted several inmates were suspended from an overhead crane to scare them into making confessions. 2532/

1645. One subject who was transported to Omarska from Gornja Puharska stated that upon arrival at the camp, the "special cases" were immediately separated, and most were killed shortly thereafter. He said that the new arrivals were kept on the tarmac, known as the "pista", in the open between the two large buildings. For the first four days, the prisoners reportedly received no food or water. The subject estimated that there were approximately 800 prisoners on the tarmac. During that time, the prisoners were reportedly interrogated, and after being interrogated, they would be moved to a large hangar that had been used for the repair of big dump trucks used for mining. That building reportedly had six entrances for trucks and was divided into small rooms holding 120 men each. The building reportedly held 1,500 prisoners in total. The rooms there were reportedly very hot, with walls of corrugated iron and doors of steel. Each room reportedly had one very small window. On the other side of the tarmac was more of an administrative building that held what had been a canteen. The interrogations reportedly took place on the upper floor of that building which the subject estimated held about 2,000 prisoners. All of the buildings reportedly had a steel structure. 2533/

1646. One subject stated that upon arrival at Omarska after being transferred from Keraterm in late May, approximately 500 prisoners were put in a single room for five days. 2534/ He reported further that each day they were given a one and one-half litre bottle of water to share. 2535/ Another subject stated that upon arrival at the camp he was taken along with other prisoners to a garage, where 65 persons were held. The prisoners there were frequently interrogated. 2536/

1647. An imprisoned priest stated that upon his arrival at the camp he was subjected to beatings and held in one of the rooms of the "white house" He stated that 20 prisoners, all injured and some with broken limbs were crammed into this four metres by two metres space and that they were deprived of water and forced to drink their urine. He stated that his condition was such that he remained unconscious for several days before rejoining most of the camp's general population. 2537/

1648. One subject who was transported to the camp on approximately 13 July 1992 stated that he was kept in a so-called hangar building that contained truck repair workshops and garages on the ground floor. On 21 July 1992, he was reportedly transferred to a building identified as the "white house" where he was kept for seven days. 2538/

1649. Upon arrival, the prisoners were reportedly taken to what has been described as the two-story administrative building of the former mining company. 2539/ One prisoner stated that they were not provided with any food for four days but that water was available. He stated that Bosnian Serbs began to interrogate the prisoners on their sixth day at the camp. 2540/ Another prisoner reported that in early June 1992, he was given only water with a high rust content. 2541/

1650. One subject reported that after arrival at the camp, he and other prisoners were placed in room number 15. According to the subject, Muslim policemen and local businessmen were taken out and killed the same night and the rest of the prisoners were registered in the morning. The subject added that for the first 60 hours, the prisoners were given no food or water and had to relieve themselves in the same room. 2542/

1651. Interrogation Procedures: Reports indicate that prisoners were singled out for questioning and were subsequently tortured or killed. 2543/ According to reports, interrogations at Omarska were typically accompanied by beatings, torture, abuse, and killing. 2544/ One subject who arrived at the camp in late May 1992, stated that intellectuals and better-educated prisoners were usually interrogated several times and killed afterwards. 2545/

1652. According to one subject, every Muslim prisoner held at the camp was interrogated at least three times during his stay there. He stated that most of the abuse, beatings and torture occurred during interrogations, when the interrogator and the guards hit the prisoner with rifle butts and iron bars, kicked him with their feet, and cut and stabbed him with their knives. 2546/

1653. It was reported that the interrogations of prisoners were held on the top floor of the administration building and that a team of interrogators numbering over 16 worked a day shift from 9:00 a.m. to 5:00 p.m. daily. Those interrogators were reportedly called "inspectors" who were assisted by two "assistants" or guards. According to the subject, the guards had a list of those selected for interrogation, and those selected were brought to the administration building and held on the ground where they were made to stand, arms outstretched with the Serb three finger salute, and that beatings were usually administered by the guards at this point prior to the actual interrogation. Thereafter, prisoners were reportedly taken to the interrogation rooms on the top floor one at a time. The prisoners reportedly stood or sat in front of a table facing the "inspector" with two guards standing behind the prisoners. According to the report, if the inspector was not happy with a prisoner's answer, he nodded at the guards who beat the prisoner. 2547/

1654. An interrogation room was reportedly located next door to where the women in the camp slept. According to one of the women who was forced to clean the room on the mornings after beatings, the floor was often covered with fresh blood each morning. She stated that the interrogation room had three tables pushed against the walls and contained whips made from heavy cable. She also stated that the women who cleaned that room were, under threat of death, told to put back everything exactly as they had found it. 2548/

1655. Women who were held at the camp stated that the interrogators at Omarska were not professional policemen, but had held positions such as movie directors and teachers. 2549/ One of the women held at the camp estimated that 40 per cent of those killed at Omarska died during, or as a result of interrogations. She stated that she witnessed prisoners being brought back in blankets while they had walked there under their own power. She stated that she heard screams from the investigation rooms "above the restaurant", and that the camp authorities tried to drown this out with noise and music. She added that the women were sleeping in the rooms in which the interrogations took place during the day and had that they had to wash down the room before going to sleep because it was "blood-smearred". 2550/ Another woman who was held at the camp stated that after the interrogations, the women found metal bars, heavy plastic objects, pipes with iron wires and metal balls at the end, and objects made of heavy wood. She stated that the women would return these objects to the guards. She also stated that she heard screams from the room all day and that afterward the walls, closets and floors would be covered with blood. 2551/

1656. It was reported that when one prisoner was brought in for interrogation, the interrogators had prior knowledge of his military service, knowledge of weapons, and ability to play the accordion. According to the report, the goal of interrogation was to gain information on the organization of the defence of the village, the identity of wealthy persons and the location of any valuables. 2552/

1657. It was reported that interrogations carried out at night were "unofficial" and were conducted by the guards, the motive often being one of personal revenge. In addition to the unofficial beatings by the guards, the prisoners were also reportedly subjected to beatings and killing by a group which referred to by the subject as the "night visitors". 2553/

1658. One unidentified subject reported:

"Only those were repeatedly questioned who seemed to be the suspicious in some way. When they returned, they always were seriously injured . . . Most of them were questioned and tortured until they died from their injuries." 2554/

1659. Other reports similarly describe the interrogation of prisoners accompanied by beatings, torture and killings. A priest who was held at the camp from mid-June through August 1992, stated that he was tortured to make him denounce "extremists" from his village and admit that lorries delivering food for Caritas International were transporting arms. 2555/ One unidentified witness stated: "When we were questioned, we were beaten, I was beaten with a rubber stick." 2556/

1660. A subject who arrived at the camp on 28 May 1992, stated that several interrogations centred around weapons bought on the black market. He stated that one reserve policeman and another man who had bought an automatic weapon were killed in the interrogation room. 2557/

1661. One subject reported that five soldiers would approach the prisoners and one would read the names of five prisoners. Those prisoners were then required to stand, place their hands on their heads, and march to the interrogation room which was reportedly located on the second floor of the building where the prisoners obtained their food. 2558/ The subject reported that the people who were interrogated fell into three categories: 1) those who were not mistreated during the interrogation process; 2) those who were beaten but not killed; and 3) those who were killed during interrogation or later on the same day as the interrogation was conducted. He added that in at least some cases, the interrogators sought expanded biographical information on prisoners and details on participation in anti-Serb activities 2559/

1662. Other subjects stated that sometimes the interrogations used the pretence of gathering information, determining responsibility for acts of war. One subject stated:

"Someone was a sniper, someone a machine-gun runner, someone a grenade thrower. For everyone they had a charge, which was a good enough reason to beat up a person. If we'd really had that many snipers or fighters, Prijedor and Kozarac would never have fallen." 2560/

1663. It was reported that prisoners were usually interrogated after their arrival and after a list had been made of the new prisoners' names. 2561/

1664. One subject reported that after being transported to the camp on 28 May 1992, he and some other prisoners remained in the mess hall building for the first two days of their imprisonment. On the second day, camp officials reportedly began interrogations of the prisoners in an office on the second floor of the mess hall building. A guard reportedly led the prisoners to their interrogations one by one. According to the subject, an interrogator wearing a green army uniform without rank, was already seated behind a desk. The guard reportedly sat in a chair to the right of the prisoner and the prisoner was told to take a seat in front of the desk. He stated that in this case he was not mistreated during the interrogation and was offered a cigarette. He stated that he was asked his name, date of birth, name of parents, other personal information, name of siblings, his profession, name of his friends, and whether he had an official function in his village. He stated that the interrogation lasted about 30 minutes. Following the interrogation the prisoner was led to his permanent cell, located in a corner room on the ground floor of the large building which contained a high-bay vehicle work area. 2562/

1665. One subject who arrived at the camp on 30 May 1992, described the process by which prisoners were called from the "pista" into their initial interrogations. The subject stated:

"During the first four days on the tarmac, we each waited for our turn to be questioned. We saw those brought back ahead of us. Each person who was questioned came back bleeding and could hardly walk. Interrogations lasted from 15 minutes to an hour and a half, depending on who did the questioning and who was being questioned. The most unlucky were those who happened to be wearing anything with the color green, the color of the SDA (Muslim political party). If you were wearing this color, you were finished. People tried to pick off that color from their clothes so as not to be killed." 2563/

1666. One subject stated that he was taken for "examination" on 31 May 1992, a few days after arrival at the camp. He stated that he was beaten and threatened with a pistol and that his interrogators demanded him to tell them who possessed weapons and what kind of weaponry they had. 2564/

1667. One subject stated that he was brought from his detention room three days after his arrival in late May 1992, and was interrogated on the second floor of the administration building for two hours. He identified his interrogator and stated that this was his only interrogation while at the camp. He stated that the guard who brought him upstairs left the room, and that during his two hour interrogation he was not beaten or abused. 2565/ The subject stated that he was asked: the names of Muslims in his town who organized resistance and who possessed weapons; the names of rich individuals in the town and where they were hiding their valuables; the names of Muslims who were active in the Muslim Democratic Party; and names and personal data of Muslims who were members of the Territorial Defence. He also had to provide an account of his own activities between 24 and 29 May 1992. 2566/

1668. Another subject who was transferred to the camp in late May 1992, stated that several days after his arrival at the camp, he was interrogated about personal data, background, political activities and attitude, and about the rest of his family. He stated that he was not beaten during the interrogation. 2567/

1669. According to one report, in early June 1992, prisoners were interrogated on their sixth day at the camp. The interrogations were reportedly carried out in approximately 10 offices on the second floor of the building where the prisoners were held. It was reported that prisoners recognized many of their interrogators as members of the civilian police forces in Banja Luka and Prijedor. They also identified some as military police from Banja Luka. It was also reported that interrogators seemed especially anxious to learn about who was responsible for organizing the defence of villages around Prijedor and how non-Serbs were obtaining arms. 2568/

1670. One subject who had been transported to the camp from Prijedor in late June 1992, stated that interrogations started five or six days after his arrival and that the prisoners were asked who had organized an attack on Prijedor and who had smuggled arms. 2569/

1671. A subject who was transferred to the camp from Keraterm on approximately 5 July 1992, stated that upon arrival at Omarska he was interrogated twice, each time for approximately two hours. He said that both times he was interrogated by two men in military field uniforms who asked the same typical questions which had been asked at previous interrogations: if he possessed weapons or western currency; if he was politically active; for which western intelligence service he worked; or if he knew of other Muslims who did any of the above. Three soldiers were reportedly present who beat the subject during the interrogations with baseball bats and electric cables all over his body, especially to the head, legs and kidneys. He stated that at the conclusion of his second interrogation, one of the interrogators apologized for the rough treatment and told him that there had been a misunderstanding and that he would have no more problems. 2570/

1672. One subject reported that after being transported to Omarska in July 1992, prisoners were taken to the "white house" where about 15 soldiers wearing balaclavas questioned them briefly before putting them in the "bloody room". He stated that upon entering this room they were struck on the heads by two guards at the door, forced to kneel on the floor, were told to cross the room to the garage, and then were subjected to harsh beatings en route. The subject said that his ribs were broken, he fainted and regained consciousness four times, and each time was beaten and questioned. He said that he was taken to an office where four persons beat him with rifle butts and repeatedly subjected him to "cross-checked" questions and threatened to kill him. 2571/

1673. One subject 2572/ reported that on his 22nd day at the camp (on approximately 18-19 June), he was called out of "Building Number 11" at 2:00 a.m. and was interrogated by an individual who he knew before the war. He stated that the man was an officer with three chevron marks on his uniform, and that he repeatedly questioned the subject about the location of a large gun called a Mitraljez Breda. Subject denied any knowledge of such a gun and claimed that no one in Kevljani had owned such a weapon. The subject was then reportedly taken to "Building 10" to a room with four soldiers. He was then made to undress to his underwear and told to lie down on his stomach on the tile floor. One guard reportedly took an iron chair and put it on the subject's back and sat down as another guard took a large calibre automatic rifle and beat the subject on his spine with the butt of the rifle. A third guard reportedly kicked the subject along his legs and groin, while another guard continually pounded on his rib cage, breaking four of the subject's ribs. The subject stated that he lost consciousness and that the beatings continued when he came to, with one of the guards reportedly taking a police baton, and beating on his back and ribs continually and another guard pulling out a knife, threatening to circumcise him, and then reportedly cutting his kneecap. He was then made to stand up and lost consciousness and collapsed. The guards then threw water on the subject, returned his clothes, and walked him back to his room. The subject alleged that he was the first prisoner at Omarska to be returned to the rooms after a beating, and not be killed or taken to the "white house". 2573/

1674. One subject stated that unlike others at Omarska, he did not undergo an interrogation until he was at the camp for about two months. The subject stated that during his interrogation, he was beaten with a stick to the kidneys and that they wanted to know which Serbs he and his friends had killed. 2574/

1675. A number of other sources described the interrogation process at Omarska. One subject stated that:

"[t]hey would ask questions like 'Where are your weapons?' 'Were you a member of the SDA?' 'Do you like Alija?' [President Izetbegovi] and beating us with each questions. They beat us with everything available, hands, fists, guns, night sticks, baseball bats. I don't understand where they got the baseball bats. We were made to sing etnik songs and songs proclaiming Greater Serbia. They forced us to take off all of our clothes to see if we were circumcised. When I went upstairs for my questioning, I was surprised how much information they already had about me--my mother's name, my father's name, where I had been employed. . . . I was questioned for about an hour. There was an interrogator in civilian clothes who asked all the questions. I was seated in a chair. Behind the chair were three men in uniform. As I first sat down and the first questions were asked, the three of them were slapping their billy clubs into their open palms next to my ears. . . ." 2575/

1676. One subject stated that he and his 2 brothers voluntarily went to be questioned, hoping that they would be released and would be able to join their family in Trnopolje. The subject reported that he was interrogated on 6 June 1992, and that the interrogator asked, "Where were you during the attack [on your village]?" "Have you ever had weapons?" etc. One of the men who interrogated the subject had been his math teacher and reportedly kicked the subject in the chest. The subject stated that he was hit 15 to 20 times during the course of his interrogation. In an effort to scare the subject, one of the interrogators reportedly stated that the subject should be killed. 2576/

1677. One subject reported that on 27 July 1992, he was called out of the "white house" by two soldiers and then taken to an upstairs room in the building where the kitchen was located. He stated that in the interrogation room, the chief sat behind a table and two men sat one on each side. One of the two asked questions, and the other two wrote them down. After taking personal data, the chief said he wanted to eat his lunch, and the other two men reportedly took the subject into another room where there were other soldiers: a total of five men. Each man reportedly held an object for use in a beating. The objects were reported to be: a police stick; a whip; a rubber stick; a metal stick that was square in shape; and a metal ball on a chain. The subject was reportedly told to get on his knees and hands and each man hit him on the back, legs, and neck with one of the objects. The refugee stated that he had heard from the other prisoners that it was important not to fall flat on the floor because then all of the men would hit him at the same time. He stated that he was then hit repeatedly about the legs with the metal stick until his legs grew numb. After the beating he was reportedly returned to the interrogation room. The chief then reportedly asked the subject if he was ready to hear his accusation, which stated that the subject was accused of having said in Donja Puharska that Muslim men would kill all Serbian men and would keep the Serbian women for use in reproduction purposes and for sexual training of young Muslim boys. 2577/

1678. Camp Conditions-Meals-Nourishment: Reports indicate that during their first days at the camp, prisoners were generally given no food or water. 2578/ Reports indicate that the food supply at the camp was insufficient. In addition, Omarska's prisoners were given only a few minutes for the consumption of their meal. 2579/ It was generally reported that Omarska's prisoners were fed one meal per day and that the meal generally consisted of some bread and a bowl of soup or other substance. 2580/ Other reports indicate that on some days, prisoners received no food. 2581/ It was reported that the food at the camp was delivered by truck from Omarska. 2582/

1679. The following are representative accounts confirming that prisoners received inadequate and infrequent meals at the Omarska camp. One unidentified 27 year old witness stated: "The Serbs gave us one piece of bread and a little bit of water once a day. Sometimes we got warm meals, but it was rather hard to determine what it was." 2583/

1680. An ex-prisoner who arrived at the camp in late May 1992, stated that a meal consisted of 90 grams of bread and sometimes some soup broth or a cabbage leaf. He added that often, 24-60 hours would pass between meals. 2584/ Another subject during the same period of time described a similar meal including a cabbage leaf. 2585/

1681. A woman who was held at the camp stated that the male prisoners at the camp were once a day fed one-eighth of a loaf of bread and a small plate of food. 2586/ A male prisoner who was brought to the camp during the first week of June 1992, stated that prisoners were fed one meal per day consisting of a half slice of bread and one cup of soup with white beans. 2587/ Another prisoner who was brought to the camp in late May 1992, stated that every two days, they received about 100 grams of bread and a small cup of soup with a bit of rice or potato. 2588/

1682. One subject reported that many prisoners were accused of smuggling biscuits into camp. According to the subject, a pack of biscuits could be purchased from soldiers for 10 deutsch marks and that sometimes, this was the only food the prisoners would have for 36 to 48 hours. He stated that on one occasion, he bought biscuits from a soldier and was thereafter severely beaten by two other soldiers who accused him of smuggling the biscuits. 2589/

1683. Prisoners were reportedly taken to the mess hall in groups of 30. 2590/ It was reported that prisoners were ordered to leave their rooms and line up outside in their groups of 30, with heads bent down, facing the wall. They were also reportedly forbidden to turn their heads, and had to wait until ordered by a guard to walk fast, or run, to the mess hall. 2591/ A woman who was held at the camp stated that there were eight tables in the cafeteria and that the prisoners were given three minutes to eat, enter and to leave. She said that guards were positioned on both sides of the door and that prisoners had to run so as to not be beaten. 2592/

1684. There are numerous reports of abuse and daily beatings of prisoners entering and exiting the kitchen area. 2593/ There are reports that prisoners were beaten with heavy sticks, pipes, cables, and rifle butts when lining up for their meals. On their way to the "kitchen", prisoners had to go through rows of soldiers who tripped and beat them. 2594/ One ex-prisoner stated that they were made to run a type of obstacle course when they were fed (entering and exiting the cafeteria) and that they had to pass single file between Serbian guards who tripped and beat them as they ran by. Benches and tables were also said to have blocked their path and if prisoners stumbled, they were reportedly beaten even more. 2595/ Oil and water was also reportedly poured on the eating-area's floor to make it slippery. 2596/

1685. One unidentified 29 year old witness reported: "When heading towards the kitchen to get our meal, we were often beaten by the soldiers. On both sides of the way, Četniks were standing who beat us with heavy sticks." 2597/ Similarly, an unidentified 46 year old ex-prisoner stated:

"When returning to the garage after the meal, we had to go through a row of soldiers. The Serbs beat us with heavy sticks and rifle butts. In the middle of this row, there was a table which we had to climb up. The Serbs tilted the table over when a person was standing on it and beat again. . . . After meal, we had to lay on the ground. When a prisoner rose his head, he was beaten." 2598/

1686. One subject reported that on 6 June 1992, an identified prisoner looked through the camp's kitchen window when eating and was shot dead for doing so by a guard on the outside. The subject also reported that on the same day an identified prisoner was eating by the kitchen when he was asked by a guard what he was doing. The prisoner reportedly replied "I am eating cheese [Bojrum] would you like some?" As the word "Bojrum" was of Turkish origin the guard reportedly took exception to its use and began to beat the prisoner. He was thereafter joined by two other guards who reportedly beat the prisoner to death. 2599/ This same incident was reported by another source who stated that several prisoners witnessed the beating and killing of an identified prisoner. According to the source, the prisoner-victim received his daily slice of bread after which a guard said "Dobar Tek" (good appetite) to which the prisoner spontaneously replied "Bujum" (the Muslim equivalent). According to this source, several guards beat the prisoner senseless. He thereafter lay on his back and vomited and suffocated as guards reportedly prohibited others from turning him over. 2600/ Another source reported that on 6 July 1992, a prisoner said "bujrum" to one of the guards was then beaten until he died ("they were jumping on his chest until they broke his breast plate"). 2601/

1687. Water: Reports indicate that on occasion, prisoners did not receive water for days after their arrival at the Omarska camp. In one example, a prisoner who was taken to the camp in late May 1992, stated that the prisoners did not receive any water for three days after arrival at which time they were given only about 10 litres to drink for 450 men. 2602/

1688. It was also reported that the water provided to the prisoners was unfit to drink. One subject stated that the water came from two sources: directly from a well and from the river. He reported that the water was red from iron oxides and had been used to rinse the iron ore. He added that prisoners suffered from dysentery and typhoid fever. 2603/ Other subjects reported that the water provided at the camp appeared to be contaminated with oil. 2604/

1689. It was reported by one ex-prisoner that the authorities at Omarska would let prisoners drink as much water as they wanted, but due to its poor quality, the prisoners would get diarrhea or dysentery, which would force them to use the toilet and subject them to beatings. 2605/

1690. It was further reported that prisoners who stashed money away were able to buy a litre of water for 100 deutsch marks. 2606/

1691. One subject reported that the camp's prisoners were forced to sing "Četnik" songs to be given drinking water. He stated that they did not know the words and were helped by soldiers. 2607/

1692. One subject reported that in late June 1992, water became more plentiful at Omarska. 2608/

1693. Sleeping Facilities: For lack of space in some rooms, prisoners were reportedly forced to sleep in a sitting position. 2609/ In at least one severely cramped room, prisoners had to take turns sleeping. "Sleep shifts" were reported to have continued throughout the night. 2610/

1694. According to one ex-prisoner, in late May 1992, he was held in "building Number 11", in a room which was 15 by 15 metres large. He stated that approximately 450 men were forced into the room which was too small for everyone to lie down, so they took turns sitting and standing. 2611/

1695. Another subject reported that after arriving at the camp from Keraterm in late May, he and other new arrivals were taken to a room that was formally used by miners as a changing room. The prisoners were reportedly housed there until 25 June 1992. 2612/

1696. One subject stated that in late May 1992, 200 persons were initially held in a room measuring 250 square metres, but on subsequent occasions, the room contained 400 to 600 prisoners. He added that there was no furniture or bedding and that they slept on a tiled floor. 2613/

1697. One subject who was brought to the camp in late May stated upon arrival at the camp he was placed, along with 150 prisoners, into a garage where they could barely stand. Three men reportedly suffocated to death there. 2614/ Another subject stated that "[t]here was a garage where 124 men were kept [three by three]." 2615/

1698. One subject stated that on 28 May 1992, he was led to his permanent cell which was located in the ground floor of the large building which contained a high-bay vehicle work area. He said that this was the building located closest to the "white house". He described his room as a former electricians' workshop and stated that the room was about four by five metres large, with an iron door and a barred window as its only ventilation. He stated that at one point the room housed 186 men and that the men were forced to sleep on their sides on the concrete floor, without blankets, in a partial foetal position. He stated that at night guards would open the door and walk over the prisoners, and that if they found a prisoner lying in any other position, he was beaten. 2616/

1699. One subject stated that after his only interrogation, he was escorted from the administration building to "Room 15" which was located on the "second floor of the largest building where the majority of male prisoners were kept". The subject stated that the room was six by four metres large, and most of the time held 104 men 2617/ He stated that the prisoners slept on the concrete floor and had no blankets. 2618/

1700. Another subject described Room 15, which he stated held 300 to 350 men (some time in July 1992). The subject stated that the room had a small bathroom area with long, cement, trough-style sinks. The subject stated that for lack of space, prisoners slept in and under the sinks. The subject said that three faucets worked, so it was the only room available with water available to the prisoners. He stated that he slept 10 days in the room and was then moved across the hall to the shower stalls. Two prisoners reportedly slept in each stall, one metre square. The subject stated that he could only stretch his legs if he extended them up the side wall, and stated that he stayed there until early August. 2619/

1701. According to one report 475 people were accommodated in a single room estimated to be only eight metres by 14 metres in size. 2620/ A priest who was held at the camp from mid-June to August 1992, stated that the prisoners were held 100 to a room. 2621/

1702. Reports quoted ex-prisoners as stating that they were held in various areas of the camp, including: an outdoor pit; 2622/ metal cages which were part of an ore loader; 2623/ a toilet area. 2624/

1703. Medical Treatment: Most reports indicate that there was no health care provided by the Omarska camp administration. 2625/ However, some doctors among the prisoners reportedly tried to take care of the sick and wounded, without any instruments or medicine. 2626/ One unidentified subject reported that "there was no doctor in the camp. If someone was injured seriously, the Serbs let him die without any treatment". 2627/ Similarly, one subject stated that after severe beatings, the prisoners were given no medical treatment and had to use their shirts for bandages. 2628/

1704. However, one subject reported that there was a doctor and a nurse at the camp, in the "white house". 2629/ Another subject stated that during the first four to five weeks in late May-early June 1992, a Serb military doctor would visit the camp a few times a week and hold a two to three hour surgery in the "white house". 2630/

1705. It was reported that a typhus epidemic broke out in the camp at the end of June-July 1992, and that the camp's authorities did not try to stop it. 2631/ One subject stated that he never saw a medical doctor at the camp and that sick prisoners were not treated. He added that those who had typhus received no medicine and were not separated from the other prisoners, and that 100 prisoners died of the disease. 2632/ Another subject added that dozens of prisoners died of an epidemic which was probably typhus, and that healthy prisoners had to carry out dead prisoners and place them in front of the "white house". 2633/

1706. It was reported that dysentery at the camp was rampant and that conditions were so unclean that some prisoners counted 10 types of lice or vermin on their bodies. One ex-prisoner stated: "We had lice on our eyelids. They'd fall out of your beards". 2634/

1707. It was also generally reported prisoners became sick with diarrhea and that they received no medicine. One subject estimated that at least 10 prisoners died as a result of diarrhea. 2635/ Another subject estimated that at least five died as a result of the ailment. 2636/

1708. When the Omarska camp closed down, camp doctors at Manjača reportedly estimated that of the prisoners transferred there, at least one in 10 had contracted dysentery. Other prisoners reportedly suffered from untreated and festering wounds from their beatings. 2637/

1709. Toilets: Each prisoner was reportedly allowed to occasionally use a toilet for two minutes or less. 2638/ However, it was reported that prisoners who attempted to relieve themselves or use the toilet were subjected to beatings. 2639/ One subject reported that some guards would not permit prisoners to use the toilet for 10 to 15 hours. 2640/ According to one report, one latrine served about 800 inmates. 2641/ There was reportedly no toilet paper at the camp. 2642/

1710. One subject reported that there were always two to three guards stationed in the toilets, and that on one occasion, they kicked and beat him as he tried to relieve himself. He stated that he was made to pray in the

Serbian Orthodox way, and that they put his head into the toilet bowl. 2643/

1711. One subject reported that the camp initially had four toilets in "block A" and another in "block B". A few weeks after his arrival in late May 1992, one of the toilets reportedly became blocked and was inoperable. The subject stated that after this, the toilets were used only at night; and during the day the prisoners urinated into a concrete ditch running along the side of the compound and defecated on the grassy banks. The subject noted that the prisoners were always under guard. 2644/

1712. One subject who was held in "Room 15" stated that the room had no bucket where prisoners could relieve themselves during the night and they were therefore permitted to go to the toilet. However, the subject added that prisoners who asked for permission to use the toilet at night were beaten. The subject reported that on 10 July 1992, a prisoner who was sick and needed to use the toilet, was beaten by an identified guard wielding a rubber club and a wooden table leg. The prisoner reportedly defecated and had to sleep in his own waste. He was, however, allowed to clean himself at the toilet the next day. 2645/ Another subject reported that there was no toilet bucket in the room where he was held, and that people in the room were defecating blood. He stated that prisoners were not able to ask to use the toilet. 2646/

1713. Hygiene: It was reported that prisoners at the camp did not receive soap and were unable to shower or wash themselves. 2647/ An unidentified former prisoner stated that he couldn't wash for 70 days. 2648/ Another subject stated that in 72 days at the camp he did not get a change of clothes or a chance to wash, except for his hands and face. 2649/

1714. One subject reported that prisoners were allowed to bathe only twice all summer. The guards on one occasion reportedly ordered prisoners to disrobe in groups of 50 and then aimed fire hoses at their genitals. 2650/ A subject reported that on one occasion he and other prisoners were taken out to a field and hosed with cold water. 2651/ Another subject reported that occasionally prisoners were allowed to use a hydrant for bathing and washing clothes. During that time, they would strip naked and dry their clothes in the sun. 2652/

1715. It was reported that after being denied the use of the toilet, some prisoners had to wear their soiled garments for days, without having the possibility to wash them. 2653/

1716. One subject reported that all of the prisoners had lice and had to share a single comb per 100 persons. 2654/ Another subject confirmed that the prisoners at Omarska were infested with lice and other vermin. 2655/

1717. One subject reported that some prisoners received soap from their families and that they were allowed to wash in the same trough from which they drew their drinking water. 2656/

1718. Weight Loss: Numerous reports describe weight loss suffered while at the Omarska camp. One subject reported that during his 77-day confinement at Omarska from late May 1992, his weight dropped from 86 to 52 kilograms. 2657/ Other reports by ex-prisoners claim the following weight loss: 71 kilograms to 49 kilograms; 2658/ 85 kilograms to 49 kilograms; 2659/ 86 to 40 kilograms; 2660/ a total of 25 kilograms; 2661/ a total of 30 kilograms. 2662/

1719. Prisoner Routine: Reports indicate that prisoners were allowed out of their housing only once a day, in order to run to their meal at the mess hall building. 2663/

1720. One subject reported that in his case, he and the other prisoners spent most of the day in the same room in which they slept. He said that in order to get to see a friend in another building he had to bribe a guard. According to the subject, prisoners slept until 7:00 a.m. when they were allowed outside to relieve themselves. Occasionally, the guards reportedly allowed the prisoners to sit outside, but at 8:00 p.m., the doors to the "garderobe" were reportedly shut. 2664/

1721. A priest who was held at the camp from mid-June to August 1992, stated that prisoners spent the days lying face-down on the road, with guards trampling on anyone who moved. 2665/

1722. Forced Labour: One subject reported that on 30 June 1992, a group of eight prisoners was assigned to a daily work and cleanup detail, working from 7:00 a.m. to 5:00 p.m. at a slaughterhouse located 300 metres from the camp. The subject reported that their task each morning included washing interiors of between 10-15 blood-spattered trucks used to transport the bodies of prisoners who had been killed or died the previous night. The subject added that blood-stained and bent iron rods inside the trucks were also replaced with clean ones each day. The subject also stated that the prisoners also helped out at the slaughterhouse where four cows and six sheep were slaughtered to feed the guards. 2666/

1723. Another subject reported that prisoners would be picked two or three times a week to clean the camp and on several occasions qualified welders would be given the task of building up the worn teeth on the excavator buckets on the site. Those jobs were reportedly welcomed because prisoners selected received two meals daily. 2667/

1724. Special Treatment of Certain Prisoners: Reports indicate widespread killing at the camp and that political and religious leaders and professionals were particularly singled out for execution. 2668/ It was further reported that prisoners were abused every day, especially at night. The guards at the camp would reportedly pick out ten people, take them out and beat them. It was reported that the wealthier or more educated persons were usually the victims of such beatings. 2669/

1725. Reports state that prisoners were grouped into categories such as "guilty" and "innocent", depending on their level of education and wealth. According to many of the reports, mostly (but not exclusively), wealthy persons and intellectuals were executed. 2670/ One unidentified ex-prisoner reported that many people who were politically active or wealthy were killed or at least tortured. 2671/ Another unidentified subject reported the separation of prisoners at Omarska into three groups: "The first group were those who had been politically active. These people, about 1,000, were immediately shot by the Serbs". The second group reportedly consisted of civilians and the third group of prisoners who had participated in the war on the BiH side. 2672/

1726. An unidentified former prisoner who had been held at Omarska from 30 May 1992, stated:

"It often happened that the Serbs called persons by name and brought them away. During the 73 days I stayed in the camp, I saw 1,200 to 1,400 dead bodies. Every morning, there were 15-20 dead bodies in the fields of the camp A great part of the victims was rich or educated."
2673/

1727. It was also reported that at both Omarska and Keraterm, Muslim men who had been policemen were targeted for special abuse, and that many were shot to death immediately upon arrival at the camps. 2674/ One subject reported that majority of active and reserve police members at Omarska were killed at the camp. He cited one example of such a killing occurring on 27 May 1992. 2675/

1728. One subject reported that 150 persons from Kozarac were held in a garage, which was big enough to hold only 30 persons. The subject stated that persons from Kozarac were singled out for special treatment because they had put up a fight in defence of their village. 2676/

1729. Abuse During Detention: According to most reports, severe maltreatment of prisoners occurred at Omarska. 2677/

1730. One subject stated that there was a pattern to which prisoners were abused, taken away and killed. The subject stated that,

"after about 10-15 days, we understood their logic, and then one could more or less guess who would disappear from the Omarska camp. The logic was like this: first, the people who had been accused of having fought with arms against the Serb government would disappear. So the first ones they finished off were those who had weapons. When they no longer existed at Omarska, the intellectuals began to disappear. Among the intellectuals, no doctor has survived to my knowledge. After that, renowned citizens disappeared. By that I mean above all, rich people with enviable possessions. When they too had disappeared, they started to kill at random." 2678/

1731. Reports further indicate that detainees were often beaten with rubber and iron sticks, rifle butts and fists. It has also been noted in reports that many of the camp's prisoners were questioned about wealthy Bosnian Muslims and that wealthy and intellectual Bosnian Muslims were a main target of abuse, torture and killings. In this context, an unidentified subject stated:

"The soldiers often came with a list of names. Those whom they read out had to go with them. They never came back. Most of the people on these lists were in good positions before the war, like managers, owners of restaurants etc." 2679/

1732. One subject reported that at 10:00 p.m. on 15 July 1992, a couple of camp guards came to Room 15. The guards reportedly read from a list of approximately 33 prisoners, and escorted them to the former car repair shop, called the "garage" which was located on the first floor in the same building. For the next half-hour, subject and his fellow prisoners were reportedly abused by 10 men in JNA uniforms and five camp guards. Prisoners were reportedly struck with rubber clubs, made to lick the dirty garage floor and eat dirt. Other prisoners were reportedly made to smash subject's head into the concrete floor while he was laying on his stomach. The subject was thereafter kicked and trampled by two "Četniks" and was also hit in the face with a pistol. Subject reportedly broke his nose and received other injuries. Another prisoner reportedly died of his injuries. 2680/

1733. It was reported that a prisoner who had been a professor was beaten severely by an Omarska guard who was a former student. The professor had reportedly given the guard poor grades while he was in school. According to the report, the professor returned from one beating, barely conscious, spitting blood, and with double vision. 2681/

1734. One subject stated that while guards called out names from lists, many of those killed or beaten were selected at random. He stated: "the guards would come in at 3:00 a.m. and take five people out, telling us they were going to be exchanged. Where they took them, God only knows." Another subject stated that often the guards did not know whom they had beaten to death. The subject recalled that "sometimes they would call them by name. But sometimes they would ask me afterwards, 'Do you know who this is?'" The subject said that he identified many friends who had been beaten to death. 2682/

1735. One subject who arrived in the camp in late May 1992, stated that each night guards randomly selected five to 10 persons to torture and kill. The subject commented that guards would hold torture competitions, for example, to see who was the most proficient at breaking bones. 2683/

1736. One subject who was held at Omarska, compared the facility to a camp where he was held in 1945: "I was the oldest prisoner in the camp (Omarska). I know what a camp means. In 1945, I was in a camp as well. I know the rules of a camp, but there were no rules in this camp." 2684/

1737. It was reported that there were two ways to avoid beatings at Omarska: 1) Never look a guard in the eye; 2) If called to an interrogation, confuse the guards by saying that you had just come from one. To this effect, prisoners sometimes reportedly smeared themselves with blood from newly beaten detainees. 2685/

1738. Reports indicate that ill-treatment worsened when the camp's guards were drunk. 2686/ One subject reported that the violence at the camp also worsened in time as the guards "had already taken everything of value". 2687/

1739. One subject reported that he had personally been beaten only a few times by blows from a gun butt. He said, however, that he was part of only a tiny minority (some 10-15 per cent) who "got away lightly". 2688/

1740. Forced Abuse By Prisoners: There are numerous reports that Omarska's prisoners were forced to abuse one another. One subject reported that he was forced to beat his own brother and if he did not, they both feared that they would be killed. He described an instance when a police truncheon was placed into his mouth and he was told to bite it or face having it shoved down his throat and have his head smashed against a wall. He said that he was struck repeatedly about the head with a gun and when he fell, was stamped on. He said that when the "police" became tired, they forced the other prisoners to continue the beatings. 2689/

1741. According to one report, in about mid-June, guards collected prisoners who had organized defences in various villages. Those prisoners were reportedly forced to strip and were forced into vats of a chloric acid solution which caused their skin to turn a vibrant pink. The prisoners were then reportedly ordered to beat each other with metal bars and were thereafter taken away and never seen again. This scenario was reportedly repeated with at least five other groups of men. 2690/

1742. One subject reported that on one occasion a guard cut off a prisoner's ear and forced another prisoner to eat it. The subject stated that a guard also cut a piece of flesh from a wounded prisoner and told the man to eat it. 2691/

1743. See also reports of castrations below.

1744. Beatings by People from Outside the Camp: Reports also indicate that beatings at the Omarska camp were not only administered by the shift guards, but also by individuals who were allowed into the camp after dark. 2692/ One source reported that sometimes Serb civilians would come into the camp for a "little sport". He identified one of those persons who was reported to have called out the names of three well-known prisoners (formerly wealthy individuals) in the source's room and beat them for two hours with a metal pipe. The source stated that the prisoners would come back with broken wrists, battered faces, and were barely able to walk. 2693/

1745. Music During Beatings: Reports indicate the presence of music to accompany some of the abuse at the Omarska camp. One subject reported that music accompanied beatings on many occasions at Omarska. He said that while the music was played loudly, he could still hear the screaming of prisoners. 2694/ It was similarly reported,

"[w]hile they were killing, they had the radio on. The tapes, those songs on all night long. The radio was always on. While they were beating the radio was always on. But you could hear the screaming over the radio. It was louder." 2695/

1746. The "White House: and the "Red House": According to reports, the Omarska camp had two buildings used exclusively for the purpose of torture: the "white house" and "red house". According to reports, conditions at the "white house" were terrible, but on occasion, prisoners returned from it. 2696/ However, it was reported that no one sent to the "red house" ever returned. 2697/

1747. The "Red House": It was reported that the building referred to as the "red house" was where prisoners were taken to be beaten and that many of them were mutilated and killed. 2698/ It was also reported that educated persons tended to be sent to the "red house". 2699/ It was reported by some that no prisoner was known to survive the "red house". 2700/ According to reports, corpses were often dumped on the grass near the structure, where they were left out for days. 2701/

1748. It was reported by one subject that from mid-July until Omarska was closed, starting at 8:00 p.m. each evening, guards collected men from different locations in the camp and took them to a holding area at the "white house". Guards then asked the prisoners for their names and family details, and then marched them away individually. At about 4:00 a.m., prisoners would reportedly hear a truck drive up to the "red house" to collect the corpses. 2702/

1749. One subject reported that it was "normal" for up to 40 prisoners to be killed and mutilated in the "red house" in one night. 2703/ One subject who arrived at the camp in July 1992, stated that he did not know what went on in the "red house" but that he saw bodies lying outside the building among old automobile tires. He stated that the victims had obviously been killed with knives. He stated that he had observed the bodies each day when the guards escorted the prisoners outside to relieve themselves. He stated that he noticed that the dead outside the "red house" had arms or legs missing and that there was one body of a man with a slit throat. He added that the stench was unbearable. 2704/

1750. Another subject reported that he kept a count each night (for his final 20 nights at the camp) of inmates taken to the "red house". He stated that on some days there were as few as 17 taken, and on others, as many as 42. He stated that none ever returned. 2705/

1751. One report stated that three prisoners tried to buy their way out of the "red house" and that two were shot and killed in one of the compounds by a guard. 2706/

1752. One subject reported that a prisoner was suspended by his wrists in the Red House, after which the subject was forced by drunken camp guards to bite off the prisoner's genitals. This reportedly caused the death of the prisoner.

The subject was then reportedly suspended by his wrists, while a third prisoner was forced to bite off the subject's testicles. The subject reportedly lost his right testicle in this manner. He reported that an interruption to the torture prevented further injury. 2707/

1753. The "White House": The "white house" (bijela kuća) is identified in photos contained in television news reports. 2708/ Reports indicate that the "white house" was a place at Omarska where prisoners were tortured and killed. 2709/

1754. One subject described the "white house" as the "most infamous" structure at the camp. He stated that the building was where the camp authorities held those they called "extremists". According to the subject, the first room to the left was the punishment room, where "hardly anyone came out alive". 2710/

1755. Another subject stated that the "white house" was referred to as the "Abattoir". 2711/ A subject who had been taken there, said that the "white house" was also known as the "killing house". He said that prisoners estimated that only 1 per cent of those taken there remained alive. 2712/

1756. One subject reported that 10 to 15 days after being transported to the camp in late May from Kozarac, torture and executions began, mostly at the "white house". 2713/

1757. Reports stated that no one was killed with a gun at the "white house", only by beatings and the like. 2714/ According to reports, in the morning prisoners would see bodies piled up next to the white house. 2715/

1758. There are reports that prisoners could on occasion buy their way out of the "white house" by bribing guards. 2716/

1759. It was reported that every evening, soldiers would stand before the prisoners where they lay or sat on the concrete pad between the buildings and read out names from pink-colored cards. Those whose names were called 2717/ were reported to have been usually taken to the "white house". According to one subject, the men on the concrete pad could see the men being severely beaten, usually to death, in front of the "white house". 2718/

1760. One subject reported that on average, 15 prisoners were killed each night at the "little white house". He added that prisoners in the high-bay building whose detention building faced the "white house" could see the corpses piled outside. 2719/ Another subject stated that from his room behind the "white house", he could see the place where corpses were disposed of and that they could see eight to 10 new bodies brought there every day. 2720/ Another subject reported that during one month at the camp, he witnessed some of the killings in a room "next door" at the "white house" and the subsequent removal of bodies. He estimated that guards killed five to 10 men per night, and up to 30 prisoners on some nights. He added that guards sang as they beat prisoners to death and sometimes sang nationalistic and religious songs. 2721/ Another subject stated that he helped to load between five to 10 corpses daily from daily from the "white house" into a small yellow pick-up truck. 2722/

1761. There are reports that one woman who was separated from the other women at the camp from the onset, was held at the "white house". The woman was reportedly raped by other camp inmates who were coerced by guards. 2723/ In a related report, three female subjects stated that they witnessed the killing of a local politician. They stated that the man was ordered to rape a girl who was kept in the "white house". When he refused, he was reportedly castrated, had his throat cut, and his eyes gouged out. 2724/

1762. The following are representative accounts of some of the abuses which occurred in and around the "white house". One subject who was transferred to Omarska from the Prijedor police station 2725/ in late July 1992, stated that upon arrival he was put into the "white house" where he was kept for about 15 days. He stated that he was locked in a room with dozens of men, many of whom he recognized from his village of Rizvanovici. He stated that every day prisoners were taken into one of five interrogation rooms and beaten with iron bars and wooden sticks. 2726/ The subject added that on many nights guards would come and call prisoners out of the rooms and that those prisoners would never be seen again. On one occasion, when the guards came a prisoner reportedly "lost his nerve" and began to shout, whereupon the guard shot and killed him on the spot. According to the subject, he once watched through the window as guards took prisoners out of the "white house" and told them to run, shooting them in the back as they fled.

1763. According to one subject (on an unspecified date), three identified prisoners were taken into the compound area outside the accommodation block and beaten until their limbs were broken. Three unidentified Serbs then reportedly blinded the prisoners and forced knives into their mouths, thereafter turning the blades. Two of the men were reportedly killed and a third was taken that night to the "white house". According to the subject, the surviving prisoner was still alive the next morning but was loaded onto a truck with 50 dead persons who had been killed at the "white house" that night. The subject estimated that it was normal for trucks to pull up and take 40-50 bodies away from the "white house" every morning. 2727/

1764. One former prisoner estimated that four to five prisoners were killed in the "white house" per night by beatings with baseball bats, steel balls on chains, whips, and rifle butts. Afterwards, these prisoners were carried outside by other prisoners and laid on the ground. Some of those prisoners were reportedly still alive when they were loaded onto a yellow truck that came each morning to transport the dead and dying. 2728/ One subject stated that he was part of a group of prisoners who had to carry bodies of dead prisoners from the "white house". He stated that in five days in early July 1992, he carried 10 bodies out into the field behind the structure. 2729/

1765. One subject reported that prisoners were killed 20 at a time, and that those prisoners would be taken to the "white house" after 9:00 p.m., to be killed, and that the bodies were left behind the building for other prisoners to see. 2730/

1766. One subject reported that each morning, prisoners laid out corpses on the tarmac in front of the "white house". He added that others then loaded them into the small yellow truck that had just been used to deliver food to the camp's kitchen. The subject added that a four-man burial detail would accompany the truck, but only one would return alive. 2731/

1767. One subject reported that on one occasion he saw three prisoners being killed without provocation next to a ditch in front of the "white house" and that on another occasion he saw another seven men being killed in the same manner. 2732/

1768. Castration Reports: A young Bosnian Muslim subject who owned a Suzuki motorcycle was reportedly tortured in front of the other prisoners, after which time his teeth were knocked out. According to one subject, the guards then tied one end of a wire tightly around the prisoner's testicles and then tied the other end of the wire to his motorcycle. A guard then reportedly got on the motorcycle and sped off. 2733/

1769. According to one subject, a prisoner on an unspecified date asked an extreme guard if he could sneak him a bit of bread. The prisoner reportedly said "I'm hungry" to the guard. The guard then reportedly ordered another prisoner to take off his pants and then told the first prisoner to kneel in front of the other man. "If you're hungry, now you'll eat eggs", the guard reportedly said. "If you don't eat, I'll cut your throat", the guard added. The subject said that the prisoner bit off the testicles of the other man who died shortly thereafter. 2734/

1770. Another subject reported that an identified prisoner was castrated after three days of torture. The subject stated that he saw the castration through a gap in a door and that he heard crying from outside. The castration was reportedly performed by "a Serb". The subject added that a friend of the victim was made to cut his body with a knife, kiss him, and lick his blood. 2735/

1771. A television media report featured prisoner eyewitnesses and a prisoner participant in an often reported castration incident alleged to have occurred on approximately 17 June 1992. The report contained interviews with a witness who reported that Serb guards started the incident by calling up names. Q, the participant, confirmed that at around 5:15 p.m., Serb soldiers in camouflage uniforms came in to pick out a cafe-owner and active policemen to beat them up. He also reported that the guards later dragged out two truck-owners and three policemen and thereafter beat them and carved crosses on their bodies with bayonets mounted on automatic rifles. Q stated that he was then told to go outside with the other prisoners and that he had to drag them through the hall, half-dead. One witness reported that he witnessed as the guards first forced Q to jump into a duct filled with waste oil and shout, "I am a pig, I love pigs!" Q confirmed that he was forced to drink motor oil from his hand and later from a beer bottle. Another witness stated that while Q was doing this, the guards were beating the others and trampled them. Q reported that he was then forced to tear off the testicles of the other prisoners with his teeth and that the men were screaming in pain. The witness stated that one victim died immediately and that two others gave some final screams and that they were thereafter taken away in a truck. The witness stated that he and others had to clean up the blood. Q stated that he was ordered by men to tear off the other prisoners' testicles. The witness stated that the guards at the time were under the command of one who was a supervisor at the camp and whose shift was said to have been the worst. The witness stated that there were about 15 guards on this individual's shift. Q stated that the guards witnessed the incident and were laughing, and the next day they told in the "galleries" what he had done. 2736/

1772. Other reports appear to describe the same castration incident, though they vary as to details. One subject reported that Q was subjected to "genital atrocity" at the hands of a coerced friend and then killed by knife at the "White House". 2737/

1773. One subject reported that a fellow prisoner, was forced to drink a litre of motor oil and survived. The same prisoner was also reportedly forced to take part in genital biting and to at least three other prisoners. 2738/

1774. An unidentified 31 year old witness who was at the camp from 29 May to 6 August 1992, described the following incident:

"Four Muslims were taken out of the hall. Two of them were forced to tear off the genitals of the two others with their hands. Then two other Muslims were brought and they also had to tear off the genitals of the other two. Then the four Muslims were taken away by truck. When they were taken away, they were still alive." 2739/

1775. Another subject who was held at the camp from 29 May to 6 August 1992, stated that,

"three Četniks, among them [an individual] from Kozarac killed four young men. They first beat them up until they were laying on the floor, they cut their testicles . . . One of the victims was [B] . . . A Četnik cut three crosses into his body, two in his head and one in his belly."
2740/

1776. Other reports described what appears to be the same incident. 2741/ One such report identified two individuals, who often visited the camp at night. According to the report, they entered the sleeping quarters carrying pistols and automatic rifles and called for B, who was frequently abused, and two other individuals (G and R) to come forward. The three were reportedly beaten with rifle butts and police batons in full view of the other prisoners. The perpetrators then forced G to drink a glass of motor oil and then the urine of the two other prisoners. He was next beaten until unconscious and then awakened with cold water. G was thereafter forced to take his pants off and then the perpetrators reportedly forced B and R to bite off his testicles. G thereafter died of his wounds that night. These acts were reportedly committed on the shift of one of the perpetrators. 2742/

1777. Other descriptions of what appear to be the same castration incident were contained in many of the reports reviewed. Many of these reports vary as to detail, but appear to describe the same set of facts. 2743/

1778. Torture: According to reports, prisoners were forced to lay in the sun on a concrete area known as the "pista" (track) during the summer and were not allowed to move for hours, consequently suffering from sunstrokes and sunburns. 2744/

1779. One subject stated: "We spent day after day stretched out on our stomachs on the concrete of that parking area." 2745/

1780. Another subject stated:

"After 28 days, they put me on the `pista' which was an asphalt parking lot. Here I was with another 600-800 people. Most of the time we were forced to lay motionless on the asphalt on our bellies. If anybody moved the Serbs opened fire in that direction from the anti-aircraft four barrel machine-gun mounted on an armoured car by the `white house' (Bijela Kuća), usually killing 4-5 people daily and wounding others. . . ."
2746/

1781. One subject reported that after some public beatings, he saw guards pour acid on the fresh wounds of prisoners. 2747/

1782. Number of Prisoners Killed During Detention: Numerous sources referred to "lists" of prisoners to be killed or abused. However, one source reported that the Omarska authorities did not keep track of which prisoners were killed, which often caused confusion. One subject stated:

"They wanted to kill me too, but their greatest mistake was they were killing but had no records, nothing. They'd call out names of people they'd already killed. Later, when we realized what was going on, we didn't answer. They missed me. We'd no papers, they didn't know who we were." 2748/

1783. An unidentified witness who was held at the camp from 29 May to 6 August 1992, stated that he had seen about 50 executions. He further reported:

"Once they shot 20 people who had tried to flee . . . They wanted to demonstrate that it was useless to flee. They arranged that all prisoners had to watch the execution." 2749/

1784. It was reported that guards at the camp selected seven or eight victims each night using a flashlight in a darkened warehouse, where 600 to 700 prisoners were packed together. According to one subject, the only apparent trait the victims shared was their muscular build. 2750/

1785. One subject stated that seven to eight days before Omarska's closure, the rate of killing increased at the camp. 2751/

1786. A woman who was held at the camp and worked in the cafeteria stated that every day during lunch they would check how many people had been killed. She stated that as early as 7:00 a.m., the women would start counting those alive and check if they knew of someone who was missing. 2752/

1787. A number of reports estimated that 10 to 15 prisoners were killed at the camp per day. 2753/

1788. An unidentified 31 year old ex-prisoner stated:

"Every day, together with other men, I had to clean the room in which detainees were beaten with heavy metal sticks from blood. When we had finished, we had to clean two small trucks from blood, too. The trucks were full of blood because dead bodies were transported. I suppose that in this camp, every day 10 to 15 people were killed. In the evening the soldiers called these people and took them away. They never returned." 2754/

1789. A priest who was held at the camp from mid-June to August 1992, estimated that between 10-15 persons were executed at the camp every night and alleged that 1,300 prisoners were killed, mostly intellectuals. 2755/

1790. Other ex-prisoners stated that each day, 10-15 new corpses lay in the field next to one of the "dormitories". 2756/

1791. Other reports describe a higher number of daily killings at the camp. One subject reported that each night the guards at the camp would select 10-20 prisoners, beat them up, and then shoot them with pistols. He said that on the following morning, the prisoners would have to get up early to load the bodies on a "Combi" truck. The subject was not sure where the bodies were taken. 2757/ Another subject estimated that on many occasions, 20-40 prisoners were killed at night by "knife, hammer, and by burning". He stated that he witnessed the killing of one prisoner by seven guards who poured petrol on him, set him on fire, and struck him upon the head with a hammer. The subject reported that there were about 100 such killings at the camp. He stated that the intelligentsia of the camp were selected first for killing. 2758/

1792. One subject reported that:

"The guards would come and take away men, at random, it seemed. Each night gun shots would be heard and each morning at 6 o'clock we would see 20-30 dead men loaded on a truck and taken away to an unknown destination. . . ." 2759/

1793. Another subject report that 40-50 bodies a day were taken for mass burial in a nearby open mine pit between 26 June to 21 July 1992. 2760/

1794. One subject estimated that well over 1,000 prisoners died at Omarska. He stated that most died during and from beatings although shooting was heard during the first two to three weeks. He said that then he heard machine-gun fire in 30 round bursts followed by a break "as if to change magazines". He said that this would be repeated two or three times. 2761/ Another ex-prisoner estimated that between 28 May and 6 August, at least 1,000 inmates were killed at the Omarska camp. 2762/ Similarly, another subject estimated that approximately 1,300 persons who arrived at Omarska disappeared without a trace during a 75-day period beginning in late May 1992. 2763/

1795. Other estimates of the number of prisoners killed at Omarska include: "well over" 1,000; 2764/ 1,200; 2765/ 1,400; 2766/ 1,700; 2767/ 1,800 between 25 May and 6 August 1992; 2768/ 2,000; 2769/ and 3000. 2770/

1796. Specific Killing Incidents Reported: According to one subject, a prisoner begged to be killed by a gun and the answer was "no", a bullet is too expensive. According to the subject, the victim was thereafter tortured to death. 2771/ Another subject similarly reported that executions at the camp were usually carried out with knives or by beating and seldomly with firearms. He stated that a BiH Muslim prisoner survived three beatings and after the fourth beating he lay dying on the floor. One of the guards reportedly asked "what is your last wish?" The prisoner reportedly first asked for some water and then to be killed with a bullet. The guard reportedly gave the man water and let the man die from his beatings. 2772/

1797. One subject who arrived at the camp in late May 1992, from Kozarac reported that at one point guards called out a dozen people a day for five days and decapitated them with chain saws near on of the main pits. 2773/

1798. One subject reported that he witnessed as a guard at the camp used a car battery (usually used to light the hallways), to electrocute a prisoner. 2774/

1799. In late June 1992, 120 were reported to have been executed to the east side of the "white house". The men were reportedly brought in buses one night and were allegedly shot. The next morning their bodies were reportedly loaded by a bulldozer onto two trailers and taken to an unknown location. 2775/

1800. Subjects reported that during the Serbian holiday of Petrodan (St. Peter's Day) in 1992, prisoners were beaten and then thrown alive into a fire made from the large rubber tires from the excavating trucks previously used at the mine. 2776/ It was reported that on that day, volunteers from the town came to the camp to participate. There was reportedly a lot of singing, drinking, and at one point the guards had the idea to set fire to the big truck tires in the yard and to throw the prisoners onto the bonfire. 2777/ One subject reported that on 12 July, prisoners saw through a window that the guards had made a fire with old rubber tires and were trying to force prisoners to jump into it. He stated that when the prisoners resisted, the guards pulled them by their hair and beat them with shovels. He described continued beatings and abuse by the next guard shift. 2778/ Other reports appear to describe the same or similar incidents described above. 2779/

1801. It was further reported that on St. Peter's Day, a Serb religious holiday, 2780/ Serbs at the camp killed an estimated 170 prisoners in the evening. 2781/ Another subject stated that on a "holiday" in early August 1992, a group of guards arrived at the camp drunk and herded approximately 15 Muslim prisoners into the centre of the camp compound and ran them over with a bulldozer. 2782/

1802. An unidentified 27 year-old subject reported that one night, around 12 July 1992, a mass execution took place in the course of which about 60 persons were killed. 2783/

1803. According to one subject, in late July as detainees lined up for lunch, a prisoner emerged from an interrogation and had a confrontation with a guard during which the prisoner reportedly grabbed a gun, but later gave it up. According to the subject, the guards shoved the prisoner towards the "white house", poured gasoline over him and set him on fire. 2784/

1804. One unidentified ex-prisoner stated that a mass killing took place in July, when 200 prisoners were shot in one night. He stated that he and two other prisoners were taken out of their hall to load bodies onto a truck. 2785/ It was similarly reported that following the arrival of 300 prisoners from Bišani, Rizvanovići, Rakovani, Hambarine, Ćarakovo, and Zecovi, a number of prisoners were beaten and killed and those who survived were taken into a hangar at around 11:00 p.m. and were killed as well. In total, approximately 230 prisoners were said to be killed and at approximately 4:00 a.m., were loaded onto a truck. It was also reported that two trucks were filled with bodies and that those bodies were taken to the mines in Omarska and buried in mass graves. 2786/ Another subject similarly reported that on the night of 24-25 July 1992, between 11:00 p.m. and 9:00 a.m., 180 people coming from the village of Ćarakovo were killed. The subject stated that 300 persons from that village had been brought to Omarska and that all that night he heard the screams of prisoners being killed on the open ground between the "white house" and the "red house". The subject stated that on the following morning he observed a mechanical digger putting the bodies into two large trucks and that both trucks then left the camp in the direction of the mine shafts. 2787/

1805. One subject reported that on 26 July 1992, at about 3:00 p.m., a Serbian irregular came into the "white house" and declared that he had come from the front where nine Serbian soldiers had been killed. According to the subject, the irregular stated that three Muslim men would be killed for each of the Serbian soldiers and that he would return at midnight to kill them. The irregular reportedly returned after midnight on 27 July with a soldier and a truck. According to the report, the irregular and the soldier entered the room where 50-60 men were held, grabbed one prisoner and took him outside. The sound of a beating and screams for help were reportedly heard, which soon became less audible. This same routine reportedly took place until they had taken 27 prisoners. According to the report, at 5:00 a.m., the men came back and asked for four volunteers to load the dead bodies on the truck. The bodies were then reportedly taken to an unknown location. 2788/

1806. Disposal of Bodies: Reports indicate that prisoners were selected to haul away, bury, or stack-up the bodies of those killed at the camp. 2789/ It was also reported that some of the prisoners who loaded the bodies onto trucks were later executed. 2790/

1807. Reports indicate that dead prisoners were loaded onto trucks and taken away early in the morning. 2791/ It was specifically reported that small yellow trucks came to the camp each morning to load the dead and dying from outside the "white house". 2792/ It was similarly reported that following killings, prisoners were forced to throw dead bodies into a two ton yellow truck and that every day the truck was loaded about four times with dead bodies. 2793/ One subject identified an "ethnic Serb" who was charged with the daily task of carrying away the bodies of prisoners, and identified the vehicle used as a "yellow Tamic 2001 truck". 2794/ One subject described one of the trucks as being 11 metres long. 2795/ Other prisoners generally reported corpses being driven away in small trucks which often had blood stains all over them. 2796/

1808. Reports described mass killings at the camp and the process by which bodies were loaded by a bulldozer onto trailers and then taken to an unknown location. 2797/

1809. Other reports described mass graves near the camp: It was reported that the camp had one mass grave and that the dead were taken to an open mine pit near the camp by truck, and thrown into it. After the bodies were dropped in, dump trucks reportedly came and placed dirt over them. 2798/ One report stated that since the facility had been an open-pit mine, there were parts where previous digging had occurred and clay was hit instead of iron ore. Those spots were reportedly abandoned, and that was where prisoner bodies were taken for burial. 2799/ Other reports stated that the surrounding ore-pits were used to bury corpses. 2800/ One report stated that some of the Omarska camp's victims were dumped in the fish farm lakes south-west of Trnopolje. 2801/
1810. It was also reported that sometimes bodies were not even buried, but were thrown on a scrap heap. 2802/ It was further reported that frequently, corpses would lay out all day in the sunshine, before being picked up by truck. 2803/

b. Keraterm Camp

1811. (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by multiple sources including Helsinki Watch, US Department of State, Medicins Sans Frontieres, UK Defence Debriefing, Government of Austria, and ABC News.)

1812. Location: The Keraterm camp was located on the site of a ceramics factory, just outside the city of Prijedor. 2804/ According to reports, prisoners were kept in four halls, formerly used as storehouses at the ceramics factory. 2805/

1813. Description of the Keraterm Camp: The Keraterm camp's main building was described as a single two-story rectangular brick structure, measuring approximately 200 metres long by 80 metres wide. 2806/ This structure was reportedly visible from the highway. 2807/ It was reported that there was also a small building located inside the gate, which had formerly been used as a guard shack. 2808/

1814. It was reported that the rooms used to house the prisoners faced the highway and were numbered 1 through 4. One pair of rooms was reportedly separated from the other by a common bathroom. 2809/ The rooms reportedly had no ventilation, but had high, narrow windows that could not be opened and through which nothing could be seen without standing on an object. 2810/ The only way prisoners could pass from one room to the other was reportedly by going outside and along the building to the next door. 2811/

1815. On both ends of the factory building were reportedly grass-covered areas. A concrete-paved area was reportedly in the area in the centre of the yard. 2812/

1816. The camp was said to be surrounded by a one-and one-half metre high chain-link fence topped with "concertina" wire. 2813/ This fence was alternatively described as a two-metre high barbed wire fence. 2814/

1817. It was reported that there were three machine-gun posts to guard the prisoners. 2815/

1818. Number of Prisoners: The estimates of the number of prisoners held at the Keraterm camp range between 1,000 and 3,500. The reports of the number of prisoners held at the Keraterm camp vary greatly. One reason for this could be due to constant turnover of prisoners due to transfers to other camps, as well as other circumstances. For example, one subject reported that when he arrived at the camp in early July 1992, Keraterm contained an estimated 1,500 prisoners. In making this estimate, the subject noted, there was a constant turnover of prisoners, as the dead and infirm were removed and replaced with new detainees. 2816/

1819. One subject reported that when arrived at the camp from Prijedor on approximately 25 May 1992, the camp contained approximately 100 prisoners who had been arrested one day earlier. However, it was reported that the camp filled rapidly and on the day of his transfer to Omarska on 27 May 1993, there were approximately 3,500 prisoners held at the Keraterm camp. 2817/ It was similarly reported by prisoners who were brought to the camp in later May 1992, that the camp held 3,000 prisoners. 2818/

1820. The following are representative examples of the number of prisoners reported at the Keraterm camp: 1,000-1,200; 2819/ 1,500; 2820/ 1,500-3000; 2821/ 1,600-1,700; 2822/ 2,000; 2823/ 2,000-2,800; 2824/ 3,000. 2825/

1821. Sex and Age of the Prisoners: It has been generally reported that the Keraterm camp's prisoner population was all male. 2826/ Most of the men at the camp were reported to be between the ages of 15 and 60. 2827/

1822. It was reported, however, that in mid-July 1992, approximately 12 to 15 Bosnian Muslim women were brought to Keraterm, raped, and transported to the Omarska camp. 2828/ One woman reported that she was held at the camp for one evening and was raped by a man who she identified as Keraterm's commander. 2829/

1823. Ethnicity of Prisoners: It was generally reported that most of the prisoners at the Keraterm camp were Bosnian Muslims, with most of the remainder being Croatian. One subject who was held at the camp from 26 June 1992 until 5 July 1992 estimated that 85 per cent of the prisoners held at the camp were Bosnian Muslims and 15 per cent were Croatian. 2830/

1824. Categorization and Organization of Prisoners: One subject from Trnopolje who was held at the camp from 27 May to late July 1992 reported that there was a system at the Keraterm camp to process, identify, and house three categories of prisoners. The subject stated that at the end of May 1992, newly arrived prisoners were taken into a room to be interrogated individually. According to the subject, the questions most frequently asked during interrogation concerned the names of persons selling and buying weapons; persons who had fought against the Bosnian Serbs; persons who were members of the Muslim Party for Democratic Action (SDA); policemen; professionals and highly educated individuals such as doctors, lawyers and teachers, and engineers. After the interrogation was completed, the prisoners were reportedly classified into one of the following three categories: Category A: Prisoners who had not confessed to any crimes, were not members of the SDA, and were not professionals or highly educated individuals. (Category A was reportedly entered on their administrative records and their clothing was marked with green paint); Category B: Prisoners who had confessed during their interrogation to having fought against the Serbs, or who were members of the SDA, were policemen, or were professionals or highly educated individuals. (Category B was reportedly entered on their administrative records and their clothing was marked with black paint); Category C: Prisoners who were female, men over the age of 65, and boys under the age of 14 or 15. (Category C was reportedly entered on their administrative records and their clothing was marked with yellow paint).

According to the subject, once the prisoners were categorized, they were sent to the holding area for their assigned category. The first section was reportedly the holding area for the Category C prisoners, the second section, the holding area for the Category A prisoners, and the third the holding area for the Category B prisoners. According to the subject, each day a group of between 30 to 40 prisoners from holding area three containing the Category B prisoners were led away with their hands tied behind their backs with wire and placed onto military trucks. The subject reported that the trucks would leave at night and return empty several hours later and the prisoners were not seen or heard from again. 2831/

1825. Room 1: It was reported that in late May 1992, the prisoners were usually placed in Room 1, which was described as approximately 80 square metres in size, with a ceiling approximately three metres high. 2832/

1826. One subject who was held at the camp from late May 1992 to August 1992 estimated that 250 prisoners were kept in Room 1. 2833/

1827. Room 2: It was reported that once Room 1 became too crowded, prisoners were moved into Room 2, which was twice as large, measuring approximately 160 square metres. According to one report, the room routinely held between 700 to 800 men and was generally used as a holding cell for prisoners awaiting interrogation. 2834/ Once Rooms 1 and 2 were full, prisoners were reportedly taken from Room 2 in groups of 10 and lined up in the corridor, where they waited for interrogation. 2835/ It was reported by one subject that up until 10 July 1992, the only prisoners at the camp were from Prijedor and they were concentrated in Rooms 1 and 2. At one time, it is alleged, there were approximately 1,200 prisoners crammed together into the two rooms. 2836/

1828. One subject who was held at the camp from late May 1992 to August 1992 estimated that about 500 prisoners were held in Room 2. 2837/

1829. Rooms 3 and 4: One subject who was held at the camp from late May 1992 to August 1992 estimated that about 300 prisoners were held in Room 3. 2838/

1830. It was reported that prisoners in Room 3 were given the worst treatment. 2839/ It was further reported that Room 3 was used for torture and killings. 2840/

1831. It was reported that on the afternoon of 10 June 1992, Keraterm's commander ordered all prisoners to be transferred to Rooms 3 and 4. It was also reported that after the arrival of busloads of prisoners from the outskirts of Prijedor, beatings at the Keraterm camp became more harsh for all of the camp's prisoners. The day of 10 June 1992 was also reportedly significant because, from then on all of the new prisoners were reportedly sent first to Room 3 upon arrival instead of Room 1. 2841/

1832. It was also reported that before the arrival of approximately 10 busloads of prisoners from villages southwest of Prijedor, prisoners at Keraterm were not killed by bullets, but by beatings and other means. One subject reported that on 16 July, mass-scale murders began at the camp. 2842/

1833. Dates of Operation-Camp Opening: It was reported that the camp opened between approximately 20 and 26 May 1992. 2843/

1834. Origin and Movement of Prisoners: The Keraterm camp was described in one report as a kind of a collection-transit camp where most detainees were delivered upon arrest and were kept only a few days. The prisoners were usually brought to Keraterm for interrogation or until space was found at the other camps in the area. 2844/ There were, however, a significant number of prisoners who were reported to have remained at the camp for extended periods of time.

1835. Kozaruša, May 1992: One subject reported that on 20 May 1992, Serb forces began to shell the village of Kozaruša and continued to do so for two days. Thereafter, 200 male inhabitants were reportedly rounded up and packed into buses to be taken to camps, including Keraterm, Omarska and Trnopolje. An undisclosed number of villagers were taken to the Keraterm camp, where they reportedly remained for two days. According to the subject, many of the prisoners were beaten and abused by camp guards there. The subject reported that on or about 23 May, Keraterm was emptied, and about 300 prisoners were transported to the Omarska camp. 2845/

1836. Another subject reported that on 24 May 1992, Kozaruša was attacked and Muslim men were either killed or arrested. The subject reported that within hours, the men who had been arrested were taken by truck to a "makeshift" camp at the Keraterm factory. The subject stated that after being interrogated for an unspecified period of time, prisoners were transported on crowded and overheated buses to Omarska, where they arrived on 28 May 1992. 2846/

1837. Prijedor, May-June-July 1992: One subject reported that he was arrested and brought to the Prijedor police station on approximately 24 May 1992, and kept overnight in the street there with other men, women and children. The men in the group (approximately 50) were reportedly registered and abused. The next day the women and children were reportedly taken to the Trnopolje camp and the men were taken to Keraterm camp. Subject reported that he, his son, and dozens of other prisoners, were transferred to the Omarska camp on 27 May 1992. 2847/

1838. Another subject reported that he was arrested in Kozarac on 25 May 1992, and along with 50 to 60 men, women and children, were put on buses to the Prijedor police station. The men in the group were thereafter separated and abused for an undisclosed period of time. A small bus thereafter arrived and transported some of the men to the Keraterm camp. The subject reported that he was transported to the Omarska camp at 2230 hours on 27 May 1992. 2848/

1839. One subject reported that on 26 May 1992 at 8:00 p.m., JNA soldiers and armed members of the Prijedor branch of the Serbian Democratic Party began arresting residents of Kozarac and the neighbouring villages and until 3:00 a.m., over 200 persons from Kozarac and Prijedor were imprisoned at the Keraterm camp. The subject reported the number of prisoners at the camp grew with every hour, and that eventually, a large number of prisoners were held there. 2849/

1840. It was reported that on 31 May 1992, approximately 300 Bosnian Muslim men were arrested in the new section of Prijedor and were kept in the street until about 4:00 p.m.. Five buses then reportedly transported the men first to the Omarska camp where they got off the buses and re-boarded. The prisoners were then reportedly taken to the Keraterm camp where they arrived at about 10:00 p.m.. 2850/

1841. One subject reported that he and his sons and nephew were taken into custody in June 1992 by four well-armed soldiers, and interrogated at the "SUP" base. All except the subject's nephew, who was taken to another location, were let go. The subject reported that he was released on the condition that he report to the authorities via telephone daily. The subject reported that on 4 June 1992 he was arrested and taken to the Keraterm camp. 2851/ In a similar report, a subject reported that in June 1992 he was arrested along with his sons and their cousin by four Serbian "special militia" and taken to the Prijedor police station by truck. The subject stated that after his arrest he was interrogated and verbally abused. The subject that he was accused of aiding Muslim forces and buying weapons for them. The subject reported that he was thereafter released with his sons but was re-arrested by the "specijalna militija" and taken back to the Prijedor police station where he was physically abused by two policemen. The subject stated that after two days, he was transferred to the Keraterm camp at about 8:00 p.m. on 6 July 1992. The subject stated that he remained at the Keraterm camp for only five hours before being taken in a police car to the Omarska camp, which was about a 30 minute drive. 2852/

1842. One subject reported that after being transported to the Omarska camp from Kozarac on approximately 3 June 1992, he was abused, and after nine days was eventually taken to the Prijedor hospital, where he reportedly spent 11 days without medical treatment. The subject was thereafter taken to the Keraterm camp. After being subjected to abuse, and being "interviewed" for an undisclosed period of time, the subject was reportedly taken to the Omarska camp again. 2853/

1843.

1843. One subject, reported that on 13 June 1992, he was taken to the Keraterm camp from his home by six Serbian policemen. 2854/

1844. A subject reported that he was arrested in Prijedor on 26 June 1992 and interrogated and beaten by a military official and a SUP official. The subject reported that on the same day, he and seven other Bosnian Muslims were taken to the Keraterm camp where their interrogation protocols were handed over to the camp administration by the accompanying guards. The subject reported that he and the other prisoners were beaten by guards upon arrival at the camp, and that three of the other prisoners were stabbed with a knife and injured. The subject reported that he was not interrogated at Keraterm and remained there until he was transferred to Omarska on 5 July 1992. 2855/

1845. Kozarac, May 1992: It was reported that on 24 May 1992, irregular Serbian forces entered Kozarac, shooting tanks and guns. One subject reported that on 25 May 1992 he began to evacuate a group of persons through the woods towards the Croatian border, and thereafter decided that the group should give itself up. After some members of the group were reportedly killed during its surrender, the subject reported that he was taken on a bus to the Keraterm camp. The subject reported that 120 persons spent two nights on a bus parked at the camp gate, without fresh air or water, and that on the third day, the men were taken off of the bus single file, whereupon, Serbian soldiers beat them on the back and limbs with police batons. According to the subject, the group spent two nights at Keraterm, and on the third day, he and many others were called out at 1:00 a.m., loaded onto buses, told to keep their heads down, and driven to the Omarska camp. 2856/ It was similarly reported that after the attack on Kozarac on 24 May 1992, forces entered the city with a list of religious officials, policemen and other persons of special interest. It was reported that those on the list were killed if found, and the others were taken to camps including Keraterm. 2857/

1846. One subject from Kozarac reported that on 26 May 1992, after hiding for two days during attacks, 1,500 persons were escorted back to Kozarac by JNA-Serbian soldiers. In Kozarac, the men were reportedly separated and informed that they were being taken for an investigation. Subject reported that two buses of men were taken to the "Keraterm" camp where they were locked in the buses for an hour, with the heating turned up to the maximum. The prisoners were then reportedly transported to Omarska via "Brešani". 2858/

1847. On approximately 29 May 1992, a subject and his friends (who were reportedly involved in the Bosnian Muslim armed resistance in Kozarac), were captured in the nearby woods and taken to the Keraterm camp for the first night. They were thereafter transported to the Omarska camp in a police wagon. 2859/

1848. It was reported (by persons already at the camp) that 300 prisoners arrived at Keraterm from Kozarac on 20 July 1992. 2860/

1849. Various Villages, May-June 1992: One female subject reported that shortly after 23 May 1992, following the attack on her village, she and other women were captured and taken to the Keraterm camp. The women appear to have been transferred relatively quickly to the Trnopolje camp. 2861/

1850. One subject reported that on 21 May 1992, he and eight other men from Trnopolje were rounded up and taken to the Trnopolje camp where they were held until 27 May 1992. The subject reported that on that date they were taken by truck at noon to the Keraterm camp. 2862/

1851. One subject reported that in late May 1992, Serbian "irregular" forces arrested him and the rest of the Muslim male inhabitants of Donji Garevci (six kilometres from Prijedor). The men were reportedly marched to the Trnopolje camp and put on buses to the Omarska camp. Once at Omarska, they found that the camp was full and the prisoners were thereafter transported and imprisoned at the Keraterm camp. 2863/

1852. It was reported that on 10 June 1992, the first busloads of prisoners from the outskirts of Prijedor arrived at the Keraterm camp. One subject reported that nearly 400 men were brought to the Keraterm camp from the villages of Trnopolje, Kozarac, Garevci and Kamišani. All had reportedly been beaten prior to their arrival. 2864/

1853. It was reported that villagers from Sivci were taken to the Keraterm camp on 14 June 1992. 2865/

1854. It was reported that on 14 June 1992, male Muslim inhabitants of Trnopolje were taken prisoner by Bosnian Serb forces in the city who stated that the men were to be arrested for routine questioning. The 550 men were then transported in 15 buses to the Keraterm camp and incarcerated. 2866/

1855. It was reported that on 24 June 1992, Serbian irregular forces transported a busload of male civilians from Zecovi to the Keraterm camp. The prisoners reportedly arrived at the camp at about 3:00 hours. 2867/

1856. It was reported that on approximately 16 July 1992, 10 busloads of men arrived at Keraterm from villages southwest of Prijedor, including Hambarine, Rakovani, Ćarakovo, Bišani, Zecovi, Ljubija, and Ravska. 2868/

1857. One subject reported that he was arrested by Serbian soldiers on 20 July 1992 and taken to the Keraterm camp via bus. 2869/ Another subject reported that on 20 July 1992 he was bused to the Keraterm camp along with hundreds of other prisoners from his village of Hambarine. 2870/

1858. Subject reported that adult Muslim males were rounded up in Matrići and marched to Trnopolje. Serb "irregulars" reportedly beat and killed some of the men along the way. Upon arrival at Trnopolje, the men were bused to the Omarska camp (which was reportedly full), and thereafter taken to the Keraterm camp. 2871/

1859. One subject reported that Serb forces captured him and others from the area of the village of Rizvanovici (and other villages near Prijedor) and forced them to lie in ditches near a road. The soldiers then reportedly abused the prisoners for one hour until buses arrived. Half of the men were reportedly transported to the Keraterm camp. At Keraterm, they were reportedly led off the bus and lined up in front of a wire fence where a group of civilian women abused them verbally and allegedly pelted them with stones. Thereafter, the prisoners were informed that there was no room for them at Keraterm, and they were thereafter loaded back onto their buses and brought to the Trnopolje camp via the Omarska camp (which was also reported to be full). 2872/

1860. Transfer of Prisoners-Camp Closing: Reports indicate that the Keraterm camp was closed during the first week of August, 1992. It was reported that Keraterm and the Omarska camps were closed during the first week of August 1992 following an international outcry after media reports on conditions in camps in the region. 2873/

1861. According to one subject, on 2 August 1992, several prisoners were loaded into buses and taken away. The subject alleged that most of the prisoners were killed as they got onto the bus and that blood was seen running from the bottom of the vehicle. 2874/

1862. Other subjects reported that on 3 August 1992, the last remaining 700 prisoners at the camp were transferred to the Trnopolje camp, along with several of the camp's guards. 2875/

1863. A number of subjects reported that the Keraterm camp closed on 5 August 1992. Some prisoners were reportedly taken to Omarska, and 1,200 were taken to the Trnopolje camp. 2876/ One subject reported that in early August 1992, Keraterm's prisoners were dispersed to other camps. The subject stated that two buses were to transport a total of 120 prisoners (who were called off a list), to the Omarska camp, but possibly because it too was closing, the two buses instead took the prisoners to the Manjaa camp. The subject stated that the rest of the prisoners (totaling approximately 2,000 men, including subject), were all sent to the Trnopolje camp. 2877/

1864. One subject reported that he was transferred to the Trnopolje camp on 15 August 1992. 2878/

1865. One subject reported that prior to the camp's closing, some prisoners being held there were moved to the Omarska camp in the middle of the night of 27 May 1992. 2879/

1866. Visits to Keraterm by Outside Organizations and Individuals: One subject described the preparations made in anticipation of the arrival of television journalists at the Keraterm camp. The subject stated that camp authorities:

"[f]ound wooden pallets and forced us to take them out and wash. They disinfected the camp. They selected those who were ill and loaded them into trucks and they did not come back. . . . We and others from Keraterm were transferred to Omarska and Trnopolje when they heard that the journalists would come. There was no shooting by cameras in Keraterm." 2880/

1867. According to reports, in August 1992, western journalists visited what was represented to be the Keraterm camp. The facility which they viewed was described as very clean. When Bosnian Serbian authorities were questioned by journalists about whether anyone had been beaten or killed at the facility, they reportedly stated that those were only stories which were not true. However, after seeing the videotape of the journalists' visit to the facility, former prisoners stated that the site viewed by journalists was not the Keraterm camp, but was a brick factory located about 300 metres from the actual camp. 2881/

1868. Helsinki Watch reported that it visited the Keraterm camp in August 1992, and that Serbian military authorities showed them one part of the factory which was empty. The area had reportedly been cleaned, and the walls freshly painted. There was reportedly a large ceramic baking kiln in the hall. Helsinki Watch stated that none of Keraterm's ex-detainees interviewed, remembered a kiln in their place of detention. Based on this information, Helsinki Watch believed that it was not shown all or any of the areas in which prisoners were kept. Helsinki Watch also reported that its representatives observed that the outside wall in front of one of the rooms had been repaired. 2882/

1869. Other sources reported that western journalists who visited the Keraterm camp in August 1992 were prevented from examining the location where the July 1992 mass killings took place. Two unidentified journalists reportedly stated that it appeared that local authorities there were cleaning a wall and adjacent area where prisoners had allegedly been shot. 2883/

1870. Another report stated that while western journalists were not shown the room where the shooting was said to have taken place on their first visit in early August 1992, a return trip approximately a week later found the doorway and the outside wall of the room where the alleged incident took place, pocked with what appeared to be bullet holes. New panes of glass had reportedly been installed on the window panes which still had their masking tape across them. 2884/

1871. Intake Procedures: Prisoners arriving at the Keraterm camp were reported to have been subjected to a variety of abuses. One subject reported that upon arrival at the camp on 24 June 1992, the prisoners were met by a group of soldiers and camp guards who proceeded to beat them with baseball bats and rifle butts as they came off the bus. The subject reported that prior to entering their detention rooms, the prisoners were subjected to a registration process, which included demands for all valuables. A man in civilian clothes reportedly asked the subject his full name, date of birth, and place of residence and wrote this information into a large record book. 2885/

1872. One subject reported that prisoners who arrived at the camp in late May 1992 were formed into three groups and were administered a beating before being put into a crowded room with over 200 people. 2886/

1873. It was reported that during intake, prisoners had to leave their buses in groups of five and were beaten with heavy sticks to the head. It was also reported that after arriving in the evening, the prisoners had to walk to the camp building through rows of soldiers who beat them. One subject who arrived on 9 July 1992 reported that two prisoners died the same night due to their injuries. Another subject, who also arrived at the Keraterm camp on 9 July 1992, reported that the arriving prisoners had to line up and sing Serbian songs, and that soldiers shot around in order to make them sing louder. 2887/

1874. It was reported that upon their arrival at the camp, prisoners were registered and frequently searched for valuable items and money. Ill-treatment upon intake was also reported. 2888/ One subject reported that upon arrival at the camp, his personal possessions, documents, belt and bootlaces, and other items were removed. 2889/

1875. According to one subject, when prisoners were initially processed at the camp they were first checked by a guard upon arrival. The subject identified one guard who was almost always on duty at night during the prisoner arrival and described the young man as especially brutal. The subject reported that when processing prisoners, the guard would routinely strip them of their jewelry and money, and then beat them using metal pipes or thick wooden sticks, often breaking their bones. 2890/ Another subject described a process, by which all of the prisoners got off their bus and put their hands up in the air. One-by-one, the men went to a porter, who took all of their belongings. The prisoners were then reportedly brought to their accommodations. 2891/

1876. It was also reported that when prisoners arrived at the camp, they were first checked by guards to ensure that they did not possess weapons. The prisoners were then reportedly taken to one of the four rooms used for accommodation. 2892/

1877. One subject reported that when his group arrived at the camp in late May 1992, one of the prisoners asked an identified guard for a cigarette and was told to come down from the truck to get it. The guard reportedly fired a single rifle shot and killed the prisoner. 2893/ Another subject reported that upon arrival at the camp from Prijedor on 26 June 1992, he and seven other prisoners were beaten, and three of the prisoners were stabbed with a knife and wounded. 2894/

1878. One subject reported that upon arrival at the Keraterm camp in early July 1992, the guards formed a gauntlet, and the prisoners had to walk singly into the building. The guards reportedly beat the prisoners with various implements. 2895/

1879. Another subject reported that after they were registered in late June 1992, the prisoners were beaten and brought to their respective detention rooms. The subject reported that Room 1 was filled with men, many of whom were begging for help. After a short time, four or five Serb guards reportedly opened the door to the room and asked: "Who is new?" The approximately 20 newly arrived prisoners to Room 1 reportedly responded and were taken out into the courtyard where the guards arranged them into a circle and once again demanded money and valuables. About 10 more guards were said to have come to the circle, and then all of the guards reportedly beat the prisoners' heads, ribs, backs and legs with the butts of their M-48 rifles. Five of the prisoners were reportedly killed by the beating and the rest of the prisoners were returned to Room 1. According to the subject, the guards then moved on to another detention room and repeated the process of calling for newly arrived prisoners. 2896/

1880. Interrogations: It was reported that all of the prisoners at the Keraterm camp were interrogated and that the interrogations were held in rooms on the second floor of the main camp building. 2897/ It was further reported that during the interrogations, most everyone was severely beaten. After interrogations, educated and wealthy prisoners were reportedly beaten to death. Those individuals who confessed to having weapons at home were reportedly taken to the Omarska camp. The others reportedly remained at the Keraterm camp. 2898/

1881. A subject who was taken to the camp in late May 1992, and was transferred to the Omarska camp three to four days later, stated that the prisoners at Keraterm were interrogated and that none of them remained at the camp for more than four days. The subject added that every Muslim detained at the camp was subjected to several interrogations accompanied by beatings. The interrogators reportedly questioned inmates about hidden weapons, incriminating documents, and gold. The interrogators also reportedly accused prisoners of being members of or having affiliation with Muslim resistance forces. 2899/

1882. A subject who was held at Keraterm from 13 June to August 1992 reported that one day, all of the inhabitants of Kamiani detained at the camp were called out:

"We had to line up in front of the building, face to the wall, and they asked us if we knew somebody who owned a weapon. Those who said 'no' were beaten on the head, the neck and in the ribs with a wooden stick. Whoever dared to resist or just to turn his head was beaten to unconsciousness."

Another witness reportedly confirmed that it was a common practice for guards to single out a group of men from the same region. 2900/

1883. One subject similarly reported that on his second day in the camp in mid-June 1992, 40 prisoners from the village of Kamiani were called out by an identified guard, who screamed at them and beat them outside the dormitory with a baton. The subject reported further that the prisoners were asked who had kept firearms at home and that the subject was identified and was beaten repeatedly with thick electric cables and truncheons. The subject reported that three days later, two of the guards who had beaten him, yelled at him about his supposed involvement in the attack on a Serb village. The subject reported that he tried to defend himself and that an identified guard pulled out a knife to gouge out his eyes, but that subject managed to push away the guard's arm and instead had the right side of his neck slashed. The subject reported that the guard then pulled the trigger of an un-loaded pistol point-blank at subject's temple, whereupon the subject confessed to having fired on the Serb village, although he had not done so. The subject reported that the identified guard then unsuccessfully attempted to cut off his ear and thereafter stabbed both of the subject's thigh and twisted the knife, taking out pieces of flesh. 2901/

1884. Another subject reported:

"I was questioned and beaten . . . I also saw how others were beaten with heavy objects. They were beaten with rifle butts and heavy sticks. Some of them died of their injuries. Once I saw how a soldier stabbed a knife into the leg of a prisoner." 2902/

1885. It was reported that prisoners were questioned about who had fired upon them from villages and who had weapons and other materials. One subject reported that interrogators attempted to coerce them into joining their forces. 2903/

1886. One subject reported that during his nearly three month stay at the camp, he was interrogated on three occasions, each time for 20 minutes. He stated that two Bosnian Serb police interrogators in blue uniforms questioned him about his relatives, his last employment in Croatia, the names and activities of co-workers, if he knew other Muslims or Croats who possessed weapons, and if he was a member of a political party. The subject reported that during the interrogations he had to keep his hands crossed behind his head and was beaten with clubs and fists. 2904/

1887. Camp Conditions-Meals-Nourishment: Numerous reports describe a situation in which prisoners were denied food and drink for extended periods of time and during their first days at the camp. 2905/

1888. It was generally reported that prisoners at the camp received one meal per day, composed of two slices of bread and a kind of soup. 2906/ It was similarly reported that prisoners received daily rations consisting of two pieces of bread and a couple of scoops of beans or peas. 2907/

1889. One subject who was held in room number three, stated that prisoners in his area of detention were fed one meal a day, usually outdoors. 2908/ It was also reported that on occasion, food was withheld as a punitive measure. He stated: "Sometimes, we were not fed. We were being specially punished. The men in the other rooms were fed but we were not." 2909/

1890. It was reported that prisoners at the camp were abused during mealtime. 2910/ Prisoners were beaten on their way to the place where food was handed out. Guards reportedly lined up to beat the crowd of prisoners arbitrarily and some subjects described oil and water being poured on steps to cause prisoners to fall and suffer further beatings. 2911/ Other examples of abuse during meal-time was reported. 2912/

1891. Water: It was reported that the prisoners were not routinely given water but that they were given containers which they could fill themselves in the bathroom, if given the chance. 2913/ One subject reported that the "second section" had a water faucet which permitted prisoners to drink water whenever they desired. 2914/

1892. Other subjects described low quality water. One subject who arrived at the camp on 20 July 1992, described being given "some type of polluted water to drink." 2915/ The water was also described as: "river water which had been formerly used as cooling water for the factory circuits". 2916/

1893. Sleeping Facilities: It was reported that the prisoners at the camp were held in overcrowded rooms, where it was often impossible to sit or lay down. 2917/ One subject described the conditions at the camp on 20 July 1992, when he was placed in room number three. He reported that the room had about 400 men occupying it. The subject stated that people were standing on top of each other; that there was no air to breathe, and that it was very hot. 2918/

1894. One subject reported that in early July 1992, he was brought to an unidentified room which held an estimated 550 prisoners. The subject reported that the prisoners were packed so tightly into this and other rooms that they could sit, but they could not lie down. 2919/ Another subject described a similar room holding 550 prisoners. According to the subject, the room was so crowded that the prisoners had to take turns standing so some could lie or sit. However, the subject noted that there were beds in the room for the oldest and sickest prisoners. The room was reportedly the largest at the camp. 2920/ Another subject similarly described a room in the second "section" which held 550 prisoners. He estimated that the third and fourth "sections" held approximately 250 or more prisoners each. The subject reported that in the second "section", three prisoners were made to share a one square metre space. He added that they hardly had any room to stand and move, and when sleeping they had to lay over each other. 2921/

1895. One subject reported that after arriving at the camp on 20 July 1992, the prisoners were processed and taken to a larger room which already housed prisoners. According to the subject, there were about 300 prisoners in the room, but as buses kept arriving, more men were put inside. The subject stated that although prisoners were already crowded against the walls of the room, an additional 100 prisoners were placed there. Eventually, 400 men were crowded into the room. 2922/

1896. It was reported that although there were often stifling hot temperatures in the rooms, prisoners were not allowed to open the windows. 2923/

1897. Prisoners at the camp reportedly slept without blankets on concrete floors. 2924/ It was further reported, that the prisoners slept partly on pallets. 2925/ One subject reported that the oldest and sickest prisoners had beds. 2926/

1898. Medical Treatment: It was reported that the Keraterm camp had no medical infirmary, no medical personnel and that the prisoners at the camp received no medical care. Some prisoners, however, were reportedly cared for by a doctor who was imprisoned with them. 2927/

1899. It was reported that prisoners at the camp suffered from diarrhoea, fleas, and serious weight loss. 2928/

1900. It was reported that the bathroom had no functioning plumbing and that dysentery resulted, though not at an epidemic proportion. 2929/

1901. Toilets: It was reported that a common bathroom area separated the two pairs of rooms at the camp, and was located between Rooms 2 and 3. 2930/ The bathroom reportedly had no functioning plumbing. 2931/ Each latrine was reported to have used buckets or barrels. 2932/ It was also reported that there was no toilet paper in the bathroom. 2933/

1902. Prisoners were reportedly not allowed to use the bathroom at night, but were given containers which they could use in their holding areas. 2934/ One subject reported that in one corner of each room was a metal barrel to be used by prisoners as a toilet during the night. According to the subject, the container in the second room frequently overflowed and the feces spilled onto the floor. 2935/

1903. During the day, the prisoners were allowed to use the bathroom, but as they passed outside from their rooms, they were reportedly kicked and severely beaten by the guards using metal pipes and rifle butts. 2936/ A number of reports describe the beating and sometimes killing, of prisoners going to or returning from the toilet facilities. 2937/

1904. Hygiene: It was generally reported that Keraterm's prisoners were unable to wash and were not provided with soap. 2938/ One subject reported that he went for 53 days without washing, shaving or washing his clothes. 2939/ Another subject reported:

"[w]e had lice. I couldn't wash for 55 days. We couldn't shave
In the hall in which I stayed there was a barrel for relieving nature.
When it was full, the excess was laying around." 2940/

Other subjects report that they did not wash for extended periods of time. 2941/

1905. One subject reported that at 6:00 a.m., the prisoners were allowed to remain outdoors for about an hour, during which time they could clean themselves. The subject added that if a prisoner had to use the bathroom at another time, he had to relieve himself in his room. 2942/

1906. Weight Loss: One source reported that prisoners held at the camp for longer periods of time, suffered weight loss of 20 kilograms on the average. 2943/ Others reported a weight loss of up to approximately 30 kilograms after 50 days at the camp. 2944/

1907. Individual subjects reported the following weight loss: 32 kilograms from late May until August 1992; 2945/ 23 kilograms from late May to August 1992; 2946/ 17 kilograms in 29 days from late May 1992; 2947/ and 10 kilograms from late June to early August 1992. 2948/

1908. Prisoner Routine: It was reported that prisoner exercise was limited to a few minutes a day in a small, paved courtyard off the northwest side of the building. 2949/

1909. It was also reported that guards tolerated occasional visitors at the camp who would talk with prisoners through the fence surrounding the courtyard. 2950/

1910. Members of a family, whose home was reportedly located in the vicinity of the Keraterm camp stated that they witnessed people bringing food to their relatives who were imprisoned at the camp. It was reported that on one occasion, an old man who brought food for his three sons was not allowed to give food to them and was denied access to the camp. According the report, the man was stopped approximately 50 metres from the camp by two drunk soldiers who beat him to death. 2951/

1911. Forced Labour: One subject reported that in late July 1992, he and nine other prisoners in his room, volunteered for the "wheat harvest" detail at the camp. The subject stated that camp guards seized an additional 20 prisoners at random to complete the work detail. According to the subject, the prisoners were driven to the village of Tukovi, where they collected firewood "for the wives of Serb soldiers at the front", and then to Sredeci where they began the three-day task of collecting corpses. The subject reported that the prisoners were also taken to other villages and that "[t]he most corpses were in Bišani, Zecovi and arakovo." 2952/

1912. One subject reported that prisoners called for work duty never came back. According to the subject, those who helped to load corpses onto trucks never came back. The subject also reported that soldiers would come to the camp to collect prisoners for work duty and that those prisoners never came back either. Another subject reported that while he was at the Keraterm camp, over 100 prisoners were taken out for work duty and never came back. He stated that his brother was taken away for work duty on 26 July 1992 and never reappeared. 2953/

1913. Special Treatment of Certain Prisoners: It was widely reported that mostly wealthy and educated prisoners were singled out for abuse at the camp. One subject reported that after arriving at the camp in early July, 1992, there was an initial systematic removal and killing of all educated individuals and those who had held any sort of civic or leadership role in their communities. The camp guards reportedly used registration lists initially obtained in May 1992 to identify individuals to be killed. The subject reported that guards followed this procedure nightly and that about 10-15 prisoners would be beaten severely and return to their rooms. The subject stated, however, that most of the other prisoners taken would not return and that shots were often heard. 2954/

1914. One subject recalled that guards would ask prisoners to give their professions, "and if they found someone with a high position or a higher educational degree, they would execute them. I think the intelligentsia of Prijedor has just disappeared", he said. 2955/

1915. It was also reported that at both the Keraterm and Omarska camps, Bosnian Muslim men who had been policemen were targeted for special abuse. 2956/

1916. One subject reported that identified guards would single out prisoners for beatings who received packages from their wives and families. 2957/

1917. It was also reported that victims also appeared to be chosen arbitrarily. 2958/

1918. Abuse and Killing During Detention: A family who lived near the camp reported that at night, they could hear the sounds of people being tortured at the camp. 2959/ One subject reported that in his 55 days at the camp (from 14 June to 5 August 1992), he could recall only five days when beatings did not occur. 2960/

1919. It was reported that new prisoners were given the "rules of the house" by other prisoners, which was to hide at the back of the room if at all possible to avoid beatings when a guard entered. 2961/

1920. Subjects reported that camp guards and visitors to the camp used lists to call their victims. One subject reported that every evening, "irregular" soldiers came to the room and called out names from a list. Those prisoners were reportedly brought to a room and beaten severely. The prisoners were then returned to their original rooms where they in some cases, died. 2962/ Another subject similarly reported that every evening, a truck of drunk soldiers would arrive at the camp and that the soldiers would beat the prisoners. According to the subject, the soldiers would call out people by name and sometimes administer fatal beatings. 2963/

1921. It was widely reported that prisoners at the camp would be beaten by drunk guards and other individuals at night. 2964/ One subject reported that identified guards would come to the dormitories at night and call out prisoners, and that inevitably, one or two of the tortured prisoners died. He stated that the guards used rifle butts, batons with spike balls, heavy wire cables, and baseball bats for the beatings. 2965/

1922. One subject reported that every night, guards would read 10-15 names from a list. They would read out the person's first name, his surname and his date of birth. The men were then taken from the room and returned later in very poor condition. The victims were reported as bloody, with broken bones, falling down, vomiting blood, and fainting. According to the subject, by the morning some would die. 2966/

1923. One subject reported that he was subject to beatings almost everyday at the camp. He stated that a group of drunken "etniks" were at the camp each night. He stated that raw cattle "offal" was thrown to the prisoners and in their hunger people tore it up and ate it. He also stated that "Serbians" would cut strips of flesh from the arms of dead prisoners and force other prisoners to eat it. 2967/

1924. One subject reported that about two days after his arrival in late June 1992, a new group of guards arrived with a handwritten list containing the names of the approximately 15 newly arrived prisoners from Zecovi having the same last name as subject. The subject reported that he and the other prisoners were taken to a "special room" and on the way were again asked to turn over their valuables. The prisoners were then thrown into the room and told to lie on their stomachs on the floor. They were then reportedly kicked and beaten with rifle butts, and baseball bats. Some of the guards reportedly wore gloves without fingers, but with metal knobs inserted in the knuckle area. The subject reported that thereafter, a military truck arrived to take some of the victims away. A guard then reportedly arrived and rounded up four or five prisoners from Rooms 2 and 3, whose names were on a list he carried. The prisoners were then ordered to kneel on the ground and were reportedly shot and killed. The bodies were then loaded by prisoners and transported out of the camp. The same subject also reported that after about 15 days in the camp (in early July 1992), about 16 prisoners (including a doctor and a teacher) whose names were on a list, were taken from their rooms and were divided into two groups of eight, and were forced to kneel, facing each other. After a while, a group of guards then came over with baseball bats and one guard reportedly said to the teacher: "You are the person who planned the killing of 40 Serbs". Six or seven guards then reportedly concentrated their beating on the teacher, who was knocked unconscious, and died. 2968/

1925. It was reported that prisoners at the camp were frequently attacked with knives and other objects. One subject who was held at the camp from 14 June to 6 August 1992 reported:

"Several times I saw that Serbian soldiers used to stick a knife into the legs of prisoners. Other prisoners' arms were broken. Some were beaten with iron and rubber sticks. If they died from their injuries, the soldiers just threw them on the rubbish heap." 2969/

1926. One subject reported that he was cut attacked by an identified guard at the camp who cut his left foot with a knife and forced him to sew it with a "twist". The subject further alleged soldiers cut a "U" for "Ustaše" into his back. 2970/

1927. One subject reported that the camp guards would often torture prisoners by extinguishing cigarette butts on naked parts of their bodies, or on their faces. 2971/

1928. Another subject who arrived at the camp in mid-June 1992, reported that he witnessed as one brother was forced to bite the testicles off of another brother. The subject also reportedly witnessed a prisoner who was forced to sit naked upon a one litre Coca-Cola bottle and was beaten upon his shoulders until blood poured out of his anus and he bled to death. 2972/ Other subjects similarly reported that prisoners had to take off their clothes and sit on bottles and were subjected to other "games" by the guards. 2973/

1929. It has been widely reported that on approximately 20-24 July 1992, a mass execution of prisoners took place at the Keraterm camp in Room 3. According to one representative account taken from former prisoners who claimed to have witnessed and survived the attack, the following events occurred up to and including the incident: Subjects reported that on 20 July 1992, 300 new prisoners from Kozarac arrived at the Keraterm camp. It was reported that the men were tormented, abused and beaten for the next four days by soldiers in the camp's parking lot. Thereafter, the prisoners were put back into Room 3. The temperature outside was reportedly 38 degrees Centigrade (100 degrees Fahrenheit), and it was also sweltering inside Room 3 where the men were locked up. According to reports, the men in Room 3 had not been given water for three days, and started to lose their minds. The men reportedly were running out of air in the room, hallucinating, and taking off their clothes. As they lost control, soldiers from the outside reportedly warned: "We're going to kill you if you don't stop." According to a subject who was in Room 2, machine guns were lined up next to the door of Room 3. Another subject reported that he was near the door in Room 1 and saw five machine gun bays, all shooting into Room 3. It was reported that there was blood everywhere, and that prisoners were lying on the ground. In the morning, soldiers reportedly recruited prisoners to dispose of the dead bodies in Room 3. According to a subject, the bodies were piled like wood into a truck which was eight metres long. One subject estimated that 120 prisoners had been killed and 67 others wounded. The wounded were reportedly loaded onto the truck along with the dead. As the truck started to pull away, it was noted that there was a sound like water was spilling. According to a subject who reportedly saw the truckload of corpses drive by his home in Prijedor, the vehicle's tarp was rolled halfway back, and he could see corpses naked to the waist with bruises on their backs, thrown onto the truck like pieces of wood. 2974/

1930. Other reports appear to describe the same incident. While the accounts vary as to detail, they appear to describe the same series of events. 2975/

1931. As noted in the some of the accounts above, it was reported that in the days following the alleged mass-execution at the Keraterm camp, groups of men were reportedly taken out and killed by machine-gun. One source reported that former prisoners estimated that from 30 to 40 prisoners were killed on those occasions. 2976/

1932. Number of Prisoners Killed During Detention: Various reports estimate that between five and 10 prisoners were killed at the Keraterm camp per night. According to one report, between five and 10 prisoners "disappeared" every night at the camp. 2977/ One subject reported that in Room 3 alone, five prisoners were taken out and shot every night from approximately 20 July until 5 August 1992. 2978/ A subject who was held at the camp from 19 June to 5 August 1992 reported that five to six prisoners were killed every night at Keraterm. He stated that those prisoners were taken out of the halls and killed. He stated that when the soldiers at the camp were drunk, they killed even more. 2979/

1933. One subject who was held at the camp from 9 July to 5 August 1992 reported that every day over 10 prisoners were killed at the camp. He stated further that severely wounded individuals were brought away by truck and never came back. 2980/ Another subject reported that at least 10 prisoners were killed per day at the camp. However, the subject added that there were days when as many as 200 prisoners were killed. 2981/

1934. One subject who was held at the camp from late May to August 1992, estimated that 15-20 prisoners died daily as a result of beatings and torture. 2982/

1935. One subject reported that during his time at the camp from 25 to 27 May 1992, 50 to 100 prisoners were killed by shooting or beating. 2983/

1936. A subject who was held at the camp from 26 June until 5 July 1992 stated that during the days of his detention, 200 to 300 prisoners died as a result of beating and torture, and direct killing. 2984/

1937. One subject reported that between early July to 5 August 1992, approximately 400 to 500 prisoners were killed at the Keraterm camp as a result of beatings, torture, or execution. 2985/

1938. Disposal of Bodies: Subjects reported that after prisoners were abused and killed, the bodies would be taken to an area for trash disposal, and in the morning, the bodies would be transported to unknown sites. 2986/

1939. It was generally reported that prisoners killed at the camp were transported away by truck and that prisoners at the camp were forced to load the bodies onto the vehicles. 2987/ A family who lived near the camp reported that after mass killings, their street would be red with blood. 2988/

1940. It was reported that prisoners at the camp had to remove the bodies of those killed. 2989/ It was also reported that often, those in charge of picking up bodies of prisoners killed or wounded at the camp often went missing after carrying out their duties. 2990/

1941. Subjects believed that bodies from the camp were buried in the village of Tomašica, near Omarska; 2991/ one of three mass graves in areas near Prijedor: Tomašica, Omarska or Kurovo; 2992/ the Tomašica, Omarska and Ljubija mines in the vicinity of Prijedor; 2993/ a mass grave in a cemetery in the Pašincac area of Prijedor; 2994/ near a former brickyard in the vicinity called

"Bajr"; 2995/ and Lake Ribnjak. 2996/

1942. Forced Beatings by Prisoners: One subject reported that from approximately 21 to 30 July 1992, prisoners were randomly selected and forced to strip and fight one another outside until one of the two men died. 2997/ It was also reported that sometimes 10 to 15 prisoners were made to fight against each other. 2998/

1943. One subject reported that guards would force prisoners to run in a circle and kick the person in front of them in the kidneys. 2999/

1944. One subject reported that each day prisoners were forced to beat each other with wooden tool handles for about 20 minutes and that guards would also pick out a group of approximately 40 prisoners to be beaten at random. The subject added that a group of prisoners was then given the task of cleaning up the blood. 3000/

1945. One subject reported that every night guards would come into the room with about five soldiers and beat prisoners to death. The subject stated that the men would line up 50 prisoners and force them to fight each other with their bare hands. The soldiers would reportedly stand nearby with metal bars topped with a sort of ball and if anyone fell down, they would strike them on the head. Survivors of this ordeal were reported to have been killed later. 3001/

1946. It was reported that food was allowed from the outside, though it was first handed to the guards and then given to the prisoners. 3002/

c. Trnopolje

1947. (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by multiple sources, including the US Department of State, Helsinki Watch and ICRC.)

1948. Location: Trnopolje is a small village within the municipality of Kozarac, about five or six kilometres south of the town of Kozarac. The village lies just to the north of the railroad line running between Prijedor, Omarska and Banja Luka. The station itself is reportedly called "Kozarac station." 3003/ Across the tracks, a few hundred yards south of the village, is Lake Ribnjak, which is used as a fish hatchery. 3004/

1949. Prior to the Serb occupation, according to one subject, Trnopolje village had a population of about 950 families (approximately 5,000 people) of which 704 were Muslim, 10 Croat, the remainder being Serb, Ukrainian, Albanian, and others. The population primarily worked in agriculture, and a large number worked in various countries of western Europe. 3005/

1950. The village was reportedly occupied by Serb forces in late May 1992. 3006/ According to one subject, later that day approximately 20 buses arrived with Bosnian Muslim "refugees" under the escort of about 50 Serbian Territorial Defence and Serbian Regular army soldiers. 3007/ The refugees were placed in the Trnopolje school. 3008/

1951. The village was attacked at a later date. Trnopolje is described as a burned wreck in October 1992. 3009/

1952. One subject reports that after the occupation of Trnopolje in late May, non-Serb villagers were allowed to remain in their own homes. However in mid-June and early July, the Muslim villagers with homes in and around Trnopolje were forced into the camp. 3010/

1953. According to a another report, the town of Trnopolje was ethnically cleansed on 4 July 1992. 3011/

1954. Reportedly, the town was controlled through checkpoints around it, and barbed wire was placed around the central public buildings. 3012/

1955. Description: One report described the camp as being "hastily set up." 3013/ The camp reportedly had three entrances, and seven guard posts 3014/ and was about 300 square metres. 3015/

1956. Trnopolje was referred to as a "refugee reception centre" or an "open camp" by Serb authorities. 3016/ However, according to one report, Trnopolje was actually run like a detention centre from May to August 1992. 3017/

1957. When the camp was "discovered" by international journalists and later visited by the ICRC, 3018/ one subject reports that the camp guards and administration became more lenient. 3019/ The barbed wire was removed from the perimeter of the camp and the local Serbian Red Cross gave out identity cards. However, after the wire was removed the guards reportedly patrolled the camp with automatic weapons. 3020/

1958. The detainees were allowed to leave the camp for work or seeking food if they left their identification papers with the guards. 3021/ However, many detainees feared attack once they left the camp and preferred to remain within the compound. 3022/

1959. While the reports are not consistent in their descriptions of the camp there is a basic consensus that the camp consisted of a school building and another public building, possibly a community building ("dom"). 3023/ Reports describe the makeshift tents where a large number of the detainees live as produced from scraps of wood and wire fencing covered with pieces of cloth or other material, with little waterproofing in evidence. 3024/ However, one subject reports that a number of white nylon tents, each housing 20 people, were set up west of the school and community building. 3025/ According to another subject, approximately 40 prisoners shared each tent and did their own cooking. 3026/ One report states that the yard behind the community hall was full of the vehicles in which people had driven to the camp. 3027/

1960. One report states that the "larger camps, such as those at Omarska, Banja Luka and Trnopolje, had almost identical construction features. For example, one metre spacing from the barbed wire with guard dogs in between, watchtowers at regular intervals with spotlights and mounted machine-guns. . . . [The] camps had separate groups of interior and exterior guards. The perimeter guards were regular line troops whose duties were confined to guarding the camp". 3028/

1961. Reportedly village houses were also incorporated into the camp due to the increasing number of detainees. According to one subject, houses around the camp are reported to have held at least 70 to 80 people. 3029/ One subject reported that after 10 days at the camp she and others were allowed to move into a house. She states that the doors were required to be unlocked and that people were taken from the houses and women were raped. 3030/

1962. The camp administration offices are reported to have been located across the road from the camp (the community building and school). It is also reported that offices of the local Red Cross were at the same location. 3031/

1963. While it is reported that the camp had been ringed with barbed wire, whether the wire surrounded the various buildings or just the camp perimeter is not clear. 3032/ Reportedly the barbed wire fencing was removed in early August, in response to the first visits by international journalists and the ICRC. 3033/

1964. With the removal of the fencing, Trnopolje gave the appearance of an open camp. 3034/ However, guards with automatic weapons reportedly made patrols around the camp limits. 3035/ One report describes the camp as

"more or less an open area, without wire enclosures, but with strategically placed guards to keep the prisoners from escaping. To discourage flight at night, shots were constantly fired over the heads of the people sleeping in the field after the 2100 hours curfew." 3036/

1965. For the most part the men were detained separately from the women and children. 3037/ Some of the detainees, mainly the women and children, slept in the schoolhouse and in the community building. However, it is reported that many of the detainees slept outside in the yard, in the open air. 3038/

1966. Camp Population: Helsinki Watch has identified what it believes were the three categories of Trnopolje detainees: 3039/

(a) Forcibly displaced persons from the area, such as non-Serb women, children, and elderly men. (Most forcibly displaced men were detained at Omarska, Keraterm, or Manjaa.)

(b) Prisoners who were transferred to Trnopolje after the Omarska and Keraterm camps were closed. These people were separated from the rest of the detainees at first, frequently interned in the school, and some were beaten.

(c) Muslim and Croats who voluntarily abandoned their villages in Serb-occupied areas, and who thought it would be safer to be in the camp than to remain in their homes. These people believed that they would be registered by the ICRC and resettled in another country.

1967. The majority of the detainees were Muslims from north-west Bosnia, however Croats and other non-Serbs were also held at Trnopolje. The camp population consisted for the most part of women and children who had been expelled from their homes and whose male family members had been detained in other locations. Reportedly the residents of a village would be gathered at one location and then the women and children would be separated from the men and transported to Trnopolje. 3040/ Many of the men held at Trnopolje had been brought there from other places of large-scale detention. There were also people who were seeking safety from the violence in the surrounding area 3041/ and those hoping to qualify for third country resettlement. 3042/ One subject reports that he was brought to the camp in a military vehicle after having paid 100 DM, because he didn't know where else to go. 3043/

1968. Because Trnopolje served as a transit camp the camp population fluctuated throughout its operation. Women, children, old men, and injured or sick younger men were taken in organized convoys to Muslim or Croatian-controlled areas. 3044/

1969. While one subject reports that the camp housed approximately 1,500 prisoners, 3045/ the majority of reports place the number of detainees at between 1,500 and 6,000 during the summer and early fall of 1992. 3046/ Other reports place the number higher, up to 10,000. 3047/ One subject estimated the number of people at Trnopolje at about 5,000; of these 300 were children, 3,000 women, and the balance consisting mainly of elderly men. 3048/

1970. Organization of Prisoners: It is reported that the men and women were housed separately, and that women and children primarily were housed in the school, 3049/ while many detainees slept outside in the yard. 3050/ Some were able to improvise coverings or home-made tents. 3051/

1971. It is reported that men transferred from other camps were held for the first few days at the school building. 3052/

1972. Length of Detention: It is reported that groups of people "constantly" arrived and departed from the camp. And that while some of the detainees (primarily women and children) were held only a short time before being transferred out of Serb-held territory, 3053/ some detainees were held for as long as four months. 3054/

1973. Prison Records: Reportedly people were called from lists and taken away and never seen again. According to one report the people called from the lists were professionals, teachers, the wealthy and those who had been suspected of having held arms. 3055/

1974. One subject reports that he was among the two busloads of prisoners transferred from Omarska on 3 June. The subject claims that when the buses arrived at Trnopolje, one of the Serbian guards had a list from which he called out names. Approximately 20 men were taken and none returned. 3056/

1975. Dates of Operation-Camp Opening: Testimony from former detainees indicate that Trnopolje camp opened some time in late May. 3057/ There are some reports, however, which put the opening date as April. 3058/ The camp was reported to still be in full operation 1 October 1992. 3059/

1976. Visits by Media and Outside Organizations: The international press visited Trnopolje in early August 1992, and photographed prisoners in the fenced area. 3060/ However, prisoners reportedly could not talk freely because the visitors were under Serb military escort, and prisoners feared reprisals if they spoke frankly about conditions and treatment. 3061/

1977. Camp officials had the wire removed in early August after the first visits from the media and outside organizations. Reportedly, also at this time, the men sleeping outside were also allowed to erect makeshift tents. 3062/

1978. ICRC Monitoring: According to an ICRC report, representatives of that organization first visited Trnopolje on 27 August 1992. 3063/ According to one report Serb officials refused to allow the Red Cross visit until that date. 3064/

1979. According to one report made in September 1992, the Red Cross had recently been delivering prepared meals, one for each detainee. 3065/ Another subject reports that Red Cross food was distributed to many prisoners, however the representatives would stay for only 30 minutes and when they left the food was taken from the prisoners. 3066/ According to another report Serbian soldiers, and not the detainees, received the packets with red crosses on them. 3067/

1980. One subject claims that detainees told ICRC representatives that the Serbs were stealing the food supplied by the ICRC, but were told that the ICRC was powerless to do anything about it. The subject says that the ICRC food appeared in the open market in Prijedor. 3068/

1981. Another subject reports that the ICRC came once a week to inspect the camp but that in between ICRC visits the tortures continued. One day a week they would let up because the prisoners requested the ICRC not to arrive at the same time of day on the day of their visits. 3069/

1982. Command Structure: Reports claim that there is no clear authority organizing the camp. 3070/ One subject suggests that the prison was possibly subordinated to the JNA from Crna Gora, (Montenegro) since the guards came from unidentified units from that area. 3071/

1983. Another subject reports that the camp was visited almost daily by a Serbian official named Mirko Mudrini, who wore a JNA uniform. Mudrini was a former politician and Serbian Democratic Party Member. The subject did not know the purpose of the visits or Mudrini's role at the camp. 3072/

1984. Serbian Red Cross: The local Red Cross was reported to have been in the camp the entire time of its operation. 3073/ Their offices were reportedly in the same building as the camp administration. Some subjects reported that the camp authorities were located in the local Red Cross offices. 3074/

1985. According to one report, the local Red Cross knew about the rapes and that inmates were beaten but did nothing to stop it. The subject claims that it even withheld important medication from the Muslim doctors in the camp clinic. 3075/

1986. Control of Camp: It is corroborated by many reports that the camp commander was Major Slobodan Kuruzovi. (Other spellings of the name: Kurzovi, Koruzovi, Kurozovi, Kuduzovi, Kudovi.) He was described as being between 40 and 50 years old, approximately 180 centimetres, 80 kilograms, with graying brown hair. Reportedly he wore a military uniform. 3076/ He was reported to be an ardent Serbian nationalist, and it was thought that he had participated in the war against Croatia in 1991. 3077/

1987. According to several subjects, Kuruzovi had been a teacher and school administrator. One subject reports that Kuruzovi was his former elementary school principal from Prijedor. 3078/

1988. While it is reported that Kuruzovi was not observed to have personally mistreated or killed prisoners, it is alleged that his guard force did so upon his orders. 3079/ Other reports claim that his guard force refrained from mistreating prisoners while he was around. 3080/ One subject says that Kuruzovi took an interest in the prisoners and treated them with kindness. It was at night, after Kuruzovi had left that the terror began. 3081/

1989. One subject reported that Kuruzovi had informers among the prisoners. 3082/

1990. Guards: The reports vary on the number of guards on duty at the camp. The estimates range from 10 to 50 per shift. 3083/ One subject reports that during her detention during June 1992, the area of the camp was guarded by approximately 100 Serb ethnics who were in groups of two or three, spaced 25-30 metres apart. 3084/

1991. After the barbed wire was removed from the perimeter of the camp in early August, it is reported that the guards patrolled the camp with automatic weapons. 3085/ According to one subject, to discourage flight at night, shots were constantly fired over the heads of the people sleeping in the field after the 9:00 p.m. curfew. 3086/

1992. The detainees reportedly felt threatened by the militia guarding the camp. 3087/ Specifically, according to some reports, it was at night, after camp commander Kuruzovi had left that the terror began. 3088/

1993. According to one report the guards would walk about the camp, among the detainees, and take people away from time to time, including women. 3089/

1994. One subject reports that harassment occurred mostly with the changing of the guards. They would swear at the detainees and insult them. 3090/

1995. One subject, recognized two of the guards as former students at the school. Now, both in their early 20s, they had been placed in the class for maladjusted children. One of them was very aggressive and would beat several detainees every day. 3091/

1996. One subject claims that the guards wore masks, and that they beat and killed people. 3092/

1997. According to one subject the majority of the guards changed over time, except for those known for their cruelty. These guards also appeared to the subject to be on duty more than other guards. The subject speculated that these guards had volunteered for extra duty. 3093/ The most notorious guards are identified by some subjects in various source documents. 3094/

1998. While one subject reports that the guards were not Bosnian Serbs, 3095/ most report that the guards were from local towns. 3096/ According to one subject the guards were Serbs from Prijedor and were part of the "Zoran Karlica" unit. 3097/

1999. Apparently, Serbs who were not part of the regular Trnopolje guard force were responsible for some abuse of detainees.

2000. According to one subject, there was a special unit that acted as "escorts" for those being evacuated from camp. They wore camouflage uniforms and the Beli Orlovi (White Eagles) insignia. They were also called the "cleaners" because they would shoot or kill you if you did not hand over your money or gold, or if you tried to get out of line. 3098/

2001. Another subject reports that etniks who called themselves "Rambos" would abuse the prisoners. One irregular unit's members had various details to their uniforms such as "reticular" masks on their faces, black gloves and black ribbons on their foreheads. 3099/

2002. According to one subject the local Serbs appeared to be in fear of the etniks, who were better organized and armed. 3100/

2003. Origin of Prisoners: Large numbers of people would be brought to Trnopolje from towns which Serb forces had occupied. According to one report the majority of the camp detainees came from the town of Kozarac and the surrounding villages. 3101/

2004. One report claims that about 5,000 or 6,000 people were brought to the camp in late May from the following villages and towns: Sanski Most, Jakupovii, Kamani, Softii, Kozaruša, Mahmuljini, Sušii, Kozarac, ivii, Suhi Brod, Kevljani, Hadii, Bešii, and Brdjani. 3102/

2005. Former detainees interviewed for one report were all from the region of Prijedor in northern Bosnia: Donji Garevci, Hambarine, Hrnii, Kevljani, Kamiani, Kozarac, Kozaruša, Prijedor, Rakovani, Raškovac, Rizvanovii, Sivci, Trnopolje, Tukovi, Zekovi. 3103/

2006. According to one subject, houses in Trnopolje village were used to hold people from the surrounding villages (such as Jakupovii, Kevljani, Hadii, Kozaruša, Mahmuljini, Kunani, Kozarac, Krnci, Duraice, and Duraci.) 3104/

2007. It is reported that the entire non-ethnic-Serb population of Trnopolje village were interned at the camp. 3105/

2008. Bišani: The town was attacked on July 20, although the Muslim residents had been generally harassed by Bosnian Serb soldiers and other officials since May.

2009. One subject reports that most of the male villagers were shot dead immediately. The women and children were kept in a houses in the village until 27 July when about 35 women and children and 15 men (subject believes that they were the remaining surviving villagers) were forced to walk to a roadblock near the entrance of Prijedor (location unknown). At about 8:00 p.m., a bus arrived and transported the entire group to Trnopolje. 3106/

2010. Another subject reports that two buses from Autotransport Prijedor were brought to his part of the village. Residents were randomly divided into two parts. The subject was put onto the first bus with about 80 people. This bus was driven to the Prijedor police station where the prisoners were loaded onto another Autotransport bus with a different driver and guard. They were taken first to Keraterm which was full, then to Omarska which was also full, finally the prisoners were brought to Trnopolje. 3107/

2011. Kevljani: The village was attacked on 24 May.

2012. One subject reports that on 25 May 1992, all 300 residents were brought by bus to transit camp at Breziani. On 27 May the prisoners were separated into groups: women, children, and old men put on buses and sent to Trnopolje; men were sent to Omarska. 3108/

2013. Another subject reports that on 26 May the men were separated from the woman and children, and that the villagers forced to walk to Trnopolje camp. 3109/

2014. Kozarac: The attack of the town started on 24 May.

2015. One subject reports that he and all the Kozarac civilians were forced to walk in the direction of Prijedor. Subject estimates that the column was 12 kilometres long. At a checkpoint on the outskirts of town Serbs made prison assignments. On 27 May, a group of about 50 Muslims, including the subject, were loaded on a bus for Trnopolje. 3110/

2016. One subject reports that on 26 May the women and children were separated from the men. Some of the women and children were released others transferred to Travnik, Zenica or Trnopolje. The men were divided into two groups: those who had been armed and the unarmed. Serb soldiers used a radio to determine which camps had room. The men were taken to Trnopolje, Keraterm and Omarska. 3111/

2017. One subject reports that her group of approximately 15 women and eight children hid outside for three days and then gave themselves up to "etniks" on 26 May and were subsequently taken to Trnopolje. 3112/

2018. According to one subject, men were taken to Keraterm and Omarska, women and children to a large sports hall (location not reported), then to Trnopolje. 3113/

2019. One subject reports that he and 40 other men were held behind when the others were bused out of town, and on 26 May they were forced to walk to Trnopolje. 3114/

2020. Kozaruša: The village was attacked on 24 May, and some villagers were bused at that time to Trnopolje; others were taken to Keraterm or Omarska. One subject hid for 24 days was caught and was put into an existing group of 300 prisoners and marched to Trnopolje. 3115/

2021. Matrii: According to one subject, on 9 July 1992, local and outside Serbs collected all Muslim males into groups and marched them to Trnopolje. Upon arrival at Trnopolje the men were bused to Omarska and then to Keraterm. 3116/

2022. Prijedor: According to one subject, most of the population fled to forests, but surrendered en masse to Serb forces on 26 May 1992. Most of the prisoners, about 10,000, were sent to Trnopolje, but were quickly released to their own homes and then re-interned at the camp later. 3117/

2023. Rakovani: According to one report, Serb units entered the village on 22 July 1992, with deportations taking place from this date. Women and children were taken to Trnopolje. The men were taken to different camps, mainly to Trnopolje and Omarska. 3118/

2024. Rizvanovii: According to one subject, on 20 July 1992, Serb soldiers entered the village. Nearly all the men were rounded up and executed. The women and children were ordered to leave their homes and walk approximately three kilometres east to a main road where buses from Prijedor picked them up and transported them to Trnopolje. 3119/

2025. Trnopolje: Reportedly the village was occupied from late May 1992, but Serb troops did not enter the village until early July.

2026. One subject reports that Serb troop entered the village on 9 July 1992. At that time women and children were taken away by train and the men were brought either to Trnopolje or Omarska and Keraterm. 3120/

2027. One subject reports that after the occupation of Trnopolje in late May, non-Serb villagers were allowed to remain in their own homes. However in mid-June and early July, the Muslim villagers with homes in and around Trnopolje were forced into the camp. 3121/

2028. According to a another report, the town of Trnopolje was "ethnically cleansed" on 4 July 1992. 3122/

2029. One subject reports that he was among those arrested by Bosnian Serb neighbours on 21 May 1992, and detained at the Trnopolje camp until they were transferred to Keraterm on 27 May. 3123/

2030. Tukovi: One subject reports that on 24 July she and the rest of the villagers were taken to Trnopolje. 3124/

2031. Transfer from Other Camps: Trnopolje received prisoners transferred from other camps in northwestern Bosnia throughout its period of operation.

2032. According to one subject, on 3 June 1992, two buses were brought in to the Omarska camp and loaded with about 120 prisoners. They were told that Bus 1 was going to Kozarac and Bus 2 was going to Prijedor. However, both buses went to Trnopolje. 3125/

2033. It is reported that on 25 June 1992 approximately 100 inmates were transferred from Omarska to Trnopolje. 3126/ One subject reports that the prisoners were selected by the Serbs by name, and these people included many weak individuals. 3127/

2034. One subject reports that he was captured in late July. He was interned at Ljubija soccer stadium and was among a group of minors who were transported to Trnopolje on 1 August. The subject reports that all the other prisoners at Ljubija were murdered. 3128/

2035. One subject reports that she had been held in a camp in Jajce. One day (possibly in November 1992), without warning, she was taken by truck along with some other women and children to Trnopolje. 3129/

2036. One subject reports that in mid-August 1992, he was transported to Trnopolje from Manjaa in a group of 150 prisoners, most of whom were very old or very young. 3130/

2037. While prisoners were transferred to Trnopolje from the Omarska and Keraterm concentration camps throughout the summer of 1992, their numbers increased in the first week of August when those camps were preparing to close operation.

2038. One subject reports that on 5 August about 1,500 prisoners from Keraterm were transferred to Trnopolje, due to the impending visit from the ICRC. 3131/

2039. One subject reports that he was transported buses from Omarska to Trnopolje in late July. He states that the weaker inmates were taken out of Omarska because the ICRC was expected. 3132/

2040. Reportedly many prisoners were transferred from Omarska to Trnopolje on 3 August. According to one subject the camp was emptied of most of its prisoners on that date. Prisoners were directed to stand in two groups, one group of about 780 was sent to Trnopolje, the second group of about 1,200 left for Manjaa. 3133/

2041. One subject reports that on 3 August, she was among the group of 29 women who were transferred from Omarska to Trnopolje. 3134/

2042. On 4 August, detainees interviewed by journalists said that several hundred of them had arrived at Trnopolje that morning from Omarska or from another detention camp. 3135/

2043. It is reported that on 6 August, prisoners from Omarska were shuttled by bus to Trnopolje. 3136/

2044. According to one subject, he and approximately 850 prisoners were transferred from Omarska to Trnopolje when the camp closed on about 7 August 1992. 3137/

2045. Intake: Reportedly many detainees were beaten and required to turn over their money and valuables upon arrival at the camp. 3138/ Another subject reports that his group was searched. 3139/ One subject reports that personal documents were taken from the men brought to Trnopolje. 3140/

2046. Reportedly, new arrivals were kept separate from the other detainees for a period of time. Subjects report that male prisoners transferred from other camps were held for the first night in the school building. 3141/ Another subject reports that his group spent the first three nights outside of the school building. 3142/ One subject reports that a busload of men from Prijedor were initially held in a small shop. 3143/

2047. Reportedly many newly arrived detainees were not given food for the first few days. 3144/ According to one report the prisoners who were transferred from Keraterm on 3 August 1992 were not fed for the first four days. The subject claims that he boiled grass for tea and made bread out of flour given to him by a resident of Kozarac who brought some from his home. 3145/

2048. One subject reports that once, when the camp was full, a new group of incoming prisoners were unloaded. They were told that there was no room for them so they were all shot on the spot. Young Muslim males were forced to bury them and were told that they themselves would be shot if they told anyone. 3146/

2049. Camp Conditions: Reportedly conditions at Trnopolje were as bad as the other camps before the arrival of the ICRC in early August. 3147/

2050. One subject reports that when he arrived, in late May, nothing was organized at the camp; there was no food and the water pumps did not work. The detainees were allowed to leave the camp to scavenge for food. They organized a communal kitchen for themselves. The ICRC later arrived with supplies. 3148/
2051. After visits by the international media in early August 1992, treatment of prisoners at Trnopolje reportedly improved immediately with no more starvation, torture, rapes. However, the detainees still feared attack by the Serbs in the surrounding villages and were concerned by the lack of attention by international relief workers. 3149/

2052. Other comments on the confirm that the condition at the camp were not good.

2053. One report claims that in October 1992 prisoners lived in conditions of "unspeakable squalor" sleeping on lice-infested straw and thin blankets, drinking contaminated water, and surviving on minimum rations of bread. 3150/

2054. Another report described the camp as very crowded, and that the yard outside as a mixture of mud and human waste. 3151/

2055. One report states that the grounds of the camp were relatively free of litter but the single garbage container was overflowing onto the surrounding mud courtyard. There was an extensive garbage disposal area in one corner of the camp which was also used as a latrine. 3152/

2056. Food: It is reported that little or no food was provided by the authorities, 3153/ and that detainees were dependant upon food brought from outside the camp 3154/ or bought from guards or the Serbian Red Cross. 3155/

2057. One subject reported that the detainees would pool their money to buy food from the local Serbian Red Cross. Detainees who had no money would go hungry unless others shared with them. Muslims and Serbs living outside the camp would sometimes bring food to the detainees. 3156/

2058. However, another subject reports that food was received twice a day from the local Red Cross; usually just boiled macaroni and a slice of bread, 3157/ and another subject reports that during his detention from late June until late July each prisoner received one quarter loaf of bread and a plate of food. (The frequency of this meal was not discussed.) 3158/

2059. Some of the detainees were reportedly allowed to leave the camp, either to go home and retrieve food or to the village and neighbouring fields to forage. 3159/ However, other reports claim that those caught foraging were executed. 3160/

2060. Another subject reports that the detainees were allowed to leave the camp to search for food, blankets, water, etc., however only by themselves and for short periods. 3161/

2061. One subject reports that detainees from the nearby village of Kozarac were occasionally given permission to go home and get food from their gardens. These prisoners were in better physical condition than those transferred from Keraterm and Omarska. The Kozarac detainees would occasionally share their food with other prisoners. 3162/

2062. One report claims that the detainees received more food after the visit to the camp by journalists on 6 August 1992. 3163/

2063. Reportedly, during the initial ICRC visit, ICRC representatives were shown a high quality lunch which did not represent the typical lunch. 3164/

2064. According to one subject, Serbian soldiers, and not the detainees, received the packets with red crosses on them. 3165/ One subject says that detainees told the representatives that the Serbs were stealing the food supplied by the ICRC, but were told that the ICRC was powerless to do anything about it. The subject says that the ICRC food appeared in the open market in Prijedor. 3166/

2065. Visitors: Reportedly the Trnopolje detainees were allowed contact with family and friends. 3167/ Detainees could receive food and blankets from the visitors. As Muslims were not allowed to ride on buses by that time, the visitors would walk to the camp. One subject reports that if wives came to the camp by bike, the guards would steal their bikes. 3168/

2066. According to one subject, on 7 August 1992, a radio broadcast announced that Trnopolje detainees would be allowed direct contact visits by family members in the fenced off area of the camp. Hours were set from 10:00 a.m. to 2:00 p.m., from 7 through 12 August, and family members were allowed to go to the camp on foot, as no transportation was authorized. However, on 9 August, some women arrived at the camp with bicycles. These women were raped and had their bicycles stolen. Also on that day visiting women and children were taken from the fenced-off area and beaten while the prisoners looked on. 3169/

2067. Water: Reportedly, while food was in short supply there was sufficient water for all the detainees. 3170/ However, another report claims that there was not enough water for the detainees. 3171/ And, one report describes the water as contaminated. 3172/

2068. According to a report from September 1992, water for consumption and washing of self and clothing was brought to the centre in a tanker truck most days, and remained while the detainees filled whatever containers they had available. The report commented further that, under such circumstances, it was impossible to maintain personal hygiene. 3173/

2069. Other reports say that the women were allowed to get water from a well outside the camp compound. 3174/

2070. Sleeping Facilities: Reportedly there was no bedding provided by the camp authorities. Detainees slept directly on the ground, or the floor if housed inside one of the camp buildings. 3175/ One subject who was nine months pregnant was given no special treatment, and also slept on the floor. 3176/

2071. Health and Medical Treatment: Trnopolje was reportedly the only detention camp in BiH with a functioning medical clinic. 3177/ However, according to one report the doctors had no access to medicine. 3178/

2072. The inmates reportedly did not show the clear signs of starvation like those at Omarska. 3179/ However, according to one subject, reportedly one of the clinic doctors, the worst problems encountered among his patients were diarrhea and beatings. He said that he also had pulled many teeth when chronically bad teeth were aggravated by malnutrition and beatings. He claims that he had examined some of the raped women but that he was not allowed to indicate on any documents that they had been raped. 3180/

2073. Reportedly upper respiratory infection was wide-spread in the camp. Adults and children suffered from diarrhea, presumably due to contaminated water and a near-total absence of sanitation. 3181/

2074. It is reported by one subject that due to her son suffering from pneumonia, she was transferred from the camp following a certificate issued by the Serbian Red Cross suggesting a "temporary release" for medical reasons. 3182/

2075. One subject reports that those detained in camp were weak from extreme loss of weight, diarrhea and some had typhus. She claimed that she knew of six deaths caused by typhus. 3183/ Another subject claimed that babies and little children died from the lack of water and food; the subject heard of three buried on one day. 3184/

2076. One subject claims that her daughter had chronic hepatitis which she contracted while at Trnopolje. 3185/

2077. Reportedly one of the doctors photographed a prisoner who had been beaten at Trnopolje, and was able to smuggle the film out of the camp. This doctor also reports that the beating was done in a room next to where the doctor was, and that he could hear the beating and the crying. 3186/

2078. The clinic doctors reportedly obtained permission for seriously ill detainees to go to hospital in Prijedor. However, when patients returned severely beaten and claiming that they had received no medical treatment, the doctors stopped requesting transfers to hospital. 3187/

2079. The doctor reports that the prisoners transferred from the Keraterm and Omarska camps were sick and suffered from diarrhea. He said that on average these prisoners had lost about 15 kilograms in 40 days. The most extreme case he saw lost 35-40 kilograms in that time period. 3188/

2080. According to one report, prisoners transferred from Omarska in mid-June reportedly were kept separate from the other detainees because they were lice-ridden. 3189/

2081. Electricity: According to one report the camp had no electricity. 3190/

2082. Toilets: According to reports there were insufficient toilets for the number of prisoners. 3191/ One report states that the camp was serviced by a two person pit latrine which was not maintained, and that there was an extensive waste disposal area in one corner of the camp which was also used as a latrine. 3192/ Another report states that in August 1992, the camp smelled from the open toilets dug in an adjoining field, and that the camp was plagued by flies. 3193/

2083. Interrogation During Detention: There are reports of interrogations of detainees at Trnopolje. 3194/ Reportedly, an office in one of the main camp building was used for interrogations and torture. 3195/

2084. One subject reports that he was interrogated by a man wearing a black hat with the letters SDS affixed. He was interrogated and beaten by this man and three others who were present. They beat him with steel rods, table legs, and truncheons. He was even hit over the head with a rocket-propelled grenade launcher, and was stabbed with a knife in his left leg. 3196/

2085. One subject reports that every day various males were taken to one of the houses near the camp that were used for interrogation. There they were interrogated and often had their achilles tendons cut. The subject speculated that since the men were of fighting age, this was done so they would be physically unable to fight Serbs in the future. 3197/

2086. Another subject reports that the office used for interrogations was locked when not in use, and at night the prisoners could hear the screams coming from the room. He claims that none of the men taken for interrogation would return to the camp as all were killed from beatings. 3198/

2087. According to one report women were sometimes interrogated at night about their husbands and fathers. The subject claims that women taken from the sleeping rooms at night were brought to a room for questioning. 3199/

2088. Reportedly, camp commander Slobodan Kuruzovi, conducted the interrogations.

2089. One subject reports that he and several other minors were caught by Serbian troops in the woods and interned at the Ljubija soccer stadium. They were interrogated during their detention at Ljubija and then were transferred to Trnopolje on 1 August. The next morning, the boys were interrogated by Maj. Kuruzovi, who asked questions about their destination and men who the Serbs were searching for. No records were made. 3200/

2090. Another subject reports that Kuruzovi and members of the Serbian Army used to interrogate the inmates. 3201/

2091. According to some of the reports some of the men interrogated at Trnopolje had already been previously interrogated in other camps. 3202/

2092. Temporary Release: Reportedly some of the detainees were released from the camp either to go home or to live with relatives or friends, but were captured later and re-interned at Trnopolje. 3203/

2093. One subject reports that on 26 May 1992, residents of Kozarac were sent to Trnopolje, Keraterm, or Omarska. Those who were sent to Trnopolje (about 10,000) were quickly released to their own homes and then re-interned later in smaller groups. 3204/

2094. Another subject reports that she fled the village of Kozaruša on 24 May and stayed at the camp for 10 days. She was able to leave the camp and stay with her daughter (town not recorded) until they were "run out", and forced to return to Trnopolje camp. 3205/

2095. Forced Labour: According to one subject, many people were taken for work, such as during the potato harvest. The subject reports that commonly 10 people would never return, and as it was impossible to flee it was supposed that they had been killed. 3206/

2096. Rape During Detention: Reports corroborate the claims that women from the camp were beaten and sexually abused by Serbian men. 3207/ However the numbers of victims and the frequency of incidents are not consistently recorded. 3208/

2097. The incidents are usually reported as occurring at night when drunk soldiers entered the rooms where the women and children slept and by the light of flashlights choose the women who would be taken away. 3209/

2098. One subject reports that Serb soldiers with flashlights came around midnight every night for at least 20 nights in July. Approximately 10 young women were taken each night, and were raped across the hall from where the women slept. Subject claims that she submitted because five girls who refused were shot in front of her. 3210/

2099. According to one subject every night at about 9:00 p.m., drunk soldiers would come into the camp and take two or three young girls over 12 and rape them. They would bring the girls back after a few hours or early in the morning. Many of the girls were taken to a hospital in Prijedor after being raped. Some were never returned; after being raped they were killed and buried near the lake located a few hundred yards from the village. 3211/

2100. Some reports state that it was the camp guards who raped the women. 3212/ However, other reports attribute the rapes to Serb soldiers who were not associated with the camp. 3213/ Several reports describe the perpetrators as tank soldiers. 3214/

2101. According to two subjects drunken tank drivers came into the camp on 6 June 1992, between 10:00 p.m. and midnight. They took iron rods with them and used flashlights to choose women, especially girls up to 18 years old. This group of girls were returned at around midnight and the soldiers went into the hall and got more. The women told the subjects that the soldiers had threatened them if they reported what had happened. 3215/

2102. According to one report, on an unrecalled date in mid-July, two T-55 tanks with about 20 drunken soldiers on each, arrived at Trnopolje from the direction of Kozarac. Four soldiers (one described as wearing a hat with a cockard displaying a two-headed eagle) entered the former Community Hall and selected three females (identified). They were taken away and returned the next morning by car. 3216/

2103. Another subject reports an incident in late August when two T-54 tanks from a unit in Omarska arrived at the camp. Approximately 10 tankers, wearing blue uniforms, selected several young women and raped them in the central heating plant of the school building. One of the tankers (identified in report) was reportedly feared by the camp guards. 3217/

2104. Some subjects report that the women were taken outside of the camp for raping. 3218/ One subject report that the raping would take place in the camp. 3219/ Another subject reports that her daughter was taken every night and raped in a different tent. 3220/ And there are reports of subjects having heard the sound of women being raped on at least one occasion. 3221/

2105. One subject reports that she was picked up by guards when returning to the camp after getting water from a well about 50 metres from the prison gates. The subject and nine other girls were taken to a house across the meadow out of site of the roadway where they were sexually abused and raped by 30 Serb soldiers, some dressed like a tank crew. 3222/

2106. Another subject claims that she was raped on 7 June, by two soldiers while out of the camp to get food. She was then compelled to return regularly because the soldiers threatened to rape her in front of her husband and then kill her husband and children afterward. 3223/

2107. There are reports of attempts to protect the women. One subject reports that when drunken soldiers burst into the hall to choose a few of the women to take away, some of the local Serbs working as guards at the camp had tried to intervene. 3224/

2108. Another subject claims that a Bosnian man who was present when the soldiers came for her tried to protect her by saying "leave her alone." He was shot immediately and she was dragged to the room over his bleeding body. 3225/

2109. One subject reports that a grandfather tried to keep his girl from being taken, and that he was beaten so badly that he couldn't stand. 3226/

2110. One subject says that the detainees never told the ICRC about the rapes. They were afraid he says because Major Kuduzovi [sic] was there when the ICRC came. 3227/

2111. However, other accounts state that the rapes in early June were brought to the attention of the camp authorities. 3228/

2112. One subject reports that after the mass rape the camp commander apologized the next day and personally guaranteed the future safety of the women. For the next few nights armed guards were posted around the women and the incident was not repeated. 3229/

2113. The girls' parents reported the incident to camp commander Major Kuruzovi who told them that it would not happen again, and it did not. 3230/

2114. Reportedly one soldier was jailed by the commander on rape charges, but he was let out after drunk soldiers in his regiment threatened to open fire on the military barracks unless he was released. 3231/

2115. One subject reports that sometimes women were kept until they became pregnant and released when it was too late for them to terminate the pregnancy. 3232/

2116. Reportedly young girls were also raped. 3233/

2117. Beatings, Torture and Killings During Detention: It is reported that beatings and killings occurred at Trnopolje. 3234/ However, the number and frequency of incidents is not consistently reported. 3235/

2118. Prisoners who were transferred to Trnopolje from other camps (Omarska, Keraterm, Manjaa) said that there was much less abuse at Trnopolje. However, one subject who was transferred to Trnopolje on 5 August, attributed the restraint of the guards to the arrival of the ICRC. 3236/

2119. According to another subject, the ICRC came once a week to inspect the camp. He says that in between ICRC visits the tortures went on. One day a week they would let up, because the prisoners requested the ICRC not to arrive at the same time of day on the day of their visits. 3237/

2120. One subject reports that toward the end of June, he was one of at least eight men chosen to dig graves. He says that non-Serb men were killed in one of three scenarios: 1) leaving the Trnopolje camp to scavenge for food, 2) after being "disappeared" from the camp, 3) and during the ethnic cleansing of the villages in the area. 3238/

2121. One report states that people were being mistreated in a room near the camp's health clinic. 3239/ Another report claims that one of the clinic doctors photographed a prisoner who had been beaten, and was able to smuggle the film out of the camp. This doctor also reports that the beating was done in a room next to where the doctor was, and that he could hear the beating and the crying. 3240/

2122. Personal vendettas appear to be the reason for some of the abuse perpetrated against the prisoners, rather than the random beatings reported at other camps. 3241/ One subject reports a reprisal for a supposed war-related incident. 3242/ Another subject explains that Muslims married to Serbs were subject to particularly harsh treatment. 3243/

2123. According to reports, some prisoners would be taken away and never be seen again. 3244/ Reportedly the guards would sometimes read from lists the names of those prisoners to be taken away. 3245/ There are also reports of some men shot at random by guards. 3246/

2124. Beatings and killings were also reportedly perpetrated by Serb soldiers who came in to the camp. 3247/

2125. One subject reports that on an unrecalled date in July, men who had been sleeping in the school were required to sleep outside (2,500 women and children from the Kozarac area were being held one night at the camp). At around 1:00 a.m. four or five soldiers came to where the men were sleeping and took away six men from Kamiani, all with the same surname. 3248/ The next day seven prisoners were selected to dig the mass grave. According to the men who dug the grave, the men from Kamiani had had crosses carved on their chests, knives pushed through their chin and tongue with wire inserted through the hole in the tongue. 3249/

2126. Another report describes what might be the same incident. In late June or early July, a group of seven or eight Bosnian Serb irregulars (identified in report) entered the camp. Six men (three sets of brothers, all from Donji Forii near Kozarac) were called from a list, and accompanied by the camp commander, taken to the administration building which was located in a house near the camp. The men were tortured there within hearing range of the other prisoners. After the torture the six were led by the same group of Bosnian Serbs to a watermill about 400 metres from the camp. The next day a group of men who had been let out of the camp to forage told the subject that they had seen the mutilated bodies of the six men, and that their eyes were gouged out and their tongues were pierced with wires and tied together in pairs. 3250/

2127. One subject reports that many people were killed by shooting or having their throat slit. He also reports witnessing two little children killed by etniks, by being thrown into a rotating cement mixer while the mother watched, and a prisoner led around by a wire driven through his tongue. 3251/

2128. Reportedly one woman was killed at the camp, apparently unintentionally, on the stairs in front of the school. 3252/ One subject claims to have seen soldiers kill a mentally disturbed man who had taken food from another man at the camp. 3253/

2129. Disposal of Bodies: According to reports prisoners were ordered to bury the bodies of those killed at the camp. 3254/

2130. One subject reports that those killed at the camp were usually buried at the cemetery in Sivi, a small town two kilometres from the camp, in the park in Trnopolje one kilometre from the camp, or in the fields around the camp. The graves were not marked and the names not registered. 3255/ Another subject reports that many of the prisoners were buried in backyards of homes near the camp. 3256/

2131. Mock Attacks: Reportedly, Serbian forces filmed their defensive actions against supposed Muslim attacks. According to two subjects, upon arrival at the camp the prisoners were forced to lie in the mud with their heads down for two hours while Serbian soldiers shot rifles and claimed to be protecting the prisoners from an attack by Muslim Green Berets. 3257/ Another subject reports that a woman was killed, apparently unintentionally, during a mock defence filmed for Banja Luka TV. 3258/

2132. Transfer of Prisoners to Other Camps: Most of the transfer of prisoners appears to have been to Trnopolje rather than from Trnopolje to other camps. However, according to one subject, on 9 July, the men from Matrii were collected and were marched to Trnopolje. Upon arrival at Trnopolje, the men were bused to Omarska and then to Keraterm. 3259/ Another subject, a Muslim female from Trnopolje village and a detainee at the camp, reports that on 9 July 1992 the Bosnian Serb army from Banja Luka came and took all men between the ages of 15 and 70 to Keraterm. 3260/

2133. Release of Prisoners: Trnopolje served as a transit camp for many of the detainees. Women, children, boys under 16 men over 65, and the very sick would be taken and released into Muslim and Croat controlled areas. Apparently, in the beginning, the convoys consisted of suffocating cattle cars on trains bound for Doboju. Later the detainees were transported in large trucks bound for Travnik. 3261/

2134. One subject reports that women and children tended to be held at the camp for three to five days until their numbers swelled to a few thousand, at which time the Bosnian Serbs then arranged to deport them, mostly to Travnik. 3262/

2135. According to one report thousands of people were released from Trnopolje at the end of June 1992 and allowed to go to Croatia. 3263/

2136. One subject reports that on 25 and 26 July 1992, all of the women and children were removed from the school and transported on trucks to a location near the BiH controlled refugee transition centre in Travnik. 3264/

2137. One subject reports that she was held at Trnopolje until 18 August 1992, when she was released to Travnik. 3265/

2138. According to one report detainees judged harmless by the Serb authorities could "buy" their way out. 3266/

2139. One subject reports that he was released from Trnopolje when he bribed an ethnic Serbian doctor. 3267/

2140. One subject reports that she was able to secure the release of herself and her two daughters by giving a guard her last savings of 1,000 DM and her jewelry, on 26 June 1992. 3268/

2141. Another subject reports that on 21 August 1992, he was able to secure a release with a bribe of 100 German Marks. 3269/

2142. One subject who had been transferred to Trnopolje from Omarska in late July, reports that he was among 30 people who were released because they were so thin and weak. He claims that camp officials were afraid that journalists would take pictures of them. 3270/

2143. One subject reported that on 10 August 1992, camp administration announced that for the next two days any prisoner who could prove that he had donated blood to the Red Cross 10 times in the last year would be released.

Many wives were able to bring blood donation cards and secure release of their husbands. 3271/

2144. One subject reports that on approximately 13 August 1992, he was given a permit to leave the camp because his aunt guaranteed to take him in. 3272/

2145. According to one subject who reports that he was one of 780 prisoners transferred to Trnopolje from Omarska on 3 August he was released from Trnopolje on 15 August. 3273/

2146. It is reported that 1,000 prisoners had been released from Trnopolje in the second week of August 1992. 3274/

2147. As a result of negotiations between the ICRC and Bosnian Serb authorities during peace talks in London in August 1992, the Bosnian Serb authorities promised to close down the camps. 3275/ The ICRC arranged the transport of thousands of detainees.

2148. Reportedly the ICRC arranged for the release of 1580 detainees to Karlovac, Croatia on 17 September. 3276/

2149. One subject claims that the ICRC negotiated with the Serbs for a conditional release of most prisoners, and on 30 September, a convoy was formed and left Trnopolje for Karlovac to continue from there to Zagreb. 3277/

2150. Reportedly, the ICRC supervised the transport of 1,500 people to the Karlovac transit camp in Croatia in early October 1992. 3278/

2151. According to one subject, on 1 October 1992, the ICRC took about 1,600 detainees to Karlovac, leaving about 1,000 in Trnopolje to pick up later. The subject states that the Serbs got the idea that they could have the ICRC the ethnic cleansing for them. So Serbs went from house to house rounding up people to bring to Trnopolje. When the ICRC returned, instead of 1,000 there were 3,500 detainees. This subject reports that when the Serbs realized the ICRC wasn't going to take these detainees from Trnopolje, two buses of Serb special soldiers, with special helmets, came to beat and drive the people out. Some people were killed. Everyone had to go on foot from Trnopolje to Prijedor. The subject's home was gone so he and his family moved on until they were helped by a Serb friend who paid the "tax-bribes" to get the family into Croatia. 3279/

2152. It is reported that some prisoners were required to sign waivers to secure their release.

2153. According to one report, in order to be brought to Karlovac under the patronage of the ICRC and the UNHCR, the camp authority required all detainees to sign a document stating that they would not return to BiH before the end of the war. In addition, by signing this paper, they disclaimed all property rights in their country. 3280/

2154. One subject reports that on 12 August prisoners were ordered to sign over all their possessions to the Serbian forces. He claims that those who would not sign were taken to a camp in the Travnik area. 3281/

2155. According to one subject, he and approximately 850 prisoners were transferred from Omarska to Trnopolje when the camp closed on about 7 August 1992. He stayed at Trnopolje for seven days until his release. They were offered their freedom in return for signing a certificate in which they relinquished all personal property and all claims against the Bosnian Serb Government. 3282/

2156. Another subject reports that many detainees signed forms stating that they would leave the Serb-held area of BiH. 3283/

2157. Reportedly some detainees were released in prisoner exchanges.

2158. One subject who reports that she was raped at Trnopolje in July 1992, claims that shortly thereafter she and her relatives were among a group of Trnopolje prisoners released in exchange for Serb prisoners in Maglaj. 3284/

2159. According to one subject, after spending two months at the camp she was exchanged on the night of 1 January 1993. She states that she and two other girls were taken outside and given over to Croatian soldiers in exchange for seven Serbs. Her group was taken to the town of Novska from where she left for the Karlovac camp. 3285/

2160. Vlaši Mountain Mass Murder: Reportedly, as many as 250 Muslim (and perhaps also Croatian) men were removed from a prisoner release convoy travelling from Trnopolje camp to BiH-controlled Travnik and were shot at a cliff near Vlaši mountain. 3286/

2161. On 21 August 1992, approximately 250 men and 150 women and children from Trnopolje camp were loaded into four buses and told they would be transferred to Travnik and set free. 3287/ Other vehicles carrying mostly women and children from the surrounding area were added to the convoy. 3288/ According to one subject the buses were escorted both at the front and rear by police cars from Prijedor. Several Serb paramilitaries boarded the subject's bus when the convoy went through Banja Luka toward Skender Vakuf. 3289/

2162. Reportedly the people on the bus were ordered to give up their valuables to one of the guards on the bus. 3290/

2163. One subject reports that about 18 kilometres southeast of Skender Vakuf on the road to Travnik, the convoy crossed a bridge over the Ilomska River. Passing the bridge, the convoy stopped. 3291/

2164. Reportedly the convoy stopped at approximately 5:00 p.m., and between 150 and 350 male prisoners were removed from the vehicles and grouped beside two buses. 3292/ They were told that they were to be exchanged for Serb prisoners. 3293/ Women and children were removed from these buses and were put into other vehicles. 3294/

2165. One subject reports that during this stop, the men were beaten at random by a very large, dark complexioned policeman. The men were then loaded into the buses "in layers, one atop the other". Five policemen also boarded his bus. 3295/

2166. The convoy then resumed with the two buses holding the men at the rear. After travelling a short distance the buses pulled off the side of the road (about 100 metres apart), while the rest of the convoy continued. 3296/ The road there was bordered by a hill on the east and a steep ravine on the west which ended in a slope descending to the Ilomska River. 3297/

2167. Reportedly, the men in the rear bus were forced out and ordered to kneel at the edge of the cliff. The guards then opened fire with automatic weapons and continued to fire for about five minutes. Some prisoners jumped over the cliff to avoid being shot. 3298/ The guards continued to shoot down at the bodies in the ravine. 3299/ One subject claims that the soldiers also dropped hand grenades down the ravine at the bodies. 3300/

2168. One report states that the men in the front bus were then taken off the bus in groups of three and led to the west edge of the road where they were shot and their bodies thrown off the cliff. 3301/

2169. Names and descriptions of the alleged perpetrators are listed in some of the reports. 3302/ One subject reports that the guards in the vehicles wore blue uniforms. 3303/ According to another subject, soldiers wearing blue camouflage uniforms and red berets were waiting at the gorge site. 3304/

2170. According to one report Bosnian Serb military and police officials acknowledged that the incident had occurred. 3305/

d. Other camps

2171. Bistrica or Lamovita: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely the US Department of State.) This is one of several small camps reportedly set up within 20 kilometres of Omarska. Each of these camps is reported to hold from 200 to 250 prisoners. 3306/

2172. This camp is reportedly located in a school or local government social centre approximately two or three kilometres from Omarska, straight across the Banja Luka-Prijedor road. 3307/ A search of maps locate towns by the names of Lamovita and Bistrica north of Omarska.

2173. Boii: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely the US Department of State.) This is one of several small camps reportedly set up within 20 kilometres of Omarska. Each of these camps is reported to hold from 200 to 250 prisoners. 3308/

2174. This camp is reportedly located in the village primary school, located approximately two kilometres northwest of the village of Jaruge, north of the Kozarac-Prijedor road. 3309/

2175. Jaruge: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by multiple sources, including the US Department of State.) This is one of several small camps reportedly set up within 20 kilometres of Omarska. Each of these camps is reported to hold from 200 to 250 prisoners. 3310/

2176. This camp is reportedly located in a fruit storage shed or stables, north of the Kozarac-Prijedor road. 3311/ A map search locates the village of Jaruge approximately four kilometres west of Kozarac, north of the main access road between Kozarac and Prijedor.

2177. Marica or Gradiška: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely the US Department of State.) This is one of several small camps reportedly set up within 20 kilometres of Omarska. Each of these camps is reported to hold from 200 to 250 prisoners. 3312/

2178. This camp is reportedly located in a school in the village of either Marica or Gradiška, southwest of Omarska. 3313/ A map search turned up two villages approximately five kilometres southwest of Omarska called Marika and Gradina.

2179. Breziani: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by multiple sources, including the US Department of State.) It is reported that a Serb-run camp was located in the former school in the village of Breziani, three kilometres northwest of Prijedor. 3314/ One report refers to Breziani as a transit camp. 3315/ There is an estimate that 2,000 persons were detained at Breziani as of 22 August 1992. 3316/ Dates of operation for this camp otherwise are not known.

2180. Reportedly on 25 May 1992, all the residents approximately 300 men, women and children of the village of Kevljani were brought by bus to Breziani. There were reportedly about 1,000 people already held at the camp when they arrived. 3317/ On 27 May, Serbian soldiers identified as military police from Breziani and Sudon separated the detainees into groups, with old men, women and children taken by bus to Trnopolje camp, and about 500 men forced into buses and sent to Omarska. 3318/

2181. Reportedly, after the capture of Kozarac by Serb forces on 25-26 May 1992, the Muslim residents were ordered to report to the city centre. From there, the women and children were bused to Trnopolje and the men were transported to Breziani. The men were reportedly held overnight at Breziani before being transferred to Omarska. 3319/

2182. A subject reports that the Kevljani residents were mistreated by Serbian forces as soon as they arrived in Breziani: beaten as they exited the buses and subjected to verbal abuse and taunts. He says they were held at the camp for two days and two nights without food water or toilet facilities. 3320/

2183. ela: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by multiple sources, including an official UN source.) Reportedly a Serb-run camp. While there is no specific location reported, a town by this name is located south of the town of Prijedor.

2184. It is reported that 200 persons were detained at ela as of 19 November 1992. 3321/ Another report estimated the number of detainees as 220, as of 22 August 1992. 3322/

2185. Ciglane: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by multiple sources, including Roy Gutman.) There are reports of a Serb-run camp, Ciglane ("brickyard") next to the former Keraterm tile works, near the town of Prijedor. 3323/ The majority of the people imprisoned were reportedly from the village of Kozarac, the surrounding area of Prijedor, and Bosanski Novi. 3324/

2186. One subject reports that during his detention at the camp in late May 1992, there were about 1,000 people of all ages, including entire families, incarcerated there. 3325/ Reportedly the men were separated from the women and children. 3326/

2187. The detainees reportedly slept outside on the concrete under the eaves of the brickyard. A subject states that people would urinate in a spot only 10 metres from the rest of the prisoners. 3327/

2188. The guards at the camp were reportedly all "White Eagles" (described in the report as an "ultra-fascist etnik paramilitary formation") from Serbia, and wore cockades (the "etnik" insignia) but had no beards. 3328/

2189. Acts of abuse and murder are reported as having occurred at this camp.

2190. One subject reports that women were raped at this camp, and that children were thrown into ovens and burned. He claims that one day 15 children, ranging from babies to five year olds, were thrown into ovens by the guards. Those mothers who resisted giving up their children were killed on the spot. Reportedly an order came that this activity should stop and it was not done any more. 3329/

2191. Another subject reports having witnessed a policeman from Kozarac burned alive after a beating. First his bones were broken and then a piece of clothing was put into his mouth, he was drenched with gas and set on fire. 3330/

2192. The guards would reportedly choose a group of five people and would kill them with pistols or knives, 3331/ or machine-gun fire would be heard. 3332/

2193. At least 20 of the detainees from Ciglane were reportedly transferred to Omarska camp. 3333/

2194. Gorni Garevci: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely the UK Defence Debriefing Team.) It is reported that a detention centre was located at Gorni (Gornji) Garevci. 3334/ A village by this name is located approximately five kilometres northeast of Kozarac. No further information is available on this reported camp.

2195. Jajce: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely an official UN source.) Reportedly, a camp at this location held approximately 500 detainees, mostly women and children, although there were some families. 3335/

2196. The subject reports that the camp was a very large barn, with two big rooms without a full partition between them. There were no beds. On her first night she heard shooting and found out later that most of the men in the camp had been killed. 3336/

2197. The subject reports gang raping of the female detainees by Serbian men wearing masks. She describes the raping of girls as young as seven or eight years old. The females were often beaten during the rape episodes. The subject reports that in the living quarters there were always many injured women, and young girls who would bleed profusely after their rapes. The subject claims that about 10 women and several girls died after being raped. 3337/

2198. According to the subject, the women's jewelry was ripped from their ears, and in one incident a girl's finger was torn off in removing her ring; the girl died the next day of this and other injuries. 3338/

2199. The subject reports that new arrivals were brought to the camp approximately every 10 days, from Biha, Prijedor, and some from Sarajevo. (There is no information as to whether these were women and children only.) 3339/

2200. According to subject, food was limited, and the detainees were always hungry. The detainees were given bread, rice, vegetables and beans but in small quantity only. The detainees were so hungry that they resorted to eating grass. 3340/

2201. The subject reports that without warning she was transferred to Trnopolje by truck along with some other women and children. She states that the trip took eight hours because the road was very bad. 3341/

2202. Karan: (The existence of this detention facility has not been corroborated by multiple sources.) According to one report this was a Serb-run camp in Prijedor county. 3342/ The report gave no specific location, however, and a search of available maps did not show any locations by this name in Prijedor. There is however a location by this name in Serbia.

2203. Kebljani: (The existence of this detention facility has not been corroborated by multiple sources.) According to one report this was a Serb-run camp in Prijedor county. 3343/ It is possible that this is a typographical misspelling of Kevljani.

2204. Keramika (Keramika) Firm: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely the UK Defence Debriefing Team.) It is reported that the Keramika camp was based in a former large ceramics factory. Location coordinates for the camp are not given but the camp was reportedly associated with the Omarska camp. 3344/

2205. A subject reports that at the beginning of the war the camp was at its fullest and detained approximately 1,500 Muslims and Croats. As of 31 December 1992, the date of the subject's statement, it was not known if the camp was still active. 3345/

2206. Kevlani: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely the UK Defence Debriefing Team.) A subject from the Prijedor area reported that some people had disappeared from the school at Kevlani. 3346/ A search of available maps, however, does not identify a location by that name. It may be a different spelling of Kevljani.

2207. Kevljani: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by multiple sources including a UN Civil Affairs Report.) Reportedly 2,000 persons were detained at "Kevljani, Breziani" as of 19 November 1992. 3347/ The village of Kevljani is located southeast of the town of Prijedor.

2208. Kevljani Youth Centre: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely the US Department of State.) Reportedly after the residents of Kevljani surrendered to Serb forces, the women and children were taken to the youth centre in town; the men were taken to the Keraterm factory on the edge of town. 3348/

2209. Kratelj: (The existence of this detention facility has not been corroborated by multiple sources.) According to one report, about 3,000 persons were held in Kratelj as of 22 August 1992. 3349/ However, a search of available maps does not identify a town by that name in any of the countries of the former Yugoslavia.

2210. Ljubija Mine: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by multiple sources, including the UK Defence Debriefing Team.) Reports state the existence of a Serb run camp located in an iron mine at Ljubija, southwest of the city of Prijedor. 3350/ It is reported that this was one of the camps set up by the Serbs to avoid international scrutiny, after the involvement of the ICRC at the Manjaa and Omarska camps. 3351/ Reportedly 2,300 persons were held at the Ljubija Mine as of 22 August 1992. 3352/

2211. Ljubija Soccer Stadium: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by multiple sources, including the US Department of State.) Reportedly, Muslim prisoners were detained here and recount incidents of severe abuse by the Serb soldiers guarding the location. 3353/ Reports claim that the majority of the prisoners were either killed, or only held briefly at the stadium. 3354/ One report describes a dressing room in the stadium which was used as a "prison" and interrogation area, for extended detention. 3355/

2212. According to one report the stadium is located just east of the main road through Ljubija, north of the town. This report describes the stadium as surrounded by a rough brick wall forming a square, with each side measuring from 120 to 130 metres. The buses carrying the prisoners entered through a gate at the southwest corner. Along the south wall of the stadium were buildings that housed locker rooms. The playing field was surrounded by a low, wire mesh fence. The subject of this report also claims that there were approximately 600 to 800 Bosnian Serb soldiers forming a ring around the outer perimeter of the stadium. 3356/

2213. This subject described the treatment received by one group of prisoners held at the stadium in late July 1992. 3357/ The prisoners were removed from the buses immediately upon arrival at the stadium. They were required to stand in a spreadeagle position with their faces against the rough brick wall forming the western edge of the stadium. The prisoners were each forced to the ground and beaten with rifle butts or kicked. The prisoners' heads and faces were also slammed with great force against the brick wall.

2214. The subject estimates that 60 of the prisoners were taken to the locker room buildings and mutilated and killed. He says that the remaining prisoners could only see about seven or eight unidentified Bosnian Serb soldiers carrying out the mutilations and killings. The tools used in the mutilation were openly displayed and consisted of hammers, bolt cutters, pliers, and one medical instrument that was designed to remove the top of an individual's skull. This instrument consisted of a combination of screw-set pins and a scoring and sawing device held in a metal ring that fit over the head.

2215. The subject claims that the surviving prisoners, who numbered at this point at about 30 or 40, were forced to carry the corpses of the victims from the locker rooms to one of the buses. (This bus was an accordion bus with a flexible segment at the centre to help it to negotiate curves, and some of the seats had been removed.) Some of the bodies were headless or had missing limbs, and some had their abdomens cut open and the abdominal cavity exposed.

2216. At about 10:00 p.m., after spending approximately four hours at the stadium, the surviving prisoners were placed on the same bus with the approximately 60 to 70 corpses and were taken to a strip mining area south of Ljubija. Here the subject claims that he escaped a mass killing of the remaining prisoners. 3358/

2217. Another subject describes his experience of what is apparently the same incident: Approximately 100 Muslim prisoners of war were brought by bus to the stadium from Miska Glava in late July 1992. This subject reports incidents of abuse inflicted by between 100 and 120 local Serbs wearing camouflage uniforms with Serb flags or "etnik" symbols on them. 3359/

2218. Upon arrival at the stadium the prisoners were lined up in two rows. Two men were killed immediately. Then the prisoners were beaten and punctured with rods, described as being round with pointed tops. One of the prisoners was beaten while he was being forced to lick up the blood of those killed. 3360/

2219. Sixteen minors, including the subject, and 15 other prisoners were separated from the larger group 3361/ and were placed in the stadium dressing room, referred to as the "prison". The youngest of these detainees was 13 years old.

2220. During their detention in the dressing room, the 31 prisoners were interrogated by the same men who had participated in the beatings outside the stadium. Every half hour prisoners were taken to a separate room where they would be seated on a chair and interrogated. The detainees were questioned about who had hidden in the woods and about the participants in the attack on Prijedor. The subject reports that while the prisoners were kicked and hit with gun butts during the interrogations no one was killed. After an unidentified period of detention at the stadium, the prisoners were transferred to Trnopolje. 3362/

2221. Majdan (Mine) Camp: (The existence of this detention facility has not been corroborated by multiple sources.) According to one report, this camp was located in Prijedor. 3363/ A search of available maps does not identify a town by that name in Prijedor, however there are locations by that name in other counties of BiH.

2222. Miska Glava Village Hall: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by multiple sources, including the US Department of State.) Reportedly, on or about 26 July 1992, a group of at least 100 Bosnian Muslim males who had attempted to evade Serb forces by hiding in the woods, were captured and detained in a public building in the village of Miska Glava. 3364/ While a search of available maps did not locate this village, a postal listing of towns in the former Yugoslavia indicates that the village of Miska Glava uses the Ljubija town post office. 3365/

2223. According to one report, 114 Muslim paramilitaries were captured by Serb paramilitaries in the village of Miska Glava 3366/ and held overnight in the Miska Glava village hall. The prisoners were then transferred by bus to the Ljubija soccer stadium. 3367/

2224. The subject reported that some of his captors were dressed in YPA uniforms but most wore camouflage uniforms. The soldiers abused the prisoners throughout the night, taking them in groups of two or three, beating them and forcing them to sing Serb songs. One of the soldiers demanded 10 volunteers from the village of Rizvanovii, or else all the prisoners would be killed. These 10 men were thrown to the ground, their hands tied with barbed wire, they were battered and finally the subject heard machine gun fire. He is not certain what happened to them. After this incident the soldiers reportedly continued as previously, to take a few prisoners at a time out to beat and force to sing Serb songs. 3368/

2225. Another report claims that 117 Muslim males were held in the cafe portion of a public building in the centre of the village of Miska Glava. The prisoners included some, like the subject, who had been captured in the woods, and residents of local villages who had been rounded up in the sweep of the previous day. 3369/

2226. The subject says that the room was cramped and very hot. He says that during the three days that he was detained, the prisoners were given no food or water, nor were they allowed to use the toilet. The prisoners were reportedly interrogated and beaten with rifle butts. The subject says that at some point 10 men were taken from the group as "volunteers" and were never returned. 3370/

2227. According to the subject, seven prisoners were killed in front of the other men by one of two methods. 3371/ The prisoners would either be forced to kneel and would have his throat cut by one of the perpetrators standing behind him. Or the prisoner would lie face up, his arms and legs held down by soldiers, and one or more of the perpetrators would open the prisoner's abdomen and remove his internal organs while the prisoner was still alive. In both cases, the prisoners would be left on the ground until they died.

2228. The subject reports that the remaining 100 prisoners were taken from the cafe late in the afternoon of 30 or 31 July 1992, put on two buses and taken to a sports stadium in Ljubija.

2229. Mrakovica Mountain Barracks: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely the UK Defence Debriefing Team.) It is reported that Bosnian Muslims were held in a toilet block at the small barracks on the site of a World War Two memorial on Mt. Mrakovica. 3372/

2230. According to one subject there were about 100 men of various ages detained in the structure. There was no lighting in the block and for the three days that the subject was detained there, his hands and legs were tied together. The prisoners were reportedly given no food during the subject's detention. 3373/

2231. The subject reported that the detainees were eventually transferred to Omarska camp. He says that on the way to the bus, the men were forced to pass through two rows of Serbs who beat them. 3374/

2232. Mrakovica Mountain Hotel: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by multiple sources, including the UK Defence Debriefing Team.) Reportedly a Serb-run camp detaining Croat and Muslim women from villages on the slopes of Kozara Mountain. 3375/ According to one report the camp was located in a 100 room hotel next to a World War memorial. 3376/

2233. One report characterizes the camp as a rape-death camp. This report claims that the camp was established at the beginning of 1992. The number of detainees is not known. 3377/

2234. Prijedor Hospital: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by multiple sources, including the US Department of State.) Reportedly some seriously ill or injured detainees of the Trnopolje and Omarska camps and the Prijedor Prison were taken to the Serb-controlled Prijedor Hospital, where the patients from the camps were reportedly mistreated. 3378/

2235. One report says that patients from the Trnopolje camp were returned from the hospital having been severely beaten there, and claimed that they had received no medical treatment. 3379/

2236. According to another report a subject and his brother were injured in their detention cell at Omarska by bullets randomly fired by drunken soldiers. The subject reports that he had a compound fracture with a protruding bone. The brothers were taken to a doctor who said that they needed hospital treatment and they were admitted to the Prijedor hospital. (The subject has not seen his brother since they were admitted to the hospital.) At the hospital he was told that he needed an operation, but received only a cast around his leg and was in traction for over a month. The subject claims that the Serbs in the hospital (it isn't clear if these were patients or staff) objected to his being there and wanted him thrown out. The subject believes that these people were plotting to kill him at night. The subject was returned to Omarska camp on 7 July 1992. 3380/

2237. Another subject who reportedly had been severely beaten and left for dead at Prijedor Prison was brought to the hospital on 29 May 1992. He was put in a large ward in the hospital with other Muslim and Croat patients. The subject claims that a Serb nurse put him on an intra-venous solution which he believes saved his life. This subject reports that on 6 or 7 June, a Serb doctor announced that all Muslim and Croat patients (about 100) had to leave the hospital immediately. The Muslim and Croat staff also had to leave. The subject was moved by truck to Keraterm camp. 3381/

2238. Prijedor Police Station: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by multiple sources, including the US Department of State.) Reportedly Bosnian Muslims were held for as long as two days at the Prijedor police station. 3382/ Interrogations reportedly were conducted here by the militia and the military police and mistreatment of the prisoners was also initiated by both the militia and the police. 3383/

2239. One subject reported that on 25 May 1992, 50 to 60 men, women, and children were taken from Kozarac to the police station. There, the women and children were separated from the men. The subject reports that he was beaten and cursed as soon as he got off the bus. The soldiers laughed and drank while beating the prisoners. Later, a bus came and took the men to Keraterm. 3384/

2240. One subject reported that he was arrested on 2 June 1992 by the "Specijalna Milicija" and brought to the station, where he was interrogated. He claims that he was not physically mistreated during the interrogation, however he was subjected to verbal abuse. After his interrogation, the subject was released. He was again arrested and brought to the police station on four July. At this time he was slapped by two policemen. After two days at the prison he was taken to Keraterm camp. 3385/

2241. On 14 June 1992, a Bosnian Croat woman was reportedly detained for several hours in the Prijedor Police Station with two other women (named) and two men. The detainees were held in a small, blood-spattered room. They were eventually driven by police to Omarska where, they were told, they were to be interrogated. 3386/

2242. Reportedly, on 21 July 1992, a Bosnian Muslim from Rizvanovii and two other Muslim men were taken from Trnopolje camp to the Serbian Police Headquarters in Prijedor. 3387/ The subject says he was questioned there for five hours after which he and the other two men were taken to Omarska camp. 3388/

2243. Prijedor Prison: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely the United States Government.) A former member of the Muslim Territorial Defence Force reports that he was held overnight at this prison. The subject reported that he and two other Muslim prisoners were severely beaten by three Serbs, who were not guards, with fists and metal pipes. He says he was left for dead and was taken the following day by other Serbs to the Prijedor Hospital. 3389/ No further information about the prison is reported.

2244. Prijedor Sports Centre: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by multiple sources, including the US Department of State.) Women and children from the village of Dera who had surrendered to the Serbs on 26 May 1992 were brought to the sport hall in Prijedor for a couple of hours before being transferred to Trnopolje. 3390/ According to one report 2,600 persons were held at the Prijedor Sports Centre as of 22 August 1992. 3391/ Another report also says that the Prijedor Sports Centre held 2,600 detainees as of 19 November 1992. 3392/

2245. Prijedor SUP building (Secretariat of Internal Affairs): (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely the Canadian Government.) It is reported that on 30 May 1992, when the town of Prijedor was under attack by Serbian troops, a number of men were detained at the SUP building. The detainees were reported to have been beaten, tortured and some killed. 3393/

2246. One subject reports that he and the other men were all severely beaten. That there were about 100 Serb soldiers in the room "interrogating and beating them". The prisoners were forced to face the wall so that they couldn't see who was beating them. The subject says his skull was pierced with a gun breech. 3394/

2247. Puharska District, Prijedor: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely the UK Defence Debriefing Team.) Described by one report as the ghetto into which the Prijedor Muslims were herded after Serbs took control of the town and burned down Muslim houses. 3395/ The account does not give the details or characteristics of the detention.

2248. Šenkovac: (The existence of this detention facility has not been corroborated by multiple sources.) According to one report this was a camp located in Prijedor. 3396/ A search of available maps does not identify a town or area by this name.

2249. Sivac: (The existence of this detention facility has not been corroborated by multiple sources.) According to one report this was a camp located in Prijedor. 3397/ A search of the available maps does not identify a town or area by this name in the county of Prijedor, however, there is a town by this name in Serbia.

2250. Tukovi: (The existence of this detention facility has not been corroborated by multiple sources.) According to one report this camp was located in the vicinity of the town of Prijedor. 3398/ A search of available maps does not locate a town by this name, however, a directory of towns in the former Yugoslavia indicates that Tukovi uses Prijedor's post office. 3399/

2251. Tomašica: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by multiple sources, including a UN Civil Affairs Report.) Reportedly a camp located in Prijedor. 3400/ A search of available maps does not identify a town or area by this name. According to one report 4,000 people were detained at "Tomašica, Trnopolje" as of 19 November 1992. 3401/

2252. Trnopolje area: "Survivors [of Trnopolje camp] testify about the establishment of a number of smaller local residences for the purposes of sexually abusing females." 3402/

2253. Dip Jela Sawmill: (The existence of this detention facility has not been corroborated by multiple sources.) A location where, reportedly, women detained at Trnopolje camp were brought for raping by Serb soldiers. 3403/ The report states that the sawmill is about three miles from Trnopolje. Reportedly the women were raped in the 17 offices attached to the sawmill. 3404/

2254. The suspects claim that about five girls and women from each of the 30 classroom where detainees were held at the Trnopolje camp were taken to the sawmill nightly (about 100 every night).

2255. One subject and three other witnesses relate that their treatment was worse when the Serb soldiers had lost a battle. Reportedly, conditions were particularly bad on the night of 9 or 10 June, after the Serb commander Vojvoda Karlica was killed near Foa. 3405/

63. Prnjavor

2256. Prnjavor is located in northern BiH. According to 1991 census data, the population was 46,894. At that time, the population was reportedly 71.6 per cent Serb, 15.3 per cent Muslim, 5.7 per cent other, 3.7 per cent Croat, and 3.7 per cent Yugoslav. 3406/

2257. Village of Prnjavor: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by multiple sources, including the United States Government.) According to one source, the village of Prnjavor was turned into a concentration camp where all Muslims were confined to their homes. A source also heard rumours that refugees fleeing from Odak and Modria had been rounded-up by Serbs and sent to two camps, one of which was located at Prnjavor, which was reportedly made to contain women and children. 3407/

2258. Another report offered by a Muslim man taken to "Prnjavor Camp", and apparently held there from 16 May to 14 July 1992, described beatings by Serbian military police. Reportedly, he saw one man die during a beating on 17 May 1992 and another die on 6 June 1992. The alleged killers were members of groups called White Eagles or White Wolves. 3408/

64. Prozor

2259. Prozor is located in the central part of BiH. The pre-war population of the city and county of Prozor was 19,601. Approximately 62.3 per cent was Croat and 37.7 per cent was Muslim. 3409/

2260. Prozor Detention: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by multiple sources, including the ICRC.) In October and November 1992, there were reports of arbitrary detentions of Muslims by Croat forces during clashes between Croat and BiH forces in and around Prozor. In one such incident, a Muslim boy was reportedly detained by HVO (Croatian Defence Council) military police and was reportedly only released four days later when his father and others surrendered their arms. 3410/

2261. Apparently, the ICRC regularly visited prisoners held by Bosnian Croat authorities in Prozor at some time in the early part of 1993 and/or earlier. Although, the ICRC reported finding no prisoners detained by Bosnian Croat authorities in Prozor on 13 April 1993, 3411/ just three months later, on 10 July 1993, another ICRC report suggests that Red Cross representatives visited 22 prisoners held in Prozor by Bosnian Croat authorities. 3412/

2262. According to another report, on 26 August 1993, an ECMM team observed 25 prisoners or civilian internees digging trenches close to the front line in Trnovaca. The team protested, in vain, to HVO authorities in Prozor. 3413/

2263. On 30 August 1993, a meeting took place in order to arrange an exchange of prisoners that would include HVO prisoners captured by the BiH Army at Prozor. 3414/

2264. Prison/Penitentiary: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely the ICRC.) The ICRC reported visiting a prison/penitentiary in Prozor on 30 January 1993. 3415/ Their report was, however, silent as to the conditions, treatment and number of detainees present at the facility.

2265. Technical School: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by multiple sources, including the ICRC.) On 9 September 1993, an ECMM team visited an HVO POW camp located at the town's technical school, 100 metres from HVO headquarters. This camp was not a military detention camp but a detention camp for civilian internees. At the time of the visit, there were reportedly 228 civilians imprisoned at this facility. 3416/

2266. Reportedly, the prisoners had to dig trenches almost every day in the area of Trnovaa. At least four of the prisoners had reportedly been killed in the process. In the absence of the camp guards, the internees mentioned that they thought that approximately 40 to 60 people had been killed while working in the trenches. That assertion remained unconfirmed. 3417/

2267. The ECMM team reported that in general the prisoners had been treated well. They were not lacking food or water. Their living conditions appeared to be fairly reasonable. They had adequate washing and sanitary facilities. 3418/ The ECMM team reported that they occasionally picked up and delivered mail for the detainees. 3419/

2268. Local authorities reportedly promised to provide members of the ECMM team with a list of names of all war prisoners detained as well as the names of all of the Muslims who remained in the area. 3420/

2269. In a letter dated 19 August 1993, the BiH Ambassador to the United Nations reported that Bosnian Muslim men were being held by HVO militiamen in a concentration camp in a Prozor High school complex. 3421/

2270. Additionally, the ICRC reported visiting a school in Prozor on 8 October 1993. 3422/ Their report was, however, silent as to the conditions, treatment and number of detainees present at the facility.

2271. Factory: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by multiple sources, including the ICRC.) According to one report, representatives from the ICRC first visited a detention facility established in a factory in this area on 19 October 1993. 3423/ The report was silent with respect to conditions and the operation of the facility.

2272. The ECMM team also reported a visit to two factories where some 40 internees are working and living. Their living conditions were reportedly quite good and they were permitted limited free access to the city. 3424/

2273. Atomic Shelter: (The existence of this detention facility has not been corroborated by multiple sources.) In a letter dated 19 August 1993, the BiH Ambassador to the United Nations reported that Bosnian Muslim men were being held by HVO militias in a concentration camp in Prozor at an Atomic shelter. 3425/

2274. UNIS: (The existence of this detention facility has not been corroborated by multiple sources.) In a letter dated 19 August 1993, it was alleged that Bosnian Muslim men were being held by HVO militias in a concentration camp in Prozor at UNIS. 3426/

2275. Fire-fighter's House: (The existence of this detention facility has not been corroborated by multiple sources.) Also in the letter dated 19 August 1993, the BiH Ambassador to the United Nations reported that Bosnian Muslim men were being held by HVO militias in a concentration camp in Prozor at a Fire-fighters' house. 3427/ Additional information regarding procedures and conditions at this facility were not provided.

65. Rogatica

2276. According to the 1991 Yugoslav census, Rogatica had a population of approximately 22,000 before the conflict: 60 per cent were Bosnian Muslims and 40 per cent were Bosnian Serbs. Currently, very few Bosnian Muslims remain in Rogatica. 3428/

2277. The fighting in Rogatica apparently began on 22 May 1992, 3429/ and lasted approximately two months. 3430/ Once the fighting started, Muslims could not leave the city. 3431/

2278. There were allegedly as many as 12 detention facilities in Rogatica. Reports suggest that mainly Serbs controlled these facilities, and that the prisoners were primarily Muslim civilians. As many as 4,513 people allegedly were detained. 3432/

2279. Under the leadership of the commander of the local Serbian paramilitary forces, Serbs apparently began detaining Muslim civilians in late May 1992. 3433/ It is unclear how long this process continued, but there are reports that Serbs still were detaining Muslim civilians in late July and early August 1992. 3434/

2280. Witnesses report that in late May 1992 Serbian forces told Muslims to come to the city stadium or the high school. 3435/ Those Muslims who refused to leave their homes were taken to the stadium by force. 3436/ Serbian forces then sent Muslims to various detention facilities. Men and women were separated and sent to different locations. 3437/ There are also reports that some men were forcibly conscripted into the Serbian irregular forces. 3438/

2281. Allegedly, large numbers of these detainees were released or exchanged from late June 1992 through early August 1992. 3439/ According to reports from September 1992, it is estimated that 500 prisoners were exchanged from Rogatica, Foa, Kalinovik, and Miljevina. 3440/ Presently, it is unclear how many people, if any, are still detained in Rogatica.

2282. Witness statements allege that people detained in Rogatica were killed, raped, and beaten. In particular, there are several reports that Serbian forces raped Muslim women and girls while they were in detention. 3441/

2283. Church/Priest's Garage/Priory: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by multiple sources, including the US Department of State.) Several reports indicate that Serbian forces operated a detention facility on the grounds of a church in Rogatica. 3442/ These reports described this facility as a church, a priest's garage, and a priory. 3443/ It is unclear how long Serbian forces have used this facility. However, one woman stated that she and her family were imprisoned in the priest's garage from 20 July through 23 July (presumably 1992). 3444/

2284. One report states that at least 23 people were imprisoned at the church. 3445/ Men may have been separated from women. Upon arrival, one witness stated that her father was taken away immediately to an undisclosed location. 3446/ The present status of the detention facility is unclear. Reportedly, on 23 July, 23 of the remaining prisoners were taken to the high school centre. 3447/

2285. Girls and women detained at the church were reportedly raped. 3448/ Another report claims that Serbs also brought women detained at other facilities to the church in order to rape them. 3449/ Functionaries of the regional Serbian paramilitary headquarters allegedly used the church grounds to rape young girls and women they abducted from a school detention facility. 3450/

2286. Donje Polje Cellar, Garage, and House: (The existence of this detention facility has not been corroborated by multiple sources.) Serbian forces allegedly held at least 40 Muslims in a large cellar, garage, and house in the Serbian community of Donje Polje. 3451/ Purportedly, many of the Muslims reported to Donje Polje after being ordered by Serbs to do so to avoid the possibility of hardship which could befall them during this transitional period. They were assured that they would be safe while Serbian forces searched their houses. 3452/ Upon the group's arrival in Donje Polje, Muslim citizens were allegedly locked in an unidentified cellar. 3453/

2287. For the first hours of their detention, the Muslims appeared to receive good treatment. According to one report, two women offered the adults coffee and gave the children bread and jam. 3454/ A representative of the Serbian Democratic Party (SDS) also visited the detainees to reassure them of their safety. 3455/

2288. However, the treatment of the prisoners seemed to worsen. Later that first day, two Serbian soldiers arrested 15 Muslim men who were in the cellar and took them away. 3456/ It is unclear where they were taken. In the evening, another man moved the remaining prisoners to a garage on the same street. He then moved them into a house because it was cold that night. 3457/ For the remainder of their detention, the Serbs gave the Muslim children some biscuits, but did not give any food to the adults. 3458/ The following day, at approximately 3:00 p.m., the remaining Muslim detainees were bused to the Sladara factory. 3459/ However, they were made to remain on the bus. 3460/ After some time, the detainees were transported to Kaljina, near Olovo, and released. 3461/

2289. Malt Factory: (The existence of this detention facility has not been corroborated by multiple sources.) One report states that men were detained at a Malt Factory in Rogatica. 3462/ The report's detail suggests that the Malt Factory, the Sladara Factory, and the Sarajevo Brewery may be different names for the same location. Allegedly, over 500 detainees at the factory were executed and 100 people remain imprisoned. 3463/

2290. Old Primary School in Borike: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by multiple sources, however none neutral.) Some reports state that a detention facility is located at an old primary school in Borike. 3464/ Other reports, which describe a detention facility at an unidentified primary school in Rogatica, also may identify the old primary school. 3465/ According to one witness statement, the old building, presumably the old primary school, has two floors, and four or five classrooms on each floor. 3466/

2291. Penitentiary/Prison: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely the ICRC.) The International Committee of the Red Cross states that its representatives visited a detention facility established in a prison in Rogatica on 27 July 1993. 3467/ Their report provided no other information on the conditions or control of the prison facility.

2292. Podosoje Camp: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by multiple sources, including the ICRC.) Reports indicate that Serbian forces operated a detention facility at Podosoje. 3468/ According to several reports, including one dated October 1992, approximately 2,300 people are detained at Pososoje. 3469/ Allegedly, Serbian forces transferred several of the men detained at the Sladara Factory to this facility. 3470/

2293. Ptiiljak Camp: (The existence of this detention facility has not been corroborated by multiple sources.) Allegedly Serbian forces detained Muslim men at this location. 3471/ A report states that several men who were first taken to the Veljko Vlahovi High School immediately were transported to this location. 3472/

2294. Ragib Djindo Primary School: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by multiple sources, however none neutral.) Allegedly, the Ragib Djindo school was used to detain over 500 people. 3473/ Ragib Djindo, Rogatica's new primary school building, is located near Sladara. 3474/ It has a lobby and 112 classrooms. 3475/

2295. One report states that local Serbs were the parties that used a primary school to detain Muslims. 3476/ However, it is unclear whether this report refers to Ragib Djindo, Borike, or another school in Rogatica. This same report also states that Serbs beat, raped, and burned prisoners at the school. 3477/ Other reports, which describe a detention facility at an unnamed primary school in Rogatica, also may identify the Ragib Dzindo school. 3478/

2296. Sarajevo Brewery: (The existence of this detention facility has not been corroborated by multiple sources.) Serbian forces allegedly used a silo at the Sarajevo Brewery as a detention facility. 3479/ The report concerning this facility was silent regarding prisoner identity, conditions of detention or length of the facility's existence.

2297. Sladara Factory: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by multiple sources, however none neutral.) Serbian forces reportedly operated a detention facility for Muslim men at the Sladara Factory. 3480/ It is possible that as many as 500 people were detained at this location. 3481/ According to some reports, Serbian detention of Muslims followed a pattern in which men were separated from their families and sent to the Sladara Factory. 3482/ Then, after spending an unspecified length of time at Sladara, some detainees were allegedly transferred to another detention facility at Podosj. 3483/

2298. Sugar Refinery: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by multiple sources, however none neutral.) According to reports, a detention facility was identified at a sugar refinery in Rogatica. 3484/ No additional information was provided regarding the facility's operation or control.

2299. Veljko Vlahovi High School: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by multiple sources, including the US Department of State.) Serbian forces operated a detention facility for Muslims--primarily women and children--at the Veljko Vlahovi High School in Rogatica. 3485/ Reports indicate that Serbian forces used this high school as a detention facility from at least May through August 1992. 3486/

2300. It is likely that local Serbian paramilitary forces initially controlled the high school. 3487/ Reports indicate that in late May 1992, the commander of the local Serbian paramilitary forces, issued an order for Rogatica's Muslims to gather at the high school. 3488/ At about the same time, Serbian forces allegedly placed an identified person in charge of the detainees. 3489/ Additionally, the Serbs allegedly obtained the cooperation of some local Muslim families. 3490/

2301. However, following the arrival of Arkan's soldiers toward the end of June and approximately 150 members of a Serbian paramilitary force from Baka Palanka in mid-July, it is unclear whether this person still controlled the high school. 3491/ From July through August 1992, various groups of Serbian soldiers appear to have been able to harass the detainees without any restrictions. 3492/

2302. In addition to recognizing Arkan's soldiers among the high school authorities, witnesses reported that they saw members of Šešelj's White Eagles at the high school. 3493/

2303. From late May 1992 through early August 1992, Serbian forces allegedly ordered Muslim civilians in Rogatica to gather at the high school. Reports state that Muslim men then were taken to the Sladara factory. 3494/ There are also reports that upon arrival at the high school, Serbian forces separated the men and took them to Ptiiljak. 3495/ Serbian forces supposedly intended the high school to be a detention facility for mainly Muslim women, children, and elderly, as well as prisoners from Graanica. 3496/

2304. Beginning 25 May 1992, the commander of the local Serbian paramilitary forces, allegedly used loudspeakers to warn all Muslim civilians to gather at the high school. 3497/ Apparently about 300 people responded. 3498/ Shortly thereafter, on 6 June 1992, Muslims again were warned to gather at the high school. 3499/ At that time, Serbian forces began to arrest Muslim civilians who had not responded to the previous announcements. 3500/

2305. Toward the end of June, there were approximately 300 people at the high school, about 50 of whom had come there voluntarily. 3501/ However, the number of detainees quickly decreased. At the end of June 1992, Serbian authorities allegedly decided to transfer about 250 of the 300 remaining detainees to Olovo and neighbouring villages. 3502/ Reports state that 57 people remained at the high school. 3503/

2306. Serbian forces continued to take Muslims to the high school throughout July and the early days of August. At the beginning of July, a new group of civilians arrived from Seljani, Rakitnica, and Kovanj. 3504/ Then, in mid-July, Serbs again reportedly began to order Muslim civilians to the high school. 3505/ Serbs also consolidated prisoners from other locations at the high school. On 23 July 1992, 23 of the remaining prisoners at the church allegedly were taken to the high school. 3506/ On the same day, Serbian forces also reportedly took Muslim families from their homes to the high school. 3507/ There are also several reports that Serbs took Muslims from their homes to the high school on 29 July 1992. 3508/ Additionally, several reports state that Serbs took Muslim civilians to the high school through the last days of July until 4 August 1992. 3509/ By 7 August 1992, the number of prisoners again reached 300. 3510/

2307. In early August, the Serbian authorities again reportedly released prisoners. On 2 August 1992, several prisoners allegedly were transported to Visoko. 3511/ On 5 August 1992, reports indicate that a large group of the remaining detainees were transported to Hreša, outside Sarajevo. 3512/ Once in Hreša, reports also mention that Serbian positions fired on the detainees as they were released. 3513/ In Vratnik, they were greeted by the armed forces of BiH. 3514/ The last report of anyone transported out of the high school is on 8 August 1992. 3515/

2308. Serbian soldiers allegedly raped many women detained at the high school. 3516/ There are numerous reports of Serbian soldiers taking women and girls from the classrooms and returning them in the morning. 3517/ One report alleges that over 100 women were repeatedly gang raped at the school. 3518/ Reportedly, some women also became pregnant after being raped. 3519/ They allegedly were taken to the ecumenical centre and released. 3520/

2309. Reports stated that Serbs from Pale, Rogatica, Sokolac, and Serbia raped women at the school. 3521/ Numerous reports identify individuals supposedly responsible for sexual assaults of the detainees in the camp. 3522/

2310. The majority of reported sexual assaults allegedly occurred sometime after late June 1992. In particular, reports point to a period of intense abuse of the detainees between 29 July 1992 and 5 August 1992 when women were raped every evening. 3523/ Many women allegedly were raped on multiple evenings as well as raped by more than one person on a single evening. One Muslim woman reported that she was raped 12 times in five nights. 3524/ Another woman reportedly was raped one night by five Serbs. 3525/

2311. Most of the sexual assaults allegedly followed a similar pattern in which pairs of Serbian paramilitary members would enter the detainees' classrooms at approximately 11:00 p.m., select certain women, and take them into other rooms of the school where they would rape them. 3526/ There also are reports of Serbs taking women from classrooms at any time between 12:45 a.m. and 2:00 a.m.. 3527/ Additionally, Serbs allegedly took women from the classrooms and raped them in the cellar of the high school, local apartments, and automobiles. 3528/

2312. There is little information on how women were chosen as victims. One report states that two Serbian paramilitary members would decide who would be raped. 3529/ This report also mentions that some Serbs would request women as victims based on their photos. 3530/

2313. In many instances, the victims also were beaten as they were raped. 3531/ One woman reports that her assailants beat her with boots and guns, and threatened her with a knife. 3532/ Another Muslim woman reports that she was beaten and kicked while she was raped. 3533/

2314. Rape also was used as a tool of interrogation. One Muslim woman states that she was raped while being interrogated by an identified commander. 3534/

2315. Beyond the reports of sexual assault, witnesses also allege that detainees at the high school were killed, beaten, robbed, threatened, and forcibly converted to Serbian Orthodox. Like the rapes, the mistreatment of the prisoners increased after the end of June 1992. 3535/

2316. There are a few reports of murders and disappearances. On 8 June 1992, three people allegedly were executed by members of the Serbian irregular forces. 3536/ It is unclear whether they were killed at the school or some other location. 3537/ In particular, one witness states that an identified man killed an identified woman. 3538/ Additionally, at the end of June, one person was taken away and never seen again. 3539/ An identified man also allegedly had burned and killed. 3540/

2317. According to reports, the detainees at the high school were physically assaulted. There are several reports of Serbian forces beating women, often when these women were trying to protect others from being raped. 3541/ The detainees were beaten without weapons and with rifle butts. 3542/

2318. The high school authorities also forced the detainees to perform dangerous and degrading acts. One woman reports that she was spared from being raped, but forced to commit various "immoral acts". 3543/ Two men allegedly forced another Muslim woman to sit on an anti-tank mine and to jump from a third floor window. 3544/ One of these made women drink alcohol, deciding how much and how fast they had to drink. 3545/ He also allegedly forced women try to commit suicide. 3546/

2319. There are reports that the high school authorities looted the detainees. Several detainees report that they were forced to surrender their jewelry. 3547/ Two identified men were most often reported as the perpetrators of these crimes. 3548/

2320. There are several reports that the prisoners were exposed to various threats and psychic tortures. 3549/ In particular, there are several reports of high school authorities, most often the two men mentioned above, trying to force prisoners to convert to Serbian Orthodox. 3550/ Additionally, three identified people reportedly would ask people to convert, and tell them that those who converted would stay alive and that the others would die. 3551/

2321. Despite the reports of rape, murder, and battery, there are several reports that some of the Serbian paramilitary guards treated prisoners well. Reportedly, the person who originally was responsible for the security of the inmates, treated all of the detainees well. 3552/ However, the conditions, and his control, of the camp allegedly deteriorated with the arrival of about 150 paramilitary Serbs from Baka Palanka in early July. 3553/

2322. Witnesses also report that a number of guards protected some of the detainees. A guard who was a friend of one Muslim woman's husband, allegedly allowed her to sleep at a nearby apartment, in order to prevent her from being raped. 3554/ There also are reports that he provided food for the detainees, and gave Muslims Serbian travel passes so that they could flee to safety. 3555/ Lastly, he allegedly saved some detainees from a plan to execute them. 3556/ Another woman's testimony states that one of the men accused of war crimes at this location protected her from attacks by other guards. 3557/ Lastly, one woman claims that another man protected her from being raped and beaten. 3558/

2323. Although some guards may have respectfully treated the detainees, the conditions at the high school were generally poor. The detainees allegedly were held in classrooms containing anywhere from 17 to 57 people. 3559/ Some groups of detainees allegedly were prevented from having contact with other inmates. 3560/

2324. Sleeping conditions at the camp were very simple. One group of 21 people allegedly were detained in a classroom where they slept without blankets on cement floors. 3561/ Other reports also stated that detainees had no place to sleep, or could only sleep on the floor. 3562/

2325. Apparently, food at the high school was scarce. One group of detainees states that there was no food or medicine at the school when they arrived. 3563/ There also is a report which states that there was no water, 3564/ and another which claims that some guards refused to give water to prisoners. 3565/ Other reports stated that they did not receive food for several days, and described the supplies that they did receive as insufficient. 3566/

2326. However, there also are reports that the Serbian authorities provided some supplies. Between 8 June and 24 July 1992, one group allegedly was given small amounts of food every 15 days. 3567/ These supplies included 110 kilograms of flour, five litres of oil, three to four kilograms of rice and beans, and approximately 50 packages of pasta. 3568/ Another group of 21 people reports that on 1 August 1992, the fourth day of their captivity, the prison authorities provided them with 20 kilograms of flour, one-half litre of oil, and one-half kilogram of rice. 3569/ Lastly, one witness states that between 30 July 1992 and 5 August 1992 a group of several detainees was given one-half kilogram of rice, one-half litre of cooking oil, and 20 kilograms of flour. 3570/ This witness also reports that there was a stove at the high school, and that some of the detainees were allowed to cook meals. 3571/

2327. The prison authorities also allowed the detainees to find their own food. Between 8 June 1992 and 24 July 1992, approximately 50 detainees who lived close to the school were allowed to go home to get some food and clothing. 3572/

2328. Nonetheless, the supplies at the high school may not have been sufficient. There were a few reports that detainees died from lack of food or medicine. One woman who originally was not allowed to bring her medicine to the school may have died from starvation. 3573/ There also is another report that a woman starved to death, but it is unclear whether she died while she was in detention. 3574/

66. Rudo

2329. This municipality is located on the eastern border of BiH, adjacent to Serbia. Its neighbour to the north is Višegrad and its neighbour to the south is ajnie. According to the 1991 Yugoslav census, Rudo county had a population of 11,572; of that 27.2 per cent were Muslims, 70.8 per cent were Serbs and the remaining 2 per cent were described as "others".

2330. Reports indicate that there may have been as many as four detention facilities operating in Rudo; however, information regarding Rudo prison and Rudo camp may, in fact, be describing the same location. Bosnian Serb authorities allegedly operated Rudo prison, but the evidence does not indicate the ethnicity of the parties who operated the other facilities.

2331. Although one report states that Bosnians were detained in Rudo prison, other reports lack any information about the ethnicity of detainees. Even though there is no information about the number of detainees at two of the three sites, at least 22 prisoners were reportedly detained in Rudo.

2332. Barracks: (The existence of this detention facility has not been corroborated by multiple sources.) Reportedly, the barracks in Rudo has operated as a detention facility. 3575/

2333. Old Railway Station: (The existence of this detention facility has not been corroborated by multiple sources.) A detention facility allegedly was located at the old railway station in Rudo. 3576/

2334. Prison: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by multiple sources, including the ICRC.) One report indicates that Bosnian Serb authorities have operated a detention facility at Rudo prison, where as many as 18 prisoners were held. 3577/ Other reports describe a Serbian operated detention facility called Rudo camp, which has held as many as 21 Bosnians. 3578/ These reports may describe the same facility.

2335. One report about Rudo camp details abuse of detainees. A Muslim who was detained in Rudo camp with 21 other Bosnians said that all of the men in his camp had been beaten regularly. 3579/ Men allegedly would be taken from their room for interrogation and would return disfigured, in some cases with ears, fingers, or noses cut off. 3580/

67. Sanski Most

2336. Sanski Most is located in north-west BiH. In 1991 its population was 60,119. Of that, 47 per cent were Muslim, 42.2 per cent Serbian, 7.1 per cent Croatian, and 3.7 per cent were described as "other".

2337. There are reports of 11 Serbian-run detention facilities in this region. They are as follows: Betonirka, the concrete factory at Sanski Most, Hasan Kiki Primary School, Kamengrad, Krings Factory, Kriva Cesta Police Station, Narodni Front Primary School, the police station in Sanski Most, Sana camp, Sportski Centar, and Vrhpolje. These camps held both Muslim and Croatian prisoners, many of whom were later sent on to Manjaa and Dobojski camps.

2338. Camps were established and prisoners detained as part of a greater campaign of "ethnic cleansing" in the region. This campaign began in December 1991 and continued until the complete shelling of the city in late May 1992.

At first, Serbian authorities demobilized all Muslim and Croatian militia, police, and security forces that were then active in the area. 3581/ Then, in April, the Serbian Democratic Party (SDS) requested that the Department of Internal Security (SUP) divide along ethnic lines and form completely separate departments. The Croatian and Muslim officers of the SUP refused the proposed division. 3582/2339. Soon after, 500 uniformed Serbian reservists from the 6th Krajiska Brigade arrived in the city. 3583/ They surrounded the SUP administration building, took over the radio station, post office, bank, and power station. Non-Serbian police officers were told to leave their jobs and go home. 3584/ All surrounding villages were also targeted for "ethnic cleansing". Civilians were asked to surrender their weapons and all movement in the region was closely monitored.

2340. Then, on 23 May 1992 Serbian inhabitants were evacuated from the city. 3585/ A couple days later Sanski Most was completely blockaded by tanks, armoured vehicles, and Serbian troops. 3586/ On the afternoon of the 27th, non-Serbian inhabitants were given an ultimatum to vacate their homes and gather in an open field or risk being killed. 3587/ Then, white sheets were put on the roofs of their houses. 3588/ At about 10:00 p.m., mortars were aimed at these homes, and anyone who had not left them were killed. Apparently, a number of elderly civilians died during this initial bombing. 3589/

2341. This campaign of "ethnic cleansing" was carried out by the 6th Sanski Most Brigade or Krajiška Brigade, the Serbian Democratic Party (SDS), and local Serbs. 3590/ Organizers that are specifically named include: the head of the SDS and later installed as the president of Sanski Most County; 3591/ the man in charge of all camps and detention centres established in the region, commander of the 6th Sanski Most Brigade which was responsible for executing the plans developed by the other two men; 3592/ commander of the paramilitary organization called Srpske Oruane Snage (SOS) which was made up of local Serbs; and the local leader of the Serbian radical party loyal to Vojislav Šešelj. 3593/

2342. Fifteen other men were named. 3594/

2343. Betonirka: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by multiple sources, however none neutral.) One report states that 500 Muslim prisoners, mostly from the city of Sanski Most, were detained at this camp. 3595/ During their captivity, they were severely beaten, and some were killed. 3596/ Another report refers to this camp as one of "evil repute" where a certain Marti from Uljevci was well-known for taking part in activities against prisoners. 3597/ Many of the prisoners from here were ultimately sent on to Manjaa camp. 3598/

2344. Concrete factory in Sanski Most: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely the Government of Denmark.) Another report claims that 120 Muslim men from the Mahala suburb of Sanski Most were detained at a concrete factory near the police station in Sanski Most beginning 27 May 1992. They were ultimately transferred to the Manac or Manjaa camp, 3599/ yet some died upon their arrival at Manac because they had been beaten so severely during their stay at the concrete factory. 3600/

2345. Hasan Kiki Primary School: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by multiple sources, including the US Department of State.) Muslim prisoners were brought to this school upon the attacks of their villages. Men were kept here while women and children were transferred to Velika Kladuša. Approximately 1,200 men were held here for a 50-day period. 3601/ During this time, they were interrogated and tortured before being transferred to Manjaa camp. 3602/

2346. The school had no toilets or other facilities, and prisoners were not given food. 3603/ Some outsiders were allowed to bring food to the camp, but most of it never reached the prisoners because it was stolen by Serb guards. 3604/ Prisoners were often beaten and forced to beat each other. One man reports that he was beaten regularly with chair legs and rubber batons during his detention between 27 May and 7 July. 3605/

2347. Frequently, unidentified "bearded and blood covered" Serb irregulars came to the school with knives demanding to kill prisoners, yet they were unable to get to them because police guards would not let them in. 3606/

2348. Kamengrad: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by multiple sources, including the Government of France.) Kamengrad is reported to be a "mixed camp" in Sanski Most. 3607/ Women were allegedly raped and sexually abused at this camp. 3608/ There is no further information.

2349. Krings Factory: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by multiple sources, including the ICRC.) The Krings factory building is located 2.5 to five kilometres west of Sanski Most. This factory is described as both a former fabric hall and an iron works factory and is in the industrial zone of Sanski Most on the road to Bosanska Krupa. An auto factory called Famos is to the west of it, and a factory that use to make elevators is to the east. 3609/ Apparently, the building was previously used by military forces. 3610/ The ICRC reported visiting the detention facility at the Krings factory. 3611/

2350. The facility is surrounded by a one metre high wire fence, its perimeter comprised of an area about 160 by 100 metres. 3612/ There are two structures in the compound: a small office and the detention facility itself. The single story office building is approximately eight by six metres and is in the north-west corner of the compound. It has five small rooms which were used for interrogations. 3613/

2351. The detention facility is 50 by 100 metres and is 10 metres high. It is built of brick with glass-paned windows and has two entrances. The one on the north-western front consists of two large doors which open outward. These doors are large enough to let cars in. A second entrance on the west end of the building is smaller and permits only individual access. Its doors open inward. There is a third entrance which also has auto access on the south side, but its doors were kept locked at all times. Finally, there is a dog pen attached to the north-eastern corner of the building. 3614/

2352. Muslim and Croatian prisoners from Briševo, Sanski Most, Hrustovo, Vrhpolje, and Stari Majdan as well as those transferred from the Kamengrad and Sportski Centar camps were held at this factory. There is one report that claims that wealthy, intellectual, and professional individuals were singled out to be brought to Krings. 3615/

2353. Two thousand of the prisoners from Sanski Most came in summer 1992. They had been ordered to gather at the marketplace in front of Sanski Most town hall sometime in June. At that point, military buses took them to Krings. 3616/ When they arrived, prisoners from Hrustovo and Vrhpolje were already at the factory.

2354. There are two reports of prisoners coming from Stari Majdan. One states that 150 prisoners arrived on 7 June 1992. 3617/ Another claims that men from Stari Majdan also arrived on 30 July or 1 August with prisoners from Briševo. 3618/ It is not clear when prisoners from the other camps were transferred to the factory, but it is certain that they were detained at the factory during this same time. All in all, approximately 1,000 people are said to have been held at the camp 3619/, and an additional 3,000 to 5,000 passed through it during the period from May to September 1992. 3620/

2355. At the factory, men were separated from the women, children, and elderly. The men were put in the large detention building, lined up, and registered by name. 3621/

2356. They received no food or water. 3622/ They slept on the floor and there were no toilets. 3623/ People were beaten with clubs, canes, thick knotted ropes, chains, army boots, and rifles. Apparently, many people choked from internal bleeding as a result of the beatings. 3624/ Also, the prisoners were forced to sing Serbian nationalist songs. Those from the villages of Hrustovo and Vrhpolje were beaten particularly severely while singing. 3625/ Furthermore, they were told that their daughters had been raped in order to humiliate them in front of the other men. 3626/ Well over 100 people are reported to have been killed at the factory. 3627/

2357. Prisoners were interrogated throughout their detention. Apparently, there were always at least five guards and five interrogators at the factory. The interrogator squad consisted of three military personnel and two policemen. 3628/ During questioning, prisoners were asked about their private lives, political views, places of work, ownership of weapons, and positions of Muslim units and arms. 3629/ Two individuals were named in connection with the interrogations. 3630/

2358. The camp was guarded by men wearing JNA uniforms, presumed to be members of the reserve army. The leader of the camp was identified by one name. 3631/ Later on, in July the army soldiers were replaced by men in dark blue police uniforms. The police force was led by an identified man from Sanski Most. 3632/ Five other policemen were named. 3633/

2359. In addition to these individuals, there were other unidentified military personnel who were present at the camp. One such figure came at night to inspect the camp. He wore a plain green uniform, with an "unusually tall hat similar to that of the cossacks." 3634/ On the hat was pinned a "etnik" symbol unknown to the witness and other prisoners. The man carried a machine-gun with him. 3635/ Another individual identified only as "Marti" came to the camp in early August dressed in an army uniform and started kicking all of the prisoners. 3636/

2360. It appears that Krings closed down sometime near September 1992. Men were either released or transferred to Manjaa. 3637/ One witness relates that he was released on 20 August with 250 other prisoners. The men were let go two at a time and were allowed to move freely around Sanski Most. They were issued written permission by the 6th Krajiška Brigade. This permission was signed by an identified man. 3638/

2361. The mayor of Sanski Most and founder of the SDS and the chairman of SDP, are named as having full knowledge of the activities at the factory during its operation. 3639/

2362. Kriva Cesta Police Station: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely the US Department of State.) One witness explains being held at a police station called Kriva Cesta three kilometres outside of Sanski Most on the road to Klju. 3640/ It is not clear whether this is the central Sanski Most station described in more details by others or not. See Police Station in Sanski Most below for more information.

2363. Narodni Front School: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by multiple sources, including the Government of Denmark.) Two thousand civilians of the Mahala suburb of Sanski Most were brought to the gym of this school upon the severe shelling of their neighbourhoods on 27 May 1992. 3641/ Women and children were immediately released, but the men stayed for up to two weeks. It appears that the school was a sort of collecting centre because the names and addresses of all men were registered by the local police, and then they were released. 3642/

2364. Another source reports that only 500 prisoners were actually "detained" at the school. 3643/

2365. Police Headquarters at Sanski Most: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by multiple sources, including the US Department of State.) Upon the attack of Sanski Most by Serbian forces, men were arrested and taken to the basement of police headquarters. There, they were interrogated and beaten for days. Thirty-three non-Serbian police officers were brought to police headquarters. Seventeen of them were killed during interrogations; eight were sent on to Manjaa, and four managed to escape. 3644/

2366. Some men were brought from other camps at night to be interrogated and beaten. One ex-prisoner claims that men were taken two a night from Sportski Centa to the police station. 3645/ There, they were beaten with shovel handles and hit in the stomach. 3646/

2367. The ICRC reported visiting the Sanski Most Police Station twice, once on 6 August 1992 and another time on 10 October 1992. 3647/ In August, representatives reported seeing 13 prisoners, and in October they saw only one. 3648/

2368. Sana camp: The existence of this camp has not been corroborated by multiple sources. This camp was located in a workshop of the ceramic factory at Sanski Most. 3649/ Many prisoners came to Sana from aplje and Tomina and stayed for a short period before being transferred on to Kozarac or Doboje. 3650/

2369. At the Sana camp, men between the ages of 15 and 60 years old were separated from the women, children, and elderly. The women, children, and elderly usually spent one night at the camp before being sent on to Doboje while the men stayed for a bit longer. 3651/

2370. There are reports that some people were killed arbitrarily during their initial detention. 3652/ Others died during their transfer to other camps because they received no food or water on the truck cargos. Many, particularly the elderly, died from lack of air and water at this time. 3653/

2371. One report describes the transport of a particular group of men from Sana camp to Tomina where they were killed at the bridge near the entrance of town. Apparently, the cargo trucks stopped at the bridge, and the men were ordered off. Then, the prisoners were told to undress and were fired on as they scrambled underneath the bridge. 3654/

2372. Sportski centar: The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by multiple sources, including the US Department of State. Muslim prisoners from Sanski Most were forced to gather at the sports centre on the outskirts of town in late May 1992 when the Serbs took over the city. From that time on, thousands of people passed through this camp, and it is estimated that up to 3,000 people were detained here at one time. 3655/ Again, women, children, and the elderly were immediately separated from the men and let go after one night. 3656/ Most of the men were ultimately transferred to Manjaa.

2373. Family members that were released were allowed to bring food to the camp, but this food was often stolen by guards and never reached the detainees. Furthermore, those bringing it risked being beaten and killed because they would be falsely accused of smuggling in weapons. 3657/ The prisoners received no other food at the camp, and one witness reports that a man died of starvation during his detention there. 3658/

2374. Apparently, the sports hall was divided into two sections, one larger than the other. 3659/ There is also alleged to have been a "special interrogation house" where detainees were beaten and tortured. In this "house," prisoners were asked where all of their possessions were, and many were executed. 3660/

2375. The centre was guarded by Serbian police, military personnel, and local Serb civilians. 3661/ They beat people with bats, rifle butts, and kicked them with steel-toed boots. 3662/ One specific perpetrator in activities against prisoners was named. 3663/ Apparently, he ordered many of the beatings at the centre.

2376. During their short detention, two prisoners a night were taken from the sports centre to the police station to be interrogated. 3664/

2377. Vrhpolje: The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely the UK Defence Debriefing Team Report. Vrhpolje is a village approximately 12 kilometres south-east of Sanski Most. An unknown number of prisoners were held at a camp there. 3665/

68. Sarajevo

2378. Sarajevo consists of several distinct counties or areas. They include, Centar, Hadii, Ilida, Ilijaš, Novi grad, Novo, Pale, Stari grad, Trnovo, and Vogoša. There were many camps in the Sarajevo area, run by all three ethnic groups and housing all three ethnic groups. However, the majority of reports concern Muslim-run camps, housing Bosnian Serbs.

2379. Fighting broke out in the area on 5 April 1992, the eve of a meeting of European Community Ministers, who were expected to recognize BiH as an independent state. At 2:00 p.m. a deadline set by Serbian leaders for cancellation of a full mobilization of the Republic's Territorial Defence and police reserve forces 3666/ expired. As the deadline expired, thousands of people reportedly took to the streets in spontaneous peace marches, and Sarajevo television began running appeals for ethnic amity. One group of marchers was shot at by unidentified gunmen. 3667/ At that point, full-scale fighting broke out. 3668/

2380. Shortly after fighting broke out, many detention centres reportedly sprang up. There are multiple reports of private prisons run from basements of apartment buildings, shopping centres, offices, and in garages all around the region. There were also several larger camps run by the BiH government and the Bosnian Serb Army.

2381. As of August 1993, the Special Rapporteur to the United Nations Human Rights Commission estimated that 100 to 150 people were detained in the government controlled area of Sarajevo, and a similar number were detained by Bosnian Serb forces in the area controlled by them. He stated that the ICRC learned of detention months after such detention began or took place, because the authorities on all sides notify the ICRC only after they have been specifically ordered to do so. 3669/

a. Small detention facilities in Sarajevo

2382. There were reportedly many humanitarian law violations at the private detention facilities. Some of these small facilities were allegedly "bordellos", or sites where women were kept and raped and sexually assaulted for the gratification of the soldiers. 3670/ Many of these allegations were very general, though some sources identified specific sites which were reportedly used for such purposes. 3671/

2383. Premises at Danila Ozme Street: The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely Amnesty International. The BiH Government allegedly detained Serb women here for the purpose of rape. There is no information on when the site was opened, how many detainees were there, or what the conditions were, but the site was closed at the end of August 1992. 3672/

2384. Premises at engi Vila: The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely Amnesty International. The BiH Government allegedly detained Serb women here for the purpose of rape. 3673/ There is no information on when the site was opened or closed, how many detainees were there or what the conditions were.

2385. Railway Station: The existence of this detention facility has not been corroborated by multiple sources. Serbian girls were reportedly held here and raped. The submitting source stated that Muslims ran the site as part of a plan to get rid of all Serbs. 3674/ There is no information on when the site was opened or closed, how many detainees were there, or what the conditions were.

2386. Primary School Petar Djoki: The existence of this detention facility has not been corroborated by multiple sources. Serbian girls were allegedly held here and raped. The source stated that Muslims ran the site as part of a plan to get rid of all Serbs. 3675/ There is no information on when the site was opened or closed, how many detainees were there, or what the conditions were.

2387. Sports Centre Skenderija: The existence of this detention facility has not been corroborated by multiple sources. Serbian girls were allegedly detained here and raped. The source stated that Muslims ran the site as part of a plan to get rid of all Serbs. 3676/ There is no information on when the site was opened or closed, how many detainees were there, or what the conditions were.

2388. The Hotel Zagreb: The existence of this detention facility has not been corroborated by multiple sources. The BiH Territorial Defence allegedly ran a "bordello" for Serbian girls and women here. 3677/ In a separate submission the same source stated that Muslims ran the site as part of a plan to get rid of all Serbs. 3678/ There is no information on when the site was opened or closed, how many detainees were there, or what the conditions were.

2389. The Hotel Evropa: The existence of this detention facility has not been corroborated by multiple sources. The BiH Territorial Defence allegedly ran a "bordello" for Serbian girls and women here. Muslims reportedly took one identified girl here in July 1992 from Breka after they killed her mother and father. 3679/ There is no information on when the site was opened or closed, how many detainees were there or what the conditions were.

2390. The Mladen Stojanovi Dormitory or Youth Hostel on Radieva Street: The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely Amnesty International. This site was located near the Sarajka department store. It was allegedly converted into the Security Service Centre Department in Sarajevo and was the first step for prisoners on the way to either the Viktor Bubanj barracks or the Central Prison. 3680/ BiH Government forces reportedly operated the facility, where Serb women were allegedly detained and raped. 3681/ According to one source, the Muslims strategic plan was to rid the area of all Serbs. 3682/ There is no information on when the site was opened or closed, how many detainees were there, or what the conditions were.

2391. School of Civil Engineering: The existence of this detention facility has not been corroborated by multiple sources. The Republika Srpska identified a man who ran a camp here where 100 Serb women were allegedly detained and raped. 3683/

2392. Aerodrom: The existence of this detention facility has not been corroborated by multiple sources. Women were allegedly detained, raped, and killed here. 3684/ No additional information regarding control or length of the facility's existence was made available.

2393. Student Hostel in Vraca: The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely The Guardian. Women were allegedly detained and raped here. 3685/ No additional information regarding control or length of the facility's existence was made available.

2394. Houses in Souolac: 3686/ (the existence of these detention facilities have been corroborated by a neutral source, namely The Guardian.) Women were allegedly detained and raped here. 3687/

2395. Other small prisons housed both men and women. In these, the detainees were allegedly beaten, some killed, and some women were raped. 3688/ There is little information on many of these sites.

2396. Premises on Oktobarske Revolucije Street: The existence of this detention facility has not been corroborated by multiple sources. According to a statement by two named witnesses, Serbian men were held here, one identified Serbian man was beaten to death with a mallet, and prisoners were used as live shields. 3689/

2397. Basement of Apartment Building at Trg Zavnobih-a: The existence of this detention facility has not been corroborated by multiple sources. A named Bosnian Serb witness stated that there were prison cells at this location two metres wide by 20 metres long. 3690/ In one cell were 57 prisoners, 17 of whom were women. They lay on wooden pallets along the wall. Some reportedly had broken limbs and ribs, broken teeth, or head wounds. The witness stated that he was beaten because he was from Pale. During the day, he stated that dogs were brought in and forced to bite the prisoners. The witness identified two of the men who beat the prisoners as Senad and "Kruško." 3691/

2398. Mladost, Trg Zavnbobih-bb: The existence of this detention facility has not been corroborated by multiple sources. According to a witness, in April, about 20 Serbs allegedly were arrested, mistreated, and tortured at a detention facility established in this public building. Two identified men were allegedly killed. The witness stated that the commander of the Territorial Defence in Sarajevo, was one of the perpetrators. 3692/

2399. Coca-Cola Plant, Raskršće: The existence of this detention facility has not been corroborated by multiple sources. According to a witness, this camp, located half way between Ilida and Hadii, was used as a processing plant for Bosnian Muslims before they were shipped to the stadium camp in Hadii. 3693/

2400. Cafe Borsalino: The existence of this detention facility has not been corroborated by multiple sources. According to one source, a detention facility was established in this Sarajevo cafe. This facility was reportedly run by the Bosnian Muslim commander of the Territorial Defence in Sarajevo. Individuals detained here were allegedly tortured and denied food and water. 3694/

2401. School of Electrical Engineering: The existence of this detention facility has not been corroborated by multiple sources. A witness stated that after being brought here, the guards confiscated his documents and all of his money. He reportedly later learned that Green Berets were found on a mountain with all of his personal documents. 3695/

2402. Unidentified basement prison: The existence of this detention facility has not been corroborated by multiple sources. A named witness reported that he was arrested 6 May 1992 by Muslim Green Berets. He recalled witnessing the torture and forced confession of a fellow detainee. The witness stated that the prisoner was, thereafter, killed by an identified man. There were reportedly other Serbs present, who were also physically abused. 3696/

2403. Unidentified facility on Tetovska Street: The existence of this detention facility has not been corroborated by multiple sources. In October 1992, a woman was allegedly taken from her home to a basement, which had been transformed into a containment area, in Tetovska street. During her detention, the woman was reportedly interrogated and raped by members of the Muslim army. 3697/ She became pregnant and received an abortion in March 1993, in her 22nd week of pregnancy. 3698/

2404. Unidentified military prison: The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by multiple sources, including the Paris Daily Liberation and the ICRC. According to Francois Didier of Paris' Daily Liberation, Serbian prisoners, who appeared to be civilians, were kept at a military prison for exchange. They reportedly had visible injuries. 3699/ Another account involved a Serb man who saved a Muslim Imam during an attack on Dobroševii and Ahatovii in June of 1992. This man stated that he was arrested by Territorial Defence Forces on 29 June 1992, and taken to this prison. He stated that he told the people who arrested him that he had saved the Imam, but he was taken to the military prison anyway. He gave no further details. 3700/

2405. Unidentified School: The existence of this detention facility has not been corroborated by multiple sources. A witness reported that her son's school in Sarajevo was now a prison and a bordello. She said that she never saw women, and could not say if Serb or Muslim women were held there. She stated that she saw members of the Muslim army enter the school and heard screams of women and men. 3701/

2406. Ramiz Salin: The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely the ICRC. According to one report, representatives of the ICRC visited a detention facility in Ramiz Salin. The facility was established in a local prison/penitentiary and was in existence on 27 December 1993. No information was provided regarding the operation and control of this facility. 3702/

b. Other areas of Sarajevo

2407. Alipašino Polje: The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely Amnesty International. There was at least one site of detention in this area in Sarajevo. Three Bosnian Serb male witnesses describe events occurring at "the prison at Alipašino Polje", indicating that there may have been only one. 3703/ The fourth report states merely that Serbian women were raped by BiH Government forces on premises in this area. 3704/ Because the other witnesses do not allege that women were raped at the prison where they were held, this may be another site.

2408. The three witnesses each state that they were held in a prison run by the Muslim Territorial Defence Forces of BiH. The facility was reportedly used primarily for housing Bosnian Serbs. They also reported that both women and men were held there. 3705/ One stated that there were 72 inmates. 3706/ The witnesses did not describe conditions at the prison, but all three described beatings and killings. One man stated that he witnessed Muslim guards kill three men and saw guards interrogate another young man about weapons. When the young man replied he knew nothing about weapons, the guards allegedly tied him to a table and worked his anus over with a rasp. The witness stated that he saw the young man later in a pool of his own blood, still alive. 3707/

2409. The most detailed testimony was from a Serb man who said he was detained in a basement prison--called block B--for eight days. He claimed he was imprisoned for being a Serb. He said he was interrogated and beaten. The prison inspector questioned the witness about the names of other "etniks". When the witness stated that he knew a man with a particular name, he was beaten for 12 hours. The prison inspector reportedly watched the beating from a bed, rising from time to time to participate in the beating. The witness stated that he was put in a straight jacket twice and beaten with boards and a wooden stick. When he lost consciousness, the guards threw water over him. 3708/

2410. The witness also reported that the prison inspector urinated on his head and tried to force the witness to perform fellatio on him. When the witness refused, the prison inspector threatened him and took a stick, forcing it in and out of the witness' mouth, saying that this was what he did to Serb women with his penis. 3709/ The witness stated that he was beaten again, and when returned to the other prisoners, was unable to move for three days. 3710/

2411. The witness was called two days later to sign a written statement. He wrote his original story and was beaten again. The prison inspector reportedly came to him, saying that he would be released if he would tell who collaborated with the "etniks". The prison inspector also said that many people were interceding on behalf of the witness including the management of the firm where he was employed. 3711/ After eight days, the commander of the Territorial Defence came to the prison. He called out the names of each of the 72 detainees, one by one, and released them. The witness identified five guards who beat prisoners, and two guards he said did not beat prisoners. 3712/

2412. Electrotechnical School, Bua Potok: The existence of this detention facility has not been corroborated by multiple sources. This prison was allegedly located at the Electrotechnical school in Bua Potok, on Prvomajska street. 3713/ The prison was reportedly run by members of the Bosnian Muslim paramilitary group the Green Berets and the Territorial Defence of BiH. There were eight male detainees, seven of whom were Serb and one of whom was a Muslim, who allegedly intended to give a Serb a list of Muslims who should be killed. 3714/

2413. The sole account of this detention facility was provided by a Serb male. He stated that he was arrested on 17 May 1992, beaten and taken to the school. He recalled that there were some 30 armed individuals positioned in front of the facility. They reportedly ordered the prisoners to stand facing the wall, after which they were beaten. 3715/ The witness and the six others arrested with him were taken to the basement. They were reportedly the only detainees there. The detainees were accused of owning radio transmitters and guiding Serb shells. One man, between 75 and 80 years old, died after being beaten for half an hour. Another man, about 75 years old, was brought in and killed by being beaten for an hour. The bodies of these two men were put into a sewer which emptied into the Miljacka river. 3716/

2414. The witness reported that the perpetrators stated they were from Foa, Gorade, and Zvornik. The witness also stated that he overheard beatings of other prisoners by what sounded like elderly women. The witness did not describe other conditions at the prison, nor did he describe his release. 3717/

2415. Central Prison (National Prison): The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by multiple sources, including the ICRC. This prison was allegedly run by an identified man. 3718/ An actor reportedly helped manage the prison, though he left at the beginning of August 1992. 3719/ The commander of the fifth floor, where women were allegedly held, was also named. 3720/ Ten other guards were identified. 3721/ Finally, one source added that the commander of the Territorial Defence visited the prison. 3722/ The reports regarding this site state that Serb detainees were held here from May 1992 3723/ until at least July 1992. 3724/ One source stated that part of the prison was opened in September 1992 for inspection by humanitarian organizations. 3725/ Both men and women were held at this site, and one report stated that even children were detained here. 3726/ There is no indication of how many civilians and POWs were held here, or whether the detainees, whose statements were provided, were civilian or military prisoners. However, one report stated that a witness was kept in one room with 30 other Serb prisoners. 3727/

2416. Hygienic conditions were described as terrible. 3728/ One report stated that detainees were fed tea, bread and a little bit of pasta. 3729/ Another report stated that detainees were fed only once per day. 3730/ Allegedly, detainees were given one litre of water every four days. 3731/ One witness, who was held in solitary confinement, reported that toilet facilities consisted of an outhouse outside. It was open and had no water. The same witness stated that he received no medical attention for wounds from beatings. 3732/

2417. Detainees were reportedly beaten and tortured. Several reports state that Green Berets, Mujahedin warriors, police officers, and criminals were allowed to enter the prison and beat the detainees. 3733/ Women were allegedly raped there. 3734/ One report alleged that the commander of the women's floor extorted jewelry under the threat of rape. 3735/ Another report stated that women were raped every night. 3736/ Some detainees reported that they were forced to sign false confessions saying that they were "etnik" sympathizers or snipers, and some said they were forced to testify on Sarajevo television. 3737/ One report stated that every night five to six Serbs died, and more were brought in to take their place. 3738/ One man was allegedly abducted and taken to the Central Prison because his brother was willing to exchange 100 Muslim prisoners for him. 3739/

2418. According to another report, representatives of the ICRC visited a detention facility in a prison in Sarajevo. The report notes the existence of this facility as late as 3 March 1993. No additional information regarding operation or control of the facility was provided in the report. 3740/

2419. Ciglane: The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by multiple sources however none among them are neutral. There were two places in this area of Sarajevo where people were detained. One was allegedly a "bordello," holding Serb women and girls as young as 10 to 12 years old. The only account of this location came from a Serb woman who was held there. She stated that drunk Croatian and Muslim forces came to the site and raped the girls there. She alleged that many young girls were gang raped, and that none of the detainees were allowed to talk to each other. A former schoolmate of the witness brought her to this location. He had kidnapped her in Livno and brought her along when he was transferred to Sarajevo. 3741/

2420. Unidentified Tunnel: 3742/ The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by multiple sources however none among them are neutral. Another site in this area where people were allegedly detained was an unidentified tunnel. 3743/ At this tunnel, Serbs were reportedly detained by Muslims beginning in mid May. The site was run by an identified commander. 3744/ He is suspected by the Government of FRY to be involved in crimes committed at the camp. The Government does not specify what these crimes were. 3745/

2421. Dečić: 3746/ The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely Special Rapporteur to the United Nations Human Rights Commission. On 7 July 1992, Muslim and Croat forces allegedly attacked the village of Presjenica. Some were killed, and about 50 were taken prisoner. They were taken to a Muslim-run camp in Dečić and held for two months. A Serb witness alleged that there was malnutrition, beatings, humiliations, and threats to kill. Younger women were allegedly taken away for forced prostitution and rape. The witness was exchanged in Kalinovik, 31 August 1992, through the Yugoslav Red Cross. She stated that five Muslims were exchanged for every Serb. 3747/

2422. Digitron Firm: The existence of this detention facility has not been corroborated by multiple sources. This was allegedly a Serb run site, holding about 20 girls, aged 13 to 18. 3748/ There is only one witness statement regarding this site, and that did not discuss the general conditions of detention. According to the witness, beginning with the attack on the SUP school in Vraca on 5 April 1992, unidentified "Četniks" came to Grbavica every day to intimidate the civilian population. They allegedly searched the houses for arms. At the end of April, some came to a building and abducted about 20 girls, aged 13 to 18. These girls were reportedly taken to the Digitron firm at Buje. There, the "Četniks" threatened to rape all the girls and keep them pregnant, allegedly saying that they should prefer giving birth to Serbs rather than "Balijs". About 20 May the "Četniks" began taking away two or three girls at a time to rape them. The witness was allegedly raped by two men while two others held her down. She stated that she was not raped every day, but some of the girls were. At the end of August, some of the girls were released. The witness was released in mid-September. She was five months pregnant. She believed that the perpetrators were Serbs, but not from the area by their accents. 3749/

2423. Dobrinja: There were allegedly several sites of detention in this section of Sarajevo. The Republic of Serbia reported that in mid-June, there were mass arrests of Serbs, beginning with the intellectuals. 3750/ The prisoners allegedly were first taken to the Territorial Defence Staff or to the Military Police Staff and then put into basement prisons in the area. 3751/

2424. Sunce Storehouse, Dobrinja: The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by multiple sources however none among them are neutral. One of these prisons was Sunce Storehouse, located under Privredna Banka. 3752/ The site was reportedly run by the Territorial Defence forces and housed Serb men and women. 3753/ One report described the prison as three cells and a guard room. 3754/ A witness stated that there were 63 men and women kept there in one room. 3755/ There was a lack of food and light, and detainees were reportedly heavily beaten. 3756/ One witness stated that the commander of the prison was a Muslim man, identified by nickname. 3757/ Some prisoners were reportedly moved from this location to the Viktor Bujanj barracks or Central Prison. 3758/

2425. Unidentified Basement Prison, Dobrinja: The existence of this detention facility has not been corroborated by multiple sources. There may have been another basement prison in this area of Sarajevo. A witness described his detention in a basement prison with about 100 other Serbs. He stated he was arrested on 23 June 1992 by the Territorial Defence and put into an unidentified basement. He was interrogated, beaten, and forced to throw two Molotov cocktails at Serb houses in Nedarii. He identified the commander at the site, and also identified two guards. 3759/

2426. Atomic shelter, Dobrinja: The existence of this detention facility has not been corroborated by multiple sources. Serbs were also allegedly held at an atomic shelter in the area for three months. 3760/ The Serbian Government identified a Muslim man named Barakovi from Trebinje as an alleged perpetrator at unnamed private prisons. 3761/

2427. Primary school, Dobrinja: The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely the International Society for Human Rights. Additionally, one report alleged that Muslims from Dobrinja and nearby villages were rounded up, taken to an unnamed primary school, and beaten on 5 May 1992. 3762/

2428. Unidentified shelter Camp: The existence of this detention facility has not been corroborated by multiple sources. One report alleged that in August 1992, a Serb woman was taken by members of the Muslim army to a camp in a shelter, set up to detain Serbs. This woman was detained for five days, during which she was beaten, humiliated, and raped by three members of the Muslim army. She became pregnant and gave birth to a child in Belgrade in May 1993. 3763/

2429. Unidentified location, Grbavica: The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely the New York Times. There was at least one site of detention in this area of Sarajevo, and may have been more. At one particular unidentified location in May 1992, a 15 year-old Muslim girl reported that she was abducted by Serbian fighters. Her abductors reportedly took her to a small room with about 20 other girls, where she was ordered to undress. She was beaten and raped by two men while two others held her down. They allegedly said they wanted to "make sure [she gave] birth to a Serbian baby". She stated that she was raped often. She was released in September or October. 3764/

2430. Unidentified camp, Grbavica: The existence of this detention facility has not been corroborated by multiple sources. Another witness, held in an unidentified camp in Grbavica, stated that on 8 July 1992, two men sent a message through the detainees at the detention camp in Grbavica. They allegedly said that all Muslims and Croats may leave the area if they want to because it would be hard on them later. The Serbs then allegedly evacuated the area. 3765/

2431. Unidentified detention facility, Grbavica: The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by multiple sources, including the ICRC. According to one source, as of 20 August 1993, Bosnian Croat HVO forces held about 15,000 Muslims in several detention camps and prisons, including one in Grbavica. The ICRC negotiated for access beginning in late June and were given access in August and early September. 3766/ Over 1,500 Muslim detainees were released from detention centres controlled by the HVO during the week of 29 August but hundreds or thousands may have remained in prisons. 3767/

2432. Hadii, community building: The existence of this detention facility has not been corroborated by multiple sources. One witness reported that this site was used as a temporary camp for Muslim men. The witness was arrested with a friend on 23 May 1992, by six armed men as he tried to enter the village to shop. He was taken to a small garage near the community building. He reported that there were 45 Muslim men already there, some of them from Foa. Serbs ran the site. The detainees allegedly received only one meal per day, slept on the floor, and had no toilet facilities. The witness stated that there was constant turnover at the site. Some of the detainees were beaten. The witness was held there for two weeks. On about 8 June he was transferred to the Sports Centre. 3768/

2433. Hadii sports centre: The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by multiple sources, including the US Department of State. This site was allegedly run by Serbs and housed Bosnian Muslims. The witness who was first taken to the community building testified that the population of the camp was about 180, all male Muslim civilians. He stated that the guards were local Serbs, who allowed six men to beat the detainees. When another village was "cleansed" by Serbs from Serbia, the witness said, the population increased by another 40 Muslim men. The witness stated that the detainees were subject to beatings, sexual abuse, and forced labour. They were allegedly given only one piece of bread and one "can" 3769/ per day. On 22 June more civilians were brought in from the village Kucici, and the witness' group was transferred to Lukavica. From there they were sent to Kula and were finally exchanged at Vrbanja. 3770/

2434. Three other reports briefly describe this site. One witness identified six family members who she alleged were kidnapped from Grbavica, taken to the sports centre, and later transferred to Kula. 3771/ Another report stated that the sports centre was a camp for Muslims from Hadii and nearby villages, kept mainly for exchange purposes. This source stated that the population was about 2,500 in November of 1992. 3772/ The last report stated only that Bosnian Muslims were taken to this site after processing at the Coca-Cola plant at Raskršće. 3773/

2435. Hadii prison: The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely the ICRC. The ICRC visited this place of detention on 11 April 1993. No information was provided regarding conditions, treatment of detainees or length of detention. 3774/

2436. Grude Prison, Hadii: The existence of this detention facility has not been corroborated by multiple sources. Despite the forced expulsion of Serbs from Celebici on 22 April 1992, Muslim and Croat forces reportedly found 13 Serbs who refused to leave. The Serbs were imprisoned in Konjic for a period of two days during which they were beaten and mistreated. 3775/ On 8 May the Serbs were taken to Grude prison. The prison was reportedly a Croatian-run facility. The Serbs were allegedly tortured on arrival, a consequence of which, one Serb was reported to have lost his life. 3776/

2437. "Bordellos" in Hadii: The existence of these detention facilities have not been corroborated by multiple sources. In late 1991 and 1992, Muslim and Croat forces allegedly ran "bordellos", housing Serb women and girls as young as 12. These women were reportedly kept in the "bordellos" until the fifth month of pregnancy, and they were detained, but apparently not raped, after that to prevent abortions. Additionally, men with infectious diseases including AIDS were allegedly "deliberately allowed" to rape the women. This source further alleged that over 1,000 Serb women were exposed to this in seven counties. 3777/

2438. Hrasnica Prison: The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by multiple sources, including the ICRC. According to the Special Rapporteur to the Human Rights Commission, the BiH Interior Minister admitted that this site was controlled by the government and held men of all ages and backgrounds. The men were reportedly forced to do dangerous work like digging trenches on the front line. Bosnian Serbs and Bosnian Croats were allegedly at particular risk of this detention because they could be exchanged for Bosnian Muslim prisoners of war. 3778/

2439. Igman, Hotel Famos: The existence of this detention facility has not been corroborated by multiple sources. This site was described by one witness as a temporary camp. The witness, a Serb man, was arrested in Konjic with 13 friends by members of the Croatian and Muslim army. The witness stated that they were taken to the Hotel Famos at Mount Igman. The soldiers beat the detainees at the hotel entrance. The soldiers ordered the prisoners to lie on the ground and beat them with boots, pistols and feet. The soldiers then took the prisoners to an unlit concrete cellar. Eight soldiers followed the prisoners and beat them again in the cellar. When the prisoners lost consciousness, the soldiers allegedly threw water on them to wake them up. The next day, the prisoners' hands were tied, and they were forced to walk between two lines of soldiers, who beat the prisoners with shovels, blunt objects, iron pipes and rubber truncheons. The prisoners were taken to the Silos at Tarin. 3779/

2440. Igman Prison: The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely the ICRC. The ICRC reported that it visited this place of detention on 27 May 1993. No information was provided regarding the treatment of inmates, the length of the facility's existence nor its exact location. 3780/

2441. Ilida: The existence of these detention facilities have not been corroborated by multiple sources. There allegedly were at least six separate sites of detention in this area of Sarajevo: Sports Hall, Old Health Centre Building, Luani Camp, Red Cross Building, Energoinvest Storehouse at Blauj. There are no real details about these sites, but they were allegedly all run by two identified men. 3781/ Another source stated that Arkan's "•etniks" were most active in this region. 3782/ Allegedly, nearly 35,000 people have passed through this area, reportedly 30,000 of them were Muslim. 3783/

2442. In mid-May 5,000 3784/ to 7,000 3785/ men, women, and children, travelling with a Children's Embassy convoy were allegedly detained at the sports centre for two to three days. 3786/ There, three children reported that several men were taken away and tortured, and one child reported that the detainees were given nothing to eat. 3787/

2443. Iliđa Police Station: The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely the ICRC. The sixth reported detention site was at the local police station. This facility was also reported to have been operated by two identified individuals. 3788/ The ICRC reported that it visited this place of detention on 28 May 1993. No information was provided regarding the treatment of inmates, the length of the facility's existence nor its exact location. 3789/

2444. Iliđaš: There are several general reports regarding the detention of civilians in this area. Prisoners were reportedly transported here from other locations and killed. In April, 30 men from Gornja Bioa were brought here and killed for refusing to surrender. Their bodies were burned at the eljezara factory furnace. 3790/ Additionally, 56 civilians, captured at Ahatovii and imprisoned at Rajlovac, 3791/ were also brought here in mid June. Forty-eight of them were killed. 3792/

2445. Reports suggest that the primary school was used in April or May by Serbs to house Muslims. A number of civilians from the villages of Gornja Bioa and Kralupa were captured and detained at this location in Gornja Bioa. 3793/ Three other sources support allegations of the existence of some sort of camp for Muslims in the area. A witness reported seeing 600 men, women, and children taken from Batajnice in June or July 1992 and assumed that they were brought to Iliđaš. 3794/ Another report stated that after attacks on Lješevo, Ahatovii, Dobroševii, Svrake and Hreša, civilians were taken to camps in Iliđaš. There, they were allegedly tortured, some were exposed to poison gas, and some killed. 3795/ A number of sources report that women held in facilities in Iliđaš were allegedly taken away to the military barracks and private homes and raped. Some reportedly did not return. 3796/

2446. Gornja Bioa School, Iliđaš: The existence of this detention facility has not been corroborated by multiple sources. All of the information on this site came from the confession of Borislav Herak. He reported that in April of 1992, his company of the JNA took 120 Muslim civilians from Gornja Bioa and the village Kralupa and put them into the primary school in Gornja Bioa. The soldiers separated the men from the women and children. 3797/ About 30 men, who had refused to surrender, were kept in a separate group. They were taken under the orders of an identified man, by army truck, to Iliđaš Forge, where they were killed. The bodies were then burned in a furnace. 3798/

2447. Herak stated that he was encouraged by his commanding officer to select girls and rape them. He confessed to raping four young women at a nearby house and identified the four. He stated that he raped them at gunpoint and beat them. 3799/ The young women all screamed, but no guards came to stop him. Herak also stated that two other men raped six women at the men's house. Herak further reported that an identified man from Serbia, a commander of a unit from Iliđaš, killed three Muslim men and one Muslim woman "for no reason". An identified man ordered the bodies buried at the Muslim cemetery. 3800/ After 10 days, all the prisoners were transferred to the Primary school at Iliđaš. 3801/

2448. Podlugovi, Iliđaš: The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by multiple sources however none among them are neutral. There are only two references to this camp. According to one, this camp housed 200 Muslims from Iliđaš, Luka, Bioa, and Mioa. At some point the detainees were allegedly transferred to Semizovac. 3802/ The other source stated that Lješevo village was attacked and burned in early June 1992. Some villagers were killed and some were taken under the orders of an identified man to camps in Podlugovi. This source alleged that the same occurred for the Muslim villages of Ilijaš, Gornja Misoa, Donja Luka, Hadii, Karaula, and Gajice. 3803/

2449. Koševo Hospital: The existence of this detention facility has not been corroborated by multiple sources. One witness alleged that his father was held by Muslim authorities for nine months in the hospital. 3804/ There are no other accounts of people held in the hospital.

2450. According to another report, ICRC representatives visited a detention facility at a hospital in Sarajevo. No information was provided regarding conditions or prisoner treatment at this facility. 3805/

2451. Koševo stadium: The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely the US Government. The information regarding this camp is somewhat conflicting. Two sources reported that 6,000 Serbs were detained in this camp in 1992. 3806/ Most were allegedly released, but some may still be held there. 3807/ One source alleged that the Muslim police responsible for the detention were under orders of the BiH Presidency. 3808/ Though conditions at the camp were not described, one source alleged that in July, members of the Bosnian Muslim paramilitary group, the Green Berets, threw live Serb children into the cages of wild animals at the zoo. 3809/

2452. A third source stated that several hundred Serb civilians had been detained in the stadium. This source also alleged that the BiH Government intervened for the release of these civilians from the stadium. 3810/

2453. Kula: The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by multiple sources, including Amnesty International and UNPROFOR. This camp was located in the suburb of Butmir, near the airport. 3811/ The prison was opened as early as May 1992 3812/ and remained in operation until at least January 1993. 3813/ The population was estimated to be between 50 in May 1992, 3814/ and 500 to 850 in November 1992. 3815/ One source alleged that a total of over 30,000 prisoners passed through this facility; 3816/ however, most accounts place the population at 130 to 200. 3817/ According to one report, representatives of the ICRC visited a detention facility in Kula Butmir. The facility was established in a local prison/penitentiary and was in existence on 19 February 1993. No information was provided by this source regarding the operation and control of this facility. 3818/

2454. The prisoners were allegedly Muslim men, women, and children, and some elderly Serbs, Serb women, and young Serbian males who refused to fight in the Serbian army. 3819/ However, some sources allege only that Muslims were held at the camp, 3820/ and one source claims that only Serbs were held at the camp. 3821/ The sources are also split on whether civilians or POWs were held there. 3822/ One detainee was a Serbian writer, who spoke out against Radovan Karadi and was allegedly a detainee at this facility in September. 3823/ Finally, one source named one man as the commander, 3824/ while a second named another as director of the prison. 3825/

2455. Prisoners were allegedly fed one cup of tea and one slice of bread one 3826/ to two times per day. 3827/ It is possible that conditions improved slightly over time since the accounts stating the detainees were fed once per day were from prisoners detained in May 1992, while the one account describing two meals per day was from a person detained in late June. There was no electricity, or running water, and buckets were used for toilets. 3828/ Prisoners received no medical attention. 3829/

2456. People were not detained for very long at the camp. The shortest period of detention reported was 24 hours 3830/ and the longest period was about eight or nine days. 3831/ All detainees released from the camp were released through exchanges. 3832/ The detention appears to have gone in stages. There are two witness reports concerning a group of people detained at the camp from 12 May 1992, to about 20 May. Both of these witnesses were taken from Dobrinja, and both describe the same general events. 3833/ Another witness was interned in late June after an attack on the airport district. 3834/ Because populations from different areas were in the camp at different times, and exchanges were conducted in large numbers after relatively short periods of time, this camp seems to have been used as a way to remove large groups of people from particular areas.

2457. While they were detained at the camp, witnesses consistently stated they were interrogated 3835/ and that some people were beaten. 3836/ The beatings took place in front of other prisoners, and those who were beaten were beaten so severely they lost consciousness. 3837/ One source alleged that some women were raped. 3838/

2458. Lesnina Furniture Store: The existence of this detention facility has not been corroborated by multiple sources. From at least mid-April to December 1992, a camp was in operation in the basement of the Lesnina Furniture Store. There were about 20 girls aged 15 to 20 there, one woman in her thirties and this woman's young daughter. There is one witness account from the older woman regarding this camp. She was a Muslim woman married to a Croat. In April, four men from the SDS broke into her house, demanded money and killed the witness' husband. Ten days later, three men brought the woman and her daughter to this camp. There were about 20 girls--aged 15 to 20--already in detention here, the majority of whom were Muslim. The witness stated that one man took her to a flat where five men raped her. 3839/ Three of them were SDS and had Ekavian dialects. The witness stated that the alleged perpetrators ate and drank during the rape and beat her, saying that they liked raping bloody "Balijs". The witness stated that from June to December, she was taken every night to a different place and raped each time by four to five different "•etniks". 3840/ She stated that this happened to the other prisoners as well, except for her daughter. The women were returned at 3:00 or 5:00 a.m., each morning. During their detention, the detainees received only bread and beans to eat. 3841/

2459. Lukavica: The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely UNICEF. The only witness account of this site came from a young girl. She and her mother were held for about a month in April and May of 1992. She said that the camp was run by "•etniks". 3842/ She described the conditions, saying only that there was little food and that people were beaten. The witness stated that she saw soldiers kill old people and put them in mass graves. She also stated that she saw women raped. 3843/ In one instance, she alleged that the commandant ordered several women and girls brought to a room. There, he allegedly ordered a Serb woman to stab the witness' mother in the chest or stomach. The witness was then ordered to stand against a wall. The Serbs allegedly shot at her, but she turned at the last minute, the bullet just nicking her ear. The witness and her mother escaped by running away. 3844/ Another source stated only that women from Kula camp were also brought to this camp and raped. Some of these women were allegedly killed. 3845/

2460. Unidentified Home, Lukavica: The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely the ICRC. The ICRC reported that it visited a detention centre at a private home in Lukavica in 1993. No information was provided regarding the treatment of inmates, the length of the facility's existence nor its exact location. 3846/

2461. Barracks, Lukavica: The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely the ICRC. The ICRC reported that it visited a detention centre at the barracks in Lukavica on 30 September 1993. No information was provided regarding the treatment of inmates, the length of the facility's existence nor its exact location. 3847/

2462. Pale: After Serb losses at Orahovica, Renovica and epa, the residents of those killed staged a protest, threatening to kill or expel all the Muslims. One identified man allegedly forcibly evicted Muslims, and two other identified man organized arrests. Police forces from Sok allegedly carried out the arrests. An identified commander allegedly assisted in some unspecified way. Another identified man armed and dressed a paramilitary force. This paramilitary group allegedly looted Muslim property and cooperated with "weekend •etniks." Another man, affiliated with Arkan, was also allegedly involved in the persecution of Muslims. Finally, yet another man organized a paramilitary group. Forces active in the area included Arkan's paramilitaries, Šešelj's "•etniks", White Eagles, and "weekend •etniks". 3848/

2463. There were several sites in Pale where Muslims were allegedly detained by Serbs. It appears that there was one main site, and other satellites where prisoners were detained.

2464. Police Station, Pale: The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by multiple sources however none among them are neutral. A site of detention was the police station. 3849/

2465. Sports Hall, Pale: The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by multiple sources however none among them are neutral. A site of detention was a sports hall. 3850/

2466. Cinema, Pale: The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by multiple sources, however none among them are neutral. A site of detention was a cinema. 3851/

2467. Cultural Centre, Pale: The existence of this detention facility has not been corroborated by multiple sources. A site of detention was in a cultural centre. 3852/

2468. It is unclear where the majority of detainees were housed. Two identified men, one a commander, allegedly ran all of these camps. 3853/ One source stated that over 20,000 prisoners went through this area and as of November 1992, there were still 2,500 held there. 3854/

2469. Some prisoners were arrested and brought straight to the camps, while others were transferred in from other camps. Detainees were brought from Bratunac 3855/ and Manjaa. 3856/ At least one transfer from Bratunac occurred in mid-May. 3857/ Estimates of the number of prisoners were near 400. 3858/ Another source stated that 500 to 600 detainees were transferred from Bratunac to Pale, but did not specify the date of this transfer. 3859/ It is unclear whether this was the same transfer as the one in mid-May. The camp was opened as early as May 1992, 3860/ and may have been in operation as recently as May 1993. 3861/

2470. There is little information on the living conditions for most of the sites. A witness detained in the sports hall stated that about 50 people were kept for 12 days in a space the size of a volleyball court. They received one piece of bread and one-eighth of a 200 gram can 3862/ every 24 to 36 hours. 3863/ At all the sites, prisoners were allegedly interrogated and beaten. They were reportedly beaten upon arrival, during detention, and as they waited for exchange. As they waited for exchange, prisoners were tied in groups of 10 and forced to walk between two lines of guards who beat them. They were also forced to sing "etnik" songs. Guards used electric cables, police batons, and iron batons. 3864/ Some detainees allegedly died from beatings. 3865/ Additionally, two sources stated that women were raped in Pale. 3866/ Finally, one source alleged that the Serbs forced detainees to give blood. 3867/

2471. One source stated that about 50 "extremists" were responsible for beating all of the prisoners. 3868/ Fifteen of those guards have been identified. Two of these men were allegedly former employees of the Ministry of Internal Affairs, State Security Services, and a third was allegedly a member of Arkan's forces. 3869/

2472. Pofalii, unidentified cellar: The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by multiple sources however none among them are neutral. An identified 20 year-old Serb woman alleged that she was held in a private prison in a basement in Pofalici for 25 days in the spring or summer of 1992. The private prison was allegedly run by an identified man. The witness stated that she was abducted on the way home from work by four Green Berets. She was taken to a cellar. It was a small hall, partitioned with wood. 3870/ There were no windows or ventilation. She was placed in a very small room with another woman, 16 years-old. 3871/ This other woman had been there for two days before the witness, and her father was a colonel. 3872/ The room held only a blanket and a spotlight on the ceiling. It was only a little larger than the witness was tall. The guards brought in chairs when they needed them, such as for oral sex. 3873/ The first night the witness was raped by 12 men in black coveralls and the commander. Among the men was a man identified by nickname. The commander raped her first that night, both orally and vaginally. The witness was raped every night. 3874/ She stated that she heard cries of other women in the adjoining spaces. 3875/ She was released through the intervention of a Muslim friend. The commander advised her to forget what had happened. 3876/

2473. Pofalii House of Correction: The existence of this detention facility has not been corroborated by multiple sources. Another site where people were allegedly detained was the basement of the House of Correction in Pofalii. A witness testified that he was held there for three days and two nights. He stated that he was interrogated and beaten by two members of Special units. They beat him with their hands, feet, sticks and rifle butts. They also allegedly called him a "etnik" and asked how many Muslim women he had raped at u mountain. An identified man was allegedly a guard at this site. 3877/

2474. Pofalici Cultural Centre: The existence of this detention facility has not been corroborated by multiple sources. One report states merely that a great number of Serb women are held at this site. 3878/

2475. Rajlovac: There appear to have been several camps in this area, and it is unclear from reports what happened at which camp. Regardless, they appear to have been run as one unit. They were run by Serbs and housed Muslims. The camp or camps were described as barracks, hangars, storehouses, and tanks. One camp was described as the Military airport barracks, where people were tortured by being placed in cisterns and containers. 3879/ Another camp was reportedly a distribution centre. 3880/ Another of the camps was located at Jugopetrol or Energopetrol warehouses or storage tanks. Nearby was another detention area at the Tehnogas company. It is unclear of these are the same or different camps. Other sources identified the military barracks as a site of detention, and another, a distribution centre. All of these sites were in the area of Rajlovac. A majority of the reports concerning this area concern attacks on Ahatovii and Dobroševii. The villages were allegedly attacked in early June. 3881/ Either just before 3882/ or after, men, women, and children were taken away. 3883/

2476. Jugopetrol Warehouse, Rajlovac: The existence of this detention facility has not been corroborated by multiple sources. Two witnesses describe events at this camp. One witness reports that on 30 May 1992, Serbs began shelling Dobroševii. The next day, infantry attacks began. The third day, Nikola Staniši and Vaso Skoo called for the surrender of the population. The soldiers separated men from the women and children and took all the detainees to the old storehouse of Jugopetrol at the airport Rajlovac. One witness stated that not everyone was beaten there, but he saw people beaten every day. He identified two men who died from beatings. Detainees were allegedly forced to dig graves, load and unload munition, and do other work. On 12 June, 10 men were taken from the camp and not seen again. On 13 June, 60 more detainees were taken away in similar fashion. The witness, his wife, child, and mother were released that day in a prison exchange. 3884/

2477. A Serb witness confirmed that Serb soldiers took villagers to Rajlovac and Jugopetrol. He identified two women who were allegedly raped at the camp, one publicly. The witness intervened on behalf of a woman and three children, securing their release from the camp on 11 June 1992. A few days later, all of the women and children were released and the men reportedly sent to Ilijaš and Srednje. 3885/

2478. Bojnik Barracks, Energopetrol, and Tehnogas (Rajlovac): The existence of these detention facilities have been corroborated by multiple sources however none among them are neutral. According to one witness, two or three days before the attack on Ahatovii and Dobroševii, Serb soldiers captured about 150 men, women, and children in Dobroševii, Bojnik, and Mihaljevii. The witness was taken to barracks in Bojnik with about 15 other men. There they were beaten. The men were then transferred to Rajlovac, where the witness stated he was kept in large tanks of the Energopetrol company. He stated that there were about 80 people in the tank with him and about 130 in the other. There were about 400 people kept at the Tehnogas company.

2479. The witness identified the man in charge, and stated that he was interrogated by a Serbian mercenary from Kosovo. The witness identified another man who died from beatings. He had told the witness that the Serbs had demanded one million DM as ransom. 3886/ The witness also said that 10 men on a list made by the camp commander were taken away by the driver of the leader of the SDS and four armed men. The 10 disappeared. At a later time, this driver allegedly threw an asphyxiant into the tank where the witness was to suffocate the prisoners.

2480. On the 13th day of the witness' detention, the leader of the SDS came to the camp to take the witness and 54 other men for exchange. The men were loaded onto a bus and were beaten if they moved. After about an hour, the bus stopped at Sokoline. The driver and guards left the bus, and the bus was fired on with rocket launchers, bazookas, machine-guns, submachine-guns, and grenades for 15 minutes. Four non-wounded men helped two wounded escape. The witness later heard that three more also survived. 3887/

2481. Another source described this attack. This source stated that the attack occurred on 14 June that 56 men were on the bus and that 48 survived. 3888/ Another source stated that the attack was ordered by the leader of the SDS and another identified man. 3889/ Other sources also described this mass killing, but did not provide details. 3890/ There may have been another incident, according to one witness. He stated that on 14 June at about 10:00 a.m., 86 detainees were put on two trucks. At about 12:30 p.m., an identified man ordered soldiers to fire at the trucks. Six people reportedly survived. 3891/

2482. Unspecified locations: The earliest account of prisoners came in a statement of a former policeman, arrested with another on 1 May 1992 in Vogoša. The witness stated that he and his companion were beaten by turns between 4 May and 13 May. On the 13th, they were transferred to Sonja's by one man identified by name and the body guard of the leader of the SDS. 3892/

2483. Detainees were brought to the camps over a period of time. Some were apparently brought there before the attacks and some just after. One witness reported being taken to a camp on the same day of the attack or the next day. 3893/ The men and women were separated. The witness claimed he was beaten until he lost consciousness. Cold water was poured on him to awaken him. The witness then saw 68 more prisoners arrive at the camp. Six military policemen ordered them to take off their clothes and lay down. The six men beat these 68 on the genitals. Two men were also sent into a minefield, and the witness heard explosions. The witness stated that detainees received one piece of stale bread two times per day. On 13 June, 11 detainees were taken away, and they disappeared. On 14 June the witness stated that 86 detainees were taken for an exchange. An identified man allegedly ordered soldiers to fire on the trucks the detainees were in. Six allegedly survived. 3894/

2484. Another witness was taken from her home in conjunction with the attack. The attacking forces were all dressed differently. Some wore disguise uniforms, some ordinary uniforms, and some no uniforms. However, they all wore white armbands. The elderly men, women and children were separated from seven men of fighting age. Those seven were taken to Rajlovac barracks. Because they did not have any arms, they were told nothing would happen to them. However, the witness' husband stated that they were beaten and two were killed. The remaining five were exchanged. 3895/

2485. Finally, one witness stated that four days after the attacks, soldiers arrested everyone in the village of Ahatovii. There were about 53 women, children, elderly people, and sick people. They were taken to storehouses in Rajlovac. The witness saw an identified man beaten by a camp guard. This man died the next day. 3896/ The witness stated that women and children did not suffer while she was in the camp. On 13 June she and her children were released in an exchange. 3897/

2486. Semizovac: The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by multiple sources however none among them are neutral. It is unclear how many camps were in this area. Two sources indicate that there was one main camp, 3898/ while another indicates that there were several camps. 3899/

2487. The camp was allegedly in operation from 5 June 1992, 3900/ through at least November 1992. 3901/ It reportedly housed Muslims. 3902/ In June there were at least 33 prisoners, who had been transferred here from Podlugovi. They were allegedly used as human shields and forced to remove mines. They were released by being ransomed through HVO Kiseljak for 1,000 DM each. 3903/

2488. Other detainees were from Vogoša. 3904/ The leader of the SDS, allegedly ordered the "ethnic cleansing" of Vogoša. Muslim workers were fired, Muslim shops were confiscated, and then Muslims were given an ultimatum to leave. Serb forces then allegedly destroyed the villages of Svrake and Krše, killing some villagers, and taking the rest to camps at Semizovac. According to this source, over 7,000 prisoners passed through camps in this area, and 840 were still held in November 1992. 3905/ The last source also stated that the detainees of this camp were from Vogoša, primarily Svrake and Sovrle. This source concurred that over 7,000 prisoners passed through the area, adding that hundreds were killed there, died from torture or from hunger. 3906/

2489. Unidentified Facility, Svrake: The existence of this detention facility has not been corroborated by multiple sources. The only information on a site of detention in this area comes from the confession of Borislav Herak. He referred several times to using prisoners from Svrake for various tasks. He did not state where the prisoners were held, but stated that they were used by the Bosnian Serb Army, Kremeš Company, at Vogoša and u mountain. Herak stated that prisoners were used to dig trenches, 3907/ used as live shields, 3908/ and used to light the torch for a giant flame thrower, consisting of a kerosene truck and a long hose. 3909/ Herak also confessed to killing five men. A man allegedly ordered him to do it, saying that Herak could always say the men were shot trying to escape. Other prisoners were forced to bury the dead in a nearby Muslim cemetery. 3910/

2490. Tarin: There are a number of reports of camps in Tarin, the largest among them located in the local grain silo. Some reports described only "a camp" or "the camp" in Tarin. Regardless, the camp or camps were allegedly run by the BiH Government. 3911/ In the Spring of 1992, armed Muslims from the village of Tarin attacked their Serbian neighbours. Some of the Serb villagers were taken to the silos. 3912/ The armed groups were allegedly led by a retired police officer, and a military school student. The arrested villagers were allegedly tortured and beaten before they were taken to the camp. 3913/ Bradina, Konjic was attacked 25 May 1992. The men were reportedly taken to camps at Tarin and elebii, while women and children were imprisoned in the primary school building or sent to the Sports hall Musala. 3914/

2491. Later, between 15 April and 17 April 1993, the BiH army and Muslim paramilitary forces took control of Konjic. They allegedly detained over 1,000 Bosnian Croat civilians at the Sports Hall in Konjic and the silos at Tarin. 3915/ On 9 July, ECLC Kiseljak reported that HVO sources claimed 20 prisoners were held at Tarin. 3916/ On 7 September 1993, an HVO representative for HUMPB said that 30 Bosnian Croats were still held in Tarin and Pazari, but that they were about to be liberated. 3917/ Finally, at an unspecified point in time, 150 Bosnian Croat civilians from Podorašac and Konjic were imprisoned at Tarin by the BiH Army and civil authorities. 3918/

2492. Tarin, Silos: The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by multiple sources, including the ECMM and the ICRC. This camp was a concrete grain silo with 11 small compartments 3919/ 25 to 35 square metres each. Between each compartment were walls about four metres high and about one half metre to one metre wide. Guards walked along these walls. 3920/ There was a long corridor between the cells, and there were no sanitary facilities, water or light. The camp was encircled by barbed wire. The detainees slept on the concrete. 3921/ The guards called each other only by their last names. Their place of command was a small "premise" within the Silo. 3922/ The commander was a named Muslim, and four of the guards were identified. 3923/

2493. Two witnesses were at the camp at about the same time, in early June 1992. One stated that the camp was full and that his cell had 15 other Serb males in it, all from Konjic. This witness also stated that Serbs were brought in every day, after having been beaten at the Health centre nearby. This witness was transferred to elebii on 4 June. 3924/ The other witness stated that his cell contained about seven or eight Serb males from Tarin. this witness stated that the guards beat only some of the prisoners, and those not too hard. He was transferred to elebii camp about 3 June, then to Donje Selo on 17 November. On 8 February 1993, the witness was taken to Tarin for an exchange. A Muslim woman was in charge of exchanges there, and she took about 100 Serbs in three trucks over Igman Mountain to exchange them in Hrasnica. Two men were returned because there were not enough Muslims to exchange for.

Those two remained at Kula camp. 3925/

2494. A fourth witness did not state when he was at the camp. He was transferred with 13 others from the Hotel Famos at Mount Igman. He stated there were about 50 Serbs imprisoned there. There were about 15 men in over 12 small, damp filthy cells. The witness stated that three to four Muslim guards took each Serb one by one for interrogation. The Serbs were beaten during this interrogation, especially by the four named guards discussed above. After only a day at this site, the witness and 24 others were taken to elebii. 3926/

2495. In the second half of August, 20 to 25 prisoners from the silos and Krupa were taken out and killed. 3927/ The prisoners were local Croats and Serbs. The murders were organized by a Bosnian Hill Brigade Commander, a Tarin HP Commander, and the Konjic Civil Police Commander. The murders were committed by an identified man. 3928/ The men were killed in the middle of the night at a slaughterhouse owned by Redo Bairi, on the Tarin-Kreševo road. The bodies were disposed of between the slaughter house and the river. The grave was dug by Muslim prisoners from the silos. 3929/

2496. Other reports of the area of Tarin did not specify to what camp they referred. Several sources just stated that there was a camp at Tarin. 3930/ Three reports alleged that women were detained at the camp. 3931/ One of these alleged that girls and women were raped there. 3932/ The ICRC allegedly visited a camp in November of 1992, and found it lacking in heat, with insufficient coverings for detainees. 3933/ Finally, a camp was still allegedly in operation in late 1993. 3934/

2497. Health Centre in Tarin: The existence of this detention facility has not been corroborated by multiple sources. According to one report, Serbs were severely beaten by Muslim soldiers at the health centre which was located some 200 metres from the silo. 3935/ Many of those mistreated at the health centre were reportedly taken to the grain silos. No additional information was made available regarding the duration of prisoner internment, nor the conditions attendant at the facility. 3936/

2498. Trapare: The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely the United States Government. According to one witness, on 9 May or 10 May 1992, military units wearing the insignia of Serbian "•etniks" and the JNA entered an area near the Sarajevo airport. The soldiers allegedly ordered all of the residents to come out of the cellars where they had been hiding. The soldiers then separated the Serbs from the Muslims. One 50 year old Serb male refused to be separated from his Muslim neighbours. The witness stated that five to six soldiers beat him to death for his refusal.

2499. The witness and about 40 other Muslims were used as human shields, made to march through a combat zone to vehicles 300 metres away, and thereafter taken to a detention facility called Trapare. 3937/ This site was a camp or assembly area three kilometres from the Sarajevo airport. When the witness and the other prisoners arrived at the camp, the witness reported, the soldiers took a 12 year-old girl from her father. About six men allegedly took her behind a bunker, and the witness heard her screaming and crying. The father collapsed, at which point he was forced over to the bunker at knife point, and forced to watch as soldiers allegedly repeatedly raped his daughter for about an hour. The witness never saw the father and daughter again and believed they were killed. 3938/

2500. Trnovo: The existence of this detention facility has not been corroborated by multiple sources. This area was generally used as a point of exchange of prisoners. Two witnesses reported that they were taken to Trnovo for unauthorized exchanges. 3939/ One witness stated that he had been imprisoned by joint Muslim and Croat forces at elebii camp in May 1992 and was transferred to the Sports hall in Konjic in August 1992. He stated that on 6 November 1992, he and about 29 other Serbs were taken to Trnovo for an informal exchange. The detainees were kept in stores next to the police station for two months, during negotiations. The guards did not beat the prisoners, but some prisoners of war were killed. Additionally, the witness alleged that the detainees were required to do physical labour. The site where the witness was kept was a bare space with wooden pallets for sleeping. When the witness was finally exchanged, 10 prisoners remained. Three from Konjic were exchanged later, and the witness did not know what happened to the remaining seven from Kalinovik. He stated that there was a constant turnover in Trnovo because prisoners from Konjic were sent there for exchange regularly. 3940/

2501. Viktor Bubanj Army Barracks: The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by multiple sources, including the CSCE, UK DDT, and the ICRC. This site was formerly a prison for 5th Army Division soldiers. 3941/ It was turned into a camp housing both Bosnian Serb men and Bosnian Serb women, all civilians, though some were accused of informing or signalling the Serb army. 3942/ It was allegedly also called "Juka's Prison". It was run by a local army official. 3943/ However, another report stated that the camp was run by a man identified by nickname. 3944/ The population was estimated at over 200, 3945/ the men housed in 12 cells and the women in seven cells. The main foreman for the women was identified by only one name. 3946/ Some of the women were allegedly wives of former or current JNA members. 3947/ One report alleged that four captured Serb soldiers were brought to this camp in September of 1992 and executed in front of other detainees. 3948/ One part of the prison was allegedly in better condition for visits by journalists and the ICRC. Also, detainees were allegedly forced to make false statements to journalists. 3949/

2502. Prisoners were beaten, and denied medical assistance, and women prisoners were raped. 3950/ One witness was arrested by Green Berets and taken to the prison. She was put into a small room with seven other women, some young and some elderly. More women arrived later. The floor was covered with a mattress and blankets. The witness was interrogated, beaten, and raped. She stated that the other women were raped frequently also, but each by the same Muslim man--one man for each woman. The women were raped in front of each other, and a small room next door was used only for oral sex. The witness was helped by a Muslim woman, who supplied her with contraceptives. Other women became pregnant, and were allegedly told they could receive abortions if they testified that Serbs had raped them. The witness became pregnant when the Muslim woman could no longer supply her with contraceptives. The witness stated that several people were killed, and the guards performed mock executions. The witness escaped in mid-December with the help of an identified person. 3951/

2503. The Thomson Mission visited this Muslim-run facility on 1 September 1992. Mission representatives located some 127 Serbian detainees, eight of whom were young to middle aged women. Male detainees ranged in age from early 20's to well over 60 years. The vast majority claimed to be innocent civilians, including an oral surgeon who was arrested as an alleged threat to BiH peace and security. Two among them said they were members of Karakjic's SDS. 3952/

2504. Health related conditions appeared to have been satisfactory, although there was evidence of head and body lice infection among the inmates. The detainees were reportedly held here for close to three months. 3953/

2505. Vogoša: There were several sites run by the Serbian SDS where Muslims were allegedly detained in Vogoša. Among them were Sonja's motel and restaurant, the Neuropsychiatric clinic, Ernest Grin Hospital, private houses, the police station, the Hotel Park, and an unidentified hotel. There are no specific allegations regarding the Neuropsychiatric clinic, Ernest Grin Hospital, and the private houses. 3954/

2506. Hotel Park, Vogoša: The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely the United States Government. According to Borislav Herak, about 100 of Arkan and Šešelj's soldiers stayed at this hotel, traveling daily to the front lines. 3955/ Several women were allegedly brought to this hotel and raped there by soldiers. 3956/ It is not clear if women were held here for a period longer than for the rape. However, one woman was taken multiple times to the hotel and raped by several men. She was a prisoner, though her movement was not limited to the premises of the hotel. 3957/

2507. There was also an unidentified motel described by one witness account. This site could be the Hotel Park, Sonja's, or another site. The Muslim witness stated that she was taken with other women and children from her neighbourhood to a motel in Vogoša. There were about 40 Muslim women there, aged 18 to 40, and two 16 year-old girls. The witness was detained from 20 August through 10 December 1992. All the women slept in one room. Soldiers allegedly came in at night drunk, selected victims randomly, took them upstairs and raped them. The witness believed that every woman at the hotel was raped more than once. The witness was raped twice and was also interrogated and beaten. She and her son were released in a prisoner exchange. 3958/

2508. Police Headquarters, Vogoša: The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by multiple sources however none among them are neutral. Two men were arrested on 1 May 1992, and taken to the police station at Vogoša for interrogation. The commander was identified as a local army official. One of the men was allegedly beaten by the commander. Later the same day, the prisoners were taken to Rajlovac. 3959/ Another source alleged only that Muslim prisoners were kept in the police station. 3960/

2509. Sonja's Kon-Tiki Restaurant (aka Kod Sonje), Vogoša: The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by multiple sources, including Newsday and the New York Times. This site was an abandoned restaurant and motel complex in Vogoša, located about seven miles north of Sarajevo. 3961/ The motel housed women, while an attached bunker housed men. According to one source, the motel held 50 to 60 Bosnian Muslim girls. 3962/ The commander of the bunker section was identified, 3963/ while two other men allegedly ran the motel section. 3964/

2510. The motel was allegedly run as a "bordello", the commanders allowing the frequent rape of the detainees. 3965/ A detailed allegation of how this "bordello" was run was provided by Borislav Herak. He stated that he visited the site at least once a week on the suggestion or orders of his commanders or his platoon leaders. He stated that he was told it was important for his morale to rape Muslim women. 3966/ A colleague of Herak's did not assert that he was ordered to go to the camp, but instead said that he had heard that a lot of the army went there. 3967/

2511. Herak confessed to raping 11 women from the site. He also confessed to killing them or participating in their killing on a mountain. He identified five men who were with him, also raped some of the women, and killed some of them. 3968/ One of Herak's commanders allegedly knew and approved of the rapes and killings. He and the other commander handed out the keys, and they told

Herak they had new girls coming in daily for whom there was not enough room or food. 3969/ Herak also stated that he was present when French and Canadian UNPROFOR soldiers came to take women away in UN APCs. One of Herak's commander's said that UN soldiers raped women and returned them to the restaurant. Herak added that once he saw General McKenzie, the commander of UNPROFOR in Sarajevo, with four girls. He said he recognized the general from television. 3970/ UNPROFOR allegedly denied the allegations that UNPROFOR soldiers and Serb soldiers rape Muslim women. 3971/

2512. Other sources alleged that at this camp, a group of 20 "•etniks" raped two girls, aged seven and 13 in front of their mother. The girls died from their injuries. 3972/

2513. There is only one witness account of the bunker section of the camp. Two Muslim men were allegedly arrested in Vogoša on 1 May 1992. They were first taken to the police headquarter, then to Rajlovac, and on 13 May, they were taken by members of the Serbian irregular forces to the bunker. That night, the men were interrogated by a former colleague. The witness stated that they were beaten severely during questioning and on another occasion. On 29 May, the men were exchanged, but were arrested 24 hours later by the order of two inspectors. 3973/

2514. Another source alleged that the commander of the Viktor Bubanj prison and his "•etniks" took prisoners to this site. They allegedly tortured and interrogated the detainees. 3974/

2515. Unidentified camps: The existence of these detention facilities have not been corroborated by multiple sources. According to one source, 218 Muslims were taken hostage 24 May 1992. BiH radio reported that they were being tortured and deprived of food. The location of this site was not mentioned. 3975/ Another source alleged that prisoners taken from an unspecified camp in Vogoša were taken in July 1992 to work at a mountain for Serbian forces. Allegedly a Serbian volunteer told Borislav Herak that five of them should be killed. Herak killed them with gunfire as the prisoners had their backs to him. 3976/

2516. Vrace: This was allegedly an area where several informal sites of detention existed, and one large camp was located. Two sources claimed that Muslim women were held in houses and flats where they were beaten and raped repeatedly. 3977/

2517. Student Dormitory: The existence of this detention facility has not been corroborated by multiple sources. The large camp was located at a former student dormitory. One source claimed that over 27,000 people passed through this camp, and over 500 civilians were killed. The prisoners were allegedly interrogated by SDS and the Serb Secretariat of Internal Affairs, under the direction of a named man. The prisoners were allegedly mistreated, but the source did not describe that mistreatment. The camp authorities also allegedly set up a court with "proper" punishment to deal with charges against the inmates. The detainees were exchanged or transferred to Kula, Lukavica garrison, Slaviša Vajner ia in Sokolac, or to Pale. 3978/

2518. Unidentified school: The existence of this detention facility has not been corroborated by multiple sources. A BiH witness stated that her neighbour was taken to a school in April of 1992 for interrogation. There, Serbs allegedly beat him and threatened to kill his brother if the detainee did not pay them 500 DM within an hour. The detainee escaped with his family, and the Serb soldiers allegedly demolished the brother's house and raped two women suspected of hiding the two men. 3979/

2519. Drvo-Rijeka Shop: The existence of this detention facility has not been corroborated by multiple sources. One witness reported that in mid-June 1992, during the evacuation of the Maršal Tito barracks, three armed "•etniks," identified by name, came to her apartment. They had cockades on their caps and allegedly told the witness that they were coming to take away Muslims and slaughter them. The men took the witness and her father to Vraca in a luxury car, stopping on the street Petrovaka Cesta. The two detainees were put into a garage, and then taken to a room. The witness was forced to watch while the men beat her father and tried to cut him. The witness was beaten too and the men threatened to cut their throats. Batko took the witness to another room where he raped her. 3980/ He tried to get the other two men to rape her also, but they refused. The two men, Zoran and Mijo, took the witness to their headquarters in the shop Drvo-Rijeka, where she spent the night. The men questioned the witness about her brother, and who would win the war. The men sent her home in the morning, saying that Batko had looked for her that night. The witness has not seen her father since this time. Later, she found out that someone had called her brother from Vraca, saying that they had tortured and killed the witness and her father. 3981/

2520. Huts in Zovik: The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely the United Kingdom. This site was just south-east of Hadii. A witness stated that in January 1993, he knew of a prisoner of war camp holding 30 to 40 Serbian males in "nissen type" huts. 3982/

2521. u: The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by multiple sources however none among them are neutral. This was reportedly a site where women from Sonja's were taken and killed. Also, Borislav Herak confessed that several people living in Sarajevo were taken here and killed by him and his colleagues so that they could confiscate the apartments of those killed. 3983/ Finally, a witness stated that Serbian men broke into Muslim houses, took girls and women to this mountain and raped them there. He also stated that when the area was retaken by Muslim troops, they found mutilated bodies of women. 3984/

69. Šekovii

2522. The county of Šekovii is located in eastern BiH. According to the 1991 census, the pre-war population of Šekovii was 9,639. At that time, the population was 94.3 per cent Serbian and 5.7 per cent Muslim. 3985/

2523. Women's camp: The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely the French Government. It was reported that there was a camp for women in Šekovii 3986/ where more than 800 Muslim women and girls were imprisoned. 3987/ It was alleged that women and girls as young as seven years old were raped and otherwise abused in this camp. 3988/ Another report also refers to a camp for women in Šekovii. 3989/

2524. Vuinovii camp: The existence of this detention facility has not been corroborated by multiple sources. Approximately 20 men were taken from a camp in Sušica to a camp in the village of Vuinovii in the county of Šekovii. The men were reportedly treated very badly by there Serbian captors. It is alleged that the men were subjected to forced labour such as digging shelters and other heavy work. They received very little food and had to sleep on the ground in a ruined house. Their possessions were stolen and they were often beaten. 3990/

2525. Logging Camp/Sawmill: The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely the United Kingdom. A source reported that a detention camp at "Sekovice" 3991/ was located at a former logging camp/sawmill in the woods near the town. The source believed that it was still in use. 3992/

2526. Unknown Šekovii Camp: The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely ICRC. Several reports refer to a camp existing in Šekovii. None of the reports provide any details concerning the camp or camps. 3993/

70. Šipovo

2527. The municipality of Šipovo is located in the west-central section of BiH. According to the 1991 census, Šipovo had a total population of 15,553. Serbs comprised the majority of the population at 79.2 per cent, and Muslims comprised 20.8 per cent. Four documents refer to camps located in Šipovo.

2528. Camp Šipovo: The existence of this detention facility has not been corroborated by multiple sources. One report referred to a "Camp Šipovo" where prisoners from Manjaa were transferred in late May or early June 1992. The source did not indicate the exact location of the camp. "Camp Šipovo" was controlled by Serbs and the prisoners were Muslim according to this source. The report provided no further information concerning the camp. 3994/

2529. Mlinište: 3995/ The existence of this detention facility has not been corroborated by multiple sources. It was reported that a concentration camp was located at Mlinište in the municipality of Glamo which extends to the city of Šipovo in the municipality of Šipovo. 3996/ The camp was originally used as a work camp for Serbs from Mrkonji Grad and Klju who refused to serve in the Serbian army. The camp was geographically separate from the town of Mlinište and located in a thick forest. The report stated that the ICRC searched for the camp, but was unable to find it as it is concealed by thick trees and not visible from the air. The camp allegedly opened in June 1992 and there was no indication in the report that it had been closed.

2530. This Serb controlled camp reportedly housed 3,500 prisoners. 3997/ The camp commander was identified in the report by name. 3998/ The camp prisoners were reportedly Muslims and Croats from Klju, Bosanski Petrovac, Jajce, Mrkonji Grad, and Šipovo. The prisoners were allegedly captured by Serbian soldiers at home or work, or were arrested by former JNA soldiers and "•etniks". Many were taken to Manjaa first and then to Mlinište.

71. Skender Vakuf

2531. The municipality of Skender Vakuf is in north-western BiH and is bordered by the municipalities of Kotor Varoš, Travnik, Jajce, Mrkonji Grad, Banja Luka, and elinac. According to the 1991 census the population of Skender Vakuf was 19,416. The majority of the population were Serbs at 69.6 per cent, Muslims comprised 24.8 per cent, and Croats 5.6 per cent.

2532. Skender Vakuf Post Office: The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely Helsinki Watch. Five men were reportedly held captive by JNA officers soldiers in the basement of a post office in the city of Skender Vakuf. 3999/ The city of Skender Vakuf is located in the central part of the municipality of Skender Vakuf. During the middle of May 1992, JNA soldiers brought the five male prisoners to the Babanovac Hotel near Travnik to the post office in Skender Vakuf. It is unclear from the report whether the prisoners were Muslim or Croatian, but the report did state that the men were stripped of their uniforms after being captured near the lower part of the Vlaši plateau. 4000/

2533. According to one prisoner, two of the men were wounded when captured. The prisoners who were transported from the Babanovac Hotel were held at the Skender Vakuf Post Office were held until Sunday 17 May. During their detention, the prisoners were deprived of food, water, blankets or clothing. According to this source, the prisoners were beaten by a "group of men" many times. Those who performed the beatings were probably JNA soldiers although the report did not state this. The witness stated that the men were subjected to beatings each time they requested to use the bathrooms. The men were subsequently taken to a prison in Stara Gradiška, a town bordering northern BiH in the Serbian occupied area of Croatia. 4001/

72. Sokolac

2534. The county of Sokolac is located in eastern BiH. According to the 1991 census, the pre-war population was 14,833. At that time, the population was 68.6 per cent Serbian, 30.2 per cent Muslim, and 1.2 per cent were referred to as "other". 4002/

2535. Sokolac Camp: The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by multiple sources however none among them are neutral. A Muslim man 4003/ reported being arrested along with his wife, mother-in-law, brother and his brother's wife in Rogatica by Serbians and being held in Sokolac as a war prisoner. He was held for 21 days and then exchanged in Sarajevo. The man believes that his brother was held in Sokolac for five days and then released. The man was subjected to beatings while being detained. He does not know the fate of the others arrested. He reported that the arrests were organized by two named men. 4004/ A Muslim woman reported that her husband was taken to a camp in Sokolac. 4005/ It was reported that a camp referred to as the "Sokolac Concentration Camp" was a supplementary camp for the one located in Pale. Most of the prisoners are said to have come from Bratunac. 4006/

2536. Primary School, "Slaviša Vajner ia": The existence of this detention facility has not been corroborated by multiple sources. A Muslim woman 4007/ reported that in May 1992, a group of armed "•etniks" from surrounding Serbian villages began searching Muslim houses and intimidating the civilians in Sokolac. Many young women were taken to a camp in a primary school, "Slaviša Vajner ia" in Sokolac. There were 13 women and about 400-500 men. All of them were Muslim except two Serbian women. The witness was held in the camp from May until September and reported that all of the women, including herself, were repeatedly raped. 4008/ She also reported that the men were beaten and forced to dig trenches. 4009/

2537. KTK Visoko Plant, Kneina: The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by multiple sources however none among them are neutral. It was reported that the KTK Visoko Plant at Kneina, in Sokolac county was turned into a labour camp for non-Serbians. 4010/ This camp is also included in a list of camps in another report. 4011/

2538. Psychiatric Clinic: The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by multiple sources however none among them are neutral. Allegedly, civilians were held and tortured at the psychiatric clinic in Sokolac. The clinic was renamed "Serbian Hospital". 4012/ This camp is also included in a list of camps in another report. 4013/

2539. Gym, Sokolac: The existence of this detention facility has not been corroborated by multiple sources. It was reported that three named "extremists" held prisoners in a gym at Sokolac. 4014/

2540. Sports Hall: The existence of this detention facility has not been corroborated by multiple sources. A camp in a Sports Hall in Sokolac was included in list of camps. It is unclear whether this is the same camp referred to as the "Gym" camp above. 4015/

2541. Winter Service Point: The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by multiple sources however none among them are neutral. It was reported that the three "extremists" named above held prisoners at the Winter Maintenance Service at Podromanija. 4016/ A camp referred to as the "Winter Service Point at Romanija" was included in a list of camps in another report. 4017/

2542. Unknown camp: The existence of this detention facility has not been corroborated by multiple sources. An unknown Sokolac camp is referred to in a list of camps. 4018/

73. Srebrenica

2543. The county of Srebrenica is located in eastern BiH on the Serbian border. According to the 1991 census, the pre-war population was 37,211. At that time, the population was 74.8 per cent Muslim and 25.2 per cent Serbian. 4019/

2544. Sase Mine: The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely the US Government. A detention centre is reported to exist in an unused mine in the town of Sase, near Srebrenica. It is further reported that four identified Serbs took 52 men from this detention centre and killed them all in a place called Bjelovac, near the river Drina. 4020/

2545. Nova Kasaba: The existence of this detention facility has not been corroborated by multiple sources. A list of camps reports the existence of a camp in Srebrenica known as "Nova Kasaba". There is no detailed information. 4021/ This camp is also referred to in another report containing a list of camps. 4022/

74. Stolac

2546. The municipality of Stolac is located in Herzegovina. It is bordered by apljina, Nevesinje, Mostar, Ljubinje, and Neum. According to the 1991 Yugoslav census, the population of this municipality was 18,845; of which 44.5 per cent were Muslims, 32.4 per cent were Croats, 20.8 per cent were Serbs, and the remaining 2.3 per cent were described as "others".

2547. It was reported that four camps were established in Stolac including the Stolac Ironworks 4023/ (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely Amnesty International.); the Army Barracks 4024/ (The existence of this detention facility has not been corroborated by multiple sources.); the Tobacco Station 4025/ (The existence of this detention facility has not been corroborated by multiple sources.); and the Crnji School 4026/ (The existence of this detention facility has not been corroborated by multiple sources.). No additional details regarding these camps have been received except that during an inspection conducted by ECMM teams on 15 September 1993 no prisoners were found in any of the camps in

Stolac. 4027/

2548. It was reported that since June 1993 approximately 1,350 Muslim men "of fighting age" from the Stolac region have been arrested by HVO forces. Testimony has been received which suggests that a number of young and elderly men have been arrested. 4028/ HVO authorities claim that the men were arrested for security reasons but acknowledge that due process was ignored during their arrest. 4029/ Bosnian Croat forces reportedly detained these men at Dretelj and Gabela camps but their current location remains unknown. 4030/ 2549. On 3 August 1993 the entire remaining Muslim population of Stolac, including approximately 4,000 women, children and elderly, reportedly was arrested and imprisoned at the Gasnice camp in apljina. 4031/

75. Tešanj

2550. Tešanj is located in northern BiH, south of Dobož and has a population of 48,390 according to the 1991 census. At that time the population was 72.2 per cent Muslim, 18.5 per cent Croat, and 6.4 per cent Serb, with the remaining 2.9 per cent described as "others". 4032/

2551. Tešanj Rape Camp: The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely the Dallas Morning News. This detention area is located in Tešanj. 4033/ Approximately 20 Muslim women were held by Serbs for at least four months. 4034/ They would rape the women detainees every day and night. 4035/ On some occasions, the detainee would be raped by several men on the same night. 4036/

2552. Unidentified Camp: The existence of this detention facility has not been corroborated by multiple sources. One woman, apparently of mixed ethnicity, claimed she was held in the detention facility from October 1992 to March 1993. She appears to be part Muslim and part Serb. During her imprisonment she was raped several times every day by various members of the Muslim armed forces. She was beaten, had cigarettes extinguished on her body and had her anus injured. The witness claimed that a 70 year-old woman was detained and raped in this detention facility. One Muslim soldier refused to rape a woman and was allegedly killed by his fellow soldiers. 4037/

2553. Military Prison, Tešanj: The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely the ICRC. The ICRC reported that their representatives visited a detention facility at the military prison in Tešanj on 24 November 1992. No information was made available regarding the length of detention or conditions at this facility. 4038/

2554. Hospital, Tešanj: The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely the ICRC. The ICRC reported that their representatives visited a detention facility at the military prison in Tešanj on 24 November 1992. No information was made available regarding the length of detention or conditions at this facility. 4039/

76. Tesli

2555. Before the conflict, Tesli county, situated in north central Bosnia, had approximately 60,000 inhabitants, of whom approximately 45 per cent were Muslims, 25 per cent were ethnic Croats, and 30 per cent were ethnic Serbs. With the onset of the war, the majority non-Serbian population was ordered to surrender and relinquish all weapons to the Serbian insurgent forces. 4040/

2556. Serbian extremists established several detention facilities which reportedly interned more than 600 individuals. 4041/ The inmates in these facilities were said to have been under the despotic control of members of the Serbian militia, the Armada Forces of the Serbian Republic of Bosnia and Herzegovina, and the "Red Beret" formations--all of whom had reportedly come from Banja Luka to assist in "cleaning the terrain". 4042/

2557. Unidentified camp: The existence of this detention facility has not been corroborated by multiple sources. One report acknowledged the existence of a facility which was said to have processed over 300 Muslim inmates. Several other reports refer to the existence of an exclusively female rape camp, with a rather sizeable containment capacity. A former refugee from this camp recalled that women were transported to the camp in trucks, the trucks each contained approximately 24 women and the witness observed a great many trucks preparing to transport women to this facility. 4043/ One room in the facility was said at one time to have accommodated over 100 individuals. 4044/

2558. Unknown facility outside Tesli: The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by multiple sources however none among them are neutral. There are several sources which refer to an exclusively female camp in a wooded area just west of Tesli. The former female inmates who provided the information for these reports were all from the village of Kaloševi. 4045/

2559. In one report, a Muslim victim alleged that her village was overrun by Serbian forces in mid-March 1992 and the women and children were collected and taken to this facility in the woods. 4046/ She noted that the building in which she was contained appeared to be a newly erected brick structure. 4047/ She was placed in a room with 12 other girls and a guard was posted in front of the door to prohibit movement or escape. 4048/ The victim recalled five of the other girls as having also come from the village of Kaloševi. 4049/

2560. The victim reported that all the girls who shared the room with her were raped. 4050/ The soldiers came to the room on a daily basis and sexually assaulted them. 4051/ They were told that they were to give birth to Serbian children. 4052/

2561. After being held captive for three months, a Serbian from the village of Kaloševi, dressed in "etnik" uniform and assisted by friends from the Croatian Defence Council, facilitated the escape for 12 of the inmates. 4053/

2562. In a similar report a female victim recounted that women and children from her village were thrown into JNA trucks, with approximately 24 of them per truck. 4054/ She identified the perpetrators as "•etniks" wearing uniforms of the former JNA 4055/ as well as militiamen clad in uniforms with skull and bones insignia. 4056/

2563. The "•etniks" took the victims through Tesli to an unidentifiable wooded location and

"began taking us to some kind of rooms which were for the most part dug out of the ground, resembling mining areas or spaces; there was no light. There were over 100 of us in this space." 4057/

There was reportedly no exit from the room. According to the witness, the room was always dark, the only illumination came from a light burning in the hall. 4058/ Inmates, she recalled, were fed bread and water two times daily. 4059/

2564. The detainees were divided once again and the witness was put in a hut with 23 other women. 4060/ The witness and some 11 others were repeatedly raped in the hut in front of the other women. 4061/ Reportedly some women's hands were bound before they were raped. Others were kicked and beaten. The perpetrators were camp guards as well as "•etniks" from outside the camp. 4062/ In addition to the rapes, the Serbs occasionally took women from the group and executed them by random firing squad. 4063/

2565. The witness remained in detention at this facility for three months, until the end of July at which time a named Serb helped several victims escape. 4064/

2566. Another female victim stated that the "•etniks" who invaded her village of Kaloševi wore masks and White Eagle insignia on their uniforms. 4065/ They rounded up all the women and young girls and led them on foot. The women were required to walk for some five hours; shepherded through the forest, to a clearing. 4066/ Upon arrival, they found a place that the witness characterized as "some kind of forest motel." 4067/ The cabins were designated as sentry-boxes, and the entire encampment was fenced with barbed wire. 4068/

2567. The witness was placed with the girls and younger women. She was raped every night. 4069/ The White Eagles took their victims every evening and brought them back in the mornings. 4070/ There were nights when more than 20 of them came. 4071/ The women were reportedly also made to cook for the guards and to serve them naked. 4072/ The perpetrators reportedly also raped and killed some of the girls in front of the other victims. 4073/ Those women who resisted had their breasts cut. 4074/

2568. Stara Opština: The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely the United States Government. On 12 July 1992, a victim and his friend were arrested by four or five soldiers wearing red berets and green uniforms. 4075/ The witness identified these soldiers as belonging to the so-called Serbian militia, "Crveni Barek". 4076/ The two were singled out apparently because of the appearance of their names on an unidentified Serb generated list. 4077/

2569. The detainees were taken to what was described as a large local government building, called Stara Opština. 4078/ According to the witness, all of the rooms, including the area in the cellar of the facility, were filled with Croatian and Muslim prisoners. 4079/ During his internment, the witness was both beaten and compelled into forced labour. 4080/ His detention at this facility was concluded on 14 July 1992, when the witness and his fellow prisoners were transferred to the local stadium. 4081/

2570. "Proleter" Stadium: 4082/ The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by multiple sources however none among them are neutral. This location was reportedly under the control of Serbian soldiers, presumably with some connection to the "Crveni Barek". 4083/ While no information regarding the layout or physical condition of the facility was made available, a clear impression of the attending circumstances may be had.

2571. According to one witness' recollection, a rather grim incident took place on 22 July 1992. Early that morning, some 25 drunken soldiers lined up a number of Muslim and Croatian prisoners. 4084/ The soldiers called the individuals, one-by-one, from the line. When the prisoner responded, the soldiers--as many as 10 at a time--beat and stabbed the victim to death. 4085/ Some 50 prisoners were killed in this manner over a period of about three hours. 4086/ If the victims refused to step forward when called, as was the case with the witness' friend, the soldiers simply machine-gunned them down where they stood. 4087/

2572. Police station: The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely the United States Government. According to one report, after Serb forces took control of the county of Tesli, all non-Serb families who had family members working in Western Europe were ordered to pay 300 DM per month to Tesli County. 4088/ Those who refused had their homes raided at night, their families beaten and the eldest paternal family member taken to the police station for interrogation. 4089/ These interrogations, called informative talks, lasted two to four days. 4090/ The Muslims were reportedly beaten by three to four policemen at a time. 4091/

2573. Banja Vruica Sanatorium: 4092/ The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by multiple sources however none among them are neutral. Only a few reports referred to a detention facility at this location, however with very little detail. One report notes that over 300 Muslims between the ages of 16 and 60 were interned here and subjected to the whims and terrifying fancies of the Serbian militia, the Armada forces of the Serbian Republic of Bosnia and Herzegovina and the "Red Beret" formations. 4093/

2574. Pribini: The existence of this detention facility has not been corroborated by multiple sources. One report cites to the existence of a concentration camp in the Borija mountains. 4094/ At the time that the report was authored, some 500 individuals were reportedly interned at this facility. 4095/ No further information was available regarding its operation and control.

77. Titov Drvar

2575. This municipality is located in western BiH, on the border of Croatia. It is bounded to the north by Bosanski Petrovac and to the south by Bosansko Grahovo. According to the 1991 Yugoslav census, the Titov Drvar municipality had a population of 17,079. Of that number 97.3 per cent were Serbs, 0.2 per cent were Muslims, 0.2 per cent were Croats, and the remaining 2.3 per cent were described as "others".

2576. In the Titov Drvar community, the Serbian goal of Muslim extermination reportedly continued unabated. The full scale expulsion of Muslim citizens and the establishment of concentration camps were reported throughout the area. 4096/

2577. Kamenica: The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely the ICRC. Several sources suggest the existence of a Serb controlled camp in Kamenica, in the area of Drvar. According to one report, 29 people were arrested in mid-July in Bosanski Petrovac and transported to this camp in Kamenica. The identification of the individuals interned in Kamenica was included in the report. 4097/

2578. Another report alludes to the United Nations' efforts to obtain the release of some 61 Muslims held by Serb forces at the camp in Kamenica. 4098/ The report states that the Muslim prisoners were released and transferred by ICRC members to the United Nations protected shelter of Karlovac (Republic of Croatia). 4099/

2579. Elementary School: The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely the United States Government. Reportedly following the closing of camp Kozile in Bosanski Petrovac, 4100/ the prisoners were transported to the elementary school in Kamenica. The school had an estimated maximum capacity of 1000. The facility was presumably operated by military police units from Drvar. It is unclear if guards from camp Kozile were also transferred here for duty. 4101/

2580. Prekaja: The existence of this detention facility has not been corroborated by multiple sources. Reportedly just near Drvar, in the village of Prekaja is an alleged Serb controlled concentration camp. 4102/ Allegedly operated by extremists, the interns were purportedly tortured and killed at this camp. 4103/

2581. Titov Drvar: The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely Medecins Sans Frontieres. Medecins Sans Frontieres reportedly acquired evidence of two Serb controlled concentration camps in Titov Drvar. 4104/ The French source interviewed several Muslim refugees from the town of Kozarac who had been interned in the Serb controlled camps. 4105/ The French agency reported that more than half of the refugees had reportedly been tortured. 4106/

2582. Drvar Prison: (The existence of this detention facility has not been corroborated by multiple sources). Another report alleges the existence of a Bosnian Serb controlled camp at the prison. 4107/ This location was identified as of May 1993. 4108/ The source, however, did not provide additional information regarding either operation or prisoner identification.

78. Tomislavgrad

2583. This municipality is located in central BiH, bordering Croatia to the west. According to the 1991 Yugoslav census, the county had a population of 29,261. Croats constituted 86.6 per cent of the population, Muslims 10.8 per cent, Serbs 1.5 per cent, and the remaining 1.1 per cent were classified as "other".

2584. Tomislavgrad has operated as a major transit area since the beginning of the conflict. Some 35,000 people, mostly Croats, have reportedly passed through the region, collecting exit visas, on their way to other lands. 4109/ There are, however, several non-Croats who have not departed the area. And according to area officials, the non-Croatian population of Tomislavgrad, who remain in the region, are not prisoners. They are only "subject to restricted movement", and such restrictions are primarily for their own protection. 4110/

2585. To that end, all of the Serbs, approximately 320 individuals from the Tomislavgrad area 4111/ were dismissed from their employment and taken to and detained in various Croatian-run camps. 4112/ While the details regarding the management of the Muslim population was not made available, there are several reports regarding Muslim-populated facilities.

2586. Old School: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely Helsinki Watch). According to one report, a man from the village of Eminovo Selo recalled being taken to a school in Tomislavgrad, being detained there for one and a half months and then being transferred to another school in Tomislavgrad. It was his understanding that the location was controlled by HVO civil police. 4113/

2587. This, the first school location, reportedly had three big rooms. According to the report, for the first month and a half, some 300 people were interned here. The detainees were fed three meals per day and the food was, according to one former inmate, "decent". 4114/

2588. The men were put on work detail in a field some two kilometres away for approximately nine hours per day. The report described the treatment by the guards as "excellent". The detainees reportedly came into contact with civilian police and occasionally HOS members. 4115/

2589. House in Tomislavgrad: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely the ICRC). The ICRC reported that it visited a place of detention at a private house in Tomislavgrad. 4116/ No additional information regarding operation, control or length of detention was made available.

2590. House in Eminovo Selo: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely Helsinki Watch.) One report suggests that members of HVO civil police detained everyone in a house in the village of Eminovo Selo for the purpose of holding "a conference". The "conferees" were detained at this location for four days before being transferred to Tomislavgrad. 4117/

2591. Tomislavgrad School: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by multiple sources, including the ICRC and Helsinki Watch.) According to one report, the Serb men detained at this location were all apprehended with weapons in their possession. The report suggests that the men are detained in three large rooms, two on the first floor and one on the second. The head of military police, and his guards were quartered in another room on the first floor, just near the first containment area. There were reportedly some 50 men detained at this location. 4118/

2592. The inmates were reportedly permitted to have visitors and some were even allowed to walk about the halls. The containment rooms themselves had big windows but were unheated. The men slept on platforms covered with blankets. 4119/

2593. Inmates in cell/room one were kept there for four to seven months. The men were finally allowed to bathe after four months of detention. 4120/

2594. Cell/room 2 contained six men from mixed marriages. There were wash basins available to these inmates, and they were permitted to go home twice in six months. 4121/ The men were made to work in the fields digging potatoes. They reportedly had "excellent relations with the guards." 4122/ According to an ICRC report, member representatives visited a place of detention at a Tomislavgrad school. The report was, however, silent as to details concerning the facility. 4123/

2595. Tomislavgrad Hospital: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely the ICRC). The ICRC reported that it visited a place of detention at a hospital in Tomislavgrad. 4124/ No additional information regarding prisoner treatment, operation, control or length of detention was made available.

2596. Šekovii Camp: 4125/ (The existence of this detention facility has not been corroborated by multiple sources.) According to one report, a Muslim-populated rape facility existed in Tomislavgrad. Three hundred women were said to have been raped at this location. No information regarding its operation, control or location was provided. 4126/

2597. Unknown Prison-Camp: (The existence of this detention facility has not been corroborated by multiple sources.) In another report, prisoners were detained in a prison camp in Tomislavgrad. At this camp, the prisoners were taken one by one to the office where they were separated from their valuables and money and thereafter placed into one of two large rooms. The rooms reportedly contained six small cells which were full of Bosnian males. They were reportedly beaten and abused day and night and those who possessed BiH

Army identification were allegedly made to eat their identification. 4127/

2598. The HVO soldiers forced the men to fight each other. They shaved the prisoners with knives and burned the prisoners' hair with cigarette lighters. The men were used as forced labour to cut fire wood and to clean the soldiers' shelter. 4128/

2599. Unknown facility in Duvno: (The existence of this detention facility has not been corroborated by multiple sources.) According to a report, hundreds of Serbs including women, children and the elderly were detained in a camp in the village of Duvno in 1992. 4129/ The detainees were reportedly mistreated and tortured. The report suggests that the Croatian paramilitary forces prevented Serbs from being evacuated from the area so that they could be used as hostages. 4130/

2600. Camp-Village in Rašani, Duvno: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by multiple sources, including the ICRC, Helsinki Watch, and the United States Government.) Rašani lies in south-west BiH and is reportedly the smallest Serb village in the Tomislavgrad municipality. It is approximately one kilometre long, located on a ridge of stony ground which resembles the typical highland area. 4131/

2601. Along the ridge are several stone houses, which came under Croatian control and are now peopled with displaced Serbian families--approximately 15 individuals per house. There were reportedly as many as 261 people interned in the village when the camp was initially established in March 1992. 4132/

2602. According to reports, a Croatian guard was placed on patrol at the end of the road which empties into the valley below. The detainees were not permitted to leave but were reportedly permitted to seek and receive medical care. 4133/

2603. According to another report the 250 individuals detained here are primarily women and children who were expelled from villages in Tomislavgrad and Rašani. The camp-village itself is surrounded by HVO guards and Croat police. 4134/ There is reported to be no communication with the outside world whatsoever and no freedom of movement. The inmates were reportedly used as human shields to prevent possible Serb attack against the region. 4135/

2604. The camp initially also detained men from the region, however according to one report, many of the male relatives of the women held in Rašani were released from HVO camps at the end of 1992. 4136/

2605. Still another report suggests that the majority of individuals detained in the camp-village were subjected to physical abuse and mistreatment including shootings and rape. 4137/

2606. Members of the Thomson Mission visited this location on 1 September 1992 and located some 250 Serb detainees. The Mission confirmed the control of this camp as being had by Croatian forces. 4138/

79. Travnik

2607. The municipality of Travnik is located in central BiH, just east of Zenica. According to the 1991 Yugoslavian census, Travnik had a population of 70,402; of which 45.3 per cent were Muslim, 36.9 per cent were Croats, 11 per cent were Serbs and the remaining 6.8 per cent were described as "others".

2608. Several reports describe prisons and detention centres in Travnik; however few details are available as to each of these facilities. For the most part, the reports do not specify the parties in control of the various camps, nor do they specify the dates of operation of these camps. Two prisons located in Travnik area are identified by name and are as follows:

2609. Travnik Prison: (The existence of this detention facility has not been corroborated by multiple sources.) In June-July 1992, Serbians were detained in the Travnik Prison. It is alleged that Serbian prisoners were "ill-treated and tortured." 4139/

2610. Travnik Barracks: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely the ICRC.) The ICRC reported that it visited a place of detention at the Travnik Barracks on 1 December 1992. 4140/

2611. "Bratstvo" Factory: (The existence of this detention facility has not been corroborated by multiple sources.) Serbian prisoners are allegedly held in large tanks at a chemical factory in Novi Travnik. Prisoners must cling to a ladder leading into the tank to avoid falling into the chemicals below. The tanks are covered and locked so as not to be seen by the public. 4141/ This detention centre may be the same as the "chemical factory" near Vitez (discussed below) that is said to house prisoners.

2612. Reports identify several other, unnamed camps in the Travnik region. These camps are described as follows: 4142/

(a) One report claims that the ICRC confirmed the mistreatment of 180 Croats captured by Muslim forces and held in a "concentration camp" near Novi Travnik. 4143/

(b) The ECMM reports that approximately 500 Croatian men aged 16-60 are held in a Serb-run concentration camp. 4144/

(c) The BiH Army claims that 350 Muslims are held in "secret camps" in Travnik and that 700 Muslims are held in Travnik altogether. 4145/

(d) According to the Tanjug news agency, 350 Croats are detained in a "concentration camp" in Travnik. 4146/

(e) A report submitted by the Serbian Republic alleges that Serbians from Travnik (and other villages in the vicinity) were captured by Croatian-Muslim forces. Prisoners were subsequently taken to "concentration camps" where they were allegedly tortured. It is not clear if these camps were located near Travnik. 4147/

80. Trebinje

2613. The county of Trebinje is located in eastern Herzegovina. According to 1991 census data, the pre-war population was 30,879. At that time, the population was 69.3 per cent Serb, 17.9 per cent Muslim, 8.8 per cent other, and 4 per cent Croat. 4148/

2614. Military Prison: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by multiple sources however none among them are neutral.) According to the Republic of BiH State Commission for Gathering Facts on War Crimes in the Republic of BiH, a military prison in Trebinje held 1,490 prisoners as of October 1992. 4149/

2615. Unidentified Detention Facility: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely Thomson Mission.) A CSCE Mission reported a place of detention under Serbian authority in Trebinje closed as of 2 September 1992. 4150/

81. Tuzla

2616. The municipality of Tuzla is located in north-eastern BiH, bordered by the municipalities of Zvornik, Kalesija, Ivinice, Lukavac, Srebrenica and Lopare. The pre-war population of Tuzla was 131,861. Muslims comprised 47.6 per cent of the total population, Serbs 15.5 per cent, Croats 15.6 per cent, Yugoslavs 16.6 per cent and 4.7 per cent referred to as "other."

2617. According to the ICRC, as of 5 November 1992, 197 prisoners were reportedly held by the Bosnian government. 4151/ According to another ICRC report, 183 prisoners were held by the BiH government as of 5 April 1992. 4152/

2618. "Dr. Mustafa Mujbegovi" Hospital: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by multiple sources however none among them are neutral.) A report was received which alleged that wounded members of the JNA were imprisoned in this Tuzla hospital before being transferred to the Tuzla Prison. 4153/ According to two reports JNA forces leaving the "Husinska Buna" barracks in Tuzla, evacuating soldiers and equipment in accordance with a prior agreement, were ambushed by BiH Territorial Defence Forces on 15 May 1992. A reserve lieutenant was wounded in the leg as he drove one of the JNA trucks. He and two members of the JNA were wounded when the truck veered off the road. They were captured by members of the Territorial Defence. The wounded men were reportedly beaten all the way to the hospital. 4154/ The report indicated that other members of the retreating JNA forces were captured and beaten by members of the Territorial Defence as they were being transported to the hospital.

2619. An identified physician allegedly tortured JNA prisoners at the hospital. 4155/ JNA prisoners were placed in various departments of the hospitals along with wounded members of the Territorial Defence Forces. This arrangement reportedly gave the Territorial Defence members an opportunity to take out their personal vendettas against the JNA soldiers. 4156/

2620. The JNA soldiers were later transported to the Tuzla Prison where they were tortured by a named man. 4157/ he allegedly stated that his "greatest pleasure" was to "kill Vlach babies in cradles". 4158/ Another guard identified only by nickname from the eastern part of Tuzla, allegedly tortured the JNA prisoners also. 4159/

2621. Military Hospital: ICRC representatives reportedly visited a detention facility at a military hospital on 14 March 1994 in Tuzla. No information regarding treatment of prisoners, identity of prisoners nor length of detention was provided. 4160/

2622. Hospital: ICRC representatives reportedly visited a detention facility located in a hospital in Tuzla on 10 August 1993. No additional information regarding treatment of prisoners, identity of prisoners nor length of detention was provided. 4161/

2623. Tuzla Prison: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by multiple sources, including the ICRC.) A report was received that Serbian prisoners have been detained in the Tuzla prison. 4162/ Serbians from the village of Stupari were allegedly detained without trial. Two

Serbian prisoners interviewed in the Tuzla prison reported that they had been detained in an unidentified building by authorities in Stupari on 28 May 1992. These prisoners stated that they were never informed of the legal justification for their detention. They were reportedly transferred to Tuzla in February 1993 and tried and convicted for illegal possession of weapons. A judge sentenced the prisoners to one year's imprisonment beginning on 17 February 1993. 4163/ During sentencing, the judge informed them that he was unable to take into consideration the 9 months they had spent in detention because no records existed of their detention. 4164/

2624. The Serbian civilians in Tuzla were subjected to forced mobilization into the Bosnian government army. 4165/ Those who refuse to be drafted were reportedly tried and sentenced to three to 10 years in prison. 4166/ Serbian civilians from the surrounding areas who refuse to respond to the draft, particularly those from Banovii, were allegedly mobilized by force and taken to the front lines to dig trenches. 4167/

2625. Members of the ICRC reportedly visited a detention facility in Tuzla on 28 May 1993. No additional information regarding the operation of this facility nor the duration of its existence was provided. 4168/

2626. In an open letter, Serbian Orthodox Bishop Vasilije of Tuzla asked the Holy Synod of the Serbian Orthodox Church to protest the treatment of Serbs in Tuzla on 11 March 1993. 4169/ The letter reported that 300 Serbs were imprisoned in the main prison and that the Tuzla Serbs were subjected to physical abuse and forced conscription into the Bosnian army. 4170/

2627. The letter also reportedly stated that trials were rigged and that many Serbs had been sentenced to 15 years hard labour. Most prisoners were allegedly executed shortly after imprisonment, and others were so debilitated from physical and psychological torture and starvation that it took them several months to recover. 4171/

2628. Barracks: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely the ICRC.) Members of the ICRC reportedly visited a detention facility in a barracks in Tuzla on 15 September 1993. No additional information regarding the operation of this facility nor the duration of its existence was provided. 4172/

2629. Military Prison: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely the ICRC.) Members of the ICRC reportedly visited a detention facility at the military prison in Tuzla on 23 September 1992. No additional information regarding the operation of this facility nor the duration of its existence was provided. 4173/

2630. Private Muslim Prisons: (The existence of this detention facility has not been corroborated by multiple sources.) A report concerning the existence of Muslim prisons in the town of Tuzla was received. 4174/ The BBC reported that Serbian sources reportedly had information concerning the owner of private prisons for Serbs who is also allegedly in control of a private Muslim militia in Tuzla. 4175/ According to Vojislav Djurkovi, head of the State Commission of the Serbian Republic of BiH, another man allegedly ordered the execution of many Serbian families in Tuzla working in conjunction with the man who owned the private prisons. 4176/ Also according to Djurkovi, Tuzla's Mayor allegedly organized a training centre for Islamic terrorists in Tojsi near the town. 4177/ Djurkovi accused the Bosnian Muslim authorities of blocking the delivery of humanitarian aid.

2631. Tuzla Brothels: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by multiple sources however none among them are neutral.) A report was received concerning the existence of Muslim and Croatian run brothels in Tuzla. 4178/ Another source reported that "bordellos" for Serbian women were reported in Tuzla in late 1991 and 1992. 4179/ The BBC reported that Serbs who escaped from Tuzla reported that young Serbian women were forcibly taken to brothels by Muslim soldiers. 4180/ In his letter, Bishop Vasilije stated that the Muslim soldiers had a "schedule" for kidnapping the Serbian women. 4181/

2632. According to another source, 60 women, three to four months pregnant, were sent away from a Serbian run camp in the Tuzla region in 1992. 4182/

2633. A separate report indicated that members of Croatian and Muslim forces were sexually abusing Serbian women in Tuzla brothels. 4183/ The women were captured by soldiers and allegedly imprisoned at the brothels until their fifth month of pregnancy. After release, they were reportedly kept under house arrest to prevent them from obtaining abortions. 4184/ The report estimated that more than 1,000 Serbian women were imprisoned in such brothels. The report also alleged that members of Muslim and Croatian forces that had contracted AIDS or other communicable diseases were purposely sent to the brothels to rape the women. 4185/

2634. Lomnica, near Šekovij: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by multiple sources however none among them are neutral.) A 1992 report establishing the existence of a rape/death camp in Lomnica where over 200 girls up to 15 years old were held. 4186/ No additional information was provided regarding this facility.

2635. Tusanj Stadium: 4187/ (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by multiple sources however none among them are neutral.) A report that 4,000 Serbian civilians were imprisoned at the stadium was received. 4188/ This rather astounding figure, while cited in several other reports, has not as yet been corroborated.

2636. Sloboda Football Stadium: (The existence of this detention facility has not been corroborated by multiple sources.) A report was received which suggested that a detention facility existed at the Sloboda Football stadium in Tuzla where at least 25 to 30 women were held. The women were raped in front of an undetermined number of other prisoners. 4189/

2637. Secondary School Brothel: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by multiple sources however none among them are neutral.) A report was received indicating that 100 Serbian women were held in a brothel in the Tuzla Secondary School. 4190/ No additional information was made available regarding this facility.

2638. Private House: (The existence of this detention facility has not been corroborated by multiple sources.) A report received indicated that 15 Serbian women were imprisoned in a private house located on the road towards Srebrenik, near Previla. The report did not provide the dates that the women were imprisoned or the identity of the owner of the home. 4191/

2639. Tunnel Prison: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by multiple sources, however none among them are neutral.) A report was received containing testimony from a Serbian woman held taken to a prison in the city of Tuzla and imprisoned for five months in a what she described as a tunnel. 4192/ The witness was a peasant farmer from the village of Brezje on Mount Majevisa. She stated that Muslim soldiers attacked her village in early June 1992, taking 36 Serbian children and dividing the women and girls into groups. 4193/ During the attack on the village some of the women were reportedly raped outside their homes. The witness reported that one Serbian man committed suicide when his wife and daughter were raped outside their home. 4194/ The soldiers were reportedly armed and wore green patterned disguise uniforms. 4195/ The soldiers killed village residents and robbed their homes.

2640. The witness reported that the soldiers separated the men and women and then loaded the prisoners into covered trucks that resembled vans. 4196/ The reporting witness and other female prisoners were transported to a camp in the city of Tuzla where she was confined in a "dark tunnel" with nine other women. 4197/

2641. During five months of imprisonment, the witness reported that the women were never taken outside. They were fed and given water in plastic bowls. She stated that none of the female prisoners were allowed to take showers or wash their clothes. She stated that the guards separated the girls from the women and allegedly subjected the women to rape. 4198/ The guards reportedly concealed their identity while committing the rapes by blindfolding the victims. 4199/ The women were allegedly subjected to repeated sexual assault and on some occasions were gang raped by the guards. The witness reported being subjected to interrogation concerning the location of her husband and children by guards in camouflage uniforms. She was allegedly told that Serbian women would no longer bear Serbian children, only Muslim and Croatian. 4200/ The witness was released in late October in a prisoner exchange at Piper. 4201/

2642. Cellars in Tuzla: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by multiple sources however none among them are neutral.) In an interview, a Serbian psychiatrist reported that Serbian women were imprisoned in some type of cellars controlled by Muslims in the town of Tuzla and subjected to repeated rape for the purpose of forced impregnation. 4202/ The physician worked with Serbian women who had allegedly been imprisoned a dark room. Three to five men entered the room on a daily basis to rape the women. 4203/ According to the patients who related their stories of imprisonment to the reporting physician, the Muslim soldiers intended to impregnate the Serbian women. The men reportedly told the women that the Koran stated that a child is a Muslim if the father is a Muslim. The women were generally released after the third month of pregnancy and, because of their advanced state, had to obtain the approval of the psychiatric commission for an abortion. 4204/

2643. In a separate report, the same Serbian psychiatrist reported examinations of four Serbian women who had allegedly been raped by Muslim and Croatian soldiers while imprisoned in a cellar in Tuzla. 4205/ According to these reports, the women were raped on a daily basis and later released in advanced stages of pregnancy. 4206/ JNA prisoners were reportedly beaten about their heads with the vacuum-cleaner hose which was used to clean the sewer daily. 4207/

82. Ugljevik

2644. Ugljevik is located in north-eastern Bosnia, bordered by the municipalities of Bijeljina, Zvornik, Lopare, and Brko. The pre-war population was 25,641, with Muslims comprising 40.6 per cent, Serbs 56.2 per cent, and 3.2 per cent listed as "other."

2645. Fabrika Kurjak: (The existence of these detention facilities have not been corroborated by multiple sources.) A report was received concerning a Serbian run camp in the town of Ugljevik. The town had a population of 5,000 and is located 23 kilometres south-west of Bijeljina. The camp was located in a newly built hall in the textile factory compound. Male Muslim prisoners were held at a hall surrounded by a barbed wire fence. Warning signs stated that the fence was charged with an electric current. On 29 June 1992, approximately 230 women and children and 72 men from Lonari arrived at the Ugljevik camp where only male prisoners were detained. The women and children were separated and placed in a camp for women located at a school in Ugljevik. Approximately 120 male prisoners were in the camp at that time. The reporting source stated that the many Muslim prisoners had been killed at the camp by Serbian soldiers before the witness arrived. Because the witness was detained for only three days, learned few details about the camp. 4208/

2646. According to this report, there were no beds in the camp and prisoners slept on the concrete floor. The witness reported that during the three days that he was detained the camp was surrounded by Ministry of Internal Affairs (SUP) personnel. 4209/ According to this witness, the SUP personnel did not mistreat or kill prisoners. 4210/ The witness also described an incident in which two drunk "•etniks" entered the camp one evening and stated that they had killed many Muslims at "the stadium" in Brko. 4211/ The soldier ordered the SUP guards to kill the Muslim prisoners, offering each guard 100 DM. 4212/ The guards refused and told the soldiers that they could not kill the prisoners. On 1 July 1992, the witness was transferred to a camp located three kilometres north of the town of Batkovi. 4213/

83. Vareš

2647. This municipality is located in central BiH, between Kakanj and Olovo. According to the 1991 Yugoslav census, the population of Vareš was 22,114; of which 40.6 per cent were Croats, 30.4 per cent were Muslim, 16.4 per cent were Serbs, and the remaining 12.6 per cent were described as "others".

2648. Reportedly, there are four locations in Vareš where people are detained. 4214/ However, there only is testimony describing two specific detention sites. Additionally, there are two reports of United Nations soldiers being held hostage and released, a report that women and children were detained and raped in a house, and a report that men were detained in Zubeta. Allegedly, over 270 people, mainly Muslim men, have been detained in Vareš. The only detainees who reportedly were released were the United Nations soldiers and the rape victims.

2649. Schoolhouses: (The existence of these detention facilities have been corroborated by multiple sources, including ECMM and the ICRC.) Bosnian Croat forces allegedly have detained as many as 232 Muslim men, including at least eight from Stupni Do, in two schoolhouses in Vareš. 4215/

2650. Muslim women from Vareš reported that on 23 October (presumably 1993) members of HVO Kiseljak in cooperation with the local HVO began arresting all Muslim males who were at least 16 years old. 4216/ In addition, a catholic priest alleged that 350 Muslim men initially were arrested and that approximately 200 then were detained in the two schools. 4217/ The priest further reported that the mayor of Vareš, who has since disappeared, had stated that these individuals were arrested because they were believed to be storing weapons. 4218/

2651. Reportedly, the detainees at the schools were abused. A Red Cross representative reported that some men at one of the schools were beaten. 4219/

A United Nations officer who entered the school buildings confirmed that the detainees had bruises on their faces and bodies. 4220/ The officer added that most detainees were so scared that they said their conditions were fine. 4221/ However, one detainee who spoke to him in Swedish said that they screamed all night. 4222/ Additionally, the visiting United Nations officer learned that 25 detainees had disappeared, and that 30 other detainees had been so badly beaten that he was not allowed to see them. 4223/

2652. Allegedly, conditions inside the school buildings were also poor. The United Nations officer who visited the schools said that the detainees were held in filthy conditions. 4224/ One of the school buildings allegedly was cold, dark, and damp. 4225/

2653. Factory, Vareš: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely the ICRC.) The ICRC reported that it visited a place of detention at a factory in Vareš on 9 February 1994. 4226/ No additional information was made available regarding prisoner treatment, length of the facility's existence nor its operation and control.

2654. Vareš House: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely the Washington Post.) Muslim BiH Government soldiers stated that five women and two children had escaped from a house in Vareš where they had been taken and raped. 4227/

2655. Zubeta Detentions: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely the Chicago Tribune.) According to Muslim refugees and BiH Army officers, Serbian soldiers detained several men from Zubeta, a village near Vareš. 4228/ It is unclear where the men were taken or if they were released.

84. Velika Kladuša

2656. Velika Kladuša is a province in the north-western corner of BiH. Its pre-war population was 52,921, of which 91.8 per cent were Muslim, 4.3 per cent Serb, and 3.9 per cent "other". There is little information about detention camps in the region.

2657. Prison in Velika Kladuša: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely the ICRC.) The only evidence of a camp comes from the ICRC. It reports that representatives visited a camp at a prison in Velika Kladuša. Their visit took place on 28 February 1994. 4229/ There is no indication of who was running the camp or who was detained there.

85. Višegrad

2658. Višegrad is in south-east BiH. As of 1991, its population was 21,202 of which 62.8 per cent Muslim, 32.8 per cent Serb, and 4.4 per cent other.

2659. The Uice corps, a JNA corps from Titovo Uice, Serbia, first entered Višegrad in April 1992. 4230/ One report alleges that they came on 4 April, but others contend that their occupation did not begin until 17 April. 4231/ The corps is estimated to have numbered 8,000 troops. 4232/ They remained in Višegrad for one or two months during which time they "picked up" many civilians for interrogation. There was no fighting reported at this time other than some exchanges between the Uice corps and unidentified forces on "a place on the hill" in Višegrad. No one was killed. 4233/

2660. Apparently, the Uice corps had been ordered by Milošević to withdraw from Bosnia and Herzegovina altogether on 28 April, but it took them several weeks to get out. When they did depart, they left all of their weapons with the Serbian Territorial Defence, partly transforming it into the "Serbian Army of Bosnia-Herzegovina." 4234/ At this time, the White Eagles, Arkan's and Šešelj's men, and a group called the "Johnsons" came to the region. They, along with the newly established army and local "•etniks", then launched an aggressive campaign of "ethnic cleansing" throughout the area. 4235/

2661. Early on, many Muslims fled to the woods and the neighbouring region of Gorade. 4236/ Yet, since travelling was considered very unsafe many civilians simply stayed put. 4237/ These people were systematically ordered to leave their homes and forced to hand over their valuables; they were then arrested and detained in camps.

2662. There are reports of 21 Serb-run camps established in the Višegrad region as part of this "ethnic cleansing" campaign. They were first created in April and May 1992 and appear to have run throughout July and August, although most of their precise dates of existence are unspecified. These camps are as follows: Banja Suse, Bikavac Hotel, a building above a tunnel, a factory in Višegrad, the fire station at Višegrad, the former police station in Višegrad, Hasan Beretovac Primary School, Hasan Veletovi Primary School at Gucine, Poarnica Barracks, Prelovo Camp, stable of Guso Salko, Varda Sawmill or Plant, Vardište Barracks, Vilina Vlas Hotel, Višegrad Electric Plant, Višegrad High School Centre, Višegrad Sports Centre, Uzemnica or Uramnica Barracks, the elimir Djuri eljo Primary School in Prelevo, and Zamjenica Garrison. There are also reports that prisoners were held in private homes and apartments.

2663. These camps held Muslim inhabitants from Višegrad and the surrounding villages. Several of them were specifically established to detain women for the purposes of rape. Members of Serbian military and paramilitary forces as well as local civilians would regularly visit these camps. Rape was apparently so common in the region that one nurse at a refugee shelter in Zenica stated, "Virtually every young woman who fled (Donji Vakuf, Foa, or) Višegrad after Serb extremists began what they call "ethnic cleansing" was raped." 4238/

2664. Inhabitants from the region were also transferred to camps outside the province, two of which were in Serbia. There is a report that some people were sent by bus to Olovo in central BiH. 4239/ Another report states that nearly 6,600 inhabitants were transferred to Uice by the Serbian Territorial Defence, and an unknown number of girls were captured and sent off to Zlatibor, Serbia. 4240/

2665. Two men are said to have organized this campaign. 4241/ Sixteen others were initially involved. 4242/

2666. Banja Suse: (The existence of this detention facility has not been corroborated by multiple sources.) There is one report that during the initial attack on Višegrad in April, a man and his two sons were taken to a camp at Banja Suse. 4243/ Apparently, this camp was near the River Drina. All the report describes is that a unit of the Serbian Territorial Defence stationed on the other side of the river suddenly opened fire on the camp. The man and children detained there escaped by swimming along the river. 4244/

2667. Bikavac Hotel: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by multiple sources however none among them are neutral.) Bikavac was a detention camp where Muslim women were held for the purposes of rape and sexual abuse. 4245/ There are alleged to have been girls under the age of 14 at this camp. 4246/

2668. This hotel was also the headquarters of the Serbian Territorial Defence and the White Eagles. It appears the hotel may have been the combined headquarters of the two armed forces. 4247/ An identified man was the manager of the hotel and was alleged to be involved in activities there. 4248/

2669. Building above tunnel in Višegrad: (The existence of this detention facility has not been corroborated by multiple sources.) There is one report that girls were taken by "•etniks" and detained in "a building above the tunnel" in Višegrad. 4249/ There is no further information about this camp.

2670. Factory in Višegrad: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely the Defence Debriefing Team.) The Defence Debriefing Team reported the existence of a camp at a factory in Višegrad in December 1992. 4250/ No other details are included.

2671. Fire Station in Višegrad: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by multiple sources however none among them are neutral.) The fire station at Višegrad was one of the main detention facilities in the area. There are no indications of exactly where in Višegrad this fire station is located; it is only described as having a "big open area" below it. 4251/ Most prisoners at the station came from lijev and Višegrad although there is a report that a group of young girls came from Kuke. 4252/ Those from lijev arrived sometime in June after the attack of their village by Arkan's units. 4253/ The exact dates of the other groups' detention are unknown.

2672. The fire station was a holding facility from where prisoners were often taken and returned. During detention, prisoners were temporarily taken to the police station, Vilina Vlas Hotel, and private homes for the purposes of interrogation and rape. While at the station, prisoners were also raped, beaten, killed, and made to do hard labour. 4254/

2673. The most detailed description of the station comes from an ex-prisoner who was held there for five days in late May 1992. 4255/ In her testimony, the witness refers to the camp as the "Fireman's Society". She was a particular target for rape and interrogation by the "•etniks" because she was originally from epa, and they wanted information about Muslim military activities there. 4256/

2674. While she was at the station, 130 people were also detained, 20 of them men. Upon her arrival, the "•etniks" lined up 15 kids and told everyone, "If anyone does anything against us, all 15 will be killed, and we will line up another 15." 4257/ Thereafter, the prisoners were separated by gender and taken in groups of five to a "receiving area" where they were stripped naked and searched by guards. They were told that if they withheld any valuables, they would be killed. 4258/

2675. She reports that on the first night, an unknown number of "•etniks" came and took away two young girls to be raped. The mother of the children tried to give them some previously hidden money, but this did not stop them. Instead, they simply took the mother and forced her to watch the rapes. 4259/

2676. On the second day, another female detainee was taken away. Apparently, she was brought to the police station for questioning and returned later that day. On this same day, the witness was also taken from the station and brought to a house in the Bikavac quarter of Višegrad by a named man. There, 20 men awaited her. They gang raped her and then the man drove her back to the station. 4260/

2677. That evening, two men came to the camp with eight other men. They took away the male prisoners in groups of five and six. Approximately, 21 men were taken in all, their destination unknown. This left about 100 to 110 women and children remaining at the station. 4261/

2678. Sometime after the men were taken, the others went to sleep, but were later awakened when about seven or eight "•etniks" showed up again with socks over their heads and "with colours and dirt on their faces". 4262/ They wore plastic gloves and were shouting that they wanted to test something in the building. First, they took two girls to be raped. Then, they chose from the other women using a flashlight in the dark room to see their faces. 4263/

2679. The witness was one of the women chosen. She was taken upstairs with two others. Upstairs in the hallway, they were grabbed at and kissed by several men. Then, they were brought into a small office with four men and forced to strip naked. First, the other two women were raped. Then, they were sent into the hallway and she was left alone with the men. 4264/

2680. One of them told her to sit down "in the Turkish way" in front of him. He made her kiss the cross he wore around his neck three times and cross herself. When she told him she did not know how, another of them showed her and made her do it. He then told her that she had changed religion and that she was now a Serb. 4265/

2681. After this time, the three other men left the room. She had to perform fellatio on the perpetrator while he held a knife to her throat. He ejaculated inside her. Then, the second man came in, and she was forced to do the same thing to him, then the third, and the fourth. 4266/

2682. While upstairs, the witness noted that there were three rooms: two smaller offices and a big room where a lot of folders and paperwork were stored. The two smaller rooms were empty. She reports that only one of these rooms, the one in which she was raped, was used for rape. 4267/

2683. On the third day, she was again taken away from the station at around 2:00 p.m. The "•etniks" took her to the "New Bridge" where they interrogated and kissed her in front of the Muslim men being killed there. 4268/ She was met by a named man and brought to the Vilina Vlas Hotel. Though she had never met this man, she knew him to be one of the main perpetrators of crimes in the area. He raped her at Vilina Vlas all that day and night and brought her back to the fire station at 12:00 a.m. 4269/

2684. Only five minutes after she was returned, the "•etniks" came for her again. This time there were three of them. They took her to an empty house not far from the station, interrogated her about epa, and raped her. 4270/

2685. After five days of detention, the witness was transferred with her two children to Kalina near Olovo. During her transport, the convoy was stopped three times as various "•etniks" continued to look for her. She successfully evaded them by hiding underneath other prisoners during their searches of the convoy trucks. 4271/

2686. Among the perpetrators she reports were involved in activities at the fire station were three identified men, one man identified by nickname, and many of Arkan's and Šešelj's men. 4272/ She states, "They all had beards, black dresses, all in black with hats and Serbian crosses, long hair." She adds that she did not know any of them from before the war but learned that some were from Uice, Bijolje, and Višegrad. 4273/

2687. Other reports indicate that two other men were also present at the station. In addition, a man identified by one name only from Višegrad was there. 4274/ One witness specifically alleges that she and three other women were raped when they had no valuables to give him. 4275/

2688. Hasan Beretovac Primary School: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by multiple sources however none among them are neutral.) There is a report that a Serb-run camp was established at this school. 4276/ There is no further information.

2689. Hasan Veletovi Primary School at Guine: (The existence of this detention facility has not been corroborated by multiple sources.) There is also a report that a camp was established here. There are no details about it other than the fact that the entire population of Crna was brought here, stripped of their valuables, and detained. 4277/ This may, in fact, be the same camp reported above as Hasan Beretovac School.

2690. High School Centre at Višegrad: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by multiple sources however none among them are neutral.) A camp was established at the high school in Višegrad. 4278/ There is no indication exactly where the high school is located, and no other information is included.

2691. Former JNA Garrisons at Vardište: 4279/ (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by multiple sources however none among them are neutral.) There are reports that a camp existed at the former Vardište military garrisons. 4280/ No additional information was provided regarding this facility.

2692. Former Police Station at Višegrad: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by multiple sources however none among them are neutral.) The police station is alleged to have been established as a holding centre for Muslims from Višegrad upon the Serbian occupation of the area. 4281/ Inhabitants were initially arrested and interrogated at the station from 14 April to 18 April and continued to be brought there throughout the summer. 4282/ Here, prisoners were interrogated, beaten, tortured, and starved. 4283/ According to one report, at least five prisoners were taken out a day to be killed. 4284/

2693. Poarnica Barracks: (The existence of this detention facility has not been corroborated by multiple sources.) There is a report of a camp at the Poarnica Barracks. 4285/ No information regarding operation or control, duration or existing conditions was provided about this facility.

2694. Prelovo: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by multiple sources however none among them are neutral.) The existence of a camp is reported in Prelovo. Apparently, it was created upon the initial attack of Višegrad by Uice corps troops in April and run by an identified man. 4286/ At the camp, prisoners are alleged to have been shot and burned. 4287/

2695. Sports Centre at Višegrad: (The existence of this detention facility has not been corroborated by multiple sources.) There is a report of a camp at the "sports centre" in Višegrad. As of October 1992, it was reported that 1,000 prisoners had been detained there and 1,630 killed. 4288/

2696. Local Stable: (The existence of this detention facility has not been corroborated by multiple sources.) Muslims are said to have been arrested by an identified man and held in the stable of a certain other identified man. 4289/ They were arrested and brought to the stable on 24 June 1992, but there is no indication as to how many were there or how long they stayed.

2697. Uramnica or Uzemnica Barracks: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by multiple sources however none among them are neutral.) Upon the initial attack of Višegrad, Muslims were ordered to gather at the Uramnica Barracks where they were held for three days. 4290/ The report does not give a precise date of their arrest, but it was near 17 April 1992. Their destination after Uramnica is unknown.

2698. Varda Electric Plant: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by multiple sources however none among them are neutral.) There was allegedly a camp at Varda, a place described both as a sawmill and a plant. 4291/ Over 1,000 people are estimated to have been killed there. In specific, seven people were reported killed on 11 June and 22 killed several days thereafter. 4292/

2699. Apparently, this camp was run by an identified paramilitary group. This group reportedly took Muslims to the plant, locked them in rooms, killed them, and then threw their bodies in the River Drina. 4293/ Two other men are also mentioned in connection with activities there. One was seen by a witness taking workers to the sawmill on 10 June 1992. 4294/ The other was known to take prisoners from Varda and have them killed at the "Old Bridge." 4295/

2700. Vilina Vlas Hotel: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by multiple sources, including Amnesty International.) Vilina Vlas was one of the main detention facilities in Višegrad. It was located in a hotel/spa about seven kilometres south-east of Višegrad proper, on the way to Gorade. 4296/ This camp was established with the coming of the Uice Corps in the end of April. 4297/ It held Muslim women for the purposes of rape, serving as a camp "brothel". Apparently, women detained here were picked up by police officers, members of the White Eagles and Arkan's and Sešelj's men. 4298/ Many of them were not yet 14 years old. 4299/

2701. Vilina Vlas was well-known as a camp which detained only young, beautiful women. One witness was told that the women brought to Vilina Vlas were chosen to bear "etnik" children. Hence, they were "selected" carefully and brought only here. 4300/ Another relates that Muslim women who had previously brought food or other supplies to the Green Berets paramilitary troops were also brought here. 4301/

2702. One detailed report outlines the arrests of several girls from Višegrad on 9 June 1992. These girls were arrested by an identified man active at many camps in this region and taken to the hotel. 4302/ One of them describes being interrogated and raped by this man. While in the room where she was raped, members of the White Eagles tried to get in to rape her as well, but the man would not let them. 4303/

2703. When the mothers of these and other girls reported their arrests to the Serbian Secretariat of International Affairs, they were simply told "the Turks also do nasty things to Serbian kids" and sent away. 4304/

2704. One witness offers a detailed description of her 24-hour stay at the hotel. At the time she was brought to Vilina Vlas, she was being detained at the fire station in Višegrad, but was taken here to be raped by a "etnik" known only by nickname. 4305/

2705. She describes the hotel as big, with a basement and two floors. Upon their arrival, the reception area was dark. The "etnik" got a key from an unidentified man at the reception area and brought the witness to the second floor. The hallway was large and ran to the left and right from the top of the stairs. There were rooms everywhere with the doors open, so she could see that they were all occupied by women prisoners and "•etniks". 4306/

2706. Once in a room, the witness was forced to take a cold shower as this man pointed a rifle at her. Then, he left her there to get a bottle of whiskey. He returned and raped her for two hours. 4307/ Afterward, she was raped by eight other men. 4308/

2707. According to this witness, the women detained at the hotel had sufficient food and drink because they were the "selected women" meant to later give birth to "etnik" babies. 4309/ She relates that during her stay, the women and men in the rooms were hugging and kissing. She suspects that the women behaved in this way because they had given up resisting the repeated rapes. 4310/

2708. Yet overall, reports of the treatment of women at the hotel are not good. The prisoners were raped repeatedly and beaten with batons. 4311/ One report alleges that some were even killed by suffocation in a system of gas pipes at the hotel. 4312/ Many sent there were never seen again. 4313/ Apparently, certain soldiers at the camp were taking revenge for dead Serbs at epa. 4314/

2709. One report describes the fate of 200 girls brought to the camp. Of them, five committed suicide by jumping from a balcony at the hotel, six others escaped and the rest were killed after multiple rapes. 4315/

2710. Once this camp became well-known it was moved. 4316/ There are no details as to when this move took place or to where the camp relocated.

2711. Twelve people are named in connection with activities at the camp. 4317/ "•etniks" from Prevalo were also said to be there. 4318/

2712. There is also a report about an unnamed soldier. 4319/

2713. Zamjenica Garrison: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by multiple sources however none among them are neutral.) A camp at the former Zamjenica Garrison was established after the Uice troops entered Višegrad. 4320/

2714. elimir Djuri eljo Primary School at Prelovo: (The existence of this detention facility has not been corroborated by multiple sources.) There is alleged to have been a camp at this primary school. 4321/ This may be the same camp described above as Prelovo Camp.

2715. Private homes in Višegrad: (The existence of these detention facilities have not been corroborated by multiple sources.) There are two reports that Muslims were also held in private homes and apartments in Višegrad for varying lengths of time, but there is no information about where these homes were located. 4322/

2716. The ICRC reports visiting one camp in the region, but it is not clear which of the above-mentioned camps it was. Representatives visited "Višegrad camp" on three occasions: 12 June, 15 June, and 2 July 1992. On 12 June, they reported the detention of 58 prisoners at this camp; on 15 June, they reported 20, and on 2 July, they also reported 20 prisoners. 4323/

2717. A number of people are alleged to have participated in an ethnic cleansing campaign in Višegrad. 4324/

86. Visoko

2718. According to the 1991 Yugoslav census the municipality of Visoko contained 46,130 individuals. Of that number 74.5 per cent were Muslims, 16 per cent were Serbs, 4.3 per cent were Croats, and the remaining 5.2 per cent were described as "others".

2719. There are several reports which allege the existence of a camp or camps in Visoko. 4325/

2720. Ahmed Fetahovi Military Barracks: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely an official UN source.) In early June 1992, the Visoko area came under attack by Serb forces. The existence of a detention facility at the local barracks was, however, not controlled by the aggressing Serb forces. 4326/

2721. In one report, a Serb recalls being the first, and for a short time, the only prisoner detained by Muslims at the local barracks. 4327/ According to the report, the Serb male was captured in the basement of his home by Muslim forces on 6 June 1992. 4328/ He was taken to the military barracks and placed in a chair with his arms tied behind his back with ropes. He was reportedly beaten and interrogated by soldiers and police for four hours. 4329/ According to his statement, whenever he lost consciousness, the police threw water on him to revive him and then continued the interrogation. 4330/

2722. He recalled that after some time, the inmate population grew to 150 individuals--all of whom were detained in two rooms. 4331/ The witness recalled watching as two inmates were beaten to death by the camp guards with the participation of the camp commander. 4332/ The report suggests that in addition to camp guards administering beatings, Muslim civilians from Zenica and Visoko were also permitted to enter the barracks and beat the prisoners. 4333/

2723. According to another report, on the first day of the conflict, six individuals were detained at this facility. Approximately three weeks after the fighting began, the facility's population swelled to more than 150 individuals. 4334/ Interrogations were initially severe and disorganized. Following the appointment of an investigator, the physical mistreatment was discontinued and the general conditions at the facility improved. 4335/ All interrogations were conducted in the office of the investigator. Those inmates who were deemed guilty of some crime were transferred to Zenica while the others continued their detention in Visoko. 4336/ One witness described his containment facility as one measuring approximately 70 square metres. There were some 150 other inmates sharing the same space. 4337/ The detainees were put on work detail and used as forced labour to dig trenches around the facility. The report suggests that women were detained at other area facilities including a camp in the village of Hlapevii. 4338/

2724. The report suggests that at some point, the camp was hit by rocket-fire. 4339/ Purportedly the shelling of the camp was a "provoked response from the Serbian" forces because Muslim forces were using the roof of the barracks in tactical manoeuvres. Two inmates were reportedly killed as a result. 4340/

2725. Kasarna Camp: (The existence of this detention facility has not been corroborated by multiple sources.) According to one report, between May and December 1992, Serb men, women and children were taken from their homes by Muslim forces and detained in what was reportedly described as a prison camp. 4341/ The inmates were subjected to severe physical mistreatment including beatings with mallets, hammers, iron rods, and ax handles. 4342/ The inmates were reportedly not permitted to bathe or shower for two months. Food was also in rather meagre supply. Two to three inmates were forced to share one bowl of soup per day. 4343/

2726. The report alleges, additionally, that at one point Muslim territorial defence forces had shelled the camp, resulting in the death of two prisoners and the wounding of 14 others. 4344/

2727. Various Homes: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely an official UN source.) According to one report, several Visoko residents were detained in their homes behind locked doors. The resident-inmates were subjected to regular shell-fire. 4345/ The report suggests that the residents' detention appears to have been sanctioned and, perhaps even, instituted by the BiH government. 4346/

2728. Veterinarian's Office: (The existence of this detention facility has not been corroborated by multiple sources.) According to one report, a young Serb male and his parents were arrested and detained on 20 June after Muslim forces had surrounded their home. 4347/ They were collected in a group with some 200 similarly situated Serbs, and approximately 30 individuals from among the group (including the witness and his father) were taken to a veterinarian's office. 4348/

2729. The witness was aggressively interrogated and then shot through both arms. Following the receipt of his injuries, he was transported to the hospital and thereafter transferred to the former JNA barracks. 4349/

2730. Military/Police Station: (The existence of this detention facility has not been corroborated by multiple sources.) A source reported that he had heard from a friend that Serbs had tortured and killed 10 Muslims from the village of Vratnik, two kilometres from Visoko. In retaliation, many members of Serbian families were arrested and taken to a building in Visoko that was being used as a military and police station by the Bosnian army. The prisoners were kept in the cellars, some were tortured and subsequently died. 4350/

2731. Hospital: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely the ICRC.) The ICRC reported the existence of a camp in the Visoko hospital. The ICRC reportedly first visited this facility on 4 June 1993. 4351/

2732. Prison/Penitentiary: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely the ICRC.) The ICRC reported the existence of a camp in the Prison/Penitentiary in Visoko. The ICRC reportedly first visited a detention facility at this location on 6 August 1992. 4352/ No additional information was provided regarding the conditions at this location.

87. Vitez

2733. This municipality is located in central BiH, between Pucarevo and Busovaa counties. According to the 1991 Yugoslav census, the population of Vitez was 27,728; of which 45.7 per cent were Croats, 41.4 per cent were Muslims, 5.4 per cent were Serbs, and the remaining 7.5 per cent were described as "others".

2734. Situated in the Lašva Valley, the city of Vitez is a Bosnian Croat stronghold where several detention facilities are located. In April 1993, Croat HVO forces in Vitez launched a coordinated attack on the Muslim villages and BiH Army forces around Vitez as well as on Old Vitez. Following the attacks, the Muslims in the Vitez area were forced to seek refuge in Old Vitez, Krušica (a village south of Vitez) and Busovaa. Consequently, and although little territory actually changed hands, Bosnian Croat forces have been able to establish political and military dominance in the Vitez area. 4353/ The stated aim of the Bosnian Croat regime is to fully evict the Muslim population of this region. 4354/

2735. Reports suggest that several detention centres were established in the Vitez area. HVO forces are identified as the party in control of these facilities, though one report concerns a camp run by BiH forces. Very little information about these camps is available, although the reports demonstrate that the ECMM and the ICRC have been active in the area by arranging for prisoner releases and transfers as well as registering detainees. 4355/

2736. HVO Brigade Headquarters: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely the ECMM.) In April 1993, the ECMM visited a camp situated beneath the HVO Brigade headquarters in Vitez. The prison housed 62 Muslim men. 4356/

2737. Dubravica Primary School: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by multiple sources, including the ICRC and the ECMM.) Several reports mention that persons have been detained at a school in Vitez. The first report, which does not identify the school, asserts that Muslim families were contained at this location however, that they were not held against their will. Although persons at the school were treated well, the report states that HVO soldiers entered the school on 3 May 1993 and threatened families in residence there. 4357/ The second report merely identifies the Dubravica primary school in Vitez as a place of detention. 4358/ It is uncertain whether the reports refer to the same school. The third report was issued by the ICRC following their visit to a school in Vitez on 28 April 1993. The report verifies the existence of such a facility but does not provide additional information about its operation or control. 4359/

2738. Unidentified Prison: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely the ECMM.) In April 1993, the ECMM visited a prison, located south of Vitez, under the control of the BiH Army. 4360/ The report indicates that the prison consisted of at least two rooms. One room contained four women and two children, while a second room contained some eight men. 4361/

2739. Cinema: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely the ECMM.) Approximately 300 persons were reportedly held in a cinema in the area of Vitez. Additional information regarding operation and control was not provided. 4362/

2740. Oil Station: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely the ECMM.) According to one report, an oil station in the area of Vitez was used as a detention facility. No additional information was made available regarding the identities of inmates, the conditions of their detainment nor the length of the facility's existence. 4363/

2741. Chemical Factory: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely the ECMM.) According to one report, the chemical factory in Vitez was used as a detention facility. 4364/

2742. According to one report, ICRC representatives visited a detention facility at a factory in Vitez. The existence of the camp was confirmed on 26 April 1992. No additional information was made available regarding the identities of inmates, the conditions of their detainment nor the length of the facility's existence. 4365/

2743. Private House, Vitez: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely the ICRC.) According to one report, ICRC representatives visited a detention facility in a private home in Vitez. The existence of the camp was confirmed on 26 April 1992. No additional information was made available regarding the identities of inmates, the conditions of their detainment nor the length of the facility's existence. 4366/

2744. Police Station: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely the ICRC.) According to one report, ICRC representatives visited a detention facility at the police station in Vitez. The existence of the camp was confirmed on 26 October 1992. No additional information was made available regarding the identities of inmates, the conditions of their detainment nor the length of the facility's existence. 4367/

88. Vlasenica

2745. Vlasenica is located in eastern BiH. As of 1991, the municipality had a population of 33,817, of which 55.3 per cent were Muslim, 42.5 per cent were Serb, and 2.2 per cent were described as "other".

2746. The first Serbian troops entered Vlasenica on or near 17 April 1992. 4368/ These troops came from Novi Sad and were led by an unidentified lieutenant colonel. According to one Novi Sad soldier, these troops came because a telegram had been sent to them from the SDS in Vlasenica claiming that the Bosnian Muslims in the area had killed Bosnian Serbs. 4369/

2747. While there is no evidence to support or refute this claim, there are reports of increasing tension between Serbian and Muslim villagers prior to the Serbian occupation of the region. For example, during the months before April, the JNA held manoeuvres in the BiH town of Han Pijesak near Vlasenica, but only Serb soldiers were invited to take part. 4370/ Also, Serbs from outlying villages had started coming into the town of Vlasenica with rifles, getting drunk, and warning the Muslims that they would have to leave. 4371/

2748. Then in April, the troops from Novi Sad, aided by Serb forces from Vlasenica, Mišar, Donji Raji, Donji Zalukovi, Gornji Zalukovi, Milii, and Šekovii, occupied the region. 4372/ They immediately founded the "•etniks' Headquarters of the Vlasenica Region" and put up Serbian flags in the villages. 4373/ All Muslim police officers were disarmed and expelled from the police station, and Muslim residents also required to give up their weapons. Tanks were installed in key positions and the bus station was fully guarded by Serb soldiers. 4374/

2749. While the troops from Novi Sad were in Vlasenica, Muslim villagers were arrested, beaten, and interrogated, and some arbitrarily killed, but witnesses nevertheless attest that everything remained relatively peaceful at this time. They assert that it was not until the departure of these troops on 2 May 1992 that conditions for the Muslims worsened considerably. 4375/

2750. Upon their departure, the Novi Sad troops left the bulk of their weapons with the local serb population who had helped them take over the region and transferred some 80,000 troops to them. 4376/ Then, this newly combined force took over the town. Soldiers established a Serbian military administration in every factory and institution. 4377/ They carried out more arrests, beatings, and interrogations at the police station. Most Muslims were immediately released although those believed to be "extremists" were detained for a longer period of time. 4378/

2751. During the month of May, these Serbs burned houses and looted property, particularly the property of Muslim SDA members. They are reported to have arrested, beat, and killed Muslims in the villages of Alihodii, Beroš, Damdii, Durakovii, Drum, Demat, Ešmii, Gradina, Kuljanii, Piskavice, Pustase, Sahmanovii, and Zaklopaa. 4379/ In fact, one report describes the shooting of 11 unknown Muslims in the centre of Vlasenica. Apparently, the bodies were left in the street to rot as a warning to all other villagers of what was to come. 4380/

2752. Many villagers thought to leave Vlasenica at this time and escaped to Kladanj, Tuzla, and other surrounding places. Yet, many were advised by Serbian authorities to go back to Vlasenica if they hoped to keep their jobs; some followed this counsel. 4381/

2753. Then, in the beginning of June, the systematic eviction and execution of Muslims began. 4382/ At this time, Serbian troops arrested villagers and took them to various detention facilities. As a basis for initially evacuating the village of Vlasenica, the soldiers told inhabitants that they were looking for a "very dangerous" Muslim. Then, soldiers came to village homes looking for this man and arrested and took away whoever lived there. 4383/

2754. During this mass evacuation, Muslims believed to be politically influential were targeted by the Serbs. One report explains that on 15 June, 50 Muslims who were said to be "politically important" in Vlasenica were loaded onto a bus and driven to the village of Zalakovlje, approximately two kilometres away. There, a Serb opened fire on them, killing all but one. It is not clear how the one Muslim survived or where he/she is now located.

2755. Another report suggests that Muslim members of the SDA who were not immediately killed and instead brought to camps were the first to be tortured and killed. At Sušica for example, many members of the SDA had their legs and arms broken and had crosses cut into their bodies with knives. 4384/

2756. By 20 June, no one could leave the region. 4385/ From this time until mid-September 1992, Serbian troops carried out an aggressive "ethnic cleansing" campaign. 4386/ One report states that it was the President of the SDS Party of Vlasenica, who was in charge of this campaign. 4387/ Six others were alleged to be highly involved. 4388/

2757. During the "ethnic cleansing", eight Serb-run detention facilities were established. They are as follows: a former chicken farm in Sesari, the high school centre in Vlasenica, the hospital at Vlasenica, Milii camp, the primary school at Cerska, the primary school at Vlasenica, Sušica Camp, and Vlasenica Camp. Muslims from the Vlasenica and the surrounding region were held in these facilities. 4389/

2758. There is also an allegation that Muslim-run camps existed in this region as well.

2759. Former Chicken Farm in Sesari: (The existence of this detention facility has not been corroborated by multiple sources.) There is a report of a camp at an ex-chicken farm in the village of Sesari. 4390/ There are no other details.

2760. High School Centre in Vlasenica: (The existence of this detention facility has not been corroborated by multiple sources.) There is a report of a camp at the high school centre in Vlasenica. 4391/ Apparently, a large number of prisoners were killed there. 4392/

2761. Hospital at Vlasenica: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely the ICRC.) ICRC representatives visited a camp at the hospital in Vlasenica on 21 October 1992. They recorded one prisoner at the camp at this time. 4393/

2762. Milii Camp: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely the ICRC.) According to the ICRC, there is a Serbian-run camp in the village of Milii. Representatives visited this camp on 10 June 1993 and found two prisoners. 4394/

2763. Primary School at Cerska: (The existence of this detention facility has not been corroborated by multiple sources.) One eye-witness alleges that 300 villagers from Vlasenica were detained in the primary school at Cerska, and that a large number of them were killed. 4395/ Another report claims that women and children prisoners from Sušica Camp were transferred there.

2764. The ICRC visited the school on 20 October 1992 and reported seeing no prisoners. 4396/

2765. In early February 1993, the school is said to have been shelled with the remaining prisoners in it. Ten of the prisoners were killed immediately; 50 were injured. Those who tried to run to shelter were shelled again. It is reported that medical supplies were extremely limited in caring for the wounded, and it is not known how many survived. 4397/

2766. Primary School at Vlasenica: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely the United Kingdom.) There is a report of a camp at the primary school in Vlasenica. Muslims from as far as Brko and Bratunac were taken to this camp. 4398/

2767. Sušica Camp: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by multiple sources, including the New York Times, US Government, an official UN source and the United Kingdom.) Sušica was the main detention facility in the Vlasenica area. It is reported to have held a few thousand prisoners--men, women, and children--from Vlasenica and the surrounding villages. 4399/

2768. Sušica was a former military depot located several hundred metres from the main street of Vlasenica. 4400/ It was situated on the west side of the highway leading to Han Pijesak. 4401/ It consisted of two warehouses and one small building within an area 50 metres wide by 100 metres long. Apparently, the two warehouses had been formerly used for military ammunition storage by the Territorial Defence of Bosnia and Herzegovina. 4402/

2769. An ex-guard, alleges that in early May 1992 he was told by a Captain to prepare to work in a prison camp. 4403/ During the rest of the month, the large hangar at the military depot was emptied and the camp surrounded with thick coils of barbed wire. He states, "15 of us were chosen as guards. We were all over 30; they wanted people with experience. The alternative was to be shot, or sent to the front line." 4404/

2770. It is estimated that the camp opened up sometime in the end of May. 4405/ One of the early prisoner groups to arrive at Sušica came on 2 June 1992. A witness from this group was arrested by two Serbs. 4406/ Another group of about 50 Vlasenica villagers were also sent to Sušica prison early on. Their homes were set afire by the Serbs, and they were made to walk to the camp. 4407/

2771. All of the prisoners at the camp were kept together in one warehouse. This warehouse was seven metres wide by 15 metres long and had a cement floor. At full capacity, it is reported to have held an estimated 560 prisoners. Yet, witnesses attest that there were at least 600 to 700 people in the hangar at a time. 4408/ The men were on one side and the women on the other. 4409/

2772. Food was virtually non-existent at the camp. Each prisoner was given only one slice of bread per 24 hour period. 4410/ As the summer progressed, soup was occasionally given in addition to bread, but prisoners still commonly lost consciousness as a result of malnutrition. 4411/

2773. Prisoners who had to use the bathroom were made to run to a toilet outside the warehouse in the corner of the fenced area. In such a case, other prisoners were given sticks and forced to beat the individual while they were defecating or urinating. 4412/ The prisoners were not allowed to wash, and in the summer the smell is said to have been "overwhelming". 4413/

2774. Prisoners were also beaten with timber and iron rods and slashed with knives at the camp. 4414/ Men were regularly stripped to the waist and beaten. One ex-prisoner relates that he and others were called "Balijs" and forced to sing Serbian songs. 4415/ He states that he was beaten three and four times a day. Others were even beaten to death. 4416/ One such victim died in the hangar on or near 15 June 1992. Another older man who was believed by guards to have hidden weapons in Vlasenica was also beaten to death shortly thereafter. 4417/ Apparently, a dead body would sometimes lie in the hangar for hours before the guards took it away. 4418/

2775. According to witnesses, executions took place regularly at Sušica Camp. Usually, about eight men were taken away from the warehouse at a time. 4419/ Shortly afterward, people inside the building would hear shooting. The men would never return. 4420/

2776. Several surviving prisoners offer detailed descriptions of the killings and other activities at the camp. One such prisoner was brought to Sušica on 22 June 1992. Upon his arrival, two men from his group died from the beatings they had sustained upon their initial arrest. Then, on 26 June, more prisoners were killed. At 1:00 a.m., two guards, entered the warehouse and forced four men outside. Immediately, thereafter four gunshots and screaming were heard just outside the structure. 4421/

2777. At 1:30 a.m., two brothers, went into the warehouse and took three women to be raped. The women returned later that morning, crying and tired. They related what had happened to them to the others. 4422/

2778. At 2:00 a.m., guards entered the warehouse again and told everyone to close the windows because four prisoners had tried to escape. These prisoners were killed, and in the early morning two other prisoners were selected to dispose of their corpses. 4423/ They buried them in a mass grave near the camp.

2779. To get to this grave site, they apparently turned left onto the dirt access road that ran next to the camp, and led to Highway 19, crossed a concrete bridge and then turned right onto another dirt road that led to the villages of Luke and Zlakavlje. The bodies were buried among some evergreen trees 200 metres from the beginning of the road and 10 metres off to the left in the direction of Luke/Zlakavlje. 4424/

2780. One witness alleges that during her three-day stay sometime in June, 15 to 20 men were taken out a night and killed. The guards carrying out the killings often seemed drunk. They would enter the hangar at night and simply point to people to be taken out. There did not seem to be any system to their killing. 4425/ She also alleges that there were bulldozers at the camp which were used to bury the dead. 4426/

2781. Another ex-prisoner held at Sušica between 5 July and 12 July explains that during her detention more people kept coming to the camp everyday, and room had to be made for them either by the removal of women and children to Kladanj or through the nightly executions of men. 4427/ As a result, the Serbs would draw up lists of prisoners to be killed and those to be let go. One witness alleges that there were lists of old men, women, and children who were allowed to leave as long as they left their valuables. 4428/

2782. According to another witness who arrived on 10 July, there were a lot of killings and mass executions early on at the camp, but these became less frequent after she came. She learned about the high level of earlier killings from the other prisoners. 4429/

2783. Still more information about the camp comes from an ex-guard. He has related details of the activities which occurred at Sušica to international organizations and the Western media. 4430/ An ex-guard was a sergeant in the JNA in the 1970s and joined the Bosnian Serb forces when the BiH war broke out. He said he deserted the Bosnian Serb army and fled Vlasenica on 1 January 1993. 4431/

2784. He claims that the confinement of Muslims in the area was instigated by the JNA of Novi Sad, and that the ultimate command of the Sušica Camp rested throughout its existence with an officer in the JNA, Major Mila Jaimovi. An ex-guard states about the activities at Sušica, "There is no question that the orders came from the highest level. . . . Our army had a strict chain of command from the outset, and Major Jaimovi received order from above." 4432/

2785. According to him, the camp opened on 2 June 1992 and closed four months later. During this entire time, Muslims were executed every night at the command of Dragan Nikoli, a man who now works for the Bosnian Serb secret police and was in charge of the day-to-day running of the camp. He estimates that he personally witnessed the execution of close to 3,000 Muslims from Vlasenica at the Sušica Camp and watched thousands more pass through it. 4433/ He states that all of the prisoners at the camp were civilians taken from their homes. 4434/

2786. An ex-guard describes how the "selection process" for killing and transfer worked at the camp. Apparently, men suspected of having some political influence or trafficking in arms were not taken for exchange and were generally executed; others were exchanged and held for transfer to Batkovi camp. 4435/

2787. Despite these general guidelines, the "selection process" was often much more random than planned. Sometimes, one brother of a family was executed while another was transferred for exchange. 4436/ In short, prisoners had no guarantee that they would stay alive.

2788. An ex-guard reports that the small-scale executions took place on the camp grounds. Male prisoners were generally lined up against an electricity pylon just outside the barracks and shot. 4437/ The larger ones were carried out at a nearby ravine called Han Ploa on the road south toward Han Pijesak. 4438/ Men were loaded into the back of a truck, taken up to the edge of the ravine about five miles away, and then shot as they got out of the vehicle. Apparently, groups of young soldiers were brought in to perform the executions. The bodies fell into the ravine and bulldozers were later used to cover them up. 4439/

2789. An ex-guard personally witnessed the mass execution of 25 people at the ravine. He claims that on this occasion one of the prisoners got away by running to the woods once he got out of the truck. In all, at least 1,000 prisoners were executed at the ravine. At first, the killings took place during the day but later were carried out only at night. 4440/

2790. Other burials of prisoners from Sušica are said to have taken place on a waste land at the "Alpro" Aluminum Factory. 4441/

2791. Sušica Camp was run by both a military and administrative commander. The military commander was Captain Dragan Nikoli from Vlasenica. He was a 30 year old former employee of the Alpro Aluminum Factory. 4442/ He was seen on numerous occasions beating prisoners with police sticks and kicking them with his boots. Commonly, he forced prisoners to sit on their knees facing the wall while he kicked the ribs under their armpits. 4443/ Another witness reports that Nikolic came into the warehouse at Sušica each night throughout the summer of 1992 and read out a list of names of men to be taken outside and shot. 4444/

2792. When asked about the motives of Dragan Nikoli, An ex-guard suggests that he was "inebriated by Serbian nationalist propaganda and was making a lot of money from his victims". 4445/

2793. The administrative commander of Sušica was a retired policeman. 4446/ The deputy administrative commander was also a retired police officer. 4447/

2794. Apparently, the guards worked directly under the supervision of the military camp commander. There were two groups of 10 guards, each of which alternated 24 shifts. Six of these guards, all from Vlasenica, were identified. 4448/

2795. An ex-guard also explains the pattern of prisoner transfers. According to him, many male prisoners were transferred to the Batkovi camp near Bijeljina. 4449/ Prisoners from Sušica are said to have moved to Batkovi to replace Brko prisoners. 4450/ Likewise, prisoners also went from Batkovi prison to Vlasenica. One report states that 44 prisoners were "shared out" as workers from Batkovi prison to Vlasenica. 4451/ Another relates that the "remaining prisoners" at Batkovi, about 40, were sent to Vlasenica after October 1992. 4452/ It is not clear whether these reports are referring to the same group.

2796. Sušica was generally a transit camp for women and children, but some were also executed there along with the men. Usually, they were taken on to Cerska or allowed to go to Kladanj. 4453/ On the occasions that they would be allowed to go to Kladanj, they would be taken up to the front line a few miles to the west of the camp and forced to walk there. 4454/

2797. One report also claims that women and children were taken to Pelemis. 4455/ On 10 August, for example, a group of 43 men, women, and children were taken from Sušica camp. They were told they would be taken to Tuzla for exchange, but were brought to Pelemis instead. 4456/ One female witness was part of this group, but reports that about four-fifths of the other women were left behind. 4457/ Supposedly, the Serbs moved prisoners often in order to confuse the Red Cross and other humanitarian organizations in assessing the camps. 4458/

2798. By the end of September, there were no Muslims left in the area and little evidence of what they had suffered. 4459/ Apparently, the camp is closed today; the road to it is barred and guarded, and a sign at the entrance to Vlasenica reads, "Any loitering by foreigners is forbidden". 4460/

2799. Sometime in July 1992, the UN apparently arranged a visit to Sušica Camp, but the prisoners were taken into the woods and forced to lie down for three hours until the UN had left. A French Red Cross team turned up at the camp unexpectedly, and a young Muslim boy in the camp who could speak French told them that it was a detention facility. The Red Cross did not do anything and shortly thereafter the boy was killed. 4461/ The ICRC made an official visit to the camp again on 21 October 1992 and found no prisoners. 4462/

2800. Sources state that the camp was officially closed on 1 or 2 November 1992, and all remaining prisoners were transferred to Bijeljina camp or Batkovi camp. 4463/

2801. Vlasenica camp: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely the ICRC.) According to the ICRC and UN sources, there is a certain Vlasenica Camp in the region. 4464/ ICRC representatives visited the camp on 21 October 1992 and recorded one prisoner to be there. 4465/

2802. A Serbian response to the events in Vlasenica comes from Mihajlo Bajagi, the Serbian president of the Vlasenica town council. When asked about the whereabouts of the inhabitants from the region, he states that they left the village on their own accord. He agrees that for a period of time some were imprisoned, but that all of these civilians were later exchanged. 4466/

2803. Several reports identify perpetrators said to be involved in activities at these camps and in the region on the whole. 4467/

2804. Police Station, Vlasenica: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely the ICRC.) According to one report, ICRC representatives visited a detention facility at the police station in Vlasenica. The existence of the camp was confirmed on 15 May 1992. No additional information was made available regarding the identities of inmates, the conditions of their detainment nor the length of the facility's existence. 4468/

2805. Prison/Penitentiary, Vlasenica: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely the ICRC.) According to one report, ICRC representatives visited a detention facility at the local prison in Vlasenica. The existence of the camp was confirmed on 29 April 1993. No additional information was made available regarding the identities of inmates, the conditions of their detainment nor the length of the facility's existence. 4469/

2806. Factory: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely the ICRC.) According to one report, ICRC representatives visited a detention facility at an unidentified factory in Vlasenica. The existence of the camp was confirmed on 27 July 1993. No additional information was made available regarding the identities of inmates, the conditions of their detainment nor the length of the facility's existence. 4470/

2807. Muslim-run camps holding Serbs: (The existence of this detention facility has not been corroborated by multiple sources.) There are also allegations of Muslim-run camps in the region. These allegations come from Budimir Kostić, the head of a war crimes commission established by the Yugoslav government. When asked about events taking place in eastern Bosnia, Kostić argued that Serbs had also been imprisoned by Muslims. He insisted that Muslims "initiated whatever happened in Vlasenica by provoking and attacking the Serbs in the first three months of 1992 in several villages in eastern Bosnia." 4471/

89. Zenica

2808. Zenica is a Muslim-held city in central BiH and is located 70 kilometres (45 miles) north-west of Sarajevo. Before the war, the city was a centre for steel production and was a prime example of ethnic diversity and multiculturalism. 4472/ According to a 1991 census, Zenica had a pre-war population of 145,577. It has always had a clear Muslim majority (approximately 55.2 per cent before the war) but Croats and Serbs formed a significant part of the pre-war population (15.6 per cent and 15.5 per cent, respectively). 4473/

2809. Since the outbreak of war, the city has swelled with refugees. It is estimated that approximately 50,000 refugees, the overwhelming majority being Muslim, have fled to Zenica. 4474/ In September 1993, according to the Mayor of Zenica, the city had a population of approximately 197,000, 4475/ although estimates of the city's current population hover around 135,000-145,000.

2810. The city is currently held by BiH Government forces and is considered a safe haven for Muslim refugees. Muslims now form a much higher percentage of the populations, but the local government is still comprised of Muslim's, Croats, and Serbs. 4476/ According to the mayor, there have been no organized expulsions of Serbs and Croats from Zenica. This statement belies the fact that Muslims now comprise a far greater majority of Zenica's population. In addition, he claims that there are no camps in the area; POWs are kept at the Zenica Prison. 4477/

2811. It was reported that on 1 January 1993, Muslim forces launched an attack on the Croats in the Zenica region. Croats living in the area were expelled and Muslims reportedly moved into their homes. On 18 April 1993, an overall assault was launched by the BiH Army against Croatian HVO forces, signalling an end to a loose Muslim-Croat alliance in the region. A battle persisted in the small villages in Zenica commune until 8 June 1993 when Muslim forces took control. It is reported that, as a result, 520 members of the Croat defence forces laid down their arms and were taken prisoner. These combatants were supposedly taken to the Zenica Prison. 4478/

2812. Croats were forced to leave the area. Many Croats who did not cooperate with the mobilization order were "tried" and sent either to battle or to the camps. Seventy of these persons were sent to the Zenica Prison and another 15 were sent to the music school in the centre of Zenica. 4479/

2813. It is reported that several camps or detention facilities are located in the Zenica vicinity. In general, the camps are administered by the BiH Government or Bosnian Muslim forces. Nine locations have been identified as detention centres, and estimates place the total number of persons held over 2,000; although ICRC figures are much lower and some reports claim that there are only five or six detention centres with approximately 450 detainees. 4480/ All identified detention centres are reportedly under Bosnian Muslim control. The following places have been identified as camps: The Zenica Prison, the Zenica Music School, the Bila Stadium, the Coal Mines in Zenica, as well as unidentified facilities in Bilmiše, Zening, Graanica, Arnauti, and Begov Han.

2814. There is no information regarding the possible relationship between these camps and there is little indication that prisoners are moved between facilities. One thing that is clear, however, is that the Zenica Prison is the largest detention facility and the greatest amount of available information concerns this facility. In fact, in tracking the number of prisoners in Zenica, the Zenica Prison is the only facility identified by the ICRC.

2815. Zenica Prison: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by multiple sources, including an official UN source, the US Government and the ICRC.) The most prominent detention facility in the Zenica area is the Zenica Prison (also referred to as the Correction Centre, KP Dom Prison, KPD and the House of Corrections). The facility is under the control of the Muslim Territorial Defence (MTD) forces. The prison is occupied by Croatian and Serbian civilian and military prisoners. The majority of prisoners are likely Serbs.

2816. The prison is divided into five pavilions. Each of these pavilions contains cells measuring five metres by three to four metres. Pavilion five is referred to as the "concentration camp" is used to hold military prisoners and is seemingly the only part of the facility that is visited by the ICRC. 4481/ The prison also has a hospital where prisoners are treated. Some prisoners claim to have been subjected to "ill treatment" by prison guards while in the hospital. 4482/

2817. Prior to the outbreak of war, this facility was used as a maximum security prison for hard core felons. Even during the war, one of the prisons pavilions (Pavilion four) continues to house criminals that were incarcerated before the war.

2818. Reports in the Commission's possession indicate that the camp was in operation before the war began as a correctional facility. The prison probably began its operations as a POW facility in June 1992. Operation seems to have been continuous until at least June 1993; one witness reports that he was released from this facility, in a prisoner exchange on 5 September 1993. 4483/ It is unclear whether the camp is still in operation.

2819. The reports do not indicate the reason for the camp's existence. There are no reports that the facility was used for the purposes of interrogation, systematic torture or execution of any sort. Interestingly, however, one report states that a "military"-style tribunal is housed at the Prison. This tribunal is mainly concerned with determining if prisoners are military or civilian. There is a judge (a Serbian woman who is a professional judge) and a jury. The tribunal applies Yugoslavian law. 4484/

2820. Reports indicate that the Zenica Prison has been used to detain both Serbs and Croats. Serbian authorities estimate that 2,000 Bosnian Serbs are detained at the facility. 4485/ A reporter for the Tanjug news agency estimated that in the fall of 1992 there were 300 Bosnian Serb prisoners (both combatants and non-combatants) who remained in the facility. These prisoners were both combatants and non-combatants; although he estimated that only 20 or so were soldiers. 4486/ Some reports indicate that many Croats were also sent to this facility as a result of an outbreak of hostilities between Croats and Muslims in early 1993. One account claims that 520 members of the Croatian Defence Forces were sent to the prison in April 1993. 4487/ This same report states that 70 Croats are being detained in the Zenica Prison. The ECMM estimates that more than 200 Croats (both military and civilian) are held in the prison. 4488/

2821. Estimates of the number of prisoners vary greatly. The ICRC has indicated a fairly consistent population of 200-300 in the prison. But one report states that while the ICRC visited the facility seven times from June-December 1992, the ICRC was only permitted to visit Pavilion 5 (where military prisoners were kept). It has also been estimated that 300 Bosnian Serbs have been detained in Pavilion 5. 4489/ This figure is consistent with claims that the ICRC was only allowed to visit Pavilion 5. Most of the other prisoners, mainly the civilian non-combatants were in the other pavilions. 4490/ The number of prisoners in the Zenica Prison can be summarized as follows.

2822. On 31 July 1993, Bosnian Serb officials maintained that 270 Serbians were being held in the "Zenica Special Jail". 4491/ It is assumed that this is the same facility as the Zenica Prison discussed herein. Prisoners in the camp are both civilian and military. According to one report, after a group of Serbians was captured, women and children under 10 were not taken to the prison. It is not at all clear whether women and children are detained at this facility. No explicit mention is made of a female detainee.

2823. A Tanjug news agency reporter who was confined in the prison for 80 days reported that the camp conditions were horrible. Cells were generally damp and there was a lack of sheets and blankets. He also noted that the food was poor. 4492/ Prisoners are given one kilogram of bread every day to be shared by 18 prisoners. Some days the prisoners were given tea, and it is alleged that the guards would put detergent in the tea. 4493/

2824. Torture and beatings were routine occurrences at the Zenica Prison. According to a Tanjug news agency reporter who was detained there for over 80 days, almost all of the prisoners (90 per cent) were subjected to torture. He asserts that combatants were subjected to the worst beatings. 4494/ According to another report, every other day, two or three prisoners would be taken by groups of five to six Muslim men. The men were typically young and were often drunk. The prisoners were handcuffed to metal rings on the floor and were then beaten and kicked. 4495/ A United States Department of State report contains the allegation of a 29 year old Serbian civilian who claims to have been beaten every 10 minutes for 96 hours; he also claims that the food was deliberately contaminated. 4496/

2825. Additional allegations concern mistreatment in the Prison hospital committed by guards. 4497/ Finally, it has been alleged that an unconfirmed number of Serbian prisoners were taken from the prison to an iron mill factory. These prisoners were allegedly thrown into the furnace at the factory. 4498/

2826. Very little information is available regarding the individuals who ran the camp and committed violations. The commander of the prison is a named man of the MTD. He is not alleged to have taken part in any beatings or torture, but he was often present and a witness to the beatings. It is also alleged that Muslim refugees in Zenica (from Jajce or Travnik) would come to the prison and verbally harass and physically assault Serbian prisoners. 4499/

2827. Zenica Music School: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a multiple sources, including an official UN source, the ICRC and the ECMM.) The only other camp in the Zenica area that has been the subject of detailed allegations is the music school in the centre of the city. 4500/ Like the Zenica Prison, this facility is under the control of Muslim forces. The music school is believed to be controlled by the MOS, a branch of the Muslim 7 Brigade. This facility has been used to hold Croats.

2828. The only detailed description of the facility comes from a Croatian man, "Mr. X". 4501/ He was arrested by military police and taken to the music school. When he arrived there, he was not registered but he was assigned a personal number.

2829. He identified three areas of the music school where he was detained. He identified two places where he was primarily held: 1) the cellar of the building (held 45 days without any light); and 2) the attic of the building (12 to 15 days). In addition to these places, he was interrogated and beaten for hours at a time on the third floor of the building.

2830. Based on the testimony of this witness, the camp operated between, at least, April 1993 and June 1993. 4502/ It is unclear whether the camp is still in operation.

2831. No information suggests that women were held at this facility. In addition, there is no indication that persons other than Croats were held at the music school. Three reports suggest a total number of detainees. First, in his statement, Mr. X states that he was in contact with 46 prisoners. He does not specify if all of the prisoners were Croats. Second, a document from the Zenica Centre for Research (dated August 1993 to September 1993) asserts that 15 Croats were detained in the music school. Third, the Croatian Information Centre claims that 1,500 Croatian civilians are held in the music school.

2832. Mr. X reported that he was detained in a room without light for 45 days and that the military police in control of the facility played music at all hours so that the prisoners could not sleep. He was not given water for bathing for 25 days. Lastly, Mr. X was not fed during his first week of detention. A Croatian Catholic Priest in Zenica has indicated that food distribution was unable to reach Croatian detainees in the music school. 4503/

2833. Beatings and torture were reportedly also regular occurrences at the music school. According to Mr. X he was often beaten (with shovel handles, police batons and phone cables) and tortured during interrogation. Moreover, he and other prisoners were frequently removed from the cellar at night so that soldiers returning from the front could kick them and beat them with rifle butts. No information was made available with regard to who the individual in command of this camp or those responsible for violations.

2834. Bila Stadium: (The existence of this detention facility has not been corroborated by multiple sources.) The Association of Serbs from BiH has identified the Bila Stadium as a camp for Serbs. They claim the camp is under the control of the Croatian Armed Forces, the Croatian Army, or paramilitary Muslim forces. 4504/ No other information is available concerning this facility.

2835. Zenica Coal Mines: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by neutral source, namely the ECMM.) One report states that POWs were moved from Bugojno to Zenica where they are imprisoned in coal mines. 4505/ No other information is available concerning this facility.

2836. Other Zenica Locations: (The existence of these detention facilities have not been corroborated by multiple sources.) Other locations in the Zenica area have been identified as places of detention. Apart from this mere identification, no other information is available. The locations are Bilmiše, Zening, Graanica, Arnauti and Begov Han; 4506/ the retirement home in Zenica; 4507/ and the Zening Building and Nemila are both identified as "possible" locations. 4508/

2837. Factory: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely the ICRC.) According to one report, ICRC representatives visited a detention facility at an unidentified factory in Zenica. The existence of the camp was confirmed on 24 September 1992. No additional information was made available regarding the identities of inmates, the conditions of their detainment nor the length of the facility's existence. 4509/

2838. Hospital: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely the ICRC.) According to one report, ICRC representatives visited a detention facility at an unidentified hospital in Zenica. The existence of the camp was confirmed on 26 April 1993. No additional information was made available regarding the identities of inmates, the conditions of their detainment nor the length of the facility's existence. 4510/

2839. School: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely the ICRC.) According to one report, ICRC representatives visited a detention facility at an unidentified school in Zenica. The existence of the camp was confirmed on 16 May 1993. No additional information was made available regarding the identities of inmates, the conditions of their detainment nor the length of the facility's existence. 4511/

2840. Military Prison: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely the ICRC.) According to one report, ICRC representatives visited a detention facility at the military prison in Zenica. The existence of the camp was confirmed on 18 February 1993. No additional information was made available regarding the identities of inmates, the conditions of their detention nor the length of the facility's existence. 4512/

90. Žep•e

2841. This municipality is located in central BiH, between the counties of Zenica and Tesli. According to the 1991 Yugoslav census, the municipality of Žep•e had a population of 22,840. Of that number, 47.2 per cent were Muslim, 10 per cent were Serbs, 39.8 per cent were Croats, and the remaining 3 per cent were described as "others".

2842. Žep•e Warehouse: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely an official UN source.) In Žep•e, HVO assembled all civilians and took them to a warehouse called Nova Trgovina. 4513/

2843. The men of military age were separated from the other detainees and sent to a school. The remaining detainees spent a week in the warehouse. Approximately 1,200 detainees had no food for two days, no toilet and slept on the concrete floor. The HVO soldiers did not mistreat the detainees, however, on occasion the soldiers would fire their guns over the heads of the detainees. 4514/ When released, the detainees were ordered to walk to Zenica. 4515/

2844. Žep•e School: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely an official UN source.) Muslim men who were separated from the other detainees at the Žep•e Warehouse were taken to a local school. 4516/

2845. The detainees in uniform were beaten by the HVO soldiers. The other detainees were also mistreated. Many of them were reported to have been forced to dig trenches on the front. 4517/

2846. Later, the detainees were reportedly taken to Tesli, Doboј, and Banja Luka. 4518/

91. Zvornik

2847. According to the 1991 Yugoslav census, the municipality of Zvornik had a population of 81,111. Of that number, 59.4 per cent or 48,208 were Muslim, and 38 per cent or 30,839 were Serbs, .1 per cent were Croats and the remaining 2.5 per cent were described as "others". The population of the city of Zvornik was 14,660. Of that number, 61 percent were Muslim, 29 per cent were Serb, 5 per cent were Croat, and 9.3 per cent described themselves as "other". 4519/

2848. Zvornik is a strategically important border town. It is located on the Drina river in BiH and situated directly across from Serbia. 4520/ BiH and Serbia are linked at Zvornik by two bridges, a road bridge and a railroad bridge. Control of Zvornik meant securing important logistical territory between Serbia and Sarajevo. 4521/

2849. The military attack on Zvornik commenced on 8 April 1992. According to witnesses, photographs and other sources, the attack was carried out from both BiH and Serbian territories. 4522/ Despite negotiations which went underway almost immediately between officials in Serbia and BiH, efforts to thwart further aggression were unsuccessful.

2850. Military operations focused first on the medieval fortress town of Kulagrad. After the fall of Kulagrad on 26 April 1992, the town of Divi• was attacked. Divi• was almost exclusively inhabited by Muslims. The attacks on Divi• were also conducted from both sides of the Drina river. 4523/

2851. After the fall of Kulagrad, Serb forces began to reform the local administration. 4524/ Reportedly efforts were simultaneously put in place to rid the area of its Muslim citizenry. 4525/ Muslims were required to register with the new local administration. 4526/

2852. Thereafter, forced deportations began as well as compulsory transfers of property. 4527/ Muslims were issued identification cards and documentation permitting them to relocate as part of a process called compulsory assignments. 4528/ The Muslim citizens of Zvornik were bused to locations as close as Mali Zvornik--across the river, and as far away as Subotica--which is located at the Serbian-Hungarian border. 4529/

2853. On 19 May 1992, combined JNA, Serb paramilitary, and Arkan's forces occupied Zvornik and Mali Zvornik. They reportedly abused and killed some 1,000 Muslims. 4530/ The remaining Muslims and non-Serbs were relegated to concentration camps and detention facilities throughout the area.

2854. To date some 28 detention facilities have been identified in the Zvornik area: nine in the city of Zvornik, seven in the village of Karakaj, two in the village of •elopek, two in Drinja•a, two in Divi•, and one each in the villages of Pilice, Caparde, Baljkovica, Salihovi•i, Liplje, and Novo Selo. 4531/

2855. Stadium in Zvornik: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by multiple sources, including the Austrian Mission.) Following the outbreak of fighting in Bijeljina, Serb forces moved south into the villages of Karakaj and Divi•. Thereafter the largely Muslim population of Divi• on the bank of the Drina was prepared by the controlling Serb forces for mass deportation. 4532/

2856. The women and children were sent to free territories and the men were taken by buses to different villages and towns in the occupied territories to be exchanged for captured Serb soldiers. 4533/ The men were eventually detained in the Zvornik city stadium for several days, during which time they were subjected to severe physical mistreatment. Reportedly those who survived at this location were later taken to detention facilities in Karakaj. 4534/ There are other reports that refers to a camp in the Stadium "Bratstvo" in Zvornik. 4535/ It is unclear if this is the same stadium.

2857. Kindergarten: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely the US Government.) According to one report, a Muslim man was arrested by Serb police on 14 May 1992 and taken to a kindergarten on the western side of Zvornik. 4536/ He stated that one of his Serb captors beat him with a stick for an hour, while another pointed a gun at him and a third rifled through his documents. The three perpetrators wore white belts and camouflage fatigues. They were reportedly from Serbia. 4537/

2858. Courthouse: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely the US Government.) According to one report, although several individuals were detained at the courthouse facility, the guards at this location in Zvornik did not molest or mistreat the inmates. The report did suggest, however, that several soldiers from outside the facility were permitted entry to the facility and allowed to beat the inmates at random. 4538/ Victims were reportedly selected quickly, beaten and kicked--sometimes to the point of unconsciousness. The inmates were transferred to a neighbouring house on 4 June. 4539/ This camp is also referred to in another report. 4540/

2859. Unknown House in Zvornik: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely the US Government.) On 4 June the prisoners from the courthouse location and an additional 120 other Muslim inmates from the •elopek cultural centre were transferred to a detention facility at this undisclosed location. 4541/ Reportedly beatings occurred daily and were quite severe. The information suggests that members of Šešelj's unit participated in abusing several Muslim men at this facility over a period of some six weeks of detention. 4542/ A group of Bosnian Serb "police" also participated in the prisoner mistreatment and abuse. Reportedly on 15 July, most of the inmates were transferred to a detention facility in Batkovi near Bijeljina. 4543/

2860. Central Prison: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely the US Committee for Refugees.) This was reportedly an old prison and by one account, did not even have a name. It is reportedly located near the Novi Izvor company. 4544/

2861. One ex-detainee stated that he was among 174 men detained at the stadium facility who were made to walk to the old prison. Upon arrival, the detainees were offered the chance to join forces with the Serbs. They were then taken into one large room on the second floor of the facility. 4545/ He recalled seeing some 200 prisoners detained in a room on the first floor. He and the others were held at this facility for two days. Eleven of the men were separated and reportedly sent on work detail and the remaining 163 were transferred to a theater in •elopek. 4546/

2862. According to a Bosnian Muslim man, he and 183 other Muslims were detained at the central prison on 29 June 1992. 4547/ The prisoners were beaten daily. Reportedly every two to three hours, Serb guards entered the cells and removed as many as 10 inmates at a time for interrogation. The report suggest that throughout the interrogation the inmates were physically abused by four or five guards at a time. 4548/

2863. The guards reportedly extracted several inmates and subjected them to mistreatment--beating them with rifle butts, axes, or shovel handles. 4549/ Those inmates who did not return were believed to have died as a result of the beatings. The reports suggest the existence of a systematic prisoner transfer program. Routinely, the arrival of new prisoners resulted in the transferral of an equal number of resident detainees to the Batkovi facility. 4550/

2864. Hotel Drina: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely the Ludwig Boltzmann Institute of Human Rights.) This hotel reportedly served as one of the quarters for the police. Allegedly various acts of mistreatment and abuse were reported to have occurred here. 4551/ Sources are silent as to the duration of its existence, the length of the inmates internment as well as the conditions or treatment of those detained here.

2865. Hospital "5th of July": (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely the Ludwig Boltzmann Institute of Human Rights.) Reportedly Arkan held all of the patients at this hospital hostage in mid-April 1992. 4552/ He reportedly did so with the intention of retrieving the remains of his brother-in-law. Patients and hospital staff were often abused by Arkan. 4553/ Many were forced to act as blood donors. Arkan also took individuals off the street and forced them to give blood, some reportedly did not survive the process. 4554/

2866. SUP/Opština (Municipal Police Force): (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely the Ludwig Boltzmann Institute of Human Rights.) An undisclosed number of individuals were purportedly detained at this location. Reportedly interrogations, abuses and killings occurred here. 4555/

2867. "Novi Izvor"-owned Building: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely US Department of State.) According to one report, several citizens from the village of Divi• were collected in an office building in Zvornik owned by a company called "Novi Izvor". The citizens were detained at this facility for 36 hours and were reportedly given regular food and water. 4556/

2868. "Novi Standard" Shoe Factory: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely the Ludwig Boltzmann Institute of Human Rights.) Novi Standard was reportedly a new building of the shoe factory complex in Karakaj. Shoe production had discontinued at the time of the attack on the region and this location initially served as headquarters for the Serbian police. 4557/ Allegedly Arkan, Šešelj, and "volunteers" from Loznica were also accommodated at this facility. One report refers to a camp in a Karakaj factory. 4558/ It is unclear if this is the same factory.

2869. This facility, located in the northern region of Zvornik, was then converted into holding areas for Muslim prisoners following the creation and institution of a mass deportation program. Individuals were reportedly detained at this location for several days and subjected to severe mistreatment. 4559/ This factory reportedly existed as an internment facility from June 1991 through August 1992. 4560/

2870. According to another report, at one time or another, some 4,000 individuals--including women and children--were detained at the shoe factory in Karakaj. The conditions at the facility were notably severe. According to one former inmate, he and seven other boys were made to share one kilogram of bread, a small can of meat and a half liter of water every other day. 4561/ The boys were also forced to watch as the "•etniks" beat the male inmates with metal and wooden sticks, as well as having to assist their "etnik" captors during bouts of robbing, looting and pillaging in neighbouring villages. 4562/

2871. According to the same young witnesses, there was a woman who belonged to Arkan's troops, who, on one occasion, killed a 4 year old boy by throwing him with such force that he died from the blow to his head. 4563/ On still another occasion, this same woman disrobed and ordered four men to have sex with her. When they refused, she took them outside and reportedly shot and killed each one. 4564/

2872. Technical/Engineering School in Karakaj: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by multiple sources however none among them are neutral.) According to one witness, he and some 700 Muslim citizens were detained in the building of the Technical school. Their containment rooms were small rooms and lacked sufficient air, which reportedly resulted in the suffocating death of some 20 individuals. 4565/ In another report, a former inmate said that about 400 people were killed while he was there. 4566/ This camp is also reported in a list of camps. 4567/

2873. The witness reported that the inmates were beaten repeatedly, many were constantly covered in blood. In the witness' recollection, the number of detainees steadily decreased. 4568/ Reportedly the "•etniks" came and occasionally removed groups of people, allegedly for exchange in Pale. However, following the removal of each group the remaining inmates could hear the sounds of rifle fire and screams. 4569/ The day came when the witness was among the group to be exchanged. The "•etniks" reportedly forced everyone to line up against a wall and began shooting. 4570/ The witness/victim was fortuitously spared injury or death, managing to crawl to safety when the "•etniks" left to assemble the next group of inmates. Allegedly some 400 individuals were killed in this manner before the witness' escape. 4571/

2874. "Novi Izvor": (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by multiple sources, including the Boltzmann Institute of Human Rights and the UK Mission.) Novi Izvor was located in the village of Karakaj and consisted of two plants: "Kamenolom" which was a quarry and "Ciglana" which was a brick factory. 4572/ Both continued to operate throughout the conflict in the region. Reportedly captured Muslim individuals were forced to work alongside regular Serb employees in three shifts. In early June, some 70 inmates were interned here. 4573/ Some had been detained at this facility since mid-April and subjected to a variety of abuses. 4574/

2875. One report says that a source saw about 20 males of all ages, detained in a clothing store in the factory. They were threatened with guns and verbally abused and made to do "military" type physical training. They were also made to unload trucks which carried heavy building material. In July 1992, the source passed the factory again and saw two of the men he had seen in April of 1992, one he believed had lost about 30 kilogram in weight. 4575/

2876. JNA Barracks at Karakaj: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely US Department of State.) This facility was reportedly used exclusively by regular JNA units as a detention facility. The report suggests it's existence from June 1991 through August 1992. 4576/ Sources are silent as to information regarding ethnicity or treatment of those interned at this location.

2877. "Alhos" Textile Plant: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely the US Government.) "Alhos" was a garment and textile factory. This facility was initially used as accommodations for the police, circa 6 April 1992. 4577/ According to a witness detained at the kindergarten, he and another prisoner were driven from that location to the textile plant situated some five minutes away. 4578/ The existence of this camp is also referred to in another report. 4579/

2878. It was his impression that the two of them were the only inmates at this location. They were reportedly detained here for several days in a rather small room which was, he believed, stained with the blood of past prisoners. 4580/ Although the facility contained quite a few Serb soldiers, the two were reportedly not abused until 16 May, at which time they were subjected to severe beatings for several hours. 4581/

2879. Following the initial phase of beatings, a short reprieve was given at which time the victims were made to clean their own blood from the floor and walls. Thereafter the beatings resumed. 4582/ According to the witness, the beatings were so severe that "both his cheek bones were smashed and the entire bone structure enclosing his upper teeth were loosened so much that his teeth protruded from his mouth". 4583/ He was released from the textile plant on 20 May and transferred to the courthouse in Zvornik. 4584/

2880. Ekonomija: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely the Ludwig Boltzmann Institute of Human Rights.) This location was reportedly an agricultural cooperative. It was located in a rather secluded area of Karakaj and, as a consequence, its buildings served as death camp. 4585/ The facility consisted of stables, storehouses and a slaughter room. Reportedly a chamber existed which was used primarily for the "butchering" of inmates. 4586/ This location was reportedly populated by individuals from the Zvornik area as well as members of the Croatian National Guard. According to witness statements, this may well have been the "worst" camp in the area. 4587/

2881. Glinica Factory: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by multiple sources, including the ICRC and the Austrian Mission.) This facility was the site of a large aluminum factory in the village of Karakaj. One of the empty halls of the factory was reportedly used to contain Muslim prisoners as well as for purposes of interrogation. 4588/

2882. Movie Theater in •elopek: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by multiple sources, including the US Committee for Refugees.) •elopek is located approximately six kilometres north of Zvornik, on the border between BiH and Serbia. 4589/

2883. On 29 May 1992, 174 male citizens of Divi• were reportedly loaded onto buses and transported to a movie theater which was part of the local cultural centre (Dom Kulture). 4590/ The facility was established in a one story building which was constructed from brick and painted a cream colour. The building's windows were reportedly covered to block out the sunlight. 4591/

2884. On 10 June 1992, one of the Serbs removed seven pairs of fathers and sons from among the inmates. The pairs were forced on to the theater stage and made to disrobe. Once naked, the pairs were forced to perform fellatio on one another with the other male prisoners looking on from the audience. 4592/ Several other abuses were reportedly occurring simultaneously. In one incident, two men were taken from the audience, brutally beaten and then stabbed. 4593/ In another incident, a young boy was made to identify his father, after which, a Serb soldier, put a rifle in the boy's mouth and killed him as his father looked on. 4594/

2885. This same Serb soldier then turned his semi-automatic rifle onto those on stage and those seated in the audience. This behaviour resulted in the death of 10 men. 4595/

2886. On 27 June, this man allegedly forced 140 men to line up against the theater's perimeter wall and attempted to shoot each one, one after another. By the time it was over, he had managed to kill 20 men and wound an additional 20 others. 4596/

2887. In another incident, he cut off the ear of one inmate and the penis off another and then forced the victims to eat their severed body parts. 4597/ In a related report, this man was said to have demanded money and valuables from inmates and on one occasion beat the witness' brother with an ax handle, breaking both the victim's legs and one of his arms. 4598/ He then carved four cyrillic c's into the victim with a knife and when the witness began to cry, this man struck him and made him lick his brother's blood off of the knife blade. 4599/

2888. One report identified several of the Serbian perpetrators including the president of the community of Zvornik. 4600/ He was reportedly the "individual who was most instrumental in" the organization of the •elopek detention facility and the other Serb facilities in the area. 4601/

2889. Village home in •elopek: (The existence of this detention facility has not been corroborated by multiple sources.) According to one report, Muslims from the Zvornik region were detained in a concentration camp established "in the building of the village home in •elopek". 4602/ Specific information regarding its operation and control was not provided by the report. 4603/ Another report refers to a camp in a farmer's home at •elopek. 4604/ It is unclear if this is the same camp.

2890. Unknown facility in Pilice: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by multiple sources however none among them are neutral.) According to one report several Muslim citizens from the village of Latva in

Zvornik were taken captive by Serb extremists and taken to Pilice where they were detained and severely abused. 4605/ On 8 June 1992, some 64 prisoners were separated and taken to a house near the River Drina. All the inmates were reportedly killed by the extremists from the village of Pilice. 4606/ A list of camps reported the existence of a camp in the village of Pilice. 4607/

2891. Lumber Factory in Caparde: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely the US Department of State.) This village is located just north-east of Zvornik, between Zvornik and Tuzla. According to one report Bosnian Muslim women from the county of Brko were detained at this facility for an undisclosed period of time. 4608/ Forty of the women held at this site were reportedly taken outside of the facility and raped by members of Arkan's troops. 4609/

2892. Municipal Centre: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by multiple sources however none among them are neutral.) According to one report, "•etniks" invaded the villages of Kostjerevo and Drinja•a. Muslim homes were looted and burned and the residents detained in the municipal centre. 4610/ The men were allegedly severely beaten for hours at a time, so much so that following the beatings, the walls were covered with blood. 4611/

2893. Reportedly some 35 Muslim men were killed by "•etniks" behind the building. Boys under 15 were taken from this location in the direction of Zvornik and 150 women and children were reportedly taken in the direction of Tuzla. 4612/

2894. Hall of the Culture Centre (Dom Kulture): 4613/ (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by multiple sources, including the International Solidarity Network and the New York Times.) According to a Muslim female victim, members of "etnik" groups from Serbia and Zvornik were responsible for collecting the citizens of the villages of Drinja•a and Kostijarevo and detaining them in the hall of the cultural centre in Drinja•a. 4614/ The male inmates were reportedly beaten for four to five hours. Reportedly 35 men aged 17-70 were taken from the culture centre and shot. It is presumed that no one survived the shooting. 4615/

2895. Additionally, women were reportedly raped and otherwise physically mistreated. Relief came when, on 31 May, some 150 women and children were transferred to Tuzla for prisoner exchange. 4616/ Reportedly on 27 or 28 June 1992, a 31 year-old Serb soldier opened fire on a group of Muslim civilians detained at this facility. Reportedly 16 civilians were killed and another 20 were wounded. The soldier was allegedly a member of the Serb paramilitary "Yellow Wasps". 4617/

2896. Vidikovac Hotel in Divi•: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by multiple sources, including the US Committee for Refugees.) Divi• was primarily a Muslim village on the Drina River. At the start of the conflict many Muslims fled Zvornik and sought refuge in this village. Between 8 April and 25 April, the war was contained in the north-east corner of BiH. 4618/ Divi•, which is just south of Zvornik, was brought into the conflict on 26 April. It was then that Serb forces began shelling the village. Thereafter, on 27 April, Serb tanks from the other side of the Drina river joined in the aggression and began firing on the village. 4619/

2897. Following the occupation of the village, and the renaming of the village to Sveti Stefan, the Vidikovac hotel was apparently converted by Dragan's units into a temporary military dormitory. 4620/

2898. In one account, a Muslim civilian was arrested by three Serb paramilitaries in nearby Mali Zvornik and brought to and detained at the hotel. In the witness' estimation, he was, at that time, the only prisoner detained at this location. 4621/

2899. According to the witness, 10 of Dragan's men surrounded him and began interrogating him as well as threatening to kill him or rape his wife and daughter. Thereafter he was beaten and placed into a small cubicle in the hotel's basement. 4622/

2900. According to his description, the basement cubicle was completely dark and the floor was muddy and wet with blood and urine. There was also excrement along the walls. 4623/ The inmate was later threatened and released by a popular singer, Pero Jović. 4624/

2901. Divič Stadium: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by multiple sources, including the ICRC.) According to one report, an Imam was taken prisoner in the Divič Mosque, hung by his hands and beaten with iron rods. 4625/ He was later removed and taken to the stadium along with 400 other Muslims who, sometime later, were all reportedly moved to a concentration camp in Karakaj. 4626/

2902. Baljkovica Camp: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by multiple sources however none among them are neutral.) According to one report 4627/ a rape camp was established by "Četniks" at this location just near Zvornik. According to one victim, "Četniks" captured her and her grandmother on a road outside her village. 4628/ Her grandmother was killed by the captors and the witness was taken to this rape/detention facility. 4629/

2903. She was detained in a room with some 29 other women and raped every other day. Allegedly a nurse came to the camp each month to determine who among the women was pregnant. 4630/ Those found to be at least three months pregnant were removed from the camp. The witness was detained at this site for five months before being removed. For reasons unknown to the victim, she was released by the roadside while the other pregnant women were transported elsewhere. 4631/

2904. School in Salihovići: (The existence of this detention facility has not been corroborated by multiple sources.) According to a former detainee, she and four of her relatives (two of them children) were walking from Kamenica to Zvornik when they were stopped by a car containing four "Četniks" who forced the five to undress. 4632/ When the witness refused, she was detained and later transported by truck to a camp established in this school near Jasenica and Liplje. 4633/

2905. Reportedly some 470 men, women and children were detained at this location. There were 50 to 60 teenage girls interned here who were raped immediately. 4561/ After two days, all the women in the camp were subjected to rape. 4562/ All detainees were systematically robbed of their possessions and those who refused to co-operate were beaten and killed. 4563/

2906. According to another report, after the fall of Kamenica, in May or June of 1992, 470 people, primarily women, were held in a camp in a school near Salihovići for some 15 to 20 days. 4564/ Reportedly all of the women were raped and many among them subjected to other severe abuses. 4565/ In one incident, a plastic bottle of motor oil was burned and the melted plastic poured over the bodies of the inmates. 4566/

2907. The report suggests that at some point the BiH Army overthrew the resident Serb forces and successfully obtained the release of individuals detained here. 4567/

2908. Bordello in Liplje: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely a Press Source.) Liplje is a primarily Muslim village near the city of Zvornik. It contained fewer than 500 residents. 4568/ The majority of the incidents reported from this area occurred at the end of May 1992 when more than 400 of the villagers were detained in a large house formerly owned by a prominent Muslim. 4569/

2909. In one account, an 18 year-old Muslim girl was raped consecutively for five nights, each night by three different Serbian men. On each occasion, the men stripped naked and two of them held her down while the third raped her. 4570/ Thereafter, they switched places allowing each rapist an opportunity to watch the others. On the sixth night of raping, the "Četniks" forced the victim's father to watch as they raped her. 4571/ Her father was then taken to a toilet and hung for 24 hours by his neck, legs, and hands until a neighbour rescued him. According to the report, almost every women in the village was raped. 4572/

2910. In another incident, a woman reported having been similarly detained and raped twice nightly for 10 consecutive nights. 4573/ In another incident, a 17 year-old was raped and strangled to death. 4574/ In yet another, an 18 year-old was raped by four men in one night and then every night thereafter. 4575/

2911. Mosque in Novo Selo: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely a Press Source.) According to one source, Serb troops reportedly rounded up some 150 Muslim women, children and elderly and forced them into a Mosque at gunpoint. 4576/ The source continues saying that the local Imam, was ordered to desecrate the religious establishment. The Serbs then ordered him to cross himself, eat pork and have sexual intercourse with a teenaged girl. 4577/ When the Imam refused all of these commands, he was severely beaten and cut with knives. 4578/

2912. "Gathering Points": (The existence of this type of facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely the Austrian Mission.) Serb forces were alleged to have used various facilities and locations as "gathering points" to collect and organize prisoners. 4579/ Among these locations are: the common village building in Drinjača, elementary schools in Liplje and Snagovo and mosques in Djulići and Klisa. 4580/ No information regarding the treatment, conditions nor the duration of internment at these locations was provided.

B. Croatia

1. Beli Manastir

2913. The county of Beli Manastir is located in eastern Croatia bordering Hungary and Vojvodina. According to the 1991 census, the pre-war population was 54,160. At that time, the population was 41.7 per cent Croatian, 25.5 per cent Serbian, 16.5 per cent Hungarian, 8.4 per cent was referred to as "other" and 7.9 per cent was referred to as "Yugoslav". 4581/

2914. Beli Manastir: (The existence of this detention facility has not been corroborated by multiple sources.) Beli Manastir is located in north-eastern Croatia in the Baranja Region. Detention facilities were reported in the opština by several sources. 4582/ A Croatian woman reported that her husband, a civilian, was detained by "Četniks" in Beli Manastir for 10 days at the end of September, 1991. The woman was allowed to visit her husband at the facility, thanks to the intervention of a Serbian colleague of her daughter. As far as the woman was aware, 38 people were detained at this location and were later taken to Borovo Selo. She also reported that her husband was detained for one day in Kozarac headquarters and Karanac police station, both of which are located in Beli Manastir. 4583/

2915. Beli Manastir Prison: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely the ICRC.) The ICRC reported the Beli Manastir prison as a place of detention in a report received on 27 May 1994. The ICRC representatives first visited the detention facility on 29 April 1992. 4584/

2916. Dunan Storage Complex: (The existence of this detention facility has not been corroborated by multiple sources.) The Dunan Storage complex, located at the west end of Beli Manastir, was reported as a detention facility. The maximum capacity of this facility was reported to be 2,500 prisoners. 4585/

2917. Beli Manastir Police Station: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely the ECMM.) The police station was located in the centre of Beli Manastir and was reported as a detention facility. At its maximum capacity, the facility could contain 300 prisoners. A former detainee, held there for 43 days, reported on the conditions at the facility. The witness was reportedly detained on 27 November 1991 and released on 7 January 1992. By his account, during the first three weeks, the prisoners were contained three to a cell. The cells measured approximately 1.2 metres by 1.8 metres. For the three weeks that followed, the witness claims that nine people were detained in a cell which measured three metres by four metres. The prisoners were allegedly fed on an inconsistent basis, receiving only one meal per day. On scattered occasions, the detainees were served hot meals (for example, goulash). Toilet facilities were available however the witness claimed that prisoners were beaten when they asked to use the facilities. There were allegedly no showers; washing was not permitted, nor for that matter was shaving. The prisoners were reportedly infested with lice. 4586/

2918. Inmates were allegedly beaten while in detention. One man was reportedly beaten to death. Another had his ear cut off. There were reports of civilian gangs from outside the facility coming into the prison and physically abusing the detainees. The witness claimed that the prisoners were forced to do heavy manual labour; including unloading coal wagons. According to the witness, he and others were threatened on several occasions with execution. He was reportedly taken to court, but no charges were ever brought against him. He also claimed that ICRC representatives did not visit this facility. 4587/

2919. Jagodnjak: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by multiple sources, including Amnesty International.) There are several reports of a detention facility in Jagodnjak, Beli Manastir. 4588/ One source reported that the detention facility was located in the football stadium at the south-west edge of the city. The facility was allegedly opened on 15 September 1991 and contained approximately 1,500 prisoner in March 1992. Prisoners were reportedly detained at this site temporarily before being transferred to either Beli Manastir or Borovo Selo. 4589/

2920. Police Station, Darda: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely the ICRC.) The ICRC listed the police station in Darda as a place of detention and first visited the facility on 6 June 1992. 4590/

2. Benkovac

2921. The county of Benkovac is located in south-western Croatia. According to the 1991 census, the population of Benkovac was 33,079. At that time, the population was 40.6 per cent Croatian, 57.4 per cent Serbian, with the remaining 2 per cent referred to as "others". 4591/

2922. Unidentified Benkovac camp: (The existence of this detention facility has not been corroborated by multiple sources.) Sources reported a detention facility located in Benkovac run by Serbian paramilitary forces holding detainees from Croatia. 4592/

2923. Benkovac na Kozari: (The existence of this detention facility has not been corroborated by multiple sources.) According to another source, women were sexually abused in a detention facility run by Serbs in Benkovac na Kozari. 4593/

2924. Benkovac Army Barracks: (The existence of this detention facility has not been corroborated by multiple sources.) It was reported that on 18 November 1991, 84 civilians from the village of Škabrnje in Zadar county, of which 17 were children under the age of 10, were taken by masked "četniks" to an army barracks in Benkovac. They were abused and threatened with death. They were then moved to a kindergarten. The only male among them was interrogated. 4594/

2925. Kindergarten, Benkovac: (The existence of this detention facility has not been corroborated by multiple sources.) Approximately 25 Croatian women and children from Škabrnje were reported to have been captured during an attack on their village by "Četniks". They were allegedly held in a kindergarten in Benkovac for one night before being taken to Pristeg. In Pristeg they joined another group of imprisoned women and children and were then released. While detained at the kindergarten they were verbally abused and accused of being "Ustaše" and making pearls out of childrens' bones. They were also allegedly forced to watch Belgrade television. 4595/

2926. According to another report, 84 civilians were arrested in Škabrnje on 18 November 1991 by masked "četniks" and taken to an army barracks in Benkovac. They were then moved to a an unspecified kindergarten. 4596/

2927. JNA Barracks, Benkovac: (The existence of this detention facility has not been corroborated by multiple sources.) Between 18 and 20 November 1991, members of the JNA, armed paramilitary forces, and the authorities of Serbian Krajina reportedly occupied the village of Skabrnje, west of Benkovac. The surviving Croatian civilians were allegedly detained in a JNA barracks in Benkovac for one night. They were interrogated and battered by the guards. The next morning some were released in Pristeg, and others reportedly were transferred to Knin for detention. 4597/

3. Bjelovar

2928. The county of Bjelovar is located in northern Croatia. According to the 1991 census, the population was 65,773. At that time, the population was 80.1 per cent Croatian, 8.9 per cent Serbian, 7 per cent referred to as "other", and the remaining 4 per cent classified as "Yugoslav". 4598/

2929. Unidentified Detention Facility, Bjelovar: (The existence of this detention facility has not been corroborated by multiple sources.) Croatian forces allegedly maintained a detention centre in Bjelovar. 4599/

2930. A parish priest in Koprivnica was allegedly arrested and detained by members of the Croatian armed forces and Croatian authorities on an unspecified date in 1992. He was first in "preventive" detention in Bjelovar and was then transferred to Osijek. While detained there, he was mistreated and physically abused, as a result of which he allegedly suffered substantial physical injury. Although he was a civilian, he was reportedly exchanged as a prisoner of war for Croatian soldiers. 4600/

2931. Bjelovar Prison: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by multiple sources, including the ICRC and the UN Special Rapporteur.) On 2 October 1991 Several members of the Croatian National Guard (ZNG) removed six detained JNA members from cell number two of the Bjelovar prison and took them to the forest near a farm for bull calf feeding owned by Josip Kiš at Veliko Korenovo. There the JNA soldiers were shot and the bodies buried in the refuse area. 4601/

2932. On 11 October 1991, a Serbian member of the Territorial Defence was detained by members of the Ministry of Interior of the Republic of Croatia. The report indicated that he was held in prisons in Lipik and Bjelovar from October to mid-November. He was beaten and threatened with facial mutilation and death. His ear was cut with a knife and the soles of his feet burned. The source does not indicate which prison this treatment occurred in. The prisoner was exchanged on 8 November 1991. 4602/

2933. The alleged perpetrators included two reported ZNG members. 4603/

2934. Twenty-eight Serb men were allegedly arrested in the village of Imsovac in the municipality of Daruvar by a Ministry of Interior member and local HDZ committee members on 19 February 1992 and taken to Bjelovar prison. 4604/ The prisoners were subjected to physical maltreatment and one was taken out to a mock trial. He was forced to dig his own grave, and shots were then fired above his head. 4605/

2935. On 23 June 1993 Team ECLO West, Daruvar learned that the Serb Milicija incarcerated a Croatian truck driver who they wanted to exchange for three Serbs held in the Bjelovar prison. 4606/

2936. The President of the Working Group on Arbitrary Detention was able to visit Bjelovar prison where he interviewed two prisoners who were captured on 5 August 1992. The prisoners were subjected to physical mistreatment which included beating, electric shock, mock execution, burning with cigarettes, and burning of the beard of one of the prisoners. They were first abused by the local police and later by the military police. The same prison officials duly registered all evidence of physical abuse and provided all necessary medical care. 4607/

2937. ICRC delegates reportedly visited this prison location on 11 October 1991. 4608/

2938. Police Station, Bjelovar: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely the ICRC.) According to one source, Croatian policemen made mass arrests in December 1991 in Daruvar and its vicinity. The arrested were imprisoned in jails in Daruvar and the police premises in Bjelovar where they were beaten and harassed. The civilians were then allegedly forced to agree to be exchanged for soldiers captured by the Banja Luka Corps of the JNA. Most of those arrested refused to be exchanged because they believed their property would be damaged and their families killed. Of the 62 who initially agreed to be exchanged 25 refused during the actual procedure. One prisoner allegedly died from severe beating during imprisonment. 4609/

2939. District Prison: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely the ICRC.) On 30 December 1991 a Serb prisoner was transferred to the District prison from an undisclosed location. There he was stripped naked and beaten. He was then put into cell number 1, where he and an undetermined number of other prisoners were deprived of food until 3 January 1991. On 3 January 1991 the prisoner was interrogated and beaten while tied to a radiator. He was made to sleep naked on the concrete floor of his unheated cell until 12 January 1991. On that day the prisoners were each given a blanket and a mattress. Curiously enough, the ICRC delegates visited the prison the following day. According to the report, the day after the ICRC visit, the blanket and mattresses were taken away. 4610/

2940. Barracks, Bjelovar: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely the ICRC.) ICRC representatives reportedly visited a detention facility established at the local barracks on 10 October 1991. 4611/ No information was provided regarding the conditions existing at this facility.

2941. Hospital, Bjelovar: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely the ICRC.) ICRC representatives reportedly visited a detention facility established at the local hospital on 11 October 1991, and then again on 24 October 1991. 4612/ No information was provided regarding the conditions existing at this facility on either occasion.

4. Daruvar

2942. The county of Daruvar is located in north-eastern Croatia. According to the 1991 census, the population was 29,978. At that time, the population was 34.3 per cent Croatian, 33.2 per cent Serbian, with an additional 27 per cent referred to as "others", and the remaining 5.5 per cent described as "Yugoslav". 4613/

2943. Unknown Place of Detention, Daruvar: (The existence of this detention facility has not been corroborated by multiple sources.) On 17 March 1992 an undetermined number of Serbs from the villages of Duhovi, Blagorodavac, and Uljanik in the county of Daruvar were allegedly arrested by members of the Croatian Ministry of Interior and subjected to brutal treatment in prison. Two of the prisoners sustained serious injuries and a third died while in custody. The report was silent as to the exact location of the facility. 4614/

2944. Daruvar Jail: (The existence of this detention facility has not been corroborated by multiple sources.) According to one source, Croatian policemen made mass arrests in December 1991 in Daruvar and its vicinity. Those arrested were imprisoned in jails in Daruvar and in police stations in Bjelovar where they were reportedly beaten and harassed. The civilians were then allegedly forced to agree to be exchanged for soldiers captured by the Banja Luka Corps of the JNA. Most of those arrested refused to be exchanged because they believed their property would be damaged and their families killed. Of the 62 who initially agreed to be exchanged, the information suggests that 25 refused during the actual procedure. One prisoner allegedly died as the result of severe beating during imprisonment. 4615/

2945. Police Station, Daruvar: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely the ICRC.) ICRC representatives reportedly visited a detention facility established at the police station in Daruvar. The ICRC reported visiting this facility on 13 January 1992. 4616/ No additional information was provided regarding conditions existing at this facility.

2946. Daruvar Prison: (The existence of this detention facility has not been corroborated by multiple sources.) On 5 March 1992, all adult males from the village of Govedje Polje were allegedly arrested by the Croatian Ministry of Interior and transported to Daruvar prison. They were reported to have been subjected to physical mistreatment. 4617/

2947. Varteks Department Store: (The existence of this detention facility has not been corroborated by multiple sources.) According to one source, 80 Serbian civilians from Daruvar allegedly were arrested on 31 December 1991 and held in the basement of the "Varteks" department store by Croats. 4618/ No additional information was provided regarding treatment, conditions, nor length of the facility's existence.

2948. Miokovićevo: (The existence of this detention facility has not been corroborated by multiple sources.) Miokovićevo was reported to contain a place of detention. 4619/ One report indicated a prisoner was beaten in Miokovićevo while in custody. This prisoner's upper jaw was broken. He was initially detained on 7 September 1991. 4620/

2949. The Cow Insemination Facility at Miokovićevo: (The existence of this detention facility has not been corroborated by multiple sources.) On 23 September 1991 Serbian paramilitaries abducted a civilian from the Daruvar area after entering the village. The civilian was imprisoned in Miokovićevo for one month before being transferred to Bijela. Miokovićevo appears to have been run by "Četniks" who maltreated and beat the prisoners continuously. The guards would knock prisoners heads together. The witness alleged that his "tongue was taken out of his mouth", and his teeth were broken. He was reportedly beaten with an electric cable all over his body and also deprived of food for the first five days of his internment. He was detained with his hands bound and a rope around his neck. This victim was reportedly forced to stand for the majority of the time he was detained and to sleep on concrete floors. 4621/

2950. The prisoners were forced to dig trenches and had logs thrown at them as they worked. No medical treatment was available. The guards were all young men from the villages of Removac, Jasenas, Korenicani, Brdani Bastajski, and Cjepidlake. 4622/

2951. Bijela: (The existence of this detention facility has not been corroborated by multiple sources.) One source reported that a detention facility existed in Bijela, which is located just south-east of Daruvar and has a Serbian majority population. 4623/ The founder of the Croatian Democratic Union (HDZ) in Daruvar was reportedly abducted from his vineyard in the presence of his wife and two other witnesses on 24 August 1991. He was said to have been forced into a car and taken to the village of Bijela, a place allegedly known as a "Četnik camp". He was detained there until 22 September 1991 when a policeman allegedly took him to an exchange. He was still missing at the time of the report. These events were confirmed by another inmate of the prison who was of Serbian nationality and imprisoned for making the statement that Croatia would exist as its own state. 4624/

2952. On 19 August 1991 four Croatian police officers were abducted by their fellow Serbian policemen while on duty. One was taken to Bijela and then moved to Bucje. The three others were abducted and then released by the police officer referred to above. 4625/

2953. On 23 November 1991 six Croatian men and one woman from the village of Vrbovac were reportedly arrested and detained in Bijela by "Četniks" from Serbia. There appear to have been two makeshift military prisons, one in the basement of a school and the other in the apartment of Marko Marojević. There was a third prison in the basement of the village hall where sheep had been kept. The seven detainees appear to have been held in the village hall basement. The basement was dark, and breathing was difficult. There was no heating and the temperature was extremely cold. On the eighth day of their internment the detainees were allegedly interrogated and then moved to the first floor classrooms of a school. 4626/

2954. On 1 December 1991 the female internee was questioned by the "Četniks" as to why she worked for the Croatian National Guard and was then threatened with rape. One of the "Četniks" stripped her naked but did not rape her as she was menstruating. They moved her to another room from which she escaped, but she was discovered outside the room. She was then stripped half naked and threatened with rape and facial mutilation. A Serb who had served with the "White Eagles" threatened to cut off her ear. She was allowed to go the funeral of her mother under escort of the prison guards. On 7 December 1991 one of the "White Eagles" threatened to kill the woman. Additionally, the woman was afraid to use the toilet alone because another woman had been raped by the "White Eagles". She spent 19 days in the prison and was then transferred to Banja Luka. 4627/

2955. The guards would enter the rooms around 7:00 p.m. and maltreat the prisoners. The prisoners could not sleep at night because of the cold, and one prisoner suffered frostbite on his feet. The belongings of the prisoners were searched three times. They were given only rice to eat and were allowed use of the toilet at the discretion of the guards. One detainee was sentenced to death at the school prison, and another prisoner was killed. Young men were allegedly castrated, and salt was put in their wounds. 4628/

2956. The prisoner, who was first interned at Miokovićevo, was then transferred to Bijela in November 1991 and held for one month. At Bijela the prisoners were only beaten at night. The witness was thrown on the ground, kicked, and beaten until he was unconscious. The detainees slept on a concrete floor. 4629/

5. Djakovo

2957. Djakovo is located in Slavonia, north-east Croatia and has a population of 52,443, according to the 1991 census. At that time, the population was 91.7 per cent Croat, 3.8 per cent Serb, with 4.5 per cent described as 2958. "other". 4630/

2959. Djakovo: (The existence of this detention facility has not been corroborated by multiple sources.) Prisoners were reportedly detained in Djakovo. Forty-one Serbian prisoners were exchanged for 380 members of the Croatian paramilitary formations on 27 March 1992. The 41 were reported to have been arrested between 6 November 1991 and 13 March 1992. Almost all the prisoners were interrogated for three to 10 days at various places in Croatia, including Djakovo. Then they were allegedly taken to detention facilities in Osijek and Zagreb. 4631/

2960. Police Station, Djakovo: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely Helsinki Watch.) Three women, a boy and four men were hiding in the attic of a house due to fighting in the village of Sodalovci. Twenty to 50 members of the Croatian army allegedly entered the attic and took the people into custody after beating them. They were reportedly handcuffed and taken to Djakovo where the women were released. The men were apparently interrogated separately. One of the men, a Serb, who testified while in Osijek prison with the permission of the prison authorities, claimed that he was taken to a hospital and then to the police station. Some of the police allegedly yelled at him and kicked him. He was also abused in the courtyard of the hospital. The prisoners apparently was transferred to Osijek jail sometime before 30 July 1991. 4632/

6. Drniš

2960. Drniš is located near Knin in Dalmatia. According to the 1991 census, the pre-war population of Drniš was 24,157. At that time, the population was 76.8 per cent Croatian, 21.3 per cent Serbian, and 1.9 per cent was referred to as "other". 4633/

2961. Drniš Hospital and Prison: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely the ECMM.) One source indicated that at least three people were detained in the hospital in Drniš. Two of these people moved to an ordinary prison after 15 or 16 days in the hospital. All three prisoners had been captured on 16 September 1991, and all were exchanged on 2 November 1991. Two of the prisoners were Croatian police reservists in Pakovo Selo while the third was a Croatian civilian from Biočić. The prisoners appear to have been detained by Serbian forces. 4634/

2962. The detainees reported being physically abused. They were beaten with rifle butts, rubber truncheons, and wooden staves. One of the prisoners lost half his thumb. The detainees had cocked revolvers pressed to their heads. They were beaten about the kidneys, denied use of toilet facilities, and forced to drink urine. Additionally, two of the prisoners held in the same ward complained of sexual abuse. They were forced to perform oral sex on each other and on the prison guards, as well as being forced to participate in mutual masturbation. 4635/

2963. Some of the medical staff at the hospital verbally abused the prisoners, calling them "Ustaše". One of the doctors was allegedly particularly abusive. In addition one of the nurses with short blonde hair brandished a knife and placed it on the throat of one of the prisoners. 4636/

2964. The food was inadequate, and one of the prisoners, who spent his entire time in the hospital, lost 20 kilograms of weight. The detainees were deprived of sleep by interruptions, lights, and physical abuse. One of the prisoners was displayed on Belgrade television as an "Ustaša" and accused of rape and killing children. 4637/

2965. Two other prisoners were interviewed by the same source and appear to have been held in a prison. One cell at this detention facility was reported to be three by five metres large and held nine prisoners; another cell was 32 square metres and held 32 people. These prisoners claim that their hands were tied with electrical wire, and their personal belongings were taken. They were forced to clean toilets with their bare hands, transport the guards around in wheelbarrows, and sing "četnik" songs before being allowed to use the toilets. Their heads were forced in the toilets, and the younger ZNG soldiers were sexually abused. They were exhibited in public. The prisoners were deprived of medical treatment and were not allowed to wash for 30 days. They received three eggs a day and both witnesses lost 10 kilograms of weight. 4638/

2966. According to the report, there are approximately 243 people left in Drniš and all are over 50 years of age. Fifty of them are reported as ill. They are not allowed to leave their houses and are denied evacuation. 4639/

2967. Another report indicated that maltreatment of POWs had occurred, however, it was not clear that the prisoners were detained in Drniš. The descriptions of abuse included abuse of POWs by irregular soldiers in a prison hospital with the medical staff at best standing back. There were allegations of verbal abuse of prisoners by one doctor and one nurse. This could be a reference to the same incident reported above. 4640/

2968. Barracks, Trbounje: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely the ICRC.) The ICRC reports that on 8 December it visited the detention facility identified at the barracks in Trbounje. 4641/

7. Dubrovnik

2969. Dubrovnik is located in southern Croatia on the Dalmatian coast. The 1991 census reported the population as 70,672, with 82.5 per cent Croat, 4.1 per cent Muslim, 6.7 per cent Serb, and 6.7 per cent other. 4642/

2970. Unidentified Detention Facility, Dubrovnik: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by two neutral sources, namely the ICRC and the CSCE.) One source reported Dubrovnik in its list of places of detention. 4643/ The ICRC reported the prison in Dubrovnik as a place of detention and first visited the facility on 7 November 1991. 4644/

8. Dvor

2971. Dvor is located near Glina in central Croatia and according to the 1991 census it had a population of 14,636. The population was comprised of 9.5 per cent Croatians, 85.6 per cent Serbians, and 4.9 per cent others. 4645/

2972. According to reports, on 26 July 1991, members of the Serbian paramilitary unit "SAO Krajina" attacked several villages in the Dvor municipality including Unčani, Zamlača, and populated villages in the Pounje region. 4646/

2973. After the citizens of Pounje were expelled from their homes, they were reportedly collected and used as a "human barrier" to assist the paramilitary units' advance. 4647/ The concept was also employed with the people from Zamlača who were reportedly made to walk to Struga as "living shields" in an attempt to force the Struga police to surrender. At the entrance to Struga, the Serbs allegedly opened fire upon the people, killing many of the citizens from Zamlača who were made to "shield" them. 4648/

2974. Local Prison, Struga: (The existence of this detention facility has not been corroborated by multiple sources.) According to one report, some 10 days after the Serbian attack, several villagers who remained in the area were arrested and detained at the prison. The detainees were reportedly interrogated and subjected to severe physical mistreatment. 4649/

2975. Camps in Banija: (The existence of these detention facilities have not been corroborated by multiple sources.) On 26 July 1991, members of Martić's paramilitary unit attacked several villages in the Dvor region, including Unčani, Pounje, and Zamlača; consequently, capturing and detaining many of the villagers in camps erected in Banija. 4650/

2976. Police Station, Dvor: (The existence of this detention facility has not been corroborated by multiple sources.) Following the attack on Zamlača, civilians from the area were reportedly detained by Serb irregulars in the basement of the local police station. 4651/ No additional information was made available regarding the duration of internment, the conditions nor the treatment of the inmates.

2977. Unidentified Militia Station: (The existence of this detention facility has not been corroborated by multiple sources.) After the villagers from Zamlača and Pounje were forced from their homes, a great many of them were loaded onto a militia truck and transported to an undisclosed militia station. Upon arrival, the detainees were placed in the cellar of the facility--women in one room and men in another. 4652/ The rooms were purportedly flooded with water and the inmates were contained under these conditions for two days. 4653/

2978. The Serbs began interrogating the detainees, beginning with the women. Sources suggest that the primary question asked of the inmates was their "date of birth". Following this rather brief interrogation, all of the inmates were reportedly released. 4654/

9. Glina

2979. Glina is located in central Croatia and had a 1991 population of 22,997. This population was 35 per cent Croatian, 60.5 per cent Serb, and 4.5 per cent other. 4655/

2980. Glina Prison: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by multiple sources, including the ICRC, U.S. State Department, and ECMM.) There are many reports surrounding the Glina prison camp. This detention facility was in operation as early as September of 1991 and continued to be in operation through September of 1993. Most accounts referred to the site as the former juvenile prison; whereas one account described the facility as being situated in the Glina "Hall of Culture." 4656/

2981. Serb forces controlled the operation of the Glina Prison. Serb Territorial Defence Forces, SAO Krajina Police, JNA soldiers, and "Četniks" all reportedly had a hand in the way the camp functioned. In addition, one ex-detainee noted that Serb paramilitaries, SAO Krajina forces, "Četniks" from Šabac, and JNA soldiers often visited the prison. A Croatian citizen of Serbian origin, who was accused of torturing Croatian POWs in the Glina camp was arrested on 12 December 1992 in Zagreb. 4657/

2982. Both civilians and POWs, most of Croatian ethnicity, appear to have been detained at Glina camp. The camp population averaged 60-100 persons. The first available account noted that on 10 September 1991, a man was forced from his home in Sisak county, robbed, and taken to the "Četnik" prison in Glina. 4658/ Two days later, 61 members of the Croatian MUP forces were captured by Serb soldiers and transported to Glina after spending four days in the village of Kukuruzara. 4659/ Others were arrested in Bestrna and Hrvatska Kostajnica and brought to the camp in early September as well. 4660/

2983. At some point during the detention of these POWs, groups of civilians were brought to Glina. Many prisoners who had previously been held at the Petrinja internment camp were transferred to Glina as well. 4661/ According to one report, by the first week of October 1991, approximately 100 males were being held at Glina. This report noted that the men were mainly from Kostajnica. In addition, 30 females were held at the prison in separate quarters. At least two Croatian civilians were captured and detained at Glina beginning in November of 1991. 4662/

2984. Maltreatment of detainees, both civilian and POW, appears to have taken place regularly throughout late 1991 and early March of 1992, when many of the prisoners were exchanged. Civilians and POWs were kept in separate rooms. The POWs who were part of the MUP force were held in a 30 square metre room. They slept two to a bed, which consisted of uncovered boards. The condition of the food and water was poor, and many of the inmates contacted dysentery. Use of toilet facilities was restricted and the POWs were allowed to bathe only once during their five-month detention period. 4663/ Four Croatians who were not part of the MUP force were kept in solitary confinement cells. The MUP POWs were often forced to use these cells as restrooms. The ICRC visited the camp in late October 1991, and conditions improved mildly after the visit. The detainees received bedding, and the confinement areas were heated. 4664/

2985. According to one report, beatings were carried out in the morning by the camp guards and in the afternoon by Serb soldiers and militia. The prison commander, who was unidentified, did not personally beat any prisoners, but allegedly permitted beatings to occur and led individuals to the prisoners' quarters so that they could select their victims. 4665/ Another report noted that the civilian prisoners were beaten "day and night", and that 10 civilians were killed with clubs between October and March of 1991. Three other Croatians were identified as having died as a result of beatings. 4666/ One group of Croatian prisoners, who were all between 60 and 70 years old, had been beaten on the soles of their feet and their hands. 4667/

2986. The POWs who were captured in September of 1991 were selected for beatings on the basis of prepared lists. The beatings took place in an office across the prison courtyard. Between six and 10 Serbs dressed in camouflage would take turns battering the detainees. Many of these prisoners were also tortured with electricity. Bare wire was strapped around a prisoner's finger, and an electric current was then passed through the wire. 4668/ Prisoners were beaten with bludgeons, fists, boots, and rifle butts. Some prisoners died as a result of the beatings. 4669/

2987. Prisoners were also emotionally abused by the guards. Many were told "in confidence" that they were going to be exchanged, only to be told in a couple of days that the exchange had fallen through. 4670/

2988. One former prisoner related that the "Četniks" who beat the POWs admitted they were taking a combination of Fortral and other drugs which induced a "high degree of aggressive behaviour". 4671/

2989. One of the best descriptions of the camp comes from a former prisoner arrested in Petrinja on 22 September 1991. 4672/ He reports that he was arrested by "the people in camouflage uniforms who had white bands on their heads and arms and brought to the camp". At Glina, there were JNA soldiers, officers, captains, and majors. He was kept in the part of the camp for solitary confinement. This section consisted of four solitary cells, each 2.5 metres by 2.5 metres. Inside each cell, there was one berth, a toilet, a washing stand and a small space with boards on the floor. There were only blankets on the bed and no heating. Often, there were six people to a cell. 4673/

2990. Apparently, food was scant. A small piece of bread sometimes with tea or spread was served to the prisoners. However, after a visit from the Red Cross, the food became a bit better. The prisoners ate on the courtyard in the tents. 4674/ They received a pile of overcooked rice with vegetable leftovers or some mashed potatoes. Once a week they were given beans. 4675/

2991. During his detention, the prisoners were also not allowed to bathe. Finally, after 70 days they were permitted to clean themselves, but they had to redress in their dirty clothes. They shaved every 30 days "at their own expense". However, they had been stripped of all of their valuables when they arrived at the camp making it impossible to pay for a shave. 4676/

2992. Prisoners were allowed to move only inside the prison area. They were forced to bow their heads and put their hands behind their back. 4677/ It is not clear from the testimony whether their hands were actually tied or not.

2993. They beat the prisoners a few times per day and tortured them at night. This particular witness was beaten with rubber sticks and boots during which time he lost consciousness four times. 4678/ He also underwent psychological maltreatment. He was told that his son had been captured and killed and that the Serbs had taken over Zagreb and other Croatian cities. He also was forced to work during his detention. He worked with cables in the Elektra and was not allowed to speak to the others. 4679/

2994. After 40 days of solitary confinement, the witness was moved to the room where the younger children were situated. There, each child had his/her own bed. Civilians remained in this room, and members of the Croatian National Guard and police were transferred to the "courtyard rooms" where there was some kind of music hall. Here, the floor was tiled and the room humid. Two men slept in one bed. 4680/

2995. Finally, this witness reports that on 15 November 1991 a group of elderly were brought in from Solno, Lovača, and Stankovci. They numbered 12 and were beaten severely at the camp on 16 November. Two or three days later they were driven away in some unknown direction and were not seen again. 4681/

2996. The witness was exchanged on 14 March 1992. The day before he left, he and three other prisoners were beaten. They were forced to strip to the waist, were watered with hot coffee and kicked. Upon evaluation at a hospital, doctors confirmed the fracture of five to eight ribs on his left side. He now reports having kidney problems and a bad blood count. He regularly urinates blood. 4682/

2997. Another ex-detainee reports that he and a group of 60 others were arrested in Kukuruzara on 12 September 1991. They arrived by bus on 16 September. Upon their arrival, they were taken off the bus and physically and verbally abused by the local population as they entered the prisoner. 4683/ They were all put in a room 30 metres by 30 metres. They slept on bunk beds, two to a bed. Drinking water was kept in the rooms in plastic cans. The water was not clean and many of them contracted disentary. They were unable to go to the bathroom as needed and had to relieve themselves in plastic cans in the cell. 4684/

2998. Additional exchanges of prisoners occurred on the following dates. According to one former detainee, 40 captured MUP soldiers were exchanged on 31 October 1991. This may have been in response to a visit by the ICRC on 29 October 1991. 4685/ Another exchange of prisoners took place on 1 November 1991, and on 3 March 1992 when the remainder of the POWs were exchanged. 4686/

2999. Despite the multiple prisoner exchanges carried out in March, detentions at Glina continued into 1992. ECMM reported that a "drunk man" from Sisak was being detained at the prison as 16 November 1992. 4687/ UNCIVPOL also visited the camp in November of 1992, and counted a total of 96 prisoners. 4688/ In January 1993 a young woman from Glina was arrested, charged with espionage, and sentenced to 11 years' imprisonment at Glina. 4689/ As of 9 August 1993, the date of the last reported ECMM visit to Glina, there were 100 persons being detained there, 60 were POWs and 40 were "other". 4690/

3000. ICRC delegates first visited the penitentiary on 29 October 1991. 4691/ The camp was also visited various times by international journalists. Reporters came from Belgrade, Banja Luka, Sarajevo and the US Prisoners were usually shaven and those who appeared better were selected to be shown off before the visits. After the visits, the prisoners were beaten. 4692/

3001. Military Prison, Glina: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely the ICRC.) ICRC delegates first visited the military prison on 24 February 1993. 4693/

3002. Glina Hospital: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely the ICRC.) ICRC delegates first visited the hospital on 1 September 1992. and the penitentiary on the 29 October 1991. 4694/

10. Gospić

3003. Gospić is located in western Croatia on the Dalmatian coast and had a population of 28,732, according to the 1991 census. The population consisted of 64.3 per cent Croat, 31.1 per cent Serb, and 4.6 per cent other. 4695/

3004. Gospić Prison: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by multiple sources, including the ICRC and Amnesty International.) This site was reportedly used to house a number of arrested or captured Serbs. At one point, the Croatian authorities admitted that at least three identified persons were being held in the Gospić area, but they did not state whether they were indeed at the prison. ECMM requested permission to visit the prison on 20 September 1993, but the request was denied.

3005. One prisoner, a retired JNA officer, was arrested by four armed and uniformed men of the Croatian military police at his home in Zagreb and taken to the camp on 23 November 1991. The arresting officers said that they wanted to speak with him for a few minutes and then took him to the prison. He was kept there for two months after which he was transferred to the prison at Kerestinec, Zagreb. 4696/

3006. While at the camp, he was held in solitary confinement under extremely cold conditions. He was given two blankets, but the heating in the prison had been turned off on 27 November, and the window of his cell did not close properly. He was questioned about alleged links between Serbs in Široka Kula, Zagreb, and Belgrade, of which he had no knowledge. He was not allowed to wash or change his clothes during his detention. There was no toilet in his cell, and at night he was forced to use a bucket. 4697/

3007. He reports that he was among the few prisoners who were not beaten by guards. He had suffered only a "few slaps" until 7 January when he was beaten by five guards at once in his cell. As a result of the beating, he lost consciousness and experienced heart disturbances the next day. 4698/

3008. Apparently, breakfast had been cancelled at the prison on 27 November, and prisoners were only given two meals a day. Yet, the witness reports that on 15 December, three days before the ICRC visited the prison, breakfasts were resumed and the heating turned on. 4699/ The ICRC visited the prison on 18 December 1991. 4700/

3009. Kalić: (The existence of this detention facility has not been corroborated by multiple sources.) Six Serb civilians from Divoselo and Čitluk were arrested during the Croatian offensive in the region. They were interrogated and later brought to the camp at Kalić. These civilians were interviewed by team OTOCAC on 14 September 1993. It is unclear from the report whether Kalić is located in Gospić, as no further information was provided. One of the ex-detainees did state that they were well treated by the police and by their captors at the camp. 4701/

3010. Gospić Camp: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely the UK Defence Debriefing Team.) A camp holding hundreds of Serb prisoners reportedly existed in Gospić. The site was a former military dump and storage site for the Gavrilovic corporation. The area in which the camp was situated was 5,000 square metres and was surrounded by barbed wire fencing. The report described the site as a "collecting camp," for prisoners en route to the camp at Jadovno, three kilometres away. 4702/

3011. Gospić District Court: (The existence of this detention facility has not been corroborated by multiple sources.) The District Court was reportedly the site where arrested JNA officers were held from September 1991 to December 1992. The officers were allegedly tortured, both mentally and physically. In addition to beatings, detainees were forced to clean the prison camp, sing Ustaše songs and to "salute in the Nazi way". ZNG prison guards, two identified men were said to be responsible for the mistreatment of the prisoners. 4703/

3012. Lički Osik Prison: (The existence of this detention facility has not been corroborated by multiple sources.) This facility is reportedly located in the Culture Centre building in the village of Novi Licki Osik and administered by Martić police. At least 13 Croatian civilians were detained at Licki Osik prison in September of 1991. This figure was admitted by the headmaster of the prison, Ćedo Budisavljević. A woman from Lički Osik, whose husband was among those detained, visited the prison and said her husband was emaciated, had been given very little food or water and had been beaten. 4704/

11. Gračac

3013. Gračac is located in Croatia near Knin and had a population of 11,060, according to the the 1991 census. The population was 14 per cent Croat, 82.3 per cent Serb, and 3.7 per cent other. 4705/

3014. Gračac: (The existence of this detention facility has not been corroborated by multiple sources.) A map, submitted by both Helsinki Watch and the Republic of Croatia, indicates that a "prison/camp run by paramilitary forces" was located at Gračac. The map asserts that detainees at this camp are Croatians and that the camp is controlled by "YA or Serbian paramilitary forces". 4706/

12. Grubisno Polje

3015. Grubisno Polje is located in northern Croatia and had a population of 14,186, according to the 1991 census. The population was comprised of 42.3 per cent Croat, 32.1 per cent Serb and 25.6 per cent other. 4707/

3016. Prior to the outbreak of hostilities, ethnic Serbs comprised the majority population of Grubisno Polje while ethnic Croats were a clear minority. In early 1991, ethnic Croats began to "exert pressure on the ethnic Serb population" both in the town itself and in neighbouring villages. 4708/ Reports submitted by FRY indicate at least one place of detention in Grubisno Polje.

3017. Hotel, Grubisno Polje: (The existence of this detention facility has not been corroborated by multiple sources.) One detention centre has been described as an "improvised jail" in the hotel in Grubisno Polje. Detainees in the camp were ethnic Serbs and the camp was controlled by Croatian forces, including the Ministry of the Interior and ZNG members of the Republic of Croatia. 4709/ Reports concerning this camp aver that prisoners have been tortured, mutilated, and killed. The camp was in operation, and violations were allegedly committed, in August 1991. 4710/ There is no estimate as to the number of prisoners detained at the hotel.

3018. Reports also refer to other possible detention centres in Grubisno Polje; it is unclear if these are the hotel described above. First, one report claims that in December 1991 ethnic Serbs from Grubisno Polje were arrested, jailed, and tortured in Grubisno Polje. 4711/ The location of the jail is not given. Second, from August to October 1991, government officials from the "Government of SAO West Slavonia" allegedly interrogated and tortured captured non-Serbs. It is not clear where detainees were being held. 4712/

13. Imotski

3019. Imotski: (The existence of a detention facility has been corroborated by multiple sources, including the Permanent Mission of Germany.) Imotski is located in southern Croatia and had a population of 38,555, according to the 1991 census. The population was 95.5 per cent Croat, and 2.9 per cent Serb, and 1.6 per cent other. 4713/

3020. Several reports, from various sources, contain the identical unsubstantiated claim that "police premises" in Imotski are used as a detention centre for about 20 Serbs. 4714/ Another report claims that, during November 1991, a Serbian soldier was tortured and mistreated in detention facilities in Listica (BiH), Imotski, and Split. The forces in command of these facilities are allegedly members of the MOI and ZNG of the Republic of Croatia. No specific information is provided regarding the alleged facility in Imotski. 4715/

14. Ivanec

3021. Ivanec is located in northern Croatia and had a population of 41,488 according to the 1991 census. The population was 97.6 per cent Croat and 2.4 per cent other. 4716/

3022. Lepoglava Prison: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely the ICRC.) The ICRC listed the Lepoglava prison as a place of detention and delegates first visited it on 1 June 1993. 4717/

15. Karlovac

3023. The county of Karlovac is located south-west of Zagreb. According to the 1991 census, the population was 80,855. At that time, the population was 66.7 per cent Croatian, 26.6 per cent Serbian, with some 6.3 per cent referred to as "other", and the remaining 3.4 per cent referred to as "Yugoslavs". 4718/

3024. Karlovac Prison: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely the ICRC.) In June 1991, a prisoner allegedly was interned in Karlovac prison which was run by the Ministry of Interior of the Republic of Croatia. He was reportedly ill-treated, beaten with truncheons, forcibly tattooed, and received numerous scars all over his body. He eventually escaped from the prison. 4719/ In August 1992, prisoners at the Bosanski Novi Stadium facility were transferred to the Karlovac prison because a United Nations team discovered the camp. 4720/ The ICRC reported the Karlovac prison as a place of detention in a report received on 27 May 1994. The representatives first visited the detention facility on 12 February 1992. 4721/

3025. Karlovac Police Headquarters: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by neutral sources, namely the ICRC and Helsinki Watch.) One source reported that three soldiers, one Yugoslav army captain, and 17 Yugoslav army reservist, the majority of whom were Serb, left the town of Slunj in two army trucks. They were stopped by Croatian forces on the bridge over the Korana river and told to surrender. Three were transported to the police headquarters in Karlovac and eventually sent to Zagreb for detention. The others, while on the bridge, were allegedly maltreated and some were killed. 4722/ The ICRC reported the Karlovac police headquarters as a place of detention in a report received on 27 May 1994. The representatives first visited the detention facility on 12 February 1992. 4723/

16. Knin

3026. Knin is located in Krajina and had a population of 42,337 according to the 1991 census. The population was 88.6 per cent Serb, 8.6 per cent Croat and 2.8 per cent other. 4724/

3027. By the end of 1990, several villages in Croatia containing sizeable Serbian populations had found themselves with Serb citizens who refused to recognize Croatian authority and had unilaterally established "Serbian autonomous districts". 4725/ These districts were governed by the local Serbs and many were even equipped with locally-recruited police forces. 4726/

3028. When the conflict erupted in Croatia in 1991, these Serb-run districts became satellite bases for JNA units. 4727/ A number of local Croats who were detained by Serb forces in the region have reported that control of these facilities was primarily by local Serb paramilitaries rather than JNA forces. 4728/

3029. JNA Jail: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely the US State Department. 4729/) On 5 and 6 April 1992, JNA units from the Knin corps, the White Eagles and an unidentified JNA tank unit collected some 1,600 Croatian civilians and 35 Bosnian Croatian and Muslim soldiers, loaded them onto buses and transported them to Knin. 4730/ The buses arrived in Knin on 7 April and the civilian prisoners were separated from the military prisoners. The military prisoners were then loaded onto a refrigerated truck and told that they were going to a slaughter house. The truck drove all night with the freezer unit turned on. 4731/

3030. The military prisoners were removed from the truck and taken to the jail. They were then placed in a small cell on the third floor of the jail. Shortly thereafter, five Bosnian Serb irregulars came and allegedly beat them with clubs and iron rods. 4732/ After all the prisoners were beaten, the Serbs left and did not return for three days. During this time, the prisoners were not fed or afforded any sort of care or attention. 4733/

3031. On 10 April, the prisoners were moved to a large room on one of the lower floors. A television crew from Belgrade was in this room and the prisoners were given scripts and made to read from them for the press detailing all the atrocities they had allegedly leveled on the Serbian people. 4734/ On 20 April, the prisoners were turned over to Martić's police and transported to the Knin jail. 4735/

3032. "Southern Camp" (Army Barracks): (The existence of this detention facility has not been corroborated by multiple sources. 4736/) This facility was located on the road from Knin to Drniš, not far from Potkonje. 4737/ The report was supplied by a civilian male who spent a month at this facility.

3033. According to the report, Serbian and Montenegrin reservists captured him on the road and took him to a room in the southern Knin barracks. 4738/ Interrogation began immediately. The witness recalled being interrogated on four occasions in the Knin garrison building. 4739/

3034. Accompanying him in detention and the interrogation proceedings were some 20 other civilians, many of whom were from his town of Drniš. 4740/ They were all beaten daily with bludgeons, sticks, or anything that was available. The report alleges that the physical and mental mistreatment was constant and cruel. 4741/

3035. Knin Jail: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by multiple sources, including the ICRC and Amnesty International.) Nine of the military prisoners and three civilians from the JNA prison were removed by Martić's police and brought to this facility and detained in room number 4. 4742/ The guards at this location were "professional" jail guards who had been working at this facility since well before the beginning of the conflict. 4743/

3036. The prisoners were ordered to disrobe so that they could be searched for processing. During the strip search, the guards ordered the detainees to bend

"over and spread their buttocks apart. Serbs would take police nightsticks, brooms or other sharp objects and drive them into a prisoner's rectum with sharp jabs. The guards told the prisoners that they were making sure that no one was hiding any weapons". 4744/

3037. Serbian guards typically brought their wives and girlfriends to the jail to see the prisoners. The inmates were instructed to comply with the orders of the "guests" which oftentimes included engaging in fellatio with one another while the women watched. 4745/

3038. On several occasions, small children were brought in and the prisoners were ordered to comply with their wishes as well. In one incident, a young boy demanded that one of the prisoners act like a horse so that the child could ride. 4746/ When the boy became dissatisfied with the inmate's performance, he urinated on the inmate's face, and then "ordered the prisoner to lick the urine from the floor". 4747/ Before leaving, the boy reportedly declared that the prisoner only needed one eye, so the youth stuck the inmate in the eye with a stick. 4748/

3039. One report details the experiences of a Croatian soldier captured during the battles for Kijevo in August 1991. 4749/ He was detained in a jail cell which measured three or four metres in size. There was only a wooden plank for a bed, very little ventilation and no light. 4750/ Four others were detained with him. The five were subjected to repeated and, seemingly unending, interrogation and mistreatment. The process went on for four to five hours daily and lasted 68 days. 4751/ Women and children were reportedly brought in to the facility to beat, kick and humiliate the prisoners. The detainees were given food once daily and water once every two days. The witness was exchanged on 2 November 1991. 4752/

3040. "District Prison of Knin" (Former Hospital) 4753/: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by multiple sources, including the ICRC.) According to one report the facility at this site was extremely overcrowded. Twenty-five inmates were detained in a single room. The rooms were so crowded that the inmates could not all sleep at the same time. 4754/

3041. The report mentions that the food and toilet facilities were adequate. Reportedly the men were beaten in the yard each day. 4755/

3042. The testimony of two Croatian priests, 4756/ suggests that at one time some 70 Croatian inmates were detained at this facility. Approximately half of the inmates were civilians and the other half were National Guardsmen. 4757/

3043. According to the witnesses, the inmates were severely mistreated by some of the prison guards. The priests made note of the fact that not all of the guards were cruel, some were quite humane in their treatment of the prisoners. 4758/

3044. The priests were often forced to cross themselves in the Orthodox fashion, with three fingers. They were beaten with truncheons on their hands and backs. 4759/ They witnessed the broken teeth, jaws, ribs, and legs of the other inmates as well as the injuries to kidneys, ears, and other body parts. The beatings usually took place in the bathrooms or in the hallways. 4760/

3045. "SAO Krajina" Prison: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely Amnesty International.) According to one report, an inmate was detained at this location and physically mistreated on a regular basis. His captors attempted to coerce a confession that he gave aid to the residents of Polača. 4761/

3046. According to the report, the detainee was poorly fed for the majority of his detention, except for the last 10 days, just prior to the prisoner exchange. At that time, he began receiving servings of eggs, bacon, beans and canned meat. 4762/

3047. In another report from a reserve member of the Croatian police force, he was captured by Serb paramilitary forces on 26 June and detained in the Krajina region. 4763/ He notes his awareness of the orders given to the police on duty not to mistreat the prisoners but recalls that they disregarded these orders and subjected the prisoners to beatings on a daily basis. Reportedly when he complained about the beatings to the press, the Serb captors beat him so severely that he suffered a broken rib. 4764/

3048. Police Station: (The existence of this detention facility has not been corroborated by multiple sources.) The beatings began as soon as he was captured, was the report from a captured Croatian soldier. The Serb captors beat the men with everything they could find. 4765/ They also removed all of their valuable possessions. The Serbs then took them on buses to Civljane and then to the police station in Knin. 4766/ They were reportedly interrogated in groups of two and then beaten. Thereafter they were taken to the prison in the old hospital building. 4767/

3049. Garage in Golubić: (The existence of this detention facility has not been corroborated by multiple sources.) According to one report, on 26 June 1991, armed Serbs arrested, detained and battered 14 police officers from Glina. The detainees were taken first to Samarica Hill, where local lumbermen were also detained. 4768/ Two days later, all the detainees were taken and contained in a garage in the village of Golubić near Knin. After a brief stay at this location, the prisoners were again moved, this time to the old hospital in Knin. 4769/

17. Korenica

3050. Korenica is a province in western Croatia which borders BiH at Bihać. Its pre-war population was 11,307 of which 75.8 per cent were Serb, 16.8 per cent were Croat, 3.9 per cent other, and 3.5 per cent "Yugoslav".

3051. Military Camp, Frikašić: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely the ICRC.) A detention facility identified as military camp in Frikašić was first visited by the ICRC on 27 August 1993. 4770/

3052. Korenica Police Station: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by multiple sources, including Amnesty International, and the ICRC.) It is reported that there was a Serbian-run camp at the Korenica Police Station. This camp held Croatian civilians who were arrested and brought in by members of the Martić police and the so-called Serbian Autonomous Region Krajina, two Serbian paramilitary organizations active in the area. 4771/

3053. All reports describe that the arrest and detention of Croatians started in October 1991. One witness was picked up on 8 October in the village of Drežničko Selište. 4772/ Others were brought in during this same time from Rastovača, Plitvička Jezera, and Slunj. 4773/ A group of Croatian clergymen were picked up near Prijeboj in late October. 4774/

3054. Prisoners at the station are reported to have been interrogated, tortured, and abused. They underwent electric shock and beatings with wooden sticks, rubber truncheons, and rifle butts. 4775/ They were hosed with cold water, forced to perform fellatio on each other and prison guards, and made to drink urine. 4776/ One ex-prisoner was beaten so severely that he cracked seven ribs on the left side and 10 on the right. He was also hit badly in the head and, as a result, has restricted left eye movement and no sense of smell. 4777/

3055. The most detailed description of the camp comes from a Croatian priest who was held there from the end of October to the end of November, 1991. 4778/ He had asked the commander of the JNA garrison in Slunj in mid-October to provide he and nine other Croatian clergymen with a military escort from Drežnik to Vaganac. 4779/ There, they planned to bury six Croatian women who had previously been killed during a Serb attack of the village. The commander accepted their request and guaranteed them safe passage on their journey. Yet, on the way back, on 15 October at about 5:30 p.m. near Prijeboj, the JNA escort handed the religious group over to Serbian Martić police. 4780/ These Serbian paramilitaries then ordered them to drive to Korenica. 4781/

3056. Upon their arrival at the police station, the group of prisoners was met by 200 Serbian civilians. They waited outside the station and taunted the prisoners as they were transported inside. Once inside, they were made to undress and then beaten by guards. 4782/

3057. The next morning a guard entered the cell and told the two nuns and one of the priests that they were free to go. Later, the others were beaten by guards, brought outside to be beaten again by a group of 40 civilians, and then returned to their cell. During these beatings, the witness apparently had a stick kicked into his colon opening. 4783/

3058. Later that same day, the witness was asked to see the commander for interrogation. The commander allegedly threatened him with a knife and ordered him to admit that he was a Serb and that he had received money from the local government. At one point, he engraved the Serbian cross and four "C's" in the witness' chest. 4784/

3059. Two other perpetrators were named in connection with activities at the camp. One is said to have brought Serbian civilians to the camp to beat and harass the prisoners. The other came to the camp on the witness' 18th day of detention and participated in prisoner beatings. 4785/

3060. A priest was held at Korenica for 23 days during which time he was repeatedly interrogated and beaten. He was asked about his supposed political work in organizing the Croatian Democratic Union Party in Dreznik, Vaganac, Rakovica, and Slunj. He was also accused of receiving money from the Vatican to purchase weapons for the Croatian defence. Furthermore, the witness claims that "bandits" continually came into his cell to beat he and the others. Apparently, they could do as they pleased with the Croatian prisoners detained at the station. 4786/

3061. On the 23rd day, a police commander came in and took the witness away. He told the other Serbs that he was taking the priest to be killed but instead took him to an unidentified private house. 4787/ It is reported that another of the priests was allowed to go to a hospital in Rijeka from 24 October to 26 October. Three other detained were subsequently released; the fate of the remaining four prisoners is unknown. 4788/ Another prisoner at the camp was transferred from Korenica to Manjača camp on 24 October 1991. 4789/

3062. The ICRC reportedly first visited the police station in Korenica on 31 October 1991. 4790/

3063. Private House: (The existence of this detention facility has not been corroborated by multiple sources.) The priest held at the Korenica police station described above was taken to a private house by a police commander near the end of November 1991. The report does not clearly indicate where the house was located and it is only possible that it was in the Korenica province.

3064. While there, the priest was tied to a chair and interrogated by a Commander. 4791/ There were 10 other prisoners at the house. They were Serbian deserters from Plitvice who apparently did not want to attack Croatian civilians. 4792/ The priest reports that he was treated better at the house than at Korenica. He was given food and beaten very little, allowing his wounds to heal. He stayed there for approximately 10 days upon which time he was taken by an officer Putnik, blindfolded, put on an aeroplane, and brought to the basement of another unidentified building. 4793/

3065. No other Serbian perpetrators are named in association with criminal activities in Korenica, but one witness accuses UNPROFOR members of collaborating with the "Četniks" in the area. 4794/

18. Kostajnica

3066. Kostajnica, located on the Croatian side of the border from Bosanski Novi and Bosanska Dubica, BiH, had a pre-war population of 8,000, 35 per cent Croatian and 65 per cent Serbian. 4795/

3067. Čavić Brdo: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely Helsinki Watch.) Seven prisoners were detained in Čavić Brdo in the Spamen Dom (Memorial) building in Samarica. The building is either a hotel or a bowling alley located in what appears to be Kostajnica. The location has not been confirmed and may be as far north as Čazma. They were detained by Serbian police from 26 July 1991 until 31 July 1991, though armed civilians had access to the prisoners and abused them. The Serbian police wore camouflage uniforms and berets and treated the prisoners correctly, according to the report. One of the detainees was a local official. He was detained after being allegedly ambushed on his way back from a meeting in Kostajnica. Those detainees who were wounded during the ambush either died or were taken to Bosnia. 4796/

3068. The official was badly beaten during his detention in a hotel which he claimed was the Serbian base. He believed he was beaten more severely because he was the only police officer detained. He was blindfolded and had his hands tied in front of his body at all times. Three medical workers who were detained were not blindfolded but they were beaten. 4797/

3069. Electric shock was used on the police officer during the course of his interrogation. All the prisoners were detained in the same room and the electric shock occurred in front of the other detainees. He believes that the device used to introduce the electricity to his feet and hands was a Polish telephone, a "dynamo machine on an electric generator" which required cranking. He was not certain of this because he was blindfolded during his interrogation but he heard a cranking noise. Five or six men were present during the interrogation and allegedly laughed when he screamed. He claimed that he was electrocuted after each question he could not answer, each shock lasted for three or four seconds. The Serbian police did the questioning and allowed the civilians to beat the prisoners. The interrogators were asking him about the number of MUPs in the police stations in various villages. The other prisoners were also electrocuted but the witness believed that their treatment was not as severe. 4798/

3070. The police were allegedly under orders to watch the prisoners, prevent their escape, prevent others from abusing them. The witness claimed that their commanding officer would come in once a day and would yell at the guards that the abuse was not supposed to occur. However, the witness claims the commanding officers reprimands had no effect on the treatment of the detainees. 4799/

3071. The police officer was forced to sleep in a chair for four days. He claimed that he was not allowed to lie down and to prevent this a knife was held at his neck and a gun at his mouth. The prisoners were threatened with death and accused of being "Ustaša". They were fed liverwurst spread twice a day for the first few days, but the witness claims he had difficulty eating due to the head trauma he suffered. 4800/

3072. The prisoners were not allowed to bathe but washed their faces in a basin in the corner of the room. 4801/

3073. Seven prisoners were transferred to a three by three metre room and their blindfolds were removed on 31 July 1991. In the room was a sponge-like thing on the floor where they slept. The room had no windows or ventilation. They were given aspirin but no medical treatment was received. Two of the seven were released first and then the rest. Five Croatian prisoners were exchanged on 26 July 1991 for two Serbians. The Croatians included the police officer, another man captured during the ambush and three medical workers who allegedly were captured driving a Red Cross ambulance. A truck driver and a commercial food inspector were also detained and the commercial food inspector was released the day before the police officer was exchanged. 4802/

3074. Kukuruzara: (The existence of this detention facility has not been corroborated by multiple sources.) One source reported a detention facility in Kukuruzara, located north-east of the county seat. Fifty-eight prisoners were detained there from 12 to 19 September 1991 and then were transferred to the Glina prison. The prisoners were reported to be members of the Croatian Ministry of Interior and the Croatian Army. All the prisoners were abused, two were killed, and one was held in solitary confinement. The detention facility was controlled by the JNA and members of the SAO Krajina Militia. 4803/

19. Kutina

3075. The county of Kutina is located in northern Croatia. According to the 1991 census, the population was 39,493. At that time, the population was 82.6 per cent Croatian, 7.9 per cent Serbian, and 9.5 per cent were referred to as "others". 4804/

3076. Kutina Police Station: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely the ICRC.) The ICRC reported a police station in Kutina as a place of detention. An ICRC representative first visited the police station on 28 December 1991. 4805/

20. Metković

3077. The municipality of Metković is on the border of Herzegovina in South Dalmatia. It is situated in the Neretva river valley from the Adriatic Sea approximately 22 kilometres north to the town of Metković, the county seat. 4806/ According to the 1991 population census Metković had a population of 22,774, 93.7 per cent of which were Croats, 3.1 per cent Serb, and 3.2 per cent "other". 4807/

3078. Prison in Metković: (The existence of this detention facility has not been corroborated by multiple sources.) According to reports, 19 Serb civilians from the village of Glušci, were arrested and detained in the local prison following a police raid in the region on 9 May 1992. Reportedly members of the Croatian National Guard were responsible for these activities. 4808/

3079. One report suggested that the 19 civilians were detained at this location for a undisclosed period of time and then transferred to prison camps in Split and Šibenik. 4809/

3080. A passenger aboard a JNA plane when it was shot down on 23 April 1992 was reported to have been captured by the Croatian army on the left bank of the Neretva river. Though the prisoner was allegedly taken into custody in BiH he was interned at a prison in Metković. There he was reportedly punched and kicked all over his body. The prisoner also claimed that he was forced to make a statement for Croatian television. In the statement he had to say he was a member of the aggressor army and that he had killed innocent Croatian people. 4810/

3081. Unidentified camp: (The existence of this detention facility has not been corroborated by multiple sources.) According to one report, Serbs in the Capljina municipality were detained and mistreated in an unidentified camp in the area of Metković. 4811/ The inmates were reportedly subjected to beatings, cut with various sharp objects, caused to undergo electric shock treatments and forced to engage in homosexual acts as well as acts of rape with female inmates. Reportedly the facility was operated by members of the

HOS paramilitary group. 4812/

3082. "Poduh" Tobacco Processing Plant: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely the Permanent Mission of Germany. 4813/) According to one report, in April 1992, Serb citizens in the Čapljina region were arrested by Croatian soldiers. 4814/ The detainees were initially taken to the tobacco station in Capljina and held there for a few hours before being blindfolded and transported to the tobacco processing plant in Metković. 4815/

3083. At the Poduh plant, the personal possessions of the detainees were removed and they were subjected to beatings with clubs, mallets, rifle butts, baseball bats and sticks. The inmates were reportedly beaten in the genital area. 4816/ When they lost consciousness, they were reportedly revived with cold water. 4817/

3084. Following the beatings, the inmates were detained in a room on the lower level for six days. They were then taken to a location on the upper level of the plant to undergo interrogation. The questioning was performed on an individual basis and reportedly lasted quite some time. 4818/

3085. Following the interrogation, the inmates were blindfolded, their hands bound and they were transported to the Lora camp in Split. 4819/

3086. Military Police Building: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely the ICRC.) The ICRC listed the military police building as a place of detention and first visited it on 3 June 1992. 4820/

21. Našice

3087. The county of Našice is located in north-eastern Croatia. According to the 1991 census, the population was 40,424. At that time, the population was 80.1 per cent Croatian, 11 per cent Serbian, with 8.9 per cent referred to as "others". 4821/

3088. Našice: (The existence of this detention facility has not been corroborated by multiple sources.) Prisoners were reportedly detained in Našice. Forty-one Serbian prisoners were exchanged for 380 members of the Croatian paramilitary formations on 27 March 1992. The 41 were reported to have been arrested between 6 November 1991 and 13 March 1992. Almost all the prisoners were interrogated for three to 10 days at various places in Croatia, including Našice. Then they were allegedly taken to detention facilities in Osijek and Zagreb. 4822/

3089. Additionally, there were reports that prisoners taken at Budimci were later exchanged in Nemetin. The majority of the prisoners were Serb civilians and a small number of soldiers. 4823/

22. Nova Gradiška

3090. Nova Gradiška is north of the Sava River and borders Bosanska Gradiška. It had a population of 60,461 according to the 1991 census. The population consisted of 71.7 per cent Croats, 20.8 per cent Serb, 3 per cent Yugoslav and 4.5 per cent "other". 4824/

3091. Stara Gradiška Prison: 4825/ (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by multiple sources, including the US Department of State, Helsinki Watch, and the ICRC. 4826/) This camp lies within a Serb-occupied area of Croatia. 4827/ The prison was in the centre of town and consisted of two separate wings. 4828/ It is unclear if the prison operated as a traditional jail before the conflict in Croatia broke out, but it was used to house prisoners of the conflict from as early as October of 1991 until at least 29 July 1993, when ECMM visited Stara Gradiška and observed that four inmates were being housed there.

3092. A host of Serb forces have been named as being involved in the control and operation of Stara Gradiška camp. It appears that initially, the camp was controlled largely by forces other than the JNA. Many of the reports of detentions occurring in November of 1991 name "Četniks with cockards," 4829/ members of the Plitvice Territorial Defence Units, 4830/ SAO militia, 4831/ and the White Eagles as running the camp and participating in the beating and torturing of prisoners. One report stated that on 30 November, the "Četniks" told the prisoners that from that point forward, their detention came under JNA jurisdiction. 4832/

3093. Reports have named several individuals as being involved in the operation of Stara Gradiška. Thirteen persons were identified as reported interrogators at Stara Gradiška, who also maltreated the prisoners, including two members of the Plitvice Territorial Defence Unit. 4833/ A Serb irregular was also reportedly involved in the interrogation of prisoners and may have ordered some detainees to be tortured. 4834/ The camp's alleged commander, at least as of March 1992, was a former YPA colonel who reportedly ordered soldiers to beat prisoners and may have personally tortured others. 4835/

3094. Detainees at Stara Gradiška were largely Croatian, but some Muslims were also detained there on certain occasions. Muslims from Teslić, Prnjavor and Bosanska Gradiška were brought to Stara Gradiška on an unspecified date. 400 people from Lisnija were also taken to the prison. 4836/ The prisoners included both civilians and soldiers. One group of prisoners comprised members of the Croatian Defence Council and Serbs who had refused to fight against Croats. 4837/

3095. It appears that there were two "peak" periods in which individuals were detained at Stara Gradiška. The first period was between November of 1991 and January of 1992. At least 18 persons from the county of Slunj were taken to Stara Gradiška from Ključ militia station in late November 1991. They had all been accused of slaughtering anywhere between one and 15 Serbian children. 4838/ One report noted that by 18 November, prisoners were being housed in groups of 50 in small cells, suggesting that the camp population exceeded 100 persons. 4839/ Of these prisoners, 20 were sent to Manjača on 22 November. However, the ICRC intercepted the convoy and the prisoners eventually were released and taken to Zagreb. 4840/ An additional 18 persons were taken from Stara Gradiška to Okučani police station on 6 December. 4841/

3096. A prisoner who was appointed to serve as "camp doctor" upon his arrival in Stara Gradiška on 9 December 1991, noted that he examined 635 prisoners between 12 December 1991 and 6 February 1992. 4842/ According to another former prisoner, additional detainees were brought to the camp from Bučje on 15 December 1991, including 20 women who were later exchanged. 4843/

3097. Other Croats were brought from Grdjevica camp to Stara Gradiška in late 1991. These prisoners spent a total of 5 months in captivity at three different camps, including Grdjevica, Bucje and Stara Gradiška. 4844/ In the middle of January 1992, 16 Croatian guardsmen were brought to the camp, but then returned to the camp at Okučani to receive medical attention. 4845/ On 16 January 1992, 100 prisoners were exchanged in Pakrac. 4846/ Twenty-three additional prisoners were released on 26 January 1992 and taken to Bosanski

Šamac. 4847/

3098. The second high point for detentions occurred between May and June of 1992. On 26 April 1992, a BiH official and an HVO soldier were diverted from their planned meeting with Lt. Col. Zovan Peuličan and eventually taken to Stara Gradiška, where they were beaten by police officers and at least one individual who identified himself as a White Eagle. They were sent home that evening. 4848/ On 29 May 1992, 400 men were transferred from Ključ sports hall to Stara Gradiška. Most of them remained there until mid-June, when they were transported to the camp at Manjača. 4849/

3099. The following day, 29 May, four Muslims in an unidentified village were captured by White Eagles and taken along with seven other Muslims to Stara Gradiška camp. 4850/ At that time, the prison was holding 450 males and no females. 4851/ An additional two dozen prisoners were taken from Knin and arrived at the camp shortly after 4 June. 4852/ On 14 June 1992, all 450 inmates were taken to Manjača and the prison was reportedly abandoned. 4853/ However, as mentioned earlier, ECMM visited Stara Gradiška in July 1993, and four inmates were being detained there. 4854/ This suggests that the camp was either reopened or remained in operation despite the witness' observations.

3100. By most accounts, the camp was severely overcrowded throughout 1991 and 1992. In November 1991, groups of 50 prisoners were held in rooms measuring five metres by six metres. They were forced to sleep on the bare floor. 4855/ One prisoner, who was detained at Stara Gradiška in May and June of 1992, was placed in a room with 60 other men. The room was 18 square metres in size. Because of the crowded conditions, the prisoners were not able to all sleep at one time. 4856/

3101. There are discrepancies as to the treatment of prisoners at the camp. Several reports, which are based on interviews with persons detained at Stara Gradiška in November of 1991 note that many prisoners were beaten and tortured by the guards and interrogators at the camp. This activity appears to have occurred when the "Četniks" or irregulars and SAO militia were in control of the camp. One prisoner stated that he heard shots every night for 12 consecutive nights during his stay at Stara Gradiška, and that he knew of at least four prisoners who died. 4857/ This witness also stated that the ICRC visited on Christmas Day 1991 4858/ and that conditions improved mildly after Croatia was recognized in January 1992. However, another former prisoner stated that conditions at Stara Gradiška, while under the control of the JNA, was "bearable, indeed a positive blessing in comparison with Bučje [a camp in Pakrac]". 4859/

3102. One of the more notorious forms of torture at Stara Gradiška was the use of electrified water. One prisoner who was held there in March and April of 1992 related that the camp commander threatened to throw him into the water unless he confessed. After being kicked and beaten, the prisoner's body touched a metal net which grazed the water, and he sustained shocks. This treatment was repeated 10 days later. 4860/ Other prisoners were made to walk continuously in circles for hours, or to stand still for given intervals of time. In contrast, a prisoner who was detained at Stara Gradiška in May and June of 1992 stated that no one was beaten, "mishandled" or killed during his 14-day stay at the camp. Prisoners were interrogated, however, about their backgrounds and political affiliations. 4861/

3103. One ex-detainee stated that prisoners were fed three times a day. Twenty-four prisoners had to share a kilogram of bread. In addition, a piece of cheese was distributed to the prisoners at breakfast and a piece of margarine was given at dinnertime. Prisoners were also given very little water, but were afraid to ask for more sustenance "as it was considered a criticism...and was punished by beating". 4862/ In November, prisoners were given only one bath, during which they were beaten and spat on. 4863/

3104. Nova Gradiška Detention Camp: (The existence of this detention facility has not been corroborated by multiple sources.) A group of civilians and Territorial Defence Units in Mašička Šagovina surrendered to Croatian forces. One of the men among the group, a Serb, was taken to the detention camp at Nova Gradiška. No other details about the camp were provided. 4864/

3105. Okučani Police Station: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by multiple sources however none among them are neutral.) Okučani is located just north of Stara Gradiška and west of Nova Gradiška proper. The former police station in Okučani served as a Serb-run detention facility in late 1991. As early as 6 December 1991, individuals were taken to this site and detained. The last known date on which prisoners were held at Okučani is the middle of January 1992.

3106. Okučani was run by Serb forces, but it is unclear whether the forces were regular or paramilitary. One report noted that members of the Okučani Territorial Defence forces and SAO Krajina "tortured and killed detainees in Nova Gradiška," but does not specifically mention Okučani. 4865/ Three individuals were identified as reportedly participating in the beating of Okučani prisoners. The military unit to which these persons belonged was not given in the report. 4866/

3107. Most of the Okučani detainees appear to have been Croatian, and included civilians and military personnel. One group of 18 persons was taken from the camp at Stara Gradiška to Okučani on 6 December 1991. Among the prisoners were women and civilians. Twelve of these 18 were eventually returned to Stara Gradiška. 4867/ An additional report noted that 12 persons were taken from Okučani to Stara Gradiška on 24 December 1991. It is possible that this report is referring to the same 12 individuals. 4868/ Additionally, 16 Croatian guardsmen were brought to Stara Gradiška in the middle of January 1992. However, they were returned to Okučani because they were severely beaten and could not receive appropriate medical attention at Stara Gradiška. 4869/

3108. Prisoners at Okučani were housed in small cells which measured one metre by 1.8 metres, so that the prisoners could not all sit down at one time. In one cell of this size, 14 prisoners were detained. The cells had neither windows or doors. Upon arrival at Okučani, detainees were stripped of all their belongings. During the day, the prisoners were beaten with all sorts of weapons, and at night, they were taken into a separate room where between five to six men beat the prisoners. Several individuals died as a result of beatings. 4870/

3109. At least one prisoner was mutilated while detained at Okučani. An electric appliance for use in cattle was implemented to maltreat the prisoners, but the method used was not described. Others were forced to open a heated oven with their bare hands or eat salt and drink salt water. 4871/ The group of prisoners who were taken from Okučani to Stara Gradiška on 24 December 1991 were described as having been severely beaten. In addition, one of the women prisoners had been tortured and raped by Okučani guards and other prisoners. 4872/

3110. Police Station: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely the ICRC.) The ICRC reported the police station as a place of detention and first visited the facility on 3 January 1992. 4873/

23. Novska

3111. Novska is located north of the Sava River and borders Bosanska Dubica. According to the 1991 census it had a population of 24,731. The population was 67 per cent Croat, 21.8 per cent Serb, and 11.2 per cent other. 4874/

3112. Novska Prison: (The existence of this detention facility has not been corroborated by multiple sources.) In December 1991, a Serbian family was taken by local Croatian authorities to the "Novska prison". At the prison, the entire family was allegedly subjected to physical and mental abuse. 4875/ Also within the municipality of Novska, in the village of Borovac, several members of Serbian paramilitary forces were accused of illegally detaining, harassing, and mistreating ethnic Croats. These violations were allegedly committed between August and December 1991; no specific location is given. 4876/

24. Ogulin

3113. The county of Ogulin is located in Croatia, south-west of Zagreb near the border with Slovenia. According to the 1991 census, the population was 28,904. At that time, the population was 59.9 per cent Croatian, 35.3 per cent Serbian, with the remaining 4.8 per cent referred to as "others". 4877/

3114. Saborsko: (The existence of this detention facility has not been corroborated by multiple sources.) There was a report of detention of civilians in Saborsko by Serbian paramilitary formations on 12 November 1991. 4878/

3115. Plaški Police Station: (The existence of this detention facility has not been corroborated by multiple sources.) It was reported that on 1 December 1991, a member of the Serbian paramilitary forces, interrogated civilians in the police station in Plaški. 4879/

3116. Ogulin Police Station: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by multiple sources however none among them are neutral.) Two reports from the same source indicated that 23 Serbs from Ogulin and the surrounding villages were arbitrarily arrested between 17 November 1991 and 20 November 1991. The Serbs allegedly were held in the Ogulin police station for three days, where they were physically abused by police officers and a ZNG member of the Republic of Croatia, in an effort to extract confessions on alleged collaboration with "Četniks" and possession of firearms. They were questioned and beaten at the police station. One of the officers fired shots from an automatic weapon, killing three of them and gravely wounding one. 4880/

3117. Another source reported on what appears to be the same incident and included two statements by ex-detainees. Both statements concern the arrest and detention of ethnic Serbs at the Ogulin police station. On 18 November 1991 one witness was arrested at work by a patrol from the Croatian Ministry of Interior. No reason was given for the arrest. He was detained at the Ogulin police station with 23 other people of Serbian nationality. 4881/ The other witness was arrested at his house on 17 November 1991 by the so-called "Josip Turković Intervention Unit" and taken by police van to the Ogulin police station allegedly to give a statement. 4882/

3118. According to the first witness, the interrogations began the same evening and the detainees were interrogated individually by six to eight people. The witness was interrogated by a co-worker from the Cumerija enterprise for one hour and 10 minutes which involved the beating of the prisoner on the legs and arms with a nightstick. He was accused of having been involved in an armed rebellion against the Republic of Croatia. 4883/

3119. The second witness was first interrogated by an elderly man allegedly from Zagreb to whom he gave his personal data and who questioned him about the Serbs from Plaški. He was then taken to another room where he spent up to two hours. A guard pointed a gun at his head and continuously clicked the trigger. A tall Croatian Defence Force (HOS) member with a red beret and a shorter man in civilian clothes entered the room. The two began interrogating and beating the witness. The HOS member kicked the witness in the head which caused bleeding. They left the prisoner ordering him to write a statement. The two men returned half an hour later and beat him again because he had not written anything. Another severely beaten prisoner was brought in and shortly thereafter the civilian took him away while the HOS member remained with the witness demanding a confession. The prisoner was then fed some bread and canned meat and when the other prisoner returned he too had been fed. The two prisoners were then taken to another cell which contained a severely beaten Serb. The Serb claimed he had been beaten all night, forced to sing "Ustaše" songs, and declare himself a "Četnik". 4884/

3120. The next day the two prisoners were taken out of the cell and told they would be released. Instead they were taken to a meeting room which held 10 other Serbs who had been arrested that morning. They were watched by two guards, one of whom collected money from the prisoners and bought them sandwiches and cigarettes. In the evening the prisoners were moved to the cafeteria in the basement. At 8:00 p.m., two "Turković's special policemen" entered the room and began taking prisoners out one by one. The prisoners returned badly beaten, the interrogators allegedly jumped from tables on to the chests of the prisoners. This continued until 4:00 a.m. on 19 November 1991. 4885/

3121. Those left in the room were threatened by a named person, who cocked his gun and pointed it at the prisoners. The witness was not beaten and he was told the man was saving him for last. At 7:00 a.m., two men entered and took the personal data of the prisoners. The witness was asked to reveal the names of the "Četniks" and Serbian Democratic Party (SDS) members in Josip Dol. The witness gave only the names of the deceased and those who had fled. During that day, around seven more Serbs were detained. 4886/

3122. Both of the witnesses claim that at some time during their detention a man entered the room where the prisoners were held and fired at the prisoners. The first witness claims that on 19 November 1991, the two guards who watched the prisoners were joined by an armed man. This armed man fired his weapon at the prisoners. Three detainees were killed and one was seriously wounded. The guards disarmed the assailant and moved the prisoners to another room where they spent the night. 4887/

3123. The other witness claims that the assailant was a member of the Croatian National Guard (ZNG). The guards, one a special policeman and the other a man from Modruša, attempted to get the assailant to leave. They were initially successful, however, he returned minutes later and joined the two policemen at a table where they were interviewing the detainees. The assailant appeared to be intoxicated and began telling the other two about his experiences in the war. The two police tried to convince him to leave and get some rest as his shift was over. The assailant allegedly started for the door but suddenly turned and fired from his automatic weapon on the detainees. The two policemen pushed his gun to the floor and one hit him in the head with his gun. Two prisoners died and one was severely wounded. A policeman named called an ambulance and the wounded prisoner was taken away. 4888/

3124. On 20 November 1991 the prisoners were released without explanation. 4889/

3125. Another report alleged that between 19 November 1991 and 21 November 1991 some one hundred Serbs from different villages were arrested and taken to the police station in Ogulin. There they were beaten and interrogated about an alleged rebellion. Ten people were killed and 90 have disappeared. 4890/

25. Osijek

3126. The county of Osijek is in eastern Croatia bordering FRY at Vojvodina. According to the 1991 census, the pre-war population was 164,577. At that time, 66.6 per cent were Croatian, 20 per cent were Serbian, 8.4 per cent were referred to as "other", and 5 per cent were referred to as "Yugoslav". 4891/

3127. Dalj Camp: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by multiple sources, including the ICRC. 4892/) It was reported that on 10 August 1991, in the village of Erdut, 4893/ members of the JNA Novi Sad Corps, and members of irregular militia 4894/ comprised of Serb villagers from Erdut began arresting Croatian and Hungarian civilians remaining in the town after the JNA occupation. A number of civilians 4895/ were arrested and taken to the village of Dalj. After an interrogation and physical abuse, some of the civilians were released while some were taken to Borovo Selo. On 25 August 1991, additional Croatian civilians were arrested by the "Krajina Militia" in the town of Erdut. They were imprisoned in Dalj for seven days and then taken to Borovo Selo. Several days later some of the Croatians were taken back to Dalj and imprisoned in the "Kooperacija" company building. 4896/

3128. Temporary Dalj Camp: (The existence of this detention facility has not been corroborated by multiple sources.) It was reported that a number of captured Croatian civilians from Vukovar were transported and temporarily detained in the village of Dalj during the last week of November 1991, after the fall of Vukovar. They were allegedly tortured and most of them were executed thereafter. 4897/ A witness testimony in another report corroborates the existence of this temporary camp in Dalj where many people were held and then allegedly executed. 4898/

3129. "Kooperacija" Company Building, Dalj: (The existence of this detention facility has not been corroborated by multiple sources.) It was reported that several Croatian civilians who were arrested in Erdut by members of JNA Novi Sad Corps and members of the "Krajina Militia" were imprisoned in Dalj in the "Kooperacija" company building. 4899/

3130. "Private" Prison in Dalj (The existence of this detention facility has not been corroborated by multiple sources.) It was reported that Veso Proa, a Serb from Vukovar and a resident from Belgrade fired at an imprisoned Croatian civilian near the cyrillic sign "Dalj" at the entrance to the village. The man survived and was taken to the private prison in Dalj along with two other men. 4900/ Another report says that there is a "private" camp in Dalj. 4901/

3131. Police Station, Dalj: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely Amnesty International. 4902/) A member of the Croatian National Guard interviewed in the Zagreb weekly newspaper Danas of 27 August 1991 described how he was captured in Dalj on 3 August, by local Serbs, former police officers who had occupied the police station in Dalj. He was questioned and released. The following day he was again detained and held together with some 20 other Croatians. He alleged that he was forced to load the bodies of 22 dead Croatian National Guardsmen and police into a refrigerated truck. He also alleged that he and his fellow prisoners were forced to carry out various physical tasks by their captors who punched and beat them with rifle butts, put out cigarettes on their bodies and humiliated them. 4903/

3132. Police Station Jail, Osijek: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely Helsinki Watch.) A Serbian man being held in the Osijek jail described his arrest and treatment in an interview with Helsinki Watch. On 7 July 1991 the man's house in the village of Shilopsi was surrounded by the Croatian National Guard and he and the other civilians in the house surrendered. They were beaten inside the house with rifle butts and kicked. He reported that about 20 to 30 National Guards were hitting and kicking them. After being beaten in the house, they were forced to walk about one to two kilometres to their cars where they were again beaten. They were then taken to Djakovo police station and he was taken to the hospital where his wounds were stitched. They were then taken to the Osijek police station and put in jail at about 3:00 p.m. on 8 July. There were seven people arrested (four men) and the men were all in the jail in Osijek. 4904/ In another interview with Helsinki Watch, the police chief of Knin reported that they believe there to be a total of 45 men held in the jails in Osijek and Banija. 4905/

3133. Osijek Prison: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely ICRC.) A report alleges that a man, Savo Ojkić of Voćin, who was imprisoned by Croatian authorities was subjected to brutal physical torture in Osijek prison which resulted in serious injuries of which he later died. He died in a Zagreb hospital where he had been taken for treatment. 4906/ The ICRC reports that its representatives first visited the Osijek prison on 7 December 1991. 4907/

3134. Osijek Barracks: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely the ICRC.) The ICRC reports that its representatives first visited the Osijek barracks on 23 April 1992. There are no details given. 4908/

3135. Osijek Hospital: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely the ICRC.) The ICRC reports that its representatives first visited the Osijek hospital on 31 March 1994. There are no details given. 4909/

3136. Secretariat of Internal Affairs Building, Osijek: (The existence of this detention facility has not been corroborated by multiple sources.) It was reported that after members of the Yugoslav People's Army surrendered in Osijek, they were taken to the Secretariat of Internal Affairs building where all their belongings were seized and they were forced to run a gauntlet of enemy soldiers on their way to prison cells. They were allegedly beaten severely. 4910/

3137. Basement of House, Osijek: (The existence of this detention facility has not been corroborated by multiple sources.) According to witness statements, members of the Croatian forces had entered into Paulin Dvor 4911/ on the night of 12 or 13 December 1991. Seventeen people were arrested and taken to the basement of the house of Mr. Andrija Bukvić. According to the witnesses, they were all killed. 4912/

3138. Unidentified Osijek camp: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by multiple sources however none among them are neutral.) A report discusses detailed information gathered from former prisoners of a camp in Osijek. They were allegedly subjected to severe physical and mental mistreatment. The forms of mental mistreatment ranged from bullying, threats, blackmail, recruitment and humiliation to brutal maltreatment, and sexual abuse. 4913/ This report is corroborated by another report discussing the treatment of the prisoners exchanged in the village of Nemetin on 27 March 1992. 4914/ Another report says that prisoners were taken out to downtown Osijek during the fiercest fighting to collect refuse and deposit it into street refuse bins. 4915/

3139. Second unidentified Osijek camp: (The existence of this detention facility has not been corroborated by multiple sources.) It was reported that a parish priest in Koprivnica 4916/ was arbitrarily arrested and detained by Croatian armed forces. He was first in preventive detention in Bjelovar and was then transferred to Osijek. Although he was a civilian and clergyman, he was exchanged as a prisoner of war for Croatian soldiers. He was allegedly ill treated and physically tortured as a result of which he suffered great bodily harm. 4917/

3140. Unidentified Ernestinovo camp: (The existence of a detention facility in this village has been corroborated by neutral sources, namely the ICRC and Amnesty International.) An Amnesty International and the ICRC report states that there is a camp in Ernestinovo, in the county of Osijek. There are no details concerning this camp. 4918/

26. Otočac

3141. Otočac is located near Gospić and had a population of 24,779. The population was 64.9 per cent Croat, 32.2 per cent Serb, and 2.9 per cent other. 4919/

3142. Otočac Prison: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely the ICRC.) The ICRC listed the Otočac Prison as a place of detention and first visited the facility on 2 April 1992. 4920/

27. Pakrac

3143. Before the second World War, Pakrac and its environs were almost entirely populated by Croats. Following World War II, Serbs began to inhabit the region and many Croats departed the area. 4921/

3144. According to the 1991 Yugoslav census, the municipality of Pakrac had a population of 27,288. Of that number 46.4 per cent were Serbs, 36 per cent were Croats and the remaining 17.6 per cent were described as "others".

3145. Reports received from the region suggest that of the three detention facilities in the municipality, two were Croat-run and one was Serb controlled.

3146. Bučje Camp: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by multiple sources, including Amnesty International.) The village of Bučje is located some 20 kilometres east of Pakrac. According to reports, Bučje had become a reference point for "SAO West Slavonija". 4922/ The village became the military and administrative centre of the "SAO West". 4923/ As a result, the prison was the most logical central warehouse to which prisoners captured from surrounding areas with undetermined containment assignment could be registered and detained. 4924/

3147. According to one report, on 19 August 1991, "Četniks" attacked and occupied a portion of this Croatian community killing a number of civilians and imprisoning others at this camp. From August to November 1991, a great many the prisoners at this location were reportedly questioned, tortured and killed. 4925/

3148. In another account, an elderly Croat reported being arrested on 21 September by Serbian paramilitary forces and taken to the village of Bučje. He reported being held with both civilian and captured soldiers in a school building. 4926/

3149. According to the report, the detainees were made to sleep on concrete floors with only a piece of cardboard for bedding. 4927/ The detainees' hands were tied behind their backs and their ankles bound. They were reportedly beaten simultaneously by several of their captors. 4928/

3150. One former detainee, who was arrested in August 1991 and held in several detention facilities, stated that his treatment at Bučje was the worst. He reported that he and other prisoners were beaten by their captors while they were handcuffed and blindfolded. "Life in Stara Gradiška, under the control of the JNA was bearable, indeed a positive blessing in comparison with Bučje". 4929/

3151. In another report, on 29 August 1991, a physician from Pakrac was taken to and detained in the basement of the forestry company at Bučje. He was kept in a room that contained only a stool and a piece of paper. He was given bread to eat and, the following morning, a blanket. On the evening of the second day he was taken to a physician to be treated for his wounds. He was reportedly removed from the camp for a few days and then returned on 6 September, this time he was detained in the room in the former veterinary clinic. The room used to be a stable. The floor was damp. He was given a sponge mattress, two blankets and a pillow. He was permitted regular meals. There was reportedly a female lawyer held in the room next to his and 40 people captured were detained in a wooden barn in the municipality. According to the witness, Serbs as well as Croats were detained at this facility. Reportedly Serbs who were part of a resistance were detained by the Serb paramilitaries. 4930/

3152. The witness identified members of the JNA bringing in refugees from surrounding villages. According to the witness there were 150 individuals held at Bučje. Serbs were reportedly released 10-15 days after their arrival. There were reportedly 30 Serbs detained there. Approximately six people were killed, 10 people were unaccounted for and a number of women were raped. 4931/

3153. "Stara Ciglana": (The existence of this detention facility has not been corroborated by multiple sources.) "Stara Ciglana" was regarded as a death camp. 4932/ It was located in Pakračka Poljana, near Kutina. This facility was reportedly created by Special Forces Units of the Ministry of the Interior Affairs of the Republic of Croatia for the containment and control of ethnic Serbs. 4933/

3154. Reportedly, after their arrest, ethnic Serbs were brought to this location and, either individually or in small groups, prepared for and "liquidated". 4934/ According to the report, those not destroyed were detained in the camp for several days and thereafter removed to locations where they were later killed. 4935/

3155. "Ribarska Koliba" Hotel: 4936/ (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely Helsinki Watch.) This Marino Selo hotel was reportedly converted into the Croatian National Guard/Military Police headquarters and death camp. 4937/ It was reportedly a small settlement just between Pakrac and Kutina. It was created in late October 1991 and secured by some 30 military police officers. The commander at that time was one Damir Širac. 4938/

3156. According to one report, on 15 November 1991, members of the Croatian army arrested 15 Serbs from the village of Kip, six from Klisa, and one from Batinjani. 4939/ Most of the prisoners were reportedly members of Serbian insurgency, but all were unarmed. They were detained in a hotel in the village Marino Selo, and guarded by 12-15 Croat army members. 4940/ The prisoners were reportedly used as forced labour to bury the bodies of those killed in the camp. 4941/

3157. The detainees at this facility were beaten with iron rods which were removed from military beds, beaten with wooden truncheons, and reportedly in one case, a blow torch was burned across the chest of one of the inmates. 4942/

3158. Following the beatings, they were detained in a room in the cellar from which regular beatings were inflicted. 4943/ There was also reportedly a room next to this cellar containment area where other detainees were taken solely for the purpose of being beaten. 4944/

3159. One detainee recalled that his son was taken by members of the National Guard to a hotel room where he was placed in a chair with his hands tied behind his back and thereafter connected to electricity and tortured. 4945/

3160. In another incident, the Croatian soldiers reportedly cut off the ears of one inmate and then forced another detainee who witnessed the event to eat the ear. 4946/ They reportedly later cut the ears and fingers off of several other detainees. 4947/

3161. Police Headquarters: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely the ICRC.) The ICRC reported the existence of a camp at the Police Headquarters in Pakrac. The ICRC first visited the camp on 14 January 1992. 4948/

3162. Jedinstvo Football Club: (The existence of this detention facility has not been corroborated by multiple sources.) In December of 1991 a Serb prisoner was interned in an improvised prison in the locker room of the Jedinstvo Football Club at Pakračka Poljana by the Croatian Army. While interned there he was interrogated and asked about the military positions of the JNA. He was also beaten daily. He filmed for five hours while interrogated. He was dressed in a furcap, a coat of arms with a četnik insignia for the event. The guards also electrocuted him by hooking a power transformer to his toes and turning the power on. His stomach was also burned and he was treated in Pakračka Poljana hospital. 4949/

3163. Unidentified House, Pakrac: (The existence of this detention facility has not been corroborated by multiple sources.) According to the testimony of a civilian from Pakrac, who was arrested by Serb paramilitaries on 19 August 1991, he recalled being taken to an unidentified house near Bučje. He was handcuffed and blindfolded and was unsure of his exact location. He was interrogated and beaten in this condition. The witness made a written statement and was detained in the bathroom of this house overnight. The following day he and another detainee were transported to another private home in the area. 4950/

3164. Home of Jela Tarbuk, Pakrac: (The existence of this detention facility has not been corroborated by multiple sources.) According to the statement of a civilian physician detained at this location, the home of a now deceased patient, he and another physician were kept here from 20 August 1991 to 29 August 1991. Reportedly one guard was posted at the location during the day and two at nights. They were fed three times a day and interrogated only once. The witness was made to write a letter to the hospital in Pakrac requesting surgical equipment and other supplies. The witness was transferred to Bučje on 29 August 1991. 4951/

28. Petrinja

3165. Petrinja is located near Glina and had a population of 35,622 according to the 1991 census. The population was 44.2 per cent Croat, 44.9 per cent Serb, 5.1 per cent Yugoslav, 5.8 per cent "other". 4952/

3166. Taborište Settlement, Brijest: (The existence of this detention facility has not been corroborated by multiple sources.) A concentration camp in which Serbians were detained was allegedly located at the Taboriste settlement, in the village of Brijest. 4953/ About 500 prisoners were detained there, including 80 women and 40 children. The children ranged in age from 8 to 15, and they were beaten and forced to work during their detention. The female prisoners were raped every day, and the male prisoners were reportedly killed and buried in mass graves. 4954/

3167. Vasil Gaćeša Casern: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by multiple sources, including the US Department of State.) The Vasil Gaćeša casern, which was formerly operated by the JNA, reportedly served as a Serb-run detention facility in September of 1991. The casern was used to house Croatian civilians in Petrinja county. At least 31 Croatian persons were captured while trying to escape the fighting in Petrinja and taken to the casern. 4955/ The prisoners were told they were being held "for their own security". Five of them were released the following morning. At least one of the prisoners was interrogated, beaten and forced to sign several confessions. The detainees also participated in burial detail, where bodies of killed persons were buried in two identified mass graves. One of the mass graves was reportedly located within Vasil Gaćeša casern itself, and the other was near a small hill, where 18 Croatian soldiers were buried. 4956/ The report did not indicate whether the soldiers were former prisoners of the casern.

3168. According to another report, SAO Krajina forces arrested a group of citizens on 21 September and took them to the casern, where a number of them were interrogated and tortured. Others were forced into labour. 4957/

3169. Croatian soldiers may have also been detained at the Vasil Gaćeša casern. On 16 September, Serb paramilitaries and JNA troops captured a group of 23 Croatian soldiers. They were reportedly tortured for several hours, then executed by a firing squad and buried in a mass grave. While the report did not specify the precise location where the captured soldiers were taken, the date of the incident coincides with other reports which mention the Vasil Gaćeša casern. 4958/

3170. Several individuals have been identified as participating in the operation of the Vasil Gaćeša facility. Reportedly, the chief jailer was a JNA Sergeant and the commander of the casern was a JNA Major. 4959/ Four alleged JNA interrogators were also identified.

29. Podravska Slatina

3171. Podravska Slatina is located in northern Croatia and had a population of 31,155 according to the 1991 census. The population of the opstina was 57.2 per cent Croat, 35.8 per cent Serb, 3.5 per cent Yugoslav, and the remaining 3.5 per cent were described as "other". 4960/

3172. Unidentified Detention Facility: (The existence of this detention facility has not been corroborated by multiple sources.) Little specific information is available regarding detention facilities in the municipality of Podravska Slatina. One report refers to Podravska Slatina, among other locations, as a place where Croatian authorities detained ethnic Serbs. POW's interviewed in March 1992 reported physical violence and mental mistreatment. The names of prison guards and members of the Croatian Ministry of Internal Affairs are given as alleged perpetrators. 4961/

3173. Police Station, Voćin: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely Amnesty International.) It is reported that the police station in Voćin was used by Serbs as a detention centre. 4962/

30. Pula

3174. Pula is located in Istria and had a population of 84,606. The population was 55.5 per cent Croat, 7.6 per cent Serb, 36.9 per cent other, and 11.9 per cent regional ethnic orientation. 4963/

3175. District Prison: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely the ICRC.) The ICRC listed the district prison in Pula as a place of detention and first visited the facility on 16 February 1992. 4964/

31. Rijeka

3176. The county of Rijeka is located in north-west Croatia bordering the Adriatic Sea, near the Istria peninsula. According to the 1991 census, the population was 205,836. At that time, the population was 71.4 per cent Croatian, 10.6 per cent Serbian, 2.9 per cent Muslim, 11.2 per cent of the population was referred to as "other", and 3.9 per cent was referred to as "Yugoslav". 4965/

3177. Rijeka: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by multiple sources, including ECMM and Helsinki Watch.) One source reported that the Croatian forces maintain a detention centre in Rijeka. 4966/ Around 14 September 1993 team Gospić of the ECMM was informed by the local Red Cross that some Serb prisoners allegedly had been transferred to Rijeka for unknown reasons after the last Croatian Army offensive in the Gospić pocket. The team was also informed that the authorities in Gospić would not allow anyone to see all the prisoners detained after the last offensive. 4967/ Another report claims that 12 draft age men, who arrived in Jablanica during January and February 1993, reported being picked up in various parts of Croatia by the Croatian police and detained in Rijeka before being sent to Posušje. The men appear to have been Bosnian Muslims though possibly three were Serbian. 4968/

3178. Rijeka Prison: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely the ICRC.) On 29 September 1993 the Knin Red Cross delivered the list of Croats incarcerated in the Glina jail and were given in return a list of Serbian soldiers, captured by the Croats in Čitluk, Divoselo, and Medak and who were reportedly detained in the Rijeka prison. 4969/ The ICRC visited the prison in Rijeka on 4 October 1991. 4970/

3179. Rijeka Military Police Building: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely the ICRC.) The ICRC reported the military police building in Rijeka as a place of detention in a report received on 27 May 1994. The representatives first visited the detention facility on 12 September 1993. 4971/

32. Šibenik

3180. The county of Šibenik is located in southern Croatia and borders the Adriatic Sea. According to the 1991 census, the population was 84,435. At that time, the population was 84.1 per cent Croatian, 10.5 per cent Serbian, with 5.4 per cent referred to as "others". 4972/

3181. Šibenik Prison: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely the ICRC.) It was reported that on 9 May 1992, Croatian authorities arrested 19 Serbs from the village of Glusci in the county of Metković on charges of "armed rebellion against the Croatian state". The arrested villagers were first imprisoned in Metković, then in Split and Šibenik. A prisoner exchange was arranged between the Federal Republic of Yugoslavia and Croatia for 14 August 1992. Twelve of the prisoners were exchanged, but seven refused to be exchanged and were reportedly then held in the prison in Šibenik for another 56 days. 4973/ Another report also discusses the allegation that the prison in Šibenik is holding prisoners of war. 4974/ There is also mention of a camp in a prison/penitentiary reportedly first visited by the ICRC on 9 September 1991. 4975/

3182. "Ante Jonjić" Barracks: (The existence of this detention facility has not been corroborated by multiple sources. 4976/) In a statement given by a Serbian man 4977/, it is reported that there is a camp in the "Ante Jonjić" Barracks in Šibenik. The man was arrested by Croatian soldiers near the village of Mumilovaca on his way to Prebilovci in Čapljina county on 8 April 1992. He was handcuffed and taken to a camp at the tobacco processing plant in Čapljina. He was held there with others and they were all beaten. They were then taken to the "Poduh" tobacco processing plant in Metković, where their personal documents and all valuables were taken. They were also again subjected to severe and repeated beatings. They were later taken to the "Lora" camp in Split. They were again beaten repeatedly and given very little food. The man witnessed at least one man being killed. Allegedly, one night before the arrival of the International Red Cross, 12 of the prisoners were tied up and taken in a van to Zadar where they were held in the former JNA barracks. They were again beaten. From here, they were taken to Duvno (now Tomislavgrad) where they were held for about 10 days in the cellar of an abandoned house. They were then driven to Ljubuski and were again beaten. The witness was beaten so severely that he was taken to the hospital in Split where he stayed for 15 days. After this he was taken to Šibenik, to what he believes was the "Ante Jonjić" barracks. There, the prisoners were forced to "graze" on the grass. He was beaten and stabbed in the chest. He witnessed a 70 year-old woman and her 15 year-old granddaughter being raped. After about 10 days, he was taken back to "Lora" in Split. He was there for about a month and a half and then driven with other prisoners in three or four busses to the Kerestinec camp. From there, he was sent to Nemetin near Osijek and exchanged on 14 August 1992. 4978/

3183. Temporary Detention Centre: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely the UK Defence Debriefing Team.) A witness reported being held for two days in what he believed to be a temporary detention centre in a cellar of a deserted house in the Šibenik area with 10 other prisoners. The guards were black-uniformed Muslims from the Black Legion. All the prisoners were beaten and as a result of being beaten himself, the source received a broken shoulder, broken nose and lost several teeth. From here the prisoners were moved to Eminovo Selo. During the move, 8 prisoners disappeared and the source believes they were killed. 4979/

3184. Šibenik Hospital: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely the ICRC.) Reportedly the ICRC first visited this facility on 2 February 1992. There are no details given concerning this camp. 4980/

3185. Unknown Cellar: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely the UK Defence Debriefing Team.) A witness reported being moved from Split to a location he cannot remember but believes to have been Šibenik where he spent one night and one day in the cellar of a normal village house with 10 other prisoners. 4981/ The source believes the village may have been Serbian as it was "empty" at the time he was there. 4982/

3186. A. Unidentified Šibenik Camp: (The existence of this detention facility has not been corroborated by multiple sources.) An unknown Šibenik camp was reported in a list of camps. 4983/

3187. B. Unidentified Šibenik Camp: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely the Thomson CSCE Mission.) An unidentified Šibenik camp was reported in a list supplied by Colonel Milosević, Commander of Serbian forces at Trebinje. 4984/

33. Sinj

3188. Sinj is located in southern Croatia and had a population of 60,178 according to the 1991 census. The population was 92.6 per cent Croat, 4.5 per cent Serb, and 2.9 per cent "other". 4985/

3189. Sinj Military Police Building: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely the ICRC.) The ICRC reported the military police building in Sinj as a place of detention and first visited the facility on 24 June 1993. 4986/

34. Sisak

3190. Sisak is located approximately 40 kilometres south-east of Zagreb and approximately 100 kilometres north-west of Prijedor, BiH. According to the 1991 census Sisak had a population of 84,247; 64.5 per cent were Croat, 3.2 per cent Muslim, 22.8 per cent Serb, 4.4 per cent Yugoslav, and 5.2 per cent other. 4987/ Reports based on statements of Serb prisoners detained in Croatian facilities in the area of Sisak suggest that they were subjected to physical, mental, and social mistreatment. 4988/

3191. Police Station: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by multiple sources, including Helsinki Watch.) In one report, six Serbs--four women and two men--were arrested on 27 January 1992 on the highway near Sisak. The six were detained at the police station for 24 hours without food or water. 4989/ Their personal possessions were removed and they were divided into groups. Three were sent to Slavonski Brod and the remaining three, it was believed, were sent to Slavonska Požega. 4990/

3192. According to one report, a Serbian male was arrested in Zagreb by local police officers and taken to Zagreb police station. After being detained there for several hours--without explanation, he and his son were transferred to the police station in Sisak. 4991/ The witness was hand-cuffed and taken to a room with several police officers who immediately began interrogating and verbally assaulting him. 4992/ He was then taken to a room on the first floor of the station unaccompanied by his son. He was once again interrogated regarding the activities of his brother. This second round of questioning lasted just under an hour, after which he was transferred to the jail in Sisak. 4993/

3193. Sisak Jail: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely Helsinki Watch.) According to the witness he was placed in cell number 4 after the interrogation process at the local police station. He reportedly shared the cell with several other men. 4994/ In the early morning hours, he heard someone being beaten and recognized the screams as that of his brother. The beating reportedly lasted several hours. 4995/

3194. The witness was blindfolded the majority of the time and so was neither able to describe the surroundings, nor identify his captors or fellow inmates. He reportedly remained at this location overnight and was returned to the police station the following day where he was registered and released. 4996/

3195. Sisak Prison: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely the ICRC.) On an unreported date in 1992, ZNG member allegedly captured five Serbs in a forest, location unknown; three of those captured were women. The five were reportedly taken to the prison in Sisak where the guards allegedly beat and kicked one of the women who was pregnant. 4997/

3196. The Sisak prison was reported on the ICRC list of places of detention and was first visited on 5 August 1991. 4998/

35. Slavonska Požega

3197. The county of Slavonska Požega is located in eastern Croatia near the border with BiH. According to the 1991 census, the pre-war population was 71,299. At that time, the population was 79.4 per cent Croatian, 14 per cent Serbian, and 6.6 per cent was referred to as "other". 4999/

3198. Unidentified Prison, Slavonska Požega: (The existence of this detention facility has not been corroborated by multiple sources.) Forty-one Serbian prisoners were exchanged for 380 members of the Croatian paramilitary formations on 27 March 1992. The 41 were reported to have been arrested between 6 November 1991 and 13 March 1992. Almost all the prisoners were interrogated for three to 10 days at various places in Croatia, including Slavonska Požega. Then they were allegedly taken to detention facilities in Osijek and Zagreb. 5000/

3199. Several sources submitted identical reports alleging that at least one person was taken into custody in Sisak and sent to Slavonska Požega. However, the report does not indicate whether the individual was detained there. 5001/

3200. Police Station, Požega: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely the ICRC.) Požega appears to be the same place as Slavonska Požega and the ICRC reported the police station in the opcina as a place of detention. A representative first visited the police station on 6 April 1992. 5002/

3201. Slavonska Požega Prison: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely the ICRC.) On 10 December 1991, the village of Vučjak Čečevački was attacked by Croatian forces. After the attack a member of the local Territorial Defence was arrested and taken to prison in Slavonska Požega. He was visited and registered by the ICRC. 5003/

3202. The ICRC first visited the Požega district prison on 24 October 1991. 5004/

3203. Slavonska Požega Jail: (The existence of this detention facility has not been corroborated by multiple sources.) In December 1991 Gornji Grahovljani, populated mainly by Serbs, was captured by Croatian forces. There remained 15 people in the village after the occupation and they fled to the woods. All 15 were killed except for one 17 year old male. He was detained in the Slavonska Požega Jail by the Croats and released on 1 June 1993. At the jail he was questioned about the location of weapons in Gornji Grahovljani and taken back to the village to look. No weapons were found. A court in Osijek sentenced him to a year and a half in prison though he was not present for his sentencing. He served his entire sentence in the Slavonska Požega Jail. The ECMM team reported that the Croatian Ministry of Interior denies that the witness was ever jailed at Slavonska Požega. 5005/

3204. Local Prisons: (The existence of these detention facilities have been corroborated by a neutral source, namely the ECMM.) On 24 November 1991 an ECMM team visited two local prisons in the Slavonska Požega općina. These prisons contained two JNA officers and two "Četnik" suspects and all stated that their treatment in the prison was totally correct and in conformity with accepted norms. One of the JNA officers was charged with unspecified war crimes. Three of the prisoners had been beaten when they were initially arrested by Croatian forces at Slavonski Brod and of these one was badly beaten. 5006/

3205. One of the JNA officers claimed that the prisoners were separated from each other. Mail could be received and sent but it was checked by prison authorities. The prisoners were given three meals a day, a bath once a week, and allowed to shave twice a week. They had to purchase their own toiletries and were seen by a doctor once a week. 5007/

3206. The other JNA officer claimed he had not been allowed to contact his family until the last 10 days of his detention. He had been interrogated but stated that this was conducted in a correct manner. One of the suspected "Četniks" claimed he too had medical treatment and was allowed visits from his wife. He had hired a lawyer. 5008/

3207. During this same visit the ECMM team had planned to interview a wounded "Četnik" at the hospital but the man had died before they arrived. The team was satisfied that the man died naturally from his wounds as they viewed the blood transfusion records. 5009/

36. Slavonski Brod

3208. Slavonski Brod is in south-eastern Croatia on the border of Bosanski Brod, BiH. In 1991, it had a population of 113,551, of which 85.2 per cent were Croat, 6.5 per cent were Serb, 5.4 per cent other, and 2.9 per cent "Yugoslav".

3209. The killing and detention of Serbs in Slavonski Brod and the surrounding region is said to have started on 8 May 1992 and continued throughout July 1993. 5010/ Three Croatian-run camps were apparently established during this time. They include a female prisoner "brothel", Kod Bardaka private bowling alley, and Slavonski Brod oil refinery. While the Serbs were detained in these camps, the Croats allegedly looted and destroyed all of their property. 5011/

3210. Brothel at Slavonski Brod: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by multiple sources however none among them are neutral.) The brothel at Slavonski Brod was set up to hold Serbian women and girls for the purpose of rape by Croatian and Muslim military personnel. Women brought to the camp were arrested and kidnapped from their homes.

3211. Apparently, women who got pregnant at the brothel were not allowed to leave so that they could not get an abortion. It is reported that members of Croatian and Muslim forces that had contracted AIDS and other sexually transmitted diseases were deliberately sent to the brothel to have sex with the Serbian prisoners. 5012/

3212. Twenty-eight of the girls at the camp are reported to have come from the village of Sijekovac. They were kidnapped from their homes by four identified perpetrators. One of them implies in his signed confession of these crimes that there may have been other Croatian groups carrying out similar kidnappings in the area since he refers to himself and the other men as "his group" as if there were others. 5013/

3213. These men raided all of the houses from the Zidić store and bus station in Sijekovac along the road in the direction of Derventa. 5014/ One source explains that they used a station wagon which belonged to one of the perpetrators to carry out the kidnappings while another source indicates that they also used a van in these crimes. 5015/

3214. During the kidnappings, they would often tie up all of the relatives in the house and rape the girls there before taking them away. One of the perpetrators confessed that in certain instances they cut family members' throats. 5016/

3215. One report claims that the van became overcrowded at one point and that they had to take most of the girls to Slavonski Brod before making a second trip to pick up the six or seven remaining. 5017/

3216. After they had taken the 28 girls to Slavonski Brod, they each took one for themselves and brought them to the village of Gornje Kolibe. One of the perpetrators detained "his girl" in his house for several days during which time he raped her repeatedly. 5018/

3217. Kod Bardaka bowling alley: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely the UK Defence Debriefing Team.) There are two reports that Serbian prisoners were detained at this private bowling alley. Apparently, prisoners were brought here when the Army of the Republic of Srpska took control of the area of Bosanski Brod and Odžak on or near 6 October 1992. 5019/ At this time, the Croats retreated and transferred all inmates from the Serbian villages of Odžak, Bosanski Brod, and Derventa to Slavonski Brod. One of the places they brought prisoners was the Kod Bardaka bowling alley. 5020/

3218. One prisoner reports being brought there with 70 other men at this time from Bosanski Brod. The group spent one night at the bowling alley before being transferred to another camp which is not identified. 5021/ At the alley, the prisoners were severely beaten. One man reports spending the night at the alley and being beaten throughout the night. He claims that he was slapped in the face so many times that he was deaf for days. During these beatings, another prisoner had his ear bitten off. 5022/

3219. One perpetrator named in connection with the beatings at the bowling alley is a Croat. 5023/

3220. Slavonski Brod oil refinery: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by multiple sources however none among them are neutral.) The oil refinery was the largest reported detention facility in the area. At the camp, all young girls and women aged 12 to 45 were held in one hangar; the older men and women kept in another. 5024/ Prisoners had all of their personal belongings taken from them and were given one thin blanket with which to sleep. 5025/

3221. The prisoners at the refinery were beaten throughout their detention. Apparently, those in charge of the camp called this "brainwashing". 5026/ One witness relates that while at Slavonski Brod he was beaten naked for hours and that other Serbs were hung by their legs and beaten upside down. 5027/ In one instance, due to a theft or false accusation, one of the soldiers broke the skull of a 40 year-old prisoner with the butt of his rifle. 5028/ Many times, prisoners were taken outside the hangar to watch the beatings and killings of others. 5029/

3222. Women were regularly raped at the oil refinery. Military personnel would come in at night and take them to be raped and sexually abused. One witness understood that the women were detained at the camp in order to bear as many Croatian children as possible. 5030/ In one instance, the soldiers raped a group of women on a stack of empty oil barrels which were stored just outside the hanger in which they were held.

3223. The women raped on the oil barrels were also severely beaten. Some had their ears cut off and their "eyebrows carved in full length" with a knife; others lost an eye or a nose. 5031/ One girl even had her lip cut into pieces. 5032/ When the women were left alone, they received no food. 5033/

3224. One woman relates that she was raped and molested by four men at one time. When she struggled to get free from one of the men who was raping her at the time, another tried to cut her arm off with an axe. Later, another soldier burned her leg with a cigarette and then stabbed it with his knife. At this point, she fainted. 5034/

3225. Many of the women at the camp were from the villages of Bosanska Krajina and Kninska Krajina. 5035/ Some of them were even pregnant, but they were still physically abused. In one instance, the Croatian soldiers brought an eight-month pregnant woman to the camp, cut her stomach open with a knife, and stabbed her unborn baby. The woman died sometime later. 5036/

3226. Another instance of severe abuse involved a woman who was transferred to Slavonski Brod from Bosanski Brod in early October 1992. 5037/ According to another prisoner, the woman was gang-raped at Bosanski Brod on 2 October by 40 men and then had two 40 centimetre sticks stuck into her, one in her vagina and the other in her anus. She reportedly bled profusely and could not walk when she and the others were transferred to Slavonski Brod on 6 October. Apparently, she fell by the park in Slavonski Brod. An "Ustaša" came up to her, kicked her, and then fired all of the bullets in his pistol into her head. 5038/

3227. One witness relates that he was picked up on the highway near Sisak on 12 January 1993. He and an unidentified number of other prisoners were brought directly to Slavonski Brod. Apparently, they were left alone for two days, but then the soldiers from the front came to the camp to "rest and have some fun", and they were severely beaten. 5039/

3228. Another ex-prisoner relates that she was also on the road from Zagreb to Sisak when she and five other individuals were ordered off a bus by Croatian policemen. 5040/ Their arrest occurred on 28 January 1993. The prisoners were first taken to the Sisak police station where they were "classified". 5041/ They were held for 24 hours before being taken on to Slavonski Brod. 5042/ During this time, they were offered no food or water and were stripped of all of their valuables. 5043/

3229. Apparently, while detained at the refinery, a fire broke out at some point, and the soldiers enlisted the help of the women to extinguish it. 5044/ The witness stayed at the oil refinery until 22 April at which time she was transferred with 50 other women to the River Sana and then on to the camp at the primary school in Odžak. She claims that most all of the prisoners transferred with her were in their late stages of pregnancy. 5045/

3230. The perpetrators at the camp are said to have all used nicknames so that no one would know their true identities. The nicknames were colours and names of saints. One witness relates that the guards were named things like "Black", "Blue", and "Jesus". 5046/ These were their combat names, and they never deviated from them. 5047/

3231. One of the men at the camp was nicknamed "Plavi". He is said to have been one that liked to carve out eyebrows in place of real ones on beautiful women, bite off ears, and poke out eyes. Apparently, he did either or all of these things to women. 5048/

3232. Unidentified Camp, Slavonski Brod: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely the ICRC.) While the ICRC reportedly made several visits to the camp at Slavonski Brod, the camp was not specifically identified. They visited the camp on 1 February 1992 and witnessed 13 prisoners; they visited on 7 March and recorded 15 prisoners; finally, they went on 7 April and 10 June and again recorded 15 prisoners. 5049/

3233. Unidentified Camp, Slavonski Brod: (The existence of this detention facility has not been corroborated by multiple sources.) In mid-July 1991 authorities in Slavonski Brod allegedly imprisoned more than 90 citizens of Serb nationality. 5050/

3234. Private House, Slavonski Brod: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely the ICRC.) The ICRC reportedly first visited a detention facility in a private house in Slavonski Brod on 13 August 1992. 5051/

3235. Military Prison, Slavonski Brod: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely the ICRC.) The ICRC reportedly first visited the military prison in Slavonski Brod on 2 June 1992. 5052/

37. Slunj

3236. According to the 1981 Yugoslav census, the municipality of Slunj had 23,000 residents. Eighty per cent were Croat and the remaining 20 per cent were Serbs, Muslims, Albanians and other. Tensions purportedly began to rise in 1990 when, as a result of the general elections when the controlling Serbs lost a great deal of power. 5053/

3237. In response to the undesired changes, Serbian paramilitaries reportedly established an armed resistance. On 23 July 1991, the Serbs allegedly fired upon the villages of Drežnik and Saborsko. 5054/ The paramilitaries were reportedly assisted by the JNA in the occupation of several villages in the area. 5055/

3238. Thereafter Serbs began closing the roads around Slunj and on 11 November 1991, airstrikes signalled the beginning of Serb occupation of the municipality. On the morning of 16 November, most of the civilian residents in the county fled to Cazin (BiH) and neighbouring villages to escape the attack by Serb forces. 5056/ The Croatian civilians who remained in the area were reportedly intimidated, looted, mistreated and arrested. 5057/ These actions reportedly resulted in the capture and detention of many civilians. 5058/

3239. Police Station in Drežnik: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely Amnesty International.) According to one report, a Serb male from the village of Grabovac in Slunj, was arrested by Croatian police in Drežnik on 28 August and detained at the local police station. He was reportedly interrogated and beaten for several hours. 5059/ During the questioning period, he was reportedly taken from the interrogation room and into the hallway where some 10 police officers beat him until he lost consciousness. His captors reportedly poured water over him and then resumed the interrogation. 5060/ Reportedly one police officer struck him in the chest so severely that he vomited blood. He was then reportedly ordered to lick up his blood, when he refused he was struck in the head with a rifle butt. He was reportedly later transferred to the police station in Slunj where he was not mistreated. 5061/

3240. Tourist Complex, Grabovac: (The existence of this detention facility has not been corroborated by multiple sources.) Reportedly on 3 September 1992, the Croatian village of Vaganac was attacked and allegedly razed to the ground. A concentration camp was thereafter erected by Serbs to contain the captured Croats. 5062/ No information regarding length of detention, treatment nor conditions at the facility were made available.

3241. Barracks, Slunj: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely the ICRC.) The ICRC reported the barracks at Slunj as a place of detention and first visited the facility on 26 October 1993. 5063/

38. Split

3242. Split is located on the Adriatic Coast in the southern part of Croatia and had a population of 206,612 according to the 1991 census. The population was 87.3 per cent Croat, 4.2 per cent Serb, and 8.5 per cent other.

3243. Two sources indicated that a detention facility existed in Split. 5064/ One witness who claimed to have been held in the prison in Split by members of the Ministry of Interior and the ZNG stated that he was burned with a hot bayonet, and was cut and beaten every day. He allegedly was denied food and water and threatened with death. 5065/

3244. Lora Prison: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by multiple sources, including the UK Defence Debriefing Team, and Helsinki Watch.) Lora prison is located in the town of Split. 5066/ During the Yugoslav conflict, this camp was in operation from as early as December 1991 until September 1992. Lora prison is situated at the naval base in Split. 5067/ The prison was circled by a high concrete wall and four metre-high barbed wire. 5068/ It appears that the camp consisted of several different cell blocks, one of which was allegedly used to hide prisoners when the ICRC visited. 5069/ Another source described the Lora prison as port buildings containing five hundred Serb prisoners. 5070/ Another source claimed that the prisoners were mainly civilians though 15 to 20 were Serbian volunteer fighters. During April and May of 1992 this source alleged there to be around 60 prisoners in the detention facility. 5071/

3245. Both ZNG and MUP forces are said to have been in control of Lora Prison. Two reports identified Croatian military police as present at the camp in April and May of 1992. 5072/ Another witness related that prisoners were told that the camp guards fell under the command of the military police, but were "not quite following directions". 5073/ The commander of Lora prison was identified by name. 5074/ His wife allegedly participated in the beating of prisoners at Lora. 5075/ He allegedly took part in the abuse of the prisoners and one witness claims he put on a rubber glove and forced it into a prisoner's anus. 5076/ Another man was identified as a deputy warden. 5077/

3246. The interrogators at the detention facility reportedly tortured prisoners with electricity. The prisoners were allegedly strapped into a chair in the warden's office for this purpose. The interrogators used a hand-cranked generator to supply the electricity and would shock the prisoners until they passed out. 5078/

3247. According to one source, an undetermined number of Serbs from Čapljina were detained in Lora detention facility by members of the HOS. 5079/ They were apparently beaten, tortured, cut with various instruments and given electric shocks. 5080/ Two witnesses claimed that their ears were pierced with paper clips which were connected to a power generator and they were electrocuted in this manner. 5081/ Another prisoner reported that his fingers tied with wire which was connected to a field telephone power inductor. The prisoner was electrocuted in this way. 5082/ Another detainee claimed that electrical cords were attached to his sexual organs. 5083/ A priest was reportedly forced to perform fellatio on another prisoner while they were both electrocuted. 5084/ Others were allegedly forced to perform homosexual intercourse and the females detainees were raped. 5085/ In addition a report stated that 15 to 20 Serbs were held in the detention facility from April to May of 1992. 5086/ In March 1992, a low ranking JNA non-commissioned officer detained at Lora had German shepherd dogs attack him in his cell on orders of guards in masks. He was then ordered to kiss the dogs. 5087/

3248. The prisoners were deprived of food for periods up to four days. 5088/ Others claimed to have been deprived of food for two days and when they were fed they received a slice of bread. 5089/ Another source reported that the prisoners were fed small quantities of food twice a day and water four times a day. 5090/

3249. An undetermined number of JNA officers and soldiers were detained in the prison from January 1991 to August 1992 possibly as many as five hundred. 5091/ They were allegedly subjected to daily mental and physical maltreatment by the ZNG military police who were present at the detention facility. 5092/

3250. Allegedly prisoners were kicked, punched, and beaten on a regular basis. Often the guards would burst into the cells at night to beat the Serb prisoners. 5093/ The prisoners were forced to turn to the wall and put their hands on the wall above their heads, with legs stretched away from the wall so that their bodies were in a slanted position, whereafter they were beaten on the kidneys and loins. Prisoners were also ordered to stand still, raise their hands and inhale. As they exhaled the guards would hit them in the stomach. 5094/

3251. Several reports indicated that the prisoners received medical treatment at the Firule hospital. There they were under guard of the ZNG military police who allegedly maltreated them. There was no indication that the hospital staff participated in the maltreatment. 5095/ Another report indicated that a severely beaten prisoner was hospitalized but then returned to the prison where the beatings allegedly continued. 5096/ One witness claimed that he was hospitalized after having his ribs broken during a beating. He claimed that he was registered at the Firule hospital under a false name from 1 May until 20 May 1992. 5097/

3252. Prisoners were forced to make statements to the effect that they were "Četniks" and that they had killed Croats and Muslims. They were forced to recite a memorized statement to the ICRC representatives and were beaten if they made a mistake. They were also made to race each other on hands and knees and the loser was beaten. 5098/

3253. Three prisoners reportedly died from the beatings they received while in custody at Lora. One was held in block "C" where the guards reportedly hid some prisoners they did not want the ICRC to view. The prisoner was beaten while loud music was played to muffle his cries. He died in July 1992. Another prisoner was allegedly killed in the toilet next to cell number 2. The report alleged that the warden was replaced as prison warden due to these deaths. 5099/

3254. An undetermined number of Serb prisoners were transferred from "Poduh" tobacco processing plant in Metković to the Lora detention facility in April 1992. The report indicated that at least one Montenegrin was detained at the facility. They were being detained by Croatian soldiers. Upon arrival they were ordered to take off their clothes and were deprived of their personal property. Then, they were taken to a concrete cell, measuring two by three metres and were beaten. These prisoners were allegedly forced to rape other female prisoners. 5100/

3255. According to one report the ICRC visited the facility four times between 22 April 1992 and 10 June 1992. 5101/

3256. Hospital, Split: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely the ICRC.) The ICRC reportedly first visited the hospital on 31 March 1992. 5102/

3257. Military Hospital, Split: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely the ICRC.) The ICRC reportedly first visited the military hospital on 29 April 1992. 5103/

3258. Penitentiary/Prison, Split: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely the ICRC.) The ICRC reportedly first visited the penitentiary on 1 October 1991. 5104/

39. Vinkovci

3259. The county of Vinkovci is located in eastern Croatia bordering Vojvodina. According to the 1991 census, the population was 98,484. At that time, the population was 80 per cent Croatian, 13 per cent Serbian, and 7 per cent was referred to as "other". 5105/

3260. Vinkovci: (The existence of this detention facility has not been corroborated by multiple sources.) Prisoners were reportedly detained in Vinkovci. Forty-one Serbian prisoners were exchanged for 380 members of the Croatian paramilitary formations on 27 March 1992. The 41 were reported to have been arrested in various općinas between 6 November 1991 and 13 March 1992. Almost all the prisoners were interrogated for three to 10 days at various places in Croatia, including Vinkovci. Then they were allegedly taken to detention facilities in Osijek and Zagreb. 5106/

3261. Mirkovci: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely the ICRC.) Mirkovci police station was reported as a place of detention by the ICRC who first visited the facility on 19 February 1993. 5107/

40. Varaždin

3262. The county of Varaždin is located in north-central Croatia on the border of Slovenia. According to the 1991 census, the population was 94,020. At that time, the population was 94.9 per cent Croat and 5.1 per cent was referred to as "other". 5108/

3263. Varaždin Prison: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely the ICRC.) The ICRC reportedly first visited this prison on 7 February 1992. 5109/ There is no further information on this facility.

41. Vojnić

3264. The county of Vojnić is located south-west of Zagreb bordering BiH. According to the 1991 census, the population was 8,190. At that time, the population was 90.6 per cent Serbian, 5.3 per cent Muslim, and 4.1 per cent was referred to as "other". 5110/

3265. Vojnić Police Station: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely the US Government.) Another source reported that a prisoner interned in the detention facility in Vojnić was not exchanged on 4 March 1992 in Karlovac with the prisoners from the Glina facility. This prisoner was not exchanged because the Serbs allegedly wanted to prevent the ICRC representatives from learning of the existence of the Vojnić facility. The Vojnić facility was located in the Vojnić police station, west of Glina on the road to Karlovac. It was not organizationally associated with the Glina facility. 5111/

3266. Vojnić Hospital: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely the ICRC.) The ICRC reported the Vojnić Hospital as a place of detention in a report received on 27 May 1994. The representatives first visited the detention facility on 30 June 1993. 5112/

3267. Vojnić Prison: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by a neutral source, namely the ICRC.) The ICRC reported the Vojnić prison as a place of detention in a report received on 27 May 1994. The representatives first visited the detention facility on 22 September 1992. 5113/

42. Vrbovec

3268. The county of Vrbovec is located in northern Croatia, east of Zagreb. According to the 1991 census, the population was 27,903. At that time, the population was 93.9 per cent Croatian, and 6.1 per cent was referred to as "other". 5114/

3269. Gaj: (The existence of this detention facility has not been corroborated by multiple sources.) According to one report, Gaj, which is located in Vrbovec, contains a detention facility. Forty-one Serbian prisoners were exchanged for 380 members of the Croatian paramilitary formations on 27

March 1992. The 41 were reported to have been arrested between 6 November 1991 and 13 March 1992. Almost all the prisoners, after being interrogated for three to 10 days at various places in Croatia, were allegedly taken to detention facilities in Osijek and Zagreb and those at Zagreb were then detained in Gaj and Kerestinec. 5115/

43. Vrginmost

3270. The county of Vrginmost is located south of Zagreb on the border with BiH. According to the 1991 census, the population was 16,534. At that time, the population was 70.6 per cent Serbian, 24.4 per cent Croatian, and 5 per cent was referred to as "other". 5116/

3271. Vrginmost Police Station: (The existence of this detention facility has not been corroborated by multiple sources.) On 14 September 1991, the villagers of Ponikvari were reportedly expelled from their village. One of the women fled to Topusko and was allegedly arrested on 21 September 1991, by Borivoje Šapić and other members of "Četnik" forces. She was taken to the Vrginmost police station and held until 4 October 1991. During her internment she was subjected to maltreatment and insults. 5117/

44. Vukovar

3272. In July 1991, Serb forces launched artillery attacks on the village of Borovo Naselje and other areas of Vukovar county. Reportedly, tanks, howitzers, mortars and battleship guns fired upon the region for several days in a seemingly unrelenting fashion. 5118/ Before the fighting began, there were some 84,000 inhabitants in Vukovar county, of which 43.7 per cent were Croats, 37.4 per cent were Serbs, and the remaining 18.9 per cent were comprised of other ethnic groups. By August 1991, just over 15,000 remained. 5119/

3273. Despite their initial disorganization, the people of Vukovar put up a strong defence to the alleged aggressions of Serbian forces. For three months, the inhabitants of Vukovar resisted their aggressors. 5120/ Eventually, however, the town was surrounded and the defenders were forced to surrender. Many of the citizens were captured and held in camps and detention facilities. The majority of the detainees were taken to facilities throughout FRY. A large number of citizens were also detained in facilities scattered throughout the region. Although a few of the detention facilities were run by Croatian National Forces, 5121/ the vast majority of the sites were controlled and operated by various Serb paramilitary groups.

3274. Velepromet: (The existence of this detention facility has been corroborated by multiple sources however none among them are neutral.) Vukovar was reportedly occupied on 18 November 1991 by the Yugoslav Army and members of several Serb paramilitary groups. Velepromet was the local subsidiary of a business which, following the occupation, served as a major collecting point for thousands of captured civilians as well as a distribution centre for several area Serb concentration camps. 5122/

3275. The process of registration and distribution of detainees presumably began with the separation of men from women and women from children. Each group was then taken to locations where they were interrogated--and in the case of women--raped and in some instances disfigured. 5123/

3276. Many of the women were taken to locations outside of the Velepromet facility. The men were detained throughout the facility itself. Many underwent medical examinations in addition to lengthy interrogations. Beatings were reportedly the standard accompaniment to the interrogation proceedings. 5124/

3277. Serb forces not only controlled the military and police activities in the county but also the judicial services. According to one witness, while held at Velepromet, she was taken before Krajina court and charged with "genocide upon the Serbian people". Her captors allegedly brought in a gurney with a child who had been burned and accused the witness of the crime. She was sentenced to 15 years in jail and returned to the containment area at Velepromet. 5125/

3278. Another detainee recalled the situation at the facility towards the end of May 1992. He was placed in a room which measured approximately 100 metres square. There were 260 male detainees in this room. 5126/ He recalled that men were removed from the room all night and those who remained could hear machine-gun fire and concluded that the Serbs were killing the other inmates. 5127/

3279. According to the testimony of another former detainee, he witnessed his captors taking a two or three month old child and throwing it against the concrete with such force that the child's "brain littered all over the concrete". 5128/ The Serbs then proceeded to cut off the breasts of the child's mother. The woman reportedly bled to death. 5129/

3280. Many inmates were used as compulsory labourers and performed such tasks as cleaning the streets, fixing roofs and burying the dead at the nearby Bulgarian cemetery. Several inmates identified members of Šešelj's units at the prison. 5130/

3281. According to one witness, there were more than 400 detainees at the Velepromet facility. 5131/ Upon arrival, prisoners were reportedly separated into three groups. 5132/ One group was situated in the basement 5133/, the second group was in a small room near the guard house 5134/ and the third group was contained in the carpentry workshop. 5135/

3282. Velepromet Office Building: (The existence of this detention facility has not been corroborated by multiple sources.) Following the occupation of Vukovar, members of the Serb paramilitary group led by one called Vojvoda established a National Court-Martial and housed it in the Velepromet Office Building. The premises also served as a detention facility--the fate of whose population was determined by the court established here. 5136/

3283. Velepromet Storehouses: 5137/ (The existence of this detention facility has not been corroborated by multiple sources.) In one report, several members of the JNA assisted by other "četnik" forces collected eight civilian prisoners from detention in the storehouse, bound their hands with wire, tied them to a tall barbed wire fence near the storehouse and then shot them. 5138/ The report notes additionally that three other civilian detainees were hung in the area near the storehouse. 5139/

3284. According to one report, Serbian forces gathered Croatian citizens, separating the men and detaining them in the storehouse. The men were interrogated and beaten at this location. On one occasion, Serb forces allegedly took 25 men from among those contained at this facility and shot them all. 5140/

